EDITING A COLLEGE PAPER

The new staff of this paper is beginning to realize just exactly what is necessary to edit a college newspaper. It has drawn one important conclusion: To mean the most to you, this should be the medium by which you, the students, express your opinions regarding the complex problems of the campus. Therefore, the column of material contributed by you shall be included whenever that material comes in. From time to time there will appear views there with which you will not agree. Reply to them in the following issue. The staff heartily approves presenting both sides of questions. It is up to you then to make this paper your own.

Material may be addressed to The Teco Echo and dropped in local mail. Names should be signed, but that is not required. Signed letters will be less subject to censorship.

THE ULTIMA RATIO

Robert Dowd seems to be worrying considerably over the fact that he has only 2 more terms here after this one. The question is: Will he be able to pass the math he is taking at present by the end of that time?

Joe Dunn, at the P. O. one morning presented Malene with a rose. Then he spied Alice, inside the cage, too. "Oh, Alice, I didn't see you. I'll bring you one tomorrow."

On the Washington trip Mildred Harrison and Alma Tyndall showed us a few things about how to get your man. Wonder just why they have been keeping it to themselves these four years?

Also on the Washington trip Mr. M. L. has to wait till 12:00 o'clock for the other chaperone to come in so he can take her out again.

And the tales that Ruth Kiker and Ethel Vick brought back from the conference week-end spent in Raleigh! Five O'clock dates! (A. M., you mutt, not P. M.)

Mr. Haynes: On the basis of intelligence tests, do city high school children or country high school children show greater intelligence?

Daniel Jordan: By "city" do you mean "Urban"?

Theo Eason says he deserves an A on his conduct on the last baseball trip.

During Open House at the Science Building, Miss Hunter spent all of one morning wrapping up bloody fingers. 'Twas the morning on which the Training School children came over. Several of them insisted on feeling the white rats as well as seeing them.

Eloise Camp: No, not a single mean thing happened on the Washington trip. I'm telling you though, we certainly did disregard traffic rules. We passed stop lights, and always went in the wrong direction on one-way streets. A cop stopped us once and asked us if we knew we were supposed to be going in the opposite direction. We told him yes and he wanted to know how long we'd known it. We replied that somebody had just told us. He agreed not to lock us up. He was so cute.

(No, not a single thing happened.)

Certain E. C. T. C. girls fell hard for some of the "tucks" Saturday night. Catch: the floor was a wee bit too slippery.

RESTRICTIONS

The Student Council asked that the following regulations concerning restrictions be printed:

1. Students on restriction must not enter the rooms of other students or have visitors in their own room.
2. They must not talk to coeds or any other boys.
3. They may walk on the walk on front campus, but must not loiter on front campus.
4. They may have the usual back campus privileges.
5. They must not enter the Campus building for social purposes.
6. They may go to Soda Shop as often as they wish, provided they do not make it a visiting place.
7. They may go to church.

DR. A. D. FRANK COMMENTS ON MISS PERKINS' SPEECH

"A good digest of the Social Securities program of President Roosevelt" was the comment of Dr. A. D. Frank, head of the History Department, regarding the speech made by Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, on April 26th.

The plans of the present administration for social security through unemployment insurance, old age pensions, help for cripples, aid for widowed mothers and health aid projects, as discussed by Miss Perkins were favored by Dr. Frank.

OPEN HOUSE AT SCIENCE BUILDING BIG SUCCESS was seen that many bacteria are of value to industry such as dairying and the making of cheese.

The three money crops of eastern Carolina—tobacco, corn, and cotton, with their by-products were graphically shown.

In plant life, among other interesting exhibits were those of wild flowers of eastern Carolina and flower booklets; samples of the evolution of plants; products of plant life; modified plants and their organs; various parts of plants and fungus plants.

In physiology were shown the evolution of the processes of reproduction; maps and charts showing the elements composing the human body, the actual value of these elements revealing the cost as sixty nine cents; the processes of digestion and respiration from the lower animals on up to man; and exhibits of actual foods according to vitamins. Of value to housewives were the methods of food preservations.

Minerals found in this state, soil erosion and methods of prevention, and the uses of the silicates, including glass-making, were demonstrated by charts and drawings.

Balanced aquariums, terrariums, snaileries, and anthouses gave suggestions for practical use.

A number of commercial displays, such as pine tree products, patent medicines, corn products, ceramics and the commercial uses of the elements were assembled by students. The girls hovered over the history of cosmetics.

The amazing amount of work and excellent quality done by the students of the Science Department of the College was shown by the splendid demonstrations and graphic exhibits displayed at their Open House. The entire exhibit presented projects made by individual students from groups of students in connection with their work in science, supplementing the general class work. The Science Club will perhaps hereafter make this an annual feature on their program.

W. A. A. HAS OUTING

Members of the Women's Athletic Association and their guests enjoyed a sunrise breakfast Saturday morning, April 27th at Rock Springs.

The party met at the tennis courts, and carrying weiners, rolls, sticks, and mustard, hiked through the woods to the spring where breakfast was cooked. Mr. R. C. Deal and Dr. A. D. Frank were special guests of the Association. It is hoped that many such trips can be taken next year, and that a taste of a real athletic living will be offered to every student in the college.

If we have begun to create two separate languages the fault lies not with the talkers but with the writers.—Heywood Brown.

College made easy:

They have introduced a new note into the library system at Bucknell University (Lewisburg, Pa.) No longer will spring drugged coeds and males have to thumb along the shelves until they hit something that might suit their fancy of the amount. Their enterprising librarian has arranged all the books according to "moods." If you are feeling a bit sickish and unsettled, there is the love shelf; should you feel disillusioned and sour about it all, there's the gall and bitterness shelf. Emotions made easy, we should say.

200 Men Students To Attack Dinner

That was the headline that appeared in the Minnesota Daily at the University of Minnesota (Minneapolis) the other day. The night editor apparently had been somewhat groggy, for the word should have been "attend". At any rate, the clipped-out headline next day appeared on the journalism department bulletin board with this inscription: "Proper command—Wait until you see the whites of their eggs."

From the magazine News-Week:

"Dr. Diehl weighed and measured 17,127 coeds in six different universities."

The man is a wonder—it takes most of us four years just to size up one coed.

The revenge of one professional fraternity upon another at the University of South Dakota (Vermillion) this winter strikes a new, original note. The first group inserted a want ad in the papers which read, "Wanted—100 men to clear the snow off the stadium." And they gave the address and telephone number of their rival house. The avalanche of job-seekers had the victims in a sweat for the next 48 hours, until the plot was finally revealed.

After the exams were over: "How far were you from the answer to the fourth question?" "About two seats."

It must have been a thrill—in fact we are positive it was a most overwhelming sensation, when two coeds at Syracuse University (Syracuse, N. Y.) tripped along the corridors of the anthropology department and run up against a five-foot alligator which had escaped from his cage.

Open Forum

Dear Editor:

If there is to be progress in this college, it is up to someone to instigate changes, for improvements result largely from revisions.

I have acquainted myself with facts which make me think there is a very strong argument for a five day a week schedule here. By this I mean the elimination of Saturday classes. Off hand you might suspect that the reasons behind this suggestion are trivial, that my view is from a social standpoint. On the contrary, the arguments included which touch the social life of the students tend towards the balancing of their College life, not towards affording more time for social life.

In the first place, Saturday would eventually become a day for library research, reading for mere pleasure, attention to clothes, outdoor life, sports. An additional day could be used conveniently by students and all teachers.

In the second place, a class schedule could be devised which would afford credit of hours corresponding more exactly to the hours offered for the same courses in other colleges and Universities. As that situation stands now, transfer without the loss of credit is practically impossible. A five day a week schedule would not mean that every course had to meet five times a week; some could meet twice, some three times, some four, and some five. Courses vary anyway as to the arrangement of classes essential for greatest accomplishment, so in preparing a new schedule, factors like that would be considered.

In the third place, week-ends would remain as open as at present, but the inclusion of Saturday would cause no additional complications in the dean's office. You think students would leave campus more often? Then so long as they kept up in their studies, their absences during week-ends would be of economic value to the college. And further:

Latest college humor: "Who was Talleyrand?" "Oh, she is a fan dancer and don't talk baby talk."

The tired-out student is temporarily insane, declares Prof. Floyd C. Dockery, of Ohio State University (Columbus).

"After a long day of classes, he is nervous and jumpy and all the symptoms are identical to those experienced by the insane," Prof. Dockery points out.

Which will make a swell alibi to boys and girls who write home to explain their bad marks. They may now just explain that they had gone insane.

thermore, of these week-end jaunts, many would consist of visits in the homes of girl friends. This would furnish social experience similar to those which will confront the same students after they graduate and enter the communities where they are to teach. Statistics show that E. C. T. C. graduates are weak in social adjustments. Experience would strengthen them. But the other side is the danger that some few students would leave school so many week-ends that they would not do as well in their work. If there are students here who value the week-ends above their studies, then it would be well to weed them out before they skim through and attempt to represent E. C. T. C. as a teacher.

In the fourth place, under the proposed arrangement no cuts would be excused except in cases of illness in infirmary, serious illness or death in the family, or absence from campus on school business. At present a student may miss as much as twenty-five per cent of a course and still have a chance of passing. That should not be. Also, the system now in use regarding cutting is inconsistent, inadequate and deplorable.

Expressed student opinions would have much weight in affecting changes in this school.

—An Active Student.

Dear Editor:

There has been quite a bit of discussion among the students concerning the Sunday chains at the Beckwith Entrance. The students do not object to the prevention of cars thronging the dormitories on Sundays, but the majority of them would like very much for cars to be allowed to use the Wright Circle. Students would not be more likely to go to ride without asking permission if cars were parked in front of Cotton Hall than at the present with cars being parked in Fifth Street. It gives a very inhospitable impression of our college to see the cars of our visitors parked so far away from their destination.

Besides the fact that this is a problem concerning the college students, it is somewhat of a community problem. The regulation under discussion necessitates a certain amount of traffic blocking on Fifth Street, consequently attracting unfavorable attention by visitors and passers-by.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Crack Rogerson scored the first touchdown that E. C. T. C. ever made. In the Armistice day game of 1933 he scored the winning and only touchdown of the game against Campbell College.

Greenville is to have Sunday baseball this year. Jimmie Johnson is a former holder of the heavy weight title of the 13th Field Artillery of the North Carolina National Guard.

Lefty Dunn is the only left-handed pitcher that E. C. T. C. has had since baseball was started here four years ago.

Atlantic Christian College can not equal the record of Knox College by losing 27 straight games but so far this season they have lost 9 baseball games in a row out of a thirteen game schedule.

Crack Rogerson, while a student at Aulander High School in 1929, scored 97 points against Creswell High School, in a football game. The final score of the game was 144 to 0.

The sweaters for the girls' basketball team have arrived, and there is many a proud girl on this campus wearing her sweater.

Runt Bostic is still leading the Pirates at the bat this season. Theo Easom is second. Easom has been out most of the season due to a broken rib.
