New Constitution Being Prepared For Adoption

Student Association To Have Additional Branch

During the coming fall term a new constitution of the Student Government Association will be presented to the student body for approval.

Provision is being made for an executive council which will head the whole student body, and will act on all matters not involved in the constitutions of the men's and women's associations, and on matters which concern both organizations.

Composed of representatives from both women's and men's student governments, a committee of five with Marion Reed as acting chairman, had practically completed the plans for the new constitution by the end of the spring quarter. Others on the committee were C. Ray Pruette, Fodie Hodges, Nell Breedlove, and Lillian Parrish.

At the close of the spring quarter, the committee reported that much progress had been made and that the constitution was near completion.

Early in the fall final arrangements, improvements, and adjustments will be made. The completed constitution will be presented to the student body and the Student Government Association will have another branch.

Pres. Meadows Attends Meeting In New York

Delegates Discuss Responsibilities Of Schools

President Leon R. Meadows returned Friday from the World Congress on Education for Democracy, held in New York City at the Teachers College. The convention lasted from August 15 through August 17. Representatives from thirty-eight organizations, including educational, labor, business, agricultural, and others were present at the congress.

The responsibility of our schools for the defense and advance of democracy was the general theme of the three-day session.

Conclusions reached at the meeting were that the educational conditions in the United States must be bettered. It was further agreed that other meetings of the same kind should be held in the future to encourage the educational developments in the schools.

Construction Of New Building Rapidly Nearing Completion

Three Story Structure To Be Ready For Occupancy In Winter Quarter

Rapidly nearing completion is the new classroom building which was started last winter. Excavations for the basement were begun early in January, and at the present time the walls are nearing completion. It had been hoped that the new building would be ready for of the fall quarter but due to a delay in beginning actual construction and several delays caused by unfavorable weather, the building will not be finished as soon as had been expected.

The main floor of the building will be incomplete due to a lack of funds. It is hoped that enough additional funds will be secured to finish the building in the near future however. There will be no wall partitions on the main floor.

The building is being financed by an appropriation of $325,000 made by the North Carolina State Legislature and the Federal Works Project Administration. Of the $325,000 appropriated, $300,000 will be spent in the construction of the building. The remainder will go for new equipment.

When completed, the new building, which will house the science department, will be three stories high and will have a 221 foot front. The two wings will have 188 foot fronts. The building is located between the present science building and the Infirmary.

Dr. Dorothy M. Schnyder, former art instructor at East Carolina Teachers College has resigned her position here to accept a position at Hofstra College in Hempstead, Long Island. At Hofstra Dr. Schnyder will be in charge of teaching and supervising observation, practice teaching, and interne teaching in all fields.

DEUCES WILD

WOO-WOO: MR. WRIGHT asked his class in Sociology 305 to turn in their definitions of petting. One member of the class got definitions from several people on the campus. One dormitory matron said she couldn't define petting but she knew what love was.

A DRAMA IN ONE ACT: The scene on any front porch.

"Mmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmm"
"Mmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmm"
"Mmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmm"
"Good night."

Sure there ain't any point to it but don't those m's look cute strung out like that?

ONCE UPON A TIME: THERE WAS a seal. The seal couldn't talk and he couldn't eat. It was Thanksgiving and all the other animals in the sea were feasting but this seal had to fast instead. He was in love but couldn't tell his lady seal friend that he loved her. It was awful. His girl friend married a polar bear and he couldn't object. He started to end it all by drowning himself in the ocean—but he couldn't get his Berings. But at last he found he could open his mouth and talk and eat. Then he married a lady seal and lived happily ever after—except for the fact that he couldn't talk to his lady love but once a year. You see, he was a Christmas seal and he had to wait until December 25 to open.

IS MY FACE RED? CAN YOU IMAGINE the surprise of a certain young lady on the campus as she returned from a shopping trip the other day? It seems that just as she was crossing the street her bundle came open and there were unmentionables strung from Five Points to Wilson!

WHICH JUST GOES TO SHOW YOU that two slips in the bag are not nearly so embarrassing as one on the street.

SO WE COME TO THE END OF THE COLUMN FOR THE SUMMER. If there have been things in it you liked, we apologize. If there have been things in it you didn't like, we are indeed grateful. G'night.

Scottish Kilties Present Program Of Varied Musical Numbers

Quartets Solos Make Up Entertainment

Appearing here in their native full dress highland costumes, the Scottish Kilties presented an evening of music characteristic of quaint old Scotland on Thursday evening, August 17. Although they were an hour delayed in getting here due to unavoidable circumstances, the audience waited patiently for their arrival.

Combining quartets, solos, and the playing of the native bagpipes into an entertainment unlike that of any given here recently, Chief Nimmo and his Kilties brought the lyceum entertainments of the summer to a close.

Perhaps the numbers that were enjoyed the most were those played by Chief Nimmo on the native bagpipes, which are so characteristic of Scotland. Included in these selections were "The Cock of the North", "Yankie Doodle", and "Susanna."

Other numbers included on the program by the Kilties were the following: "Sweet and Low", "Song of the Western Men", "I Carry You in My Pocket", "Rose Marie", "Dear Little Shoes That Carry My Lady", "Dawn", "Swing Low Sweet Chariot", "Coming Through the Rye", "Joanne with the Light Brown Hair", "Little Boy Blue", "The Top of the Morning to You", "Loch Lomond", "Come to the Fair", "On the Road to Mandalay", "My Lassie", and "Blow Ye Winds of the Sea".

Plagues May Come And Go But Bag Suppers Are Worse

Into every life some rain must fall—but Darnit, it doesn't have to rain all the time. Now how in the world did we get started on the weather? This was supposed to be a feature on that worst of all plagues, the bag supper. The Egyptians had their seven plagues—take it, but they didn't have a single one that could compare with what we ECTCians have to suffer.

There's just one thing about it! When the Egyptians had their plagues they were through with them. They, like the mummies, died and became memories. Well, our bag suppers become memories—if you can call a Nightmare a memory.

QUOTE: "You may not be dumb, but you certainly have a good basis for ignorance." UNQUOTE.

ADDENDA: ON A TRAIN one day, Little Audrey heard a passenger call the conductor Mr. Glass. But Little Audrey just laughed and laughed. She knew that couldn't be his name, because glass is not a conductor.

SHORT STORY: "No!"

NATURE STUDY: FRANCES must be a science major. For what other reason would she be thinking about tadpoles?

P. U. What well known man-about-the-campus referred to the English Department as the Chamber of Commas?

??????? The average college girl wears approximately 9.68 square feet of lipstick per year. By the simple process of putting two together, Anne has arrived at the conclusion that men wear half that much.

Lucille: "Did you collect that Bill?"
Lindsav: "No. He kicked me down the stairs."
Lucille: "You go back and get that money; I'll show him he can't scare me."

Let's analyze the bag supper—and believe me, brother, it has its elements. First, there's the bag, a likely looking object at first sight, full of a lot of empty space. Then there's the inevitable pimento sandwich—christened by one sufferer, the Western Sandwich—you know, two slices of bread with a wide open space. Next come the pickles. Close on the tail of the pickles we find the cakes. By the time you get ready to eat the darned thing you've got one Heck of a mess. The pickles, romantic devils, just ooze affection all over the place. Put one part pickle ooze with two cakes and you've got a concoction. BUT DEFINITELY!

Now comes the apple. No self respecting worm would dare populate one of the things. Now if Eve had been a student of ECTC, we'd all be living in the garden of Eden. She never would have offered Adam one of our apples.

The best way to eat a bag supper is to leave the thing in the room and go up the street to some cafe and order a meal. Leave the bag supper where it is for two weeks, then, quietly slip up to it and sniff. If you survive, you'll take your food through your veins for the rest of your life.

PARADOX? ONE OF the prettiest of the popular songs to reach these ears is the importation from England, "Angels Never Leave Heaven." That blonde over in Wilson sho' makes liars out of the British or else she gave St. Peter the slip.

So You're Going To The Fair? Then Heed The Latest Fashions

By BARBARA KEUTZENKAMP

So you're going to the New York World's Fair this month! Keep in mind the fact that New York's temperature is apt to be chilly at this season, and you'll want a warm suit for your sightseeing. A particularly good choice of a suit can be made in choosing one of the new color—beige—which has become popular with the New York women this season. It would be handy, too, if your suit had a casual overcoat for traveling. For warmer afternoons a light colored blouse of cotton or dotted swiss with your suit would make a welcome change. You'll need also a jacket dress. A very smart one is made with a bolero jacket over a basque type dress. The skirt of the dress and the jacket are made of plain rose colored crepe, while the blouse (zipped all the way up in front) is made of dotted rose crepe. And the turn-back lapels of the bolero are faced with the dotted rose. Or if you prefer, you can get a jacket suit with the dress completely made of printed material and the jacket alone made of the plain material.

You'll also want to take a rather dressy afternoon dress for teas and informal evenings. A lovely afternoon dress, direct from Paris, is made in delicate pastel shades of crepe. The elbow length sleeves and the upper part of the bodice are "ornes de bouillonis." That is, the sleeves are divided into four parts by shirring, each three inches wide, and the yoke is made with a short V-neck, finished with a small bow. The skirt is slightly flared and divided into six panels.

You'll want to take an evening gown with you. Take one that doesn't muss easily, and that has a separate bolero. The dress will serve you double purpose: with the bolero it will be correct for restaurants and theatres, and with the bolero left off, it will be formal enough for dancing.

Two pairs of shoes are all you will need: one pair of dressy shoes, and one comfortable pair for sightseeing. . . . And don't forget your raincoat! Have a good time!
