Rose Retires After Twenty-Two Years At East Carolina

by Miss Mary H. Greene

Laura T. Rose, faculty member of East Carolina Teachers college, has retired after twenty-two years of service at the college.

As a member of the social studies department, Miss Rose joined the teaching staff of East Carolina in 1926; and she has taught courses, mainly in American history, during her period of service here.

A native of Minnesota, Miss Rose received her college training at Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, Minnesota, where she was awarded the bachelor of arts degree in 1914. Later she attended Columbia university and completed work there for the master's degree. Before coming to East Carolina she taught in high schools in Idaho, Montana, and Minnesota.

She was for a number of years a member of the American Association of University Women in Greenville. As chairman of the international relations committee, she was active in the work of the organization and contributed to its program of study. During the past school year she spoke before the Faculty Lecture club of the college on her Swedish ancestors and gave an account of the contributions to American life and culture made by her pioneer forefathers.

Miss Rose will make her home in the future at Marine-on-St.-Croix, Minnesota.

Recently residents of Ragsdale hall, teachers dormitory at the college, entertained in honor of Miss Rose and presented her with a silver pitcher as a token of esteem and of appreciation for her long service at East Carolina.

Parent-Teacher Association Holds Meeting At ECTC

Work in the Parent-Teacher associations of the state was discussed by educators and lay leaders at a conference conducted at East Carolina during the past week. Gathered on the campus to consider problems and responsibilities common to parents, teachers, and other citizens in regard to the welfare of children was a group of PTA officials in the state and representatives from North Carolina towns and cities from Charlotte and Greensboro eastward.

Ann Redwine of Monroe, faculty member at East Carolina and supervising teacher in the campus Training School, was the director of the five-day conferences and coordinator of the program presented at a series of meetings, conferences, and social events.

Officials of Parent-Teacher organizations who were present for the conference and who participated in the program were Mrs. E. H. Hunter, Charlotte, president of the State Conference of the PTA; Mrs. J. W. Burke, Gibsonville, treasurer of the Congress; Mrs. Paul Davenport, Pactolus, director of the Tenth District; and Mrs. Burke Stancil, president of a Greenville PTA unit.

Delegates From ECTC Attend Conference

Dora E. Coates, a member of the faculty here and Robert L. Shuford, Jr. and Ellen Joyce Clark, students, have been appointed as delegates to represent East Carolina at an emergency conference on the shortage of teachers in North Carolina. The meeting will take place at Meredith college on June 17, and is expected to be attended by more than 200 men and women.

Ehringhaus Speaks At Commencement Exercises Here

The Honorable J. C. B. Ehringhaus, former governor of North Carolina, spoke on Monday, June 7, at the thirtieth commencement exercises held at East Carolina Teachers College. In his address, Ehringhaus stressed the search for truth, and identified the experiences of the past as man's best guide in determining truth in the present and for the future.

Dr. John D. Messick, college president since last September, presided at the first June graduation exercises which he has conducted here. Graduates were presented to him by Dean Leo W. Jenkins as they received their diplomas.

Among the 126 men and women completing their work at East Carolina, 92 received the bachelor of science degree, and 23 received the bachelor of arts degree. The master of arts degree was conferred upon eleven students. Women receiving degrees numbered 95; and men, 31.

At the commencement exercises, five students were awarded prizes for outstanding achievements during their college careers. Ellen Joyce Clark received the Alexander B. Andrews scholarship, which is given annually to a student with an excellent scholastic record; Dorothy Bennett received the Thomas C. Williams award, presented annually by the Pi Omega Pi honorary fraternity to the senior having the highest scholastic record for four years in the department of business education; Charles Connor, the James Fenly Spear Jr. Memorial award; given annually to a senior in the department of science outstanding for scholarship, leadership and good citizenship; and Keith Hudson, the John B. Christenbury Memorial award, given annually to an outstanding athlete.

Elizabeth Carter was the first student to receive an award established this year by the Mathematics club at the college, in honor of the late Maria D. Graham of Warrenton, a charter member of the East Carolina faculty.

Floyd "Tom" Collins

Norman Cordon To Give Recital At East Carolina

Norman Cordon, star of the Metropolitan opera and a native of North Carolina, will sing at East Carolina on the evening of June 23. The recital by the popular bass-baritone, will take place in the Wright auditorium on the campus at 8:00 o'clock and will be sponsored by the Entertainment committee of the college. Gordon's home town is near-by Washington, N. C.

Cordon's appearance here next Wednesday will be his second at East Carolina. In 1937, in the early days of his fame as an opera singer, he opened the concert season for the year at the college here.

Singing again in his home territory, Cordon will be a welcome guest star at East Carolina and, according to present expectations, will be heard by a large group of eastern North Carolinians made up of personal friends and others who have followed his career with interest.

Cordon has recently become connected with the University of North Carolina and in the future will be identified with activities in music there.

Charles Williams To Edit Summer School 'Teco Echo'

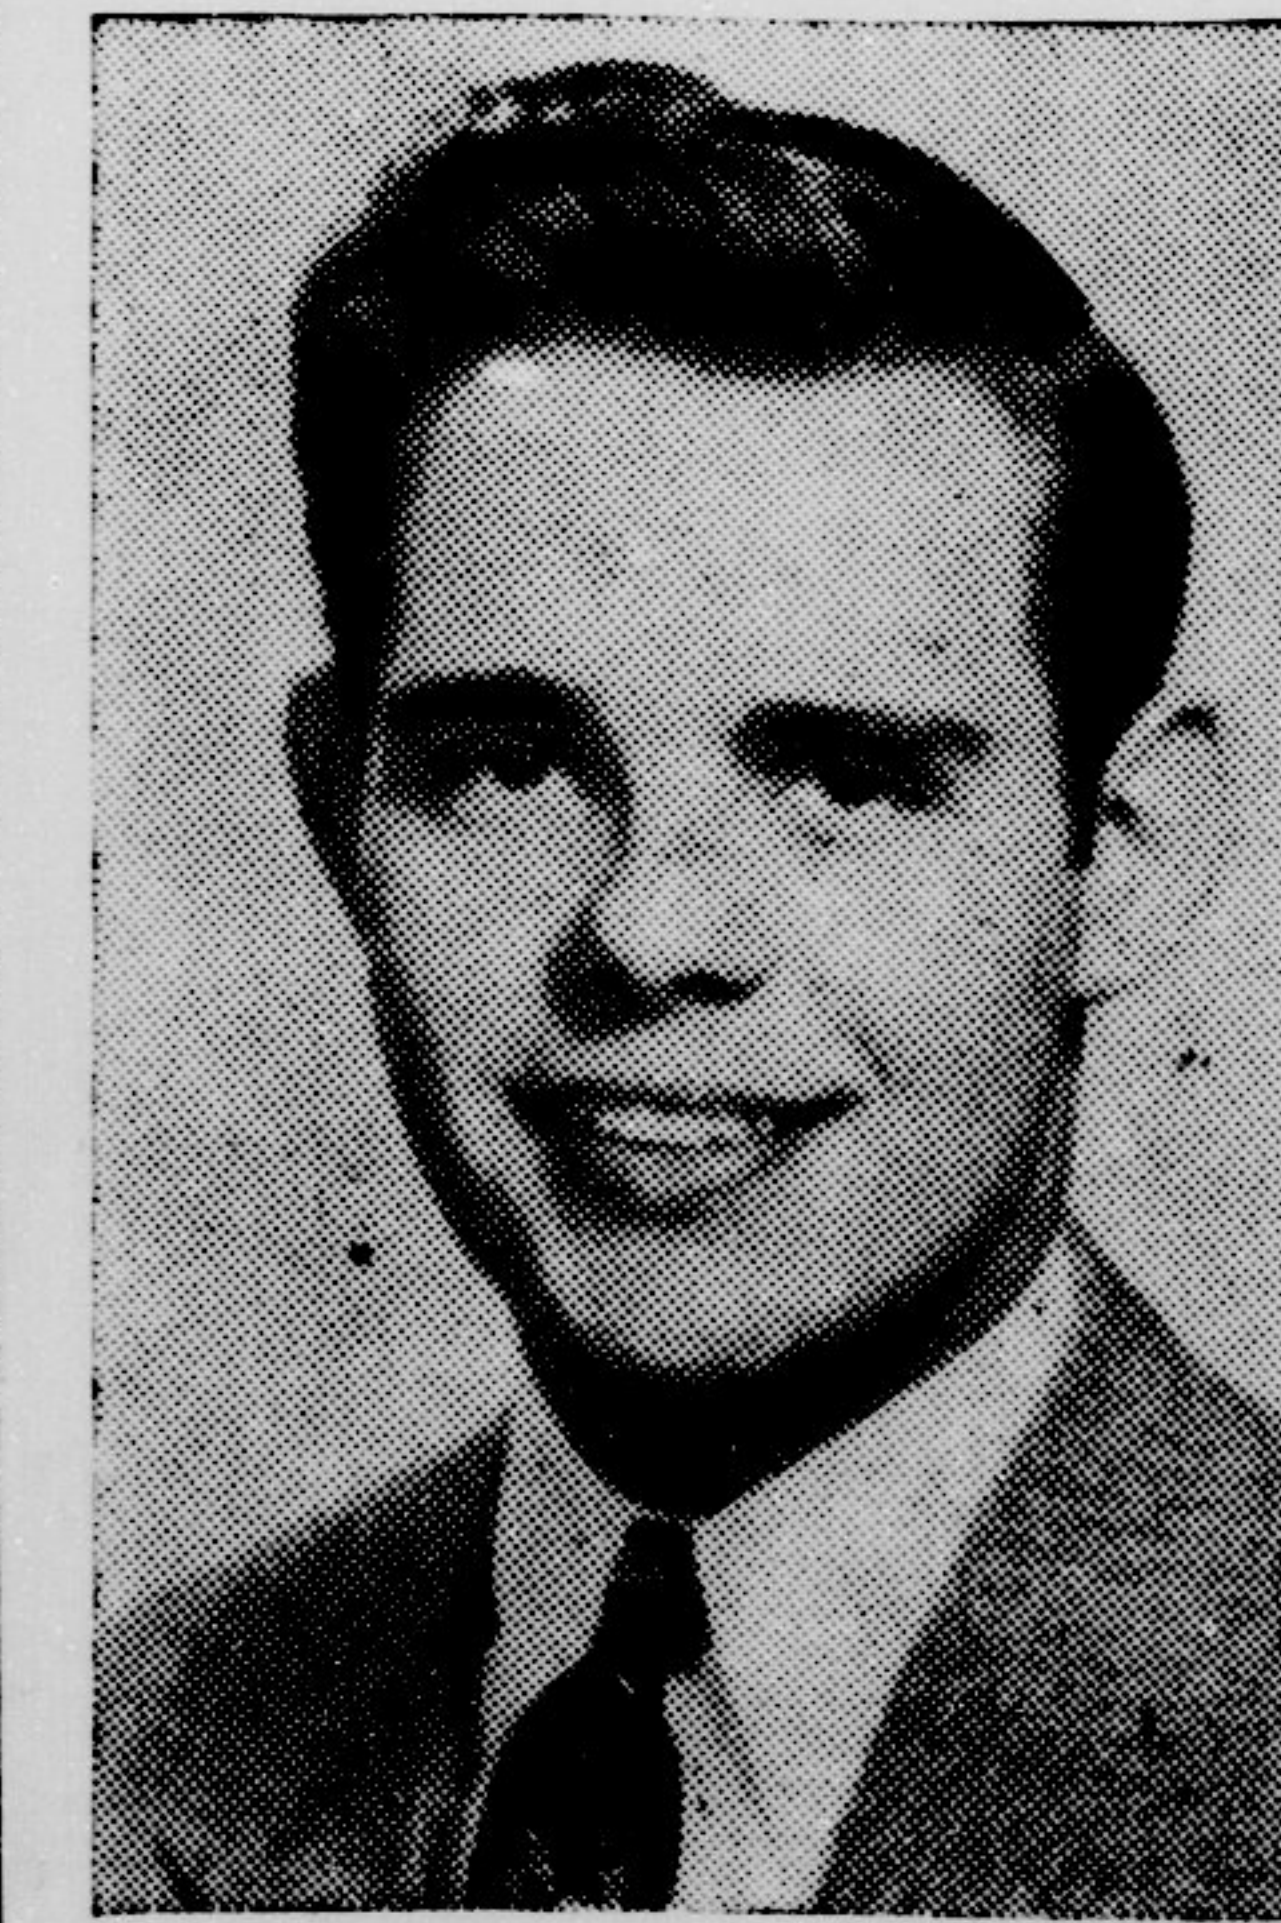

Charles R. Williams of Erwin will serve during the 1948 summer session as editor of the East Carolina Teachers College student newspaper, the "Teco Echo." He has been a member of the editorial staff for the past year and, beginning his duties next September, will act as managing editor during the 1948-1949 term at the college.

Other members of the editorial staff for the summer will be Carl G. Connor of Windsor, managing editor, and William Lloyd of Thomasville, sports editor. Betsy Parkerson of Greenville will head the summer business staff of the newspaper.

Reporters and writers of feature sections of the "Teco Echo" this summer will be Elizabeth Schnereger and Katherine Lawyer of Suffolk, Va.; Richard Tarravechia of Syracuse, N. Y.; Louise Hines and Elizabeth Manning of Williamston; Josephine Pinnell of Warrenton; Virgil Clark of Greenville; L. Maxwell Garrell of Clarendon; Ruth Stevens of Goldsboro; Lavina Harper of Pikeville; and Hope Hart of Norfolk, Virginia.

The "Teco Echo" will be issued as a bi-weekly during the summer sessions this year.

Beddard And Tew Are Secretary-Treasurer, Respectively

Floyd "Tom" Collins of Cerro Gordo was elected on Tuesday of this week to the presidency of the East Carolina Student Government association for the summer term. The election was the result of a "run off" campaign between Collins, and Lawrence Posey of Greenville.

Four candidates entered the race for president: Collins, Posey, Charles Bracken of Greenville, and Paul Craver of Lexington. Collins was chosen early in the spring as vice-president of the Student Government association for the regular term of 1948-1949. Posey is president of the local chapter of Phi, Sigma Pi, national honorary educational fraternity for men students.

Anne Beddard of Snow Hill was chosen in Monday's contest as secretary of the SGA; and Joe Tew of Thomasville, as student treasurer. Both of these newly elected summer-school officers were chosen in spring elections on the campus to serve in these positions during 1948-1949.

Members-at-large of the SGA elected for the summer session are G. Raz Autry of Dunn, Charles Williams of Erwin, Jack Everton of Columbia, Nicholas Fokakis of Wilmington, Joe Polilli of Dover, Ohio, and Jerome Worsley of Greenville.

Summer School Enrollment Soars Above 800 Mark

East Carolina has begun the first term of the 1948 summer session with an enrollment of more than 800 students, as compared with 715 for the same period in 1947. The period of registration, which began last Wednesday will not close until June 16. Late arrivals are swelling the enrollment for this year, and figures on the total number of students are as yet unofficial.

All four of the student dormitories on the campus are being used this summer, and space has been allotted to both men and women students and to married couples attending the college.

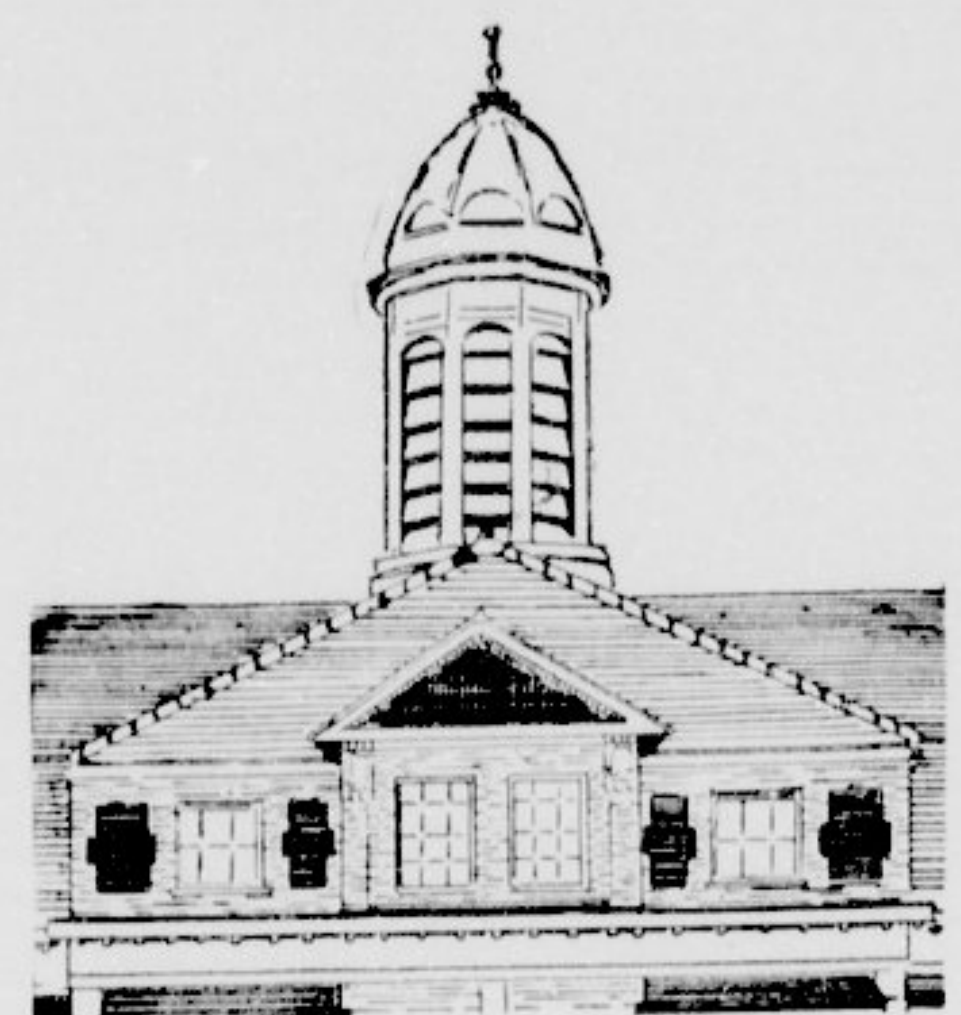

In addition to the regular summer staff at the college, several new faculty members will give courses this summer.

Oliver L. Shields of Coral Bridge, Ky., who was a member of the college faculty last summer, will again be connected with the education and psychology department. During 1947-1948 Shields has been psychologist and special teacher in the Jefferson County, Ky., schools.

Also in the education department will be Mrs. Juanita Melchoir, formerly of the North Carolina State Department of Public Instruction and now of Syracuse, N. Y., and Frank Fuller, who received his training at George Washington University, Washington, and who will conduct courses in counseling and guidance at the college here.

Katherine Murray and Hazel McSwain of the Greensboro City schools are staff members during the summer. Miss Murray is teaching in elementary grades at the campus Training School, and Miss McSwain is a member of the education department. Estelle Greene of the Greenville City schools is a member of the mathematics department.

WELCOME TEACHERS

The faculty and students of East Carolina Teachers college extend a most hearty welcome to all of the teachers who have enrolled for the summer session. We hope that your stay at East Carolina will be profitable and pleasurable. Some of you who have been here before will notice many new features, such as the workshop, which should be profitable to you, while the carefully planned entertainment for this summer should prove pleasurable to you. There are many other changes, such as the new buildings and the large enrollment. However, regardless of the many changes, we hope that you will enjoy the same friendliness and cordiality which is an all-important part of our school.

The motto of this institution is "To Satisfy." The faculty and students wish to live up to this motto, and to be of service to you because, as better teachers, you can better serve the people of North Carolina.

SPRING FIND

by Richard Powers

When did a fawn sit by a rose-rocked brook

And cast glances of desire at three white-skinned wood nymphs. Playing in the bubbled water?

When did a chapel's windows glow And make their saint's faces beam warmly in the night. Filling a cold-worn passer-by with love?

When did a boy, walking on a wind-blown hillside Stop to pick a cold-nipped jonquil of early spring

And press it gently to his lips?

Why it was yesterday, Love. When I first met you In a Victorian drawing room.

Scumming

by the Keptole Korrespondents, Peep, Snoop and Meddle

The boys on the campus are finally getting a break, 'cause there are some new girls floating around. Too bad no males!

It is rumored that Helen D. has been assigned three mail boxes to take care of the mail from Bill. By the way, have you heard from him?

The bull sessions seem to be centered around Room 301 these days. You'll always find out something interesting there!

Mary, that really is a pretty ring you have. When are the wedding bells? Dee Gee and Ben make a right cute couple—we think.

Joe Pallini, why the sudden interest in Cotten? Could it be Ruth? We never knew what a cute crew of yaks Cotten has until we moved in; Mary Payne, Pency, Frances and Janice are a few.

Jean, Cooker, and Peggy—but there's always Hope!

One of the funnier sights around Cotten was Lou, crawling on the floor, looking for a needle and a spool of thread.

Helen D. was one of the first to get a break with that cute Bob from Plymouth. The lucky gal!

Mary Byrd has been causing quite a bit of excitement lately. Who is he now?

Evelyn and Herb make an attractive couple. Ditto for Carl and Faye.

Shuford has good taste in picking rings, as well as in picking girl friends. Wonder what Joe is going to do this quarter without "Babs"?

Margaret, would a letter from Nelson make your eyes sparkle? Sue C., we have some new red heads on campus, but they can't top the one that was here spring quarter, can they? DeJores Lokotzke sure looks lone, same without Jerry.

What did Gib say about thirty-five? And congrats to Betsy and Jack! March, did you say?

Younce, who has been slinging base, ball bats your way?

Annie Ruth and Tom seem to have a serious case.

Mary Martin, didn't you know that playing bridge and getting a sun tan just don't mix?

Alec, could that sad look be because Pat isn't here?

Congratulations to Perry and Carolyn, Sam and Vera, Ruth and Bob, and Lib and Ted.

Margaret Matthews will be heaven-sent this week-end. Why?

Virginia Whitthurst is one cute gal! And a Cotten gal, too.

The TECO ECHO welcomes letters to the editor on any subject. However, the editor reserves the right to censor or reject all communication that may prove detrimental or defamatory to East Carolina Teachers college, a member of the college staff, or any student enrolled herein. All letters received will be given a better opportunity to see the different clubs in action. So come on, all you sports fans, let's get this league rolling.

Another item of sports interest has been suggested by Dr. Jorgenson. This is the setting up of a tennis tournament to be played on the usual courts. There are ten courts that could be made available for such a tournament, and judging from the work some of the fellows have been doing on the courts there is keen interest in the tennis game. A name admission sheet has been posted on the bulletin board across from the post office for anyone interested in entering the tournament. The tournament will be run-off by a double elimination plan and will be directed by Bill Hales. Hales also stated if there could be enough interest around here, there might be a possibility of a doubles tournament.

Student Spotlight

by Charles Williams

The honor of being featured as the first Spotlighter for the 1948 summer term here at East Carolina goes to a very deserving, capable and suave personality, a young man gifted with imposing ideals and clairvoyant sensibilities. At times, some misinterpret the dignified manner by which many persons conduct themselves, but the sophisticated and cosmopolitan manner by which Aubrey Rogers manages himself can be interpreted only in terms of friendliness and unusual decorum.

Rogers, the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rogers, Jr. of Manteo, North Carolina, was born in that coastal resort town—the home of the "Lost Colony"—in 1926. Manteo has always been his home address.

He attended the Manteo public schools, and was graduated from the island high school in 1942. During his senior year he served as treasurer of the athletic association and of the senior class.

The summer immediately following the completion of his secondary education in Manteo, Rogers appeared in a minor role in Paul Greene's historical pageant, the "Lost Colony." After the closing date of the drama's 1942 season, Rogers entered Oak Ridge Military Institute at Greensboro. While enrolled as a student at the junior college, he was a member of the intramural swimming team. He was graduated from the military institute as a cadet lieutenant in 1944.

Upon entering the United States Air Corps in June, 1944, Rogers was assigned to the Radio school at Scott Field, Illinois. His next assignment took him to Orlando, Florida, where he became confidential secretary to the commanding officer of the Air Forces base located in that city. In the course of his duty in this latter assignment, Rogers made flights to California, Texas, Arizona, Mississippi, and other important military establishments. He was discharged from the armed services as a staff sergeant in 1946.

Rogers came to East Carolina as a sophomore in the fall of '46, and since that time has established an outstanding record on the campus. He was vice-president of the Chi Pi Players for one year, and has appeared in several of the drama organization's productions; these include a characterization of one of the dwarfs—Dopey, incidentally—in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs"; and Franz in the "Coppelia" ballet. He is a member of Phi Sigma Pi, honorary and social fraternity; a member of the Commerce club; and was historian of the Student Government association, serving on the Student Legislature, during the 1947-48 school year. Last summer Rogers portrayed the life of the colonist, George Howe, and doubled as one of the queen's courtiers, in the "Lost Colony." He also assisted in the organization's news bureau, while working as a member of the cast.

Rogers will graduate from East Carolina in August, with an A. B. degree in history and business education. He plans to enroll at Columbia university in September, where he will do graduate work towards obtaining a master's degree in foreign trade. After leaving Columbia his plans are uncertain, but he contemplates a foreign position with the United States Department of State.

At this point, after a more careful analysis and summing up of the numerous first-rate accomplishments of Aubrey Rogers, we think that perhaps our herewith featured student has added an honor to the TECO ECHO—instead of our original statement to the opposite effect. Either way, we are confident of Rogers' abilities, and predict a brilliant future for this outstanding East Carolina student.

New Requirements For M. A. Degree Set Up Here

New requirements for the master's degree have been set up at East Carolina Teachers College and a course of study for candidates outlined.

The degree is designed primarily for teachers, principals, and superintendents of schools. The program of graduate work satisfies the North Carolina requirements for certification of superintendents, both elementary and high-school principals, and teachers doing graduate work in elementary and secondary education.

Work leading toward the master's degree will be given in two areas, general academic work and work in the major subject chosen by the student. Courses leading toward the master's degree will be offered in the areas of administration, business, education, education and psychology, English, library science, mathematics, science, and social studies.

Background courses required of all students include a number in education, such as statistics, teaching methods, guidance, and educational foundations.

For students in the regular sessions a different program of courses will be offered in each of the fall, winter, and spring quarters. Summer programs have been so arranged that in three consecutive summer sessions all requirements for the master's degree may be fulfilled.

A meeting of the entire group will be held annually to discuss the work of the East Carolina alumni.

Those who now head the organizations and the districts which they represent are Grace E. Smith, Greenville, Northeastern; Bessie Faye Hunt, Wilmington, Southeastern; Mrs. J. V. Faculty Members Work, Romp, Make Merry During Summer

by Richard Tarravechia

College professors are only human beings after all.

Going on this assumption, the editor of the TECO ECHO sent out questionnaires to these people in an attempt to discover what they do with their summers. Many of the species answered the questionnaires and cooperated fully. Unfortunately, however, only half of those addressed took the time to answer.

To the forty or so that took the time to fill out our questionnaires: Our many thanks for your kindness. To the fifty or so that neglected to send us their answers: We realize that you might have had reasons of your own for remaining silent, but if your present activities are legitimate you certainly had nothing to fear; and if they were a trifle on the shady side, we would not only have kept it secret, but a few of us might even have joined you if the stakes were high enough.

Prominent among those who plan to work at the college during the whole summer is President John D. Messick, who plans to spend the summer "preparing the budget for the next two years." He also wrote: "I am to attend the Teachers Colleges Presidents' Institute at Estes Park, Colorado, August 16-23. I am to marry my daughter, Helen, off on June 25 at 8 p.m. in the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church."

Mrs. L. L. Rives, dining hall stewardess, wrote: "Because of the change in the yearly schedule, my vacation times have been reduced to nil. Amen! A person really doesn't have time to take a deep breath between quarters anymore."

Elizabeth S. Walker, library director, wrote that she would be "logging and supervising." About logging she said "not extensively. I have any place limited finances and any plans will permit. But the kind of logging-around-in-circles which I would not be equivalent to logging a dog. My most unplanned have been the most interesting. Any plan? If I become nervous, I'll send you my picture. (But not too seriously.)"

Mrs. S. Walker, That's all, Mrs. Walker. We're not too either.

Dr. Long, registrar, plans to spend the first summer session assuming his regular duties in the second summer session.

W. Jenkins, academic dean; Dr. Garner, alumni secretary; Dr. Morgenson, health and physical education director; Dr. Paul Murphree, assistant to the dean; Dr. E. R. Browning, business education director; Norman H. Camesdale, assistant librarian; Ellen B. Cummings, geography; and Dr. Meredith N. Posey, English, also announced their intentions of continuing to work all summer.

Then there are those who plan to work during the first summer session only. Among these is E. C. Hollar, social studies, who intends to do some writing and gardening at Greenville and Rest Haven. Don't forget the hardy Roman who thrust his hand into a "red-hot brazier," Mr. Hollar.

Dr. Rudolph R. Willmann, music education director, wrote: "The second summer session I plan to go to Texas to visit with my parents and assist in heading cattle on my father-in-law's ranch." Don't get your father drunk on Beethoven's "Fifth."

Well, art, queried: "What does he plan to work on the..."

new house, and to travel to Ohio next August to observe my wife's parents' golden wedding anniversary."

Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, director of field services, will assume Dr. Long's duties as registrar for the first summer session, and plans to spend the last session traveling in the mountains of North Carolina, West Virginia, and probably the Midwest. He plans to fish and get ready for fall hunting.

Dr. Harold C. Jones, science, plans to do work here and at the coast, collecting and doing research on North Carolina plants and animals. Jones also plans to take a study trip to the Gulf Stream.

Dan E. Vornholt, music education, plans to study voice and to look for program material in New York City.

Dr. A. D. Frank, social studies director; Dr. Beecher Flanagan, social studies; James L. Fleming, director of the foreign language department; Margaret Austin, foreign language; James Wahl, principal of the training school; Mary D. Poindexter, home economics; and Dr. John O. Reynolds, mathematics, also signified their intentions of working during only the first session.

Dr. Alice L. Turner, English director, plans to work at the college during the second session; and Ann Redwine, critic teacher, plans to work during the first session.

Some of the teachers plan to spend the entire summer on vacation. Louise Williams, mathematics, one of the rocky group, plans to take no extended trips. She wrote: "I will be sunning beans and freezing okra, but the TECO ECHO won't be interested."

With chow hall prices increasing and the amount of food for those prices increasing, this is at least one month of the staff that's interested. Mind if we drop in for some of that food, Miss Williams?

Gussie Kaykendall, music education, wrote: "My plans for the summer are not definite as yet." Well, how about a little Chopin, Miss Kaykendall? And Lois Grigsby, English, said that she plans to "be keeping house at my mother's home in Tennessee."

Lena C. Ellis, business education, has the right slant on life. She wrote: "I will spend the summer at my home in Bowling Green, Kentucky, with my mother. I am planning on being lazy. The latter should come easy for any teacher."

Dr. Martha Pingel, English, believes she gets home to New York City. She intends to exchange piano lessons for accordion lessons. She also intends to spend her vacation writing, visiting friends with country estates and plenty of "moola," and to indulge in various other activities which she preferred to classify as unknown. Couldn't be chasing spooks around a table in one of those seances, could it, Doc? Or maybe carrying on a friendship with "Walter," the world famous host? If those spooks give you any trouble, a few straws from your accordion will scare the hardiest of them away.

Dr. Pingel plans to make the trip

Typing Champion To Give Speed Demonstration

Albert Tangora, seven times holder of the world's typing championship, will give a speed demonstration at East Carolina on June 22. He will appear at the college under the auspices of the department of business education.

Tangora writes on the typewriter at the rate of 12 strokes per second or a solid hour. He is a master typist who broke the world's typing record several years ago with a full hour's typing at the rate of 142 words per minute.

Often called the "Paderewski of the typewriter," Tangora returned to civilian life recently after serving nearly four years in the U. S. Navy, in which he trained typists for the Pacific Fleet.

On his visit to the East Carolina campus Tangora will demonstrate his methods of speed typing and will give spectators tips on how he has achieved his remarkable record.

Pi Omega Initiates Five New Members

Five students have been initiated into membership in the Beta Kappa chapter of Pi Omega Pi, national honorary business education fraternity.

They are Mrs. Thelma Johnson Dewar, graduate student, Bethel; B. W. Jenkins, graduate student, Bank's Creek; Donald Dixon, junior, Grantsboro; Warren Koonce, junior, Highlands; and Dolores Lokotzke, junior, Gary, Indiana.

These students were selected for membership because of excellent scholastic records in the department of business education.

Elsie Morgan Rogers Gets Annual Alumni Award

Mrs. Elsie Morgan Rogers, business woman and civic leader of Wilson, N. C., received Saturday, June 5, the annual achievement award presented to an outstanding graduate of East Carolina by the Alumni Association.

Dora E. Coates of the college faculty presented the award to Mrs. Rogers at a program held on Saturday morning at the annual Alumni Day at the college here. Mrs. Rogers, who completed her work at East Carolina in 1918, is the ninth graduate of the college to be honored since the association established the award in 1910.

Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina, speaking at the morning meeting, welcomed former students returning to the campus for the day's celebration. Special recognition was given to graduates of 1948 by Mrs. Ethel Vick Crawley of Asheville Springs, president of the Alumni Association.

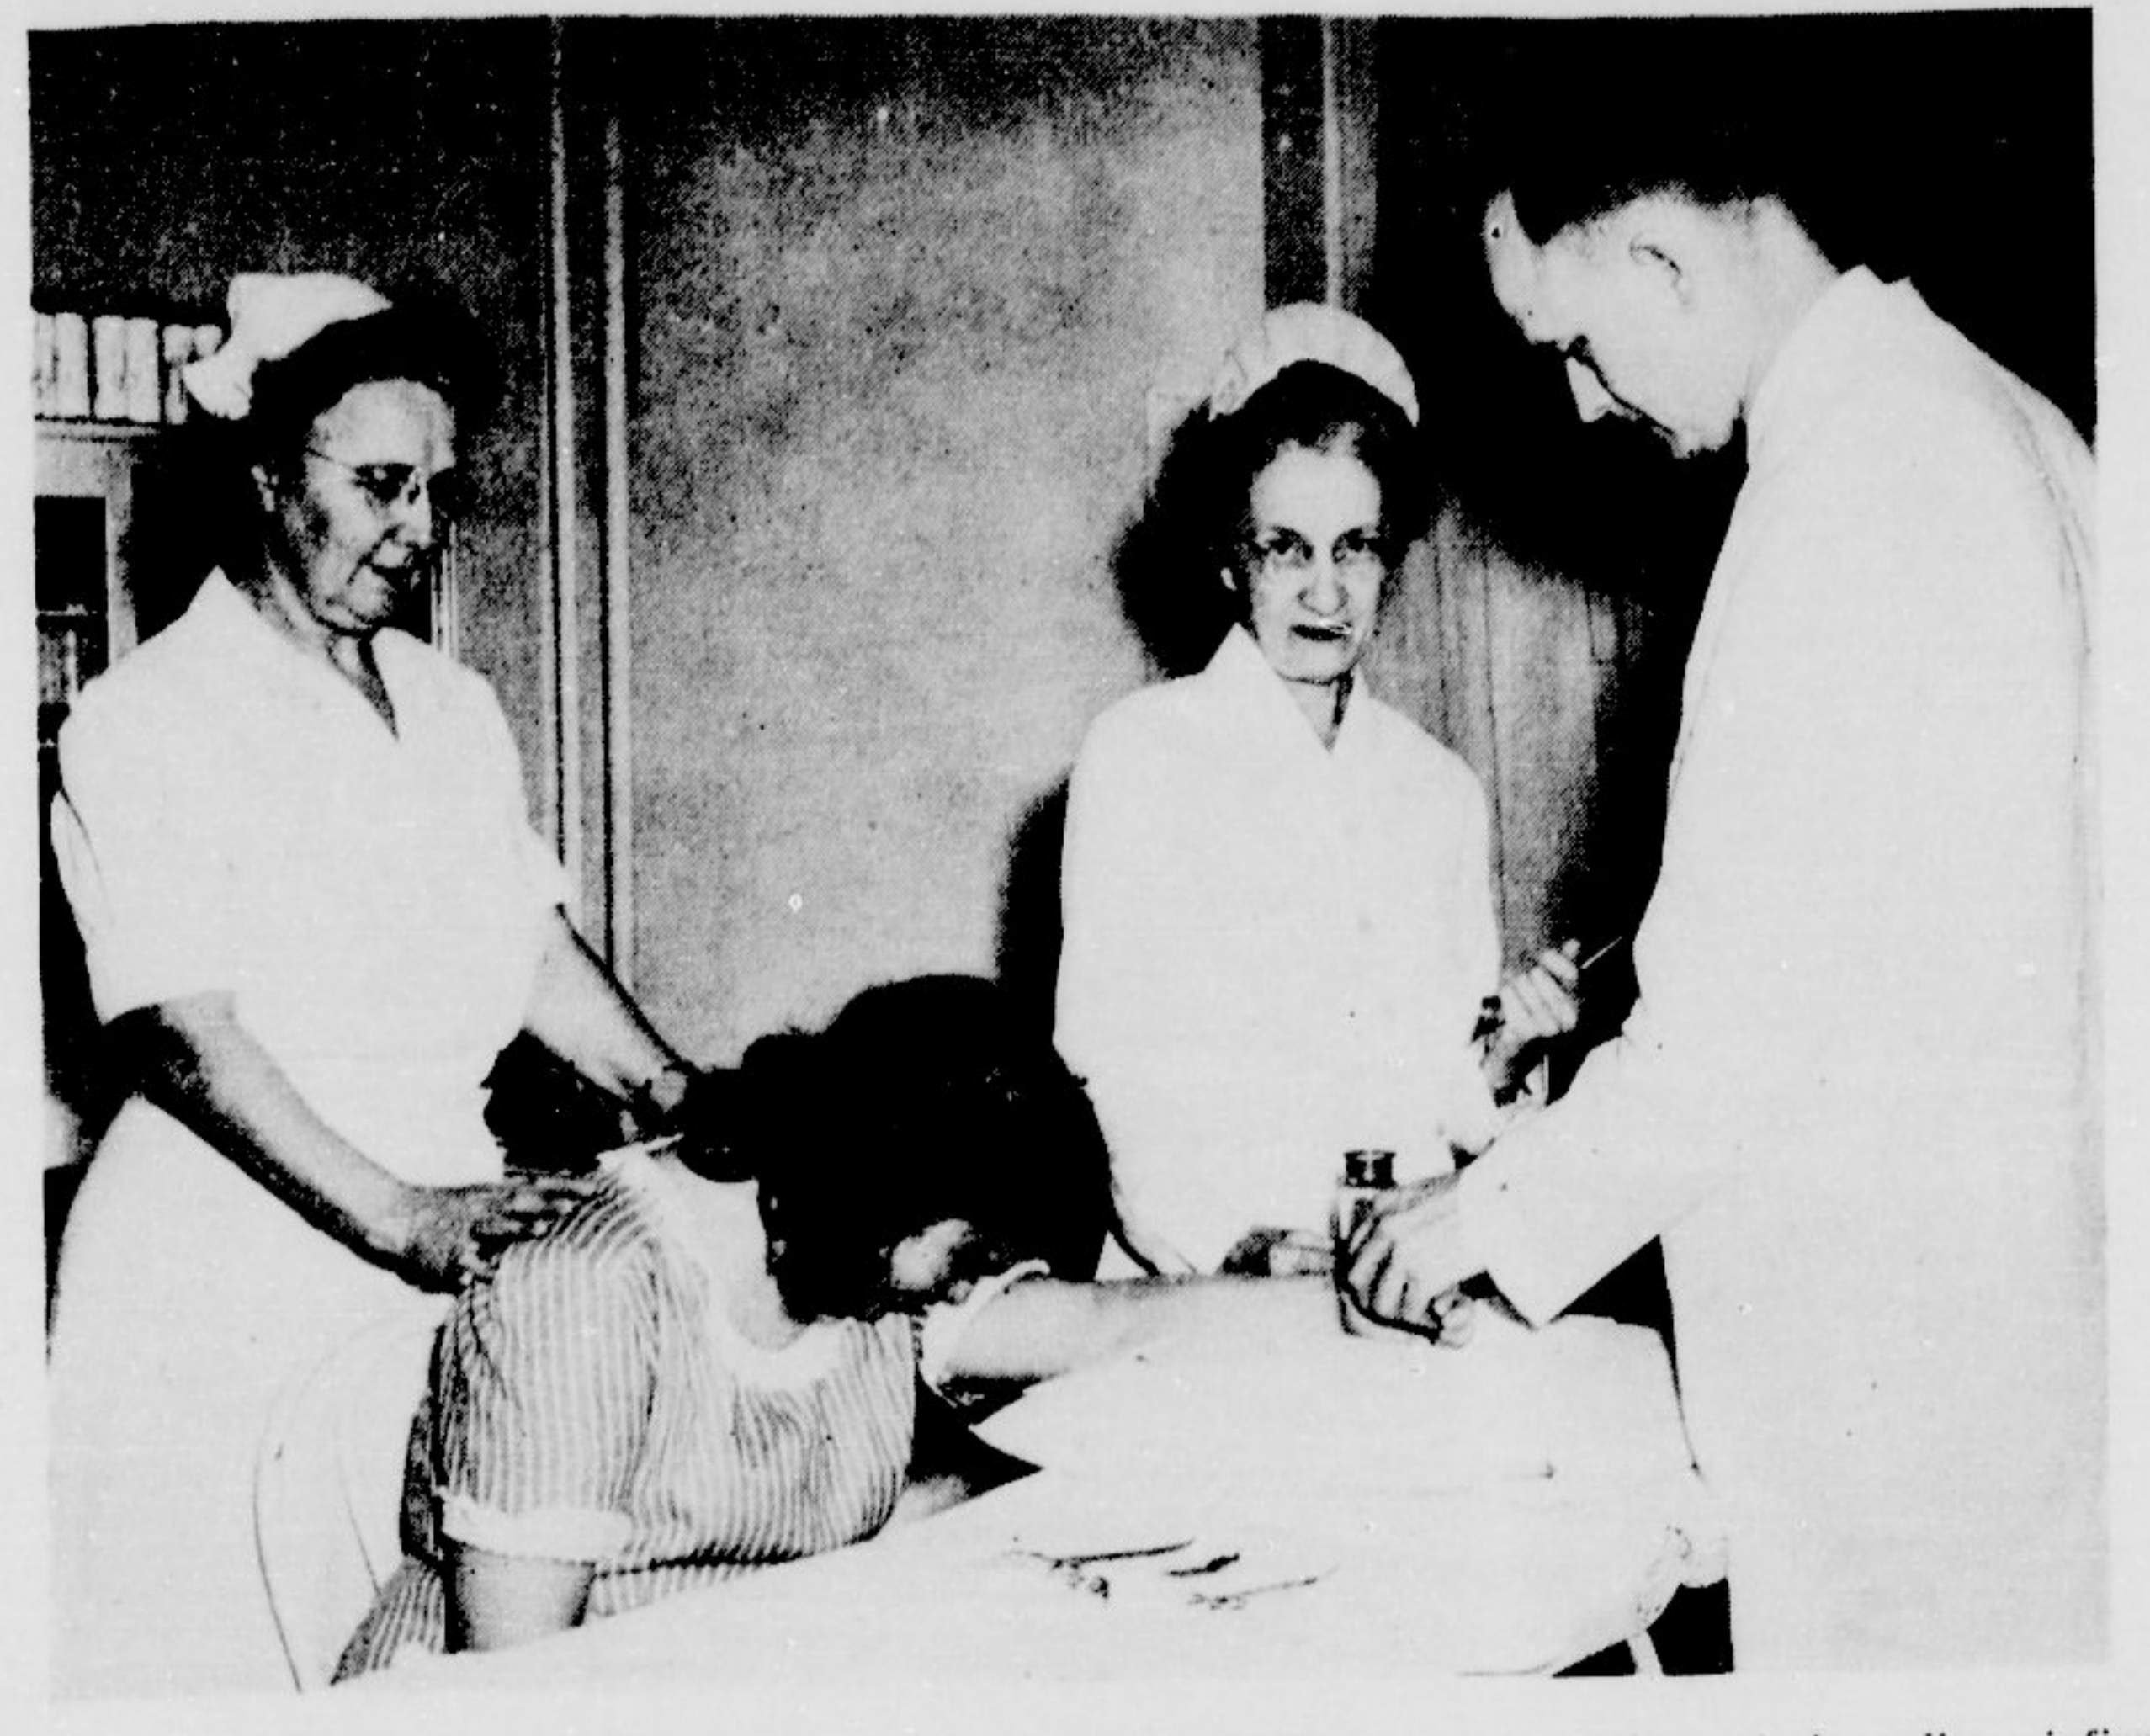

Six classes holding reunions on the campus were entertained at a luncheon in the college dining hall. Representatives of the classes of 1913, 1918, 1923, 1928, 1938, and 1947 participated in the program.

Infirmary Hums With Activity As Ailing Students And Teachers Receive Treatment

by Carl G. Conner

The college infirmary, located between the Classroom building and the "Y" but is one of the busiest buildings on campus. Under the direction of Dr. C. F. Irons, college physician; Mrs. Blanche S. Cherry, superintendent of the infirmary; and Lucy Stokes, assistant superintendent, our physical beavallments, from a mere search to the worst case of mumps, are treated.

Besides the doctor and the nurses, here are four student-helpors who work at least two hours each day in the infirmary. This summer, the students are Harriette Hooker, Sammie Lee Jones, William D. Moore, and C. C. Gooding.

The girls help with the patients, run errands, make beds, check the linen, and do the patching and other sewing that might be necessary. The boys do the laboratory work, assist the male patients, sterilize dressings, and perform many other vital duties in the infirmary. All student-helpers assist with the clinics during the clinic hours.

There is much to be done. The hours, figuratively speaking, are from-untill. Special clinic hours are held each day: the morning hour is between 8:30 and 9:30, and the evening hour is between 5:30 and 6:30. On Sundays, the clinic hour is from 9:30 until 10:00 a.m. Dr. Irons is on duty at the infirmary during all clinic hours.

The infirmary, which is made up of some thirty rooms, contains one main kitchen, three diet kitchens, one dining room for the nurses, a reception room for patients, medical supplies room, a large pantry, the doctor's office, the main office, the operating and clinic rooms, living quarters for the nurses and for two student-helpers, and room space and beds for more than fifty patients. One wing of the infirmary is used as an isolation ward for patients who have contagious diseases.

The infirmary gives medical care to all dormitory students, to faculty members living in Ragsdale hall, to boarding students who room in town, and to all employees of the college who are injured or become ill during working hours. The one dollar infirmary fee, which is paid at the time of registration for each quarter, takes care of infirmary services during the

Jonathan Daniels To Give Commencement Address

Jonathan Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, has accepted an invitation to speak at commencement exercises at East Carolina Teachers college on Friday, August 27, when the summer session or 1948 will come to a close.

Daniels has had a distinguished career and is one of the state's leading journalists. He began work on the News and Observer soon after his graduation from the Columbia University law school. In 1932 he became associate editor of the paper and is now editor-in-chief.

During the last war he was special assistant and secretary to President Roosevelt, and served for a short time as press secretary to President Truman. Recently he was nominated by President Truman to the 12-member public advisory board, which will assist in managing the European Recovery Program; he is the only Southerner named as a member of the board.

As an author and critic of American life, Daniels won fame with his books "A Southerner Discovers the South," "A Southerner Discovers New England," "Farbeels, A Portrait of North Carolina," and "Frontier on the Potomac." He has also been a frequent contributor to leading reviews in this country.

Daniels will be the second of his family to speak at East Carolina commencement. The late Josephus Daniels, his father, delivered the address to graduates of the college in the spring of 1936, and that year students of East Carolina dedicated the college year book to him.

French Fellowship Student To Study English Here

According to James L. Fleming, director of the department of foreign language, we may have a fellowship student from France here next fall.

Plans have been underway for more than six months to complete the necessary arrangements to bring a French woman here to study English. The woman, whose name we are as yet able to publish, will have her bachelor's degree and will have completed work equivalent to a master's degree in French.

At East Carolina, the student will work for a master's in English, and will help with French conversational courses. A part of her expenses will be paid by the college while she is a student here.

Selective Service Affects Students

College students who wish to know how the Selective Service Act of 1948 will apply to them will find information in the paragraph quoted below. It is taken from the text as printed in the Conference Report on the Selective Service Act of 1948, Title I, Section 6, Paragraph (i), Sub-paragraph (2).

"Any person who, while satisfactory pursuing a full-time course of instruction at a college, university, or similar institution of learning is required to report for induction under this title, shall, upon the facts being presented to the local board, have his induction under this title postponed (A) until the end of such academic year of (B) until he ceases satisfactorily to pursue such course of instruction whichever is the earlier."

Oliver L. Shields, Psychology Replaces Adams For Summer

by Richard Tarravechia

Oliver L. Shields, psychologist, consultant and teacher from Jefferson county, Kentucky, has returned to teach at the college for his second consecutive summer here. In the absence of Dr. Carl Adams, director of the education and psychology department, he is teaching psychology during the first summer session.

Shields received the B. S. degree from Western Kentucky State Teachers college before the war. During the war he worked as an expeditor for the United States Army Engineers from May, 1942, to October, 1945, rising to the rank of chief expeditor shortly before receiving his discharge. His job was to break up the "bottlenecks" in equipment centers throughout the country, and to insure the swift and efficient output of badly needed army equipment.

After the war Shields attended Duke university, from which he received his M. Ed. degree and a scholarship for outstanding grades. The scholarship entitled him to another year of study at Duke. In return, Shields did some extensive research

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, dean of East Carolina, has accepted an invitation to appear as a principal speaker on the program to be presented at the summer meeting of the North Carolina Society of Engineers.
