George E. Perry Heard In Recital Given Tuesday

George E. Perry, faculty member at East Carolina Teachers college, was presented in a piano recital by the college department of music Tuesday evening, January 25, in the Austin auditorium. The program was open to the public and was a major event in a series of recitals sponsored by the department of music.

Perry is a native of Reedsburg, Wisconsin, and received his musical education largely in that state. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin in Madison, from which he holds the master of music degree. He has also studied at the Wisconsin School of Music and done special graduate study in piano under Mme. Eugenia Ellenberg of Reedsburg. His teaching experience includes work in the department of music at Florida State university and in the Wisconsin School of Music, where he was professor of piano, organ, and theory from 1945 until he joined the East Carolina faculty last fall.

For his recital at the college this week Perry chose a varied selection of compositions, among which were works by Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, Gershwin, and McDowell. On the program Perry included his own arrangement of Bach's "Air from Suite in D Major" and one of his original compositions entitled "Prelude in G Minor."

Notice!

As of yesterday a new regulation went into effect whereby women students living in Fleming and Jarvis halls will be permitted to sign out in their respective dormitory for night riding and dating instead of in Cotten hall as has been the case. Annie L. Morton, Dean of Women, stated that the new system will remain in effect as long as it works satisfactorily.

Stadium Fund Only $6,128.70 Short Of Expected Goal

"In less than 60 days $18,871.30 has been donated and deposited in the bank to the credit of the East Carolina Educational Foundation Inc. stadium fund, leaving only $6,128.70 to be raised to fulfill Greenville businessmen's promise to provide money for the first section of a football stadium at the local college," Chairman Ed E. Rawl of the stadium fund committee said this week.

"Estimates for the first section of the stadium have set the cost of each set at approximately $10," Rawl said, and he requested individuals in Greenville and in the county who wish to donate money for one or more seats in the stadium to mail donations to the East Carolina Education Foundation, care of Herbert Waldrop.

Work already has begun on the athletic field to insure its readiness for the football season next fall, and foundation officials said final contracts for 3,000 seats of the first section of the stadium will be let as soon as the remaining money has been collected. Plans for the stadium call for a well-lighted, well drained playing field, graded parking area, adequate toilet facilities in the stadium, and radio and press boxes.

Forensic Debaters To Represent College In Spring

Intercollegiate debaters have been chosen by members of the Jarvis Forensic club at East Carolina to represent the college in a series of debates to be held in the spring. Try-outs were held last week and results have been announced by Geraldine Amundson of New York City, president of the organization.

Selected as members of affirmative and negative teams for East Carolina are Milton Fields, Scotland Neck; Miles Buck, Syracuse, N.Y.; Frank Toothman, Ayden and Fairview, W. Va.; and James H. Crawford, Greenville. Alternates will be George Lassiter, Goldsboro; Wilton G. Joyner, Greenville; and Milton Zellin, Atlantic City, N. J.

These debaters will participate, according to present plans, in the Grand National Forensic tournament to be held in April under the auspices of the Strawberry Leaf society at Mary Washington college, Fredericksburg, Va. The topic will be Resolved, that the federal government should adopt a policy of equalizing educational opportunity in tax supported schools by means of annual grants. Fields and Toothman were among the four debaters representing East Carolina last spring in the national tournament.

New Men's Dormitory To Be Slay Hall; Classroom Building Named Flanagan Bldg.

E. G. Flanagan

Dr. Ronald J. Slay

Improvements Asked For By President Discussed By Trustees

The Classroom building at East Carolina Teachers college and the new men's dormitory, the latter of which is now under construction on the campus, were given names by the board of trustees at a meeting here Saturday, President John D. Messick of the college announced today.

The Classroom building will be known in future as the Flanagan building in honor of the late E. G. Flanagan of Greenville, and the dormitory will be called Slay hall in honor of Dr. Ronald J. Slay, who for 22 years was head of the department of science at the college and in 1945 became first dean of instruction at East Carolina.

At Saturday's meeting, the board also considered the needs of the college and the recent recommendations by the State Budget Commission for permanent improvements at the college.

E. G. Flanagan, Greenville business man, was chairman of the building committee of the board of trustees at the time the Classroom building was under construction. Completed in 1940, it was dedicated in March of that year with appropriate ceremonies at which Clyde R. Hoey, then governor of North Carolina, was chief speaker. Since that time it has housed the science, home economics, geography and business education departments, the nursery school operated by the home economics department, and the industrial arts classrooms and workshop. Its parlors have been a center of social life on the campus. The new name gives public recognition to Flanagan's services to the college during his years as a trustee and especially to his work on the building committee of the board.

Slay hall, new residence for men, was begun on November 15, 1948, and construction is progressing rapidly. The dormitory was named for Dr. Slay on request of the Student Legislature. At their regular meeting on Wednesday, January 19, Carl G. Conner, editor of the TECO ECHO, presented a resolution for the Legislature to recommend to the Trustees. The resolution was voted and a unanimous vote recorded.

Dr. Slay, who died in New York last September, was a leading figure in the growth and development of the college and had served as department head, acting registrar, dean of instruction, and dean of men.

Permanent Improvements Discussed
The board at its Saturday meeting was unanimous in a decision that President Messick should urge the present legislature to provide sufficient funds for certain permanent improvements at the college, including a new home management house, an organ for Austin auditorium, an (See BUILDINGS on Page 4)

Majority Of Fall Graduates Accept Teaching Positions

Nineteen Graduates Now In Local Schools

Twenty-seven of the 37 men and women students who completed work for degrees at the end of the fall quarter at East Carolina Teachers college are now either filling teaching positions or continuing their studies by taking graduate work, according to information just released by the Office of Student Teaching and Placement at the college.

Twenty-one of the 32 students who were candidates for the B.S., or teacher-training, degree are now teaching. Nineteen of these are located in the public schools of various North Carolina counties, including Pitt, Wake, Northampton, Onslow, Martin, Brunswick, Pender, Forsythe, Beaufort, Robeson, Lenoir, and Iredell. One is teaching in the Wilmington, N.C., college, and one in the Thomas Jefferson high school of Richmond, Va.

Four of these students are now taking graduate work. Three have returned to East Carolina and are taking courses designed to train teachers and school officials.

Of the remaining seven students eligible for the B.S. degree, three women have married, and each of the four others has entered a different type of work. One is proprietor of a florist business in Winterville; one is assistant home demonstration agent in Nash county; one is assistant dietitian in the Norfolk, Va., General hospital; and one holds a secretarial position in Washington, D.C.

Two students who completed work for the master of arts degree at the end of the fall quarter were teachers and are now continuing their work in public schools. One is located at Grimesland and one in Greenville.

Only three of the fall graduates were candidates for the liberal arts degree, and no report of their present employment is now available.

ACE Chooses New Officers This Week

The Association for Childhood Education at East Carolina, beginning this week a program of work for the winter quarter, has chosen new officers to serve as leaders for the remainder of the school year.

Susan Brinson, New Bern, was elected first vice president to replace Lucille Blalock, Timberlake, who was graduated at the end of the fall quarter. Also chosen as officers were Evelyn Korngay, Seven Springs, second vice-president, and Patricia Davis, Manteo, third vice-president. Edna Holloman, Walstonburg, was appointed chairman of a committee to further the work of the United Nations Educational-Scientific-Cultural organization.

Rise Stevens Sings Here February 21

Rise Stevens, young star of the Metropolitan Opera, films, and radio will appear in a recital Monday evening at 8 o'clock, February 21. Students will be admitted free but are requested to get reserve seats at the student budget office before the twenty-first.

According to Dr. Martha M. Pingel, chairman of the Entertainment committee, wives of men students will be admitted at a reduced rate. Check special notice elsewhere in this paper for time and place to receive tickets for reserve seats.

Enrollment Of 1343 Recorded By Registrar For Quarter

Students attending East Carolina for the winter quarter number 1343, according to data recently released from the office of Registrar J. K. Long. Men outnumber women, as has been the case for the past several quarters at the college. The total enrollment includes 726 men and 617 women. It is estimated that approximately five out of seven of the men students are veterans.

By far the greater number of those now at the college are taking courses preparing them for teaching; 969 men and women are being trained for work as primary, grammar grade, and high school teachers. The distribution is as follows: for the primary and the grammar grades, 149 women and one man; and for high school, 387 women and 432 men. Taking work leading toward th liberal arts degree are 68 women and 234 men. Preliminary courses for medical, dental, and engineering students and for nurses and laboratory technicians have an enrollment of 59 men and 13 women.

According to classification, the students include 58 graduate students, 286 seniors, 261 juniors, 248 sophomores, 378 freshmen, and 12 special students.

Registrar's Notice

Students need not bring their grade books to the Registrar's office again. New students who have not had a grade book will not be required to have one.

The new system of reporting grades to students was planned to become effective at the end of the fall quarter, but delay in receiving the forms from the printer prevented this. However, each student will get grades for the fall and winter quarter on the new form. Old students who wish to complete their records in their grade books will have the necessary information to do this.

Speed in recording grades is a feature of the new plan. It will be possible to have grade reports in the post office in a shorter time after all grades have been received from the instructors than has been possible heretofore.

Copy of each student's report will be sent to his or her parents and to the student's adviser.

Vornholt Speaks To English Club

Mrs. Dan E. Vornholt, of the college English department, spoke to the English club Tuesday evening of this week on the "Relationship of the New York Theater to the World." The theaters of New York show the result of the common man, the theme of love, and the trend of the minds of the public, according to Mrs. Vornholt.

"If you can enjoy 'Follies' and minstrels you can enjoy some of the New York plays," she stated. The trend seems to be toward lighter plays to counteract world conditions, Mrs. Vornholt told the club. She stated that the appearance of satire in the theater shows that people can laugh at their mistakes and that they show a desire to improve and set them out in the right direction.

Before turning the meeting over to Mrs. Vornholt, Robert Chinnis, president of the club, requested those present to contribute to the stadium and March of Dimes drives.

The Veterans' minstrel, "Follies of 1949" will be presented in the Austin auditorium at East Carolina on the nights of February 9-10, according to Eli Bloom, director of the show.

The entire cast under the direction of Eli Bloom and Marie Wallace have been working on the show since early in October. ehearsals had to be spaced due to conflicts but the cooperation of the cast has been excellent according to reports by both Miss Wallace and Mr. Bloom. Student workers and directors of the minstrel say it is sure to surpass the acclaim given to the two previous shows, "Dixieland Minstrel" and "Follies of 1948."

The show will again include such hits as Bob Mays, Keith Kilpatrick, Gayle Giles, (East Carolina's own Phil Harris), Fred Ourt and many more of the local talented students. Many new faces will appear this year in all phases of the show and among the most notable will be voiced Betty Croom, blues singer Bernard Ham, and Humphrey Porter—300 pounds of dancing man.

Mr. Bloom again promises "a show you can't afford to miss."

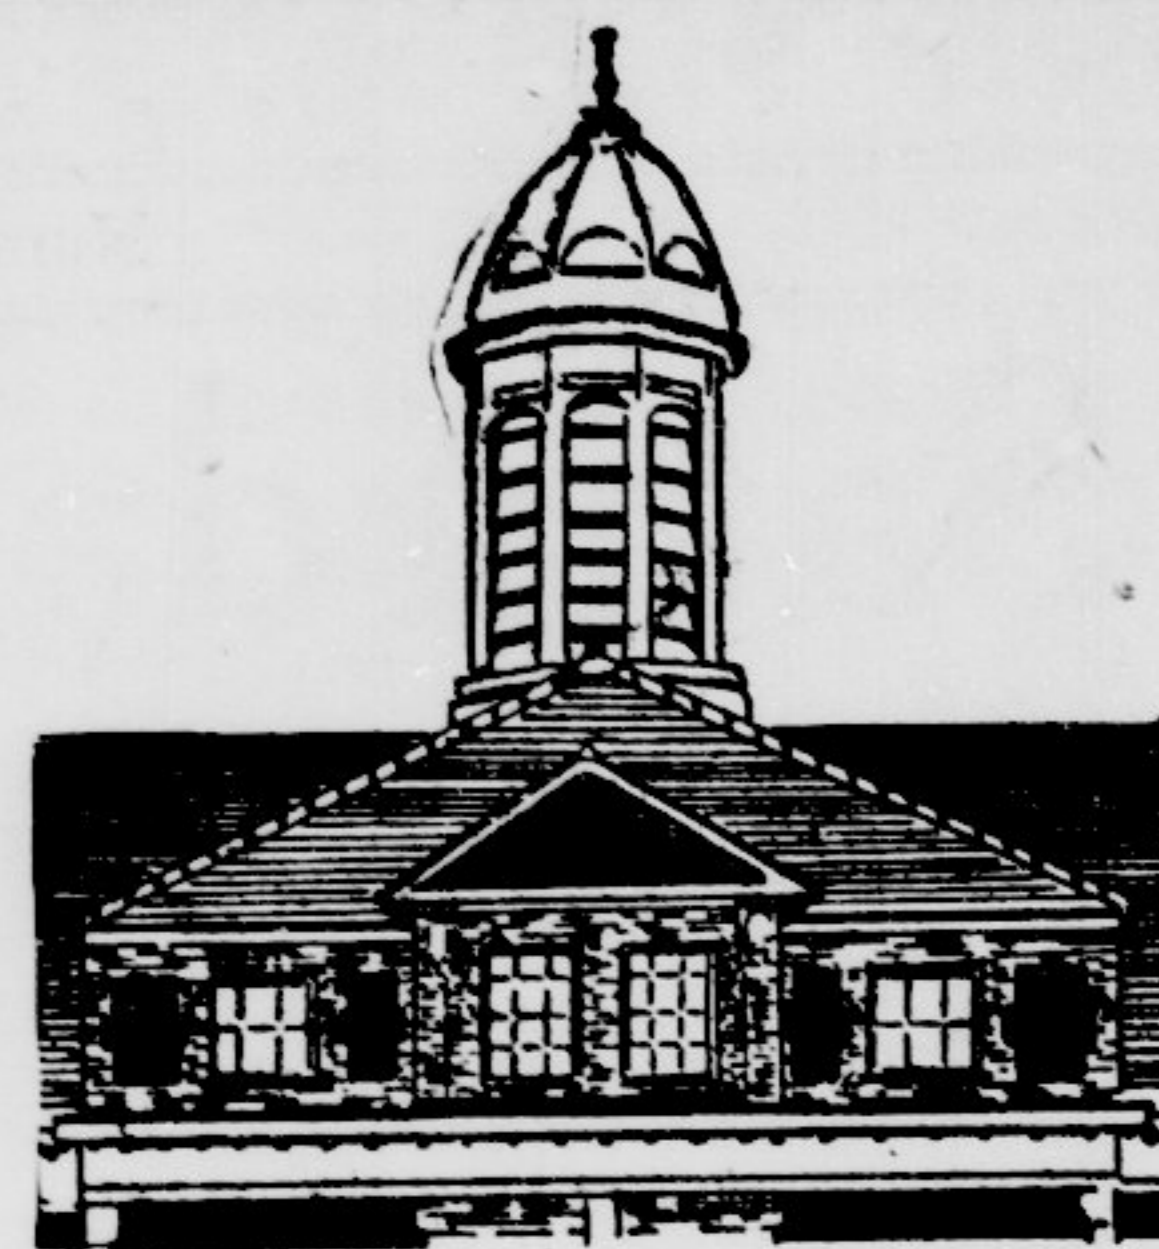

Students Receive ROTC Promotions

By direction of President J. D. Messick and pursuant to authority contained in paragraph 32, AR 145-10, several student members of the ROTC at East Carolina have been appointed to higher ranks in the local Air unit. Those receiving promotion include Plummer A. Daniel who has received an appointment of Cadet Captain and will serve as the Commanding officer of the Cadet Squadron.

Appointments to the rank of Cadet First Lieutenant include, Robert M. Glover, Gilliam L. Parker, Jr., William F. Waters, and Norman E. Wicker.

Thomas E. Casey, Arthur G. Lockard, Cecil R. Murphy, and Hilton G. Styron have been named as Cadet Second Lieutenants. Students in the basic course who received ranks include, James C. Boyd, Cadet First Sergeant, and Robert A. Robinson, James E. Salter, and Kenneth L. Stargardt were made Cadet Sergeants.

Do You Agree?

by Bill Flanders

As anyone who has been taking an interest in the growth of East Carolina knows, we are now in the process of raising funds for a football stadium here on the campus. We hope that the building of a stadium will help to improve our athletic program and bring more students to the college. In order to find out your opinion your reporter has interviewed students that play football and students who watch the games with the following question: "Do you think the erecting of the stadium will boost the enrollment at East Carolina?" Do you agree with these students?

George Wood—If you have a good football team you can get more students and if you have a stadium it will improve the team. I don't like to play in the mud!

Virgil Clark—I think the stadium will boost the outside interest in the college to the extent that it will add to the enrollment of those that are interested in athletics both as spectators and athletes.

Martha Ben Gullidge—I sure do think it will.

Paul Hansell—Certainly I think it will. The stadium itself will not increase the enrollment, but what it brings with it will.

George T. High—I think it will help the enrollment considerably because of the fact that it will be the only school in Eastern Carolina with adequate football facilities.

John B. Parker—I'm sure it will. It is my opinion that the large enrollment at other schools in other states is due to the aggressive athletic program.

Fred Ourt—The proof of the pudding is in the eating. You will have to give it a fair trial before the facts can be known.

Joe Polilli—It will boost the enrollment provided you have something to put in it. By that I mean there must be a source for athletic scholarships to bring more good ball players.

Robert Hogan Gaskins, Jr.—I think the stadium will be a great asset to East Carolina because it will tend to increase the interest of both students and townspeople.

Will Pittman: I think the stadium will help the cause too.

Oh! I do definitely.

Nothing can help us but there could be other ways just as much.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

For a number of years the YWCA and the YMCA of East Carolina Teachers college have sponsored Religious Emphasis Week.

This year the Week, which extended from January 11 to 14, was sponsored by both the Y groups and the denominational clubs on the campus and in Greenville.

As a regular attender of the seminars each night, I feel that it was one of the most inspirational programs and probably the most successful Religious Emphasis Week East Carolina Teachers college has ever had. The seminar on "Love, Courtship, and Marriage" had the largest attendance of any of the nightly discussions groups, and was conducted each evening with standing room only.

I would like to thank those students, members of the college staff and faculty, and representatives of religious groups in the city, who lent their time, effort, and support in making this important Week a successful one.

Yours truly,
George Morris
President of the YMCA

REPORT TO THE STUDENT COUNCIL
SUBJECT: Season Ticket Sales

Charles A. White began collecting money for the season ticket sales from July 1948 to November 5, 1948, and deposited the sum of $2,345.00 in the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co. under the name of "Entertainment Funds—Special; C. A. White." This sum was transferred by him in December to another fund—"E.C.T.C. Entertainment Funds; by Dr. Martha M. Pingel"—with the reservation that the student treasurer write a note stating that the money would be used to pay for the North Carolina Symphony, an agreement which was reached in May 1948.

At the time of transfer, a deduction of $.79 was made by the bank for service charges. This left a total of $2,344.21 in the new fund. Since the total number of tickets sold was 428, the total original amount should have been $2,354.00, a sum which was $.00 more than the amount registered in the bank. Since the discrepancy was in excess of the price of one ticket ($.50), and was insufficient for the price of two, it was recommended that $1,650.00 of the amount be retained in the bank for the symphony, and the remainder, a sum of $694.21, be turned over to the student funds to help pay the taxes on the entertainments, until such time as the discrepancy could be cleared for a full financial report. This advice, followed by the Chairman of the Entertainment committee, caused her to turn over to the student treasurer a check for $694.21, which was returned to her because council did not possess the above information. As the result of a conference between Dean Marshall, Mr. Duncan, George Lassiter and Dr. Pingel, it was agreed that the entire amount in the bank—$2,344.21—plus the Entertainment committee's check for $.79 to restore the original amount deposited, be turned over to the student funds. This transfer was made during the first week in January. On January 21, 1949, a check for $11.00 was discovered. This amount, covering the sale of two tickets, was turned over to Mr. Lassiter on January 22. It, added to the previous amount received by him from the sale of season tickets, made the total amount $2,356.00, which is $2.00 more than the sum derived from the sale of 428 tickets at $5.50 per ticket. This means that the $.00 has nothing to do with those ticket sales, and was added by accident to the amount. Since Mr. White was the only person who collected money for those sales, and since he accepted cash as well as checks for those tickets, the money must belong to him. At this point the Chairman would like to suggest that, if council is willing, that sum—$2.00—be returned to him. In addition to the 428 tickets sold, 20 season tickets were given as complimentary to the following persons: Dr. and Mrs. Messick, Mr. Moye (2), Mr. and Mrs. Tracy, the Daily Reflector (4), the radio station (4), and three members of the Board of Trustees (6).

Signed: Dr. Martha M. Pingel, Chairman Entertainment Committee

Stadium Fund Envelopes Go Out Tuesday--Give

Last week this page carried an editorial regarding raising funds for the stadium drive. We gave you the information about the student contributions in hopes that mere students would send in their contribution.

We also said that envelopes were to be mailed to each student and that these envelopes could be returned through the college post office. Some students have asked about these envelopes since the last issue of the paper came out. Well, they are still going to be mailed out. The student committee in charge of the student drive decided that the contributions would be larger if the letters were mailed out at the first of the month after the veterans' checks come in.

Following this suggestion the business education department prepared the letters, addressed them, and have them ready to be mailed out but they will not go in the mail until Monday, January 31.

Again we request that each student give something, every penny will count. If each student would give just twenty-five cents we could net over three hundred and twenty-five dollars. As we said before don't throw away the envelopes, contribute something.

Ramblin' Thoughts

by Ye Ole Rambler

Every now and then you see in Life magazine an article on college fads; such as the way the students wear their clothes, the sayings they have—and what have you. Last year around East Carolina if you asked a question and the answer was affirmative you would get this—"Ain't I," or "Does a billy goat have horns"—etc. A few of us old conservatives still stick to last year's sayings, but the Ole Rambler has been galavanting around lately and the student's lingo has changed a bit. Now when your Ole Rambler grumbles about the daily happenings in this world this saying is thrown into his face from all sides—"Sing 'em." This seems to be our latest change in slang language, and I will admit it is stopping a lot of unnecessary complaints on campus, because "sing 'em" can easily get tiresome.

If any of you have seen any free Saturday night shows in Austin building you will know what I mean by saying, "Little Margaret O'Brien, what a gruff voice you have." I have been told that the change of the voices from their regular tone to a deep bass is due to the changing of records from one machine to another. But whether the change of voice is due to the machines or not, it is still amusing to hear the bass voices coming out of the mouths of "bab'as."

Now that my rambling thoughts have just about come to a standstill, I will mention this glorious sunny South. Of course by the time this goes to press—it will be raining, because the odds are against you in Greenville. But for the kids who hike out to the arboretum every afternoon, I sincerely hope this California weather continues.

For the sake of the "girls" in Jarvis we pause for a breath. We hear they are still waiting for an appearance of Scumming on this page again.

Well, Ye Old Rambler has solved the problems. Yesterday when I passed the front of Jarvis I saw a sign in one of the windows on the first floor which read "All Gossip Exchange." So far as Ye Old Rambler is concerned that settles the question, go by and investigate this sign—who knows it may solve your problem. Besides Ye Ole Editor says absolutely no more Scumming!

Student Spotlight

by Curtis Nichols

"It matters not how long we live, but how," is the way this week's spotlifter looks at the three score and ten years allotted to man.

FIRST CHOICE greeted me as I walked into the suite of Jack Kimbrell in Wilson hall to try and pry loose a few facts about his past life and ambitions. FIRST CHOICE by the way, were words printed above the picture of a very beautiful brunette who goes by the name of Katherine Williams, and who as Jack so modestly put it, "Is the one." (Oh the things we reporters find out.)

Jack comes from Waxhaw, N. C. and after noticing my dumbfounded look he proceeded to point it out on the map—with the help of a microscope. He graduated from Waxhaw High school in 1943 and after working as an optician he enrolled in Wingate college, where he served as business manager of the college annual. He graduated in 1946 and in the fall of that same year we were gifted by his arrival here at East Carolina.

Jack has served as president of the BTU, president of the International Relations club and is now a member of the Awards Committee. He is also a member of the YMCA, the BSU, the English club, the Forensic club, a member of the Student legislature and YM Cabinet. He serves as manager of Wilson hall and is the guy that can never be found when a light fuse blows out.

He says he has no hobbies unless, "you would call loving all the girls a hobby." (From here that looks more like recreation, but then, everyone has his own opinions.) He does like to lean back in his soft cushioned chair though, with a 25c cigar (remember, he works in the Soda Shop) and listen to the radio, and his music ear includes everything from Accuf to Bach.

If you like politics, then Jack is the person to see and have a chat with, because he eats, sleeps, and breathes politics. "Some-day," he says, "I might start by being Governor or maybe Justice of the Supreme Court. (Modest, isn't he?) On finishing high school, he thought being an optometrist would be his career but decided this was no occupation for a politician so his plans were soon changed. Here at East Carolina he is majoring in Social Studies and minoring in English. Jack graduates at the end of this quarter and will immediately take a position as principle of the Wadeville Elementary School. He isn't through at East Carolina though, as he plans to work toward his MA degree here this summer.

"Easy Going" Jack says he has been too busy for much recreation which brings us right back to his hobby, "loving all the girls." (Cripes, one of us is crazy.) During the summer months he enjoys roaming the woods with his dog and gun but is always glad to see school start again because he likes to be around people. He sings with the

about the food in the dining hall. There seems to be a student on campus, who definitely disagrees with me. Sunday she went through the line twice and what for? Chicken—four pieces in fact. "Ain't" nothing like Ole Southern friend chicken is it honey chile? Even ye ole Rambler agrees to that.

The Great Discussion

The mountains had a quarrel with the ocean. And accused the latter of too much devotion To the elements of change, Which the mountains said was strange, For the Law it followed was not one of motion.

To the mountains in an answer said the ocean,

"You are wrong to think the earth is not in motion!

Just because you sit and dream, And look down on me, you seem

To feel that you have found a truthful notion!"

Now, the moral of the story should be plain—For the arguments of both are still the same. Since the elements of change Must continue to arrange

What the mountains and the oceans never gain.

Editor's Corner

Two weeks ago the TECO ECHO received a letter with a contribution in the form of a cartoon. This letter was signed only with initials. I would like to call the writer's attention to one of the policies of the TECO ECHO published in one of the first issues of the TECO ECHO for 1948-49. We will not publish material from persons who wish to remain anonymous. If you have a contribution to make but wish your name withheld send the contribution with a note saying that you wish your name withheld,

BSU quartet and is also a member of the College choir. Jacks says he will always be happy if he can only talk and sing, and sometimes he says, "I think I overdo it."

Tennis is his favorite sport and while at Wingate he participated in baseball and basketball, but now he says that time is too short for those luxuries.

Jack admits that his main luxury is sleep late. He then related a story concerning his longest nap, which lasted for three days. It seemed that he had a little misunderstanding with one of those mechanical contraptions called an automobile and his face still carries the results.

As the interview got around to the subject of our new buildings, Jack leaned back and had quite a chuckle. When he graduated from Wingate, a new boys dormitory and library were being erected, and now on the eve of his graduation here, many new improvements are in the making. He said with deep sincerity though, that he hoped they would prove very beneficial to others.

Jack has been a public figure since coming to East Carolina and he doesn't try to hide the fact that politics is his main love. (Hobbies or girls excluded.) He lost his first political campaign but that hasn't hindered his efforts to climb upwards. He is an excellent speaker and has contributed his speaking talents several times at clubs and over the radio on behalf of the Polo drive and other worthy causes.

All through the interview Jack kept insisting that he wasn't worthy of being spotlighted, but for one who has done so much for himself and for others, I thoroughly disagree with him. This space is dedicated to those students that stand out, those students who accept help and give in return, and those students who have the ambition to forge ahead in the unknown for the good of all mankind, and in our opinion Jack Kimbrell is certainly one of "those" students. Here's to your success Jack, in any fields you endeavor to compete.

It still seems to pay to advertise, or at least that's the way it looks.

Some weeks ago the business men of Greenville sponsored several full page ads on the back of The State magazine. In these advertisements, the campus, President Messick, and the band were featured. Well, these advertisements brought questions. Two weeks ago in The State, on the question and answer page, a man from Durham wrote in to ask when East Carolina Teachers college was established. He said that he had been reading the ads.

Thanks to the business men of Greenville for again helping to put East Carolina on the map.

Last week students of East Carolina Teachers college saw their first game at this college where an electric scoreboard owned by the college was used. This scoreboard was bought and presented to the college by the Veterans club.

I am sure the students appreciated the fine board and will always remember the Veterans for the excellent contribution to the pleasure and enjoyment of college basketball games here.

Austin building has now received a coat of paint from the basement to the top of the attic. Last week the top story of the building received the last touches on a painting job which it has needed for a long time. If you haven't been up since the job was completed go by and take a look.

I am sure the students appreciate the interest the college administration has taken in making East Carolina a better place to live.

In my opinion a word of thanks goes to Jack Hedgepeth for carrying out a splendid March of Dimes program at the college again this year. Jack has spent many hours planning and with the help of Frank Hogg and Lynwood Kilpatrick and the women dormitory president has really put over a drive.

A welcome mat was laid out to star forward Charlie Bill Moye this week as he has been out for two weeks with a dislocated toe.

Tomorrow's game will prove to be much better than the one at Hickory a few weeks back because of the return of the injured Moye and the advantage of the home court.

LR Bears Defeat Bucs At Hickory By 71-49 Score

The Lenoir Rhyne Bears downed the East Carolina Teachers college Pirates by practically the identical score as they did in last year's cage game played in Hickory, 71-49.

The Pirates, playing without the services of their crisp shot artist in Charlie Bill Moye, were unable to hit the hoop during the first stanza which proved to be the winning margin of another North State conference battle.

High man for the Bucs was lanky Jack Everton who looped in 14 points, but was way off from the free throw line, missing 10 charity shots out of 16.

Pirates Lose 2nd Consecutive Game To Catawba, 49-45

The second place Catawba Indians were almost scalped themselves as the East Carolina Pirates bowed to them in a thrilling game which ended with the Indians on top, 49-45.

It was the nip and tuck for both teams as both put on a great defensive show by stealing the ball, and ball hawking all over the court. The loss of the Pirates star forward Charlie B. Moye seemed to most spectators the margin of losing, and also, the injury which was sustained by lanky Jack Everton in the middle of the second half.

Bill Speacht, the Catawba footballer, proved to the large crowd that he was adapted to the hardwood by leading his teams scoring with 17 points. Everton led the locals Bucs with 14 points, but had to retire from the game because of a sprained ankle.

The Indians, coached by Earl Ruth, had to stage off a late rally by the Pirates as Louis Collie and "Toddy" Fennell were swiping the ball and scoring. The score during the game changed hands six times and was tied 5. This was the second straight set back for the Coach Porter quint.

An ex-sailor from Tamaqua, Pa., who wanted to be a college football star, will go down in the history of East Carolina Teachers college.

But 23-year-old Jack Davis, whose home address is now Kinston, N.C., will not be recorded in the athletic history of the school as a halfback. A brain concussion suffered in the final game of the 1947 football season put an end to his gridiron career.

Instead Jack Davis will go down as the greatest manager of varsity athletics East Carolina ever saw. Come the end of the winter quarter, the stocky little manager will take his petite blonde wife and bid farewell to East Carolina, their basement apartment, and the smell of wintergreen and athletic equipment.

Officials at the college say he will never be replaced. Not that they have any doubts about the abilities of Junior Manager Max Garrell. He is a good boy. He will do all right. But as Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of athletics, puts it: "There'll never be another Jack Davis. He is the greatest manager I ever saw."

Davis has saved the school enough money by cutting down on equipment loss to more than compensate for any reward he might be given for his services. Basketball Coach Howard Porter says.

The only equipment loss suffered since Davis took over has been due to depreciation. During the past football season Davis was issued 120 towels. When the season closed he turned in 127. The manager is not a mathematician either. He is majoring in physical education and minoring in history. The increase in the number of towels was attributed merely to "the tricks of the trade."

When blond-headed, pipe smoking Jack passes a piece of equipment through the window it either comes back at the end of the day or the person it was issued to gets blackballed. Jack Davis style.

On the night of the opening game of the basketball season one of the reserve forwards had failed to return a basketball issued him during practice. It just couldn't be found, he explained to the stern-faced manager when he reported to the equipment window for his basketball uniform.

"That's just too bad," the manager announced. "Either you find the ball or replace it or finish the season in your underwear. No uniform."

Teachers Playhouse To Give 'Peter Pan' As Winter Quarter's Performance

Joyce Corbett Plays Part Of Peter Pan; Other Cast Tentative

by Charles Williams

Peter Pan, Sir James M. Barrie's story of a boy who never grew up, will be presented by the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina Teachers college in five performances, beginning on March 4. The drama, the Players' major production for the winter quarter, is scheduled for four showings in the Austin building on March 4, 7, and 8, and a matinee at the Eppes high school on March 9.

The delightful phantasy was written by Barrie in 1904, and since that time children and grown-ups alike have been charmed by the magic and dignity of its lines and the ethereal quality of its characters. The action of the Players, dressed in colorful costumes and taking place before picturesque scenery, will unmistakably afford a pleasant experience for theater goers of this area.

Peter Pan, the hero of the play, wanting never to grow up, ran away from his home on the day that he was born. He did this, he says, "because I heard father and mother talking of what I was to do when I became a man. I want always to be a little boy and to have fun; so I ran away to Kensington Gardens and lived a long time among the fairies."

Peter's visits into the realm of reality in search of stories to tell his followers, his association with human beings, and his narrow escapes from pirates will captivate lovers of drama as they watch the elfin-like figure dash and dance among the people of make believe in Never Land.

Joyce Corbett of Greenville, a graduate student at the college, will head the Peter Pan cast. Miss Corbett will make her debut on our stage in the person of Peter Pan, the immortal spirit of youth. Although this is her initial appearance here, Miss Corbett has had extensive training in dramatics, and is a well-seasoned footlight personality in the amateur theater. A graduate of the University of North Carolina, School of Radio, she attended Mary Washington College in Virginia. Miss Corbett, while a student at Mary Washington, studied dramatics under the supervision of Dr. Lucile H. Charles, who was formerly a member of the faculty at that institution.

Cast Still Tentative

Casting for Peter Pan is still tentative, but rehearsals have begun with Wendy being played by Susan Smith; John, James Briley; Mr. Darling, Virgil Clark; Mrs. Darling, Shirley Cowburn; Liza, Carrie Mae Smith; Nana, Betsy Sue Stafford; Lost Boys and Girls, Evelyn Kornegay, Alef Collins, Audrey Feezor, Virginia Whitehurst, and Goodwin Moore; Tiger Lily, Lola Stephenson; Captain Hook, Elmer Williams; Pirates, Dick Whittington, Wilton Joyner, Knott Braxton, Clarence Mooring, Al Livesay, and Muriel Shotwell; Indians, Otis Peale, Clyde White, William Best, Herbert Johnson, Laura Thomas, Daphne Jilcoite, and Patsy Stroud; and the Crocodile, Ralph Rives.

Business Staff

Donald Blood is serving as student director, and has as his assistants Gerry Weathers and Muriel Shotwell. The technical direction will be headed by Herbert Johnson, with William Best, Clarence Mooring, Rupert Browning, and Phil Spaulding serving as assistants. Other duties on the technical staff will be handled by Bob Robinson, Lights; Audrey Feezor, Costumes; Virginia Whitehurst, Properties, with Goodwin Moore, Shirley Kinlaw, and Alef Collins; Ruth Bostian and Ophelia Kirven, Make-up; and Betty Heehey, Prompter.

Virgil Clark will serve as business manager of the production. Publicity will be under the management of Carl Conner; Tickets, Claude West; Posters, Ralph Rives; and Stage Managers, Helen Winslow and Bill Skarren.

High School Day April 14; 303 Schools Get Invitations

East Carolina Teachers college will entertain seniors from public schools in the eastern section of North Carolina at a High School Day to be held April 14 on the campus. Invitations have been issued to students and faculty members of 303 high schools in 49 counties of the state.

A committee of faculty members and administrative officers of the college is now at work planning a program which will make the day a gala occasion. The academic and social values of college life will be stressed in activities arranged for high school guests.

The observance of High School Day this spring will revive an annual campus event which was discontinued during the war years. In 1936 the college began setting aside each spring a day for the entertainment on the campus of high school seniors with the idea of interesting them in education beyond the eleventh and the twelfth grades. The first year approximately 1,100 guests were present from 55 schools in 22 counties. Interest grew from year to year until in 1941 more than 3,200 visitors spent the day on the campus observing the work and play of college life. These represented 114 schools from 36 counties. After 1941 High School Day was discontinued because of war conditions.

McGinnis Directs Plans
Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, director of the Bureau of Field Studies at the college, is director of the planning committee for High School Day this year. Mr. Marshall Guest of Greenville Chapter

Dean of Men W. E. Marshall spoke at the regular meeting of the Greenville chapter which was held in the Alumni office on January 14.

Mr. Marshall suggested several ways that the chapter members can help solve the juvenile delinquency problem here in Greenville.

Plans were made during the business session for contacting Greenville alumni who have not contributed to the Stadium drive. Mrs. Ruel Tyson (Bert Tyson), president of the chapter, urged each chapter member to bring all funds to the February meeting.

Mrs. Tyson also reported 92 paid members in Pitt county.

Mrs. Marshall was also a guest for the meeting.

The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. W. G. Garner (Ernestine Wynne), Mrs. J. D. Aman (Ruth Brown), Mrs. Leslie Jones (Blanche Clark), Mrs. D. Rock Vincent (Revia Medlin), and Mrs. C. D. Ward (Hester Gist).

BUILDINGS

expansion of the industrial arts program, and a new home for the college president. The pressing need of these permanent improvements was cited by board members.

The present home management house, a one-story structure previously used as an infirmary, was described as inadequate as a laboratory for women students of the home economics department. It was proposed that upon completion of a new building, the present quarters be converted into six apartments for faculty members.

The board went on record as favoring the purchase of a pipe organ. It was stated that though hundreds of music students have attended the college and the present music faculty is a strong one, no opportunity is now given students to learn the organ and so to prepare themselves for community service, as in churches after their graduation.

An expansion of the industrial arts department was recommended by the board on the grounds that a survey of the superintendents in the State shows that instructors in the field are in demand but cannot be secured either within or without the State.

The board also cited the need of a new home for the college president in keeping with the neighborhood and other buildings on the campus. The frame dwelling now used as a president's home, it was recommended, should be converted into apartments for faculty members.

Student Awards Day To Be Held Here In Spring

Plans for a student awards day to be staged at East Carolina Teachers College in the spring are being made by the Executive committee of Departmental Awards, headed by Jesse McDaniel, senior from Kinston. The committee, which is composed of both students and faculty members at the college was appointed at the beginning of the 1948-1949 term and has been at work since the starting of the fall term last September.

Three types of awards will be made. McDaniel has announced, at a special assembly program to be held during the spring quarter this year. An award honoring a senior of each department of instruction in the college will be given on the bases of high scholastic standing, and excellent standards of conduct and citizenship. A special award will go to the student chosen by the awards committee as the outstanding campus citizen of the school year.

Service awards will be presented to members of the legislature of the Student Government association. These will indicate the office held by the student, the organization which he represents, and the dates of his service.

Lee Neel Exhibits Work In Gallery

On exhibit in the Art Gallery of the Sheppard Memorial library here is a collection of 14 paintings by Francis Lee Neel, faculty member of the department of art at East Carolina. The exhibit will be open to the public throughout January.

Subjects of water colors in the exhibit are based on Neel's experiences and observations in the Philippines and on Okinawa, where he served as a paratrooper with the 11th Airborne division during the war. Other works on exhibit include landscapes and still-life and non-objective paintings in oil and tempera.

17 Students Given Who's Who Awards For Service Here

Seventeen students at East Carolina received awards for service as leaders in student activities on the campus at a specially scheduled assembly program Friday morning, January 21, in the Wright auditorium. Each student was given a certificate and received applause from more than 1000 students and faculty members present for the occasion. The seventeen men and women were designated in the fall to represent East Carolina Teachers college in this year's edition of "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges."

President John D. Messick announced the awards and congratulated the recipients on their achievements. "Those who wish to be of real service," he told them, "must obtain facts, organize and analyze them, and then act."

Those present Friday morning to receive awards were Ann Boddard, Snow Hill; June Bass, Halifax; Robert Chinnis and Jean Bostian, Wilmington; Audrey Feezor, Lexington; Elsie Carver, Washington; Myrtle Davis, Lucama; G. Raz Autrey, Dunn; Lola Stephenson, Willow Springs; Milton Fields, Scotland Neck; Floyd Collins, Cerro Gordo; Alan Stoddard, Greenville; John Pournaras, Ambridge, Pa. and Charles Connor, New Bern.

Robert Shuford, Thomasville, Wilford Pendleton, Portsmouth, Va., and Haywood Sellers, Greenville, received awards in absentia. Shuford and Pendleton are now teaching and Sellers has withdrawn from the college to enter military service.

President Messick Attends Meetings

President John D. Messick of East Carolina Teachers college is attending a meeting of the Planning Committee of the Division of Higher Education of the National Education Association held in Chicago January 28-30.

He was recently appointed to serve on the committee with sixteen other leaders in education who are conversant with problems of higher education in the United States and whose annual report is considered of educational importance in that it presents an analysis of current issues before American colleges and universities. While in Chicago, Dr. Messick will participate in drawing up the agenda for the Fourth National Conference on Higher Education, which will be held in Chicago in April.

East Carolina Music Department To Sponsor Clinic

A vocal clinic for teachers and pupils in the public schools of eastern North Carolina will be sponsored by the department of music at East Carolina Teachers college and will take place on the campus, Saturday, February 12.

A similar clinic held at the college last November, the first of its kind on the campus, was planned to give instruction and lend encouragement to teachers and students of music in this section of the state. Attending it were 75 students and nineteen teachers and directors of music from eleven public schools in this area.

As a result of the meeting last fall, a second clinic was requested and has been arranged by the faculty of the department of music at the college. Invitations to attend the February clinic have been issued and an increased attendance is expected. Vornholt in Charge of Arrangements
Dan E. Vornholt, professor of voice at the college, is in charge of arrangements for the all-day session. The program will include ensemble singing by a group of sopranos and altos, one of tenors and basses, and a third of mixed voices.

Prof. Paul Young, choral director and voice teacher at the University of North Carolina, who was present at the fall clinic, will again direct the groups of student singers. During the day he will confer with teachers and directors.

Events of the day will begin with registration in the Austin building at 8:45. The morning and afternoon sessions will be devoted largely to practice by the groups of singers and to instruction by Prof. Young on tone production and ensemble work. A luncheon has been arranged for the noon hour.
