Circle K Holds Dinner Meet At Old Town Inn This Week

President J. D. Messick And Tige Gardner Guest At First Meet

Members of the Circle K club, campus Kiwanis, held a dinner meeting at the Old Town Inn Tuesday of this week as the first official meeting of the organization. President John D. Messick and Tige Gardner, local Kiwanis president were guests at the meeting.

Discussing the work of the Kiwanis from the stand point of a member of twenty years, Dr. Messick pointed out that the campus club could be of great service to East Carolina in promoting scholarship, citizenship, and a true interest in the progress of the college. Mr. Gardner welcomed those present into the Kiwanis and stated that the local group would be glad to do all possible to see that the college club was a success.

Following the dinner meeting club President, Virgil Clark, who presided at the meeting, requested the Board of Directors of the newly organized club to meet tonight at 6:30 in the parlour of Wilson hall for a special business session. President Clark also urged the members present to act on membership suggestions before the next meeting.

Indian Students To Be Speaker At IRC Meeting

Mantrala L. N. Sastri, graduate student from India now enrolled at Duke University, will speak to the International Relations club of East Carolina Teachers college at a meeting scheduled for Tuesday, January 24, at 7:30 o'clock in the Flanagan auditorium on the campus.

His topic for the evening will be "Some Aspects of Indian Life and Thought," according to an announcement by Constantine Fokakis of Wilmington, program director for the organization.

Mr. Sastri, member of an orthodox Hindu-Brahmin family, lives in Pithapuram, a town on the east coast in south India. He is a graduate of Benares University, the largest in India, from which he holds the bachelor's and the master's degrees. Before coming to Duke to study for the doctor's degree in physics, Mr. Sastri spent a year working as a lecturer. At present he is a graduate of the world-renowned physicist, Professor H. Spencer.

Dr. Rudolph Willmann Addresses Teachers

Dr. Rudolph R. Willmann, director of the department of music at East Carolina Teachers college, was principal speaker at a meeting of Pender County teachers Monday afternoon, January 16, in Burgaw. The topic discussed was "music in the schools." Dr. Willmann talked on the subject "A Program of Music and Its Implementation in the Elementary Schools."

Science Club To Sponsor Contest For High Schools

Awards Of Ten Dollars And Five Dollars To Be Given Winners

Members of the Science club at East Carolina are sponsoring a science contest for high school students in the eastern section of the state, according to an announcement by Lola P. Stephenson of Willow Springs, president of the organization. Invitations to participate have been mailed to schools in this section of North Carolina. The purpose of the contest is to promote interest in science among high school students.

Winning contestants will receive awards and certificates of honorable mention given by members of the college Science club. A first prize of $10.00 will be given to the student whose entry is considered most outstanding; and a second prize of $5.00 will also be awarded. Other exhibits of merit will receive honorable mention. Judges will include faculty members of the science staff at East Carolina and student representatives of the Science club.

Entries must be submitted on or before April 7 of this year. Awards will be announced on High School Day at the college here, scheduled for Friday, April 21. An exhibition of projects submitted by contestants will be on display in the science department at East Carolina at that time, when several thousand high school students from the eastern section of the state are expected to visit the college.

Entries in the contest, says Miss Stephenson, may be exhibits or projects prepared by individuals or groups of students, and may include work in either the physical or biological sciences. Suggestions made by the Science club to aid those who wish to enter the contest include collections of native plants or animals; models illustrating any phase of science; and photographs, drawings, or paintings of objects of scientific interest.

March Of Dimes Drive To Begin January 23rd

The college March of Dimes drive will begin Monday, January 23 and last through January 31, it was announced today, by Jack Hedgepeth, campus chairman.

Due to the heavy schedule of college entertainment and student studies, the drive will not be centered around special campus entertainment, as has been the policy in the past.

Instead, the following program will be conducted: contribution containers will be placed in the dining halls, the soda shop, and the book store. Dormitory committees will conduct a room-to-room canvass of all students, and the college cheerleaders will take up donations at half-time during two basketball games, assisted by the college clowns. Individual clubs will also be called on for contributions to this drive.

Tickets will be sold on the campus to the "President's Ball," and all students are urged to attend this dance, which is to be held Tuesday night, January 31, in Wright auditorium.

Life Of Practice Teacher Limits Society

"Get me a story about practice teaching at the Training School." This thrown at me when feeling in a benevolent mood, I said "Okay, I'll be a pleasure." After ruminating for a few days, I came to this somewhat obvious conclusion: Since I work in the institution, if I say anything about the long hard hours the students have to put in, the teachers will be my enemies for life; and if I don't, the students will declare I'm mentally incompetent, write demoralizing rubbish and spread malicious propaganda.

Found this definition of the term in The Dictionary Of Medieval Scholars And Poor Fools Who Attend East Carolina: Practice teaching is the quarter when students cease their superficial activities and really begin to learn that life can be unbeatiful, unanswerable and generally unbearable.

Before students can practice teach, they must put in a definite number

Greenhouse Being Constructed Back Of Flanagan Bldg.

A new greenhouse for the department of science at East Carolina is now under construction on the campus. It is located to the rear of the Flanagan building near Tenth Street. Work now in progress is expected to be completed during the present school year.

The greenhouse is the first to be built at East Carolina and is considered by the faculty members of the department of science a valuable asset to work in laboratories and classes in biology and botany.

When construction is completed, work will be begun on a permanent exhibit of plants and shrubs peculiar to eastern North Carolina, including both rare and common varieties. These will be arranged for display both in the greenhouse and in the area surrounding it. Plans are now being made by members of the department of science to collect and plant such specimens.

It is also hoped that community organizations such as garden clubs in and near Greenville will receive assistance through work and experiments carried on in the greenhouse.

Daugherty Joins Home Economics Teaching Staff

Mabel Daugherty of Jackson, Mississippi, has arrived at East Carolina Teachers college and will begin work next Monday as a faculty member of the department of home economics at the college. Because of the large enrollment of students in the department this year, Miss Daugherty has been added to the present teaching staff. Her work will include courses in foods and clothing.

For the past several years, she has been a member of the home economics at Belhaven college in Jackson, Mississippi. She is a native of Birmingham, Ala., and did undergraduate work at Peabody college in Nashville, Tenn. Later she studied at Columbia University and at the University of Alabama, from which she holds the degree of master of science.

Playhouse To Present Workshop Play Tonight

The Teachers Playhouse will present Hilmar Baukhage's translation of the play, "The Boor" tonight, January 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Flanagan auditorium as a workshop production. This play is considered one of the Russian classics and tells the story of a man who has determined to obtain the money his friends widow owed him even if it means fighting a duel.

Garland Jackson, Jr. is the director of the play. Those in the cast are: Susan Smith, Elmer Williams, and Mark Moore.

of hours observing all the grades. After this conditioning, they are ready to start the grind that leads toward a degree.

Room Service
Practice teachers check in the school at 8:30 so they'll be on hand to help Johnny and Susie off with their coats when they come stumbling in sleepy-eyed fifteen minutes later. All the grades are out by 3:30 at which time Johnny and Susie put on their coats without aid, or either freeze to death.

Overheard one practice teacher say that she'd finally realized why she couldn't get interested in reading on an adult level anymore. "Too much of that 'Ted has a dog. He is brown and white. Ted has a good dog. He seldom bites anyone. When he does bite, the person bit can always be treated for rabies.'"

Limits Activities
After the first few weeks, the practice teachers begin to relax to the degree that they don't jump every

English Dept. Drama Conference To Be Held On Campus Tomorrow

Legislature Buys Books To Guide Future Graduates

The Student Legislature passed a motion this week to appropriate money to purchase two copies of The Market For College Graduates, a book recently published by Harvard Press and written by Professor Seymour E. Harris as a guide to college graduates, for the college library.

In the book, the Harvard economist discussed the large number of students that are graduating from college each year and points out the danger that will face them in years to come if proper means are not made for more jobs in the future.

The Legislature purchased the books in hopes that they would be of service to future graduates in selecting a career.

Music Dept. Plans Production Of Two Operettas In March

Performances of two one-act operettas have been announced by the department of music at East Carolina Teachers college and have been scheduled for March 3 and 4. "Trial by Jury" by Gilbert and Sullivan and "Down in the Valley" by Kurt Weill will be given in a double program each evening with a cast of student musicians, according to Dr. R. R. Willmann, director of the department.

Dan E. Vornholt, professor of voice, will serve as director and will be aided in his work by other members of the music faculty. Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of speech and drama in the department of English, will assist in staging the productions. Rehearsals with tentative casts have already begun.

First In Sometime
The operettas are the first productions of the kind to be given by a campus group for several years. In 1943 F. von Flotow's "Martha" with an all-student cast was presented by the department of music with signal success.

The two operettas chosen for production at East Carolina this spring will offer a varied program. "Trial by Jury," a satirical work in the gay style characteristic of Gilbert and Sullivan, contrasts with Weill's "Down in the Valley," a tensely dramatic work based on American folk music, composed in 1948, and first produced by the Lemonade Opera Company of New York.

The English department of East Carolina Teachers college will sponsor a workshop and conference on drama on the campus tomorrow. Invitations have been sent to a large group of teachers in the eastern section of the state and to others interested in the drama and its function in the schools of the east. All who wish to attend will be welcomed by the sponsoring group.

Campus Elections Draw Attention Early In Quarter

As the middle of the winter quarter ends, students at East Carolina are beginning to turn their attention to student elections which will be held during the third week of March. A survey of the Student Legislature reveals that at least twenty-seven of the present office holders will graduate at the end of the spring quarter.

In a statement this week, Carl G. Conner, editor of the TECO ECHO, states that students who announced their intention of running for a top SGA office before the first of March would be given a write-up in the paper. He stated that by doing this, he hoped to arouse more interest in the campus elections this year.

Many Vacancies
As the picture looks now, several SGA offices will be vacated at the end of the spring quarters by seniors. Out of the forty-three or more members of the Legislature, only thirteen or fourteen will be back next year. As yet, no announcements have been made by any students regarding their intention of running, but it is fairly evident that a number of people are planning to run for president of the SGA.

Officers which seem to be open at this time include, president, first and second vice-president, secretary, historian, treasurer, an first and second assistant treasurers. A number of top campus clubs will also have vacancies.

Reconstruction In Auditorium Delays 'Follies'

The Veterans club's musical-comedy production, the "Follies of '50," is being held up only by the reconstruction work in the Austin auditorium, says Ed Casey, president of the organization.

Originally scheduled to be presented sometime in January, the "Follies" will be delayed tentatively until the last of March.

Casey has stated that the dancing routines have been rehearsed every Tuesday night since tryouts were held in mid-October of last year. "While dance routines are much harder this year than they have ever been before, the cast is rapidly making the dance numbers actually routine," he said. The dance rehearsals are under the direction of Mrs. Marie Wallace, Greenville dance instructor.

The remainder of the cast will begin rehearsals soon at a date to be announced by Director of the production, Eli Bloom, local attorney.

Forensic Club Choses Six For Debate Tournament

Members of the Jarvis Forensic club at East Carolina Teachers college have chosen six debaters to represent the organization in regional and national debate tournaments to be held in the spring of this year.

Tryouts held last Thursday evening, January 12, resulted in the selection of Billy Tucker of Grimesland, Evelyn Littleton of Jacksonville, Robert W. Wechter of Stumpy Point, and Charles Fountain of Tarboro as representatives of the college forensic club in the coming tournaments. Elmer Williams of Washington and Miles Buck of Syracuse, New York, will serve as alternates.

Judges in the competitive tryouts last Thursday were L. W. Gaylord, Greenville attorney; R. B. Staring, director of forensics at the city high school; and P. T. Lancaster of Lake-

Dr. Lucile Turner, director of the department of English, and other faculty members of the department have arranged plans for the day. Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of speech and drama in the English department, is in charge of the program. Cooperating with plans for the conference and workshop are Mrs. Howard Mims, dramatics director in the city high school; Mrs. J. H. Rose of the Rose School of Speech in Greenville; and Miss Mamie Chandler, director of activities among Methodist students at East Carolina.

The schedule for the day will include presentation of four short plays, a luncheon in the college dining hall, and a round-table discussion based on the four productions. The productions will be given in Flanagan auditorium between 10 o'clock and noon. These plays will show as nearly as possible what can be done by students working under classroom conditions and with a minimum of scenery, properties, costumes, and make-up.

The organizations will present plays in the following order: the Rose School of Speech, the Dramaters of Greenville High School, the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina and the Alpha Zeta Chapter of the Wesley Players from the Methodist Student center.

The Teachers Playhouse is the drama organization on the campus, and the Alpha Zeta Chapter is a chapter of the Wesley Players, the only organization for religious drama in the nation.

Dr. Charles will serve as chairman of the round-table discussion in the English laboratory in the Austin building from 1:15 to 2:15 tomorrow afternoon.

Carter To Present Piano Recital Thursday Evening

Robert Carter, faculty member of East Carolina, will be presented by the department of music in a recital of music for the piano Thursday evening, January 26. The program will take place in the Wright auditorium at 8:00 o'clock and will be open to the public.

Though Mr. Carter has made radio appearances from the campus studio and has played for several organizations in Greenville since he joined the college faculty last September, the recital on January 26 will be his first full-length program on the campus.

The major portion of his recital will be made up of compositions by Bach, Beethoven and Brahms. Of particular interest will be the premier performance of Sonata, No. 1, by Alice Hunt-Sokoloff, a modern work completed in December 1948 and scheduled for publication in England next spring.

Mr. Carter is a native of Nashville, Tenn. He received his training in music at the Chicago Music college and later studied with the celebrated teacher Madam Olga Samaroff. He has been accompanist for a number of well-known singers.

Each contestant spoke briefly on the national debate topic for 1950.—Resolved, that the United States should nationalize basic nonagricultural industries. Dr. Meredith N. Posey, faculty advisor of the Jarvis Forensic club, and Milton Zelin of Philadelphia, Pa., president of the organization, were in charge of the contests. Speakers representing East Carolina will participate in the South Atlantic Forensic Tournament at Hickory, North Carolina, scheduled for March 2, 3, and 4. Later in the spring they will represent the college here at the Grand National Forensic Tournament, which is sponsored by the Strawberry Leaf Society and held annually at Mary Washington college in Fredricksburg, Virginia.

DEMONSTRATE YOUR SCHOOL SPIRIT

During the past two or three months the TECO ECHO has published a series of articles dealing with school spirit on our campus. In doing this, it has not been our intentions to stir up a controversy as to the true meaning of the words "school spirit," but rather to instill more of the said substance into the student body.

This week, the "Do You Agree?" is being devoted to the question of just what is school spirit. We are indeed glad to see that the views stated in this column have changed considerably since the series of articles was begun. Now that most of the students are beginning to see a bit clearer what the words really mean, we are hoping that the philosophy of school spirit will be put into practice on our campus.

During the rest of this quarter, and throughout the first of the spring quarter, the student body will primarily be concerned with the candidates that will be running for office. As the various campus leaders make known their intention of running for an office in the SGA, examine their policies and measure their ideas against the scale of "school spirit." As for you, see how yours measure up when you go to the polls to vote. Remember that this paper is not trying to influence your ideas, but simply trying to get you to think—or if you please—to have ideas. Take an active part in your student government and watch the progress made at East Carolina.

WHY NOT BE A JANITOR?

According to an article in the January 9 issue of Newsweek, it is better to be a janitor than principal of a large school, economically speaking. In a recent survey in Boston it was found that in every case looked into, the head janitor of the school was receiving more money than the principals, who in some cases held three college degrees.

Referring to the fact that Boston has long been known as the "American Athens," the Newsweek article pointed out that in the Boston English High school Dr. Walter Downey, a former state commissioner of education who had three university degrees, received only $7,020 whereas his "senior custodian" of the school building earned $7,192.96. Other than this school, the article pointed out three others where the same thing was true.

Something is wrong with our system of education when such as the above prevails. Why should a person spend thousands of dollars and years of work when he could receive just as much, and in many cases more, as a janitor with little or no education? It can be only self respect and dignity but we wonder if one's self respect and dignity is worth this much. Federal aid to education might be the solution to this problem—and if it is, that is what we need.

CIRCLE K HAS MAKINGS OF GOOD CLUB

The recently organized Circle K club, college branch of the Kiwanis, has the makings of one of the best clubs on the campus. Thus far, plans have not been completely worked out for the year's activities, but as the club develops the good that it will do here at East Carolina becomes more evident.

In the near future the Veterans club, which has so well served the college will no longer be in existence because the veterans will all be out of school. As the Circle K grows, it will probably center its interests around a part of the work heretofore carried on by the veterans.

With a limited membership of fifty men, the club will be just the right size to be considered an honor club and at the same time not too small to accomplish its purpose. There is no doubt that the popularity of membership in the club will grow.

WORKSHOP PRODUCTIONS ADD TO CAMPUS LIFE

Students who have been missing the workshop productions given each Friday by the Teachers Playhouse have been missing a part of college which would add a good deal to life. The plays, which have been given in an informal manner in the auditorium of the Flanagan building, demonstrate the giving of plays with a minimum of scenery and props.

Persons who have taken the time to prepare these plays also deserve a good deal of credit. Ralph Rives has served as director of the workshop plays for the past two quarters. With cooperation of a number of the Players, he has been very successful in producing plays which entertained the groups which have taken the time to attend.

Such projects as those carried on by players can help to make college life more enjoyable. We should recognize this fact and support progressive projects of this type.

Student Spotlight

by Wilton Joyner

Lloyd Gilbert Carroll, known to most students at East Carolina as Gilbert or just plain ole "P. J." (to me), is your student in the spotlight for this issue. Just how this came about is a long story that goes all the way back to his high school days and builds up to his senior standing here at East Carolina.

Carroll attended Weldon high school during his freshman high school year. Then he "went military minded" and spent the following school year and summer at Edwards Military Institute where he was elected and served as president of the sophomore class. His third and final year in high school was spent in Weldon high school where he served as historian of his class and was chosen as the best all around student. Not only did he go through high school in three years, he participated in the three major sports every year.

After being graduated from Weldon high school, Gilbert thought of enrolling at High Point college or the University of North Carolina and going out for football. In preparation for making a college football team, Gilbert did something that few athletes do. He took a job with the State Highway Commission. He didn't drive a truck or juggle a shotgun, not this boy. He went all the way and cut bushes (shrubbed ditches to all yokels) so as to become hard and tough. At that incident of his story Jeff Warner, Gilbert's roommate, cut in and remarked that Gilbert was in those ditches to become rough, tough, and hard to bluff and ended up the summer by catching poison ivy and has now succeeded in catching Iva. We'll come to that later. Back in that ditch, "P. J." wants it known that his was a civilian suit! Speaking of clothes, anyone who knows Gilbert will know that he loves good looking clothes and is a very good dresser.

Before that summer with the State Highway Commission was over, Carroll had accomplished two feats. He had built himself up physically and he had scrapped his old notions of enrolling at High Point or Carolina and had decided to enroll at East Carolina.

The aforementioned decision was a stroke of luck both for Gilbert and this college, for during the three years that he has been at this college, he has proved himself to be an excellent student by making the dean's list every quarter and by visiting all North State Conference colleges with the exception of Catawba, which he will visit this week as manager of the basketball team. He has seen for himself and remarked that "East Carolina is the best in the North State Conference in every respect and is second only to Duke in the beauty of its campus."

Now a senior and majoring in English and social studies and with almost as many hours in physical education, Gilbert has set quite a record for himself. During his freshman year he was president of the freshman class, served on the Student legislature and was a member of the English club. In his sophomore year he became a member of the Varsity club and served as manager of the athletic teams of the three major sports. In his junior year he was president of the junior class, served on the Student Legislature, and was a member of the Phi Sigma Pi, and worked as senior manager of the athletic teams. A senior at the beginning of this quarter, he retains his managership, is still a member of the Phi Sigma Pi, made Who's Who for '49-'50, and has recently been chosen a member of the distinguished Circle K club which is a great honor in itself. To avoid a dull summer after that summer spent in the ditches with the Highway Commission, he attended the U. S. M. C. Officers Candidate School in Quantico, Virginia during the summer of '48. As a result of this he received an appointment to Annapolis and turned it down in favor of the teaching profession, although he is still an active member of that unit on this campus. Last summer he attended summer school at this college.

Looking toward the future, Gilbert has ambitions of continuing his schooling for an M. A. degree and after teaching in a Jr. College or a class "A" high school for a while, earning a Ph.D. in some phase of education. If he continues the pace that he has set for himself, his ambitions will not be merely a dream, they will be a reality.

The good wishes of this issue of the Student Spotlight go to Gilbert Carroll of Weldon, N. C. and East Carolina.

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Curtis Nichols

I realize that we have just recently returned from home on vacation, but you might like to know that another vacation will soon be here—well almost anyway. In exactly sixty-five more school days we will be off again for the Spring holidays. "Taint very far off if you say it real fast."

The veterans on the campus are smiling again these days because Uncle Sam will be playing Santa Claus soon in the form of insurance checks. The limit will now be fifty cents, so put up or shut up boy.

When it comes to business law I think we will all agree that Dr. Browning comes out with some very interesting comments, but he met his match the other day. It seems that one student made an exceptionally high score on a test and Dr. Browning asked him to explain his secret, to which the student replied, "I'm repeating the course." Time marches on.

Another report from the business department says that a very tall instructor requires his students to cut out paper dolls. My, my, if only Mama could see her little boy now. The boys in Wilson Hall seem to be getting a big kick out of it though. Big field, this advertising business.

Back in 1927 (I remember the year very distinctly as it was the year that Mrs. Nichols was blessed) Charles Lindbergh took a chance and flew across the ocean non-stop from New York to Paris. In 1949, Jake Raynor took an even greater chance in a red 1922 Chevrolet and covered the distance from Greenville to Kansas and back. Positively amazing the way a woman can affect a man.

Those of you that missed the boxing match last Saturday night really missed a swell event. Even though East Carolina lost, the boys made a most creditable showing, and I'm confident that they will win many more bouts before the quarter is over. The boys from Virginia were very smooth boxers, all but one that is. This one seemed to be rather sleepy at times. But then maybe Ken sings a good lullaby.

The biggest event in the history of East Carolina will come up in the next two weeks when the battle of battles will be staged between 'Boo Boo' Jones and 'Catfish' Baines. These boys will square off in the ring soon to determine just who is the better man, and from here it looks like it will be a close battle.

Guess all of you will be over in Wilson tomorrow night to see the Pirates give the Bulldogs a few lessons on how to play basketball. Of course if you all go, I don't have the least idea where you will park "it." That's the only gym in the world where the players themselves have to obtain reserved positions.

ODDS ON ENDS

Some girl asked me to ask brother Kincaid if he was still wearing long underwear. (I really don't know what goes on around here but my policy is to print anything) . . . Albert Williams, the most fortunate boy in the world, (he is my roommate) wants to know what a Hoop skirt is. Can you tell him Jean? . . . Students are wondering what caused the lights all over the campus to go out a few nights back. Some say it was an inside job. Anyway the soda jerks didn't have to worry about waiting on anybody . . . Art Holland reports that practice teaching is a crisp, simply no trouble at all—well not much anyway . . .

Might as well end this chit chat with a little joke. (Don't know what I would do if it wasn't for these service magazines.)

Senior Hostess: I have a lonesome sailor I'd like you girls to meet.
Athletic Girl: What can he do?
Chorus Girl: Is he a good dancer?
Society Girl: How much money has he?
Religious Girl: To what church does he belong?
Wave: Where is he?

Clubs Need Better System Of Selecting Reporter

by Carl G. Conner

There is an old story repeated about a minister who for some five or six Sundays gave his congregation the same sermon. When asked by a deacon if he did not know another sermon, the minister replied, "Yes, I do—when you follow what I have told you in the first one, I will preach another." That is the reason this space is being taken again to discuss the method of selecting reporters for the two campus publications—because what has been said has not been followed.

For three years there has been a general state of disorder because of the poor cooperation which reporters give to the editors of the student publications. The problem is one which can not be treated lightly. As an example of one who gets the blame, and why, we would like to cite you this story. This past week the editor of the TECO ECHO was asked why a certain club was not getting its activities written up each week. (Of course the question came from a member of the club.) When asked who the club reporter was, the member confessed that the club does not have a reporter. But—the member still did not see why the editor could not attend each meeting of each campus club and personally see that the clubs get articles in the paper. We are sure that the day this becomes a part of the duty of the publications' editors, there will no longer be an editor. You must remember that besides editing the paper, the editor must attend a few classes, pass a few tests, keep up with his own clubs, attend SGA meetings, and if there is any time left, have a little social life.

Then you ask, "What seems to be the solution to this problem?" There are some twenty clubs and four classes on this campus. Each of these groups has a president. Each president should personally check and see that they have a reporter. The reporter of your club is just as important as your president. One requirement of the SGA for a club to hold a seat on the Legislature should be that the club have at all times two active reporters — the Tecocoan and the TECO ECHO reporters.

Then what is the duty of the reporter? First, to attend all meetings of the publications' staffs, to write up before an event a story saying certain things are being planned, etc., to write up the event after it takes place, and to schedule the meetings of the clubs and organization on the calendar in Dean Marshall's office. The reporters of the Tecocoan should attend all meetings and assist in the work assigned by the editor.

Editor's Corner

At the meeting of the Circle K club last week the editor made the statement that he would like to see the students take more interest in elections this year than they did last year. As a boost to interest, he offered to give personal write-ups to the students who announce their intentions of running for a top SGA office before the first of March. Officers who will receive write-ups are president, first vice-president, second vice-president and first assistant treasurer.

With the second quarter about half over, students' attention should soon be turned to the political trends of East Carolina. This writer hopes that the campus will see more action here this year than ever before. Remember, elections will be held the third week in March. It's time to round up your candidates. The field seems to be wide open.

On the side of election, this writer, that is your editor, serves notice now that he is retiring from the TECO ECHO after this year. It has been a privilege to serve the students and the experience has been well worthwhile. Anyone interested in taking up the reins should serve notice at once.

The TECO ECHO is growing in demand. While the issue was being folded last week a Negro woman walked into the printing shop and asked if she could buy a copy of the evening paper.

Work on the Training school is advancing well—would that we could say as much for Slay hall. Slay is slowly becoming a reality, nevertheless. For a dormitory that is really modern, Slay fills the order.

East Carolina has been indeed fortunate to obtain the high class entertainment that we have had this year. Talk last week was wide-spread about the Melchior concert. Miss Caldwell, chairman of the entertainment committee, stated that it was through the work of the committee, that such entertainments are possible. Our thanks to the committee members.

As for concerts, this writer thinks they are grand but not good enough to whistle at. A few students here should be taught something about manners in public places and especially "concert manners." And as the saying goes, "Let a word to the wise be sufficient."

Do You Agree?

by Anne Jones

When you hear the words "school spirit," what comes to your mind? Some of the students here at East Carolina seem to think that we have a good school spirit here just because we have good attendance at our athletic events. Actually, we wonder how many students ever stop to think of all the things that school spirit includes.

The attitude we take towards our teachers and our classes, the other campus activities, and the spirit with which we work on the campus, reflects our individual school spirits. The combination of each student's beliefs about school spirit make up the total spirit of our campus.

We show our school spirit in everything that we do, on the campus as well as when we go home and tell our friends about our life here at East Carolina.

During the past few weeks it has been the policy of the TECO ECHO to try to renew the interest of our students in developing a well-rounded school spirit, so we present as our question of the week, "What do you think that we can do to improve our school spirit?"

Carol Gore: Be more friendly on campus, also be more cooperative.

Betty Worrell: Start supporting our teams when they're losing as well as when they're winning.

Elizabeth Hedgepeth: If we'd learn more about the rules of the games, we'd understand more about what was going on. In this way, we'd know when to cheer and when not to at the games.

Bruce Jones: Show people that we're on the map by having more pep rallies and bond fires.

Margaret Powers: Give our team and other campus activities more support. You wouldn't like for them (the team, I mean) to stop trying; so come on and encourage them.

J. B. Edwards: If everyone would learn the yells and pull together at the games, the student body would make a better showing. I realize that this is only a small part of this thing called school spirit but it would be a great beginning toward larger goals.

Virginia Faucette: Don't boo our opponents and referees at the games because it shows poor sportsmanship.

Eloise Balkum: Everyone should participate and put their whole soul and mind into some extra curricular activities.

Miland Johnson: If we as a student body would be more thoughtful of others and be the same in defeat as in success our school spirit would be better.

Mickey Berman: Of course school spirit is low, but I believe it has improved considerably since year-before-last when athletics seemed to gain a new status. Since we have started winning in sports, I believe that if we keep on winning and giving the students something to talk about and be proud of, our school spirit and also our enrollment will increase.

"That's the improvement the Dean of Women requested."

Bohunk At Stake In Buc-Bulldog Tilt Tomorrow

SPORTS VIEW

BY BILL LLOYD

With the current North State conference basketball season has developed into what may be one of the most interesting league races in recent years.

MOST EXPERTS GIVE HIGH POINT THE EDGE

At this time, High Point college is riding atop the conference standings with four wins against no losses, and quite a few experts are giving the nod to the Panthers to win the regular season conference championship.

Coach Ralph James, the outgoing Panther coach, and his North State team have been very impressive in running up high scores against teams they have met thus far this season. The Panthers, with lanky Leonard Hunt doing the scoring, have averaged better than seventy points against North State teams, along with such clubs as Hanes Hosier and McCrary. However, the Panther five had to stretch the wire in downing lowly West Carolina last week by only ten points. So, as you can plainly see, anything could happen in this dog-eat-dog conference race.

AN EASTERN POWER ARISES—EAST CAROLINA

And for the first time in a very, very long time one of the rising powers of the conference is in the East. And that team is our own East Carolina, the youngest and farthest eastern team in the smaller college conference.

The Pirates were very much recognized in the North State tournament at Elon last year, as they reached the semi-finals before being bumped off by Appalachian. With the same tournament team back again this year, plus the services of high scoring "Sonny" Russell, the Pirates could well be the team to beat when tournament time rolls around again the latter part of February.

PIRATES HAVE TWO OUTSTANDING FORWARDS

Coach Howard Porter's cage team has two of the most talked about and feared forwards in the conference in Jack Everton and Sonny Russell. Everton, a member of last year's all-tournament team, may well have his best year this season, as it will be his last at East Carolina. Always a threat to opponents with his height and accuracy with his overhead shot, Everton has been one of the most guarded forwards for East Carolina this year. Every team seems out to stop the "Jackson." However, when Jack is well guarded, the Pirates throw in their second of the one-two punch, and that's freshman "Sonny" Russell. Russell covers the court like a demon, and is always a cog in the Pirate scoring.

COLLIE ONE OF THE BEST SET-SHOT ARTISTS

When the going gets tough under the basket, or the opponents set up a tight zone defense, a coach needs a man who can hit from the floor. The Pirates have this, too, with small, but aggressive Louis Collie doing the pointing. Collie is well remembered for his set-shots in the Elkin melee last year, and is continuing to hit the hoops with deadly accuracy from way out this season.

Along with Collie is the Buc cagers' little quarterback, "Toddy" Fennell, who also possesses the threat of hitting from the outside. Slow in hitting his stride this year, Fennell, you can well bet your money, will be in the thick of things from here out.

REBOUNDS—WE GET 'EM WITH BAUER AND MAENNLE

A good rebounding game is a sound game some coaches say, and well it might be, with the Pirates' two star backboard men, Len Bauer and Frank Maennle. Bauer, although a low scorer, always plays an outstanding floor game, and is particularly potent when it comes to getting the ball off the board. Bauer and Big Frank Maennle can certainly hold their own when it comes to getting the Pirates possession of the ball.

PIRATES HAVE CLASS AND CHAMPIONSHIP HOPES

Besides having one of the more potent powers in the North State conference, East Carolina's cagers are catching the eye of fans elsewhere in the circuit as being one of the more classy, best dressed squads in the league. As one spectator remarked in the recent Lenoir-Rhyne game, "East Carolina has one of the most well-dressed clubs we've seen, and they are interesting to watch because they show some class as they come onto the court."

Yep, the purple and gold of East Carolina is being recognized everywhere in the North State, and the quint that you witness here have their minds set on winning a championship for the East—East Carolina, that is!

Heavy Rains Delay Football Drills; Pirates Lose Five

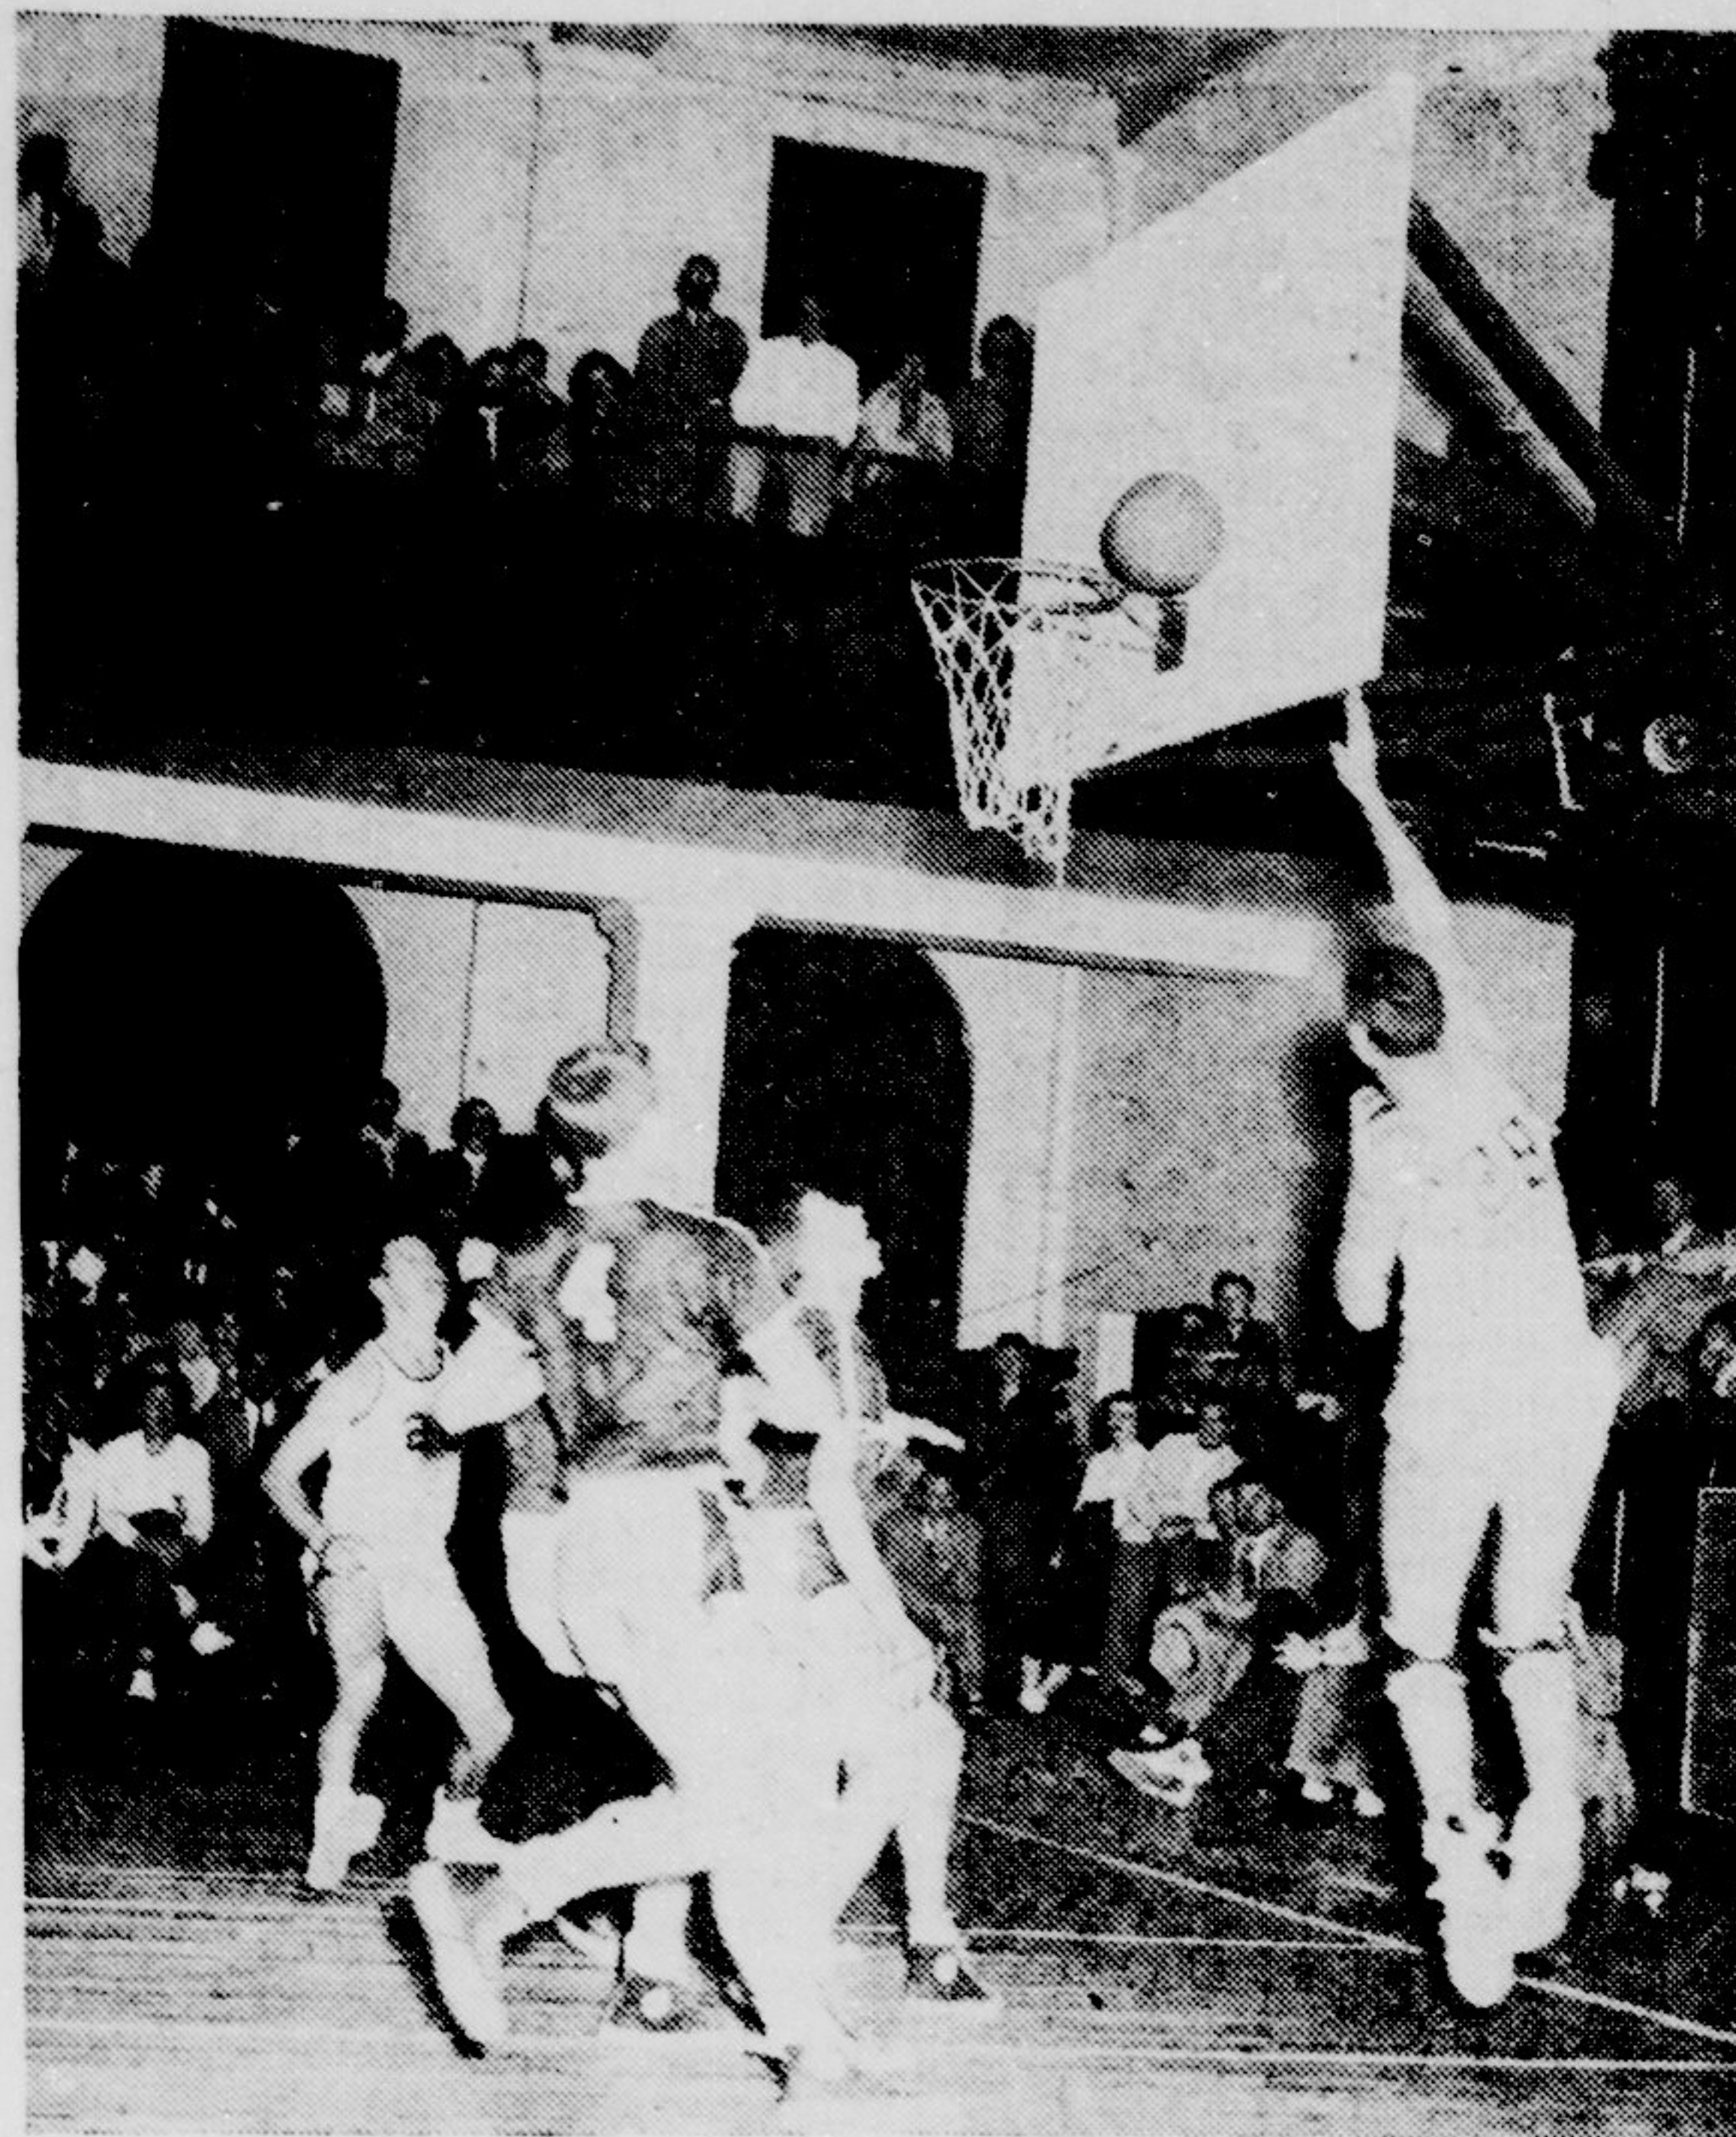

Continuous rains held up the start for winter football drills for Coach Bill Dole's East Carolina pigskin hopefuls this week. Workouts were scheduled to begin Monday, with handovers from last year's squad reporting along with seventeen new men who were screened from last week's forty men who worked out.

Blessed with the loss of only three starters, and two reserves from the 1949 team, Coach Dole plans to get down to hard work in preparation for the 1950 season as soon as the weather permits.

Those men who will graduate or have played four years of eligibility are Raz Autry and Kieth Kilpatrick, two rugged linemen of the past year's team, along with Stan Peel, outstanding defensive end. Autry and Kilpatrick were voted honorary captains for the 1949 Pirate eleven, while Peel was lost to the Bucs during the middle of the season because of a severe leg injury. Rounding out the five men lost are Mac Lewis and Gorrell Bass, two substitute guards of last season, who will receive their diplomas in May.

Among the seventeen new grid aspirants for Coach Dole's 1950 East Carolina football machine are Bill Mulligan, Howard Carmichael, ends; Ellie Stevenson, Mickey Berman, Henry Geiss, tackles; John Schartz, Jim Cushing, John Kennedy, Billy Johnson, Jesse Aldridge, Jim Brady, Darrell Bateman, guards; and Tom Swain, Pete Reynolds, Tommy Bullock, and Henry Fordham, backs.

Bauer Hits Hoops For Two!

Len Bauer, number 29, outstanding floor man for Coach Howard Porter's Pirates, hits the hoop with a lay-up shot in the recent East Carolina-Elon game which the Pirates won handily, 56 to 44. Roger Thrift, number 26, reserve forward looks on as Bauer scores.

East Carolina's Ring Team Battles Citadel Tonight

League Coaches Adopt New Two-Minute Cage Rule

Beginning with games played last Tuesday, the North State conference officials canceled the controversial two-minute rule for its basketball contests, and substituted the plan now followed by the Southern conference. Clarence Stasovich of Lenoir-Rhyne, chairman of the major sports committee of the conference, announced that coaches of the nine teams in the conference had voted 8 to 1 to adopt the Southern conference rule.

Comments from throughout the conference indicated coaches disapproved of the national rule which gives a team its foul shots and then possession of the ball in the final two minutes of play.

The rule which North State schools will now follow reads:

"In the last two minutes of the second half or the last two minutes of an overtime period, any personal foul by the defense will result in two free throws, either of which may be waived. Any foul by the offense will be one free throw unless flagrant and deliberate, then two which may not be waived. The clock will be stopped after each dead ball in the last two minutes of any game or any overtime."

Under this rule, possession of the ball is not awarded to the team fouled. The ball is put into play as usual.

GAME BROADCAST

The East Carolina-Atlantic Christian basketball game to be played tomorrow night in Wilson will be over radio station WGTC.

Pirate Five Loses First Conference Game To L-R, 70-58

Lenoir-Rhyne's aggressive, hard-pressing Bears outscored East Carolina's Pirates last Saturday night at Hickory, 70-58, in one of the top North State conference battles.

It was the first league loss in five starts for Coach Howard Porter's quint. Lenoir-Rhyne gained a 2-2 record in the conference.

The speedy, aggressive Bears, sparked by their star guard, Billy Wells, who gathered in 20 points during the game, turned on the steam during the first few minutes of the ball game to chalk up a margin that was never overcome by the Pirates.

East Carolina was behind at half-time by the score of 36 to 27.

Going into the second period, the Pirates pulled within four points of the Bears on three quick baskets by Len Bauer and lanky Jack Everton. However, at this point, the Bears again started hitting with deadly accuracy to pull away from the Pirates quickly and steadily, with East Carolina's towering Everton and pivot man "Toddy" Fennell out of the game with five fouls.

East Carolina's Louis Collie, who probably turned in one of his best performances, not only as a point-getter but also with a fine floor game, was the Pirates' chief weapon on offense. Collie, a fine set-shot artist, kept the locals in the thick of things as he poured in 17 points with eight field goals and one free throw. Freshman "Sonny" Russell was second best for the Pirates with 14 points.

PIRATES LOSE

East Carolina's Pirate cagers lost to the Catawba Indians, 66 to 53, last Wednesday night at Salisbury. It was the second conference setback of the year for the Buccaneers. Their conference rating now stands at a record of four wins and two losses. East Carolina had previously beaten Catawba here by the score of 52 to 43.

Buc Boxers Lose To VAC, 5 To 3; Williamson Wins

Eight boxing matches were reeled off before a capacity crowd in Wright auditorium last Saturday night with the Virginia AC club winning five matches and the East Carolina pugilists taking three bouts.

In the feature bout of the evening Crowell Williamson decided Virginia's ace, Tommy "The Kid" Soboleski in a three round bout in which Soboleski hit the mat early in the second round. Groggy, but determined to win, "The Kid" came to his feet on the count of eight and gave East Carolina's slugger a reasonably good fight. Ken Stargardt completely mastered the visiting team's 155 pound slugger, Roco Carlon, as he won a decision that was not as close as the previous ones had been. Another good fight that shared the spotlight with Williamson and Stargardt pitted East Carolina's Bill Terrans against a visiting 160 pounder, Carl Kriston. Terrans lost a highly lopsided decision to Kriston.

The next home bout for the locals will be when the much advertised South Carolina team, defending Southern Conference champions, invade the Johnny Long-coached boxers February 1.

The results of Saturday night's bouts are as follows:

Cleon Smith (EC) lost by decision to Frank Robbins (VAC), 125 lbs.; Bill Cole (EC) won by decision over Dom Gulucci (VAC), 130 lbs.; Homer Thomas (EC) lost by decision to Billy Henderson (VAC), 135 lbs.; Charlie Edwards (EC) lost by decision to Clarence Winger (VAC), 140 lbs.; H. A. Creef (EC) lost by decision to Bill Walker (VAC), 160 lbs.; Ken Stargardt (EC) won by decision over Roco Carlon (VAC), 155 lbs.; Bill Terrans (EC) lost by decision to Carl Kriston (VAC), 160 lbs.; Crowell Williamson (EC) won by decision over Tommy Soboleski (VAC), 150 lbs.

East Carolina's Pirates, finding rough sailing in their contests on the road, go against their long time conference arch-rivals tomorrow night, when they meet Atlantic Christian's Bulldogs for the first time this cage season at Wilson.

In losing two straight games to conference foes, the Pirates will be striving to get back their winning ways in tomorrow night's ACC game.

Coach Howard Porter's quint has a conference record of 4 wins against 2 losses. Their season's overall record is seven wins and four losses.

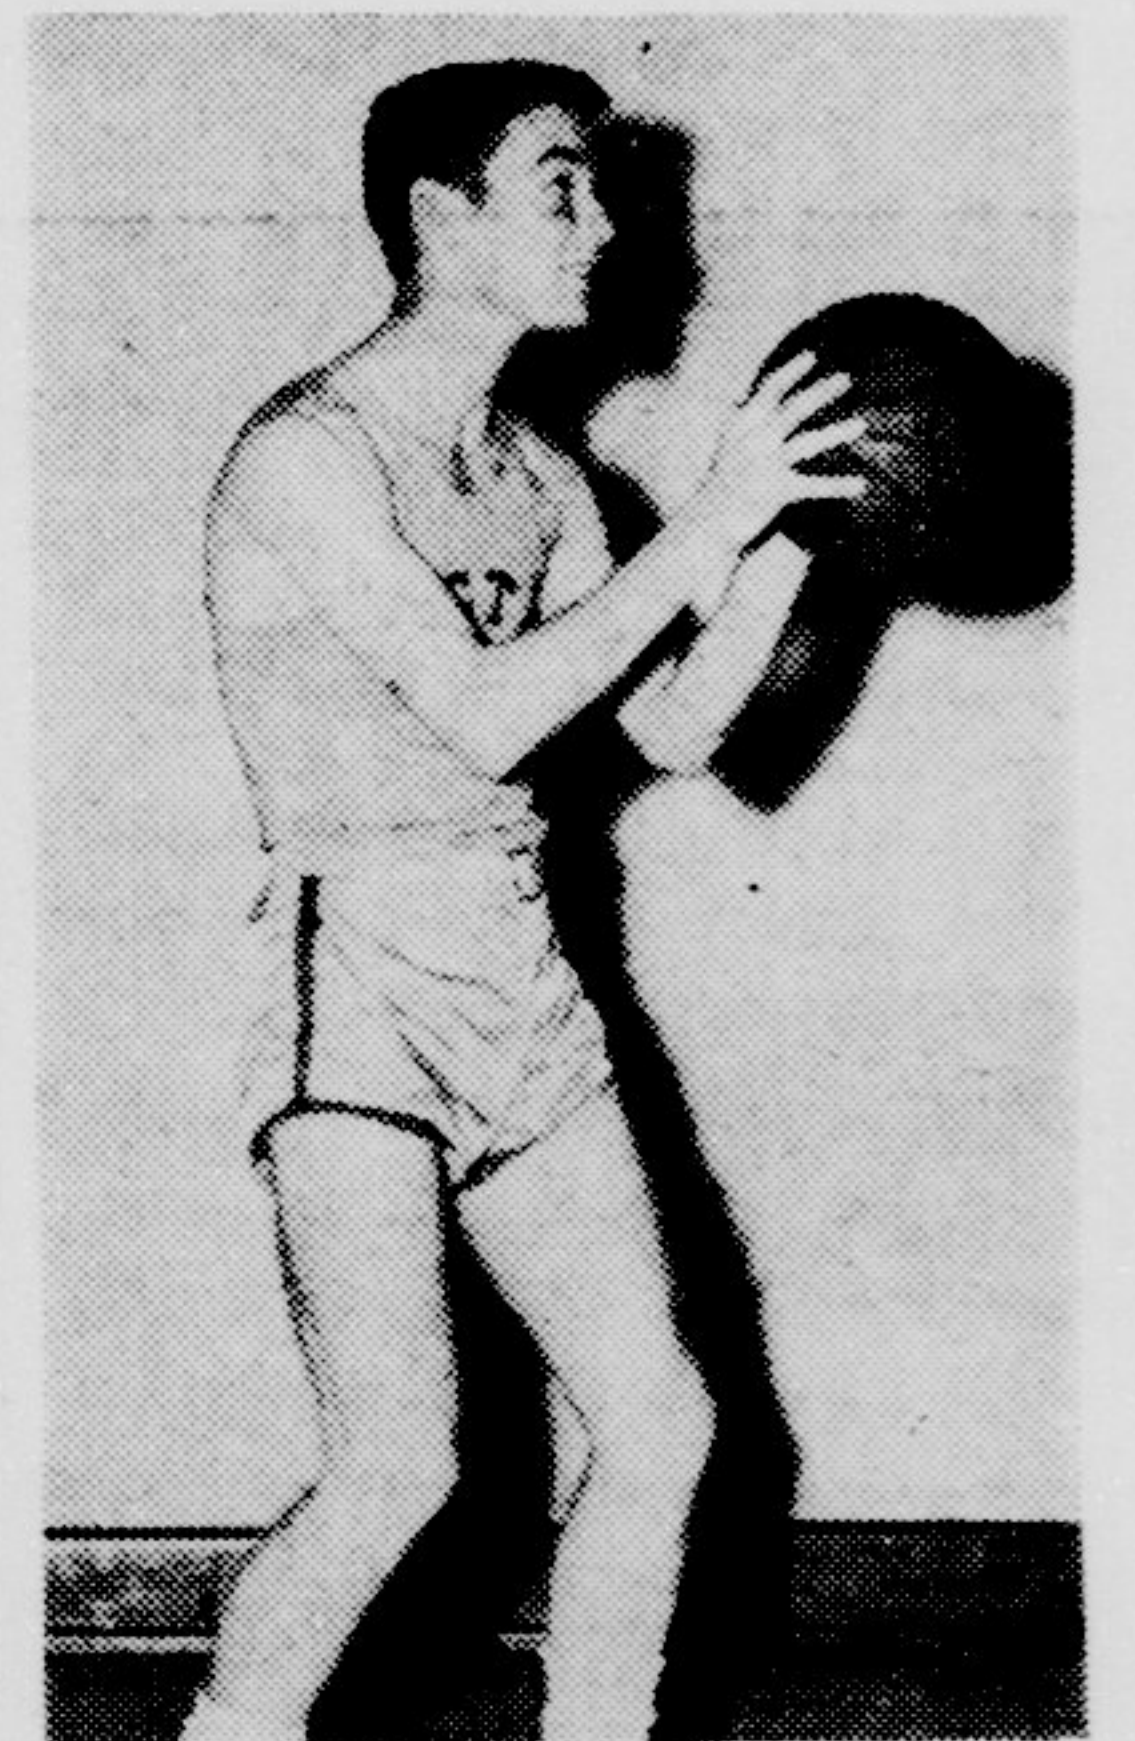

Also at stake in tomorrow night's battle between the two eastern schools, will be the treasured Bohunk Trophy, an old oaken bucket which is swapped between the two schools for the winner of every athletic contest between the two schools. East Carolina is presently in possession of the Bohunk by virtue of their 6-2 football win over the Bulldogs.

Leading Coach Bill Crutchfield's ACC five will be Paul Glazer, high scoring forward for the Bulldogs, and Bobby Tart, also a scoring potential for the Wilson squad.

For the Pirates, Freshman "Sonny" Russell, the Buc leading scorer, and towering Jack Everton, will start at their usual forward positions. "Toddy" Fennell will hold down the center spot, with Louis Collie and Captain Len Bauer, rounding out the starting five at guards.

Roger Thrift, much improved Pirate reserve, and big Frank Maennle, the Pirate rebounder, are expected to see plenty of action, as subs for the Pirate quint.

Athlete Of Issue

"MR. SET-SHOT"

Louis Collie, East Carolina's 5'9" sophomore guard, began his basketball career back in Wilmington, N. C. six years ago where he became destined to be one of the greatest little basketball players to ever be turned out of Wilmington High. In his high school days Collie played guard along with another outstanding East Carolina performer, "Toddy" Fennell.

Last season, his first collegiate year, Collie was a choice for the North State's All-Tournament team, and was also a member of the All-Eastern baseball team, a game he likes better than basketball. He loves East Carolina and says, "I think I made no mistake in coming here."

In 1948 the blond youth became a freshman sensation working the Pirates' forecourt. His basket shooting and all-around court play made him one of the North State's outstanding players, as well as one of the fastest, most elusive floormen in the conference. Collie is a sure-fire shot, and the opposition doesn't like to see too much daylight between Lou and a defender. Give him the time to set, it's swish—and a basket! He ranks third in Pirate scoring with approximately 104 points.

Defensively, Collie is aggressive, ball-hawking all over the court with a knack of stealing the ball and getting his team's fast break underway. He often intercepts a pass, gives off to a teammate and rushes down the sidelines like a streak of lightning to receive a return pass for a push shot or a layup shot.

Appear In Joint Piano Recital

Drake And Perry Presented In Piano Recital Tuesday

Elizabeth Drake and George E. Perry of the music faculty of East Carolina Teachers college were presented Tuesday evening in a recital of music for two pianos. The program, sponsored by the Greenville Music club, brought to the Wright auditorium on the college campus a group of approximately 350 people from Greenville, Tarboro, Washington, Ayden and Kinston.

The two local artists were introduced to their audience by Charles A. White, president of the city music club. Part of the program for the evening was broadcast over the facilities of Station WGTC of Greenville.

Various Types Played

Selections for the evening were varied in type and ranged from the works of classical composers to modern numbers. Beginning with J. P. Rameau's "Gavotte and Variations in A Minor," the first group of the program included a Clementi sonata and "Sheep May Safely Graze" by J. S. Bach.

Particularly popular with the audience, who frequently recalled Miss Drake and Mr. Perry to the stage with enthusiastic applause, were Chabrier's rhythmic "Rhapsody Espana," the Arensky "Suite for Two Pianos" including the familiar and popular waltz, and the concluding number on the program Milhaud's "Scaramouche Suite for Two Pianos."

As encores a selection from Bizet's "L'Arlesienne Suite" and an arrangement of Bach's "Air for G String" were presented by the two artists.

The concert, which was well received by last night's audience, will be repeated in February in Raleigh before members of the music club there.

Edward J. Rutan Does Consultant Work In Shools

Edward J. Rutan, faculty member and director of student teaching in the department of English at East Carolina, is now engaged in work as a consultant in setting up and carrying out programs of developmental and remedial reading in several public schools in the eastern counties of the state. He is now aiding teachers in the Southwood school near Kinston to carry out such an educational project.

Tuesday afternoon of this week Mr. Rutan met with teachers in the Tarboro schools and discussed with them a reading program in the schools there. All grades will be included in the work.

He is conducting also a series of workshops on reading now being held at Bayboro for teachers in Pamlico county. Meetings are scheduled for Thursday of each week, and the series will include six or more conferences and discussion groups.

Mr. Rutan will visit the Grimesland school in Pitt county this week and will consult with teachers and school officials there on problems of reading. This meeting will constitute a first step in initiating a program in reading in various schools of Pitt county.

Poem Of The Week

My futile pen can never capture The hours spent with joyous near Occasioned by a friendly glance—a word or two.

Nor passion, thrill or cry of joy, A shared heartbeat—or parting's void.

Nor can it ever bring to me The poet's ageless dream Of setting life to paper's close confines.

For life is not of worldly clime. It dwells beyond the reach of pens. In the timeless realm of consummation.

Louise Greer Back From Lecture Trip At Virginia Univ.

Louise Greer, faculty member of the department of English at East Carolina, returned to Greenville Saturday from Charlottesville, Va., where she spoke before the Bibliographical Society of the University of Virginia and graduate students specializing in Victorian literature. Her talk at the Virginia university was arranged by special invitation of Dr. Arthur Kyle Davis, Jr., of the faculty there.

Miss Greer's lecture dealt with the English poet Robert Browning and his reputation and influence in America. She is the author of a work on Browning which is soon to be published.
