Officers of the Baptist Student Union at East Carolina Teachers college discuss at a social hour the work of the organization and look over a scrap book recording activities among Baptist students on the campus. Seated in the center is Gloria Blanton, secretary in charge of student work and of the Student Center on East Eighth Street, Greenville. Others in the picture are (first row, left to right) Frances Wilson of Dunn, secretary of the BSU; Miss Blanton; Maryvill Lang of Gatesville, president; (second row) Vance Lockamy of Rocky Mount, treasurer; Patricia Williams of Wilmington, vice president in charge of devotional services; and Bill Bonham of Rose Hill, publicity representative and secretary of the North Carolina BSU. ## East Fifth Street, 404, Serves As Social Center As Well As Religious Center For Campus Baptist

by Wilbur Jones

Different types of recreation are to be found on and off the campus of East Carolina, and one of the most enjoyable forms of entertainment is that of social gatherings among students.

The Baptists of East Carolina have their social gatherings at the Baptist Student Center located at 404 East Fifth Street. Here an average of 75-100 Baptists of the 580 on the campus meet their friends every night. They gather here for vespers, games, or just to talk.

Come along with me on a visit to the Center and let's see what we shall find. We walk over to Eighth Street and down to the four hundred block. There, at number 404, we find a nice little home with a sign out front announcing that this is the Baptist Student Center. As we turn up the walk, we can hear the sound of gay voices and singing, and our feet quicken. Up the steps and through the front door, we rush eager to join the fun that awaits us inside.

The Center is filled with friends playing games or just talking. We notice that the largest group is gathered around something in the corner, and over we go to investigate. There we find the chief attraction of the Center—the piano. A song is just beginning so we blend our Crosby voices with the crowd. Like everyone else, we stopped for only one song but end up singing a dozen. This singing certainly makes one thirsty, so it's in to the snack bar and we go to get a bar of candy and drink. If we feel energetic, we may fix a cup of coffee, but don't forget to read the sign. This sign reads "Everything will be pretty as a picture if you wash your cup when you finish that good coffee."

While drinking our coffee, we hear the sound of voices coming from the basement and go to investigate. A ping pong table is in the basement. (See BAPTIST CENTER on Page 4)

Bids To Be Opened On Warehouse Soon

Bids for a new warehouse and workshop at East Carolina Teachers college will be opened on February 9, according to F. D. Duncan, college business manager. In case an acceptable bid is submitted at that time, says Mr. Duncan, construction of the new building will begin soon afterwards. The structure will be used largely by those in charge of buildings and grounds at the college.

Several construction projects are now in progress on the campus. These include a new dormitory for men students, the addition of the two wings to the Training School, repairs on the auditorium of the Austin building in preparation for the installation of a new pipe organ, and the laying of new water pipes and the weather-stripping of windows and doors in several dormitories and classroom buildings. Bathrooms in Wilson Hall, men's dormitory, have recently been rebuilt.

East Carolina Players Plan To Give Children's Plays

The East Carolina Players, recently organized group of alumni and students of East Carolina Teachers college, are drawing up plans for a tour of twelve eastern North Carolina cities and towns during the first two weeks in June.

With the aim of presenting good drama to children of the state, the Players will give a program of short plays for young people. The tour is planned as a non-profit venture, and fees paid by sponsoring groups in the towns visited will cover only the necessary expenses involved in presenting the plays. The group is composed of members and former members of the Teachers Playhouse, college dramatic club, which each year presents a program of drama for school children of Pitt County. The schedule of towns to be visited is as yet tentative.

Sponsors of the newly organized East Carolina Players are the college, the alumni association, the Teachers Playhouse, and the Greenville Chapter of the American Association of University Women.

Officers Selected

Alton Finch of Roanoke Rapids will act as director and Helen Winslow of Goldsboro will be technical director. Others included in the group are Nell Rose Ellis, Gatesville; Dorothy Thomas, Conetoe; Geraldine Weathers, Shelby; Johnnie Collins, Washaw; Elmer Williams, Washington; and William Skarren, Beaufort. Miss Weathers, president of the Teachers Playhouse, and Mr. Williams are now students at the college here; the others are alumni, most of them teachers in public schools of the state. It is probable that several others will join the group this spring.

Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of speech and drama in the department of English at the college, has aided in the organization of the East Carolina Players, and will rehearse with the group before the tour begins. Mrs. Warren E. Winslow of Goldsboro will accompany the group on tour.

Programs Planned

The program to be offered includes three one-act plays for children by Rose Fyleman, British dramatist. Special arrangements have been made through correspondence with Miss Fyleman for production of "The Weather Clerk," "Darby and Joan," and "Cabbages and Kings."

Rehearsals will be held on the campus during the Easter holidays and will be directed by Dr. Charles. They will be resumed during the last week of May. The tour will begin June 4.

Dr. Lucile Turner To Speak To Club

Dr. Lucile Turner, director of the department of English at East Carolina, will present a paper before the Faculty Lecture club of the college Monday evening, February 6, on the topic "The Genial, Miraculous Power of Books." Her study will deal with ideas on books and the reader presented in the writings of the American essayist and philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Dr. Turner will be the third speaker to appear before the Faculty Lecture club since September. Three other programs, including one by a visiting speaker, will be given during the present school year.

Dr. Turner has served as head of the department of English at East Carolina since 1940. She is one of the founders of the North Carolina society of Delta Kappa Gamma, national honorary society for women teachers, served during 1946-1948 as state president of the organization, and has been active in the work of the American Association of University Women. Among her published works are "A Study of the Sewanee Review" and articles in leading educational journals. She recently worked on a three-year state project in the revision of the curriculum for teacher training in North Carolina.

Elementary Schools Offering Greatest Teaching Positions

That the greatest opportunities in the field of public school teaching in the service area of East Carolina exist at the elementary school level is revealed by a recent report made by Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of the Placement Office of the college. The shortage of elementary-school teachers is recognized throughout the nation as one of the major educational problems in this country at the present time.

Dr. Oppelt's study is entitled "Placement Data for Advisers, Fall 1948-Summer 1949." Prepared for faculty advisers of students at the college, it indicates the number of requests for teachers received by the Placement Office during the period stated and the number of students who were placed in positions on both the elementary and the secondary levels and in fields other than teaching.

310 Calls Made

Though the Placement Office at East Carolina received 310 calls last year for elementary teachers, only 68 qualified graduates were available, according to the report. East Carolina was able to supply, in other words approximately 20% of the elementary teachers needed in its service area, which embraces about fifty counties.

The greatest number of calls for teachers at any one elementary grade level, says Dr. Oppelt, was for eighth grade teachers. Since the campus Training School does not include an eighth grade, most of the placements made at this level were secondary majors who were willing to take elementary work.

Men Needed

Several city superintendents were interested, according to Dr. Oppelt, in young men who would teach the upper grammar grades. Particularly in demand were young men willing to handle boys' recreation after school hours and interested in preparing for elementary principalships. Specific requests of this nature are now coming (See TEACHERS on Page 4)

Founder's Day Tea Planned By Frat

A Founder's Day Tea to be given on Sunday, February 12, at Ragsdale Hall by members of the Beta Kappa Chapter of Pi Omega Pi, national honorary business education fraternity at East Carolina, will honor a group of eighty students in the department of business education who have made outstanding scholastic records.

The anniversary of the founding of the local Beta Kappa Chapter of the fraternity in 1944 is observed annually on the campus with a formal tea. Invitations to attend are extended to juniors and seniors who have an average of 2.2 or better in business education and to sophomores and freshmen with a 2.5 average or better in business education.

John Getsinger is president of the Beta Kappa Chapter. Arrangements for the tea are being made by a Social committee composed of Annie Francis Riddick, Ramona Sawyer, Jerry O. Bennett, Mrs. J. W. Wilkerson, faculty member.

Carter Presented In Piano Recital In Wright Building

Robert Carter of the music faculty at East Carolina Teachers college appeared in a recital of works for the piano Friday evening of last week in the Wright auditorium on the campus here. An audience of approximately 300 people from the college, Greenville, and other towns of eastern North Carolina attended. The program was sponsored by the college department of music as one of a series of faculty recitals for the present school year.

Mr. Carter's performance of the works of Beethoven, Brahms, and Bach was well received by the audience, whose applause recalled him to the stage frequently during the evening. The program gave evidence of Mr. Carter's technical skill and his artistic interpretation of the works of the master composers.

Of particular interest to those present was the premier performance of "Sonata No. 1" by Alice Hunt-Sokoloff of Lakeland, Florida, a work completed in December, 1948 and introduced to an audience for the first time at Mr. Carter's recital. Other numbers popular with the audience were "Prelude and Fugue in A Minor" by Bach-Liszt, the "Intermezzo in E Minor" by Brahms, and a group of Brahms' waltzes.

Grips, Fans, Coaches Make Referees Work Hard

by Bill Lloyd

"Aw, you ole blind bat! If you're calling the ball game like you see it, you MUST BE BLIND." "Kill the referee, where did he come from anyway?"

Such is the language heard everywhere by probably the most unlikely person in the world—the basketball official—the man in the black and white stripes. (No change that; they've changed their colors to blue and gray now. Must be the yankee and rebel in them.)

The life of a referee is the most unpleasant unpleasantness that could be bestowed upon any one person. And you don't have to go far to find vouchers for that.

For the past few years, East Carolina's physical education department has been furnishing the rural schools with basketball officials during the winter, so that the boys would be able to pick up a little hard-earned cash (you said it, brother!), and to keep up with the ever-changing rules of the game.

Well, some of the boys fare rather well in certain rural communities, such as Grimesland, Grifton, Winterville and Bear Grass, where the laborers of the soil take their games seriously, because the boys have found if the farmer's favorite team wins, he may come across with a little extra cash in appreciation for their work.

But, more often than not, these boys who give their time and risk their lives at night two or three times a week, to keep the games in order, don't get along so well.

In one particular game the other night between rivals Ayden and Bethel, it seems that little Curtis Nichols had quite a ball game on his hands. He was congratulated on the calling of the first game between the girls—the home team won. Everything was going along smoothly. One spectator remarked, "That's the best-called game we've seen lately. If you do the same in the next game, everything will be fine."

Well, it just so happened that Ayden hadn't beaten Bethel in a boys' game for quite a few years, and they wanted the game bad. Then, the incident happened! Nichols was in the middle. Some Ayden player had made an infraction of the rules, which he protested too severely, and out he went on a technical foul. (His name wasn't Stott.) He must have been a star because that's when the stands came down—on Nichols. They couldn't resort to the means of telling Nichols he needed glasses, because it so happens that Nichols wears glasses, so the fans took to other means. You guessed it, Mr. Nichols had to be escorted from the gym by city cops after the affair was over.

Then there's the one about the player who thought he was fouled—five minutes ago. A player comes up with a broken hand and declares to the referee that he should have a free shot, because of it. The player had been playing with a broken hand for five minutes before he ever knew it was broken.

Then these referees, such as Bill Darby, Franz Holscher, Joe Pollini, Johnny Winston and about 20 others, have to put up with the coach that believes in the strictest enforcement of the rules.

One official tells this story of a game. It seems as if a foul had been called, and a player was taking his usual free throw. All this was well and good. But then what happens. The player strips the net, clean of the rim, and the ref raises one finger signaling the official scorers to mark up one point. But the opposing coach came onto the court yelling, "No, no, no."

What's the matter? Well, there so happens to be a cage rule that states that the ball must hit the rim of the basket on a free throw or the point is no good. That's what the crying coach was arguing. The ball went through the hole, stripped the net, but didn't touch the rim, therefore the point was no good. To ease your thoughts, this certain official used his common sense and counted the point anyway—although the ball failed to hit the rim!

Time out, as my roommate has just come in all battered and bruised, and bleeding. You see, he also is one of those "ref" referees.

Plans Made For Annual High School Day April 12

Preliminary Notices Sent To 310 Schools With Special Invitations To Be Mailed Out At A Later Date

Kiwanians Honors Circle K Club Chicken Dinner

Members of the Circle K club were guests of Mr. John T. Barnhill, local farmer and businessman and a member of the city Kiwanis, Tuesday afternoon of this week at a barbecued chicken dinner held in the American Legion home.

Attending the meeting were some twenty or more of the campus men who are active in various activities on the campus. Mr. Barnhill spoke to the group and expressed his desire to see the group progress and become of benefit to the city as well as the campus. He stated that he was giving the dinner as an encouragement to the group to really work to put the organization over.

Following the dinner, President Virgil Clark discussed plans for taking in new members and stated that ballots with the names of candidates for membership would be mailed out during the latter part of the week. He stated that the next meeting of the club will be held next Tuesday at the Legion Home. All members were urged to attend.

Guest of Mr. Barnhill at the dinner was Jimmie Brewer, also a member of the local Kiwanis.

Business Groups Make Dance Plans

The Commerce club and Pi Omega Pi will have sponsors for their annual dance which is to be Saturday, February 11, in Wright auditorium.

The sponsors, who will be featured in the figure, are: Edith Lewis, Louise Sugg, Jane Albritton, Margaret Bell, Annie Lou Bobbitt, Mrs. Hobbs, June Pritchard, and Mrs. John C. Getsinger.

Chairmen of the committees for the dance are: Edith Lewis and Grace Sugg, refreshment committee; Douglas Amerson and Jerry Bennett, door committee; Al Berman and Ramona Sawyer, decorations committee; Howard Kelly, figure committee; Julian Murphy and Levie E. Peyton, table committee; Gwen Potter and Deloraine Phthisis, publicity committee.

Iva Kitchen, Famous Dancer, To Appear Here February 16

Iva Kitchell, dance humorist, will appear at East Carolina Teachers college Thursday evening, February 16, in a program sponsored by the college Entertainment Committee. Her artistry, as well as her wit and beauty, have made her popular with audiences both in this country and in Europe.

As a dancer, Miss Kitchell is an original. She pokes fun at human pomposities and has the knack of holding up to gentle ridicule those who take themselves too seriously. Her impressions are translated into dance comedy which leaves her audiences laughing and asking for more.

Satirizes Familiar People

According to critics, few actors or dancers on the American stage have such a gift for characterization. With deft humor she satirizes in dance and pantomime a motley collection of persons familiar to all, including the Fuller Brush man, the chorus girl of 1920, the prima ballerina, and a brash young lady at the movies.

Behind her seemingly carefree satire there is artistry developed through long preparation, for she has studied with some of the world's greatest dancers. A phenomenal success in Europe, Iva Kitchell has recently given over 450 recitals in the United States and Canada and has appeared recently on CBS and NBC television programs.

Her recital in Greenville will be one of a series of six attractions offered during the school year by the East Carolina Entertainment Committee.

High School Day, an annual event at East Carolina, will be held this year on Friday, April 21, according to an announcement by Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, chairman of the committee in charge of the occasion. Seniors in many high schools of eastern North Carolina, the Piedmont section of the state, and Virginia are expected to visit the college campus at that time and to participate in a program of social and educational activities.

Preliminary notices announcing the date of High School Day have been sent to 310 schools, says Dr. McGinnis. Invitations and a full schedule of activities will be mailed early in March.

Committees Planned

A program of events to be staged on April 21 is now being planned by Dr. McGinnis and a committee of staff members at the college here. Members of the group include Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of the department of health and physical education; Paul Powell of the department of industrial arts; E. C. Hollar of the department of social studies; Mary H. Greene, director of the college News Bureau; Paul Julian, steward of the dining hall; Dr. R. R. Willmann, director of the department of music; Dean of Men W. E. Marshall; and Registrar J. K. Long.

Events of the day will include activities of an educational, informational, recreational, and social nature. To acquaint the visiting high school seniors with types of work being done at East Carolina, various departments of instruction will stage exhibits and demonstrations for their benefit. Other events will include conducted tours of the campus; a parade by the college ROTC unit; a concert by the East Carolina band; a play by the Teachers Playhouse, dramatic club; a barbecue luncheon on the campus picnic grounds; and a tea dance in the Wright auditorium.

During the afternoon of High School Day the East Carolina Pirates will meet Appalachian State Teachers college in a baseball game on the new athletic field at the college.

Last year East Carolina staged the first High School Day since 1941, when the event was discontinued because of the war. Thirty-six North Carolina counties were represented in the group which visited the campus last April. Visitors for the day numbered 2,398 and came from 118 schools in the eastern part of North Carolina.

Baptist Students Present Program

The Baptist students presented the chapel program on Tuesday of this week in Flanagan auditorium. The program consisted of the showing of slides of the parables of the Bridegroom, and of the Talents, together with music, poetry, scripture, and prayer.

Those taking part in the program were: Emily Faircloth, Seleta Tucker, Donald Smith, Gene Hart, Shirley Haynes, and Elizabeth Glasgow.

TO THE STUDENT BODY

What would you think:

1. If you should ride through the streets of Greensboro and see college girls walking down the street with young men having their arms around each other?
2. If you should ride by a college campus and see a young man and a young woman in an embrace?
3. If, when riding by a college campus, you saw a young lady sitting on a bench or on the grass with a young man stretched full length with his head in her lap, while she petted, patted, and purred?
4. If you saw a couple spooning in a theatre?
5. If it were your sister whom you were looking at?

What must parents and taxpayers think when they observe the students of East Carolina Teachers College in a theatre, on the street, or on our campus engaging in promiscuous petting? Do you suppose that such is good advertising or do you think it would tend to cause parents to say they would have no part in sending their children where such is permitted?

It would be greatly to the advantage of the college, and visitors on the campus would think that you have more pride in your school if when they go into the cafeteria, to the soda shop, or to the halls leading to these places, they would find them clean instead of littered with paper cups, gum and candy wrappers, and other debris. Would you students treat your own living rooms as some of you treat the college halls and your campus bedrooms?

In many ways, you have cooperated with the college program splendidly, but in other ways some of you seem to be very careless and tend to be void of responsibility. This carries over to your use of the Wright Building where we have games, dances, and other entertainments. Pop bottles and papers should never be left around, or should you permit any kind of liquid to be poured on the floors. We have a highly organized Student Government, but as a government organization it should function much more powerfully. Many cases of stolen books and other property are being reported frequently. The Student Government Association has a responsibility in seeing that the student body is guided to the extent that they can leave anything anywhere at any time and know that it is safe because of the honor of the student body. When you become a student here you are a part of the institution and whatever you do reflects honor or dishonor upon the college as it does upon the name you bear. What kind of influence do you wish to reflect? Read Article II in your Constitution, found on page twenty-nine of the Handbook.

Can't we count on every one of you to make East Carolina intellectually strong, morally straight, and physically attractive, and an all-round institution that every one of us can be proud of. Great numbers cannot possibly assure a great college. We must have greatness within the faculty and students themselves if we are to become the place to which people can point with pride and say, "There is where I want my daughter, or my son, or my brother or sister to go because of the wholesome environment and splendid training provided."

Students, may I ask you most sincerely that you study these points and do what you can as individuals and as a body to make this the greatest and finest college in North Carolina. Administratively, we do the best we can to provide the highest type faculty and the best possible physical facilities for you. Beyond that, the college will be what you make it, and your future depends to a great extent upon what you do now. With these thoughts for consideration, what will be your contribution to the college and to your own career in life?

This is our college, made possible by taxes paid by our parents. Shall we protect and promote our own or help to destroy its influence by bringing disrepute upon its name.

The next quarter begins February 28. If you know of any students who are not now in college but who should be, why not try to interest them in coming here. Begin now to recruit for next fall, also. Get the feeling that you are an agent for the college and your love and pride will grow; and it will be reflected in your progress in life.

J. D. Messick
President

PRE-REGISTRATION STARTS HURRY AND RUSH

With the ending of the winter quarter, pre-registration brings a hurry and rush to the campus of East Carolina. We who were here in the days when the rule was to wait and face the entire job on the day before classes, know the advantages of the present method. Students find it much better under the present system than under the past, but at times wonder why they cannot have a voice in the selection of courses to be given in a particular quarter.

Many students find themselves one quarter before graduation with a certain course required only to hear that it isn't offered but once in two years or two quarters.

If a system could be worked out whereby students express their preference for certain needed subjects, it would relieve a good deal of the worry on the part of some students.

Student Spotlight

by Wilton Joyner

Honors of the Student Spotlight for this issue go to John Nelson, a senior at this college and a native of Morehead City, N.C.

Looking forward to being graduated at the end of the spring quarter, John has hopes of teaching science in some first-class high school. He seems to like chemistry better than any other phase of science and plans to teach in a school very close to Morehead or to put some miles between his home and go out to the west coast. Maybe he is an all or nothing at all man. Incidentally, he is minoring in English and it seems that he enjoys his work in all of his subjects as his name has frequently been placed on the dean's list of honor roll students. On top of that, he will receive his degree in less than three years as he has attended summer school for two years. At the present time he is busy studying the educational angles of practice teaching as that is what he will be doing next quarter.

Just as many students at this college, John came here to see what East Carolina had to offer, liked it and stayed. He commented that it was near his home and that he liked that part of it very much. Somewhat different from most of the students that I have interviewed for the Spotlight, John says that he thinks that we have a pretty good school spirit here now with large crowds turning up for all the home games, adding that it was much better than it was a few years ago. He remarked that more students should turn out and vote in the next election. Right now he seems to think that his biggest personal problem is that of chasing insects and rodents from his room plus that of recovering the shoe that he lost when a rat bolted away with it after he had tried to use it as a guided missile, guided at same rat. Seems that someone would tip him off about Hadaol, the drug guaranteed to do anything. Maybe John should take more time out and read up on these new discoveries.

Friends of this boy Nelson probably won't believe this, but that boy is really modest. Getting any real information from him was really a job. It could have been that he was so surprised in being Spotlighted that he couldn't think of anything to say. He really was surprised when I told him that he had been chosen. Nevertheless, I had to have something with which to write this column so I turned to his good friends and roommates, Whitley Easterling (better known by the readers of Curtis Nichols' column as Mule Train) and Paul Geer. Believe me, I got plenty of info on Johnny boy from these boys, so much that part of it had to be cut. My thanks go to these boys for the following information on our modest subject.

At fourteen he was a boy of five by five and in a successful attempt to better his figure, he played basketball during his four years in high school. At East Carolina he rooms in No. 10, Wilson Hall, with Romulus Hardin and Paul Geer. Incidentally, Paul is from Morehead also and was in a position to tell much about John's other life. No harm done, however, as John admitted that his roommates treat him pretty good, especially in things like getting him up in the morning and keeping an ample supply of Bromos on hand. However, he hasn't forgotten the time when the boys let him put a dummy Schick injector razor blade into his razor and try to shave with it. Two of the three occupants of that room still vow that John raked that dummy blade across his face very carefully several times, applied after shave and commented on his remarkably smooth shave.

Nelson has, declared Geer, done a little of every kind of work from working in a grocery store to cooking. The trouble with his cooking was that he ate almost as fast as he cooked. Also, he is quite a musician although he claims that he can't read a note of music or carry a tune in a bucket in spite of the fact that he has played in high school and college bands for a total of eight years, dropping out this year only because of a heavy schedule.

John and Paul are often mistaken for brothers and in that respect Paul claims that John is a lucky stiff. Less fortunate with those of the opposite sex, his roommates seem to think that despite the fact that he has learned all about plants and animals, he just doesn't understand women. While he is hog wild about blondes and redheads, as long as they have blue eyes (he doesn't trust green eyed women), he just can't seem to get started with the girls here. He admitted himself that he hadn't had a date this whole year and explained that the trouble was that too many women are either going steady or in love. How boot that, lady folks? Let I forget, Paul informed me that John's life has been centered around a fabulous redhead but aside from that, he is always getting involved with the wrong type of girls, that is to say, good girls but the wrong type for him. Geer seems to have taken a fatherly attitude in this matter.

In reviewing some of John's achievements at this college, I found that he is or has been a member of the Science club, the Circle K club, the YMCA, the college band and the Men's Judiciary in addition to taking an active part in the Veterans Follies for two years, serving as chairman of the Men's Judiciary and making Who's Who this year. In his idle time he plays a fine hand of canasta and is a great fan of Steve Canyon and Fearless Fosdick.

One of his roommates described him as free, white, twenty, and looking forward to voting. I'm sure that John Nelson will vote if his citizenship record turns out to be as good as his record at this college.

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Curtis Nichols

Well whata you know, here it is my week again, so drag up a seat and be bored a few minutes. It seems that nearly everything you read in this column lately is untrue. If Catfish and Boo Boo Jones don't make up their mind soon as to whether or not there will be a fight, I'm going to be the biggest liar in school. (No comments please.) Yet, Catfish says "There'll be no fight."

Right about here I'd like to announce that Editor Conner and myself are no longer friends. When an editor goes prancing around a girls dormitory (whether to take pictures or not) without his assistant, then brother that's the last straw.

Which reminds me of a poem: The naked hills lie wanton to the breeze, The fields are nude, the groves unfrocked, Bare are the limbs of all the shameless trees; No wonder the corn is shocked. (Thanks, Varsity)

Virginia Faucette is certainly entitled to a free coke on me for her statement in the "Do You Agree" column a couple of weeks back. She's the girl that doesn't like to see fans boo the basketball officials. She couldn't be from Ayden could she?

Speaking about Ayden, that's the only place in the world where one can lose life and still live. Believe me I know—must be the cat blood in me.

I journeyed down to Kares one day last week for my weekly afternoon of magazine reading and while thumbing through Varsity magazine I spotted a couple of articles that looked so interesting that I even bought the darn thing. There was one article, "You and Your Professors," that made rather interesting reading. Maybe it was because it sided mostly with the student. After discussing various problems of both, and what have you, there were a couple of jokes that really wrap the article up for delivery. Ideas pass from the notebook of the instructor to the notebook of the student without affecting the mind of either.

"The professor brought a copy of his final examination to the mimeo office to be mimeographed. The girl read it and said to the professor, "Sir, this is exactly the same examination that you gave last quarter."

"Yes," replied the professor, "but I changed the answers."

Then there was the article on "What Do Girls Think About You?" But since this is only a four page issue, let's not discuss that.

Writing this column could be dangerous at times. Last week Jean reported that Ramona and Herb C. were seen sitting on the lawn near Wright, but the truth was, it wasn't Ramona. Big joke on Jean or Ramona, or Herb—well somebody anyway.

Believe it or not, there is a guy on the campus that thinks the famous "Sheepskin" is really made out of sheepskin. Ho Hum—what next. Reminds me of the Russian genius who had gotten hold of an American mail-order catalog and said, "look at all these wonderful new things to invent."

Overheard in an incubator—Last one out is a rotten egg. (Moral of that is to prove that not all the corn is found in Iowa.)

Mason Explains Functions Of Women's Judiciary

As a follow-up to the article on the Men's Judiciary in last week's TECO ECHO, an interview was secured with Margaret Mason, chairman of the Women's Judiciary.

According to Chairman Mason the following women are eligible for the office of chairman for the year 1950-51: Polly Brown, Reba Lee, Mary Lois Jester, Peggy Monroe, Annette Watson, Joyce Proctor and Pat Sutton. These girls are present members of the Judiciary Board.

The Judiciary is composed of a chairman, vice chairman, secretary-treasurer, and member-at-large, all of whom are voted on by the student body. In addition, the house presidents of Woman's, Jarvis, Cotten and Fleming Halls hold seats on the board. They are, of course, elected by members of their respective dormitories. A representative chosen by the women day students also holds membership on the board.

If a girl is sent to the Judiciary, and for some reason the members can't reach a decision as to her punishment, she is sent to the Discipline Committee which is composed of faculty members and students. If a girl accumulates 25 demerits, she is automatically referred to the Discipline Committee.

The girls who serve on the board also help check the women students whenever a council check is called. If additional help is required, members-at-large of the women's dormitories are asked to help.

The following is Article X of the Constitution of the Student Government Association which applies to the Women's Judiciary:

Article X—Women's Judiciary Section 1. The officers of the Women's Judiciary shall be a chairman, a vice chairman, a secretary, and a treasurer.

These officers shall meet the following requirement.

(1) The chairman shall be an incoming junior or senior, shall have served on the Women's Judiciary for at least three quarters prior to the assumption of her duties in the spring.

Editor's Corner

Your editor received a letter from Stan Masin, a student of Fredonia State Teachers college, who "buddied around" with the representatives from East Carolina at the Columbia Press conference last year. Representatives from East Carolina included, Bill Lloyd and Curtis Nichols. Below is a part of the letter received from Stan:

"This year we are sending four of our top men down to New York and are staying at the Hotel New Yorker. I hope that we can get together as we did last year."

"We still receive your paper and we up here feel that you are doing a great job this year. We think that we have improved also but of course there haven't been any ratings yet."

Fredonia, from what Stan told your editor, is much smaller than East Carolina, but it is successfully publishing a weekly paper.

Your editor really slipped last week. He permitted that new column, "Could It Be Possible" to get into the paper. Really, though, we received quite a few remarks from it. Some good—and well you guess the rest. No offence meant to anyone—we are only trying to let people see themselves as others see them.

During the past three years this writer has observed the relations of students to students, students to faculty and faculty to faculty relations so far as greeting is concerned on the campus. As a whole, East Carolina is known as one of the friendliest campuses in the south. However, there are a few things that could stand a little improvement. Many of the students fail to speak when spoken to by another student, others fail to speak ever. As common courtesy, it is usually accepted that the women speak first. This is for the women's protection—the man would be considered a flirt if he spoke to a beautiful "gal" who didn't care to be wooed. To the faculty—there are quite a few who never speak. From this corner—it looks as if we are working for a common goal of achievement—to promote good teaching and the carrying out of an educational program. The difference of one or more degrees should have nothing to do with common courtesy.

Could It Be Possible

by N. O. Chance

"Could It Be Possible" made its test run in last week's issue of your TECO ECHO and much to this scribe's surprise, it survived criticisms by coming through with some favorable comments from you students. The hat of Chance is off to you who commented for you are responsible for editor Conner permitting die Chance's column to go to press again. Should any of you have anything that you'd like to see added to this column, just shoot down to N. O. Chance, care the TECO ECHO, and if it's printable I'll print it, if not, I'll get what you mean.

Free throws win ball games; they also can lose ball games, as was shown in the Pirate-Lenoir-Rhyne game here last Saturday. Hitting on only six out of twenty-one gratis shots while the Bears were tossing in eleven of sixteen chances, cost the Bucs an all-important North State despite the fact that the purple and gold cagers scored two more field goals than the visitors.

It's a desperate situation for the local basketballers, and should be remedied as quickly as possible, with the North State tournament just around the corner. Three or four times this year, as was the case last year, the Pirates have outscored their opponents by two or three field goals, while finding difficulty at the free throw line. This either made the game closer, although the Pirates won, or it resulted in a loss for the Buccaneers. Improvement of their percentage of making charity tosses would definitely aid the Pirates in making a comeback for the No. 1 or No. 2 spot in the conference standings, and the problem should be taken earnestly and improved at once.

ROAD TRIP CAN MAKE OR BREAK BUCCANEER CAGERS

East Carolina's cagers left Wednesday on a week-long road trip, to play Appalachian at Boone once, and then end the trip with two tilts with WCU at Cullowhee.

These all-important games on the road could either improve the Pirates' conference standing, or it could lower the hoopsters out of their current No. 3 spot. If the Pirates should win the three games, it would increase their record to eight wins against three losses, with only five games remaining on schedule, three of those being played at home, and one at Huntington against lowly Elon. On the other hand, if the Bucs should lose, they still have to play top-ranking High Point in two games. Regardless of how games in the west should turn out, a consoling thought is that the Pirates are definitely in the North State tournament to be held in Statesville, and should be ranked in the upper division bracket.

Making the trip for East Carolina were the Pirates' two high scoring forwards, Jack Everton and Sonny Russell, who are expected to carry for the Buccaneers in their trip westward. Everton has been setting a torrid scoring pace in his last three games for the local cagers as he has scored 59 points in three games for an average of 19.6 points per game. His current season average is 13.6.

Little Toddy Fennell is expected to start at center for the Bucs, with Lou Collier and Len Bauer at the guard positions.

Reserves making the trip are Roger Thrift and Ed Tanner, forwards; Jim Blake, center; and Frank Maennle and Doug Guthrie, guards.

WINTER DRILLS IN FULL SWING - GRIDDERS LOOK GOOD

Basketball is the current season sport, but it had to take a back seat here this week, as Coach Bill Dole's gridiron forces got down to heavy work in their winter drills. Quite a lot of weight has been added to the squad, and Dole, beginning his second year as head mentor here at East Carolina, looks to improve his last year's team record of four wins, five losses, and one tie. Definitely on the up-grade under the wizardship of Coach Dole, East Carolina may prove to be a leading contender for North State football honors in the 1950 season.

Athlete Of The Issue

"Mr. Set-Up"

Toddy Fennell came out of Wilmington High school following in the tradition of the school's great Lou Collier and Billy Mason as one of the New Hanover Wildcat's all-time basketball greats. Big and rangy at 5' 11" and built along the rugged lines of a football player, husky, smiling Toddy gave every promise in his scholastic days of living up to the prominence he enjoys today as a collegiate guard for East Carolina's Pirates.

But ever since Fennell joined the Buccaneers two years ago, his records need no drum beating to have proper attention called to what is becoming as obvious as N. C. State's Dick Dickey—that he is one of the greatest floormen in the NS conference.

The big guard, who gained All-State honors during his prep days, has already stamped himself as a great floorman. His most feared scoring is a court-wise push shot, which Saturday night was one of the local's big guns in East Carolina's 49-48 loss to Lenoir's Bears. In the contest he hit for 10 points. His 1949-50 scoring total is 91 points.

Fennell is an aggressive take-charge player and shines in every game with his excellent ball handling. His play has made him one of the most outstanding college court men in the conference. He continues to shine in loop play where, this year, a level of good talent will make any one of several teams likely possibilities of coming through with the conference title.

South Carolina Team Beats Bucs In Return Bout, 4 To 3

Williamson, Creef,

Phillips Winners

In Match Card Here

Probably the largest crowd of boxing fans ever to witness an intercollegiate ring card at East Carolina jam-packed Wright auditorium Wednesday night to watch Coach Johnny Long's Pirate pugs battle the Southern conference's University of South Carolina team to the final bout before losing by a 4-3 score in a hard-fought seven card bout.

In the opener of the leather-slinging fireworks, South Carolina's aggressive Allan George, outreaching East Carolina's Cleon Smith, decided the little 125 pounder in a close scrap. Unable to get in close for his usual style of boxing, Smith fought gamely and brilliantly, but the arm reach of George proved to be too much for the small East Carolina ring captain.

Continuing their aggressiveness in the 140 lb. division, the Gamecock's Chuck Davis came out strong in the first round to stun Buccaneer Charlie Edwards.

One of the most outstanding fights of the night saw East Carolina's Cecil Phillips successfully defend his unbeaten collegiate record of four wins with no losses, as he battered South Carolina's Emmitt Gurney in the 145 lb. class. Never fully recovered from the first onslaught of Phillips, Gurney came back in the second round with hope of a comeback, but Phillips went into a deep crouch to make the Palmetto better miss with consistency. The third round saw both fighters tire considerably, but Phillips kept up his pounding of the head and body of Gurney, and Referee Elder Craft signaled Phillips the winner.

In the evening's feature bout, Crowell Williamson, East Carolina's heralded frosh sensation, kept in complete control over Earl Chapman, in the 150 pound attraction.

Gaining great ovation from the crowd, with his three boxing brothers and Dad looking on, Williamson had little trouble in winning as the Gamecock's Chapman hit the mat early, and went down for a count of seven in the third round. Using a steady left jab, and a hard right cross to the body very effectively, Williamson brought a flow of crimson to the Palmetto's nose early in the fight. At the end of the bout, Coach Jess Alderman of South Carolina personally came over to congratulate Williamson on his fine form and classy exhibition of boxing.

Unsung contender, H. A. Creef, came into his own Wednesday in the heavier division, as he outslugged South Carolina's Ed Hunt in the 160 pound division. Creef starting out slow in the first round gained momentum as the second round rolled around, as he used inside punches to the body effectively, combined with a jarring right to gain Referee Elder's decision.

Bill Torrains, exploding Pirate pounder, spotted South Carolina's Stan Hamilton eight pounds in the 165 lb. class, and found it to his disadvantage, as the USC boxer fought gamely to outpoint Torrains in a slightly booted decision.

Only TKO of the night came as Bruce Currington landed a hard left to the temple of heavyweight Henry Fordham, that stunned the Pirate pug completely, and the East Carolina fighter was unable to continue after 30 seconds had elapsed in the first round.

Play Three Games On Road This Week

East Carolina's Pirate cagers departed on a three-game road trip Wednesday. The Bucs engaged the strong Appalachian Mountaineers last night at Boone in their first tilt on the western tour. ## Pirate Gridders Get Down To Hard Work This Week

A full squad scrimmage was on schedule Monday as Head Football Coach Bill Dole sent his 1950 gridiron hopefuls through a rugged afternoon of drills.

Start of winter football drills were delayed last week, as Coach Dole was confined to his home with a severe case of influenza.

Eighteen returning lettermen from last year's East Carolina eleven greeted Dole in this week's workouts, along with some nineteen newcomers who have reported for winter drills. Six lettermen of the past season's team, who did not take part in the scrimmage Monday, are expected to report some time later.

Among the lettermen linemen on hand Monday were Ends Dwight Shoe and Dennis Smith; Tackles Al Auerbach, Ken Booth and Bill McDonald; Guards Don McKenzie, Reggie Byrd and Leon Ellis; and Centers Frank Madigan and Bob Boyd.

Newcomers to the Pirate grid forces consisted of Ott Alford, Bill Mul-ligan and Henry Fordham, ends; El-lie Stevenson, Mickey Berman, Henry Geiss and Wally Robinson, tackles; John Schartz, John Kennedy, Billy Johnson, Jim Brady, Jesse Aldridge, Darrel Bateman, guards; and Tom Swain, Jim Cushing, Pete Reynolds, Tommy Bullock and Howard Carmichael, in the backfield.

A change was noticed in this week's drills with Coach Dole switching the Bucs' defensive end of last year, John Daughtry, to a halfback position. Daughtry ran good in his new position, and seemed to adopt himself to the halfback position impressively.

Catching the eye of interested on-lookers in this week's spirited scrim-meges was the hard-running new-comer Tom Swain. Swain, working at fullback, displayed power in his line-bucks, and should prove to be a solution to Coach Dole's problem of last year of lack of power through the middle. The rugged defensive play of Freshman Henry Geiss, big, incoming tackle, also was impressive in the Pirates' first real workout during winter drills.

Apps Met Thursday; Play Cats In Two On Western Trip

Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina cagers left Wednesday afternoon on a three-game road trip in the western part of the state. The Pirates played the second-place Appalachian Mountaineers at Boone Thursday night (result not available at press time), and then traveled on to Cullowhee to play West Carolina's Catamounts there in two games Monday and Tuesday. All three games are North State conference contests. The Buccaneers are expected to return to Greenville next Wednesday.

In their first of a three-game western road trip, East Carolina's cagers lost to a strong Appalachian team at Boone last night, 63 to 53. The Pirates trailed all the way and were behind at halftime, 26-21. Jack Everton continued his high scoring pace, as he gained individual scoring honors with 23 points. Russell and Bauer had twelve and eleven points, respectively.

the hands of Lenoir-Rhyne here last Saturday night, East Carolina will be striving to improve their conference standings on their trip west.

Appalachian Strong

Appalachian, always a strong contender in the smaller college league, has moved into the No. 2 spot of the circuit as they downed lowly Elon last weekend, while the Pirates were losing to the Bears. Coach Howard Porter's quint has previously beaten the towering Apps here in their first meeting of the cage season, by a close score of 49 to 48.

Bucs Face Cellular Dwellers
In their game with West Carolina, it will mark the first meeting of the two schools this basketball season. The Cats are currently riding in the cellar of the North State conference with a record of no wins against six losses. Last year, the Catamounts came down from the mountains for a two-game series here, in which the two teams split a doubleheader.

Last meeting of the two rival Teachers colleges was last February in the North State conference tournament held at Elkin. The Pirates defeated the mountain boys in the opening round, 69-52, to gain a semi-finals berth against Appalachian.

All-State Band Clinic Held Here Today And Tomorrow

Bands Representing 25 High Schools Here For Two Day Contest

The Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic will stage a two-day session at East Carolina today and tomorrow February 3 and 4. Details of the program to be presented at that time have been announced by Herbert L. Carter, band director at East Carolina and chairman of the clinic to be held here.

Bands from 25 high schools in the eastern section of North Carolina, directors, and other guests will be present on the campus, and are expected to bring the number attending to approximately 150 people. The college department of music, assisted by the band and the chorus of the Greenville High School, will be hosts.

Slocum Directs Clinic

Dr. Earl A. Slocum of the University of North Carolina will be music director of the clinic. The program for Friday and Saturday will include a series of sectional rehearsals in which high school students will practice under the direction of various band leaders. During the clinic a concert band of 100 pieces will be organized and will rehearse under the direction of Dr. Slocum.

A public concert given as finale to the two days of work will present this band in an evening of music. The public is invited to be present in the Wright auditorium on the campus Saturday evening, February 4, at 8:00 o'clock to hear the young musicians.

Discussion to be Held

Three discussion groups for band directors will be included among events of the clinic. Topics and leaders are "Beginning Basses," Tom Hearne, band director from Henderson; "Theory in Instrumental Study," Donald Smith, music supervisor in New Bern; and "Balance and Interpretation in Instrumental Ensembles," Dr. R. R. Willmann, director of the department of music at East Carolina.

Special events scheduled for the clinic will be a public concert by the East Carolina band, directed by Herbert L. Carter, Friday evening at 7:30 in the Wright Building, and a dance which will follow it and will be attended by clinic members and guests.

and some of our friends are having a fast and furious game. The fast game reminds us that our time has gone by in a hurry, and now we must leave, but we promise to return another night for several hours of fun.

This place of fellowship, congeniality, and worship is under the competent direction of Miss Gloria Blanton. She makes her home at the Center, and is always on hand to help the students with their problems. Gloria has attended school at Wake Forest, Bowman Gray, and Columbia. This should make her well qualified to know the life of the college student.

Everyone who visits the Student Center knows of the "inner sanctum" or Gloria's office where problems are ironed out. I too visited this sanctum to interview Gloria about the Baptist Student Center, and she told me an interesting story of the purchase of the house. It seems that an elderly couple lived in the house, and were getting tired of having to do the jobs required to keep a home. The result was that they offered to sell the house complete with all furnishings, which included china, silver, and furniture. The Baptist State Convention purchased the house, and in to the Placement Office for September, 1950, says Dr. Oppelt.

TEACHERS

The supply of secondary majors at East Carolina Teachers college has exceeded the number of calls in social studies and girls' physical education, according to Dr. Oppelt. Several of last year's graduates in these majors accepted eighth grade positions or are teaching subjects in their minor fields.

During the period covered by Dr. Oppelt's report, the most acute shortage of secondary majors existed in library science, music, and the combination of science and coaching. No graduates were placed in these fields.

Employment opportunities in other secondary areas continue to be good, the study indicates.

Teachers Most Requested

The report shows that comparatively few requests were received by the college Placement Office for personnel other than teachers. In view of this fact, the office circularized early in January, 1950, a sampling of industries in North Carolina, appraising them of the fact that East Carolina Teachers college is graduating a number of non-teaching majors who will be qualified for employment in fields other than teaching.

According to responses received thus far, says Dr. Oppelt, it appears likely that there will be opportunities for East Carolina graduates in the following fields: recreation, radio, transportation, shipping, manufacturing, accounting, bookkeeping and secretarial work.

dedication ceremonies were held on September 19, 1949. The Center is maintained by the convention and by the Memorial and Immanuel Baptist Churches of the city. The Center is considered an arm of the churches.

The students who go to the Center keep it clean and do other work around the house. They take great interest in the Center, and do not shirk their responsibility. Thus, the house is as well kept as any private home in Greenville. The back lawn is the scene of many parties in warmer weather, and this is tribute to the ones who have worked so hard on the grounds of the Student Center.

If the students wish a home-cooked meal (student style), they may engage the kitchen for a night. Here they may cook anything from a pie to a steak. This is a good place to find out if that "gal" can cook.

All in all, the Baptist Student Center is a grand place to go, have fun, and meet friends. If you are a Baptist and haven't been to your Student Center, you certainly don't know what you are missing.

Billy Greene Promoted

William M. Greene, a 1943 graduate, has been promoted to lieutenant in the United States Navy and has been assigned to duty as a student in the General Line school (post graduate) at Monterey, California, according to a letter received recently.

Billy served on the U.S.S. Hanover during the war. He reenlisted in the Navy in January, 1947, and reported to duty at the Charleston Navy Yard. He was soon transferred to Norfolk, Virginia, where he has been stationed for three years.

His wife, the former Virginia Cooke, a 1946 graduate, and small daughter will accompany him to California where he will be stationed for about a year.

Lt. Greene also writes, "I have been in close contact with East Carolina Teachers College through the TECO ECHO, and I am proud of the great progress of the school."

Rutan Speaks to Greenville Alumni

Edward J. Rutan, faculty member and Supervisor of Student Teaching in the department of English at East Carolina Teachers college, reviewed S. I. Hayakawa's "Language in Thought and Action" before members of the Greenville Chapter of the Alumni Association at their January meeting. He was introduced to the group by Mrs. Chester Walsh (Catherine Hill) of Greenville.

The book, which deals largely with semantics, is stimulating, said Mr. Rutan, as one would expect it to be, since Hayakawa is internationally known as a leader in the general semantics movement. The author claims, said the East Carolina faculty member, to explain in his work "how men use words and words use men."

Though the work presents a thoughtful study of language and poses many new questions, it does not always give satisfactory answers to them, Mr. Rutan told the alumni.

Following the talk, a short social meeting was held in the Alumni Office in the Austin building. The hostesses were Mrs. Arden Tucker (Corrine Tucker), Grace Smith, Mrs. C. D. Ward (Hester Gist), Mrs. George Gardner (Katie Lee Farmer), Mrs. Mildred Godwin Guthrie, and Mrs. Wilton F. Fleming (Margaret Brown).

of special interest to homemakers at the meeting of the Guilford Alumni chapter recently at the home of Mrs. W. G. Proctor (Grace Bradley) on Fairmont Street in Greensboro.

The films were titled "Essentials of Diet," "Are You safe at Home?" and "How to Cook Meat by Moist Heat." Mrs. B. C. Siske (Mary Johnson), president, conducted the business session.

The hostess served tea, sandwiches, and cookies. Mrs. A. S. James (Dorothy Bridges) will be hostess for the February 8 meeting.

District of Columbia Alumni Hear Congressman Bonner

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner of North Carolina's First Congressional District declared at a meeting of the District of Columbia Chapter that East Carolina Teachers college has been a prime factor in the growth of Greenville, N. C. and paid high tribute to the college's president, Dr. John D. Messick.

Speaking before a group of some fifty alumni of East Carolina, the First District representative cited the college as having a great constructive influence on the civil spirit and progress enjoyed by Greenville today.

He pointed to Dr. Messick as "a dynamic leader who is making the college more recognized than it has ever been in the past."

Pays Tribute to College

He paid tribute to the college for the important part it has played in producing outstanding teachers and citizens for North Carolina. Mr. Bonner cited the importance of having well-trained teachers to be entrusted with the youth which will someday govern America.

The Washington N. C. Congressman's remarks concerning the school were made at the beginning of his address to the alumni at their regular meeting. His main address reviewed conditions abroad as they were observed by him and other members of a five-man committee which visited countries receiving aid under the Marshall plan.

Mr. Bonner was introduced by Henry C. Oglesby, first male graduate of East Carolina Teachers college and who has for the past four years been serving the congressman as Administrative Assistant.

Prior to Mr. Bonner's after-dinner address, the club heard a financial report by Chapter Treasurer, Mary Andrews Whichard of Greenville, who announced plans for a round and square dance to be sponsored by the local chapter February 17.

Special music and group singing followed the main address of the evening.

Mrs. Bonner was among the special guests.

Wilson Alumni Elect Officers

Mrs. W. M. Rogers (Elsie Morgan) was reelected president of the Wilson chapter at a recent meeting which took place at the home of Mrs. J. S. Leach (Pattie Hunter) on West Nash street.

Other officers named at this session were Mrs. G. A. Rose (Hazel Whitehurst), first vice president; Mrs. W. H. Boyette (Gretchen Boyette), second vice president; Mrs. L. C. Woodall (Mary Bandy), recording secretary; Mrs. Will Rhodes (Lea Deans), corresponding secretary; and Mrs. D. W. Winborne (Ruth Loy), treasurer.

The slate of officers, which was accepted unanimously, was presented by Mrs. DeWitt Requecure (Ruth Poindexter), chairman of the nominating committee.

During the business session, over which Mrs. Rogers presided, a membership drive was discussed by the chapter.
