East Carolina Drum Major

Drum Major Robinson Is No New Hand At Leading Band

by Anne Jones

Wonder how many of us ever give any thought to the things that guy who struts out in front of our band has to do as our band parades across the athletic field at half time. Just to give you do have any thoughts along that line, here goes on a little information. Just as any story has to have a hero ours has one too, none other than Robert Robinson our drum major.

If we could turn back the pages of time a few years, we'd find Bob a student at Anacostia High in Washington, D. C. where he spent those glorious teenage days. Yeah, that's right, he was putting his best foot forward in those days too as his high school band marched in review, for he was drum major there also.

Bob is a junior at East Carolina now, and he has been leading our band ever since he landed here as a freshman, taking top priority in the parades that year. Those formations which our band is becoming famous for are done with the help of strictly military style signals called by the name of our story. Now here's one you all know; those formations are just about as good as they come.

The band has increased in size since the first year that Bob came to East Carolina. Last year the addition of colored lights used on the caps of band members and baton ends marked a new era for the band. People all over the state are still talking about the rainbow formation at the Elon game. Similarly spectacular was the performance at last week's home game when with the lights out on the field the band members spelled out the letters SING and then lead the spectators in a group of popular songs including "Goodnight Irene," and "The Marine Hymn." Backing up Drum Major Robinson as majorettes are Becky Holcomb, Lucy Robertson, Helen Alderman, Sarah Sellers and Mary Spruill.

After the football season, except when appearing in parades such as the Christmas parade downtown or at the Azalea festival in Wilmington, the band becomes a concert band, and Bob is a regular member of this, playing the baritone. He loves sports of all kinds and thinks East Carolina is just about heaven. He says that he didn't want to go to a big school. "East Carolina is really a fine school, it started growing a short time before I arrived and hasn't stopped yet," he told us.

As for those years after he becomes a graduate of East Carolina, he is definitely planning to teach. In this line his classes will be listed under the heading of the Industrial arts department. Besides his work with the band, Bob finds time for the Industrial Arts club, and he is now serving as its president.

The next time you see him strutting out there in front of the band just remember that Bob Robinson likes to be out there putting his best foot forward for the glory of the band and for his Alma Mater—East Carolina.

Teachers Playhouse To Present One Act From Pulitzer Play

Act I of Thornton Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth," Pulitzer Prize play, will be presented under the sponsorship of the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina with a cast of faculty and staff members of the college tonight at 7:30. The drama, a workshop production, will be one of a series of short plays now being given weekly by the college dramatic club.

Several weeks ago faculty members at the college accepted an invitation from the Teachers Playhouse to give a play, and their production is now ready for presentation. The Wilder satire will be given in the auditorium of the Flanagan building. The public is invited to attend.

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the department of English is the director of "The Skin of Our Teeth." Others taking part include Mrs. Agnes Barrett, Dr. Sterling Tracy, Elizabeth Walker, Stanley Rescoe, Ruth Lambie, George E. Perry, Dr. L. F. Brewster, Frances Lee Neal, Gladys Reichard, and James White.

Commerce Club Is Staging Annual Carnival Tonight

Members of the Commerce club of East Carolina are staging their annual carnival tonight, president Allan Berman of Portsmouth, Va., has announced. The entertainment, including games, contests, dancing, and "side shows," will be staged in the Wright auditorium on the campus at 8:00 o'clock, according to plans made by the club at a meeting Tuesday, October 24.

Ivey D. Piner of New Bern was appointed carnival chairman at that time and is general director of the event. Ann Baysden of Ernul and Larry Thompson of Princeton served with Piner on the steering committee.

At the regular monthly business meeting of the organization last Tuesday Miss Baysden was elected club reporter on the staff of the "Tecoan," college year book.

During the evening members enjoyed a skit "Boss vs. Secretary," dealing humorously with the "do's and don'ts" of office procedure.

Annual Amateur Show Attracts Capacity Crowd

Amateur Night, annual talent show presented by the Community Recreation class at East Carolina, attracted Wednesday night, October 25, an audience which packed the Austin auditorium and left standing room only for late arrivals. The program of vocal and instrumental music, dancing, and acrobatics pleased the 1500 people present, who applauded the numbers enthusiastically.

Honors for the best performance of the evening went to a men's quartet composed of Francis Gay of Raleigh, Robert Odum of Greenville, Charles C. Self of Greensboro, and Robert C. Selby of Dudley. An instrumental trio composed of Ernest Black and Bernard Ham of Portsmouth, Va., and Malcolm Wester of Goldsboro won second place with their selection "When I Grow Too Old To Dream"; and Alison Hearne of Greenville and Jacqueline Waldron of Statesville shared honors for third place.

The show was sponsored by the Community Recreation of the department of health and physical education taught by Dr. Charles DeShaw. Eli Bloom, Greenville attorney, acted as master of ceremonies. Judges were Dr. Richard C. Todd and Dr. Austin D. Bond of the college faculty and Hogan Gaskins, Greenville senior. Thomas R. Swain of Durham acted as chairman of the committee which arranged the events of Amateur Night. Robert Klutz of Dudley was program chairman. Others who assisted with planning and staging the show included Henry T. Hood of Waccamaw, Jack Britt of Fairmont, and Cecil Winslow of Hertford.

Among special numbers on the program for the evening was a guest appearance of the Men's Glee club of the college, recently organized under the direction of Dr. R. R. Willmann, director of the department of music. The group of approximately fifty men students gave its first program at Amateur Night.

Audi-Visual Devices Of Interest To Future Teacher Exhibited

Audi-visual aids in education were shown Tuesday evening, October 31, from 5:00 to 7:00 o'clock on the third floor of the Graham building at East Carolina. The display of materials was sponsored by the department of education at the college.

Devices of many types useful to teachers were on exhibit, including several kinds of projectors and recording machines. A class in audio-visual aids taught by Dr. Ed J. Carter, director of the department of education, arranged the display and welcomed visitors to the exhibit. Representatives of several commercial firms were present to demonstrate the materials.

Breakfast Interview With Eleanor Steber

by Faye Batten

From across the breakfast table, she smiled graciously, and declared that she enjoys singing as well as she ever has, which is very, very much. Eleanor Steber is an astonishing person. Talented, as you know, and she has an attracting personality, as well.

We met Miss Steber at 10 a.m. last Thursday, before her appearance at East Carolina Thursday night. She hadn't eaten breakfast, and she invited us to have coffee with her while she waited to be served. So we went to the coffee shop of Hotel Proctor and had a nice little "gab fest." As informal as could be was this interview.

Naturally, the first thing noticed about Eleanor Steber was her clothes. Thursday morning, she wore a tailored grey dress, the skirt of which was ripple-pleated in the back. A fur capelet was about the lady's shoulders, a yellow chiffon scarf held her hair far back in a prominent style, and she wore brown kid pumps with three and a half inch heels.

With or without her stage make-up, Eleanor Steber has a striking appearance. She looks like the star she is, and knows how to impress the people she meets. Miss Steber is a natural blonde, with big blue eyes and good facial features. She walks erectly, possessing the manner of one who knows where she is going. She is five feet seven inches tall and wears a shoe of approximately size seven. As everyone could easily observe, Eleanor Steber has a good figure.

Judging from the ornaments she was wearing each of the three times we saw her, Miss Steber approves of costume jewelry, as long as it is in good taste. She wore various pairs of earrings, scatter pins and bracelets. Most of these were done in gold. Eleanor Steber is married, but wore no wedding rings. Only a large diamond-clustered dinner ring on the third finger of her left hand.

Since the service was for an important person, and inasmuch as 10 o'clock isn't a busy hour in the coffee shop on Thursdays, the waiter was very prompt in bringing Miss Steber's breakfast. So we continued talking on through her breakfast hour. (Can you imagine having an hour for breakfast?) Eleanor Steber considers the "best breakfast possible" as consisting of four cups of black coffee and one large half grapefruit.

Born in Wheeling, West Virginia, into a "fairly well-off" family of six persons, Eleanor Steber began life in an insignificant manner. Her mother was a singer, however, and was an early inspiration to Eleanor, who declared to some children with whom she was having a spat that "she was going to be an opera singer."

Students, Faculty Take Part In Show Exhibiting Hobbies

Students and faculty members at East Carolina participated in a Hobby Show Friday evening, October 27, at an exhibition sponsored by the college YWCA and YMCA. The project was designed to show interesting leisure-time activities of those on the campus and to raise funds for the annual World Student Service Fund drive now being conducted by the two organizations. Proceeds will be used to aid needy foreign students and educators.

Evelyn Kornegay of Albertson and Ernest Sylvania of Snow Hill served as co-chairmen in charge of arranging the show. Others who assisted included Margaret Lietman of the Library staff, faculty advisor of the YWCA, and Gene Hart of Kinston and Patricia Williams of Wilmington, presidents of the sponsoring organizations.

On display in the Wright auditorium were examples of the creative activities of those whose work was shown. Painted figurines, tatted, afghans, tooled leather, plastics, handmade musical instruments, textile painting, and rag dolls in various costumes were included.

Interests of collectors were shown in exhibits of religious books for children, prints showing the history of art, bronze horses and pictures of horses, specimens of moths, pitchers, Japanese lacquers, brooches and pins, and silver souvenir spoons from various states and countries.

Veterans Will Meet In Flanagan Building For Reorganization

There will be a called meeting of all veterans interested in reorganizing a local veterans club Tuesday night at 6:30 in the Flanagan auditorium. At this meeting officers will be elected and a banquet will be planned. Coach Dole will show movies of one of the football games that has been played this season.

Approximately 300 veterans are enrolled at East Carolina this quarter, many of whom were active in the Veterans club which disorganized last spring. Ed Casey, ex-president of the club, is leading the attempt for reorganization.

Posey, Hooper Attend State English Meeting

Dr. Meredith N. Posey and Emma L. Hooper, faculty members of the department of English at East Carolina, will attend on Saturday of this week a meeting of the North Carolina English Teachers association in Greensboro. They will be present for a conference of the Central committee of the organization, and will participate in the work of the Professional Standards committee, of which they are members.

Men's Judiciary Takes Steps To Stop Traffic Violations

The Wechters At Home

Enjoying an evening at home are the Robert Wechters, East Carolina's student family. Mr. Wechter is a sophomore, his wife Nell Carolyn is a senior and daughter Marcia is a first year student in the Training school. Mrs. Wechter was recently the recipient of much publicity when she won recognition for a project which she headed as a teacher in the elementary school at Stumpy Point. She graduated from East Carolina in 1933 with a two year certificate and has returned to get an "A" certificate.

Stumpy Point School Project Merits National Recognition

A little project in the Stumpy Point school which grew into a big one in schools of Dare county received national recognition Saturday, October 28. Mrs. Nell Wise Wechter, teacher at Stumpy Point last year and now a student at East Carolina, and her seventh-grade pupil Betty Lou Quidley represented the school at ceremonies in Valley Forge, Pa., and received there an award from Freedoms Foundation for the project "Freedom Unlimited," carried out in Dare county during 1949-1950.

Teacher and pupil traveled to historic Valley Forge as guests of Freedoms Foundation.

Mrs. Wechter and Betty Lou accepted Saturday in behalf of the Stumpy Point school an engraved Freedoms Foundation honor medal and a "Freedom Library" award of books, films, pamphlets, and documents pertaining to the American way of life.

"Freedom Unlimited" began as a modest undertaking in Mrs. Wechter's school room, where she taught fifteen pupils in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades. By the time it ended, children in twelve Dare county schools were participating in it. Two thousand people flocked to see the finished product, when a pageant and an exhibition of work by children were presented in Manteo last May 5.

The project was begun and continued through the school term. The Dare county supervisor of elementary (Continued on Page 4)

Naval Reservists Meet On Campus Of East Carolina

A volunteer Naval Reserve Composite unit meets on the campus of East Carolina every Tuesday night under the auspices of Dr. J. O. Reynolds, member of the math department of this college. Dr. Reynolds is commander of the unit.

Meeting since April, 1949, this unit states its purpose as "a way for interested Naval Reservists to keep up with the Navy." Though it is still comparatively young, Dr. Reynolds reports that the organization is growing and is successful. The unit is not an organized unit, and is at present inactive in regular naval duties, according to Dr. Reynolds. But any Naval Reservist may gain in retirement points through the unit.

This unit is not college sponsored. However, Jack Foley and Paul Waldrop, veterans of World War II who are members of the student body here, are active in the organization. Paul Powell, of the industrial arts department, and Dr. C. W. Reynolds of the science department here are also active members of the unit.

Dr. Reynolds, who heads the unit, is a former Navy man. He served 34 months in the Naval Air corps as a navigation instructor.

Language Fraternity Students Take Trip To Atlantic Beach

Members of Sigma Pi Alpha, foreign languages fraternity at East Carolina enjoyed a visit to Atlantic Beach last Sunday, October 22, as the guests of R. C. Deal at the Seashore club. Formerly head of the foreign languages department at the college here, Mr. Deal entertained approximately twenty students, who enjoyed a day of swimming, games on the beach, and a visit to Fort Macon.

Among those making the trip was Genevieve Longeville, French student now attending East Carolina as a fellow in the foreign languages department. While at Atlantic Beach Miss Longeville had the pleasure of meeting her compatriot, Miss Gabrielle Brard, companion of Mrs. Hoffman of Bogue Banks. The visit between the two Frenchwomen was arranged through the courtesy of Frank Wooten, Greenville attorney.

James L. Fleming and Marguerite Austin of the college foreign languages faculty accompanied the East Carolina students to Atlantic Beach.

Plan Is Adopted For Disciplinary Fines, Restraints

In a move to stop what the Student legislature has considered needless speeding, reckless driving and careless parking which has been prevalent on the East Carolina campus this year, the men's Judiciary held a special meeting Tuesday, October 31, to try to remedy the situation that now exists.

The action was taken following a report to the Student legislature by a special Traffic committee. The committee informed the Legislature that the Administration of the college had delegated the power of disciplinary action in traffic violations to the women's and men's judiciaries.

A plan was adopted at the meeting of the men's Judiciary whereby offenders of traffic regulations are to receive a warning for the first offense, a fine of $1 for the second, $2 for the third, $3 fine plus probation for the fourth offense, and upon the fifth violation offenders will be restricted from driving cars on the campus for two quarters. The plan has been approved by W. E. Marshall, dean of student affairs at the college.

Eugene P. Smith, chairman of the men's Judiciary, has stated that traffic violations falling under the plan will be excesses of the speed limit of 15 miles per hour, reckless driving and parking in "No Parking" areas.

Payment of fines, according to Smith, will be made to the second assistant treasurer of the Student Government association, who will attend meetings of the Judiciary, or within ten days to the treasurer of the Student Government association. Failure to pay fines is to result in automatic restriction of the car from the campus for two quarters.

The plan is to be put into action at the beginning of the winter quarter. Maps will be posted soon which will show the restricted parking areas says Smith.

License numbers of all cars of students who drive on the campus must be registered with the office of the dean of men on registration day. Any male student answering "no" to the ownership of a car will be checked with the Bureau of Registration of Motor Vehicles.

All offenders of traffic violations will be given opportunity to plead decisions of the Judiciary to the Student legislature and to the dean of student affairs. Persons not attending school will be dealt with through the dean's office.

The police action will be carried on by Officer Rogers of the campus police and members of the Judiciary

Original Examples Of Graphic Arts On Show In Austin

Original watercolors and examples of the graphic arts by a number of teachers of art in colleges and public schools of this country are now on exhibition by the East Carolina department of art in Room 202 of the Austin building. The collection was made by Dora Cirlot, director of the department. Those who are interested are invited to see the display, which will continue through November 4.

Miss Cirlot has announced that a collection of watercolors by California artists will be on display in the Austin building from November 7 through November 19. This exhibition will also be open to the public.

VERSE OF THE WEEK

"For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." —Galatians 6:8

CLASSES IN JOURNALISM BEING OFFERED

We hopefully receive the news that two classes in journalism have been included in the schedule of classes for next quarter. There has long existed the need for such a course at East Carolina. During the fall quarter of last year a one hour course in journalism was offered, but this class was discontinued for the rest of the year. There was an attempt to have a class in journalism this quarter, but not enough students were able to take the course. With two classes of journalism being offered next quarter on different days more students should find time to take the course.

The student newspaper has long desired a course in journalism which would be a training ground for new staff members and club reporters. Heretofore the members of the staff got their experience the hard way, by actual experience on the paper, and it was difficult to maintain an adequate staff. Students have been elected as club reporters of organizations when they knew nothing whatsoever about news writing. Thus on many occasions the clubs have not received the publicity which they deserved.

Club presidents would do well to urge their club reporters to take the journalism course with the view of having them trained to be better able to publicize their organizations. Those students majoring in English will find the course valuable also. Active work in journalism affords experience in writing which may help them as no other activity on the campus. The improvement in spelling and grammar to be gained from journalistic work is immeasurable. Many future English teachers will be called upon to act as faculty advisors of student newspapers and will find the course in journalism of much help in this respect. Then, too, newspapers are taking a more prominent part in "progressive" English which strives to teach students from the functional angle.

It is therefore hoped that next quarter the two classes will be filled with these students who can improve themselves so much by taking the course and at the same time help the organizations they represent as club reporter.

EXCHANGE PAPERS IN TECO ECHO OFFICE

In case there are some students who are not aware of the fact, we take space here to inform them of the many exchange newspapers which may be found in the TECO ECHO office. We receive through the mail such student newspapers as "Old Gold and Black" of Wake Forest, the "Hi-Po" of High Point college, the "Lenoir Rhynean" of Lenoir Rhyne college, the "Collegian" of Greensboro college, the "Western Carolinian" of West Carolina Teachers college, the "Appalachian" of Appalachian State Teachers college, the "Maroon and Gold" of Elon college, and many other college and high school newspapers from all over the country as far north as Massachusetts and as far west as Colorado.

These papers are lying on the tables in the TECO ECHO office and are available to students at any time they wish to drop in to read them. It is sometimes interesting to compare our paper with the other student publications and also to read them purely for entertainment.

NEW PRESS CAMERA HAS ARRIVED

The TECO ECHO is proud to announce the arrival of the new Crown Graphic press camera which is considered to be the most important advancement of the paper since it became a weekly last fall quarter. The camera will prove a boon to staff members who will be afforded a chance to gain experience in an important field of journalism which has heretofore been disregarded on the student newspaper. Clubs and organizations will be gratified to know that the camera stands ready to depict pictorially their activities in the pages of the TECO ECHO. Organizations wishing to have pictures made which may be of news interest are urged to contact the editor and make arrangements.

OPEN GATES AT STADIUM AFTER GAMES

Sometimes the least little incident can be responsible for the ruining of an otherwise perfect evening. Last Saturday night the Pirates of East Carolina defeated the Cherry Point Marines before what is thought to be a record-breaking crowd. The point is that after the game there was only one gate through which these people could leave the stadium. There was, of course, much pushing and shoving to get out. Then a Marine general came through with his car which added to the congestion.

There were two gates open before the game to admit people to the field; why could not these two gates be opened to let them out? It is believed the uncomfortable situation would then be somewhat relieved.

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Anne Jones

While strolling 'round campus last week we just happened to run into a sweet little blond who has made a name for herself on this campus by virtue of the Woman's Athletic Association. This gal could be none other than Helen Duncan who is the president of the above named organization.

Let's begin our story by telling that Helen has been active in this organization since the minute she set foot on the campus. During her Freshman and sophomore years she was TECO ECHO reporter for the WAA. Besides this, she has been active in many other activities on campus. She served as president of her Sunday school class at the Emanuel Baptist church during her sophomore year and this year she is doing the same thing. Other activities include junior class representative to the Student legislature, member of Baptist Student Union council for three years, "big sister" for two years, and at the present time leader of a girl scout troop in Greenville. During the past summer, Helen had a wonderful time working for five weeks at a camp for girl scouts near Washington, N.C.

Come next April our honoree will journey to Ann Arbor college in Michigan where she will be East Carolina's official delegate at the National Woman's Athletic Association convention. All her expenses are being paid by the local organization.

Now let's turn back the pages a few years and we see Helen on the campus of Murfreesboro High school where she served as president of her class during her freshman, sophomore and junior years, was historian of her senior class, president of the Home Economics club, state historian of Future Homemakers of America, and editor of the school paper. Besides all this she played on the basketball team for five years, serving as captain four years, and was a member of the softball team for four years.

Can you wonder why she is majoring in Physical Education here? Her minor is English. When asked about her future plans, she smiled and said, "That's a big question."

About this time her roommate, who, up to this time had been silent, spoke up and said, "Maybe that picture you see on the table might by chance be the answer." Well we didn't find out any definite about that, but Helen is thinking of teaching. She also commented that she thought working with girl scouts was mighty interesting. She told us that she loved to work with people and the public in general. In her home town she has worked off and on for several years as a soda jerk.

Our attention is now turned on what Helen likes to do just to idle the time away. She commented "that preachers' children are the meanest, so they say, and I've really lived up to my name." We found out that she was the baby in her family and that she has three brothers who all served in World War II.

One of Helen's favorite pastimes is traveling and she has visited 32 of the 48 states on various occasions. She has also had the pleasure of traveling in Mexico where she visited an arena. Too bad, but the fight was over when she got there, so she missed all the excitement, much to her sorrow. Most of her trips were made merely as sight-seeing expeditions; however, she has attended conferences at Ridgecrest twice.

Almost forgot to tell you that this gal just loves to drive vehicles—anything from school buses to tractors. One day she decided that she could drive her daddy's tractor without any aid or instruction so out she goes, cranks up, and takes off. Want to know what happened? She plowed up a big patch of her dad's peanut patch. Then there's the time she drove her brother's school bus down the road and couldn't turn it around. She had to leave it straddling the road and run for help.

All in all Helen is a swell sport, and East Carolina thinks she's tops.

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Faye Batten and Jean Head

by Faye Batten and Jean Head
Miss "Cathie Conscience" and all our instructors keep repeating to us procrastinating students that the end of the fall quarter is nigh. Seriously let's consider whether we have progressed or regressed this quarter. Whatever the case, let's decide to honor self and school, too, next quarter by doing the very best work possible. That's the sensible thing to do.

Just wonder if there's one among us "campus-dwellers" who hasn't, in time, cut Saturday's classes to go home. Seems I've heard, in repetition, the gloomy phrase, "Oh, those horrid Saturday classes." It is nicer to be at home asleep than at East Carolina in class come 8:00 on Saturday mornings.

Is there anything you'd rather find in your mailbox than the little red card that says you have a package? A package is always most welcome, especially if it contains some of mom's good "home cooking."

Seems to me that it's high time to send some praise to the manager of the "Blazin' Buccaneers." I've watched him at all our home games, and his tact, patience and personality are very attracting. "Tubby," you've a commendable character, as anyone who watches your concern over an injured player can see.

Like the freshmen, he's new here. Like the sophomores, he can crack good jokes, and like the juniors he can take a turn of the joke. Like the seniors are supposed to do, he "knows his onions." Everyone likes him. "Course you know I mean Dr. Richard Todd of the social studies faculty. Everyone was deeply stirred upon hearing of Mrs. Todd's critical illness. Several of the students were blood donors to help save Mrs. Todd's life.

The girls of East Carolina are glad to see an old student back this year. He is "Teddy Bear" and may be seen at our football games caring for the injured players.

"Hog Jaw" Wafford had a terrible experience last week when the axle of his auto (the "latest" model on campus) broke. Think it is repaired now, however, and all is doing well.

If anyone needs to gain any weight, or if any extra energy is needed, why not try some of the candy bars sold in 149 Jarvis hall? (Never let it be said that college girls aren't ambitious.)

Everyone should hear Dr. Jorgenson tell about the new gym. Sure sounds wonderful. Have you heard about the gym floor overlooking the swimming pool?

Guess the football boys are "way up in them thar hills" by now. But we believe that the Pirates can cope with any of those hill-billies, and here's wishing them luck!

Have heard that some seniors are griping about their 4:00-7:15 education classes. Have heard, too, that Jack Everton has classes every afternoon from 4:00-7:00—Now how 'bout that?

It seems that the girls in Jarvis hall have been left out. They are wondering if and when they are going to get a drink box.

Over heard someone say recently "what would we do without the Y store?" It is quite a place. When you stop to think about it, it would be pretty awful not to have a gathering place for the students.

Have you seen the gleam in Janet Davis' eyes this week? Eleanor Steber asked her to call a taxi for her before the concert last week. Thrill!

MILES BEHIND THE MIKE

by Miles Buck

Dr. Coleman claims he will answer students' questions on his Sunday night radio talks. He is interested in finding out what questions seem most pertinent to the students in national and world affairs. He has also invaded Dr. Martin's domain in forecasting football games.

It is hoped that a radio club of some sort will be organized in the not too distant future. The plan under consideration now is to work up short radio plays about twice a month. It is felt that this new venture will give an opportunity for more people to actively participate in radio. It will also provide an outlet for the young ladies on the campus as it is a well-known fact that very few feminine voices are adaptable to straight announcing. Dr. Utterback will be the faculty adviser to this group and the definite time for meetings will be announced soon.

Auditions were held for announcers

October 24 with about 25 people coming out. Ten people were selected for the staff as a result of the auditions. This does not mean, however, that others are excluded. Dr. Utterback is available every afternoon from 1:00 to 3:00 in Austin 103 to assist any who are interested in the voice end of our work. We are also interested in contacting people who would like to help with the engineering, sound effects and other phases of producing programs.

Now that television has grown into big time entertainment, an unforeseen problem has arisen, namely people. There is rapidly growing a shortage of good acts and of guest performers on the big show. Along with the shortage of performers has come the problem of salaries. Guest artists on shows like "Show Time—USA" and Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" draw from $3,500 to $7,500 per appearance.

The question of new routines also is worrying some of the less well-known artists and acts who have moved from the stage and night clubs. These lesser acts, which a year ago were booked a month apart, are now working almost every week in video because of the increasing number of shows.

A major question according to some producers, is whether television will first exhaust its guest performers or its money. There is a general agreement among both talent buyers and suppliers that eventually television variety shows must establish their own stock or repertory companies, thus reducing the enormous demand for different talent each week.

Earnest Walling, television program manager for NBC, insists that the great public interest in the medium will cause performers to build new variety acts, but adds, "the horrible fact remains that the act is dead after it's been once." That is television's eternal and peculiar problem.

The Peanut Gallery

by Susan Smith

The Workshop plays last Friday night reached a new height in lack of preparedness. The plays given in the workshop usually only have several hours of rehearsals, but this one only had about half an hour directly before the play went on. The play was "Mr. Samson" by Charles Lee, the story of a man who couldn't decide which of two old maids he would marry. He finally arrives at a decision, but the more practical of the two women refuses to let him announce his choice. We're still wondering who the lucky lady was.

Dr. Charles gave the following remarks in the evaluation. It would have been more effective if the cast had been in appropriate costumes. The members of the cast were supposed to be middle-aged people and this was not made clear by the costumes. There was not enough stage-patterning, that is the action did not use enough of the stage area. The Pantomime gestures should have been more exaggerated to carry to the audience.

The thing which really let the play down (and I know because I was one of the cast) was that the actors became amused out of character. We defend this in saying that the performance was the second time we read the play.

The play itself is a delightful story which takes place in England.

The Arena theatre in New York is bringing back into popularity the amphitheatre type stage. The stage is in the center of the auditorium and is surrounded by the audience so that instead of having a three dimensional effect, the play is seen from all four sides. This, naturally, calls for better technical acting.

The Workshop play to be given this Friday should be interesting for the students. The cast is to be made up of faculty members—Dr. Tracy, Mr. Rescoe, Miss Lambie, Miss Walker and Mr. Perry—to name a few. We've heard remarks here and there which lead us to think that it's going to be too good to miss. It should certainly be something different for the campus to witness, at any rate.

To The Editor

To the editor:
The English department called on of the biggest boners of the week Monday night in administering a state required spelling test. Notices were posted a full week in advance and some two hundred seniors turned out to take the test, but the instructors charged with the duty of administering the test were prepared to handle about 25 or 30 students. Many of the students that were turned away were day students who had made a special trip to be on time. It seems that when a department is charged with such an important obligation preparations should be made to handle any number of qualified students who might appear to take such an examination.

In all fairness to the students who did appear it seems that the administration should take steps to see that this test is properly administered again this quarter. Because the faculty failed to discharge their obligation properly is no reason why the seniors of this institution should be penalized.

--- many buildings on this campus serve more than one purpose. Such a building is the new auditorium at the Training school. The Training school has needed the auditorium for many years, and when it became a reality, Miss Frances Wahl, Training school principal, very graciously agreed that since the Training school only seldom uses the auditorium in the evenings, the Teacher Playhouse might utilize it for their productions. Members of the Teachers Playhouse are referring to the auditorium as the "Little Theater."

--- what this college needs is more student programs such as the recent talent show sponsored by Physical Education class 127. Enjoyed by all, it offered a good period of relaxation and entertainment. Each act was tops, and we would especially like to hear more songs from Jackie Waldron, the blonde freshman who sang "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes."

--- while Miss Steber made a great hit with her audience at her recent concert here, the college made a great hit with Miss Steber. She spent most of the day before the concert on the campus and was very enthusiastic over the beauty of the campus and buildings. One of the highlights of her two-day stay was a shrimp dinner at Saleeby's in Washington, N.C. where she said she served the best shrimp she had ever eaten. This must have been true for she ordered two dinners. Another of her favorite foods is plain grits. For breakfast she ordered a large bowl and enjoyed them very much.

--- one of the more interesting courses offered as an elective is the survey course of French and Spanish civilization from more or less the social angle? This is offered by the foreign language department under the number 320. In these times of United Nations and Internationalism, it is a timely course, for where in the world has internationalism been centered for so many years but France? This course does not require a background of the language and is open to all students.

SPORTS VIEW

BY LLOYD WHITFIELD

It was strictly big time out at College stadium last week when the Bucs emerged victorious over Cherry Point's Marines by a score of 20-12. Pirate flags were waving gaily as well as the red, white and blue Confederate flags.

The band performed brilliantly, and really surprised the some 8,000 fans when they formed the letters "SING" and played a popular favorite, "Goodnight Irene." There was one hundred per cent improvement in the cheerleaders. They all went through the same motions when the band played and were spirited. However, there is one thing that they have failed to catch.

CHEERLEADERS SHOULD ADD COLOR TO GAME

Believe me, what the cheerleaders do adds so much color and spirit to the ball game. They are out there to add color and amusement to the game. Our cheerleaders are good; they give all they have at each game, and if there is a better chief cheerleader in North Carolina than Jack Everton, he is great. Still there is something lacking at each game. The major point that the writer has heard so widely discussed everywhere he goes is that our cheerleaders do not have over six yells that they can do at a ball game. We believe this to be true and something should be done about it. New yells should be arranged, and there are plenty of popular yells done at other schools that we do not have here. Yells that are snappy and spirited should be used. Also, there is a great possibility for new songs to be devised. Numerous yells could be worked out with the band. Pep rallies could be arranged in a big way. Have a big parade and then a gathering following in the gym with a speaker. This could probably be transcribed and played back over the radio.

ASSISTANTS SHOULD WATCH EVERTON

We do not know why East Carolina does not do these things because it is big enough. Even small high schools do it. Surely it is not Everton's fault! All the eyes of the cheerleaders should be on Jack when they are going through the motions, and every time he switches, they should switch motions. They should stay in position at all times ready to yell at the proper moment. Pep songs would add much color to the games!

The cheerleaders are good, they have the rhythm that is needed, but new yells and activities are needed badly to make the games more colorful!

BUCS MEET APPS IN BOONE FOR CRUCIAL NS CLASH

Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock all ears at East Carolina will probably be glued tight to radio station WGTC to listen to the Pirate-Appalachian grid clash which is one of the top games in North Carolina this week. All North State schools will be watching the papers with interest to see what the outcome is. If the Bucs can beat Appalachian, it will be the first conference defeat for the Mountaineers in five starts. The Apps have only a 14-14 tie with Elon to mar their record.

Should East Carolina register an upset, Appalachian will topple into third place and Elon take over the top position, with the locals taking second place. Dole has worked his eleven hard all week in preparation for the important clash. Still, the Apps have a great ball club, and are highly regarded in the South, having trounced an intersectional foe, Tampa university. The Bucs will have to play heads-up ball to register a victory. We believe they will since they have done so much upsetting in the conference this season, the time is ripe for another. All our hopes are with Dole and his squad tomorrow night for they are capable of winning, and we believe they will by a Buck Hardee kicked field goal.

INTRA-MURAL EVENTS UNDERWAY

Several intra-mural events got underway at the college this week, so watch this paper for the results. . . Tom Cox, a transfer from Duke, has added his able assistance to the sports page. Cox did work for the DUKE BRONICLE last year and will be very valuable to the sports staff of East Carolina. Byrd Humphreys, former sports assistant, has joined the Navy and is now in San Diego, California.

Athlete Of The Week

For the second time in two years Darby has been selected as the TACO BICO "Athlete of the Week," an honor which he fully deserves. He was chosen last year for his caliber of play against the Naval Prentice school which was licked by the Bucs 26-21.

However, his performance in that test is not comparable with the one in which he capably proved himself a star in Dole's backfield against Cherry Point's Marines last week. After the time the 170-pound halfback rocked the opposition on its heels and excited the overflowing stands with his sensational runs and more than spectacular pass catches. The way he was able to shift away from would be tacklers and gain considerable yardage proved him to be a great asset to the Pirates. Fans will remember the pass catch he made during the third period of the Cherry Point game. With one arm outstretched he reeled the pigskin in for a touchdown, when fans were positive it was too wide for its receiver, Bill Darby.

He did not get a chance to show his punting abilities last week. However, he is a great punter and therefore serves as an excellent defensive power. Darby had never played in the backfield until he came to East Carolina four years ago. In scholastic competition he was a guard for Morganton High school. He performed brilliantly at his guard position, and landed a berth on the All-conference team. He also participated in basketball and track during a splendid prep career.

A social studies major and geography minor, Darby entered East Carolina in the fall term of 1947, and since has developed into one of the North State conference's best backs.

East Carolina's Ends Take Third Spot In Points

Gene Robinson, Lenoir-Rhyne's defensive tailback who never sees action on offense, added an 80-yard punt return to his scoring last week end to move into a tie with Duke's Tommy Powers for the North Carolina State scoring leadership. Each player has 48 points.

East Carolina's ends, Dwight Shoe and Frank Maennele added one touchdown each against Cherry Point's Marines to deadlock fourth position with 36 points each. Jack Britt, Pirate halfback, has tallied 24 points to be listed in the state's top twenty scorers.

Lenoir-Rhyne's John Trudnak, scored three touchdowns against Atlantic Christian to run his season's total to 46 points which is good enough for the second spot. Pete Marshburn of Elon, holds down third place with 42 points.

Following is the state's top twenty scorers:

Fullback Johnny Smith Plunges Off-Tackle

Johnny Smith, East Carolina's hard-charging fullback, carries off-tackle for a first down against Cherry Point's Marines. The Marines were defeated by the Bucs last Saturday night 20-12 before a record-breaking crowd of 8,000 at College stadium. Shown throwing a block to the right of Smith is George Graybill. Coming in to aid in the interference is Bill McDonald, No. 49.

Thrift Passes Pirates To Win Over Cherry Point's Marines

Aerials To Darby Maennele, Shoe Net 20-12 Victory

East Carolina's Pirates, sparked by a smooth-running T-formation with Roger Thrift in the quarterback slot, brilliantly marched to a comfortable 20-0 halftime lead, then withstood a smothering Cherry Point Marine attack in College stadium last Saturday to hand the Flyers a 20-12 defeat before an estimated record-breaking 8,000 thrilled spectators.

The Pirates, who turned the game into a disappointing evening for the some 700 marines who journeyed to the game, struck for a tally in every period except the last when a fumble hurt the local scoring chances.

HOW IT HAPPENED

It was the Bucs fifth win of the season compared with two setbacks, and once again it was the passing of All-conference Quarterback Roger Thrift that led the locals to their eight point victory margin. The finish was Cherry Point's, but the ball game for over three quarters was a completely Pirate dominated contest with Thrift's throwing, Britt's, Darby's and J. Smith's running, and some outstanding play by Dole's defensive charges.

Bill Darby's sensational catch of Thrift's aerial in the third quarter which set up the Pirates second touchdown, rocked the Flyers back on their heels, and brought a tremendous ovation from the overflowing crowd. Darby had one of his better nights

Meet Appalachian In NS Conference Contest At Boone

Coach Bill Dole and his band of East Carolina Pirates left early Friday morning for Boone, N. C., where they will take on the current North State conference leaders, Appalachian's Mountaineers, Saturday night at eight o'clock in the major conference grid game of the week.

If the Bucs can emerge victorious in this contest they will push the Apps into third place, moving Elon into the top position and Dole's charges will be resting comfortably in second place.

The Pirates will probably be in good physical condition for the crucial grid clash, and Dole will again be able to mix a potent running attack with the sling-shot arm of All-conference quarterback, Roger Thrift. Thrift has thrown passes to Ends Dwight Shoe and Frank Maennele and to Halfback Bill Darby that have netted 1548 yards.

Dole spent most of the week working on offensive drills and a defense that will check the Apps strong passing and running attack. The Mountaineers are undefeated in five games with only a tie with Elon to mar their record. That tie came on two pass plays in the last minute and forty-five seconds of the final period.

The Apps have an impressive record against non-conference foes, having stopped the University of Tampa last week 36-19. The Apps, by their offensive display have one of the most potent T-formations in the state, led by a hard-running back, Jack Groce. The man who kicks the extra points for the Apps, Bill Cross, has been a key factor in one of Appalachian's important victories over Catawba. The Mountaineers won 9-7, and it was a field goal by Cross in the waning minutes of the ball game.

Two brilliant ends, Dwight Shoe and Frank Maennele will lead the Pirate's offensive hopes. Both have great playing abilities and seem to catch the impossible passes. Roger Thrift, 185-pound quarterback, is the playcaller and leading passer for the squad. Thrift is protected in the line by the two tackles, Dennis Smith and Bill McDonald, who tip the scales at 200 and 190 pounds respectively.

Buck Wilson, a great offensive center, hits the scales at a healthy 200. The Buc's defensive hopes will rest on a heavy line and some brilliant line-backers. Leading the defense is Wallace Robinson, Bobby Hodges, Reggie Byrd and Al Auerback. In the secondary will be two rugged pass defenders in the persons of Billy Smith and Johnny Daugherty. Both have proven themselves capable of intercepting many enemy aerials.

Porter's Cagers Not Yet In Top Playing Shape

Having become familiar with the basic patterns of play, Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina cagers have been concentrating this week on polishing up their offensive and defensive maneuvers in preparation for the fast-approaching basketball season.

Although the Pirate hoopers are not yet in top shape, they furnished a lot of competition last week for the professional Grand Rapids Hornets before bowing 66-49. In this game, East Carolina's Sonny Russell led individual scoring for both teams, racking up seven field goals and three free throws for a total of 17 points.

Sonny Russell and Toddy Fennell, veterans of last year's campaign, are looking in practice. Richard Blake and John Postas, sophomores up from last year's freshman team, are showing up well, and Flaherty, Huffner, and Jones, three newcomers to the East Carolina scene, also are slated to see a lot of action this year with Porter's Pirates.

Special SGA Committee Makes Report On Health Facilities

A special Committee on Sanitation and Recreation returned a report to the Student legislature of East Carolina Wednesday, October 25, which outlined favorably the conditions existing on the campus. Harry B. Moore, senior from Rocky Mount, submitted the lengthy report as chairman of the committee which had been appointed by President of the Student Government association Al Livesay two weeks earlier to make a survey of sanitation and recreational facilities.

Included in the report were detailed accounts of sanitation facilities in all the dormitories, the college dining halls, infirmary and recreational facilities on the campus.

According to the report there are frequent checks for cleanliness in all of the dormitories. Bathrooms are cleaned daily with disinfectant. All buildings are inspected by the North Carolina Board of Health and there are frequent checks by exterminators. All rooms are cleaned daily by the janitors in the men's dormitories, while it is reported that there is excellent maid service in the girls' dormitories with personal counseling to urge the girls to keep rooms clean.

The dining halls are inspected by the North Carolina Board of Health, the present rating being Grade "A." There is an inspection each week by the dining halls' management. Floors in the dining rooms themselves and in the kitchen are mopped three times each day. Cold storage facilities are good. Staple groceries are stored on racks off the floor in the proper manner. Eating utensils are thoroughly and sanitarily cleaned, as are the dishes and glasses.

It was found by the committee that the college infirmary was not state inspected. All dishes in the infirmary are sterilized by boiling. Surgical instruments and other medical apparatus are sterilized either chemically or in the autoclave. All laundry is sterilized, and disinfectant is used in cleaning the bathrooms.

The committee reported that people are on duty in the Wright building on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights to issue equipment for the two ping-pong tables and shuffleboard. The Student Legislature Social

Livesay Speaks Of Church Work Among Students

Alexander E. Livesay of Rocky Mount, president of the Student Government association of East Carolina, spoke this week at Belhaven and at Jacksonville on religious work among college students. Mr. Livesay, a senior at East Carolina, is diocesan college worker for Eastern North Carolina among students of the Episcopal church.

At Belhaven he talked to the Edenton Convocation of Women's Auxiliaries of the Diocese of Eastern North Carolina, and at Jacksonville he spoke before members of the Wilmington Convocation.

With both groups he discussed the work now being done among students in the churches and on campuses. He told of the activities of the Canterbury club for Episcopal students, the aims of which, he stated, are "study, service, fellowship, and worship."

Particular attention was given by Mr. Livesay to the work at East Carolina carried on by the Canterbury club of St. Paul's Episcopal church in Greenville, with which he has been associated for the past several years, and to the activities of other denomination organizations among students here. He paid tribute to President John D. Messick of East Carolina, whom he described as "a devout man and one who gives complete freedom to religious activities on the campus." He mentioned also that the college has this year for the first time a director of religious education, Robert Holt of the faculty.

Speech Consultant Addresses Meeting Of Teachers, PTA

Mrs. Dorothy W. Perkins, speech and hearing consultant in the department of education at East Carolina, spoke Thursday evening, October 26, at a joint meeting of Beaufort county teachers and the Parent-Teacher association of Washington, N.C. Her present schedule of work in special education includes attendance during November at a conference in Raleigh and a convention in Columbus, Ohio, both dealing with problems of hearing and speech.

For her Beaufort county audience Thursday, Mrs. Perkins reviewed "You Must Relax" by Edmund Jacobson, M.D. She discussed relaxation as it is used in speech methods. Those assisting her were Lena Evelyn Kite of Vanceboro, Mary Frances Eilers of Wilmington, and Margaret Mansfield of Edenton.

Member English Faculty Writes On Liberal Arts

Dr. R. C. Simonini Jr. of the Department of English at East Carolina discusses "An Ideal for Liberal Arts Education" in the October issue of the Association of American Colleges bulletin. The ideal, or exemplar, of liberal education he finds in the gifted, versatile "universal man" of the European Renaissance, and this concept may help, he states, "to define and illustrate the ideal of the liberally educated man which we are seeking today."

Dr. Simonini points out that the liberal arts college and its traditions are "now at the crossroads" and "under heavy attack from all quarters." Liberal education, he says, is not mass education, nor is it vocational or professional education. Higher education, he states, is "not for the masses" and "should be safeguarded in every way from the leveling process of mass mediocrity."

Citing definitions of liberal education from President Truman's Commission on Higher Education and the Report of the Harvard committee on "General Education in a Free Society," Dr. Simonini states that "the aim is not only to educate leaders for a democratic society, but also to cultivate a sense of the common heritage, fundamental unity, and common purpose of mankind in facing the problems of contemporary civilization."

Tooze Makes Talk At Training School On Child's World

Mrs. Ruth Tooze, lecturer on children's literature and editor of the nationally circulated "Book News from Ruth Tooze," spoke Wednesday evening, October 25 at East Carolina before an audience of approximately 300 people gathered in the auditorium of the Training school. The occasion was a joint meeting of the college and the Greenville branches of the Association of Children Education.

Speaking on the topic "This Is Their World," Mrs. Tooze told how books may be used to give the child a sense of security in the world of today. Her talk was rich in suggestions for children's reading.

The audience also enjoyed during the evening a period of browsing in the collection of almost 1,000 books for young people which Mrs. Tooze displayed in the gymnasium of the Training school.

Miss Elizabeth Hyman, president of the Greenville ACE, president at the meeting. Miss Doris Pleasant of Angier, president of the college ACE, welcome members and guest who were present for the evening. Miss Janice Perry of Louisburg, chairman of the program committee of the college ACE, presented Mrs. Tooze to the audience.

Eleanor Steber Sings To Campus Audience Of 1800

Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera association, sang Thursday evening, October 26, at East Carolina before an audience of approximately 1800 people.

The concert by the American star of opera, concert and radio opened the 1950-1951 entertainment series at the college. Patrons of this year's program who were present included a large number from Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Windsor, Snow Hill, Robertsonville, New Bern, Farmville and other nearby towns.

Enthusiastic applause followed Miss Steber's numbers, and during the evening she was recalled to the stage for frequent bows and encores. Her voice, which is beautiful in quality, wide in range, and well controlled, combined with her sense of drama and a pleasing stage presence to make a concert a memorable one for the audience.

Accompanied by James Quillian at the piano, Miss Steber sang operatic arias by Mozart and Verdi, and groups of songs in French, German, Italian and English. The encore "Summertime" by Gershwin and the humorous numbers "Hello, Hello" from Menotti's "The Telephone" and a parody on the old favorite "Long, Long Ago" were "hits" with the audience.

Following the concert, the Student committee of the college entertained at a reception in honor of Miss Steber and Mr. Quillian in the reception rooms of the Flanagan building.

The next number of the Entertainment series will be a production of "La Boheme," presented by the Wagner Opera company November 28 in the Wright auditorium at 8:00 in the evening.

Stumpy Point

(Continued from Page 1) schools, Mrs. Mary Langston Evans, was so impressed that the idea was carried over from Stumpy Point to other schools of the county.

Mrs. Wechter wrote a pageant "All Aboard for Freedom." The children, busied themselves studying the lives of great Americans; the history, geography, and folk ways of many lands; and the origin, growth and work of the United Nations.

The Dare county children, proud of their project, sent an account of it to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who commended it. Senator Frank P. Graham sent congratulations and praise. Mrs. Evans, the Dare county supervisor, cited it to Dr. J. Henry Highsmith of the State Department of Public Instruction as the best social studies project in Dare during 1949-1950.

By invitation Mrs. Wechter has recently discussed the project in classes at East Carolina in the departments of art, geography and industrial arts. At the recent Democratic rally on the campus here, Governor Scott took time out to congratulate Mrs. Wechter personally on her fine work as teacher and director of "Freedom Unlimited."

After a number of years of teaching in various North Carolina schools Mrs. Wechter, a graduate of the two-year normal course at East Carolina Teachers college, has returned to the campus this fall to complete work on a degree in grammar grade education. Her husband, Robert W. Wechter, came along too and is now a sophomore and a leader in student activities. Marcia, the little daughter, attends the first grade in the campus Training school.

Harold H. Smith, editor of typewriting publications for the Gregg Publishing company and author of numerous books and articles on business education, talked at a meeting of business education students at East Carolina Tuesday evening, October 24. His remarks were illustrated with demonstrations of typing techniques.

The lecture-demonstration, held in Flanagan auditorium, was sponsored by the college chapter of Pi Omega Pi, national honorary fraternity for business education students. Approximately 250 students attended.

Mr. Smith's talk dealt with typing skills and how to develop them. A winner in 1915 of the International Amateur Typing contest, he demonstrated techniques for improving efficiency in secretarial work.
