Number 14

Appearing In Teachers Playhouse Production

Donald Blood of Greenville, left, will play the part of the Stage Manager in the Teachers Playhouse's presentation of "Our Town" tonight in the recently completed College Theatre. The role to be played by Blood was made famous on Broadway by Frank Craven and played on various occasions by Playwright Thornton Wilder. Carolyn Eisele of Statesville, center, and Joseph Conleton of Littleton will play the romantic leads in the Pulitzer Prize-winning play. Dedication ceremonies for the new theatre will take place tonight before the first major production to be presented in the theatre.

Samuel Selden Will Be Principal Speaker At Dedication Of New College Theatre

College Dramatics Club Is Presenting Pulitzer Prize Play

Samuel Selden, professor of dramatic arts at the University of North Carolina and director of the Carolina Playmakers, will be principal speaker tonight at dedication exercises for the new College Theatre at East Carolina. A chief attraction of the evening will be the presentation by the Teachers Playhouse, college dramatic club, of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize play "Our Town" as the first major dramatic production to be given in the new theatre.

President John D. Messick of East Carolina will preside at the brief dedication ceremonies, which will precede the performance of the play. Dr. Louis H. Charles, director of dramatic arts at East Carolina, will also participate in the program. Peggy Lane, sophomore from Asheboro, will appear as organist and will play the new Wurlitzer organ which is part of the equipment of the College Theatre. The College Singers, directed by Dan E. Vornholt of the department of music, will sing.

Other Performances Scheduled
The Teachers Playhouse will stage "Our Town" tonight as the first of three performances of Wilder's drama. Other performances are scheduled for Saturday, January 20, and Tuesday, January 23, in the College Theatre.

Approximately sixty student members of the Teachers Playhouse have been working on the college production of "Our Town," either as members of the cast or of the technical and business staffs.

Blood In Lead Role
Donald Blood of Greenville will play the part of the Stage Manager, a role made famous on Broadway by Frank Craven and played on various occasions by Playwright Thornton Wilder. Carolyn Eisele of Statesville and Joseph Conleton of Littleton will play the romantic leads. Robert Craft of Beaufort, Iris Aldridge of Kinston, Elmer Williams of Washington, and Annette Hughes of Willard will play the other parts.

New College Theatre

The above picture was taken as the College Theatre was nearing completion. Formal dedication of the modern structure will be held tonight with Samuel Selden of the University of North Carolina being the principal speaker. The newly constructed building is one of the most modern theatres in the eastern part of the state and has approximately $30,000 worth of lighting equipment.

College Credit

The Policies committee of the college has decreed that when a student has attended at least one half of his classes during a quarter and has made a grade of "3" or more that he will be credited with the entire quarter's work if he is called into service. However, if he volunteers for service no credit may be given for less than a full quarter's work.

Give every consideration to remaining in college as long as possible. As the law now stands, no local draft board has the right to take you out of college during the school year, providing your work is satisfactory.

For those in the ROTC, even though freshmen, there is little possibility that you will not be deferred until graduation providing your work is satisfactory.

New East Carolina Alumni Chapter Is Formed In Durham

Graduates of East Carolina living in Durham county have organized a new chapter of the college Alumni association, according to an announcement by Mrs. Ruth Garner, alumni secretary. Baxter Ridenhour, school principal in the Durham city system, will serve as president of the group.

Alumni of East Carolina living in and near Durham met Monday evening, January 15, to establish the chapter and discuss plans for future activities of the group. Mrs. Garner and C. Ray Pruitt of the faculty of Louisiana State University, a district vice-president of the Alumni association, were present for the meeting. Thirteen alumni became charter members of the new chapter Monday evening, and others, unable to attend at that time, will join the group later.

In addition to Ridenhour, officers chosen by chapters members are Sam Dees, vice-president; Dorcas Sumrall, secretary; and Mrs. W. J. Harris (Daisy Belle Mautsby), treasurer. The next meeting of the Durham chapter is scheduled for February 12, and other meetings will be held on the third Monday of each month.

Air Force Procurement Team Is Seeking Aviation Cadets

Will Offer Two Flight Training Programs To Qualified Students

Young men from 19 and a half to 26 and a half and single interested in pilot and navigator flying training in the United States Air Force will have an opportunity to be interviewed and completely processed by Air Force pilots here Monday, January 22 through Thursday, January 25, in the conference room of the Administration building.

Major Leslie McLaurin, veteran B-29 combat pilot from Headquarters, 14th Air Force, has announced that he and his staff will be here to completely examine and advise men qualified for pilot or navigator flying training.

The applicant gets an on-the-spot exam with no travel, expense or delay incurred. The applicant may select a flying class a year ahead, thereby finishing a full college year.

Major McLaurin disclosed that the cadet, while in training, receives $105 a month, plus all expenses; and the flying lieutenant receives more than $4700 single, and more than $5100 a year, married.

Pilot and navigator trainees must have the same educational requirement, which is two years of college.

(1) Aviation Cadet Pilot training. After one year of flying the cadet is commissioned a 2nd lieutenant and pilot. Outstanding graduates receive regular commissions. All others, with reserve active duty commissions, have opportunity to compete for regular commissions while on three years of active duty in flying assignments

College Yearbook To Be Distributed During Early May

The "Tecoan," East Carolina yearbook, will be ready for distribution the first of May, according to Editor D. Wilbur Jones.

This year's "Tecoan," Jones revealed, will be considerably larger than any the college has ever had. He pointed out that there have been approximately 140 pages in each of the last four annuals published, while the 1951 "Tecoan" will have 168 pages. This increase in size is due to the growth in enrollment at East Carolina and to a larger budget allocated for the purpose of putting out the annual, the editor said.

The greatest increase in sizes in the divisions of the annual will be in the AROTC and sports sections, Jones said. He added that, whereas last year two pages were allotted to the AROTC, and around 4 to sports, the new "Tecoan" will have eight pages covering the AROTC and 24 pages devoted to sports.

Jones stated that several proofs of the pictures sent in before Christmas have arrived here, and that they "look very good."

Jerney Minshew is business manager of the 1951 "Tecoan." Sam Guthrie is managing editor.

Vets Club To Hold Quarterly Banquet At Barbecue House

Charles Self, president of the Veterans club, has announced that the organization will hold its quarterly banquet, January 26, at the Respass James Barbecue house. Guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. R. C. Todd of the social studies department of the college. A movie on North Carolina wild life will also be shown, Self reports.

The veterans set the date for their banquet at a meeting Monday evening, January 15. At the meeting they also discussed the possibility of sponsoring the appearance of a name band on the East Carolina campus.

"The possibilities of the Veterans club sponsoring a dance with a name band here soon are fairly certain," Self has said. The president of the veterans' organization says there has already been some correspondence with a number of well known bands, and he feels sure there will be some definite information on the matter soon.

Radio Schedule

Building Contracts Awarded For New Dorm Construction

Religious Emphasis Principal Speaker

The Rev. Ray Holder, rector of Christ church in Raleigh, will be principal speaker at Religious Emphasis Week at East Carolina. Religious Emphasis Week will extend from this Sunday, January 21, through Thursday, January 25. The Rev. Mr. Holder will speak on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings during the week of services. The Raleigh rector will talk to the students of the college at a special assembly program. A popular speaker among college students, the Rev. Mr. Holder has taken part in Religious Emphasis Week services at several of the colleges in the state. Group discussions will follow all evening addresses.

Messick Advocates Extension Of Requirements For Teaching

Cites Responsibility Resting Upon Those Who Must Train Youth

Six years of training and a master's degree for the teacher are advocated by President John D. Messick of East Carolina Teachers college in a recent article in "The School Executive," a nationally circulated journal of education. Discussion "The Teacher of Today," Dr. Messick cites the "fearful responsibility for what the world will eventually become" which rests upon those who train youth. He outlines a program of training culminating in the awarding of the master's degree and covering a six-year period of study, observation of school and classroom activities and procedures, and supervised teaching.

An undergraduate program of four years of study in college is desirable for the prospective teacher, says Dr. Messick. During this period, he states, observation of teaching and the study of children from the kindergarten through high school and in various situations should begin in the freshman year and continue through the four years.

One Year of Practice Teaching
No degree, the East Carolina president states, should be given the prospective teacher at the end of the fourth year. In the fifth year of preparation the student should do supervised teaching and return to the campus on Saturdays for further class work and for discussion of his problems. Graduation with the degree of bachelor of arts should follow this fifth year's work.

The sixth year of training, according to Dr. Messick's plan, would culminate in the awarding of a master's degree. During this period the student should return to college and pursue studies in a field of major interest to him and in related fields and should take additional methods courses and enough work in administration and supervision to enable him to cooperate intelligently with those carrying out such duties.

Master Teacher Certificate
"When he has received his master's degree," says Dr. Messick, "he is ready to teach." After a year of independent teaching, according to Dr. Messick, the successful teacher should receive, as a result of proper evaluation by college and public school officials, the certificate of Master Teacher.

"The ideal teacher," concludes Dr. Messick's article, "represents a goal difficult to attain, but nothing but the best in ideals, intellectual acuity, and broad preparation is adequate for the teacher of tomorrow's citizen's."

Dr. Messick Attending Three-Day Committee Meeting In Alabama

President John D. Messick of East Carolina will go to Tuscaloosa, Alabama, this weekend, where he will attend at the University of Alabama a three-day meeting, January 20-22, of the Accrediting committee of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, of which he is a member.

Dr. Messick attended in Raleigh Tuesday a meeting of the Committee on Outdoor Education, a division of the State Resource-Use commission. Dr. Messick is a member of this committee and chairman of the sub-committee on teacher training.

Tuesday evening Dr. Messick was principal speaker at a meeting of the Men's club of the Episcopal church of Rocky Mount.

Teachers' Dorm Will House 42, Cost $325,000

Contracts were awarded last week for beginning construction on East Carolina's teachers' dormitory to be located behind the present Wilson hall, according to F. D. Duncan, business manager of the college. It is not known at present when actual construction will begin.

Final approval from the Budget Bureau was granted prior to the awarding, necessitated by construction costs that figured more than money allocated for the building. Original cost was figured at $250,000. Bids on the building wound up at $307,965.

In addition to the final over-all contract figure, extra work done in connection with extending utilities into the building will cost an additional $16,950.

Will Accommodate 42
The building will be constructed of brick and steel and will accommodate 42 persons. Each person will be housed in a single room. According to the plans the new dormitory will have a kitchenette and bath for every two rooms.

Business Manager F. D. Duncan stated the Bureau approved a transfer of funds from construction costs of the workshop and warehouse buildings and the gymnasium to make up the deficit on the dormitory.

The general contract was awarded to P. S. West Construction company, Statesville, $254,000; plumbing to C. L. Russ, Greenville, ($27,514); heating to W. M. Wiggins company, Wilson, ($24,855); and electrical to Thompson Electric company, Raleigh, ($14,219).

Other Buildings Planned
Already under construction on the East Carolina campus is the new $750,000 gymnasium with a seating capacity of 2,400 persons. A swimming pool will be included as a feature of the new gymnasium.

Planned for the future is a new library, money for which has already been appropriated, and a new home management house. Bids will be taken for the construction of the home management house this month.

New Officers Are Chosen In Wilson As Others Leave

A special meeting of the men student residents of Wilson hall was called Monday night of this week for the purpose of electing several officers and adopting some new house rules.

Dwight Shoe, Salisbury sophomore, and Joe E. Terrell, Waynesville sophomore, were elected president and vice-president of Wilson hall, respectively, due to the resignations of Joe Gutledge and Von Johnson, who have gone into the U. S. Air Force. Lloyd Whitfield, Kinston sophomore, replaced Warren Russell on the House committee. Russell recently moved into another dormitory.

New rules presented by the House committee, and adopted by the residents follow: Cessation of all unnecessary noise after 11:00 p. m.; Drunkenness and display of bad conduct will not be tolerated; use of fireworks is illegal, and use of them in the dorm will result in instant removal.

VERSE OF THE WEEK

"And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people."
—Matthew 9:35

RELIGIOUS EMPHASIS WEEK

"What are my relationships and responsibilities toward God and man in this period of world emergency?" Few of us are able to escape that question; yet few of us take time to find a suitable answer.

Beginning Sunday, Religious Emphasis Week will be sponsored on the East Carolina campus by the Inter-religious council, offering to each of us an opportunity to have guided counsel in reaching a satisfactory solution to this and other problems.

The speaker, the Reverend Ray Holder of Raleigh, is well qualified as a "man of the hour" for our needs. The seminar groups, conducted by competent laymen and ministers, are planned for your convenience in sharing your problems with others and seeking together adequate solutions. Personal conferences may be arranged with the speaker or the seminar leaders.

From our point of view, an ideal situation on the campus would be one in which a vital working religion played a pre-eminent part in the lives of each student and faculty member. Such a situation, however, lies only in the realm of the ideal. It is a sad commentary that it takes a particular week of activities to focus our thoughts on our spiritual needs. Yet if the focus of our coming Religious Emphasis Week should show, even to a few of us, our relationships toward God and our fellow men and help us build stamina for living courageously in the present world emergency, then the ideal will have progressed far toward reality.

LONGER TRAINING FOR TEACHERS?

In a recent article published in the "School Executive" Dr. John D. Messick advocates six year's training and a master's degree for the beginning teacher. This six year's training would consist of a four year undergraduate program followed by a year of student teaching with the awarding of the bachelor of arts degree at the end of this fifth year. According to the plan the student would then return to the campus for a sixth year and a master's degree.

We are not so positive that the plan would result in better teaching. The longer period of training would drive away from the teaching profession many of its best prospects who could not afford to spend that much time in school for the small salaries teachers receive. The program would lose as much as it gained.

Many persons advocate that it is best for the young teacher to get into the field to gain experience before going on with the master's degree. We would like to see progress made along the educational lines leading to betterment of teacher training and the quality of the teachers produced, but we do not feel that the emphasis should be on a longer period of training. Rather there needs to be more emphasis placed on bettering the already existing courses in the present curriculum.

LEGISLATURE FAVORS COMMUNITY CHEST

Just prior to the Christmas holidays the Student Legislature voted to accept a bill presented by Gene Hart, president of the YMCA, in which the Legislature went on record as favoring the establishment of a Community Chest on the East Carolina campus.

While much disagreement and argument had been forseen when the bill came before the Legislature, it was passed with surprisingly little bickering. Instead there was a more mature questioning and then final acceptance of the system. The Legislature is to be congratulated.

But for the Community Chest plan to succeed, many details remain to be ironed out by the Legislature. Let us hope they will be solved with as little difficulty as the general plan was accepted. If the plan is to succeed it must have the cooperation of each individual and organization on campus who will make one big, concerted effort to reach a goal they set for themselves. It is the duty of the president of every organization on campus to inform those he represents of the Community Chest plan and how important everyone take an active part in this successful venture.

ETAOIN and SHRDLU

by Rexford E. Piner

The current unsettled world situation is causing quite a stir among college students all over the country who are studying to fit themselves for participation in our strange "civilization." Many are wondering if they should remain in college as long as possible, if they should quit now and stay home as long as possible, or if they should just give up and enlist. The draft, reserves and National Guard are keeping all of the college males jittery.

College officials all over the country are urging the students to remain in college as long as possible "because the service needs men like you." Now that's a paradox! If the men quit college now they may have to go into the service, and if they stay in school the military will be seeking them out. We don't have a chance. As college men throughout the nation have described the situation, "What's the use?"

The University of Oklahoma reports that uncertain conditions in the world have resulted in poor morale and low grades on that campus. Forty-six per cent of the students came through with grades of "D" or "F" for the mid-semester. Even the girls are jittery, declared the university's counselor of women. Personally, we feel they have a legitimate excuse.

"The Lenoir Rhynean" of Lenoir Rhyne college reports that 24 students from that institution have withdrawn to enter the service. The latest word from High Point college has it that over 40 of their students have left for the service with the Air Force receiving the majority of the enlistments.

According to the "Old Gold and Black" of Wake Forest, "The current world situation, chief topic of speculation here, has certainly extended its influence to this campus, as an estimated 65 students have entered the armed services during and since the holidays." Speculation? That's an understatement! The paper reports that the trend at Wake Forest has definitely been toward voluntary enlistment as draft jittery students throng recruiting stations of the Air Force, Navy and Coast Guard.

At East Carolina, Registrar J. K. Long reported Wednesday that 106 men have left the college to enter service.

We haven't heard anything from Women's college yet concerning the "present world situation."

The Veterans club went on record at their last meeting as being opposed to the establishment of the Honor System on the East Carolina campus. We are happy to see this organization take the initiative in presenting the plan to its members. We hope the members of the club were well enough acquainted with the system to make wise judgement. Every club on the campus should discuss the Honor System and decide whether they want it here or not. It's important and whether the decision of the Veterans club agrees with this columnist or not, we congratulate that energetic group, which has been so valuable to campus life at East Carolina, for recognizing and accepting a responsibility every organization on the campus should realize.

Al Livesay, president of the Student Government association, tells us that there are rumors circulating that janitors are selling text books to students. If this report is true janitors should be warned that the practice cannot be tolerated. It is, however, the fault of the students if such a practice does actually exist, for where there is no market there can be no sales. We hope the rumor has arisen from an isolated case and does not reflect widespread practice.

The Student legislature held what was probably one of the shortest sessions it has ever had Wednesday evening. The Legislature adjourned after meeting for 18 minutes. It usually takes the full hour and a half.

College Band Gives Concert At Dedication Of New Pitt Hospital

The East Carolina concert band made its first public appearance of the year when it played as a preliminary to dedication ceremonies at Pitt Memorial hospital yesterday.

Under the direction of Herbert Carter, who has directed the music group for the past four years, the 60-piece band presented a half-hour concert in front of the administration wing of the building and played several band selections while the seats on the lawn filled up.

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Anne Jones

Equally capable of handling the football and the presidency of the senior class, Leon Ellis of Siler City possesses the rare quality of being an athlete and a campus leader. Ellis, better known to his friends as "Shot" came to East Carolina in 1948.

Ellis is doing his practice teaching this quarter in Ayden High school where he is coaching the junior varsity basketball team and the midjet team. While in school he has minored in social studies.

Before entering college Ellis served as a corporal in the United States Marine corps. He saw action on Iwo Jima with the Fifth Marine division and was then transferred to Japan where he was stationed for a year after the war was over.

Ellis started his college career in 1943 when he entered the University of North Carolina, staying there until the spring of 1944. After gaining a discharge from the Marine corps he came to East Carolina, "liked the place and decided to stay here." He plans to graduate with his class in May.

As a member of the mighty pirate football team for the past three years, "Shot" has made a valuable contribution to the prestige of the team holding down the position of right guard. He likes to play football and puts his all into the game. More than that, he is a member of the team and works with the rest of the team for victory.

This man seems to have an interest in a well rounded list of extra curricular activities. This year he is a member of Pi Sigma Pi, Circle K, The Varsity club, the Veterans club and the Student Legislature. Last year he served as treasurer of the junior class.

Leon Ellis

After looking over the list of candidates for the senior class president last year several of his friends decided Ellis was the man for the job and added his name to the list. With "Cutworm" Thomas Alston as his campaign manager he won by a good majority. "I didn't win because of my looks, but by virtue of my scholarship," Ellis states jokingly. Just to pass the time away Ellis likes to hunt and fish, even if he does always miss the shot and catch the littliest fish (so he says anyway). He also likes to see the dog races at Morehead.

"We have a fine senior class, I think both in number and attitude, and a surplus in the treasury," Ellis also commented favorably on the junior senior dance last year. "It was one of the best and prettiest decorated I have ever attended anywhere," he stated.

Last summer he, along with several other boys from East Carolina, were associated with the Bright Belt Baseball league in Farmville. "Shot" umpired.

As a member of the Student legislature Ellis serves as chairman of the ring committee which was appointed to investigate the possibility of securing a standard ring for the college.

With a spirit of humility and cooperativeness Ellis goes about his duties as senior class president. He is not a run of the mill politician. He always tries to give the other class officers a vote in the way the business is carried on.

His friends never know when to stop teasing him, but he is always a good sport and takes all of it on the up and up. Possessing a good sense of humor himself, he usually has a word or two for the ones who like to tease him or to be teased.

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Jean Head

Can you believe that half the quarter is all but over. This is supposed to be the shortest quarter, however, and it has really slipped by! When a freshman, the time doesn't pass fast enough, but that senior year seems to be short here and long gone—so is life.

The girls over at Woman's hall are having a lot of vacancies this quarter, some of the girls have dropped out of school, and some have vacated to places on campus.

We hear, also, that "The Dungeon" doesn't have a full house anymore. Heard a whisper that it's a little noisy down that way at night; what can you expect—doesn't Hoover Britt grace those grounds. The rumor is going around that Hoover is going to leave for the Army soon. Howard Carmichael, Bob Bailey and Keith Melvin have gone. Hawk Grissom and Charlie Batchelor are sharing each other's clothes in Wilson, and Illard Yearbrough has set up housekeeping in Slay.

While in the Y-store this week we heard the following names mentioned. How are these for nicknames.

- "Catfish" "Toddy"
- "Bear" "Foxhole"
- "Hogjaw" "Hawk"
- "Nose" "Cutworm"
- "Whammy" "Pee-Wee"

Pretty good—huh?
Have you noticed the sparkle in Mac McConaghey's eyes this week? This might be due to the fact that "the old woman" (quoted from Mac) is coming down this week end.

There is a new helper in the dining hall by the name of Mickey Berman. He's there to greet you at 7:15 in the morning and he "loves" his hours.

Here's a news-flash that's hot off the wire! Johnny Winston, who graduated here last year, has been named Honor Man of his company. Johnny is in the Navy, stationed at San Deigo.

Notice

Students who paid .25 deposit to see the basketball game with Catawba December 14, and those who paid .75 deposit to see the Norfolk Navy game January 5, because they did not have their student cards with them, may receive these deposits by presenting their student cards to Dr. John O. Reynolds in his office in Austin 1-B (basement).

MILES BEHIND THE MIKE

by Miles Buck

The 1951 March of Dimes drive got underway this week. Everyone here on the campus is lending a hand. Dr. Browning is county chairman. Al Berman and members of the Commerce club are conducting a house-to-house drive. We also understand speakers and entertainers are going out as units to the schools and other organizations in the county. Dr. Posey is guiding the speakers and Dr. Willman and the music department are taking care of the entertainment. Thursday night at 8:30 Bernie Ham will work a show for the March of Dimes with Al Harrington handling the speech end of the show.

Religious Emphasis week gets underway Sunday night in Austin. The committee has worked hard to bring the best in speakers to the campus for this period of religious activity. In chapel last Tuesday Al Livesay said that we don't need religious emphasis, but rather we need to stop and evaluate our religious thinking. Now would be a good time for all of us to take time out from our hurried life and think about our Christian convictions, the things we have long taken for granted.

Here's an item for you Dixieland fans. The irrepressible Eddie Condon has gathered thirteen Dixieland jassmen to play "We Called it Music" (Decca, ten-inch). Several of the ten tunes receive the big-band treatment but they are sympathetically arranged in gentle jam-session style and give opportunities for almost everybody to solo. Some of the artists making these records include: Bobby Hackett, Max Kaminsky, Pee Wee Russell, Joe Bushkin and George Wettling. Five of the more-or-less familiar numbers are enhanced by Jack Teagarden's relaxed vocals.

Carl Sandburg sings "New Songs from the American Songbag" (Lyricord ten-inch) in the gravelly voice and intense mood that has made him famous. He sings with the accompaniment of his guitar and turns up some fine old tunes, "Sam Hail," "Careless Love," "The Boll Weevil Song," and "The Horse Named Bill," among them.

We understand Herb Carter is

Did You Know That---

Echos of the TECO ECHO anniversary dance are still with us? Following is a portion of a letter from Miss Mamie Jenkins, founder of the TECO ECHO: "I wish to thank you for the invitation to the TECO ECHO anniversary ball and for the courtesies extended to me as one of the persons responsible for the paper." I congratulate you on the success of the celebration, I rejoice in the success of the paper and feel sure it will maintain its high standards. I wish all the ex-editors could have answered the roll call. I am proud of their records. No memories of activities with which I was associated stand out more vividly than those connected with the TECO ECHO, especially in the earliest days when it could carry on without help. I was recalled as advisor when the able editor fell at his desk, his chief assistants had been called into service and two girls who had had little experience had to take charge. I'll never forget their heroic efforts and their success. By the way, I understand that both these girls are now professional newspapermen. Again, I wish to thank you and your associates for remembering me. I am still flaunting the corsage as the symbol of the happy occasion, and thank the staff for that." Miss Jenkins has watched this college grow from the first brick down to the latest buildings, from the first graduate to the latest, her main interest in life has been for many years and still is her college—East Carolina.

TRADE BITS

Plans are being made in the dean's office at Appalachian State Teachers college to set up a file to keep in touch with all the students who leave the college to enter military service. College information will be sent to the boys from time to time by Appalachian.

The Little Theatre of Wake Forest college has selected "Macbeth" for its third annual Shakespearean production. It is to be given during the Magnolia Festival in March.

The editors of Muhlenberg college's paper, the Muhlenberg Weekly, gave their readers a chance to talk back recently. They conducted an evaluation poll of the paper among the student body. Students and faculty were asked to rate the regular weekly columns either good, fair or poor. In addition, the paper had students fill out forms indicating what types of articles they would like to see more of in the paper. Included in the comments received were the following suggestions: "Insert a column of jokes," "Cut down on the advertising" and "Get rid of the Editor." The editor must have been a bold fellow to run such a survey.

According to the Hastings Collegian, one of students at that school conducted a one man survey to see if professors actually read all the term papers required in a course. He inserted a paragraph in some collateral notes stating that he didn't believe teachers read what pupils write, and asking the prof to underline the paragraph if he read it. The paper was returned—unmarked.

A new fad has hit the University of Nebraska Campus. Instead of being pinmates, it is strictly the latest thing in love affairs for a couple to be "Cuffmates." To become "cuffed" the only thing a fellow needs to have is a pair of dime-store police handcuffs which he and his girl may sport together.

At the University of North Carolina the dance committee ruled that any girl leaving a campus dance intending to return must be escorted by a chaperone during her entire stay from the dance hall. How does that sound, girls?

Here's one for the boys who are anxiously awaiting their call from the draft board. According to the Daily Lass-O, an ex-GI at the University of Alabama advertised for a wife wife with 15 children. His explanation was that he was stationed in Korea after the last war and did not want to go back.

SPORTS ECHO

BY LLOYD WHITFIELD

When the 1950-51 cage season opened, Coach Howard Porter had a crop of green and inexperienced freshmen on hand plus four holdovers from last year's fifth place team. After weeks of intensive drills these cagers developed into a ball club that had the potentialities of winning ball games, pulling major upsets and finishing in the first division in the loop. In their first conference outing they were highly impressive in a one-sided victory over Guilford. Using their unusual height to an extreme advantage the Bucs took to the courts after the holidays to register a resounding victory over a strong Catawba five.

Then came the game of the year—East Carolina vs. High Point's Purple Panthers. How would the Bucs stand up under the league's best? They made a magnificent showing in losing a 59-58, closely fought contest that saw the lead change hands at least a dozen times. Two nights later another test arose for the Pirates against undefeated Appalachian and they did it again. They registered another surprise win by shelling the defending conference champs 71-55. The local five looked highly impressive in these contests, and was beginning to put a little scare in the other members of the loop.

Come last Saturday night and the Bucs needed a victory to put them in undisputed possession of second place, only one game behind the undefeated High Point Panthers. The Pirates were scheduled to play Lenoir-Rhyne that night and to the delight of 1,500 spectators the Pirates had a 15-0 lead after five minutes of play. At halftime they were leading by ten points and were still hot when the half ended. However, a hustling and aggressive Lenoir-Rhyne five came charging back with a pressing defense and a faster type of ball to win the ball game.

On Monday night of this week the Bucs journeyed to Salisbury to take on the Catawba Indians in a return engagement, and came out on the short end of a 66-57 score. The locals did not look too impressive in these games and the losses put them in fifth place in the loop with three victories and three defeats.

BUCS LOOK GOOD AGAINST APPALACHIAN

Against the Appalachian Mountaineers the Pirates played one of their better ball games in racking up a one-sided 71-55 victory. The Apps are defending conference champions and have a good ball club this year which will spell plenty of trouble. If they had been hitting their shots against the locals, the score would not have been so high in favor of the locals. One thing that handicapped the Mountaineers in that contest was their style of play during the first half. They have a tall ball club, had been playing some of the smaller clubs in the conference, and could work the ball into the basket easily. The guards would set up out front and make passes over the head of the opposition. The Apps' tall center would jump under the basket and take the pass, shooting while in the air. It was a quick two points for the Mountain boys.

However, against East Carolina, who has a team that averages in height somewhere around 6'3", the Apps were not able to do this. They did attempt to do it throughout the first half and found the local defense too tough for that style of play.

Overheard at the games . . . "Why don't the boys pass the ball to Russell more than they do? Everytime they come down court and set up, Russell seldom sees the ball." That is true! Russell is not the cog of Porter's basketball machine this year. When things started out, everybody seemed to be dependent upon Russell to win all the ball games by himself, but there are five boys on East Carolina's starting lineup this season with equal ability. Every man is capable of fooling the opposition and driving in for two points. Russell is good—in fact he is darn good, but he should not be depended upon for everything. East Carolina does not want a one man team.

Another thing that cramps his style is the type of ball that the Pirates operate from. He is not able to show his effectiveness as he did in his scholastic years when he ran from the single post at New Bern High school.

That is true of all the ball players, but they have to learn the style of ball employed at East Carolina and play it, but good. With the crop of ball players that Porter has on hand presently, the locals should definitely develop into conference champions in the next couple of years. Fennell is the only one who will be lost in the next two years.

NEW GYM IS TOO SMALL

We wonder what was in mind when East Carolina decided to build a new gymnasium with only 2,500 seats and 18-foot floor clearance on the court. The gym is small and the rapid rate of increased enrollments will cause East Carolina fans to begin yelling for a gym with more seating capacity. It will probably be a long time before we get another gym, so why build one with only 2,500 seats when there are 2,000 students in school here. Enrollments are bound to increase. Dr. H. A. Coleman presented this writer with Kiplinger's Business Report Tuesday and it stated that Elementary students would increase by 1958 by six and one half million and that high school students would increase from six and one half million to eight million, so you can see that college enrollments are bound to increase along with the scholastic attendance. At the rate this college has grown in the past, we will be crucially in need of a new gym again in 1960.

Girls' Intramural Tourney Gets Underway Friday Night

Play in the women's campus-wide basketball tournament will get underway tonight in Wright gymnasium with the first tilt scheduled to begin at 6:15 when the Red Cats take on the Ragsdale quintet. Four games will be played with the Fleming Tops playing the Puppets at 7 o'clock, Cotten Red Devils clashing with the Dare Devils at 7:45 and the Wolverines drawing a bye for 8:30.

Frances Douglas, a junior from Washington, N.C., is directing this year's girls' intramural program and announced Wednesday that there will be three games a night with one team drawing a bye. Assisting Miss Douglas in the direction of the tourney are Miss Nell Stallings and Miss Margaret Tift, members of the East Carolina physical education department. Ida Mae Garrington is serving as publicity director for the event and will be responsible for the schedule and posters.

There are 80 girls participating actively in the classic excluding the officials which will come from Miss Stallings' officiating class. There are eight teams with each dormitory being represented. The schedule as it stands consists of 28 games, with the campus champion being the team with the best won-lost record at the

Catawba Registers 66-57 Revenge Win Over Pirate Five

Catawba's Indians, seeking revenge for the terrible licking handed them by Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina cagers earlier this month, took to their home court Monday night to register a 66-57 North State conference victory which sent the Indians into fourth place, two games ahead of the Pirates.

The victors were paced by a high scoring All-conference guard, Larry Graham, who tallied 24 points in the contest. Charlie Huffman, outstanding Buccaneer freshman cage star, contributed 19 to lead his team's scoring parade. Through the scrappy and aggressive play of Lou Collie and Toddy Fennell the Bucs managed to make it a rough first half for the Indians with the lead changing hands on almost every goal. Catawba pulled out front with only two minutes left in the first half, taking a 35-33 margin at intermission.

East Carolina had a miserable night at the basket and was not able to make many of their shots when they were open. However, the play of reserve forward Lou Collie, Bobby Hodges and All-conference forward Sonny Russell gave the home crowd something to talk about. Collie played perhaps his best game of the season before leaving the game with five personal fouls late in the second period. Hodges and Russell completely dominated the backboards in the initial period, but the shooting accuracy of Catawba proved to be the initiative needed for the nine-point victory.

Winter Football Drills In Full Swing For Bucs

Coach Bill Dole began sending his regulars through winter football drills Monday afternoon in college stadium with 18 newcomers on hand. The popular East Carolina grid men expect 40 to 45 players to turn out for the wintry drills which have proven valuable assistance in the past.

Dole, as other coaches in the nation, will not be able to plan anything definite for next year due to the national emergency, but barring no complications he expects to field a strong eleven next year loaded with sophomores and juniors.

Lost from last year's surprising North State conference team will be one of the nation's top passers and All-State quarterback, Roger Thrift; All-conference end, Frank Maennele; and Buck Wilson, center; Leon Ellis, guard; Johnny Smith, fullback; Bill Darby, halfback; and Billy Smith, halfback.

Most of this week's time has been spent issuing equipment and in conditioning exercises, with the rough stuff and play executions expected to come in the latter part of next week.

Russell, Fennell Lead Pirate Cagers To 71-55 Win Over Apps

Athlete Of The Week

Basketball Captain "Toddy" Fennell, 21-year-old junior from Wilmington, is this column's choice for the TECO ECHO "Athlete of the Week." A virtual dynamo of energy on a basketball court, this 5' 10" center runs the enemy defense ragged through his frequently successful efforts to elude them.

An agile and very fast player, he drives through time after time to set up plays or to sink crisp shots. A man to be guarded closely by the opposition, "Toddy" is equally deadly with set shots from mid-court, and with short crisp shots from a dead run. This same agility and speed also make him a very valuable man on defense for the Pirates.

Now in his third year of varsity play at East Carolina, Fennell has succeeded Len Bauer as team captain for the 1951 season.

In the North State conference basketball tournament in 1949, Fennell, as a freshman, scored 17 points against Western Carolina Teachers college, and he says this game was one of his best.

A basketball letter winner each of his three years here, he has been a member of the Varsity club for as long a time, and this year he became a member of the Circle K club. He says he has no particular hobbies, but enjoys playing tennis when he can find the time.

At New Hanover High school in Wilmington, a large consolidated county school with consistently outstanding athletic teams, Fennell lettered each of his four years in basketball and baseball. In his junior and senior years, he played with his basketball team in the Duke-Durham Southern Invitational tournament, an annual affair which sees the best high school teams throughout the South vying for championship honors in Duke Indoor stadium. "Toddy" was honored, as a junior, by selection to the All-tournament second team. More honors came his way in his senior prep year, when he was an All-Eastern conference guard, and an All-State guard.

When quizzed about his future plans, "Toddy" states that, if the army does not get him, he's going to graduate.

Everything in a modern house is controlled by a switch except the children.

Bucs Never Trail In Impressive Win Over Mountaineers

With Sonny Russell and Toddy Fennell hitting for 20 points each, the East Carolina cagers scored a major upset in the North State conference last Friday when they ran roughshod over a previously unbeaten Appalachian five, 71-55.

The loss sent the Mountaineers into second place in the loop standings with four wins and one loss. As a result of the victory, the locals shared the second spot with the visitors with an identical record.

The Buccaneers were headed in the ball game only one time, and that was in the opening minutes when the losers scored first on a field goal by Tom Lancaster. After that the Bucs caught fire and ripped the cords with amazing accuracy.

Hold Commanding Lead At halftime, the locals held a commanding 33-23 lead over the fast type of ball that Appalachian was playing.

In the second half the Pirate cagers began to pour on the steam and hit for almost two points a minute. The tall and highly publicized Appalachian team never was able to show their powers which had brought them the conference championship in 1950, and had them riding atop the loop this season. They had a miserable night at the basket as they were able to make only 34 points on field goals.

Call In Reserves With four of the Mountaineers' starters out of the lineup on personal fouls and three of the local players out of the game on fouls, both clubs had to call on their reserve strength. The Bucs proved superior in that department as they scored almost at will in the last minutes.

Ex-Navy Grid Hero May Register Here In Spring Quarter

Dave Bannerman, the 222-pound fullback who played havoc for Navy in the annual Army-Navy game in 1950, brought his transcript to Dr. J. K. Long, registrar at East Carolina, on Wednesday of last week. However, Dr. Long said that it was indefinite as to Bannerman's enrollment at the college. "Bannerman only brought us his transcript and inquired as to what credits he would need to graduate at East Carolina," Long stated.

Bannerman resigned from the Naval Academy after his marriage to Manette Chancy, daughter of an Academy professor. He is a resident of Carolina Beach, N.C., and was the star in Navy's 14-2 upset over Army this past fall which knocked the Cadets' two-year undefeated record to pieces.

Bucs, Fighting Christians Meet Saturday Night

Saturday night Elon's new gymnasium, with a seating capacity of around 5,000, will be invaded by Coach Howard Porter's potent East Carolina cagers when the Buccaneers meet the inexperienced Elon college five at eight o'clock. The Fighting Christians journey to Greenville for a return engagement in Wright gymnasium Tuesday night.

Little is known of the strength of the Elon five, except they are a leading contender for the conference title, and are capable of registering upsets that could make sports history within the North State.

Elon Upset High Point In '49 Last year in the conference's annual dribble derby at Statesville the Christians knocked off High Point in the opening round of play. The journey decides the NS champions, and the Panthers were strong favorites to cop the title without too much difficulty.

In conference games played through Monday of this week, Elon had a record of two wins compared with three losses. They had scored 321 points and the opposition had tallied 338, which shows that most of their games had been won by close counts.

Porter Hopes to Break Jinx Meanwhile, Coach Porter's cagers have been running through intensive drills in hopes of bettering their present conference record. Also, the Bucs will be attempting to rid of a road jinx that has plagued them for the past several seasons. In the last two years East Carolina has not been able to play .500 ball on the road.

Leading the Pirates into tomorrow night's battle will be the regular five which includes All-conference Sonny Russell, and serious threats for berths on the mythical North State team, Toddy Fennell, Charlie Huffman, Bobby Hodges and John Postas.

Pirates Falter In Second Half For 62-51 Loss

Holding a commanding 15-0 lead after five minutes of play and 10-point 34-24 lead at halftime, East Carolina's offense fell completely apart in the second half and Lenoir-Rhyne's Bears coasted to an easy 62-51 victory over the Pirates in a major North State conference engagement here Saturday night.

It was the second loss in five conference outings for the Bucs who had previously on Friday night knocked the leading Appalachian Mountaineers from the top with a stunning 71-55 victory.

Bucs Take Big Lead The Bucs opened up early and fast to pile up a 15-0 lead mainly through the efforts of Sonny Russell, Toddy Fennell and Bobby Hodges, and it appeared from there on out that the contest would be a rout for the home team. After 5:02 of play Tony Sellari hit on a crisp shot to start the Bear scoring. By halftime the visitors had closed the gap so East Carolina was leading 34-24.

Immediately after intermission Sellari quickly closed the gap with three straight field goals to cut the Pirates lead to 36-33. Two minutes and forty-five seconds of playing time had elapsed when the Bears came within reach of the Pirates.

Bears Move Ahead With the aggressiveness of a mountain lion, the Lenoir Rhyne five knotted the score at 42-42 after Willard Neighbors had hit on a one-handed push shot. Then for the first time the victors moved ahead 44-42 when Bull Newsome tipped in a rebound. At 13:10 the Bucs moved out front 50-48 when Lou Collie hit on a field goal, but the Bear's little guard, Billy Wells, began to hit from all sectors of the court and the visitors went ahead to stay.

In the last half the Bruin coach, Jim Hamilton, elected to employ the pressing defense against Coach Porter's cagers, and it paid a great dividends as the Bucs were able to muster only six field goals in the last half.

Record Number Of Seniors Doing Student Teaching Oppelt Reveals

Ninety-Six Gaining Practical Experience in Fifteen Schools

East Carolina Teachers college has at present the largest number of seniors doing student teaching in its history, according to information from the office of Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of student teaching and placement at the college. Ninety-six men and women are now gaining practical experience as teachers in various public schools of eastern North Carolina, says a recent report in which Dr. Oppelt gives facts and figures relating to the work being done during the present winter quarter in the training of students for careers in education.

Of the 96 students engaged in teaching, the report reveals, 90 are North Carolinians. Women outnumber men 54 to 42. During the winter quarter last year 62 seniors, including 35 men and 27 women, were included in the student teaching program at East Carolina.

15 Schools Participating

Fifteen schools are participating in the program at present. The Greenville High school, with 29 student teachers, leads in numbers; and the Training school on the college campus follows closely with a total of 23 teachers. Five of those having assignments in the local high school are music majors and are also teaching music in the elementary grades of either the Training school or the West Greenville school.

Work is being done by student teachers this quarter in all grades from the first through the twelfth, and in various departments of instruction in the secondary schools. All teaching is supervised by college faculty members and supervising teachers in the public schools.

Schools other than those in Greenville and the number of student teachers assigned to each are as follows: Tarboro, 4; Winterville, 4; Grimesland, 7; Washington, 4; Bethel, 4; Chicod, 2; Belvoir, 3; Farmville, 5; Scotland Neck, 2; Ayden, 4; Bell Arthur, 2; Rocky Mount, 2; and Robertsonville, 1.

Those teaching in Greenville High school are: Jan H. Albritton, Snow Hill; Thomas C. Alston, Louisburg; James Cicero Avery, Dover; Doris B. Brinson, Nashville; Polly F. Brown, New Bern; Carl G. Conner, Windsor; Lawrence Duncan, New Bern; Allen R. Dupree, Plymouth; Mary Frances Everett, Kinston; William H. Flanders, Durham; Jonathan W. Foley, Jr., Greenville; Mary Wallace Foy, Pollocksville; Thomas Giles, Lexington; James L. Griffin, Jr., Scranton; Sam Guthrie, Wanchese; Annette Hughes, Willard; Alfred Kreckler, Gothenburg, Nebraska; Frances Ann Lewis, New Bern; Robert Lindereth, Red Bank, N. J.; Annie Rose Mallard, Trenton; Robert A. Mays, Hopewell, Va.; James E. Salter, New Bern; Muriel F. Shotwell, Greenville; Lewis Bert Smith, Cameron; William Carter Smith, Cary; Marshall G. Warren, Roseboro; Elmer E. Williams, Washington; Lillian H. Wooten, Greenville; and Boyd Elliot, Thomasville.

Student teachers now doing work in the Training school are Hattie E. Bailey, Williamston; Lillian Ann Bennett, Lumberton; Frances Jean Bizzell, Kinston; Dorothy R. Boyette, Kenly; Beulah Causey, Greenville; Marie S. Cherry, Fayetteville; Jean McG. Collie, Greenville; Frances M. Dixon, Walstonburg; Ann S. Earp, Clarks; Gilda Grimes, Mt. Olive; Ella Jean Jackson, Angier; Evelyn E. Kornegay, Albertson; Molly G. Leggett, Kinston; Lina W. Mays, Greenville; Eva Norris, Peletier; Ann Oakley, Greenville; Doris Pleasant, Angier; Florence B. Pope, Scotland Neck; Anneta C. Pridgen, Greenville; Dorothy Rhoads, Beulaville; Marjory Williams, Seven Springs; Sallie Bett Wilson, Henderson; and Lola Joyce Zeh, Vanceboro.

Teaching in Pitt County

Teaching in other Pitt County Schools are: WINTERVILLE—Ellen Buffkin, Tabor City; Peggy Jean Hart, Ayden; Becky Holcomb Hughes, Grifton; and Neil Taylor Stout, Star; GRIMESLAND—Winfred H. Bunch, Greenville; Helen Kleinert, Kenly; Frank R. McCotter, Vandemere; John F. Morris, Stella; James B. Pearce, Micro; Thelma E. Russ, Kelly; B. Grace Sugg, Snow Hill; BETHEL—Joseph W. Congleton, Littleton; Gene M. Hart, Kinston; Ramona Hobgood, Oxford; Lois McCormick, Sanford; CHICOD—Creighton Cuthrell, Louisburg; Susan C. Smith, Goldsboro; BELVOIR—Worth D. Dalton, Lewisville; Paul C. Trotman, Jr., Norfolk, Va.; Herschel M. Tyson, Bell Arthur; FARMVILLE—Helen Duncan, Murfreesboro; Martha Carolyn Koonce, Aurora; Joseph A. Lanham, Farmville; Laura Swain, Aurora; Jack L. Wallace, Bath; AYDEN—Leon Ellis, Siler City; Howard Leon Jones, Thomasville; Patricia G. Sutton, Kinston; Henry S. Wood, Greenville; BELL ARTHUR—James B. Fly, Kinston; Bruce H. Pope, Bell Arthur.

Vernon Tyson of Greenville is now teaching industrial arts in the city schools of Tarboro.

Science Journals Publish Articles By EC Instructor

Dr. Theodore H. Eaton, Jr., faculty member of the department of science at East Carolina, has recently contributed articles to two journals of interest to scientists.

His study "Origin of Tetrapod Limbs" will appear in the near future in the "American Midland Naturalist," published by the University of Notre Dame. The article presents new evidence on the anatomy and activities of certain extinct fishes of the coal age, and a discussion of the earliest land animals, of the same period. "The Uranium Clock," also by Dr. Eaton, was included in the October, 1930, issue of "Frontiers," a publication of the Philadelphia Academy of Sciences. The article describes the method by which the age of rocks can be measured as a result of the radioactive breakdown of uranium into lead.

Dr. Eaton joined the faculty of East Carolina last September. He is a graduate of Cornell and the University of California, and has taught at various universities and colleges, including the University of California, the University of Buffalo, N. Y., and the Georgetown Medical school. He is the author of more than fifty published scientific articles in zoology and paleontology and of a text in comparative anatomy scheduled for publication by Harper and Bros. this year.

Emma L. Hoopr, faculty member of the department of English, (shown above, seated at right), has been faculty sponsor of a chapter of the Future Teachers of America longer than any other person in North Carolina and in point of service ranks third in the nation. The Robert H. Wright chapter at East Carolina, chartered May 10, 1939, is the oldest active chapter in this state and the seventh oldest in the United States. Miss Hooper is founder of the chapter here. She is pictured above chatting about chapter activities with student officers of the group (left to right): Carolyn R. Howerton, Woodsdale, program chairman; Evelyn M. Jernigan, Lewiston, of the membership committee; and Gertrude Watts, Whiteville, treasurer. (East Carolina News Bureau Photo)
