Carolina Playmakers Slated To Appear At East Carolina

Shakespearean Play Under Sponsorship Of Local Music Group

The Carolina Playmakers of the University of North Carolina will be arriving in Greenville by charter bus on February 13th to present their production of "Romeo and Juliet" under the sponsorship of the Greenville Music club.

Charles A. White of Greenville today announced that all details have been worked out for the local appearance of the group, and has expressed his great pleasure in bringing such a highly entertaining and cultural play to the stage here.

To Be In College Theatre
The production will be presented in the new college theatre on the East Carolina campus at 8 o'clock on the night of February 13. Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

"Romeo and Juliet" is considered by many the most majestic of William Shakespeare's tragedies. Dealing with conflicting themes of romance and intrigue, it tells in lyric poetry the tale of the courtship, secret marriage, and tragic death of the world's two most famous lovers.

The Playmakers will limit the February tour to this state, and it will be the 42nd company sent out in their history. The 43rd tour, in April, will take the same play into several southeastern states, including South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi.

Production Hailed
The present production opened in Chapel Hill November 28 of last year, and was scheduled for five performances. It aroused so much comment from opening night audiences and critics that it was held over for an extra showing. Critics hail it as the high point in a very bright season at Chapel Hill.

Lavish costumes and settings, in keeping with the play's spirit, have been designed and executed by Irene Smart and Lynn Gault, both members of the Playmaker staff. A program of music, consisting of period songs and chants, have been arranged as background by Frank Groseclose of Atlanta, Georgia, and a clever lighting arrangement is executed by Edward Fitzpatrick, also of the staff. Samuel Selden, chairman of the dramatic art department, personally directs the show.

21 In Company
Each of the company's 21 members will handle one part of the technical job, such as lighting or costuming. The heavy, elaborate scenery will travel by truck.

White said today that tickets for the February 13 performance here will be available at Bissette's Drug store, beginning February 10.

Campus To Be Lighted With Sixty-Six New Street Lamps Soon

A report issued from the office of F. D. Duncan, treasurer of East Carolina, states that the 66 new street lamps being installed on the campus will be turned on "within a short time." The treasurer reported that the cost of the new lamps and installation is approximately $15,495.

The new lighting system extends along all streets on the campus, but centralizes along driveways and walks leading to buildings. More lights have been installed along the road to the athletic field and lights are in evidence all the way to the new gymnasium now under construction.

Standards for lamps have also been set up around the power plant on campus and Slay hall, men's dormitory.

Elliot Lawrence Will Appear On Campus For Dance, Concert

Patton And Riccardo Sing With Young Band On February 16 Jaunt

Elliot Lawrence, his piano and his orchestra will play for a concert from 8 until 9 and a dance from 9:30 until midnight on the East Carolina campus in the Wright auditorium Friday night, February 16.

Lawrence, the youngest "name" bandleader in the nation (he was born in 1925), has spent a number of years trying to acquire the musicians who make up the youthful orchestra. Also to appear with the Lawrence band are singers Rosalind Patton and Danny Riccardo.

Elliot Lawrence has gone to college more than anyone else in the nation. The smiling, youthful pianist is not long removed from the halls of the University of Pennsylvania, yet he has journeyed across the country, visiting over 300 colleges and universities, meeting thousands of students. Yet this young wanderer holds only one degree—from the University of Pennsylvania where he majored in music and won the highest academic award they offer.

The youthful bandmaster was picked this year by the Barizon models as one of the ten most attractive men in America. He was also picked as one of the Ten Best Dressed Men in the country by the Custom Tailors' Guild of America.

The annual dance is sponsored by the Entertainment committee of the Student Government association. Each student will be allowed to purchase one guest ticket at $1.80. It is necessary that this ticket be obtained at the Budget office before 6 p.m., February 16. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Phillips To Teach Series Of Math Lessons In Future

Dr. Orval L. Phillips of East Carolina will teach a series of demonstration lessons in mathematics in various schools of Lenoir county in the near future. Plans for the lessons developed during a meeting held on Tuesday, January 23, at the Deep Run High school. As director of the Bureau of Field Services at the college, Dr. Phillips is in charge of extension and adult education offered by East Carolina.

At the Deep Run meeting, Dr. Phillips talked to a large group of teachers of mathematics on the subject "Meaningful Division." Attending the conference were approximately 125 representatives of the teaching staffs of schools of Lenoir county, including teachers in elementary school and high school and seven principals.

Valentine Dance

A Valentine dance will be held Saturday, February 10, from 8:30 to 11:45 p.m. in the Wright auditorium. Bob Lee and his orchestra will play for the affair being sponsored by the Commerce club and Pi Omega Pi, honorary business education fraternity. Al Berman, president of the Commerce club has stated that the dance will be semi-formal and for couples only. Refreshments will be served Berman has stated. Admission, $1.00 per couple.

System To Seek Improvement In Quality Of Instruction

Students of East Carolina will be able to rate their instructors at the end of the present quarter, Frank G. Fuller of the department of education of the college has announced. Fuller is chairman of the Faculty Rating committee which has drawn up a sheet on which students may rate faculty members.

Heads Committee

Frank G. Fuller, above, of the department of education at East Carolina, heads the Faculty Rating committee which has recently completed a sheet on which students will rate faculty members this quarter.

On the rating sheet drawn up here the teachers will be rated on subject matter, classroom procedure, grading and testing, student relations and personality. The scale contains 36 questions to be answered by the students about their instructors.

To Improve Instruction
The purpose of the rating plan is to evaluate instruction and to improve classroom procedures and practices through cooperative effort. The plan is considered a democratic procedure in education and is expected to create a better understanding in class work between students and faculty.

The new system is the result of the Student Government association's efforts last year. The idea of drawing up a rating sheet through which students might have the opportunity of evaluating the instruction they receive was presented to President of the College John D. Messick by a committee from the Student Legislature last spring. The request was presented to the faculty who approved it.

Seven Members On Committee

Serving on the Faculty Rating committee with Fuller are Audrey Dempsey and Ellen Rion Caldwell, faculty members; and William Flinders, Arthur Johnson, Priscilla Hynson and Carl Conner, student members.

The joint committee has, since its appointment, made a study of rating scales and methods of procedure in other colleges and universities where similar projects are being carried on.

An unofficial report from the Faculty Rating committee, released this week by Fuller, states six recommendations to be followed in carrying out the plan. They are:

1. All teachers are to administer the rating sheet to students during the week preceding the final examination. Each student in each class is to be given the opportunity to rate the teacher.
2. In administering the rating sheet teachers should give the following instructions to the students: "The purpose of this rating sheet is to help us in improving instruction in this college. You are to read the instructions at the top of the sheet and proceed accordingly. You are not to sign the sheet. Please mark this the way you really feel. No questions may be asked."
3. Teachers are to tabulate each class separately on the tabulation sheets provided.

Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of dramatic arts at East Carolina, spoke Monday evening, January 29, before members of the Little Theatre guild of Washington, N.C. The meeting was held at 7:30 o'clock in the Recreation hut in Washington.

The program for the evening centered around a discussion of the recent production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" by the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina under Dr. Charles' direction. Members of the Washington Little Theatre guild who attended the play had requested that Dr. Charles base her remarks on the presentation of the drama.

Attitude Of Students Toward Draft Is Revealed In 'Look'

Magazine Says Little 'Hoopla' On Campuses Throughout Country

The University of North Carolina student body is convinced now that cherished plans for the next few years are gone with the wind of a third world war, and most of them, including a lot of the more mature co-eds, expect to be in some kind of uniform before the next twelve months have ended.

This, says the issue of "Look" magazine released this week, summarizes the attitude toward the draft it found on the campuses of four representative colleges, California, Northwestern, Princeton and North Carolina. The vast majority of students, the article reveals, would prefer to serve in the Navy or Air Force. The Infantry and Marines are regarded as "having mighty little future."

Love Confidence
There is little "hoopla" on the campuses, and not much flag waving. While the students agree Russia is to blame for the current world situation, President Truman has lost their confidence, and dissatisfaction with Washington leadership is general. As one campus leader at Northwestern put it, "If the foreign policy were more intelligently handled or at least more clearly and cleanly handled I'd be more willing to go. I'm not going to volunteer . . . I'll go when I'm called, but not willingly."

In spite of this, Secretary of State Dean Acheson "is far and away the most popular" figure in the Administration, according to the students at the University of North Carolina, and, the article states, ex-President Hoover's "Operation Gibraltar" stand has been widely rejected.

Lowered Quality of work
A general falling off in the quality of class room work is noticeable at Princeton and elsewhere. In fact, at this Ivy League school the standard greeting has become, "Where d'ya stand?", meaning in the draft.

There is a realistic acceptance of the future by our young men and women, "Look" concludes. Today's young student is ready for "blood and sweat . . . but no tears."

Play Tryouts

Tryouts for the spring play will be held in the Green room, Austin 112, at 6:30 p.m. next Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The play will be the annually presented children's play by the Teachers Playhouse sponsored by the Greenville chapter of the American Association of University Women. Title of the play is to be announced later.

Veterans Club Members Hear Todd Speak On Korean Crisis

Club Is Complimented For Its Achievements To Country, College

Fifty members of the Veterans club of East Carolina enjoyed a banquet given last Friday evening, January 25, at the Respass-James restaurant. Dr. Richard C. Todd of the social studies faculty at the college was speaker on a program given during the evening.

President of the group, Charles Self of Greensboro, presided and welcomed members and guests present for the social event.

Preceding his address on "The Korean Crisis," Dr. Todd complimented the members of the club on their achievements and service to the college and their service to their country. "You veterans have made the biggest contribution of all," he said, "in your service in the armed forces."

Vets Feel Impact
In speaking of present day world conditions Dr. Todd stated that once again veterans are feeling the impact of unsettled international relations. He related the historical background of the Korean crisis and its implications today.

"The United States was faced with a dilemma when the North Koreans invaded South Korea," said Dr. Todd. "It would either have to send troops to Korea and risk war with Russia or let the Communists take over all of Korea."

Next Year Will Tell
Dr. Todd said he believed that if a world war does not come in the next 12 months, we will be safe from war for another 20 years. In the next year we will have prepared ourselves so that Russia will not likely attack us or begin a third world war. He said he felt the United States would remain prepared from now on.

Dr. Todd's talk was followed by a period of discussion from the floor.

Eighth Grade Pupils From Training School Give Chapel Program

Pupils in the eighth grade at the Training school at East Carolina gave the regular weekly chapel program at the college on Tuesday of this week at noon in the Austin auditorium. The theme of "Work" was carried out in a series of songs and readings presented by the young people. Miss Elisabeth Hyman is teacher of the grade.

Mary Will Long was program chairman at the chapel service.

YMCA Program

The Christian Heritage commission of the North Carolina State college YMCA will present a program on the work of the commission at vespers in the Y hut here tonight at 6:30.

A fellowship period with refreshments is to follow the program. All students have been invited to attend.

Rives To Direct Original One-Act Play In Workshop

Ralph H. Rives of Enfield, junior at East Carolina, is serving as director of his own one-act play "Queens Hall," to be presented at the college this evening. The short drama is the second original work by Rives to be given this school year on the Workshop production program of the Teachers Playhouse, college dramatic club.

The performance will take place this evening at 7:30 in the Flanagan auditorium. It will be one of the series of weekly workshop productions given during 1950-1951 by the Teachers Playhouse under the general direction of Garland Jackson of Mt. Olive.

"Queens Hall" has its setting in eastern North Carolina, and the locale was suggested by the young playwright's own home in Enfield. The action centers around problems of family relationships.

Janice Perry of Louisburg will head a cast of nine members in "Queens Hall." Others who will have leading roles are, Catherine Stephenson of Willow Springs and Joe Congleton of Littleton.

Rive's work "Just One More Dance" was presented by the Teachers Playhouse during the fall as a workshop play and was given a second performance before the Benjamin May chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Farmville.

OVER BEARING FACULTY ADVISORS

The TECO ECHO is sorry to hear from several sources that there are some advisors of student clubs who are so overbearing with their good intentions that they stifle free expression, dictate policy and in general thwart student initiative.

When a student reaches college, he is supposedly capable of reaching intelligent decisions and conducting affairs of group endeavor in the majority of cases. The advisor who unwittingly forces himself upon a group of students in not advising them; he is directing them.

It is the opinion of the student newspaper that advisors of clubs should interfere with meeting procedures as little as possible.

The members of the clubs under dominating advisors are being deprived of one of the most useful opportunities they may obtain in college—the opportunity to assume responsibilities and develop self-direction.

It is realized that the faculty advisors of student organizations contribute much of their valuable time, and the students for the most part appreciate those instructors, who with understanding of their charges, encourage, inspire and guide them with a wholesome influence. At the same time, faculty influence can become extremely unwholesome when it retards the desires, thoughts, initiative of students not in a position to combat it.

We say let overbearing faculty advisors check themselves in their tendencies to speak too often. We realize the advisors are, of course, more experienced and further advanced in the stream of life but they are sometimes prone to give advice too often when they see a younger, less experienced group of students not carrying on club affairs exactly as they would think best.

Many of the finest student organizations on the campus have advisors who stand ready to offer helpful advice when called upon, but who refrain from interfering in normal proceedings. The officers of these organizations, elected by the members of the organizations, direct and plan with the members of the club. It is their responsibility, and what a wonderful chance for those of that group to develop themselves for life in modern cooperative society!

The classroom time is time enough for instructors to lecture and dictate from the chair. Let us repeat, their work with extra-curricular activities should consist of back seats at club meetings and no more. Let them give students a chance to run the show for a while.

GENERAL ELECTIONS NEAR

James Ratledge, chairman of the Elections committee of the Student Government association announced at Legislature meeting Wednesday evening that general elections for student government offices will be held March 16. The election will be preceded on March 15 with a student assembly to give candidates a chance to present themselves.

This paper will, of course, take no sides in the campaigns, since it is a paper of all the students. We do hope the campaigns this year will set a new example of cleanliness in campus politics and at the same time arouse the interest of every student on the campus to his rights and duties.

THE HONOR SYSTEM AGAIN

Attention is called to Section 1 of the By-laws in the student handbook. This section has been referred to by some students as the "Honor System" of East Carolina. The Student legislature last year spoke of "reviving" the system. Things continued much the same.

The Legislature this year is considering in the Honor System if the students want it. Some clubs have been discussing the problem and are unaware that the "Honor System" here which has been in effect since 1925.

It would be doing well to have the Legislature last year's Legislature take it up to see if it is worth the trouble.

It is still being discussed. It's still being discussed. It's still being discussed.

ETAOIN and SHRDLU

by Rexford E. Piner

The new television set has been re-installed in the men day students' room in the basement of the Austin building, this time with the addition of a poster which is supposed to make it possible to pick up programs here. It doesn't help. With all due regard for forward looking officers of the men day students' organization, we feel, as one day student expressed it, "it was a good idea, but as long as it doesn't work here, a good radio would be much more valuable and worthwhile."

Leaders of the men day students are to be congratulated for their efforts to improve the room, but seeing that the television set will not operate here they should realize the futility of trying to collect money to pay for it. We believe they would have little trouble collecting money from the men day students in order to buy a good radio for the room. They won't need half as much money either.

Now that the TECO ECHO has been entered in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association and Associated Collegiate Press newspaper contests, we'll be holding our breath until results of the critical judging are released. Of course we're hoping to receive the highest ratings from both associations, but if we don't, it's been fun trying.

We saw a small article in the Greenville "Daily Reflector" this week announcing that Greenville police are on the look-out for boys and men who are molesting women and girls on the streets of the city. A number of complaints had been received saying men and boys riding in automobiles have been molesting them and trying to "pick them up." We sincerely hope that no student of East Carolina has been making a public nuisance of himself by such ungentlemanly conduct. The actions of one person in such an abnoxious manner often may bring discredit to well behaved individuals and respected institutions.

At the banquet meeting of the Veterans club last Friday evening, members of the group decided to make an attempt to have Roger Thrift's number, 36, retired. They want to see Thrift thus honored because of his outstanding record on the gridiron at East Carolina and the national recognition he has brought to the college.

Someone remarked after the "basketball game" last Monday evening that Dr. George Pasti of the social studies department looked like Danny Kaye. Dr. Pasti played for the faculty in the mock game against a girl students team to raise money for the March of Dimes. Dr. Pasti came out on the court attired in bright maroon pajamas. Shades of "Walter Mitty."

RECENT MARRIAGES:

Nina Abernathy, Rocky Mount, and Rodney Roberts, Greenville, were married Saturday, January 27 at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church in Greenville. Mrs. Roberts is now teaching music in Farmville. Roberts has completed Navy "boot" training at Great Lakes, Michigan, and is expecting to attend a Navy music school in Washington, D. C. Both are graduates of East Carolina.

Ellen Buffkin and Earl Stanley, Faber city, were married in Woodland Friday, January 19. Mrs. Stanley is practicing teaching this quarter. Stanley attended East Carolina last year. The couple were married by W. W. Carter, father of the bride's roommate.

Dr. Pingel of the English department was showing her college spirit last Tuesday by wearing a purple suit and a yellow blouse. The college colors were very attractive.

Members of the Teachers Playhouse are having an internal squabble which we hope will not last very long. Leading participants of both factions use our room as a "Security Council." Seriously, though, we hope they do get together again and smooth out technical difficulties which have caused many members of the organization to say they will not return to the club from which they say they were barred because of non payment of dues.

It would be an awful shame, too, for those members who say they will not go back to walk out on all that money appropriated to the organization by the Student Government association and the money they made on their production, "Our Town." It's still being discussed. It's still being discussed.

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Anne Jones

As the president of the Officers club of the Air Force ROTC here at East Carolina, Kenneth Stargardt makes his contribution to our campus as one of its leaders. The Officers club is open to men of the first and second year advanced classes of the AROTC and serves as a means of bringing the instructors and the cadets closer together through social contact.

Stargardt, who came to East Carolina in the spring of 1948, has been a member of the AROTC since his first year here. He will be a senior as of next quarter.

Hailing from Richmond, Virginia, he says he came to East Carolina on a visit in 1948 about a week before the spring quarter started; he liked the place, went home and packed his clothes, and came back in time to enroll. "My intentions when I first came here were to play football, but I never got around to that," he stated. "After getting out of service I went to prep school near my home for a while, but then I decided I wanted to get away from home so my coach suggested that I come here; anyway I thought I would like a small school and I can certainly say that the results have been wonderful," he stated.

Stargardt served in the armed services for eight and one-half months, going in at the age of sixteen. He spends his summers around his home going to the beach and doing recreational work.

Kenneth Stargardt

"My chief interest is physical education," he cited. He plans to make it his life's career. During this coming summer he has a job as a counselor and boxing instructor at Camp Morehead, a recreational camp for boys near Morehead City. He hopes to get some valuable experience doing this work which will help him later in finding a job connected with this type of activity.

Holding an interest in all kinds of sports, he has no particular interest in any one of them. For two years he was one of the leading men on Coach Johnny Long's boxing team here.

Like the majority of our campus leaders Stargardt doesn't limit himself to one activity or organization. He is at the present time a member of the Varsity club, Phi Sigma Pi, Circle K, and the Student legislature.

His other main interest besides physical education is directed towards a certain young lady from Morehead City, Miss Jean Farrior. Jean is his fiancee and they plan to be married when Stargardt gets his degree.

When approached on the subject of having to return to service, he said, that unless he had to return he would continue with his plans in the field of physical education. When he graduates he will get a commission in the reserve branch of the Air Force.

The story of his college career would not be complete without saying that Stargardt is working his way through school. Besides his position as a "oda jerk in the 'Y'" store he sells milk and sandwiches each night in Slay hall. His daily schedule, as a rule, runs from seven in the morning until midnight. "I have a hard time finding time to do all the studying I would like to do," he told us. He is majoring in Physical Education and minoring in math. This quarter it seems that he is having a little trouble with college geometry, in his own words, "as far as I am concerned I have hit a blind wall."

This Virginia native says that he likes Greenville and Carolina fine and has enjoyed his stay here. He likes good times and friends.

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Jean Head

Greenville has been running true to form this week, with spring one day and winter the next. Just goes to prove that you never know what's going to happen from one day to the next.

Those who didn't see the basketball game Monday night between the teachers and the girls really missed a thriller. The game was packed with excitement and the going was rough for the teachers up until the final seconds. The faculty played a swell game under the watchful eye of Mrs. Coach Porter. They were sparked by Miss "Push-shot" Hooper, and Dr. "Hook" Pasti. There was only one major casualty; Dr. Powell "passed out" from over-excitement when sent in. Teams were refereed by the alert Dr. Taylor and Dr. Deshaw. The game was under the direction of Miss Stallings for the benefit of the polo drive.

Some of the student teachers have all the luck. Anyway, those who get asked out to dinner by their critic teachers. Everything was going a long fine until Ann Earp suggested washing the dinner dishes. But the girls said the barbecue chicken was worth it.

Was sorry to hear that Clem Garner of "Clem's" filling station has been ill for several days. Clem has get-well wishes from many students. Vic Bell is manager while Clem is away.

It is reported that Elliot Lawrence is going to be here February 16. Since we haven't had a name band this year, it will be nothing but fine to have him.

The "Little Coliseum" (Training School gym) is the scene of many exciting battles. "The 'Russ-Pak' from Portsmouth, Va., has been hitting the meshes consistently, sparked by Billy Smith and Lawrence Kincaid"—quote by Coach Mac Eure.

Here's a good one! Two girls in Cotten hall, who are roommates, have mumps and measles, respectively. Where have you been, girls? Luck to you girls who have been in contact with these two!

EDUCATORS SQUABBLE WITH TV
The current squabble between educational leaders and the telecasters is becoming more serious as the days go by. Charges and counter-charges are being made by both sides. Educators aren't quite sure what place education should play in the influencing of TV programming and the television people don't seem to have the answer either. Commercial television's first and probably most important economic problem is making money. They contend entertainment is their business and not education.

The Joint Committee on Educational Television who have just completed a survey of the possibilities of education television have had difficulty in defining "education." Their report confines itself primarily with television in the New York area, which they contend is devoid of any educational TV programs. The committee lumped all drama under a single heading, including in it the westerns, the kiddie shows, the detective drama and all the others. They failed to recognize such outstanding drama programs as "Studio One," "Pulitzer Prize Playhouse," "Philco Television Theatre," and others.

The educators want at least twenty-five percent of TV time to be of an educational nature, commercial free, but it seems to us that until our educational leaders can decide just what they mean by education and what they expect to do with the time if it were made available they are going to have a pretty difficult time in convincing hard-headed businessmen that the time should be made available.

ELLIOT LAWRENCE HERE?

The grapevine tells us that there is a possibility that Elliot Lawrence and his orchestra will play for a dance on the campus in the not too distant future. Lawrence is currently playing at the Meadowbrook in Cedar Grove, New Jersey. We have been hearing him on the networks quite a bit lately, and he has a fine dance band. He is popular with college crowds the country over; he plays at many of the college "proms." Lawrence plays a fine piano and also composes. We think that if Elliot Lawrence does come to East Carolina, he will be well worth going to see and hear. He will play danceable music.

RELIGIOUS EMPHASIS WEEK

Orchids to the Interreligious council for an excellent job in bringing Religious Emphasis Week to the peak of perfection. We are told that the participation by the student body was the best that has ever been had since these services have been conducted. All of the people connected with the program worked hard and we think their efforts were rewarded in the turnout.

CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS

The Carolina Playmakers will present Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" in the College theatre February 13. We understand a number of Greenville citizens have been the driving force in getting this outstanding group to come here. The Greenville Music club is sponsoring the production and Don Blood, for one, will be only too happy to sell you a ticket.

"I wonder why the 'Horse and Bicyclist' don't learn to use the telephone like other institutions do?"

Did You Know That....

by Don Blood

... both our presidents (national and college) have hobbies in common? They both enjoy playing the piano, although Dr. Messick goes Mr. Truman one better, for our prexy sings while he plays.

... on February 13, at eight o'clock the students are in for a dramatic treat? The Greenville Music club has induced the Carolina Playmakers to come for one night to present Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." Anyone who has heard of this organization knows that they are tops in college dramatics. In fact, they have a history that goes way back, just as UNC was one of the first Universities in this country, the Carolina Playmakers is one of the oldest dramatics organizations. The event will be in the new College theatre and tickets may be obtained for fifty cents from this writer.

... have you ever picked up your hometown paper and read your name in it in connection with something here at the college? And have you ever wondered how it got there? Miss Mary Greene is the key to the mystery. For the past five years as head of the College News bureau she has kept many state papers informed of East Carolina affairs. It all goes back to the College slogan "To Serve" and the daily reports from Miss Greene's office to various newspapers lets the taxpayers know that their college is serving.

... there is a saying that Shakespeare wrote a play for each year of college and they are:
Freshman—"Comedy of Errors;"
Sophomore—"Much a do about nothing;"
Junior—"A Midsummer's Night Dream;"
Senior—"All's Well That Ends Well."

... the original YDC club on campus had a membership of over 500? They were the largest college or university organization of its kind in the United States, and the student who was the founder of the club was James Whitfield, who was considered to be one of the most outstanding students ever to enter East Carolina. Mr. Whitfield is at present the State Editor of the News and Observer. Last spring there was a resurrection of this club. They are still with us.

... in looking over the editorials in the old copies of the TECO ECHO it is noticed that it seemed necessary to use one theme every year and that was on the lack of cleanliness and order that prevailed on campus?

... in the history of the TECO ECHO only two students have had the distinction of being asked to be editor-in-chief for two years? James Whitfield, and Carl Connor were both asked, but because of the war James Whitfield could not accept the honor for the second year, which means that Carl Connor is the only editor to have served two years.

... "And Hamlet how boring to live with, So mean and self-conscious, blowing and snoring His wonderful speeches, full of other folks' whoring."

TRADE BITS

by Tommie Lupton

The annual Western North Carolina Band clinic which was held on the Appalachian State Teachers college campus early in January was said to be a success in every respect. We would like to congratulate the school and just hope that the annual Eastern Band clinic that is to be held on our campus next week will be as big a success.

Music for the CBS "Church of the Air" broadcast that was sponsored last Sunday by the Lenoir Rhyme college was sung by the school's double octets. The broadcast was a nation-wide program that originated in the Charlotte studios.

The girls in a gym class at Phillips university, Enid, Oklahoma, found themselves in hot water awhile back. Eager to try out the swimming pool after the installation of a new boiler, the girls dived in and came up screaming. It seems that the temperature of the water had been set at 110 degrees by mistake. By 1952 we at East Carolina will be able to try out our new swimming pool.

There was a bold editor of a southern college newspaper who wrote an editorial that the student body did not take with such a good attitude. Albin Krebs, editor of the "Mississippiian," wrote an editorial urging the admission of Negroes to the university's law school. Instead of writing a letter to the editor, a group of Mississippi students burned a cross outside the editor's dormitory. Krebs, in an interview with the press, indicated that the crowd that fired the cross appeared to be good humored, but we still bet he was scared.

Durham High school has selected as this year's senior play, "Belvedere." If the play is half as good as the Belvedere movies, the Durham senior class will have a big success. If you remember, "Belvedere Goes to College" was a movie shown on the East Carolina campus during the fall quarter.

Here's one for the boys on the campus who play bridge. According to the University of Washington's Daily, a math student at the school recently surprised his professor during a lecture on calculus of probabilities by asking, "What is the probability of drawing four cards to a straight flush?" He went on to explain that he had done it the other night and was interested in the odds. The professor replied, "We will work problems of that nature later on. At the moment all I can say is—congratulations."

Teachers Are Unbeatable On Basketball Court As In Classroom

Proving positively that there's nothing "foggy" about East Carolina's faculty, these desperadoes prepare to clinch their victory in the recent faculty-co-ed cage contest held in Wright gymnasium. On the left, "Dancing Dribbler" Durham is just before laying in two points, though he is being guarded by an amused member of the co-ed team. The right picture shows "Beau" Chauncey going all the way to the top for the Teachers, by way of a step ladder supported by teammates Stallings, Hyman, and Powell. Co-ed Lucy Roberson attempts to stop the scoring attack, as officials Taylor and DeShaw show obvious favoritism for the faculty team. (Photos by Rexford E. Piner)

Pirates Lose As Russell Gets 25 At Lenoir Rhyne

Sonny Russell, the point-making expert from New Bern, pumped 25 points into the baskets in Hickory last Saturday night as the East Carolina Pirates dropped a crucial North State conference basketball contest to Lenoir Rhyne's Bears, 61-55.

In losing to the Bears, the Buccaneers still looked good and played a magnificent game against the league-leaders. Toddy Fennell, the driving play-maker for the locals, exhibited a fine style of defensive play as he held the Bears' Billy Wells, a sensational set shot artist, scoreless. It marked the first time in four years of collegiate competition that Wells had been held scoreless.

At halftime the Bears held a commanding 37-23 lead over the Pirates and were never headed, but were given a big scare in the final minutes.

Trying desperately to stay within scoring range of the Bears, the Bucs brought the score up to 59-55 with two minutes remaining in the battle. That was as close as the Pirates could get to the home team as the Bears took possession of the ball and froze it for the remainder of the game, adding a field goal for insurance.

Leo Kantorski with 18 points and Tony Sellari with 20 points led the Bears to their seventh conference victory against two setbacks.

Touring West Carolina Five Here Monday, Tuesday Nights

Athlete Of The Week

by Tom Cox

For the second time this academic year, freshman Bobby Hodges gets the nod as the TECO ECHO "Athlete of the Week."

Such honors are nothing new to this 6'5" Kinston lad. Although this is his first year on the East Carolina campus, he quickly made his athletic mark, and, in October, was named the "Athlete of the Week" for his outstanding defensive line play in the Homecoming gridiron spectacle against Western Carolina. In that contest, the 224-pound end took part in nearly every tackle, and showed signs of developing into one of the greatest football players in Pirate history.

No one-sport athlete by any means, Hodges seems to excel in any sport in which he participates. This week, he has been selected for his brilliant play on the basketball court. His height and natural aggressiveness make him a valuable man under the backboards for the Buccaneers. He feels equally at home gathering in the rebounds of the opposition, or collecting points for the Pirates by tipping in the near misses of his teammates.

In the second game with Elon, he was the big gun in the Pirate attack, tossing nine field goals and seven free throws through the hoop to top all other scorers and to tally 25 points for the home team. In his brief career with the Pirate cagers, Hodges already has scored 190 points in 15 games for an average of 12.7 points per game. Far and away the most colorful cager on the squad, he has been known to liven up a dull game and, occasionally, to annoy an official, with his clowning antics.

One of the greatest athletes ever to come from Kinston's Grainger High school, Hodges was approached by every major football power south of the Mason-Dixon line. He looked over several of them, but was impressed most with East Carolina's friendly atmosphere and its proximity to Kinston.

While still in high school, he was featured in the Greensboro Daily News as the Athlete of the Week, a singular honor for a prep star as this spot usually is filled by top-flight college athletes. It goes without saying that he lettered in basketball and football each of his four years at Grainger High, and was good enough to make All-State in each sport for two consecutive years.

In his senior year, Hodges was selected to play in the annual Shrine Bowl grid classic which sees the top prep footballers of North Carolina battling against those of South Carolina. After a standout performance in that contest, he was named to the All-Carolinas team.

Closing out a brilliant high school career, Hodges received more honors when he was invited to play in both the East-West football game and basketball classic. On this occasion, he chose the cage tilt. He is the holder of the state record for the number of points scored in the annual high school basketball tournament, and he is tied with High Point's Ken Powell for the single game record with 26 points.

Here at East Carolina, Hodges is majoring in physical education and minoring in social studies. He hopes to have a fling at professional football after graduation, and wants to turn to coaching after his playing days are over.

After a week's rest from North State conference competition, the East Carolina Pirate cagers take to the home court for a two-day stand when they tangle with Western Carolina's Catamounts, Monday and Tuesday nights of next week. Tip-off time will be 8 o'clock. Saturday night of next week East Carolina moves to Asheboro to meet a strong semi-pro outfit, McCrary Eagles.

The Western Carolina Catamounts have won only one loop tilt this year while losing six. However, they are capable of registering an upset and are not to be considered a weak opponent. The mountain team boasts the league's top scorer in the person of Ronald Rogers who has scored 296 points for a 19.8 average in 15 contests. Outside the North State the Western Carolinians have fared no better. In eight tilts they have managed to win only two games while dropping six.

Mountaineers Are High Scorers
Nevertheless, the Mountaineers have a high scoring ball club to be reckoned with. In 15 contests they have scored 965 points while the opposition has tallied 1165.

The local Pirates will be on the rebound attempting to better their worst record after dropping two close contests this week to Lenoir-Rhyne and Appalachian. The Bucs have a current conference record of five wins and six losses, and will be attempting to climb above the .500 mark in percentage points.

Need Two For Fifth Place
A double victory over the visitors would virtually assure Coach Howard Porter's cagers of fifth place in the loop with a 7-6 win-loss record and an overall mark of eight wins and nine losses.

Coach Porter will probably start his usual starting lineup which finds Charlie Huffman and Sonny Russell at forward, Co-captain Toddy Fennell at center, and Bobby Hodges and John Postas at guards.

Porter will likely make full use of his reserve strength in the Western Carolina games. Freshman Paul Jones and Richard Blake, who tallied 12 points in his last outing against Appalachian, and Lou Collie, a hustling little guard, are certain to see some action along with Jim Blake and Charlie Butler.

Faculty-Student Mock Game Played Monday Called "Thing"

by Faye Batten

Lights on! Performers prepared! Spectators spontaneous and eager! All right, on with the show!

Call it a show, call it a scrimmage or a fight, call it a paradox, and, if you insist, call it a basketball game. Why ponder on what to call the "thing?"

The affair under discussion was staged in Wright gymnasium at East Carolina Monday night, January 29. It was under the guise of a basketball game, a contesting tilt between one team composed of a group of East Carolina faculty members of both sexes and a rival team made up of upperclass co-eds. A feature editor's paradise was evident, for every incident occurring was a feature. For once, the EC teachers "acted up," proving that, even though they have often been dubbed "old fogies" and "old maids," they are as crazily cooperative when the time to "play around" comes as the students are.

Wanta go back to the beginning of this performance? Act one, scene one finds Miss Ruth White in charge of the door; she's collecting the money which approximately 500 local cage fans are paying in order to observe an event which is sure to be hilarious. The money which Miss White collects goes to the Pitt county March of Dimes fund. Follow inside Wright gymnasium for scene two.

Take a look around, after you get a seat. Where are those teachers? Out on the court, several co-eds are taking practice shots. Things are too quiet in here. Over at the score table, the usual before-game rituals are going on. Guess you'll have to wait. Excitement mounts. Is Dr. Taylor going to play? There's a report that this "fair lady" has never been to a basketball game.

Well, look around again, and focus your attention on the procession coming through the right side door. Led by Mrs. Howard Porter who is attired in the traditional red vest and socks of the Porter clan, the faculty team marches, no prances, in. My, have you ever seen such "diked up" professors? Everything from roller skating champs to babies pinned up in diapers parade on that court! Look at Ellen Rion Caldwell, appearing to be every day of fifteen and smiling at all those boys. She knows she is the cutest "it" lady in the house.

Dr. Powell is stealing the show—she is dressed in a football uniform that is at least ten sizes too large, but she doesn't mind; she had it padded and a large draw-string aids in keeping up her trousers. Dr. Powell wears fashionable high wedges from Blount-Harvey's fashionable shoe salon. In shorts, and wearing long stockings with red ribbon garters, Miss Chauncey of the East Carolina music department proves that musicians really have a heart full of mirth. The male members of the EC faculty provide more spice to the entertainment. Dr. Pasti has adorned colorful fuchsia pajamas. About twenty-five other faculty members are attired in various other conglomerated costumes; all of them look hideously comical. What happens from here on can't be recorded. To be sure, plenty happens and every occurrence keeps the spectators voicing highly vociferous approval.

The EC teachers are being strongly supported by daintily dressed cheerleaders—they're wearing formal evening skirts. Mrs. J. D. Messick leads the cheering section.

Act two finds two teams on the court, two crooked officials calling a two way game, and faculty manager Marguerite Austin and physician Mable Dougherty trying to quiet the "benchwarmers" on Coach Porter's team. Yes, Dr. Taylor is here. She is one of the officials; her accomplice is Dr. Deshaw.

Time out! Take a swig of Hadacol! Now the EC teachers are well on their way to winning this basketball game. What a team! What a game! What doesn't go on? The rules followed are purely original; most infractions of the rules are purely intentional. Constant changes are made in both student and faculty line-ups. Nothing seems to come to the aid of the teachers, however, and they're not ahead anymore; they're way behind. Act two ends with Coach, physician, and teammates dragging Dr. Powell off the court, who for the "lack of a Lucky," dropped in a cold "feint." Between acts Hooper of Teachers practices gratis shots. This star makes two out of twelve.

In act three, scene one, the climax of this ludicrous experiment is reached. There's a real fight on court. All of the team members are participating, too. The officials can't do a thing but wait; the spectators can't do a thing but "bellow boisterously," and the game can't go on. Deciding that no one is getting a good end out of the scramble, the fighters cease their nonsense. What determination these teachers have to win this struggle for victory over the co-ed team! Here come Nell Stallings and "Frivolous Frankie" Fuller with a step ladder. Up goes forward Chauncey to score two decisive points. Reynolds, Durham, Brandon, and Davis add two points each. "Loaded Luckies" are brought on the scene to add more excitement and inspiration. The third quarter end—the Teachers are out front! Let's go, Teachers!

Scene two, act three brings the conclusion! Led by Dawson, who scored nine points, the Teachers of EC clowned a victory over the co-eds of same institution, by "outknocking" the latter to the "nth" degree. Oh, yes, $140 gate receipts was turned over to the Pitt county March of Dimes.

High School Bands Attending Divisional All-State Clinic

College Concert Band To Perform In Honor Of Visitors Tonight

Members of high school bands in 29 North Carolina public schools in this section of the state are attending the Eastern division of the All-State Band clinic on the East Carolina campus today and tomorrow. Herbert L. Carter of the college music faculty is clinic chairman. The clinic is being sponsored by the North Carolina Bandmasters' association of which Carter is president.

The East Carolina Concert band, directed by Carter, will play in honor of visiting students tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the College theatre. The public is invited to attend both programs.

A 100-piece concert band will be organized on the campus during the clinic, and this group of talented high school musicians will be presented in a concert Saturday evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Wright auditorium at the college.

Bone Conducting Concert Band
Allan H. Bone, assistant professor of music at Duke university, will be music director during the two-day meeting at East Carolina. He will conduct the Concert band of the clinic on Saturday evening.

A series of sectional rehearsals have been planned for Friday and Saturday. Eleven groups, each made up of performers on one or more of the band instruments, will be directed by instructors from visiting schools and from the college faculty.

Other events will include the showing of films on instrumental music, a discussion on trombone music by Robert Gray of Duke university, and performances by ensembles composed of high school musicians.

Dance Scheduled Tonight
The band and the chorus of the Greenville High school have assisted with plans for the clinic by arranging the entertainment of visitors in Greenville homes. Members of the two local groups will also be present at a dance in the Wright auditorium tonight and will be joint hosts with members of the East Carolina band and chorus. Other social events will include an informal reception for band directors and their wives given in the reception rooms of the Flanagan building by faculty members of the East Carolina department of music.

Faculty Rating Plan

1, 2, or 3 on each question. A study of the totals for each question will give the teacher a good index of his weaknesses in the eyes of his students. Since the purpose of this sheet is the improvement of instruction, the sheet will have value only if the teacher thinks over his techniques and methods in the light of student opinion and makes an effort to improve.

5. On a separate tabulation sheet a summation for all classes taught should be made by each teacher and sent through the college post office to the chairman of this committee. This should be unsigned, and should not indicate the teachers' department. These will be compiled by the committee into an overall report on strengths and weaknesses of the college as a whole.

6. Department heads should obtain the rating sheets and tabulation sheets for their departments from the office of the chairman of this committee. They may then distribute these to the teachers in their departments.

Holt Is Speaker At Tuesday Meet Of Thalian Club

Robert L. Holt, director of religious education at East Carolina, was the guest speaker at the Thalian club of Greenville when it met Tuesday.

As a continuation of the program subjects under study for the last half of the year, Mr. Holt discussed the New Testament, pointing out facts about the origin, authorship and compilation of the New Testament as it is known today.

He stated that it is not just a book in the ordinary sense of the word, but is a divine revelation of God's will for His people, as revealed in the life of Jesus Christ, written by men who were inspired by Divine guidance and who lived with and loved Jesus.

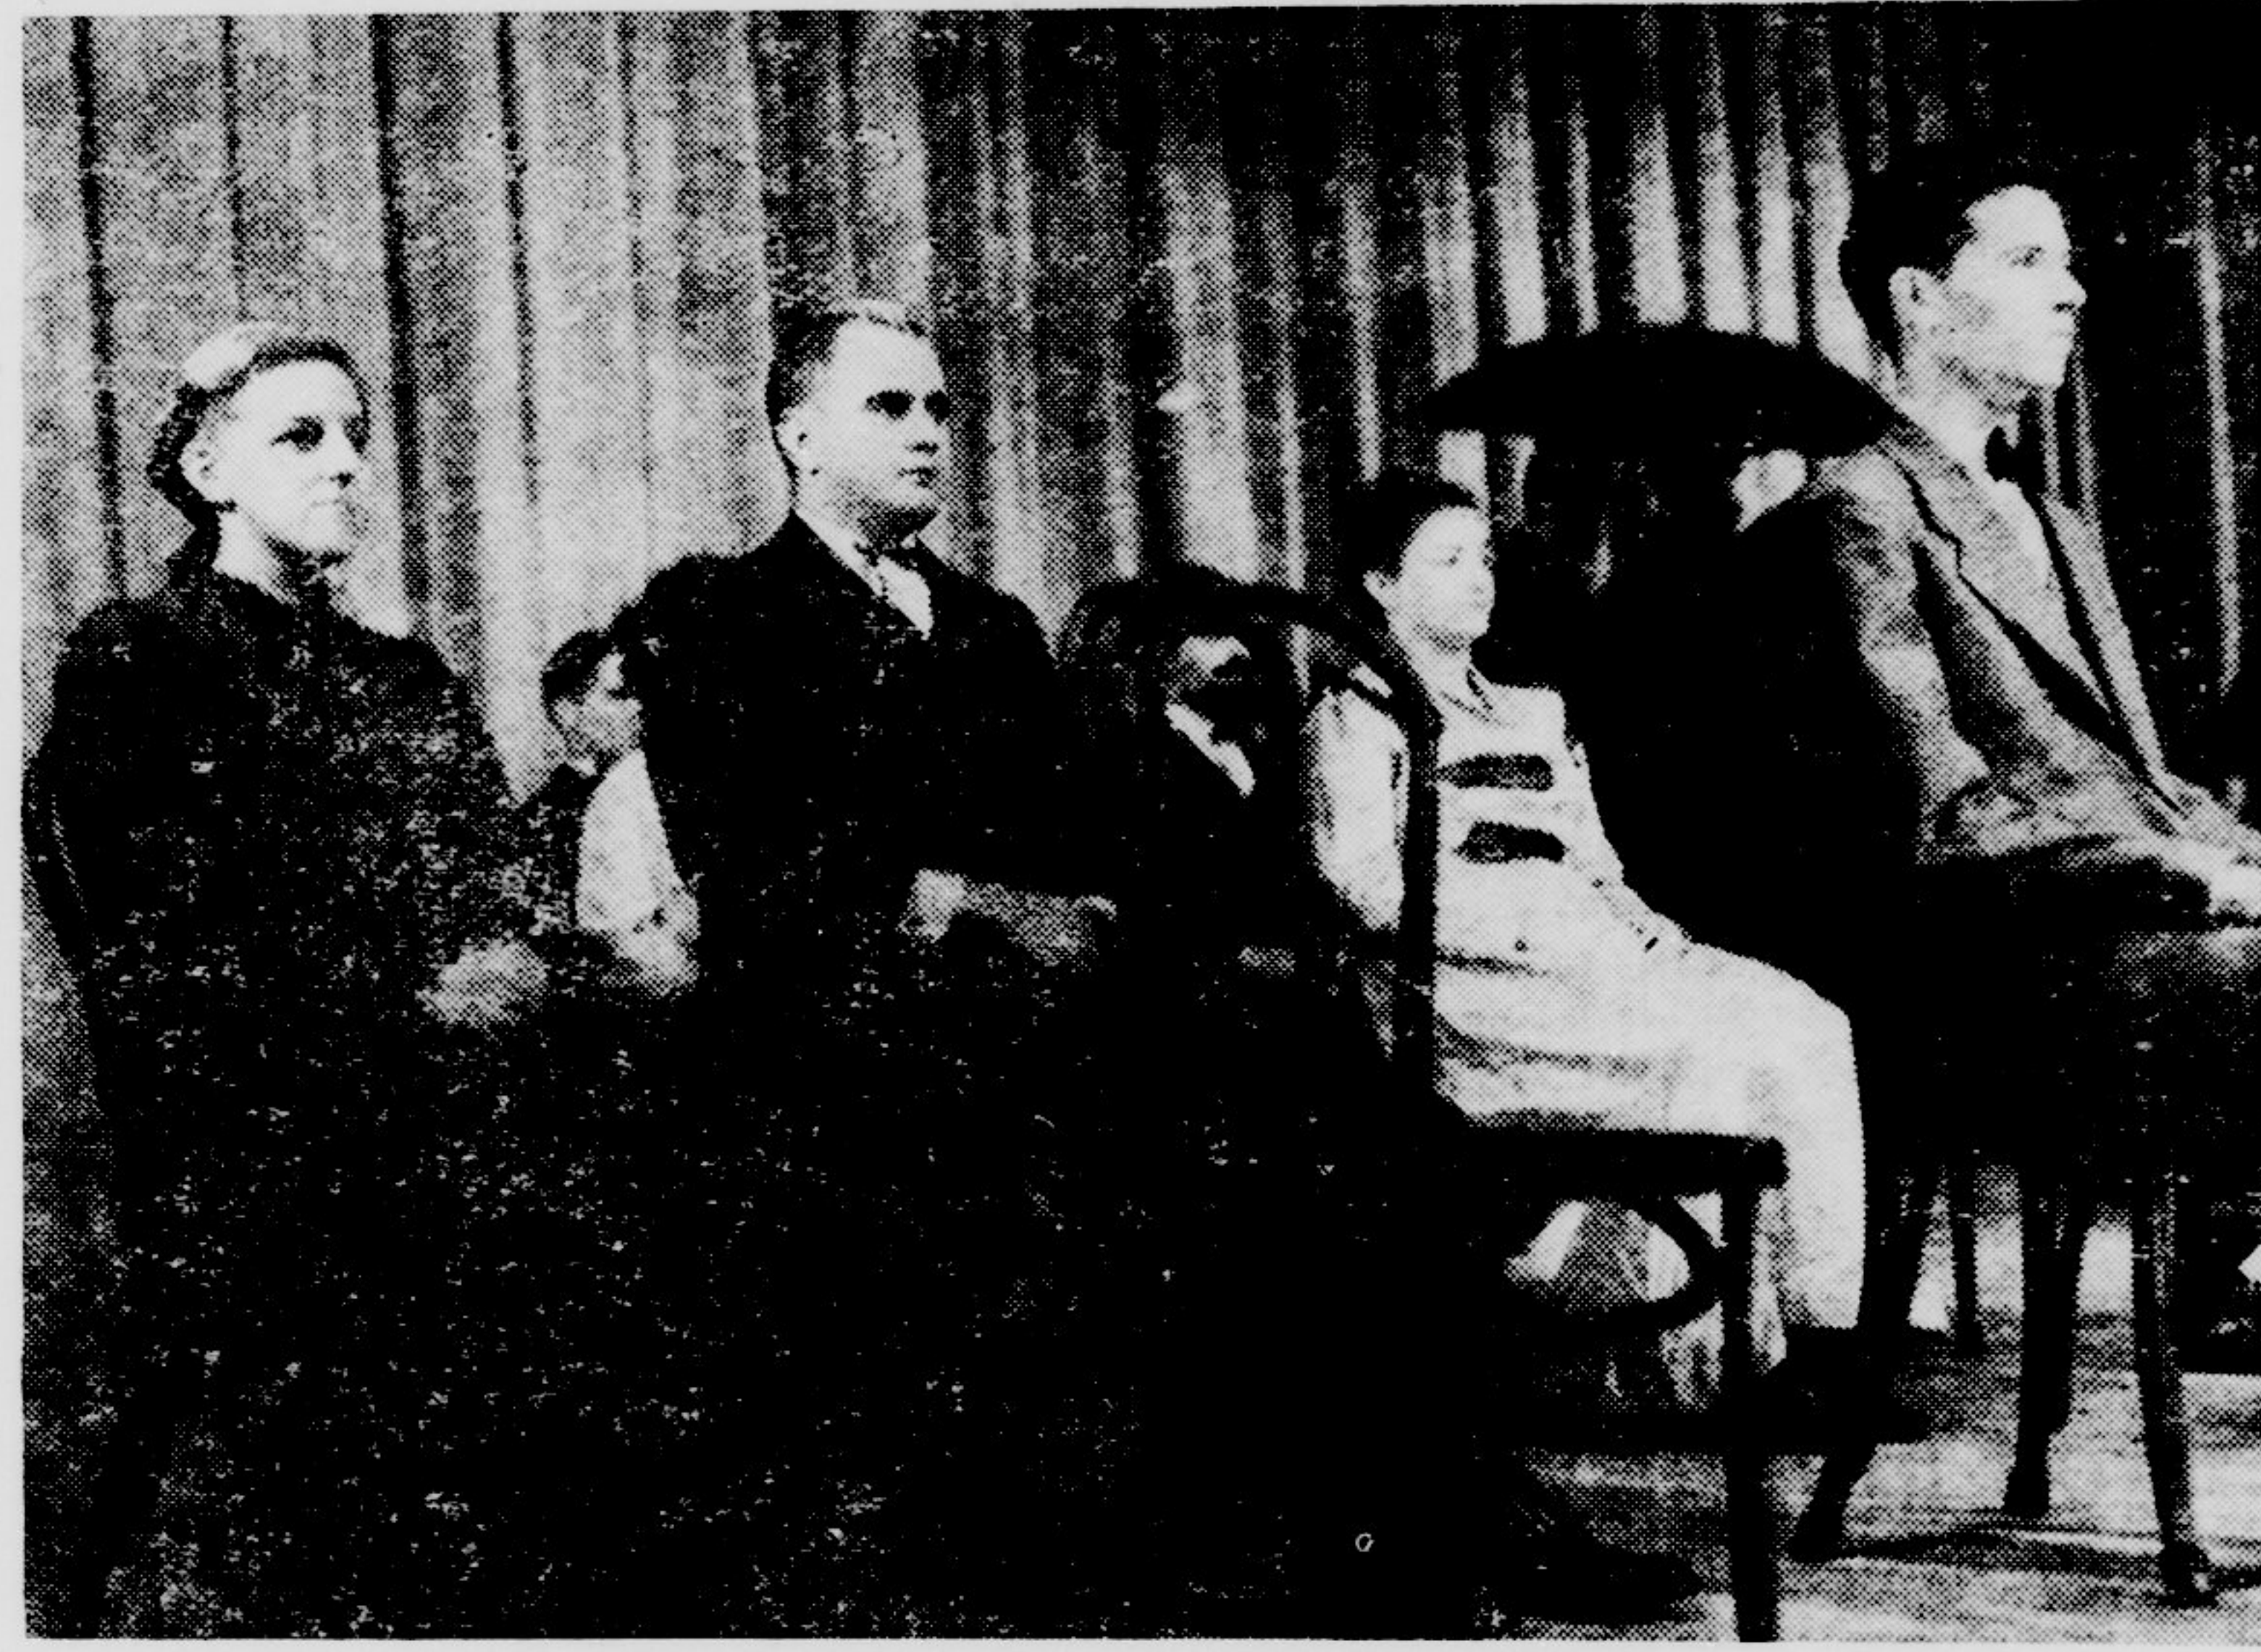

Mr. Holt gave a brief background of the Gospel writers and related how they gathered their information and for what purpose their writings were first used. He told of the background of the letters and the Epistles and pointed out the fact that many of them were the earliest recordings of the message of Jesus.

"It is a small book," concluded Mr. Holt, "but represents years of work, study and thought. It is not a magic book to be opened to find immediate answers to problems, but the answers are there if one will take the time to read and study the word of God."

Dr. Frank Speaks To Members Of Book Club

Dr. A. D. Frank, head of the social studies department at East Carolina, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Clio Book club of Greenville Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Dr. Frank discussed first the Korean situation, telling why the U. S. was fighting in Korea, Russia's desire to dominate Asia and why Japan would be the first country taken in the beginning of this dominance. He then answered the question of why the Army wants the 18-year-olds and discussed the country's England. In concluding he named the present difficulty at home—price situation and inflation—and how it could be stopped.

Yes, We Don't Discriminate

The assistant dean of Pittsburg university's medical school declared recently, "There is no quota system in use in the (Pitt) medical school." This statement and others made by the dean on that occasion were labeled by the Pitt "News" as "verbal gymnastics" and "circular talk." The "News" said the dean offered no sound reason for the school's including racial and religious questions on the application; only that "they have been in that form since 1909."

The dean went on to say that it is the duty of the medical school to supply the wants of the community and the community considers race and religious backgrounds in selecting its physicians.

"If that is so," commented the "News," "in Pitt's medical school certainly should have stated, 'Yes, we don't discriminate' and it has not." The "News" declared, "The quota system may not be done in order so as to provide criteria of great positive. It seems to be done away conveniently in the hands of those who process the applications."

Leaders Wrestle With Draft

Leading educators and government officials are still wrestling with the problem of student deferments. To date, no single, unified plan has risen from the multitude of solutions proposed, but more and more ideas are being thrown into the pot. Some of these plans are:

The Conant Plan—President James B. Conant of Harvard university suggested that all youths be inducted into military service and upon reaching the age of 18. Even those who are physically unfit for military service should be drafted and put to useful work. Under this plan, absolutely nobody would be deferred.

Counter-Plan—The Association of Colleges and Universities of the State of New York was lukewarm to Conant's idea. It objected to having all men between 18 and 20 in at the same time because it would do serious harm to the total education system. As a counter-proposal they suggested that basic military training be required as soon as he reached military age. Moreover, tests should be instituted to determine whether or not a student is fit to go to college.

The McGrath Plan—Dr. Earl J. McGrath, United States commissioner of education, proposed that 100,000 students a year be made eligible for deferment, if they could show ability to do better than average college work. A similar plan to postpone induction of superior students has been drawn up by the Selective Service Scientific Advisory committee. To get deferred, students would have to attain a score of at least 120 in any army type classification test.
