World-Famous Choir Boys From Vienna To Sing Here

Boys Aged From 7-12 Are To Give Concert In Wright March 21

The world-famous Vienna Choir Boys will appear in a concert on the East Carolina campus March 21 in the Wright auditorium at 8 p. m. in the evening of their ninth American tour. The group, directed by Impresario S. Hurok, consists of more than 20 young boys, aged seven to 12, from Vienna's St. Raphael school, founded by Emperor Joseph 452 years ago. Recently arrived in the United States after touring in Europe, the boys appeared at the International Book Festival in Vienna.

Singing Here

Choir Boys

The school has three choirs on tour. This is the third unit to appear in the United States since the war. The program allows each lad in the choir an opportunity to visit his country on the choir's far-flung itinerary at least once. Less than 100 boys of ten percent of the number of students are admitted to the school. From admission to one of the choirs, the boys receive two years of training. When the boys reach the age when they receive "allowance pay" and fare home, they decide to study are sent to a residential state boarding school on a three-year scholarship which covers tuition and living expenses provided by the Emperor.

What home economics students learn at East Carolina Teachers college, their activities on the campus and the field of public service into which they enter after graduation are presented in pictures in a booklet now being distributed by the college. The brochure "Home Economics in Pictures" was prepared under the direction of Dr. Bessie McNeil, chairman of the department of home economics at East Carolina.

The booklet includes 24 pages of photographs and comments, and is printed on glossy paper. The materials used covers the daily life of home economics majors in their work and leisure-time pursuits in the department. Training offered by the college to prospective public school teachers, both vocational and non-vocational, is stressed. Opportunities for public service and the training which fits students to become nursery school teachers, school lunch supervisors, extension workers, dietitians, laboratory technicians, home economists in business, family life coordinators, or homemakers is presented pictorially. Photographs indicate the varied training offered in the East Carolina home economics department. Students are pictured in such different activities as directing the play of children in the Nursery School maintained by the department and marketing in downtown stores for their foods classes. They are shown also studying textiles, learning to sew, getting practical experiences in home nursing, demonstrating appliances to make work in the home efficient, working with local chapters of the Future Homemakers of America, and doing student teaching in the public schools.

Notice

The TECO ECHO will not be published next week. Three members of the staff—the editor, an assistant editor and the sports editor—are going to the New York convention of the Columbia Scholastic Press association. The TECO ECHO is a member of the Teacher Colleges division of the association.

Mr. and Miss Student Teacher

James Ratledge of Winston Salem and Patricia Williams of Wilmington, (above) students at East Carolina Teachers college, have been chosen as Mr. and Miss Representative Student Teacher to represent the college at the NCEA convention to be held April 12-14, in Asheville. The two students were chosen from the group of student teachers who had completed their student teaching during the fall or winter quarters. Selection of the student teachers was handled by a faculty-student committee composed of Frank G. Miller, chairman; Dr. J. L. Oppelt, Miss Emma L. Hooper, Jane Gainey, Logan Gaskins and Mrs. Nell Wise Wechter.

Easter Egg Hunt To Be Sponsored By Circle K Club

The Circle K club of East Carolina Teachers college, student branch of Kiwanis International, will sponsor an Easter egg hunt for underprivileged children of Greenville March 22. The entertainment, according to present plans, will take place in the Davis arboretum on the campus. Each member of the organization will have as his guests two children of the city, who will be invited through the school and the welfare department of the city.

Arrangements for the Easter egg hunt were made at a dinner meeting held last Tuesday evening, February 20. J. T. Barnhill, Greenville Kiwanian, was host at the social meeting held at the Respass-James restaurant in Greenville. Forty-one members of the student organization and two special guests, Dr. J. O. Reynolds of East Carolina, faculty sponsor for Circle K, and Dr. H. G. Haney, president of the Greenville Kiwanis club, were present to enjoy Mr. Barnhill's hospitality.

Charles Self of Greensboro and Alfred Smith of Greenville were welcomed into the club as members. Three members who will be graduated at the end of the winter quarter received congratulations and good wishes for the future. These were Carl G. Conner of Windsor, William Flanders of Durham, and Robert A. Mays of Hopewell, Va. Mr. Mays, who has served as Circle K president during the present school year, was presented by club members with a billfold in token of appreciation for his work in the organization.

Playhouse Presents Radio Version Of Chekov's 'Boor'

The Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina Teachers college presented Monday evening, February 19, Chekov's "The Boor" as the first in a series of "Dramas for the Microphone." The one-act play originated from the campus studio at East Carolina and was broadcast over the facilities of WGTC of Greenville.

Elmer Williams of Washington had the leading role in the play. The supporting cast included Janice Perry of Louisburg and Mark H. Moore, Jr., of Bath. Barbara Eisele of Statesville was student director of the radio production. The series of "Dramas for the Microphone" will continue with a presentation of "Anatole's Wedding Morning" by Arthur Schnitzler, to be given early in March.

Northeastern ACE Conference Convenes On Campus Tomorrow

Program Will Include Addresses By Speakers Outstanding In Field

Members of the Northeastern district of the Association for Childhood Education will gather at East Carolina Teachers college tomorrow for a conference which is expected to bring to the campus a large number of teachers, parents, and others from the eastern counties of the state. Millie Moore of Rocky Mount, Northeastern district director of the ACE, will be presiding officer at morning and afternoon meetings of the organization.

Carrie Phillips of Greensboro, president of the North Carolina branch of ACE, will speak at a luncheon sponsored by the Greenville chapter of the organization. The meeting, which has been arranged under the direction of Elizabeth Hyman, local president, will be held in the cafeteria of the campus Training school. Mrs. Ellen Carroll of the Training school and the East Carolina faculty will be program leader.

President John O. Messick of East Carolina will welcome conference delegates at the morning session at 10:30 in the Flanagan auditorium. Speakers, who will discuss national problems of childhood education, will include J. E. Miller of the State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh, and Willaway Benbow, North Carolina teaching fellow, ACE Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

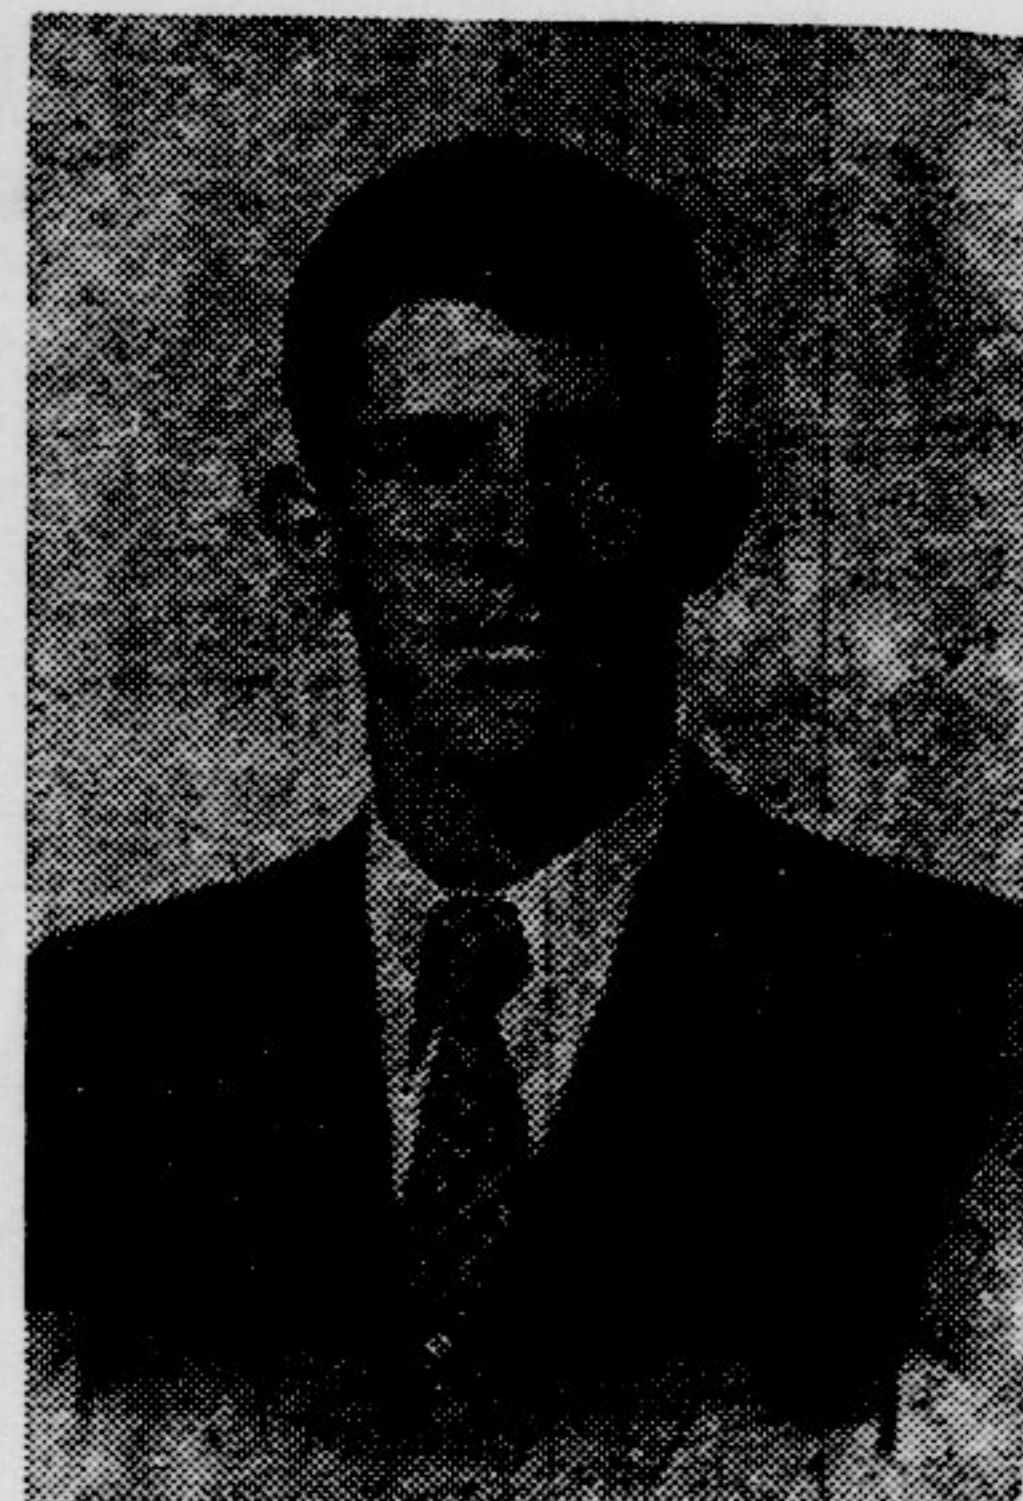

"How We Can Meet the Emotional Needs of Today's Children" will be the subject of a panel to be held during afternoon in the Flanagan building.

Thirteen Groups Take Part In Regional Play Festival

Clubs Present Dramas On New Theatre Stage During Two-Day Event

Thirteen groups of high school, college, and other dramatic organizations will participate today and tomorrow in the Eastern Regional Play Festival at East Carolina Teachers college. The event is sponsored by the Carolina Dramatic association as one of several such festivals to be held this spring in North Carolina.

Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of dramatic art at East Carolina, is chairman of the festival here. During the festival, each of the thirteen participating groups will present a short drama. These performances will be followed by evaluation meetings, at which the work of the dramatic organizations will be discussed informally. Dr. Charles; Mrs. Howard Mims of the Greenville High school; Douglas Swink of the Charles L. Coon school in Wilson; and Dr. Mildred E. Hartscock, head of the English department at Atlantic Christian college, will serve as chairmen and discussion leaders at the evaluation sessions.

The participating organizations and the schedule of plays to be presented are as follows: Friday evening at 7:00, the Wesley Players of Greenville, "What Men Live By," by Tolstoy; the Wilson Masketeers, "Eh?" by Fisher; the Washington Little Theatre guild, "High Window," by Powers; Saturday morning at 9:30, the Oaktree Players of Oak City, "Evening Star" by George; the Greenville High school Junior Dramatic class, "How to Propose" by Seiler; the New Hanover High school of Wilmington, "The Valiant" by Hall and Middlemass; Saturday afternoon at 2:30, the Belardur High school, "The Man Who Died at Twelve O'clock" by Paul Green; the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina Teachers college, "Anatole's Wedding Morning" by Schnitzler; the Atlantic Christian College Players, "Lovely Miracle" by Johnson; Saturday evening at 7:00, the East Carolina Players, an alumni group of the college here, "Darby and Joan" by Rose Fyleman; the Rose School of Speech of Greenville, "The Flight of the Herons" by Renard; the Greenville Little Theatre guild, "Hands across the Sea" by Coward.

Drum-Bugle Corps Receives Uniforms For Drill Periods

Technical Sergeant Robert Spicer of the AROTC unit is now a happy man. The uniforms for his drum and bugle corps have arrived, and now on the Thursday drill periods this musical unit will parade with white helmets, white gloves, white pistol belts and white leggings.

The drum and bugle corps was organized last fall by Sgt. Spicer and rehearses once a week. The twenty-four men who make up the unit have worked hard and the results have been gratifying according to Sgt. Spicer.

The unit fronted the rest of AROTC corp in the Christmas parade and in the Americanism Day parade.

The big event of the school year for the drum and bugle corps will be the two day Annual Federal Inspection on April 2 and 3.

Sgt. Spicer said he hopes to organize a regular band during the spring quarter. About three thousand dollars worth of instruments are now on hand for this undertaking.

In addition to the drum and bugle corp and the proposed band, the AROTC boasts a crack drill team which will also perform during the annual inspection.

Roommate?

With all the rigors of registration, occasionally there comes an amusing incident. At a lull in the ceremonial occasion, there sat on one side of the Wright auditorium a long line of serious looking professors. No students were around. A young girl wandered up and looked up and down the line of male faculty with an excited look. Mr. Scroggs of the science department ventured a statement, expecting that she was wanting to register for a class: "Take your choice." With that the young girl replied, "I'm looking for a roommate." And she turned on heel and fled.

Charles Self, Bob Robinson Enter Race For Top Office

Two persons have announced their intentions of running for the office of president of the Student Government association. Bob Robinson, junior from Washington, D. C.; and Charles Self, junior from Greensboro, will have their names on the ballot election day, March 16.

EC Students May Get Scholarships For Grad Study

East Carolina is eligible to recommend not more than five students who have completed requirements for graduation to the John Motley Morehead Scholarship committee in Chapel Hill. Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina has said. Students who are recommended and accepted by the committee are given a scholarship of $1500 a year for graduate or professional study at the University of North Carolina.

Students are selected for recommendation on the basis of their scholastic record, qualities of leadership, character, and their well-rounded development of personality. The selections are not to be made on the basis of financial need.

The East Carolina committee for recommending students to the Chapel Hill committee is composed of President John D. Messick, Treasurer and Business Manager F. D. Duncan, Dean Leo W. Jenkins, Registrar J. K. Long and Dean of Women Ruth White.

Further details on the John Motley Morehead Scholarships will be announced later according to Mr. Duncan.

Staples Filling Term Of Treasurer Of SGA For Spring Quarter

Thornton L. Staples of Richmond, Va., will serve as student treasurer at East Carolina Teachers college during the spring quarter. He will be in charge of the Student Budget office, through which student funds are handled. The position is considered on the campus as an influential and responsible one.

This school year Mr. Staples has served as first assistant treasurer, a position to which he was elected by students at the college last spring. He became student treasurer when William Flander of Durham, his predecessor in office, completed his work at the college February 23. A junior, Mr. Staples is specializing in business education.

With general elections just two weeks away, only one other person is actively campaigning for a major campus position. Alec Hurst, transfer student from Springfield college, Springfield, Mass., has announced he will seek the junior class presidency.

Self has been active in student government affairs on the campus. He is president of the Veterans club; member of the Circle K club, Commerce club, YMCA, Student legislature, and Jarvis Forensic Debating squad; and is sergeant-at-arms in the Jarvis Forensic club, cadet 1st Lieutenant flight commander in the AF ROTC, and business manager of the Men's Glee club.

Robinson also has a long list of activities. He has served as president of the Industrial Arts club, historian of the 1950-51 Legislature, cadet captain squadron executive officer of the AFROTC, and has been drum major of the college band since his freshman year. Robinson is also a member of the Circle K club. This past fall he was one of East Carolina's representatives to the North State Student Legislature in Raleigh and was elected to the Interim council of this organization.

Hurst, the candidate for the top junior class post, entered East Carolina last September and is an honor student and a member of the Veterans club. His home at present is in Greensboro.

It is fairly evident at this time that the campaigns this year will be relatively quiet. With elections being held March 16, no one has announced intentions of running for most of the top student government offices.

Candidates for student government offices will be introduced at a student assembly Thursday, March 15, the day before the elections.

Need A Job?

Capt. Richard M. Remington, United States Marine corps representative, will be on the East Carolina campus Monday and Tuesday to interview men and women who desire to become officers in the Marine corps.

Several East Carolina students have received commissions in the past. All training is done in the summer at the Quantico Marine base. Capt. Remington will be at Dean Leo Jenkins' office to meet and talk to students who are interested.

Music Recital Will Feature Robert Carter Of EC Faculty

Carter Has Had Wide Experience As Judge In National Contests

Robert Carter, pianist and faculty member at East Carolina Teachers college, will be presented Monday evening, March 5, in a recital sponsored by the college department of music. He will play at 8:00 o'clock in the College theatre. An invitation to be present is extended the public. Mr. Carter, who joined the East Carolina faculty in September, 1949, gave his first major recital on the campus the following January; and last summer he appeared in a joint program with Marguerite Martinelli, soprano, of Washington, D. C.

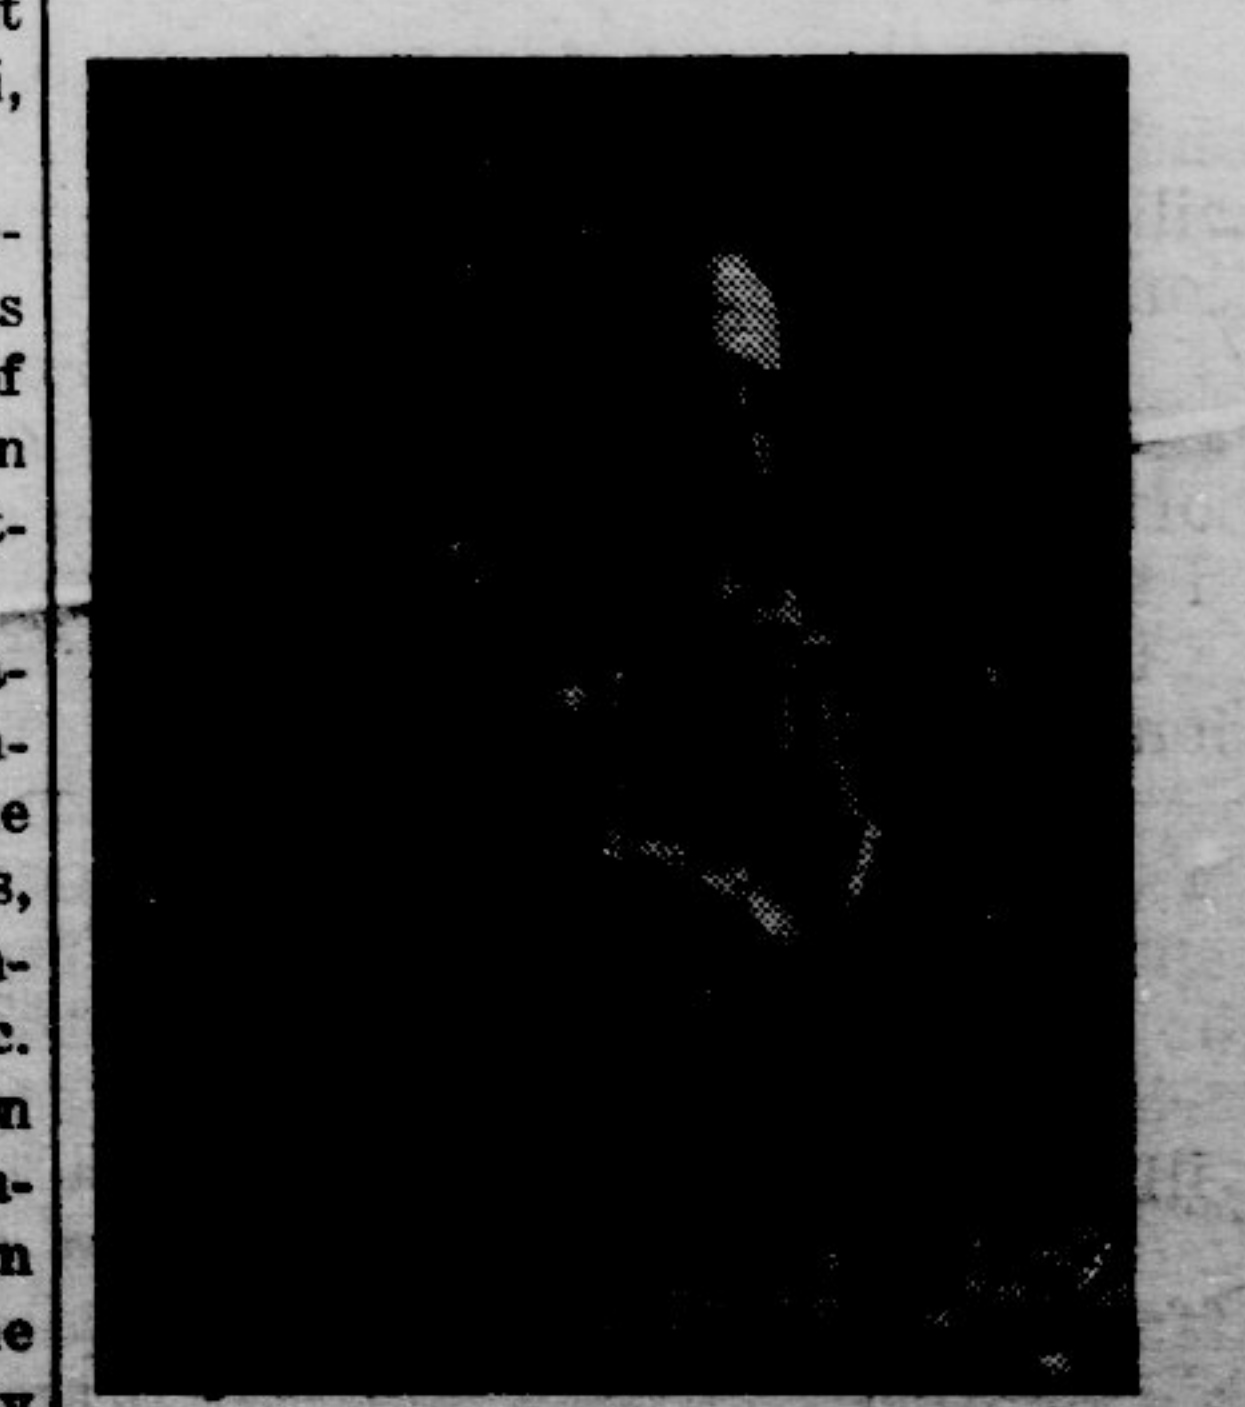

He has played in several college-sponsored radio broadcasts and has given programs before a number of civic and cultural organizations in Greenville and other towns of eastern North Carolina.

His experiences as a judge in national music contests has been extensive, and has included work with the National Federation of Music clubs, the National Guild of Piano Teachers, and the Juillard School of music. This spring he will act as judge in the State High School Music Contest Festival in cities extending from Wilmington to Asheville. In May he will judge contests in New York city and in Jackson and Memphis, Tenn.

for the National Guild of Piano Teachers.

Mr. Carter received his training in music at the Chicago Music college, where he studied with Rudolph Ganz and Dr. Glenn Dillard Gunn, now a well-known critic of music. Later he was a pupil of the celebrated teacher Madam Olga Samaroff. He has been accompanist for a number of well-known singers.

The program for Monday evening will include selections by Beethoven, Liszt, Brahms, Charles Griffes, and other composers.

THE BIG PROBLEM

A couple of weeks ago the Greenville "Daily Reflector" commented on an editorial which had appeared in the Washington, N.C., "Daily News." The "Reflector" agreed with the Beaufort county newspaper that "The big problem as we see it is not GETTING teachers in the profession, but rather it is KEEPING them in once we get them."

"In view of the fact that approximately 55 percent of those who enter the teaching profession in North Carolina remain in the field less than five years, that sounds like pretty good reasoning," states the "Reflector."

The "Reflector" went on to say that teachers salaries had been raised to a fairly even level in the past few years, and that proposed raises in salaries for new teachers will throw the beginning scale out of line with salaries experienced teachers are getting.

Yes, at first glance that does sound like "pretty good reasoning," but "sound" is all.

Here is the situation as we see it. A large percentage of teachers are leaving the field after only a few years service. Why? Someone approaches them with the offer "I'll give you more money than you'll ever make in teaching if you'll work for me." The teacher, having a family to support, facing rising prices, and fully capable of earning more money in another field, accepts.

The teachers who accept higher paying jobs probably the best in the field. Thus, the inferior teachers are left to instruct youth.

The editorials in the two papers say the problem is keeping teachers once we get them, and that the "Reflector" says beginning teachers are making enough money. There isn't much logic in this paradox. If beginning teachers aren't offered some attraction, schools are going to get second best to start off with.

The "Reflector" stated that "North Carolina needs good teachers in the schools of the state, but it doesn't need to give the world with a ribbon around it to the youngsters who are just entering the profession."

"We are of the opinion," it continued, "the state school system would be much better off in the long run if it sought to keep its capable people in the teaching profession for a number of years, rather than try to attract a flock of young, inexperienced teachers each year with high salaries."

The "Reflector" doesn't seem to realize that if some monetary attraction isn't offered to young people that the schools will get second best to begin with, for the more capable students will enter professions and jobs which offer them more. It doesn't realize that when a person chooses the teaching profession that instead of the "world with a ribbon around it," he is more likely to be placing a rope around his neck. And this is no more of an exaggeration. The "Reflector" doesn't realize that for years the salaries of teachers have been so low that many of the best have already left the profession, and that the ones who are left are second best. Yet the "Reflector" is in favor of concentrating on keeping the teachers we have rather than attracting new ones. The "Reflector" doesn't realize that if teachers were paid more, better students would be attracted to teachers colleges. More people would enter the teaching profession and remain in it. With more pay would come quality and permanency—not immediately, but in the long run.

The big problem as we see it is satisfaction with second best instructors in America's schools as a result of making the teaching profession unattractive to the best qualified in the land who can make more money elsewhere, and who would remain in the teaching profession if financially able.

STUDENT ELECTIONS

For the next few weeks most of the clubs and organizations on the East Carolina campus will be busy engaged in and concerned with electing their leaders.

At times there is a tendency to take an unwise interest in the seemingly unimportant details of the election. It should be remembered that the election is just about the most important activity on the campus.

The YWCA will hold an election to elect its officers at a meeting of members of that organization on Thursday, March 6. Nominations for the various offices are: President, Joyce; Vice-President, ...

ETAOIN and SHRDLU

by Rexford E. Piner

Both Catawba and High Point colleges began last week efforts to raise money for expansion. Televiewers in central North Carolina learned of the $800,000 "New Era" fund campaign drive to High Point during a 30-minute TV program Thursday, February 22. An army of 1,600 volunteer workers launched the drive the morning before.

At Catawba the Board of Trustees approved a campaign for $1,000,000 for the college's expansion. The trustees agreed to put the campaign into effect within the next few months. The fund would cover the next three items on the program—a library, auditorium and gymnasium. President A. R. Keppel reported that several sizable pledges were made at the meeting which would be used toward attainment of the goal.

Gene Hart and Joe Congleton climaxed their student teaching in Bethel by directing the junior-senior play there. For their work with the group in producing "Crashing Society" the two were each presented with a laudatory letter after the second act. It seems student teachers like Bethel. Who wouldn't?

Dr. H. C. Haynes in introducing students to his psychology of adolescence course this week brought out a quirk of psychology which is evident to most of us. He said that on the college campus students "make" 1's, but their professors "give" 5's. "The student will always say 'I made a 1' or 'He gave me a 5,'" said Dr. Haynes.

Just before exams our colleague, Miles Buck, gave us some good (?) advice on taking a music examination. Alas, the advice came too late. His theory was this: just memorize the cracks in the records so when it's necessary to identify them, you won't have any trouble. He should have told us this at the beginning of the quarter!

There comes a time in most every person's life when he must make the "fatal" step. I'm going to leave my news for a moment; a personal word please. (Excuse me, Mr. Gabriel.) Mrs. Ola Estelle Stampley of Wilmington announced the engagement of her daughter Wilma Jean to (Mr.) Rexford E. Piner in last Sunday's Wilmington paper. The vows will be spoken May 20 in St. Andrews-Covenant Presbyterian Church in Wilmington.

Thank you, thank you very much!

There is a fallacy in the views some teachers have that "if you don't ask any questions, I take it for granted you know all the answers." According to this viewpoint, understanding means memorization. A person can understand what he has read the night before, but this does not mean he has committed the material to memory and is capable of putting it down on paper. Being able to recite or write the material in tests requires more than understanding of the material. The student must have studied and learned the material so thoroughly that he can transmit the information it contained. Learning goes a little further than understanding. We have understood many things when we read them, but that has not given us the power to undergo examinations in that subject the next day, because we have not learned the material yet.

Priella Hinson was elected second vice-president of the North Carolina Canterbury commission at its convention earlier this month. The commission includes Episcopal student representatives from colleges and universities throughout the state. The commission was converted from an annual convention into a full time commission at the convention. John Denham of UNC is president; Bob Rutherford of Duke, first vice-president; Mary Jo Paul of St. Mary's, secretary; Delores Jenkins of Shaw, treasurer; Edith Rogers of St. Mary's, delegate-at-large; and Polly Winters of Duke, publicity chairman.

Vernon Tyson of Greenville was elected president of the Industrial Arts club earlier this month to fill the unexpired term of Robert Robinson.

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Anne Jones

With a record of service worthy of recognition, Junius Rose, a native son of Greenville, North Carolina, graduates from East Carolina in May. Yet, in all his activities, Rose has remained the calm, humble, and efficient worker he was upon entering East Carolina in the fall of 1947.

Last spring he was elected to serve during his senior year as the president of the Men Day Students association on campus. By way of this office Rose also gained a seat on the Student legislature and the Men's Judiciary. Besides being president of the Men's Day Students association, he is vice-president of the Circle K club and publicity chairman of the student Science club.

Also a member of Phi Sigma Pi, Rose was selected as one of the 26 campus leaders in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES during the current school year. In his junior year he held the office of secretary-treasurer of the Men Day Students as well as being a member of the Wesley Foundation council while a sophomore and a junior.

Science, which is his major, has always been Rose's favorite subject from high school days straight on through his four years of college here. Along with this, his favorite course is analytical chemistry. As one could naturally guess Rose joined the Science club as a freshman and has actively participated in a number of the club's projects to promote the interest of science throughout eastern North Carolina. His minor is mathematics.

Junius Rose

Last year on the Science club's mobile science tour Rose appeared on the program which was presented in Pitt and surrounding counties.

Greenville High school was the scene of his high school activities. As a senior, he was chosen vice-president of the student body. Besides this he was a member of a number of clubs and other organizations.

Another thing which Rose has continued through his college days is his affiliation with music. He started playing in his high school band quite early in life, and when he entered college he quite naturally joined the East Carolina band. The instrument of his choice is a rare one, namely the baritone.

Rose, who is seeking a bachelor of arts degree in May, has hopes of entering medical school this fall. "If I can't get in medical school, I guess I'll go in service," he says.

Along with his school activities, Rose works downtown in Ellington's Book store on Saturdays and during the holidays. He has been employed as part-time worker there for about five and one-half years.

"Give me the seashore from January to December," he commented when approached on the subject of what he likes to do in his spare time. It is perfectly natural that he likes boating, fishing, swimming, and the like, because these things go with the seashore. He also likes to play tennis and this sport takes up much of his leisure time in the spring and summer.

Being particularly fond of sports, Rose likes to watch football, basketball, and other games. He labels football as the one he likes to watch the best.

When it comes to the matter of eating, Rose cited his favorite dish as being crab meat panned in butter with plenty of hush puppies on the side.

Rated as one of the lucky guys on campus who have co-eds as girlfriends, Rose's is Sarah Peedin who is a transfer from Mars Hill college who now resides in Cotten hall.

Possessed with a friendly manner, a pleasant personality, and a sense of humor, Junius Rose stands among the leaders on the East Carolina campus.

TRADE BITS

by Tommie Lupton

Everyone has heard of snobs. Here are three different types, campus style: (1) The scholarly snob. He regards all students who spend any time on pursuits other than study as immature. This type is easily recognized by the frequency with which he can be heard to mutter, "What do they come to college for, anyway?"; (2) The socially active snob, who regards anyone who finds it necessary to spend an occasional evening in his room as a barbarian; (3) The grades-don't-mean-anything snob. This is the largest sub-division in the campus snob classification, it seems, and is composed of those who study when they have absolutely nothing else to do. Somehow the majority of them make passing grades. At the end of each semester they can be heard to remark philosophically, "Oh well, grades do not mean anything, anyway."

The boys in Florida State university have formed an entirely different type of club. It's the WRTPBSUTRP, which stands for: We Refuse to Patronize Tallahassee Barber Shops Until They Reduce Prices. When it has enough money in its treasury, the club intends to hire a full-time barber who will set up headquarters in the office of the student government president. The club's insignia? A pair of scissors on a background of peppermint sticks.

The Cavalier Daily, University of Virginia, was pulling the beard off a certain type of professor: "Surely," declared the Daily, there is no more diabolic and uncivilized machine than the teacher who doesn't know how to teach. His every lecture is like an 800-mile train ride through Texas in July, with a hot wind coming back from the engine, and 16 cars full of sheep between." The Daily called for a faculty rating system such as Georgia Tech has, or graduate school teaching classes, as is done at Princeton. The student body at East Carolina has tried to remedy the type of teaching discussed by the Daily by installing a faculty rating system.

The cautious city manager of East Lansing, home of Michigan State, didn't want to make any false charges. About a dozen stop signs and six parking meters were missing. The city manager said he did not want to accuse college students directly, but pointed out that such signs had been found in dormitories and fraternities. Anyway, persons returning the loot to the police station would not be prosecuted.

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Jean Head

We are off again to a new start. Seems good to be going to new classes with new instructors. It might be a good idea to make "new quarter" resolutions. There are many that might be made, but would there be any point in using the energy to make them? We wonder!

Elsie Harrelson was whisked off campus the other day in an ambulance. She was enjoying the winter weather, slipped, fell, and injured her spine. Hear that she was real thrilled about the ride despite her mishap! Here's hoping she will be back soon. We don't know how many students have taken advantage of the new recreation room, located in the basement of the Wright building, but we think it would be well worth the time to look it over.

Miss Segerman is head of the social committee and has worked hard to get the room started. Many improvements are in the making for the room and it is hoped that it is only a minifuture of the one that will be had in the future. The least we can do is go down and see it and form an opinion about it.

Since there was no paper last week, there were no comments on the Elliot Lawrence dance, but don't think we should miss the opportunity to say that everyone there seemed to be having a "real fine time;" and that Elliot Lawrence and Band were really "tops."

Last quarter's practice teachers don't seem to know what to do with themselves this week. Hear that it seems good to be at the "old grind" again. However, Dot Boyette and "co-teachers" got sentimental and went last Friday as their children bade them goodbye!

Some of the people who are not back this quarter are: Frances Bizzell, who is teaching in Apex; Janie Starling is doing welfare work in Clinton (anyone needing assistance contact Janie); Peggy Bell and several others.

One particular person who will be missed very much on this campus this quarter is Mac Eure. Mac is going to be in the hospital for another while, and we're sure he would be glad to hear from friends here. We're sure all Mac's friends wish good luck for him and hope that he will be back soon. He ain't too worse a "cheese."

Tolerance

In the greater unity that comes of tolerance is our strength. Never before have we so much needed togetherness. Tolerance can light the way.

MILES BEHIND THE MIKE

by Miles Buck

Voice of Lent

A weekly meditation is being aired every Wednesday at 4:45 over WGTC by the Wesley foundation. Ethel Parks is the director. This is the third year that this student religious organization has conducted Lenten meditation programs.

Music and the Spoken Word

This program is offered by the Columbia Network every Sunday afternoon from the Mormon Tabernacle at Salt Lake City. This program has been aired now for almost 15 years and combines the beauty of the spoken word with the magnificent music of the Tabernacle organ. For early Sunday afternoon meditation it can't be beat.

The Navy and TV

A few weeks ago we talked about the trouble educators are having deciding what to do about educational TV. We offer a project which the United States Navy has had in operation since last October. Every week they send out a program called "Drill Call" which is used in connection with their Reserve program. They have found that they are getting better results from this type of instruction because there are fewer distractions and the men concentrate on the TV screen. The biggest problem that faced the Navy when this program was undertaken was that of securing an instructor that could both instruct and at the same time maintain interest. In other words, he had to be a good actor as well as a good instructor. They auditioned 65 people before they decided on Gary McHugh, a former aviation electronics technician in the Navy and an experienced TV actor. This program is sent out each week from Port Washington, L. I. and relayed through WOR-TV in New York. The educators could well take a lesson from the Navy and do something about TV instead of just talking about it.

Among the New Record Releases

On the Polymusic label, two 12-inch records, Shakespeare's "The Tempest," directed by Richard Barr, with Raymond Massey, Margaret Phillips, Hurd Hatfield, Lionel Stander and Lee Grant. This set should prove interesting inasmuch as the play calls for sound effects and the recording boys can do a better job with the sound effects than is possible with a stage production.

The Margaret Webster company has recorded "Romeo and Juliet" on Atlantic records with Eva Le Galliene, Richard Waring and Dennis King. This is also a two 12-inch record album.

SPORTS ECHO BY LLOYD WHITFIELD

We predicted earlier in the season that East Carolina's basketball team would not reach paramount strength until February...

Even though the Bucs lost in the final game, take a look at the clubs they had to beat to get where they did. No other team in the conference drew pairings such as the rugged ones East Carolina did...

In the semi-final round of play the upsetting Buccaneers had to play Catawba's Indians, who had previously beaten Guilford 94-71...

After knocking off the Indians on Friday night the Pirates earned the right to meet High Point in the finals. High Point had eked out a 53-52 victory over the Bucs earlier in the campaign...

BUCS WERE HIGHLY IMPRESSIVE IN TOURNAMENT

Nevertheless, the surprising Bucs had come through in fine style and played the best ball of the tournament, thrilling every fan with their great style of play...

The Bucs had come a long way and not enough praise could be handed the boys for the fine job they did at Statesville and for the wonderful publicity they brought the school...

After the tourney finals, awards were presented with East Carolina gaining more than any other team. East Carolina placed four men on the All-tournament team...

Coaches and captains of the teams received conference trophies in the post-game ceremonies, while players received gold and silver basketballs.

Space will not permit us to say how proud we are of our team, and besides, we could not find the words to express our sincere appreciation for the fine job Coach Porter has done with his team.

We will all be pulling for their success in the N.A.I.B. tournament and hope that they can go all the way to Kansas City and cop the national finals.

ATTENDANCE WAS SURPRISINGLY LOW AT CLASSIC

No official attendance figures were announced for the tournament, but the total probably will be slightly under last year's. Not a single session was a sellout in the 2,200-seat gymnasium.

It appears to us that conference officials could find a more centrally located spot for the tournament, because the majority of the fans at such tourneys come from the supporting student bodies and the alumni.

A CHANGE IN LOCALITY OF TOURNAMENT NEEDED

It is evident that a change in locality is needed for there were only 5,000 fans present at the three-day event which could easily triple that figure...

Another thing which is depressing to us is the fact that the N.A.I.B. regional play-offs are being staged at Hickory, a city which has a representative in the tourney.

The aforementioned factors should be given considerable attention next year, and looked into thoroughly before the time arrives.

High Point's Purple Panthers used an effective 50-second freeze in the last of the contest to edge Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina Pirates, 66-62 in the finals of the North State conference tournament Saturday night at Staesville.

In making their bid to bring a conference championship to East Carolina the Bucs had a rough schedule. They opened on Thursday night against the first place team, Lenoir Rhyne, and they had to play Catawba in the semi-finals on Friday night.

The second half developed into another close twenty minutes of play and it appeared at one time that the Buccaneers were on their way to the championship. The Bucs tied the score at 60-all with three minutes to go...

Honors were still being awarded to East Carolina's hustling basketball team as the North State tournament team and the tournament's most valuable player awards were announced.

After being named to the All-tournament team on Saturday night, Bobby Hodges, was also named the most outstanding player in the North State conference tournament completed at Staesville Saturday night.

Only a freshman at East Carolina, the big 6'5" guard, sparked the Bucs' play throughout the classic as he dominated both backboards and scored 47 points in three games.

Notice

A telegram from Williamson's boxing coach, Johnny Long, Monday afternoon stated that Crowell lost in New York in his bid for the welterweight championship.

Marking his third year of Golden Gloves competition, Williamson has 8 championship titles and trophies to show for his efforts. He has emerged the victor from Golden Gloves tournaments in Whitesville (twice), Wilmington, Clinton, Fayetteville, Raleigh, and Charlotte (twice).

Last year, the physical education major won his "T" for his sparking ring work as top member of the Pirate boxing squad, and was initiated into the Varsity club.

As his best fight, Williamson picks his latest Golden Gloves scrap in which he won a unanimous decision over Bill Godfrey, of the Greenville, (S. C.) YMCA, for the open welterweight championship of the Carolinas.

Pirate Golf Team Ready To Defend NS Championship

What are the chances of East Carolina retaining the North State Golf championship?

The immediate problem confronting the linksters according to Milt Zellin, East Carolina golfer, finding replacements for half of last year's team. The No. 2 man, Mote Massey, will be severely missed; he has been called into the service.

The aspirants to the existing vacancies are Dave Martin, Lonnie Nelms, Knotts Proctor, John Morgan and Roy Cuddihy. These hopefuls exhibit every indication of filling the shoes of the departed veterans, says Zellin.

Fortunately the nucleus of this year's team will be built around Bill Stalls, the North State Conference champ, Walter Wells and Joe Exum. In this year's conference race Bill Stalls rates East Carolina an optimistic first with stiff competition from Elon and High Point colleges.

The schedule of matches has not been completed and negotiations are still under way to fill the remaining dates available. Matches with the University of North Carolina, and the University of Ohio have been scheduled. Tentative matches with Wake Forest, North Carolina State and the University of Miami (Florida) are being planned.

Coach Howard Porter will again direct the Pirates this season.

East Carolina's Pirates moved into the finals of the Carolina District NAIB tournament in Hickory Wednesday night when they outscored the Appalachian Mountaineers 77-69. The Bucs will meet the winner of the High-Point-Catawba game Monday night for the right to represent the two Carolinas in the national finals held in Kansas City.

In a rough and rugged exhibition of basketball that saw each team lose five players on personal fouls, the Pirates took a comfortable lead early in the first half and were leading 39-25 at the intermission. There was a total of 68 personal fouls called in the game which got out of hand on several occasions.

Bobby Hodges, the 6'5" guard for East Carolina who was recently named as the North State tournament's most valuable player, led the Pirates to the 8 point victory by ripping 24 points before leaving the game on five personals. All-conference forward, Sonny Russell bagged 20 points to share in the scoring honors with Hodges. High man for Appalachian was Joe Hunt with 16 points.

The outstanding play of Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina Pirates at Statesville last week in the annual North State tournament brought about a decision of conference officials to include five teams in the N. A. I. B. tournament.

The Pirates accepted the bid to play in the district 26 play-offs of the National Association Intercollegiate Basketball play-offs after losing the North State championship to High Point on Saturday night, 66-62.

Teams are selected from the two Carolinas to participate in this tournament to decide who will go to Kansas City to represent the two Carolinas in the National Association Basketball tournament held there each year. All teams chosen this year were members of the North State conference with the only two eligible teams from South Carolina not accepting bids.

Bucs Run Up Highest Score Against Atlantic Christian

Pirate Quint Wallops Arch Rival 106 To 70 In Battle For Bohunk

Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina basketball team ran up its highest point-total of the season as it walloped arch rival, Atlantic Christian, 106-70, in Wilson Saturday night February 17.

In defeating the Bulldogs for the second time this season, the Pirates retain possession of the immortal Bohunk trophy which is at stake when the two teams meet in any athletic event.

It was the second time this year that a North State conference team has scored over 100 points against the Bulldogs. The other team to accomplish the feat was High Point as they registered a 119-78 victory.

In the first twenty minutes of play the contest was evenly played with the Pirates leading 47-32 at the intermission. However, when the second half began it was evident that the Buccaneers would turn the exciting tilt into a rout. With the reserves pouring in on most of the last period the locals registered win number nine in conference play to keep them in fifth place in the final loop standings.

Most of the Pirate team got into the scoring act, but it was All-conference Sonny Russell who took high scoring honors for the evening with 26 points. Five other Pirates hit in the double figures with Hodges collecting 18, Fennell 15, Huffman 12, Postas 14 and Collie 11.

Gilbert Ferrell, freshman guard, led the Bulldog scoring attack with 21 points, followed by Jack Allsbrook who bucketed 20.

Phi Sigma Chapter Will Serve As Host At Annual Congress

Marguerite Z. Austin, president of Sigma Pi Alpha, national fraternity for foreign language students, has announced that the 20th annual Congress of the organization will meet at East Carolina Saturday, March 17. The Phi Sigma chapter at the college will act as host to visiting chapters.

Invitations to attend the Congress have been sent to 16 branches of the national organization located in North Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, and Utah. Alumni of East Carolina who belong to the Phi Sigma chapter and who live in this section of the state have also been invited.

EC Rifle Team Scores Win

Cadet Richard B. Whittington, senior from Snow Hill, led the Air Force Reserve Officer Training corps riflemen of East Carolina to victory, in a postal match with North Carolina State college Air Force Reserve Officer Training corps riflemen, recently. Cadet Whittington had a high score of 365 for all firing positions.

The East Carolina squad coached by Maj. James N. McDill, instructor in Air Science and Tactics, scored a total of 3479 points against 3469 for State college.

Issue Of 'Colhecon' Features Students In Home Economics

The current issue shows four students at East Carolina participating in the ceremony of lighting candles at a Betty Lamp, symbol of the American Home Economics association. This ritual marks the acceptance of a student into membership in the organization.

The students included in the picture are Barbara Jean Hamilton of Thomasville; Amy C. Cayton of Winterville; Doris Edwards of Selma; and Thelma Russ of Kelly. Miss Edwards is secretary of the college home economics club here. Miss Russ is president of the local club, and has served as treasurer of the North Carolina College Home Economics clubs and as secretary of the Province III Home Economics clubs workshop, which includes colleges in Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, and eastern Tennessee. The two other students are freshmen at the college.

Messick Gets Permanent Post On Accreditation Committee

East Carolina Prexy Achieves Appointment At Meeting Of AACTE

Dr. John D. Messick, for the past four years president of East Carolina, has been appointed a permanent member of the National Accreditation committee of the American Association of Colleges of Teacher Education.

The appointment was made recently during the annual meeting of the AACTE at Atlantic City, N. J.

Messick assumes the permanent membership after having served on the accreditation standards committee since last August when he was appointed to an interim membership at the University of Wisconsin.

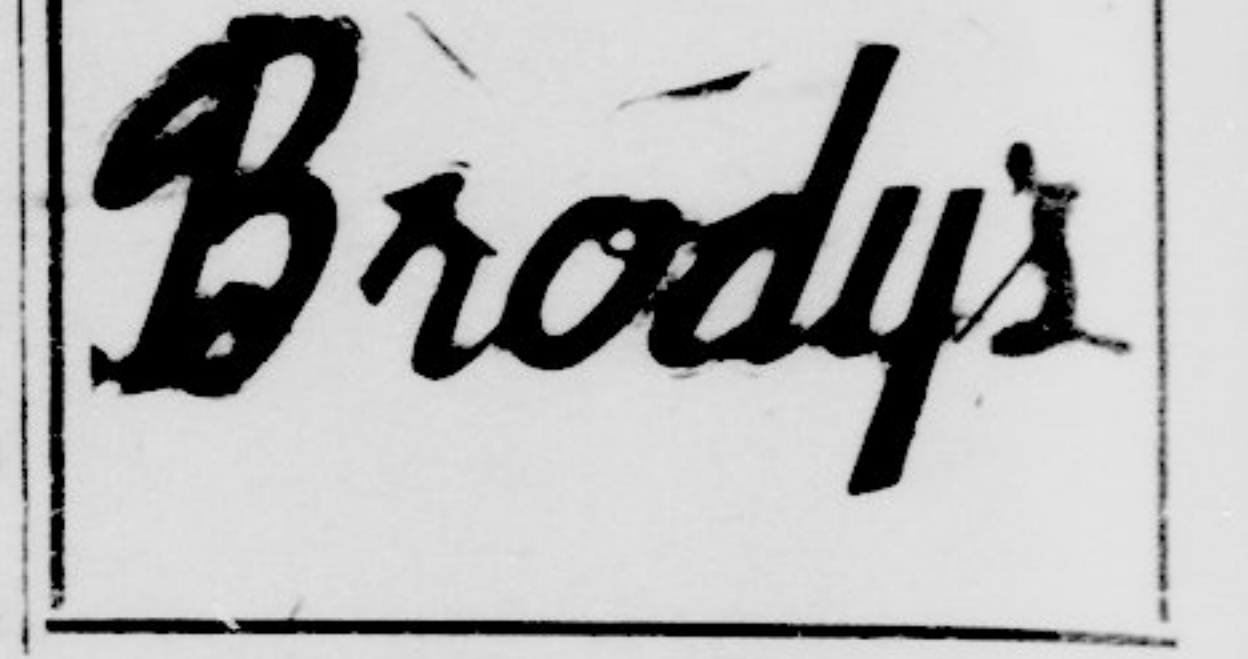

That five man committee since then has been investigating a plan for setting up standards whereby a college or department of a college or university can become accredited for teacher education.

Messick's appointment is for a period of five years, the longest period a member can serve on the committee. During the next three years all colleges of teacher education which are member of the AACTE will be inspected by visitation committees set up by the accreditation committee. There are over 180 such schools in the country.

Other members of the committee are: J. B. Edmondson, dean of the School of Education of Michigan; S. B. Brownell, president of the New Haven Teachers college; D. S. Lancaster, president of Longwood college; W. D. Armentrout, vice-president of Colorado College of Education; T. S. Pullen, state superintendent of schools of Maryland; and T. M. Stinnell, National Commission of Teacher Education.
