Outstanding Students Receive Certificates

Livesay, Williams Named 'Outstanding Student Citizens'

Students outstanding in academic work and extra-curricular activities at East Carolina college were honored Tuesday morning, May 1, in an annual Awards Day program in the Austin auditorium.

Certificates were presented by President of the College John D. Messick to members of the Student Legislature, students named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," staff members of the two student publications, the outstanding student in each department of the college, and an outstanding man and woman "Student Citizen."

Alexander E. Livesay of Rocky Mount, president of the Student Government association, and Patricia Williams of Wilmington, president of the YWCA, were presented with the "Outstanding Student Citizen" awards. They were elected to the honor by fellow members of the legislature in a secret ballot last month.

Publications Awards

For the first time since the annual Awards Day was held three years ago, certificates were given to staff members of the TECO ECHO, student weekly newspaper, and the "Tecoan," college annual. D. Wilbur Jones, editor of the annual, received the certificate for the members of his staff.

Alexander E. Piner, TECO ECHO editor, received certificates on behalf of the newspaper staff. Dr. Messick praised in glowing terms the work of the two student publications. He said the annual was the best the college has had in his years at the college. The newspaper, he said, has shown maturity and experience beyond the years of the members of the staff. Complimenting the editorials, he explained that the paper has had complete freedom in expressing its views and would continue to do so as long as everything was "above board."

Alumni Of Richmond Organize New Chapter Of Alumni Association

Alumni of East Carolina college in Richmond, Va. have organized a chapter of the Alumni association of the college, according to an announcement by Mrs. Ruth Garner, alumni secretary. The chapter is the second to be formed in Virginia, the Norfolk-Tidewater chapter having been organized in 1949.

A group of sixteen alumni of East Carolina, representing the 75 graduates of the college now living in Richmond, met last Friday evening, April 20, at the John Marshall hotel in Richmond to draw up plans for the new chapter. Final arrangements have been completed, says Mrs. Garner, and officers for the new chapter have been announced.

Mrs. James O. Proctor will serve as president of the Richmond chapter; George Morris, as vice-president; Marian Martin, as secretary; and Mrs. E. C. Dickens, as treasurer.

Tau Chapter Has 15th Anniversary Banquet Recently

The tau chapter of Phi Sigma Pi fraternity held its Fifteenth Annual Founder's Day Banquet Thursday evening, April 26, at the Rotary club. The banquet is held each year for the installation of new officers and introduction of new members.

In the absence of president Bob Mays, Paul Trotman, vice-president of the organization presided. The invocation was offered by the Reverend Leonard Topping after which a baked chicken dinner was served.

Dr. Richard C. Toda, faculty sponsor of the group, extended the welcome to the new members and commended the retiring officers for their work during the past year. Dr. Toda, in thanking the members for selecting him as faculty sponsor, said, "I'll try to prove worthy of the trust by attempting to further the work so nobly advanced by my predecessor, the late Dr. Flanagan."

The installation of officers followed a musical program featuring Alison Hearne and George Perry, member of the music department faculty. Newly elected officers for 1951-52 are: Albert L. Harrington, president; Robert Bass, Jr., vice-president; Alec J. Hurst, Jr., secretary; John R. Kluttz, assistant secretary; Arthur P. Johnson, treasurer; Lloyd Whitfield, historian; and Dennis R. Education Group Holds Tag Day To Get Funds For Scholarship Award

Student members at East Carolina college of the Beta Kappa chapter of Pi Omega Pi, national honorary business education fraternity, held their seventh annual Tag Day yesterday to raise funds for the Thomas Clay Williams Memorial Scholarship award.

Tag Day was established in 1945 in memory of Williams, a Greenville student, who at the time of his death was a member of Pi Omega Pi and editor-in-chief of the TECO ECHO, student newspaper at East Carolina. The award is presented each commencement to the senior with the highest scholastic average in the department of business education.

Robert L. Chick of Rocky Mount, treasurer of the Beta Kappa chapter of the fraternity, is chairman of the Tag Day committee this spring.

Hollar Receives College Annual In Dedication For Long Service in an Oklahoma school.

Returning to his home state, Hollar worked in the Missouri school systems for four more years, before going to Union college in Barbourville, Ky. for a one-year stay as professor of education. Getting nearer and nearer to where he spent 25 years of his career, he acted as professor of history and social studies at West Tennessee Teachers college, Normal, Tenn., for one year.

Then the man who seemed to like to be moving about came to East Carolina in 1926 and has been around ever since.

Hollar is married and has had two children to graduate from East Carolina. Both children are now teaching school.

The retiring professor became a member of the local faculty in 1926 and has been here since that time. Originally from Missouri, the social studies instructor received his master's degree from the University of Missouri in 1924. He did graduate work at George Peabody college for teachers.

A student in the Missouri rural schools through the grades, he graduated from Hardin High school. Further pursuing a higher education, the Missouri schoolboy entered the State Normal school and graduated two years later in 1912. Reaching higher heights, Hollar graduated again from the same school in 1919 with a B.S. degree in education. The school had been developed into a teachers college.

As for experience before coming to East Carolina, the social studies teacher taught five years in the rural schools in Ray county, Mo., three years as superintendent and high school teacher in Southwest City, Mo., and he then left his home state to serve as superintendent and teacher

The East Carolina College Band will stage its annual lawn concert next Tuesday afternoon, May 8, at 6:15 o'clock on the campus just west of the Administration building. Herbert L. Carter, band director, and four senior students of music chosen as directors of selections to be played during the afternoon will conduct the group as it plays a program of popular selections.

The band has chosen for next Tuesday a program of music light and popular in type and pleasing for rhythm and tunefulness. Selections will be made up of marches and compositions by modern composers, including Gershwin's "Embraceable You" and "I Got Rhythm;" Hoagy Carmichael's "Rockin' Chair;" Rogers and Hart's "Where or When" and other favorites among contemporary popular numbers.

Expansive Building Program At College Is Still Growing

by Tommie Lupton

East Carolina college is growing by girl students. Plans are being made for the building of a Student union to be in the basement of the Wright building. The college has $25,000 at the present time for the work, but it is hoped that it will be possible to save more money with which to fix up the Student union.

Plans are finished and have been sent to the State for approval for the new library that is to be erected on the East Carolina campus. The old library will be converted into a classroom building.

Bids are being taken Tuesday for the building of a home management house and for an addition to the laundry. The new 2200 seat gymnasium is expected to be completed by next October or by the beginning of the 1951-52 basketball campaign at the latest.

Preceded by Anne Osborne of Salisbury and Betty Loughlin of Wilmington, heralds, the maids in the court dressed in bouffant pastel dresses and carrying matching parasols entered separately and formed a semi-circle at the dias which elevated the Queen's throne.

Maids were Ramona Sawyer of Washington, maid of honor; Thelma Russ, Kelly; Anne Oakley, Greenville; Ramona Hobgood, Oxford; Marie Stoddard, Chadbourne; Lois Johnson, South Mills; Norma Hughes, Chadbourne; Gail Hines, Faison; June Pritchard, Montclair, N. J.; Sarah Peedin, Selma; Dorothy Jennings, Elizabeth City; Elizabeth Hedgpeath, Warrenton; and Jeannette Tillet, Kill Devil Hill.

TO PRINT OR NOT TO PRINT

The Student legislature has, during the past year, on two or three occasions, attempted to legislate what was to be printed in the TECO ECHO. While it is true that this body controls the "purse strings" of the campus weekly since it appropriates the money for its support, the Legislature has unwisely overstepped its jurisdiction and responsible action.

Recently the Legislature heard and passed a motion that the minutes of the Legislature meetings be printed in the TECO ECHO. Without regard to the technicalities involved or the "freedom of the press" which is so dear to college editors, the body passed a motion, without consulting the editor, which the TECO ECHO cannot accept. It was too inclusive and limiting. It was too inclusive and limiting.

When the editor is accepted by the Legislature he is responsible for the paper until such time as he is removed from office by the Student Government association or the administration. Technicalities of which most members of the Legislature are unaware prevent any editor from accepting such a directive. Certainly any college editor must be responsible to someone, but this responsibility must be within certain technical limitations, and there are journalistic standards which must uphold.

There is just so much print that a page will hold. It is the editor's duty to gather the material available and make a choice as to what will be printed. He judges from the timeliness of the story, how it is written, its importance and other various criteria too numerous to mention. The editor must be trained and competent to do this. He must use his own judgement quickly and without trifling obstacles, if the paper is to come out.

At the time the motion was passed, the editor, of his own accord, without the knowledge of the Legislature's action, had decided to begin a column called "Legislature Briefs" which would include happenings in that body. This column was not necessarily to be a weekly publication but was to be printed at such times as the editor thought there was something happening in the Legislature to write about. This continues.

The minutes of the Legislature cannot print the minutes of the Legislature meetings in the TECO ECHO. The minutes are filled with triflings containing little value; the minutes are not written in a style; there are often more important things going on in the campus which we could not print in the TECO ECHO for these and other reasons the TECO ECHO will not be able to print the minutes.

The Administration of the college has some control over the student newspaper too, but it cannot say you will print so and so, even though it could abolish the paper if it so desired. The Student Government association also has the power to abolish the paper or remove the editor, but cannot tell him what to print while he is in office. It can suggest, and if it does not like the job he is doing, remove him from office.

It is realized that the Legislature now in office is new and inexperienced, but it is hoped that the members can see the light and realize the seriousness of the situation. The action must not become a precedent—that the Legislature will have to vote on what will or will not be printed. Newspapers cannot be successfully published in such a manner. What the body should have done is consult the editor to find out if such an idea were feasible. If it were not, then have dropped it.

QUIRKS

The Coe college "Cosmos" reports that an Iowa legislature has discovered a sure solution to the problem of automobile accidents. He found out that the majority of automobile accidents occur between the speeds of 30 and 50 miles per hour. He proposed a law restricting persons from driving in this range.
What we'd like to know is how drivers could be restricted to 30 mph to 51 mph and back again without breaking the law (and their necks).

ETAOIN and SHRDLU

by Rexford E. Piner

According to a member of the faculty who was in Raleigh recently, the TECO ECHO is read there too. He was visiting in one of the State offices and saw an employee reading a copy of the college paper. Asked where he obtained the paper, the employee replied that the boss received a copy every week and that it was the favorite college paper of the office personnel there.

Dr. Messick's remarks about the student publications during the Awards Day program Tuesday morning were certainly appreciated by the members of the staffs. It is not often that staff members are complimented for the long hours they put in banging at the typewriter, soliciting advertisements, and working with the printers. Coming from Dr. Messick the lavish praise was a great stimulus to the staff members.

The staff appreciates also the attitude the administration has taken in regard to "freedom of the press." No one feels restraint as much as a college editor and there has been no restraint from the administration. Dr. Messick stated at the Awards Day program that there would be none as long as everything was "above board."

It is reported that a member of the faculty recently became so interested in reading a newspaper in the Alumni office that he read right through a class period. Students in his class were delighted to think that a member of the faculty had been just slightly absent minded. They had quite a joke over it.

Editor of the TECO ECHO for next year, Tommie Lupton, is looking for prospective staff members to help him with his tasks. Journalists of all descriptions are needed. The picture is promising to those really interested in contributing a little of their time to help themselves and their college. See Tommie now so that you may be lined up for a position on next year's staff. The Publications Board is also looking for students to publish a Summer school paper. As things stand now, there is no one available for editorial or business positions, and it looks as if there may be no Summer school paper this year.

The Young Republicans club will hold its last meeting of the year Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Flanagan auditorium. John A. Wilkinson of Washington, N.C., will be guest speaker. Wilkinson is an attorney and one of the State's most prominent Republicans. The new club's constitution will be read at the meeting and adopted. Students and faculty are invited to attend.

The Senior class is having a meeting Monday evening at 6:30 in the Austin auditorium which will probably be its last of the year. Members of the class are asked to be thinking about what to do with approximately $200 in the class treasury. A decision will be made at the meeting. They have to think???

Along with the announcement on the post office bulletin board of hours during which the College museum would be open was information concerning live exhibits on display. In addition to several snakes on exhibit is a "Large Southern Opossum—Delphinus Virginiana. This large nocturnal marsupial will eat anything, so please bring a spare finger." Those science students have a quick wit, don't they? He must be a mean little cuss!

Jack Wallace's face is red these days. The boys in Slay hall have been razzing him about wall papering his room with press clippings of himself. They presented him with about 50 copies of the TECO ECHO recently. Jack is co-captain of the baseball team and the team's leading hitter. His face is red???

Summer Registration

Students now enrolled may register for the first term of Summer school during the week of May 7-12. There will be no registration during examination week, May 14-18.

If there is any question about a course meeting requirements for a degree a student is seeking, he is personally responsible for obtaining advice from his adviser before registering. The number of hours a student may take will be governed by the class load regulation stated in the catalog.

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Anne Jones

Hailing from Rocky Mount, this young man by the name of Harry Moore came to East Carolina as a freshman in the fall of 1947 with the full intention of transferring to another college after a couple of years' work here. Like so many others of our students, however, Moore decided that he liked the place too well to leave it when those two years were up. We now find him rated as one of the outstanding seniors on our campus.

Harry Moore

But before we tell you what he has done here, let us go back a few years and tell you something about his high school days which were spent in Rocky Mount High school. While a student there he was a member of the Student council. At this time he was a member of one of the Rocky Mount Boy Scout troops and devoted much of his time to the activities of this organization. For his faithful work in this respect he was rewarded with the Eagle Scout rank in 1945.

His first year at East Carolina Moore lived off campus and as a result of this he did not participate in many extra curricular activities. During his second year he served as sophomore representative on the Elections committee of the Student Legislature. It was during his junior year that he became an active member of the Science club. This year he went with the club to Norfolk on its annual spring trip. Also he appeared on the club's annual mobile program.

Now we find him a promising senior with the full authority of president of the campus Science club. Also he is a member of the Circle K club, International Relations club, Young Democratic club, Young Men's Christian association, and the Student Legislature. He has worked with the Awards committee this year also. Voted by his fellow seniors as a class superlative, Moore was also selected by a committee composed of faculty members and students to be one of East Carolina's representatives in "Who's Who In American Universities & Colleges."

Harry Moore's major is science and his minor is social studies. He is seeking the degree of bachelor of arts in these fields come May 21. After graduation he is planning to go into the Air Force pilot training program, but eventually he hopes to go back to school and do some graduate work in the field of natural biological science. At the present time he is undecided about whether he wants to teach science or to go into scientific research work.

Enough has now been said about work so now let's turn to the other side of life for a few minutes. For fun and relaxation Moore likes to go to the movies or to stay home and read. In the movies he likes to see any dramas such as those in which Bette Davis acts. In the line of reading he doesn't have too much preference, but he does like historical novels and biographies. In the field of sports Moore likes to watch basketball and football games.

It has been said that all men like to eat and Harry Moore is no exception to the general rule. He likes to eat anything—just so it is food. In fact he does not know of anything which can be listed as his favorite dish, since he likes them all so well. Moore's final orders to enter the service have not yet come through but he is expecting to leave either in July or September. He does not know where he will go to receive his training.

Along with all his extra activities Harry Moore has managed to keep a high scholastic standing. Capable, efficient, friendly—these words describe him and his years of service to East Carolina. It is students like him who have helped make East Carolina what it is today.

The University of Kentucky has banned a jazz concert which was to be given by a music honorary. "Jazz," declared the head of the music department, "has no part in the University program." The conflict began when a Lexington, Ky. paper claimed that some student musicians were playing in various bars and bungalows.

Commented Downbeat, a national jazz music magazine, "Although it is played copiously at university dances, the university faculty does not believe it is a fit subject of serious study. It is its (the university's) duty, however, to attempt to elevate the tastes of its students and the people of the commonwealth." How about that? There is probably a ban on square dances on the campus, too.

Because the president of the University of Virginia felt there was too much drinking being done at the last concert on the "Grounds," he banned all future concerts.

An irate student then wrote to the Cavalier Daily. "My name is George Wahoo Jones. I was formerly a student at the University. One day I was having a beer in my closet when I was apprehended for exhibition drinking for leaving the door ajar. I am leaving tomorrow to enroll at Chapel Hill. I have room for four in my car." You guess how many answered George's notice. We do not know.

At a school in Teheran, Persia, Dr. Abdul Hamid Angeneh caught a student cheating on an exam. The student promptly whipped out a pistol and shot and wounded the professor. This is just a warning to beware the student who cheats.

When the University of North Carolina's dean of women ruled that coeds would not be permitted to visit the social rooms in men's dormitories, she did not know she was dealing a blow to student rights. So the students told her. The men threatened to hold mass meeting in protest. "Are we less trustworthy than fraternity men?" they wanted to know. But the dean held her ground. "We don't think we are prepared to have coeds visiting . . . without chaperones," she declared. Girls now have to go to the boys' windows and whistle three times, when picking up a date.

For the students who like to have something to celebrate, we are listing a calendar of special days, weeks and months. Some of them are:
May 1-31—Milk for Life Month
May 6-12—Be Kind to Animals Week
National & Inter-American Music Week
May 13—Mother's Day
May 18-27—National Pickle Week
May 19-26—National Foot Health Week

Did You Know That----

by Max Epstein

--- in 1944 there were approximately 21 male students on the campus? Hardly enough men to keep them from painting Wilson hall. Think of it, men—if you had been one of the lucky few, you could have had your pique! (pardon the pun).

--- in 1940 East Carolina had its only undefeated football season? The coach that year was John Christenbury. The Pirates literally chewed up and digested all opposition that year. During World War II, Coach Christenbury was killed. The ship he was aboard exploded off the coast of California.

--- statistics show that more men commit suicide than women? A well known psychiatrist says that this is true because men are more capable of profound emotion and, therefore, a more tragic unhappiness. A woman cries; a man will kill himself. Hence, a hint to all women—be kind to your boyfriends or they may go home and swallow razor blades (double edged, of course). Shades of Shakespeare!

--- the fish are running (from a certain group of people, that is). Had a fish-fry in town last Friday night, or have you heard? Yes sir, the happy (emphasize happy) fishermen caught them with their own little hands. Imagine, having a fish-fry and not inviting the faculty!

--- a couple of weeks ago in court in Chicago, two deaf mutes were divorced. The Mrs. had charged that the Mr.'s language was abusive. "Judge," she pleaded, "he used language I never saw before."

--- there are only two more weeks of school left? For some of us, these will be the last two. We could say that this year has been an unforgettable one (and it has), but we won't play you any old records. We just wonder who next will walk the halls we've walked, love the life we've loved, dream the dreams we've dreamed—whoever they are, surely they can never be as happy as we've been.

--- old journalists never die either? They just fade away (most are in hot water anyhow). See ya later!

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Jean Head

This has been a pretty exciting week at East Carolina what with baseball games, golf matches, tennis matches, and May Day. Ole man weather really was on the job to make the days perfect for the occasions.

All of the teams made a good showing of which the students are very proud. The girls in the May court looked their prettiest in their bouffant gowns of rainbow colors. Becky Hughes, Queen of May, was a picture of loveliness as she reigned over the May Pole dance and a play in her honor. Mrs. Dole should certainly be commended on her excellent production of the exercises.

At the ball game Monday several freshmen made a fine showing. Sidney Rogerson, the "little pitcher," really poured it on the sailors. W. C. Sanderson, freshman, kept first base under control, and all the other boys looked good.

The cotton dress parade is really on and seems to be here to stay. Color combinations are different this season, lime, orange, and navy being good. Sue Hayes maintains that she's the unluckiest creature alive. Her cotton dresses from home haven't arrived yet. Friends in Jarvis are taking up a collection to buy her a dress, so if any of you have an extra penny or two please donate.

Several Wilson and Slay hall boys staged a fish fry last week. Hear that "fun was had by all."

It seemed good to get the annuals this year as early as we did. Wilbur Jones and Jerney Minshew and members of the "Tecoan" staff did a swell job, and the annuals are something all students should be proud of. In 1950 it will probably seem good to sit and reminisce over the "Tecoans."

Here is a warning from Lib Hunt to girls in Jarvis. Lib says she was scared out of her wits recently when she thought she saw a rat run across her room. After a chase around the room she discovered that the rat was a huge roach, so beware girls!

The Juke Box is blaring Mr. B's rendition of "I Apologize," so ROUND THE CAMPUS will make its exit, apologizing for so little news.

MILES BEHIND THE MIKE

by Miles Buck

It is rumored that the men of Slay hall are indulging in the gentler graces—that of bridge and tea drinking. It might not be a bad idea if next year when Coach Dole and his family move into the hall for the men to hold open house. The men could man the punch bowl without too much difficulty. Open house is held on other campuses, why not here?

After MacArthur's speech to Congress the music publishers have been making a killing on the old army ballad, "Old Soldiers Never Die." There is no copyright on the song, so the take is all gravy.

We hear there are a number of marked calendars in the dorms these days. The days are being crossed off for various reasons. We know one fellow who is getting married and he is marking off his last days of freedom. Some of the practice teachers are marking off the number of teaching days left before they receive their sheep skins and start coining some of that filthy green stuff called money.

Academic Dean please note: On every hand we keep hearing about the lack of professionalism on the part of our school teachers and there are even some people who contend it isn't even a profession. It is evident that many of these accusations are true and it would seem that somewhere along the line the training institutions are failing to instill into its graduates and prospective teachers the professional spirit which is so essential to improving the professional standards of teaching.

We are not any different than any other training institution in this matter, but it seems to us that when the freshman class enters, the training should start and continue until the day a student graduates and takes his place in the field. It is done in other professions and it should be done in ours, and it seems to us that until we kindle and perpetuate that spirit of professionalism we shall never be a strong profession.

The people who are considering college teaching as a career would do well to pick up the May issue of "Mademoiselle." This issue contains an article called "College Teaching." It is a down to earth appraisal of the advantages and disadvantages of college and university life in terms of financial return, job satisfaction, and opportunities for advancement. "Mademoiselle" says that the immediate outlook is dismal, that an estimated sixteen to eighteen thousands of teachers are being dismissed or not replaced. The draft will cut down the number of students in our colleges for the next three years, but after that it is expected that college enrollment will increase again. They say that the increasing birth rate, which began in 1939 will be felt in our colleges by 1957.

In other words the outlook at the moment is bleak but the long range outlook is good.

For the second consecutive year East Carolina's golf team captured the coveted North State conference title by taking two matches over the Elon Christians 27-3 and 25-5 on Monday and Tuesday over the Greenville Country club golf course. The conference champions continued their domination over North State competition with an unblemished record.

Batting Averages For Pirate Nine Led By Wallace

East Carolina's Jack Wallace continues to lead the Buc's individual batting averages with only one more week of play remaining. Wallace is way out in front of the other regulars with a .439 mark, collecting 29 hits in 66 official trips to the plate through Monday's contest with the Norfolk Naval nine.

Runner-up in the bat parade is infielder Paul Jones, a freshman from Thomasville who also stars on the basketball team, with 15 hits in 37 appearances at the plate for a .405 average. Fred Soles is third among the Pirate regulars, having slugged out 14 for 47, giving him a .298 average.

James Sanderson has the best batting mark on the squad with a remarkable .563 percentage, having collected nine hits for 16 times at bat. Dick Hoskins, who along with Sanderson is one of Coach Jack Boone's prize freshmen infielders, is batting a hefty .375. Both have seen considerable action this season but have not appeared in every game.

Wallace leads the Pirates in the runs-batted-in and hits departments, having 17 RBI's to his credit and 29 hits, of which three are home runs. Close behind the Pirate senior in runs-batted-in is George Graybill with 16. Sonny Russell has 14 and a batting average of .250.

Golf Team Enters NS Tourney Along With Buc Netters

Eddie Teague, athletic director at Guilford college and chairman of the North State conference's minor sports committee, has released the dates for the three spring minor sports tournaments in the loop with six member colleges expected to participate.

Play in the annual tennis tournament began today and will continue tomorrow at Edgefield Country club in Greensboro.

The golf tourney will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, May 8 and 9, at Starmount Forest country club in Greensboro. Guilford, as in past years, will be host to the conference track meet Saturday, May 12.

Six North State colleges are expected to enter the tennis classic with East Carolina's entries unannounced at press time.

Elon is the defending team champion—the team which East Carolina just recently swept two matches from. They, along with the Pirates, Guilford, Catawba, Lenoir Rhyne and High Point, are the probable entrants for the tennis event.

Bill Stalls, who has been the conference's top golfer for the past two years, will be out to defend his title. Stalls is the natural favorite to cop individual honors for the golf event if past records mean anything. Recently he took part in the Asalea Open held at Wilmington and tied the nation's top amateur, Harvie Ward.

Catawba, Elon and East Carolina are probable entrants for the golf tourney.

Sonny Russell Also Stars In Baseball

Sonny Russell, East Carolina's hustling first baseman, not only stars on Coach Howard Porter's basketball team, but plays an important role on Jack Boone's Pirate nine. Although he is not clipping the ball at a torrid pace, he is a top-notch defensive player, and it is seldom that a throw gets past him. Russell missed Monday's game with the Naval team due to a recent finger injury, but returned to the lineup on Wednesday against Atlantic Christian college. Jack Wallace (Insert) is currently leading the Bucs at the plate, batting near .500.

Atlantic Christian Beats East Carolina Nine, 6-5

Graybill Hits Homer As Bucs Lose Bohunk Trophy To Bulldogs

by Bob Hilldrup

A run in the top of the ninth inning enabled the Bulldogs of Atlantic Christian college to top East Carolina by a 6-5 score in a baseball game played here Wednesday afternoon.

The victory gave the Bulldogs the right to return to Wilson with the coveted Bohunk trophy.

The game, played on the East Carolina diamond, was, for five complete innings, a tight hurling duel between Jim Piner and Atlantic Christian's Reid Ingraham. The visitors tallied twice in the top of the sixth and forged into a five run lead by virtue of three more in the seventh. It was in the last of the seventh that the Pirates rallied. Driving across four runs, they moved back into the ball game.

The Bulldogs failed to score in their half of the eighth but the Pirates tied the score in the last half of the same inning when right fielder George Graybill blasted a tremendous home run over the right field fence. The ball was estimated to have travelled over 350 feet.

Despite Graybill's drive, disaster overtook the Bucs in the ninth. Two walks and a hit gave the visitors one run—the necessary margin for victory.

The Pirates' Fred Soles gathered three hits in five trips to the plate while Clark and Carlton were collecting two for four and three for four, respectively, for Atlantic Christian.

Jim Piner hurled a good game for the locals despite the loss. Ingraham, his mound opponent, also did well, being particularly effective in the clutch.

The Bohunk trophy now travels back to Wilson to await the next East Carolina victory over the Bulldogs.

Driving in a dense fog, a motorist complacently followed the tail light ahead of him. Suddenly the car in front stopped and he crashed into it.

"Why don't you signal when you're going to stop?" he shouted indignantly.

"Why should I?" came the casual reply. "I'm in my own garage."

The Bohunk has left East Carolina and it may be gone for quite a while. The Atlantic Christian Bulldogs took the Bohunkus home with them Wednesday afternoon when they broke a four-game winning streak for the Pirates when they edged a 6-5 victory. Departing with the trophy brought sorrow to the hearts of many Pirates for they had hoped to make a clean sweep of the bucket this year, and the loss also shoved the Bucs into fourth place in the North State conference standings.

It was no fault of the locals that they lost the hard and bitterly fought contest. They hustled all the way and although trailing by five runs at one time, they never gave up. Instead the Boone-coached nine came charging back in the seventh frame to tally four runs. Jim Piner, freshman hurler who went the entire nine innings for the Pirates, brilliantly pitched himself out of a terrific hole in the top of the eighth by striking out two consecutive batters with two Bulldogs in scoring position.

GRAYBILL HITS HOMER TO TIE GAME
In the bottom of the eighth inning, East Carolina's right fielder, George Graybill, walked calmly to the plate and socked a pitch across the right field wall to knot the count at four-all. However, the pitching arm of Piner finally showed signs of weakness, and the visitors jumped him in the ninth for one run that proved to be the winning marker.

However, it was a little too much to expect the tired Buccaneers to repeat a near miracle and tie the contest as they had done against the Norfolk Naval nine on Monday. Trailing 8-2 against the strong and highly publicized Navy team, a valiant and gallant band of Pirates did some mighty heavy stick work with their Louisville sluggers to win the contest 10-8 in a revenge victory. The visitors had on Saturday beaten the Bucs in the tenth frame 10-5.

Atlantic Christian will probably keep the Bohunk until next winter due to the recent abandonment of football at the college. Therefore, the Buccaneers gridders will not have an opportunity to bring it back to the local campus. In basketball it is hoped that Coach Porter's lads will register a victory and bring the old Bucket home for good. However, things will in all probability be tough in basketball as far as ACC is concerned. Following High Point's move of several months ago, the Christian school has disbanded collegiate football and will emphasize basketball. They already have announced a new coach for next year and it is none other than a little speed demon, Jack McComas, who used to perform for Everett Case's State college Wolf-pack. McComas is currently visiting out west in an attempt to obtain top-notch players.

BIG WEEK FOR NS BASEBALL TEAMS

This is the week which will separate the men from the boys within the North State, so to speak. The standings will probably suffer a severe juggling this week with all of the top four teams playing each other. East Carolina was scheduled to meet Catawba this afternoon in a contest that will decide third place in the standings, and Elon is at Lenoir Rhyne in a battle that could decide who would take conference laurels. The race for the league title has found Elon resting in second or third place most of the campaign for the first time in three years.

EAST CAROLINA'S ONLY NORTH STATE CHAMPION!!

The East Carolina golfers, led by Captain Bill Stalls, finished the season in a blaze of glory last Monday and Tuesday afternoons when they scored double wins over Elon college. For the second consecutive year the Pirate golfers have won the North State title and have not lost a match within the conference. Neither has Bill Stalls lost a collegiate loop match in his four-year fling at the college. He has brought this school high recognition in the South for his outstanding play. East Carolina is proud of the astounding record the local golf team has compiled and it is hoped that they will successfully defend the title next year.

Bill Stalls and Walter Wells, Pirate number two man, will not be around the collegiate circles in '52 and their high caliber of play will be severely missed here.

We followed Stalls and Wells on Tuesday afternoon for the first nine holes at the country club, and for the first time watched them exhibit their magnificent style of play. Stalls teed off from the fourth hole and commented that Elon had bolstered their lineup in an attempt to score a victory. After Wells had figured out his shot half way between the fourth and fifth holes, Stalls took his shot at the fifth hole. It landed in a sand trap and the friendly star commented that he was having a bad day. (For the afternoon he shot the rugged course with a four under par, 68). Between the sixth and seventh holes we asked Stalls if he had ever birdied on the seventh and he remarked in a casual manner that he did that feat in '49.

On Tuesday he birdied four times. Then on the ninth hole we watched him and Wells finish out a brilliant four-year collegiate career. It had been a rough day for Wells who had trouble keeping his ball on the fairway during the front side. It seemed to curve off into the rough or in a sand trap every time.

Athlete Of The Week

by Lloyd Whitfield

A little 155-pound, blond-haired and ruddy-cheeked freshman has only been around East Carolina for three quarters, but during those terms his name has become firmly entrenched in the followers of the Pirates. He's Jimmy Byrd, a righthander who comes fresh to Coach Jack Boone from Kinston High school where he pitched the Red Devils to two consecutive state titles.

Byrd uses a terrific fast-breaking curve ball and a drop to baffle the opposition. What he lacks in speed he makes up for by using his head. He mixes his pitches well and when he gets himself in a hole he can do a pretty good job of working himself out of it.

Not since he closed out his brilliant four-year high school pitching career when he hurled his high school mates to a shutout victory over Reidsville for the state title has he had a day like he had against Elon two weeks ago. It was evident that he was in shape and in paramount strength as he hurled a three-hit shutout victory over the defending North State conference champions for the past three years, Elon college.

In the encounter with Elon, the 19-year-old frosh won the ball game 3-0 and gained sweet revenge for the 3-2 licking East Carolina suffered in the first meeting between the two schools. That contest went 15 innings, with Byrd receiving help from Jim Piner in the twelfth. Not only did he do himself a favor by shutting out the Fighting Christians but he provided his coach, Jack Boone, with a lifetime ambition. Boone graduated from Elon before coming to East Carolina as head baseball mentor, and during his three years here, the Pirates had not won a game from his alma mater. The initial win came when Byrd hurled his masterful three-hitter, not allowing a single man to reach second base and only five managed to get on first.

Not confining his participating in one of the most outstanding high athletics to baseball alone, Byrd was school halfbacks in the state. He starred for four years for Frank Mocks High school eleven and was co-captain during his senior year. He was one of the state's top passers and could run a reverse with the swiftness of a fleet-footed animal from the tropics. He also gets in a little basketball and tennis on the side.

While pitching in prep school he hit the half-century mark in wins and lost only four battles. All this came in a four-year fling in what is probably the hottest AA conference in the state. Last year he pitched a three-hit victory against the N. C. State freshmen and lost a seven-hitter to the Wake Forest frosh. In that battle he was opposed on the mound by Stanley Johnson, the Deacons' number one hurler in '51.

A member of the Air ROTC program at East Carolina, Byrd will probably play semi-pro ball this summer with Beaufort or Ormondsville. Majoring in physical ed, this ex-high school all-stater would like to get a good coaching job after graduation or go into recreation.

Series Of Summer Opportunities Announced

East Carolina college has announced for the summer session of 1951 a series of nineteen clinics, conferences, and workshops.

They have been planned primarily to aid teachers and others concerned with administration, supervision, curriculum, methods of teaching, recreational activities, and additional phases of work in the public schools.

Attention has been directed to the training of the exceptional, or handicapped, child in the scheduling of several events of the summer series. A special education conference and two clinics, one for mentally retarded children and one for speech-defective and hard-of-hearing children, will be held during the first of the summer session.

A printed schedule of the clinics, conferences, and workshop, indicating dates, type of work to be carried on and other pertinent facts, has recently been issued from the office of Dean Leo Jenkins.

During the first summer term, extending from June 4 through July 10, the schedule at the college will include the following:

Camp Counseling course at Camp Crabtree, Cary, N. C., May 22-June 2; Clinic for Mentally Retarded Children, June 4-July 10; Summer Band workshop, June 11-29; Conference on Science in the Elementary School, June 13; Supervision workshop, June 25-July 6; Conference on the Measuring Movement in American Education, June 19; Conference on Art in the Elementary School, June 21-22; Conference on Business Education in the Secondary School, June 25; Workshop in Adult Education for Homemaking, June 25-July 6; Language Arts workshop, June 25-July 6; Special Education conference, July 2-3; and conference on Music Education in the Public Schools, July 5.

The date of the clinic for speech-defective and hard-of-hearing children will soon be announced.

C., July 29-August 11; Conference on Curriculum in the Elementary School, August 7; Conference on Public School Workshop on Alcoholism in Health Education, July 11-21.

Hollar Speaks To IRC Members On World Crisis

"In a sense people aren't responsible for the international situation today. International relations are very much like personal relatives, they are inherited." These are the words of E. C. Hollar, retiring professor of history at East Carolina.

He was guest speaker at the last regular meeting of this school year of the International Relations club Tuesday night in the Y hut. Hollar, a native of Missouri and holder of the B.S. and M.A. degrees, is retiring after 25 years of work in the social studies department.

The speaker was presented by Dr. A. D. Frank, head of the social studies department. Dr. Frank, warmly praising Hollar's personal and professional attributes, mentioned his great love for ancient history and said in tribute, "When I reach the pearly gates I shall look for Mr. Hollar among the alumni and staff of the college. If he isn't there I will find him wandering along the Nile or among the streets and people of ancient Rome."

Hollar spoke of his long and pleasant association with faculty and students in the college and of his membership in the IRC since its organization 12 years ago and his pleasure in watching it grow. In speaking of the international situation in general he said that it is out of reach for the average man and it is the job of our leaders to straighten things out. We owe loyalty and support to the ones whom we put in office, he said.

After his speech, Evelyn Littleton, president of the club, presented him with a gold knife, chain and cuff links as a gift from the club members and other friends. A social hour followed with about 35 members participating.

July 25 Deadline For Commencing GI Bill Courses

The July 25 deadline for starting GI Bill courses of education and training for most veterans is not far away, the Veterans administration reminded veterans today.

That date, established by law, should be kept in mind, the VA said, by World War II veterans making plans for schooling or training at government expense.

A veteran actually must be in training by the deadline if he wants to continue afterwards. The VA will consider him in training, even though he has temporarily interrupted his course for the summer vacation or for other reasons beyond his control, such as re-entry into military service.

Once he completes or discontinues his program of training after the cut-off date, he may not start another course.

He will be expected to pursue his training "continuously until completion, except for conditions which normally would cause interruption by any student."

He may change his educational objective "only while in training and then for reasons satisfactory to the administrator."

The July 25 cut-off date applies to World War II veterans discharged after the July 25, 1947. Veterans discharged after the 1947 date have four years from the date of discharge in which to begin GI Bill training. Most veterans in both groups, however, must finish training by July 25, 1956, end-up of the program.

Counseling Course

Students interested in PE 130 Camp Counseling course should file their application with Miss Stallings or Dr. DeShaw of the health and physical education department this week end. It is essential that they know the number of students interested in the course at once.

Faculty Lecture Club Hears Talk, Elects Officers

Members of the Faculty Lecture Club of East Carolina college at a meeting last Monday evening, April 30, heard a talk by Dr. R. C. Simonini of the department of English and elected new officers for the 1951-1952 term.

Dr. H. A. Coleman of the department of social studies at the college was chosen as president of the organization for the next school year. Since last spring he has been vice-president and program chairman of the club. He succeeds J. O. Derrick of the department of science.

Other officers are Agnes Barrett, vice-president, and Dr. George Pasti, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Barrett will be chairman of the program committee, the members of which are Elizabeth S. Walker, Wendell W. Smiley, and C. A. Scruggs.

Dr. Simonini discussed before an audience of approximately sixty club members and guests "The Poetry of Dante in the Divine Comedy." He developed the idea that the power and beauty of Dante's poetry can be appreciated through "auditory imagination" even by the reader who has a limited knowledge of the Italian language. He illustrated his remarks by reading passages from the works of the poet.

Jarvis Forensic Club Names Sears To Head Next Year's Activities

Ray Sears of Greenville, freshman at East Carolina college, has been elected as president of the Jarvis Forensic club at the college and will serve during the fall quarter of 1951-1952.

An intercollegiate debater for the organization, he has participated during the present school year in the Dixie Championship Forensic tournament at Charlotte and the South Atlantic Forensic tournament at Hickory and is slated to debate in the Grand National Forensic tournament to be held later this spring at Fredericksburg, Va.

Selected also as officers of the Jarvis Forensic club for next fall are Marie Prater, Seven Springs, vice-president; Betty Sue Branch, Greenville, secretary-treasurer; Charles Self, Greensboro, sergeant-at-arms; Peggy Bowen, Greenville, parliamentarian; and Franklin Brown, Greenville, chairman of publicity committee.

East Carolina Senior Is Featured At Piano In Graduating Recital

Annette Hughes of Willard, senior at East Carolina college, appeared in a recital of compositions for the piano last Sunday afternoon, April 29, in the Austin auditorium. Miss Hughes was presented at that time in her graduating recital by the department of music at the college.

In addition to her work as a student in the department of music, Miss Hughes has taken an active part in the productions of the Teachers Playhouse, college dramatics club. This year she played a leading role in the production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," which marked the opening of the new College theatre, and also participated in the recent production of the children's play "Alice in Wonderland."

Submit Budgets

Thornton Staples, treasurer of the Student Government association, has asked that budget requests from all student clubs and organizations for next year be submitted to the Budget office by May 10.

Open Letter

To Students and Alumni:
The General Assembly has closed, and its action in our behalf was very gracious.

We were given an appropriation with which to add thirty rooms to Ragsdale hall, to purchase 36 acres of land across from Tenth street, to employ three additional persons to work on buildings and grounds, and an additional staff member in elementary education.

It is easy to forget things you work so hard for; therefore, will you please make a special effort to thank either in person or through correspondence the representatives in your own county; D. S. Coltrane, State Budget office, Raleigh; Governor Kerr Scott; and the representatives in Pitt county, who are Frank Kilpatrick, of Ayden, Sam Worthington, of Greenville, and Senator Paul Jones, of Farmville.

It will do these people good to know that you remember the work they have done for the college, and you will be building for the future, as well. Please don't forget.

Sincerely yours,
J. D. MESSICK
