Men's Glee Club Makes First Appearance

The Varsity Men's Glee club, under the direction of Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert, head of the music department, made its first appearance of the year when it sang before the East Carolina students on October 17 at the annual talent show, sponsored by the community recreation class at the college. The organization of members is headed by Bernie Ham, Portsmouth, Va., senior.

Jarvis Forensic Selects Debaters For Tournaments

Debaters chosen by the Jarvis Forensic club at East Carolina college to represent the group in a series of intercollegiate debates during 1951-1952 include Ray Sears and Mitchell Saieed of Greenville, Donald Gaylor of Magnolia, and Royce C. Jordan of Washington, N. C. Carolyn D. Everhart of New Bern will be first alternate and Virginia Wilks of Lumberton, second alternate.

Club members selected debaters in tryouts held Thursday evening, October 18. A group of faculty members at the college served as judges.

Sears and Saieed represented the Jarvis Forensic club during 1950-1951 in three intercollegiate debates. With Charles Self of Greensboro, Saieed debated on an East Carolina team which won a place among the "Big Ten" honored at the Dixie Championship Forensic tournament in Charlotte last December as most outstanding at the meet. Sears is president of the Jarvis Forensic club for the fall quarter 1951.

The debate teams for the present school year plan to participate in the South Atlantic Forensic tournament at Hickory, the Dixie Championship Forensic tournament at Charlotte, and the Grand National Forensic tournament at Mary Washington college, Fredericksburg, Va.

The topic chosen for intercollegiate contest during 1951-1952 is resolved, that the Federal Government should adopt a permanent program of wage and price control.

Baptist Student Union To Send Over Forty Delegates To Meet

Commerce Group Plans To Sponsor Annual Carnival

Plans are underway for a carnival which is sponsored annually by the East Carolina Commerce club and the Pi Omega Pi, business education fraternity. The yearly festivity is scheduled for Friday evening, November 2, in the Wright auditorium.

Chairman of the carnival is Jackie Sears, Greenville freshman. The director of the events will be assisted by students of the two campus organizations.

Over 500 students gathered for the occasion last year. Entertainment for the carnival will include various games, refreshments, side shows and other attractions.

The program of last year's carnival was made up of a student talent show, directed by James White; instructor in the business education department at East Carolina.

Goldsboro Man To Talk To Young Republicans

Julian T. Gaskill, Goldsboro attorney, will be guest speaker for the Young Republicans club of East Carolina college at the meeting of the group in Flanagan auditorium on Wednesday night at 7:30.

The Young Republicans will discuss the views believed held by Eisenhower and Robert A. Taft with relation to the 1952 election at their regular meeting. Officers of the club invite faculty members and students to attend the session.

Economics Club Members Of Home To Sell Cosmetics

The East Carolina Home Economics club has accepted the dealership of Debutante cosmetics, and the group plans to sell the goods to students on campus. The line of cosmetics is being sold through the Fuller Brush company.

One girl in each dormitory will work as a saleswoman to take orders for the women students on campus. The dorm representatives are Aleash High, Cotten; Betty Garringer, Jarvis; and Phyllis Randolph, Fleming. There will be articles sold for men as well as for women.

Besides the special agents in the dormitories, the cosmetics will be on sale at the Home Economics club bazaar that is going to be held November 7 in the Flanagan building.

Neilson To Make Report On Missions In Hawaiian Isles

Members of the Baptist Student union at East Carolina college are completing plans to send more than forty delegates to the state convention of the organization in Charlotte, November 2-4. Jack Painter of Tarboro, president of the college BSU here, is in charge of arrangements for transportation by chartered bus and automobile.

The key note of this year's convention is "Christian Frontiers," and platform addresses will be delivered by: Dr. George Heaton, Myers Park Baptist church, Charlotte; Dr. J. B. Weatherspoon, Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville; Dr. George Kelsey, New York; Dr. John Wayland, North Wilkesboro; Miss Liabelle Coleman, Missionary to China; Miss Beverly Neilson, Greenville; and Dr. C. C. Warren, pastor of the host church.

The sessions open at 7:30 on Friday evening. Mr. Lindy Martin, state BSU president from Pembroke college, Pembroke, will preside. The worship hour on Sunday morning will conclude the program.

Neilson To Report
Beverly Neilson of Greenville, East Carolina graduate student, will report on her work in Hawaii as a student missionary last summer. Elsie Howard, sophomore from St. Pauls, will participate as Literature chairman for the state BSU. Painter and Nell Grantham of Marietta will serve as student conveners of discussion groups.

Student members of the BSU Executive at EC who plan to attend the State convention include: Jack Painter, Tarboro, president; Albert Ray Blanton, Teachey; Alice Bullard,ington; Alice D. Jackson, Godwin; Milan Johnson, Eure; Hettie Lee McPhail, Rowland; Ramona Outlaw, Kingston; Elizabeth Pate, Black Creek; George W. Starling, Roxboro; and Seleta Tucker, Farmville.

Students Attend
Other EC students who plan to be present in Charlotte are: Frances Barnes, Kenly; Hattie Jo Bryson, Apex; Patricia Dawson, Belhaven; Erving Ennis, Goldsboro; Patricia Browne, Ramseur; Ann Carawan, Swan Quarter; Carolyn Everhart, New Bern; George F. Dudley; George G. Gilbert, Spindale; L. B. Ginn, Snow Hill; Nell Grantham, Marietta; Virginia Dare Harris, Littleton; and Beatonne Hathecock, Oakboro.

Others making the trip are: Mildred Henderson, Longhurst; Elsie E. Howard, St. Pauls; Jane Myra Lewis, Eureka; Clara May Liles, Garland; Rex Little, Freeland; Nora Mills, Winnabow; Nell Finch Murphy, Henderson; Sylvia Proctor, Rocky Mount; Guilford C. Smith, Jr., Charleston, West Virginia; Mary Stephenson, Como; Virginia Swann, Buie's Creek; Janet Swinson, Mt. Olive; Lydia Turner, Conway; Beverly Neilson, Peggy Barnhill, Greenville; Pat Simpson, Mrs. J. A. Neilson, Greenville, and Miss Gloria H. Blanton, BSU Counselor, will accompany the group of students.

Inter-Religious Council Plans Services For College Students

The inter-religious council of East Carolina college is now completing plans for special religious services to be held at the college during the fall 1951 term. These evening services will be held on the campus.

Dr. George Heaton of Charlotte has been announced as speaker during the religious emphasis week. An annual event at the college, the program of religious services will be presented January 21-23. Plans include a series of talks by Dr. Heaton and religious meetings among students.

A week marking the beginning of religious emphasis week has been observed on Monday evening, January 21. Dr. Robert L. Holt, director of religious services at the East Carolina college, will speak to college students at that time.

The special evening services will be held on the campus during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays at the college. The first is scheduled for November 26, and the second for December 6.

The inter-religious council, made up of representatives of religious organizations active on the East Carolina campus, is working to bring to the leadership of the college. Dr. Thoburn, president, and Dr. Holt, faculty advisor, are members of the group. Other members include: Robert Simpson, chairman; and Wayne L. Johnson, secretary.

Schwarz Delivers Message To Sigma Pi Alpha Students

Dr. Josef Schwarz, a visiting professor from Heidelberg, Germany, spoke to the Sigma Pi Alpha of East Carolina college on Tuesday night. In his talk he asserted that the people of Europe are not concerned with the study of languages as a way of earning a living, but as a cultural approach to world understanding and brotherhood. He also stated that the study of languages is necessary in Europe due to the many different languages that are spoken within its borders.

In the German schools, according to Dr. Schwarz, the ancient languages of Latin and Greek are most stressed. "Every German school requires the student to study three languages, Latin, English and Greek. Of these, English is the least important," said Dr. Schwarz.

James L. Fleming of the foreign language department, in introducing Dr. Schwarz, asserted that America is a comparatively new nation and has not been too much concerned with the study of languages in the past.

Work Progresses On College Annual Says Shackelford

A recent report from Charles Shackelford, "Tecoan" yearbook editor, stated that much progress has been made on the yearbook. The yearbook has been laid out and the "dummy" has been sent off and is expected to arrive in about two weeks. As soon as the "dummy" is received, actual production will begin.

Shackelford urges all students to give their most loyal support and co-operation to the process of taking group pictures. He further states that if the students will devote their given time to the photographing of these pictures, it will decrease much trouble and confusion to his staff.

Perry Chapel Speaker

George Perry of the department of music at East Carolina college will speak on the subject of "Love" at the weekly chapel service Tuesday noon in the Austin auditorium.

Testing Service Gives Teachers National Exams

The National Teacher examinations, prepared and administered annually by Educational Testing service, will be given at 200 testing centers throughout the United States on Saturday, February 16, 1952.

At the one-day testing session a candidate may take the common examination, which includes tests in Professional information, general culture, English expression, and non-verbal reasoning; and one or two of nine optional examinations designed to demonstrate mastery of subject matter to be taught. The college which a candidate is attending, or the school system in which he is seeking employment, will advise him whether he should take the National Teacher examination, and which of the Optional Examinations to select.

Application forms, and a bulletin of information describing registration procedure and containing sample test questions, may be obtained from college officials, school superintendents, or directly from the National Teacher examination, Educational Testing service, post office Box 592, Princeton, New Jersey.

Campus Studio Wants Humorous Items For Radio

What has happened to you or your roommate lately that would make a good story to share with others?

The Campus studio invites contributions of humorous incidents to be used along with formal news stories on the Sunday evening broadcast of news from the college.

Items should be written as concisely as possible, while preserving the full humor of the story, signed and left in the College News bureau office in a basket labeled "Radio News." Reporting should be circumspect, so as to respect personal feelings and good taste, and strive to represent the best in college humor.

The College Newscast will continue its purpose of reflecting significant happenings on the campus; but in order to recognize the lighter aspects of the campus scene and increase the entertainment value of the broadcast, it has been suggested that one item of a humorous nature be included each week.

First on the program was Jackie Waldron accompanied by Pat Vaughn who sang "Can't Help Loving That Man" to a spellbound audience. Horace, you don't know what you missed! Seleta Tucker followed with "Serenade."

Third on the program was a dance

Performers In Annual Talent Show

Mary Burnette displays her talent by doing the "Charleston" in the Talent program last week. She went away with a fourth place prize. Bill Rogers, all blacked up, sings Al Jolson's "Mammy," while Jackie Waldron gave her rendition of "Can't Help Loving That Man."

Talent Show Has Everything But Horace Heidt

by Barbara Grimes

Horace Heidt himself should have been on hand Wednesday night, October 17, to see the local talent put on a show that entertained a packed Austin auditorium for two hours. If he had been present, the enrollment figure would have probably dropped about half the performers in his private plane and took them back to New York for his own show.

Eli Bloom, local business man, enlivened the entire show with his expert performance as master of ceremonies.

As the curtain went up, the Varsity men's Glee club made its debut rendering the alma mater, followed by Handel's "Hallelujah Amen" and the popular "Stout Hearted Men" by Romberg.

First on the program was Jackie Waldron accompanied by Pat Vaughn who sang "Can't Help Loving That Man" to a spellbound audience. Horace, you don't know what you missed! Seleta Tucker followed with "Serenade."

Third on the program was a dance

number by Martha Benton who insisted to let Mary Burnett take us back to the gay nineties with the "Charleston." This number won fourth place in the finals.

"Old Man River" by Travis Martin, "Mammy" by William Rogers and "Night and Day" by Bob Davis were songs that echoed through Austin auditorium during the fifth annual talent show. Pert little Jackie Sears rendered "Malaguena" on the piano, otherwise known as "Miss North Carolina's Song." This was the selection LuLong Ogburn played in the talent show in the Miss America contest.

Walter Noona, that "master of the keyboard," played his way right up to the first prize! If encores had been allowed he would probably have been playing right now!

Maxine Bryan displayed her talent by the way of dancing feet. She was awarded second prize. "Without a Song" was sung by Marilyn McGimsey and Joyce Connor rendered

"Blue Moon." A real professional touch was added when the "Collegettes" sang. Delores Mathews, Ernest Black, Bernie Ham and Jimmy Drew sang "Dream."

Ernie Black and Bernie Ham, plus Bill Hobbs, gave an instrumental selection, and played an encore in which they sang. The popular "Sixty Minute Man" was played on the piano by Phillis Weaver who boogie-woogie that keyboard until the applause hit the third prize spot.

Girls Put On Act
Last but not least, the Cotton Hotel band, made up of a group of Fleming hall girls, really put on an act!

As the final number was over, the prizes were awarded and the students returned home, each humming one of the songs heard on the show or remarking at "so and so's" voice or "I didn't know he could play like that."

Another show, another prize, another year, who knows, one of our stars may be the star of the nation in five years.

Todd Will Speak In Alabama Meet About Civil War

Dr. Richard C. Todd of the social studies department at East Carolina college has accepted an invitation to speak on the program to be offered at the seventeenth Annual Meeting of the Southern Historical Association in Montgomery, Alabama, November 8-10. Scheduled to appear Friday morning, November 9, on a program on the Civil War, Dr. Todd will discuss "Confederate Finance."

His talk will deal with means used by the Confederacy to finance itself and will indicate to what degree they were successful. Various personalities, such as Christopher Memminger and George Trenholm, who were connected with Confederate finance will also receive attention.

Parking On Campus Improves

As you go strolling along the campus drive-ways these days, you look around and wonder what happened to the confused state of the once big traffic problem. There are hardly any cars parked under the "no parking" signs nowadays. In the past, one could not tell where the restricted areas were, for there were always several cars hiding the signs.

Yes, the condition of the campus traffic is much better, and the big reason is the fact that if you get a ticket put on your windshield now, it does not say "please do not park in this area." The tickets now will read somewhat like "one dollar, please." All violations are being handled by the Greenville police department. The new regulations are good, and what makes them even better is that at the present time the students and the faculty are abiding by them.

By not violating the laws set up on the East Carolina campus, drivers of automobiles are being forced to park on Fifth street in front of the college. There may be complaints coming from city authorities being this is a main thoroughfare for local traffic, but with as few parking areas that are on the college grounds, it is necessary that drivers park elsewhere.

There were several parking spaces that were gone away with when cars were made to park parallel to the curb directly in front of the Austin building. We feel that the space is needed for parking area. If the spaces were perpendicular to the curbing for a set distance and then parallel where the streets narrow, there would be additional room for the parking of the vehicles.

Another dark spot on the plans, which was there before the new set-up, is the parking of cars too near corners. This proves to be a hazardous condition which is very easily seen when one tries to pull out into the intersection by the Administration building and Cotten hall. In other words, that is a blind corner.

The prevailing conditions around the Post office are a great improvement over the past, and cars are no longer parking all over the sidewalks along the back campus.

All total, we think that the present system is a big improvement over the once mixed up driveways. True, there is an inefficiency of parking areas, but we will have to get by with what we have. In case of an emergency, such as a fire, there is room for the trucks to get by without having to move automobiles out of their pathways.

The college asked the State for money last year to widen and construct more drives along the campus streets, but the request was turned down. Until we can get the money to make the improvements, it will be beneficial for everyone to continue cooperating with college officials by abiding by the present regulations.

Talent Show Very Interesting

Students who turned out for the Talent show last Wednesday night really received a treat. The overflow gathering was given a very enjoyable evening's entertainment, and the community recreation class should be commended by everyone for sponsoring the splendid performance. The show ran off very smoothly, and there was no moment. We tip our hats to the community recreation class.

Ye Editor's Say

by Tommie Lupton

The half-time performance put on by the Williamston high school band and the East Carolina band was truly entertaining. It was too bad that the public address system went off when the lights were turned off, for the "moon" formation lost some of its effectiveness, when the singing of "Blue Moon" by Bernie Ham could not be heard. The Williamston group which came over to honor their former coach raised quite a bit of fuss on the opposite side of the field. Maybe that is the reason why the Guilford team played such an inspiring game of football. They really gave us a scare!

The President of the American Sunbathing society last week charged Bethel college, Tennessee, with aiding the Communists by firing a professor discovered to be a nudist. Said the sunshine president, "... An out-and-out case of intolerance. If the school official hadn't made an issue of it, nobody would have known that the professor was a nudist." You never can tell what you might find over "them thar hills."

Four colleges in South Dakota have renewed their "no-raid" pact—one similar to that between Syracuse, Colgate and Cornell, which set up a state of neutrality on the neighboring campuses. The new terms ban the use of whitewash and the burning of a rival's bonfire. Members are South Dakota State college, University of South Dakota, Augustana college and Morningside.

At a dull point in the game last Saturday, one of the boys selling "chasers" and "ground peas" was providing the entertainment for the students in one section of the stands. He was standing on the ground in front of the stands selling his merchandise to people seated as high up as the press box. Many a step was saved as the true-armed "chunker" tossed his bags of peanuts to the purchasers, who in turn pitched their money into a tin can that was held in the air by the vender. By the accuracy of the tosses into the stands, you might think some big league scout ought to be after the potential pitcher.

Does everyone realize that the Fall quarter is rapidly drawing to a close? There are only three and one-half more weeks. Let's hold our breath and just hope that we do not have any more work to do at the end of the quarter than we have been having to do.

The college infirmary has really been busy this week, for the Air Force ROTC unit on the campus has been giving physicals to students who are about to finish up in the course, and to the boys who are planning to enter into the advanced course next term. As the big needles were drawn out by the examiners, many of the boys sort of shrunk down. Not too many of them passed out, though.

We have received many comments on the "Campus Calendar" that is run in the paper each week. If you want a plug for your club meeting, see Alec Hurst and let him know the time and the place. All events must be turned in to Hurst on Monday, the week before the meeting is to take place.

Doing What Is Right

"I've heard so many rules for making introductions, I'm confused. How can I keep them straight?"
The rules of introductions are, in brief: Introduce a man to a woman, a younger woman to an older woman, a younger man to an older man, a person of lower rank to one of higher rank, the less distinguished person of the same sex to the more distinguished one. Still sounds complicated, huh? Well, maybe so, but not if you just remember this: Always mention first the name of the person to whom, according to social usage, you should pay the most respect.
But above all, remember the rule of kindness is the most important; it is therefore better to introduce and err than not to introduce at all.
(If you have questions you would like considered, please address them to the TECO ECHO, Box 990.)

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Janice Hardison

When Cecil Winslow graduates from East Carolina in February, he will, as he puts it, "be killing three birds with one stone."

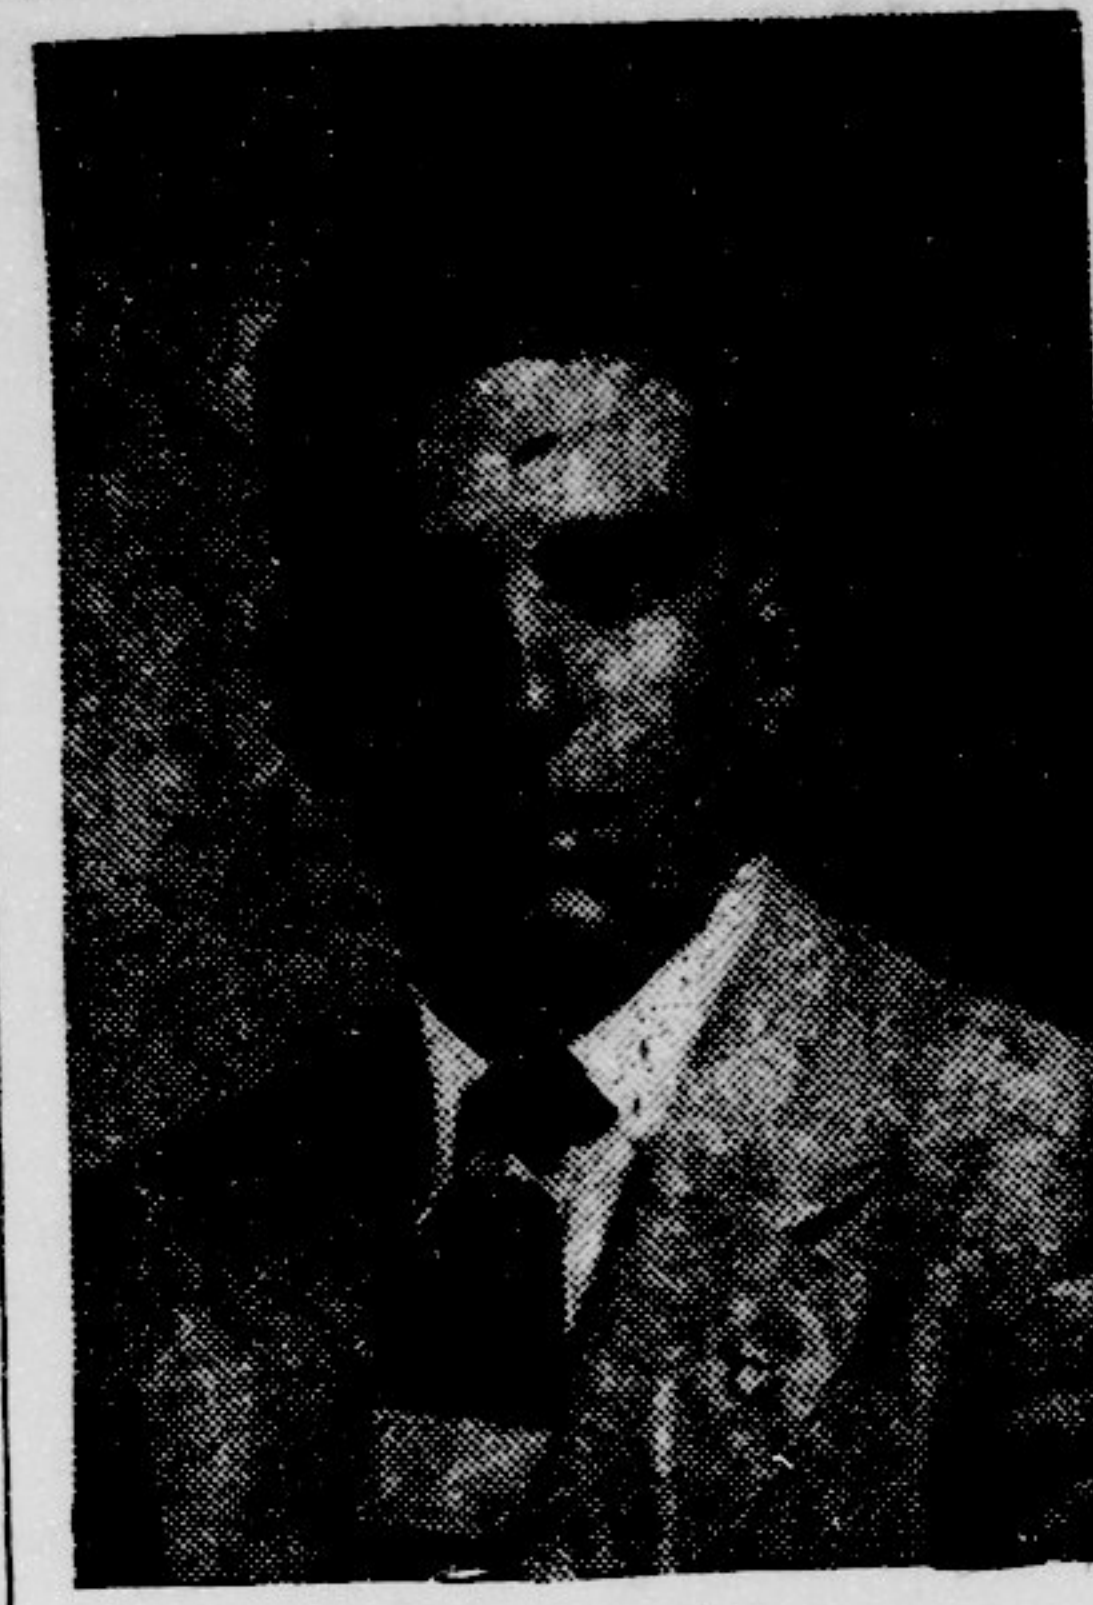

Winslow will be commissioned a second-lieutenant in AROTC, and he will be equipped with a B. S. degree in social studies and a certificate in physical education.

Attends Guilford

When Cecil graduated from Perquimans county high school, he went to Guilford college for a year. "I learned one thing," he relates. "It taught me you have to be serious about those things." And a glance at his college career since he entered here in 1948 ought to be proof enough that he learned his lesson well.

A natural athlete with four years of high school football and basketball behind him, Winslow has played football with the Pirates for the past three seasons. Despite his athletic ability, Winslow doesn't care to make coaching a career. "I'm not even sure I'll teach," he says. "I might work with my dad, at least until next September." Social studies definitely impresses him more than athletics, and the business world might prove even more attractive.

Winslow isn't too concerned with his future at present, for his campus activities keep him occupied. This year he is second-vice president of SGA, a member of the Varsity club and the Circle K. He served as president of the Junior class last year and represented the college SGA at the fourteenth annual Student Legislature assembly in Raleigh. Having been around long enough to know, Winslow thinks East Carolina is grand. "The relations between students and faculty members are excellent," he observes. "I came here partly because it was near home and partly because it was highly recommended by several friends who knew." You do not ever have to ask to find out that he has been happy ever since.

Known As 'The Nose'

Winslow has a new distinction this year, too. "It seems that every year some one in the gang has to be tagged 'the nose!' The honor has been bestowed upon me this year." Cecil's nose has taken quite a beating in football practice and play. Incidentally, he succeeds Bill Darby, who last bore the title.

A fellow who "just likes to be around," Winslow has entered in the true spirit of campus life, and has rendered his services willingly to keep college life free from tangles for others. A capable leader and an enthusiastic follower, Winslow has been around long enough so that students at East Carolina might well reverse the old song, and keep reminding themselves that, "We're gonna miss him when he's gone."

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Barbara Grimes

With fifteen minutes before the deadline an assignment to write "Around the Campus" is really a big task, but here goes!

Quite a bit of excitement arose Monday night when the lights went out all over the campus. In Cotten hall cigarettes glowed like fireflies as the only source of light until a few candles were distributed from the office.

The Science club members are making many plans for their annual Sadie Hawkins day dance November 17. Get out your straw hat and dangles for the big square dance with music provided by a string band. A Daisy Mae and Li'l Abner contest will be the hi-light of the evening's festivities and a real, honest-to-goodness, Sadie Hawkins day race for the afternoon if the EC co-eds will participate! Where's that school spirit, students?

We hear that the band has big plans for entertainment during the half at the football game Saturday night. We can't tell you what they are, just be sure to go and see for yourself!

On the serious side, during a citizenship class the other day, the question was asked, "What do you think could be done to improve the East Carolina campus?" One girl answered, "Clean out the fish pond in Wright circle." It might be a good idea.

"Watch the birdie" has been echoing on the Wright steps, the library steps and just about all the other picturesque spots on the campus this week as group pictures of the various clubs and organizations have been taken for the '51-'52 "Tecocan."

Have you noticed that it rains every Thursday? We have a slight suspicion that all the AROTC boys pray Wednesday nights for it to rain on Thursday, so they won't have to drill. If they do, then they must be good little boys for, so far, their prayers have been answered.

The minutes are ticking away and getting "mighty close to that deadline, so with a promise of more news next week we say, "so long for a while."

Students Find A Friend In New Dean Of Men

Time: 8 a.m.
Place: Education I classroom
Enter a tall, broad, heavily built man.

"I am Dr. Clinton Prewett," the man says. "I am here to talk with you about personality development. If any of you wish to leave, you may do so."

Rather startled, everyone sits up, opens his heretofore half-closed eyes, and thinks, Well, this is something new—I like this man.
Something New Here
Yes, there is something new on the East Carolina campus—the Dean of Men, Dr. Prewett. Though this is his first year here the students already have found in him a friend. They like him and he likes them. He says, "The students here, as a general group, are more wholesome than any I have ever been with. I want them all to know that they have a standing invitation to come in and see me."

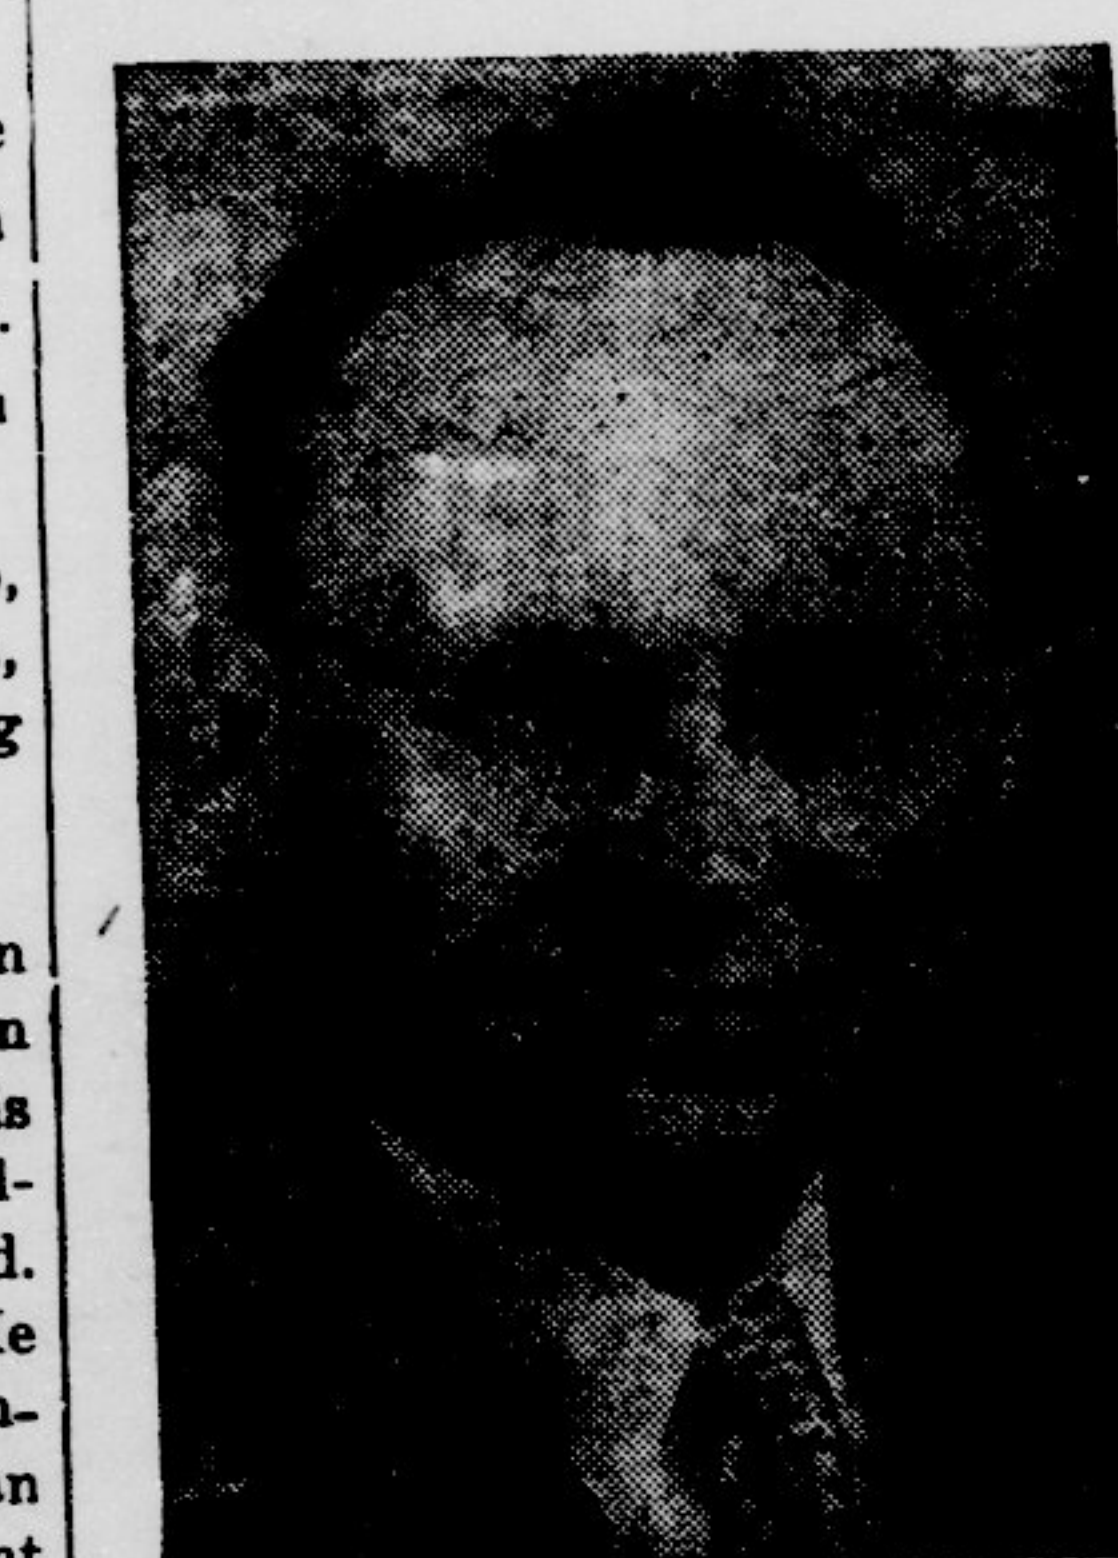

Perhaps this gives you an idea of the extent Dr. Prewett is interested in people. "My principal interest is the science of human behavior," he states. Since teaching involves much close association with people and their actions, it is easy to understand why Dean Prewett chose this profession. Being a lab assistant through undergraduate school and teaching there had much to do with his decision.

Born In Georgia
Born in Dallas, Georgia, Dr. Prewett attended Georgia Tech, receiving his B.S. degree in chemistry in 1942. For a while he worked as a junior chemical engineer for the government; then he went to Oak Ridge, Tenn. as a training foreman for a branch of Eastman Kodak, operating company for the atom bomb project. Tennessee Eastman, a branch of for the atom bomb project.

Following a tour of Army duty in Chemical Warfare and Information and Education in the Aleutian Islands, he decided to further his education at the University of Oklahoma, where he received his Master's degree in administration. From there he returned to the east and attended the University of North Carolina, receiving his Ph.D. in education and psychology. He was at Chapel Hill the past three years.

Teaching and studying have not

Dr. Clinton Prewett

"Why don't you boys spread out a little more—there is no use for all of you to stunk this examination."

HERE AND THERE

by Tom Cox

Campus radio is back on the air, having begun on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock with a college news and sportscast, followed by a drama presented by the Teachers playhouse. At 9:30 p.m., the popular Bernie Ham music show went on the air, and it's better than ever. New vocal additions to the trio, the Collegettes, sounded fine in their first broadcast. Sorry we don't know their names so that we could accord them proper recognition. Various types of programs are being presented, and the chances are that several—if not all—of them will appeal to you. They are presented through the facilities of "Station WGTC, Greenville, North Carolina; 1590 on your radio dial," so watch the TECO ECHO for the campus radio schedule.

The cigars are on Ed "Pop" Barrow, who is tickled silly with all 8 pounds, 6 ounces of his son and heir, John Edwin Jr. The doc said it was going to be a girl, but he didn't know Ed.

And so the basketball brite scandal has come down South to Kentucky. That's far enough; let it stop there and come no closer. Lotsa people are uneasy, though, with one Southern conference school reported to be under investigation.

Sure 'nough, the Pirates were out to win Saturday night, and that they did, although the situation looked grim at times. They did well to come from behind and pull it out of the fire. It's nice to see them back in the proper (win) column. We understand that most of them, along with some industrial arts students, were thrown for a loss this week, however, by an unpopular and inconvenient illness sometimes associated with the service. It's tough, fellas.

During the halftime show Saturday night, Bernie Ham had a good song for those of us who were close enough to hear, as the band accompanied him on "Blue Moon." It was intended for everyone to hear, but what they didn't know was that the public address system power went off when the lights did.

Did You Know That--

... the first post-war basketball team at East Carolina was organized in the fall of 1945. An East Carolina product, Earl "Smitty" Smith, was the head coach. The Pirates won a total of 16 games while losing only nine in all competition. In games played with other college hardwood fives, the Bucs won ten and lost four. The other encounters were played with service teams.

... in 1946 the college held a Homecoming day for the alumni who had served in the armed forces. There were over 500 of the men graduates who served their country during the past war. That number seems small now, but as you know, there used to be very few male students at East Carolina.

... the Commerce club of East Carolina college is going to sponsor its annual carnival next Friday night. Over 500 students attended the gala affair last year.

... our football team will be the underdogs in the game tomorrow night, for Lenoir Rhyne beat Western Carolina Teachers college 33-7 and WCTC beat us 34-20. They beat Davidson of the Southern conference 21-7, but upsets do happen. Maybe we can pull one of those "upsets of the year." Anyway, you can bet your bottom dollar that those Pirates will be out there giving it all they have.

... generally speaking, a Communist is a person who has given up hope of becoming a capitalist.

Ah, To Dance

The Goldenrod, Wayne State Teachers college, Nebraska, is a bit fed up with certain types of male dancers. Here are the types:

Harry the Hepcat—"He asks a girl to dance as if he were Louis B. Mayer asking a starlet to star in a million dollar picture extravaganza. While twirling his partner back and forth like a yo-yo, he is constantly speaking in a line of jive jargon. . . ."

Bashful Bill—"Bill feels terribly embarrassed and the only excuse he can think of is that he just washed his feet and can't do a thing with them. . . ."

Luke the Lover—"He says he used to be concited but went to a psychiatrist and was cured. Now he is the nicest guy he ever met. If someone doesn't wise up to this character, he is liable to love himself to death. . . ."

Bucs Meet Bears Here Saturday

Potent Lenior Rhyne Eleven Has Clean Slate In NS Loop

As Benzie Carries For Bucs In 19-14 Win

If North State coaches think they are having troubles with ineligibility, injuries and scholastic standards, they do not have the least thing to worry about. Coach Bill Dole of East Carolina is the one that should throw in the crying towel. It all started when the Pirates played their second game of the current campaign and won over the Naval Apprentice school. I-lard Yarborough suffered a knee injury that sidelined him for the season and Yarborough was Dole's best backfield man as far as broken field running is concerned. In that contest the Buc's first string fullback, Mike Kovach also received a knee injury that is apparently going to prevent him from seeing action the remainder of the season.

With two of his first string backfield men out for good, Dole made the best adjustments possible and did no moaning the line began to fall to pieces with minor injuries such as a dislocated shoulder for Jessie Aldridge, Charlie horses for Dennis Smith and Claude King and an ankle injury to Don McKenzie.

Line Backer Taylor Out For Season

Last week the bottom fell out when Linebacker Luke Taylor chipped a bone in his wrist and was forced to pack away his equipment until the 1952' season. His injury came just before the Guilford game, and he was replaced by John Daughtry, who had been running in the defensive backfield. Daughtry was replaced by a freshman, Paul Gay. Daughtry did a grand job in the Quaker game, as he tackled hard and forceful, covering his position well.

Coach Dole felt pretty good over the progress he had made with the inexperienced eleven until the Guilford game. In that contest the Pirates received two injuries to make one wonder why Coach Dole is not grey headed and always discontent. Cecil Winslow, a senior and one of the few men on the team with valuable experience, broke his hand and did not know until he had played several minutes after the injury occurred Winslow has three years of Dole's smart football behind him, and had performed creditably at his defensive end position. He was so good as a matter of fact that the Pirate grid coach had a few words of praise for him, something that Dole does not let flow like wine. Dole's comment was that "East Carolina has lost a great ball player—he helped us a lot and he was good. He has played some mighty fine football for us, and he will be a hard man to replace . . ." and so ends the collegiate football career of a star in his own right.

Also in last Saturday night's North State conference clash that saw the Pirates sweep to 19-14 victory, Larry Rhodes, a first string offensive end and a brilliant defensive star was lost for an indefinite period due to ankle injuries.

Pirates Miss Practice On Tuesday

With so many on the inactive list one wonders how in the world the Bucs could continue to hold practice drills. Well, they could not. On Tuesday afternoon Coach Dole had to call off practice, and send many of his players scurrying to the college infirmary. At the team's regular Monday night supper, they were feted with all the chicken and brunswick stew they could pack in and behold they awoke Tuesday morning with ailments in their abdomen.

This column is not trying to build up injuries for tomorrow night's game with the highly publicized Lenoir Rhyne team—never play your ropes that way. What we are trying to say is this—the Pirates have been hit hard and there may be more to come. We do not believe in alibiing, for the first thing Coach Dole had to say this year was to not play up the injuries. If we receive more than our share (and we have) we will just try to make the best of it and play what we have.

Coach Dole has done just that—play what he has available. Take a look at the lineups, both offensive and defensive and note the number of freshmen that are performing. In the backfield there is Paul Gay, Claude King, Topy Hayes and Boyd Webb. They are all freshmen who are playing a lot of ball, and good football too. Up front there are such frosh standouts as Bobby Thomas, Larry Rhodes, Don Burton and Gaither Cline. With these freshmen Dole has had to build his football team along with the 16 returning lettermen.

Lenoir Rhyne Is Talented and Experienced

These freshmen are going to be up against home of the North State's best tomorrow night against the Bruins. The visiting eleven has a smart coach and have the experience that goes for a winning ball club. In six battles they have dropped only one const, and that was a non-conference encounter with Tampa university. They are knee deep in reserves and have what will probably be the most well-balanced ball club to perform on the local gridiron all season.

Experience counts and Lenoir Rhyne has it—the Bears tomorrow night by 13 points.

An injury-ridden East Carolina football eleven runs up against the North State conference's most potent team tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in College stadium when they clash with a once-beaten Lenoir Rhyne squad.

A capacity crowd is expected for the contest with the Bears, who are undefeated in conference play and have an overall record of five wins against one loss, the defeat being a 27-14 licking by Tampa university of Florida.

Run From Single Wing

Operating from a smooth running single wing attack, the Bruins will field the strongest team the Bucs have met on the local gridiron all season. They have the most impressive defensive and offensive record in the circuit, yielding only seven points against league opponents while racking up 53 in two outings.

In six contests this season the Bruins have marked up 137 points and a stern defense has held the opposition to 41 points.

The win over Davidson marked the first victory over the Wildcats for the North State members. The two clubs met in 1909 and the Bruins lost 70-0 and then again in 1924 they were trampled 45-0.

The Bears will be seeking revenge for the surprise 21-19 licking Coach Bill Dole's team handed them last year, and will bring a team that is loaded with good backs and linemen, plus a bunch of strong reserves, in attempt to maintain their clean slate.

Fullback Runs

In the backfield they have a potential Little All-American in Steven Trudnak, a big and hard running fullback who usually reels off runs that hit the double column in figures. Against Appalachian he scored all of his team's 20 points as he scored three touchdowns and ran the ball over two extra points. They also have a couple of tailbacks, Gene and Jerry Robinson who are twins, that figure right up among the loop's best.

If any of these men should receive an injury, Stasavich has two reserve backs, Bill Megginson and Bill Robinette, who are capable replacements. Robinette filled in for Trudnak last week against Western Carolina, when the Cats bottled up the middle of the line to stop Trudnak, and began sweeping the ends to score two touchdowns.

Good Defense

On defense, the Bears will have a great big tackle that is a definite All-conference man, Jim Newsome. He hits hard, and it is seldom that he misses a tackle. One of their top defensive men is their punter, Bill Crooks.

The Pirates will probably have a few new faces in their lineup, with Cecil Winslow out for the season due to a broken hand received in the Guilford game. Winslow was a top defensive end for the Pirates and a senior. Larry Rhodes missed practice sessions earlier in the week because of an ankle injury, as it is not definitely known whether he will perform tomorrow night or not. Linebacker Luke Taylor is out for the season with a broken wrist. Taylor also missed the Guilford contest, but John Daughtry was a capable replacement.

Conference Race Narrows As Elon Wins Over Indians

The North State standings began to take definite shape this past weekend when Elon maintained a clean slate by bumping Catawba out of the conference's undefeated ranks by a 21-14 score, and Lenoir Rhyne kept its record intact as they breezed by Western Carolina 33-7.

Both Lenoir Rhyne and Elon have a perfect record and appear to be the teams that will fight it out for the loop title when they meet November 10. Elon technically leads the powerful NS circuit with three wins while Lenoir Rhyne has two victories.

Before meeting each other on the gridiron they have a rugged conference schedule sandwiched in between. Elon has to tangle with Western Carolina while Lenoir Rhyne has two rough games with East Carolina and Guilford prior to the clash that could decide the champions.

Catawba gave the Christians a big scare as the Elon team had to hustle to win 21-14. It was the passing arm of Lou Rochelli and two touchdown catches by Jack Christy, and one by Bill Blackstone that brought Jim Mallory's eleven the triumph. In that contest, the victors were playing minus the services of their number one end, Bob Lewis, whom the Catawba team had declared ineligible. Lewis is probably the loop's top passer.

Lenoir Rhyne's Bears had little trouble in posting a 33-7 win over little Western Carolina as the Robinson twins and Bill Robinette, an unheard-of fullback filling in for Steve Trudnak, ran wild.

East Carolina had to fight an uphill battle to score a 19-14 victory over the winless Guilford Quakers. The Quakers led throughout most of the game until Sandy Siler limbered up his passing arm and hit Claude King in the end zone in the last quarter to give the Pirates a well-earned victory.

Winslow Forced To Sidelines For Season With Hand Injury

by Tom Cox

For his consistently outstanding defensive line play all year, and particularly for his excellent performance in Saturday's game with Guilford, Cecil Winslow has been selected as this week's sports personality.

This 6-foot, 185-pound senior from Hertford is rounding out his third year of varsity play for the Pirate gridgers as a defensive right end, and he is due much credit for the part he has played in helping to keep down the rushing average of opposing teams. Time after time he has made difficult tackles, oftentimes when he could reach the ball carrier with only one hand, that men with less determination would have missed.

In the second quarter of the Guilford game, Winslow suffered a painful dislocation and a broken hand which probably will cost the Pirates his services for the remainder of the season, but he had the hand taped and went back in to complete the game in his usual fine style. That he will be hard to replace is no idle statement. Coach Bill Dole, commenting on the injury, said: "Cecil has been playing a fine defensive game, and he will really be missed."

In 1947, Winslow graduated from Perquimans high school in Hertford as the "Best All-Round Boy." He had lettered in football as a tackle for four years, in baseball for two years and in basketball for three years. The basketball team, on which he was a guard, won the Albemarle rural championship each of these three years. For his prep football prowess, he was named an All-Albemarle tackle in his senior year.

After a year at Guilford college, Winslow transferred to East Carolina, where he has entered into both athletic and extra-curricular activities with a relish. Lettering in football in each of the three years he has played, he has been a member of the Varsity club for as long a time. Last year his classmates elected him president of the Junior class, and this year he is serving as second vice-president of the Student legislature.

Winslow says he has no particular hobbies, but enjoys playing tennis and intramural basketball.

So far as future plans are concerned he intends to work for awhile with his father, who is an automobile dealer in Hertford, if the Air Force doesn't call him to active duty after he receives his reserve commission upon graduation. After that, Winslow, a social studies major—physical education minor, plans to look around and see what the teaching profession has to offer.

WAA Holds Play Night On Tuesday, Thursday

Every Tuesday and Thursday nights those lights in the Wright building mean there are good times being had by members of the Woman's Athletic Association. The group calls it "play night."

The idea of the set-up is to give the girls a means of getting rid of their excess energy by having fun playing badminton, pingpong, dancing, singing or just taking laps around the building.

Pirates Tally Late To Take 19-14 Win From Guilford

Coach Bill Dole's East Carolina Pirates won their first North State conference game of the season last Saturday night when they defeated a stubborn Guilford eleven 19-14 in ECC's College stadium.

The visitors drew first blood, scoring midway the first quarter. The Quaker drive started from the EC 47-yard line when they received a fumble. With big Sam Venuto leading the way, it took only five plays for them to score. Venuto climaxed the drive with a 22 yard run around left end. Bob Watson booted the extra point and Guilford was leading 7-0.

Late in the first period, the Pirates tied the score when Boyd Webb returned a punt 85 yards for a touchdown. With Benzie and Webb playing double safety, the Quakers punted on fourth down. Benzie took the boot on his own 15 and handed off to Webb. He was almost trapped on the 15, but a great block by Bobby Hodges allowed him to get past the would-be tacklers and up to mid-field stripe before he again ran into trouble.

This time, Gaither Cline came to the rescue. Webb then got past Venuto and staggered across the goal line for the TD. Lyn Grissom kicked the extra point to tie the score at 7-7.

The Pirates finally got rolling in the third quarter with Gay and King leading the way. After holding Guilford, the Pirates got the ball on their own 40. They moved the ball to the Guilford 18 before the period ended. From that point, Gay, King, and Benzie carried to the 8, before King crashed over for the TD. Grissom's kick was no good when the pass from center was bad.

The next time the Pirates got the ball, they drove to the three yard line but Guilford held. Jones kicked out to the EC 37, a 61 yard kick from the line of scrimmage. But this time the Bucs were not to be denied, and it took them just seven plays to come back over the 63 yards. Siler climaxed the drive with a 9 yard pass to King for the touchdown. The try for the extra point was no good and the game ended with the score 19-14 in favor of the Pirates.

Baptists To Hear Missionary School Representative

On Monday evening, Miss Mary J. Augenstein, field representative of the Woman's Missionary union training school, Louisville, Ky. will be the guest of the East Carolina Baptist Student union.

At 6:45 p.m. Miss Augenstein will give a visual program on the Southern seminary and Training school in Louisville. This will conclude a number of programs given by Miss Augenstein at various colleges and universities in North Carolina during the past two weeks.

There will be a small group conference and supper at 5:30 at the Baptist Student center for students who are considering full-time church-related professions and future seminary training after college graduation. Young men and women who are interested in being present for the group conference around the supper table, preceding the visual program, should make arrangements with the BSU counselor not later than Sunday night.

Postal Regulations

Under Postal Regulations, mail originating off the campus, although mailed in the College Post office, must carry the usually required postage. Mail which may be accepted postage free for local delivery includes printed, typed, mimeographed or otherwise written material which originates on the campus from faculty, staff, students, students' organizations, and college publications; however, the College Post office will accept for delivery to Post office boxes only properly addressed material of standard envelope sizes and firm enough to be handled conveniently. The only exception is that material from administrative offices may be mailed to members of the faculty and staff without being addressed to the individual.

Small slips of paper and "dogger sheets" will not be accepted. Each piece of mail must show the name of the sender, (college publications are exempted from this requirement), except that pamphlets and other printed matter originating on the campus, may be enclosed in a large envelope or bundled with an enclosure or note indicating the name of the sender, in lieu of showing the name of sender on each piece of printed matter. The College Post office has been instructed not to accept any material that does not comply with these instructions. This is necessary to conform to United States Postal regulations, under which the College Post office functions.

The first responsibility of the College Post office is to protect and deliver to you as promptly as possible the mail brought from the city Post office. To accomplish this, we need your cooperation in the matter of local mail.
