Sunday Snow Blankets College Campus

The East Carolina campus was blanketed with a one inch snow Sunday afternoon. Students were seen over the campus having snowball fights. The above snow scene was taken from within Wright circle, looking out toward the Administration building and Cotten hall. Monday morning the campus was still covered with the white snow applied by Mother nature.

Picklesimer Gains Membership Into Pro Geographers Group

Dr. Parnell W. Picklesimer, director of the department of geography at East Carolina college, has been notified of his election to full and active membership in the American association of Professional Geographers.

The East Carolina professor received the honor as a result of his research work in the field of geography and the publication of more than twenty articles in leading geographical and education journals of the nation, among them the "Journal of Geography," "Economic Geography" and "Social Science." Several of Dr. Picklesimer's published works deal with the "New Bright Tobacco Belt" of eastern North Carolina, made up of Nash, Edgecombe, Wilson, Pitt, Johnston, Greene, Wayne, Lenoir and Duplin counties.

The American association of Professional Geographers, recognized as the most outstanding organization of its kind in the world, is exacting in its requirements for membership and limits its rolls to those who have demonstrated ability to do geographical research and professional writing of a high order.

Among Dr. Picklesimer's most recent articles is "Geography's Function in War and Peace," carried in the current issue, December, 1951, of "North Carolina Education." Introductory remarks refer to him as a "well-known champion of geography."

The article deals with both practical and cultural values of geography, which Dr. Picklesimer describes as "probably the most controversial subject matter topic among our curriculum architects."

Jenkins In Washington Acting As Consultant For Regional Meeting

Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina college is in Washington, D. C., today and tomorrow acting as a consultant during a regional conference sponsored by the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards of the National Education association.

The East Carolina dean served as conference leader to a group of educators studying the topic "Maintaining and Improving Teacher Morale During a Period of Tensions." He appeared on the program of the conference through an invitation issued by T. M. Stinnett, executive secretary of the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards.

War and Peace," which appeared December, 1951, in "North Carolina Education," official publication of the North Carolina Education association.

Denoyer-Geppert is one of the three largest map publishers in the United States. Last year Dr. Picklesimer's work as a geographer was recognized by these publishers when he was engaged in work of manuscript editing for them.

"Geography's Function in War and Peace" deals in part with the price sometimes paid in materials and in lives as a result of inadequate knowledge of geography. Examples are cited by Dr. Picklesimer to show, for instance, that more accurate information on the geography of Korea might have decreased the casualty lists of the armed forces of the United States.

College Students In Cast For Play At Woman's Club

East Carolina college students will make up the cast of a playlet, "Etiquette of Flowers," to be presented for the Greenville Garden club January 18 at 3:30 p. m. at the Woman's club. The program is being prepared and directed by Mrs. W. E. Dole, member of the college faculty and program chairman for the group.

The scene of the playlet will be in the Dutch flower shop. Students included in the cast are Ralph Rives, Mr. Flowerman; Ann Osborne, Mrs. Housewife; Irene Brinn, Mrs. Clubwoman; Norvell Messick, Mr. Newspaper; and Clark White, Mr. Younglove.

Playing the parts of flower pictures are Jo Bryson, Miss Tailored; Martha Benton, Miss Going-Dancing; Mary Owens, Miss Reception Tea; Hazel Smith, Miss Graduation; Jean Kelly, Miss Teenager-Tiny; and Bill Dole Jr., delivery boy.

Flowers for the presentation will be furnished by the Greenville Allied Florists association.

Old Man Winter Pays Visit To East Carolina; Sends Snow, Students Have Snowball Fights

by Janice Hardison

Old man Winter paid a sudden and quite unexpected visit to the East Carolina campus Sunday afternoon. He arrived quietly, paid his visit and forty-eight hours later visible signs of his coming still remained.

There had been rumors that he might come. Weathermen hinted over the radio that his grip was packed for a trip to eastern North Carolina. Reliable sources insinuated that he would be accompanied by a full company of ice, snow, wind and grey skies.

Spring In January?

But nobody believed it. January arrived as gracefully and well-attired as April, and college students rushed from class to class in shirt sleeves, enjoying the spring sunshine. Some talked lightly of winter's delay, and some few bold creatures ventured to say he wouldn't come at all. Wednesday, Thursday, then Friday passed, and not a whisper from the North wind was heard. On Saturday the temperature dropped, but nothing happened.

Then came Sunday. The sun rose as readily as usual, but it was shy, reserved and perhaps a little cold. Many, many students were still at East Carolina for the week-end, and as they gathered in the dormitory parlor, the dining hall lobby and about the campus, several rumors spread. "It's snowing in Wilson," one student offered.

"Yeah, and in Raleigh, too, the radio says."

And so they talked and anxiously watched the skies, wondering if Old Man Winter and his crew really were in North Carolina. Noon came, and the sky was grey, a cold, continuous grey—not a raincloud grey. And everything was still, so still that a car horn in the street echoed to every corner of the East Carolina campus.

And The Snow Fell

And then it happened. A few tiny flakes, hardly more than raindrops, hurled themselves to earth. Winter was here. As he shook his great train about him, the snowflakes fell thicker and faster, and delightful squeals filled the dormitory corridors. "It's snowing! Look! It's really snowing!" By nightfall a thin crisp layer of

Phi Sigma Pi Group Sponsors 'Sweetheart' Dance Tonight

Tonight in Wright auditorium the Phi Sigma Pi, honorary fraternity for men of the college, will sponsor the first "Sweetheart" dance from 8:30 'til 11:45. The group plans to make the dance an annual affair, with it being planned for the first social event after the Christmas holidays each year.

The highlight of the evening's entertainment will be the honoring of a queen who was elected by the Phi Sigma Pi members. The only clue released by the club as to the identity of the queen was that she is a freshman student.

Bob Lee and his Orchestra will furnish the music for the dance. The theme of the decorations for the auditorium will be a park scene with lovers sitting around. One section of the floor will have its lights dimmed and will be called the "Cozy Corner." Admission to the semi-formal affair is one dollar per couple, or stag.

Mitchell Sauced is serving as general dance chairman, while Cotton Klutz and Charles Self are serving in the publicity capacities. Officers of the honorary men's fraternity are Al Harrington, president; Bob Bass, vice-president; Alec Hurst, secretary; and Arthur Johnson, treasurer.

Work Progresses For Showing Of 'Good News' Here In April

Students at East Carolina college are completing plans for the presentation of a musical comedy "Good News," a gay story of campus life. Several performances have been scheduled for early April, according to an announcement by Charles Self of Greensboro, president of the college Student Government association.

The production, sponsored by the SGA, has as director Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert, director of the department of music at the college. A large number of students and faculty members are cooperating with him.

A special performance has been scheduled for High School day at the college, an annual campus event to be held this year April 4. Several thousand high school seniors from schools in North Carolina are expected to visit East Carolina at this time and to enjoy a program of entertainments and of educational activity. Other performances will be given for East Carolina students and for the public.

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the department of English will be dramatic director of "Good News." Mrs. Helen Dole of the department of health and physical education will be in charge of dances for the production, and Dan E. Vornholt and Herbert Carter of the music faculty will direct the choruses and the orchestra, respectively. Casting will be completed by January 16, Dr. Cuthbert announced.

"Good News," a success as a Broadway musical and later as a movie, presents college life in its more sprightly and thrilling moments, with chief plot interest focused on the big football game of the year. Hit tunes, including the title song "Good News," are "Lucky in Love," "The Best Things in Life are Free," and "Happy Days." The play is by Lawrence Schwab and G. G. DeSylva. Lyrics are by DeSylva and Lew Brown; and music, by Ray Henderson.

Selective Service Deferment Test Given On Campus

The Selective Service College Qualification test was administered at East Carolina college Thursday, December 13, under the supervision of Dr. Hazel Taylor of the education department, director of testing at the college. It will be given again at the college April 24, 1952.

Registration was unexpectedly light for the December 13 test, states Dr. Taylor, only eleven having applied to take the examination. Indications are that the majority of those eligible will apply for the April testing.

A three-hour examination given in one session, the test is administered at more than 1000 centers throughout the United States and the Territories. East Carolina college is a center for its students as well as for those in the surrounding area.

Scores on the test, together with evidence of scholastic performance, will be used by Selective Service local boards in considering deferment of students on the basis of their qualifications to pursue studies at college and graduate levels.

To be eligible to take the test, a student must intend to request deferment, must be satisfactorily pursuing a full-time college course, and must not have taken the examination previously.

Messick Attends National Meetings In Capital City

President John D. Messick of East Carolina college attended in Washington, D. C., during the week of January 7 meetings of two national educational organizations.

He was present Tuesday, January 8, for a meeting of the National Commission on Accrediting, held at George Washington university. Presidents of colleges which are members of this organization attended from many sections of the country. The meeting was held in conjunction with sessions of the Association of American colleges.

While in Washington, Dr. Messick participated in the program offered at a regional conference sponsored by the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards, today and tomorrow, at the Mayflower hotel.

This conference is one of a series of eight which have been scheduled for January and February in various cities in the United States. The purpose announced by the Commission for each is to "explore ways and means of meeting the impacts of the emergency period upon the schools while continuing steady progress to achieve adequate standards for the profession."

Plans Underway For Band Clinic At East Carolina

According to an announcement by Herbert Carter, chairman, plans are being made for the annual eastern division of the All-State Band clinic, to be held at East Carolina college February 1 and 2.

Thirty-one high schools in the eastern part of North Carolina have accepted an invitation to be represented on the ECC campus, both by students and directors.

Plans or various parts of events are now underway, including a program on Friday night, February 1, for the visiting musicians, presented by the college Concert band. Mr. Carter stated, "We expect the clinic this year to be bigger and better than ever before."

Playhouse Stages Weekly Workshop Play In Austin

The Teachers playhouse weekly workshop play was presented last night at 7 p. m. in the Green room of Austin building.

The play, "Followers," a Cranford sketch by Harold Brighouse, was directed by Carolyn Clapp and Janet Waters, both of Greenville. The entire cast was composed of Greenville students. Lucinda Baines, an old maid of fifty, was portrayed by Ann McCrary. Helen Masters, Miss Baines' god daughter, was played by Margaret Fleming. Janet Waters took the part of Susan Crowther, Miss Baines' maid, and Milton Foley enacted the part of Colonel Redfern, retired from the service of the East India company.

Immediately following the play, there was an informal criticism led by Dr. Lucile Charles.

'All Of Life For Christ' Topic Of Rev. Pearce's Speeches At Programs

The Rev. J. Winston Pearce, minister at the First Baptist church of Durham, has accepted an invitation to appear as speaker during Religious Emphasis week at East Carolina college January 20-25.

Dr. Pearce will address students at the college at a convention Monday morning, January 21, at 10 o'clock in the Austin auditorium and will talk Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 6:45, also in Austin. The theme for the series of addresses is "All of Life for Christ."

Religious Emphasis week at East Carolina is an annual event sponsored by the Inter-religious council of the college. Plans for the observance this year have been made by members of the group under the leadership of Jack Painter of Tarboro, president, and Dr. Robert L. Holt, director of religious activities at East Carolina.

A service Sunday evening, January 20, at 7:30 in the Austin auditorium will initiate the week's program. Dr. Holt will deliver the sermon. Discussion groups among students will follow the evening services Monday through Wednesday.

Graduate of Wake Forest

Dr. Pearce, a native North Carolinian, is a graduate of Wake Forest college; the Southern Baptist seminary; and the University of Chicago. He has also studied at Union Theological seminary and at Yale and Edinburgh universities. Before becoming pastor of the First Baptist church of Durham in 1940, he was located at Nevada, Missouri.

He has held a number of important offices in the Baptist State convention, including those of president of the General board, chairman of the Executive committee and vice-president. At present he is a member of the Board of Trustees of Wake Forest college and of the Executive committee of the Southern Baptist convention.

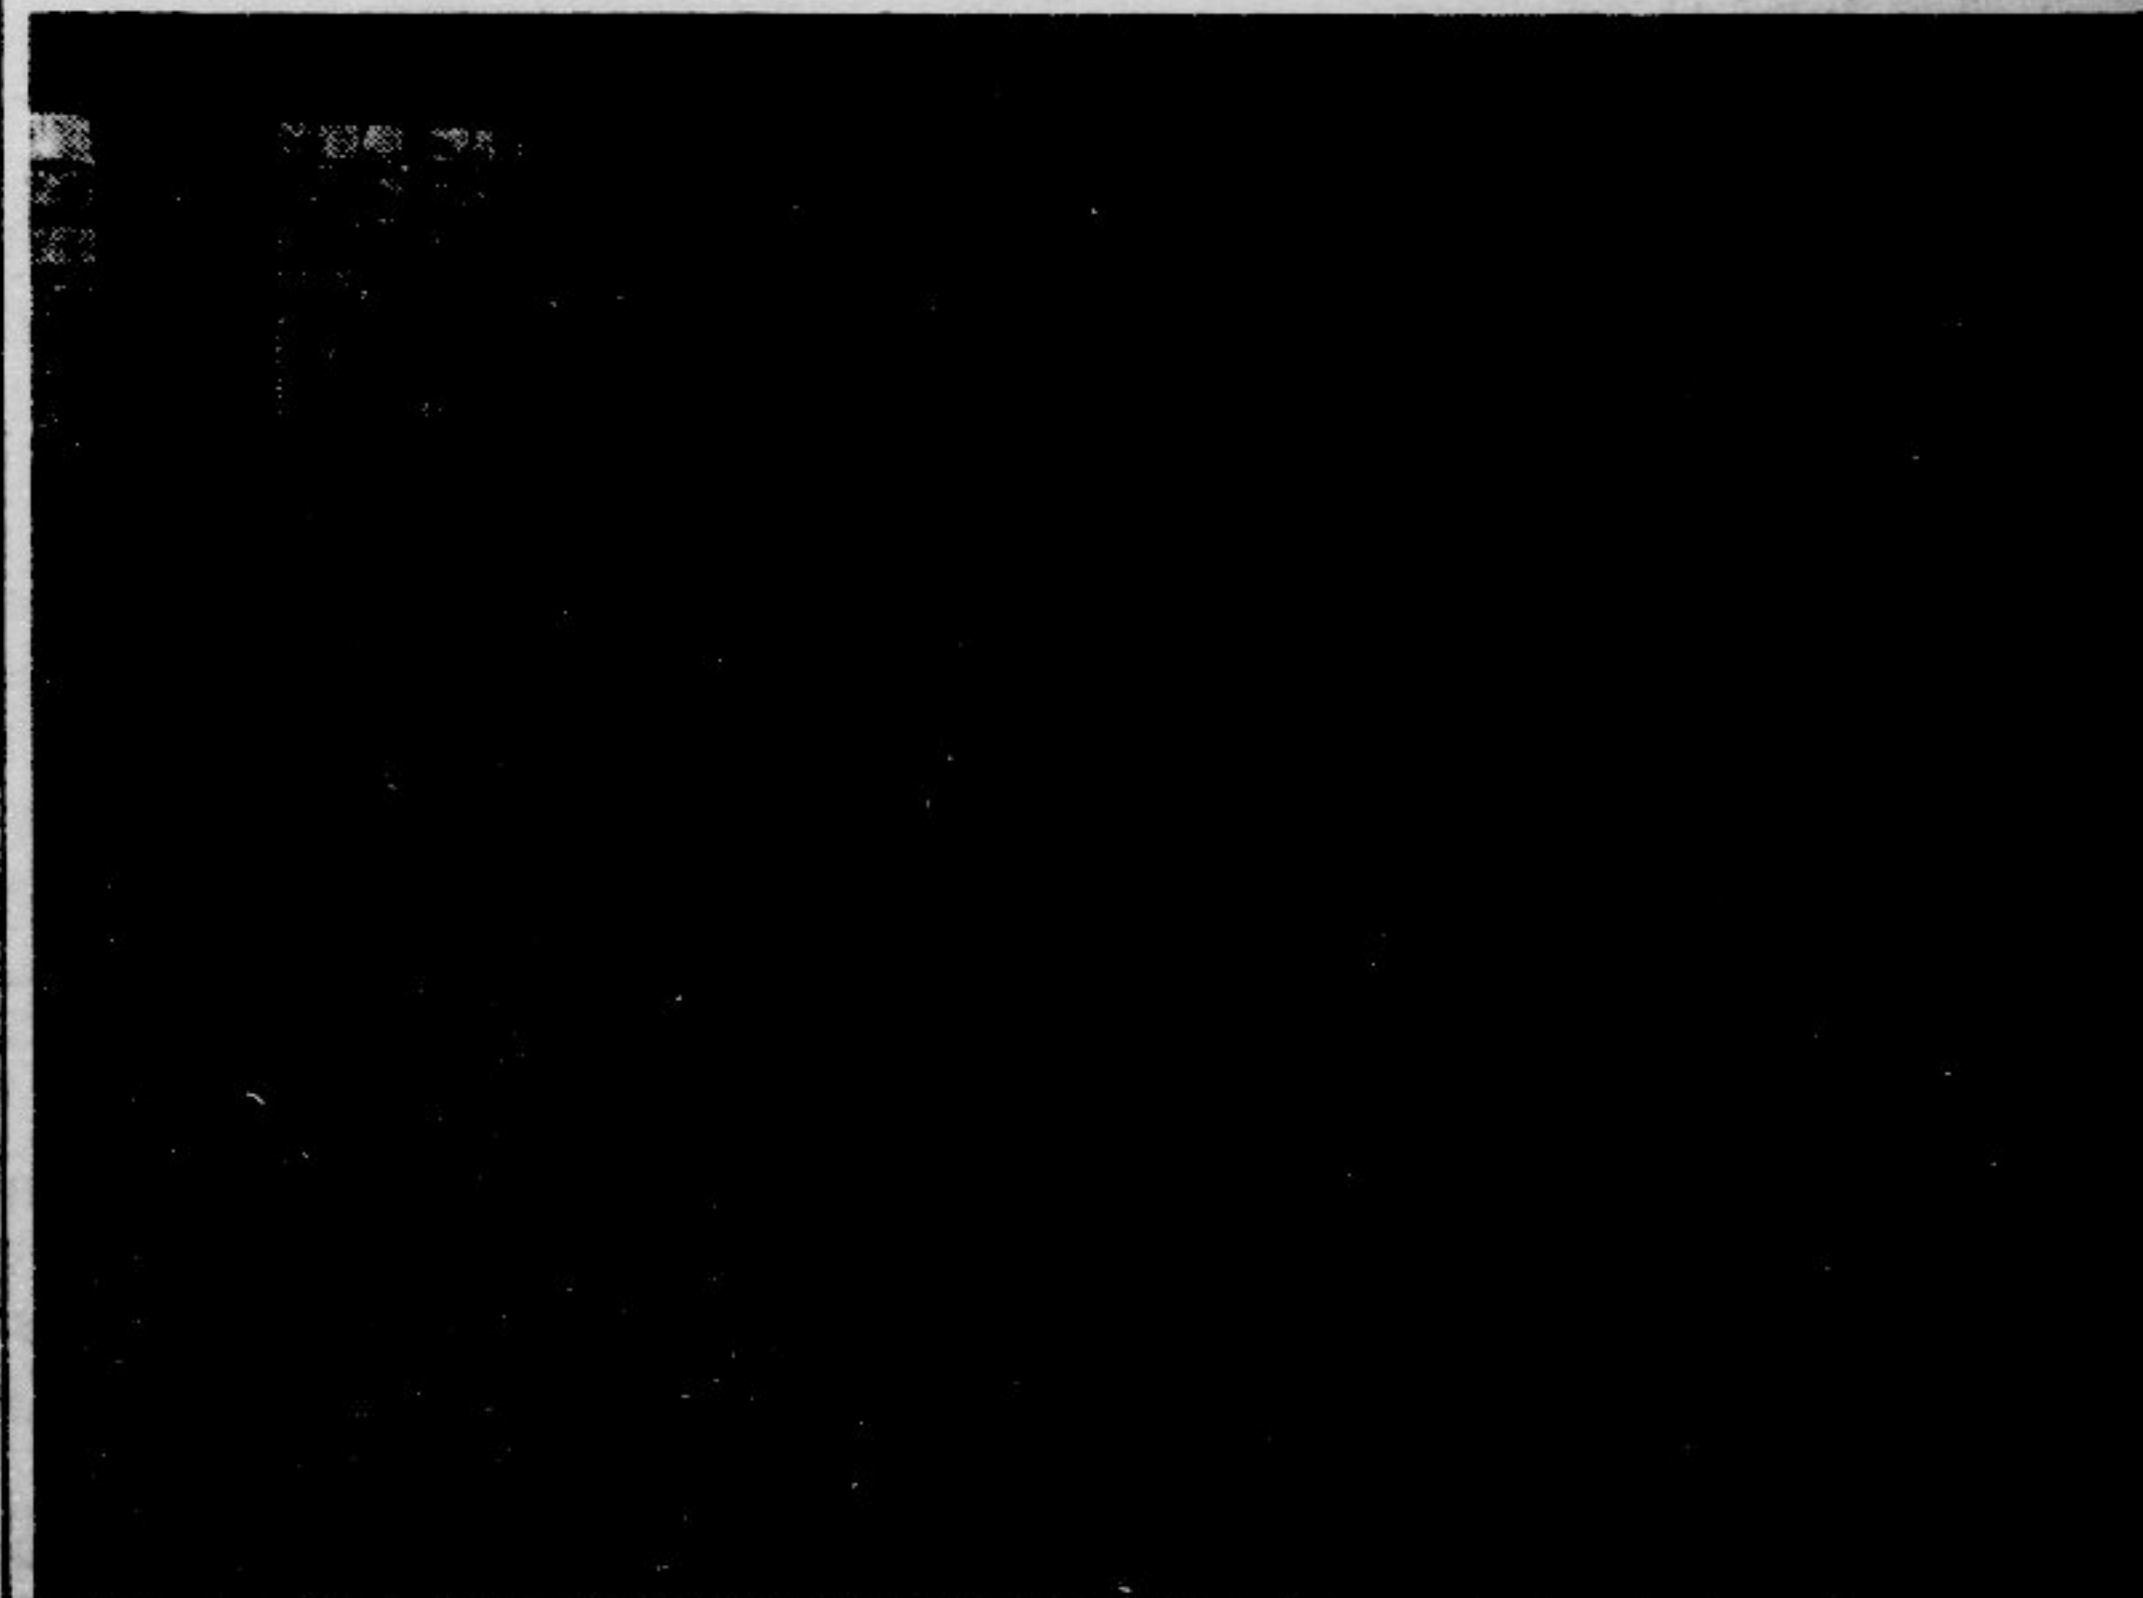

Smiley Presides At Chicago Meet For Librarians

Wendell W. Smiley, librarian at East Carolina college, will preside over a meeting of the Association of Reference Librarians, held at Chicago, January 31, of the Teacher Training Institute of the Association of Reference Librarians.

Chairman of this section is a Librarian associated with the holding of its semi-annual meeting in Chicago, January 31.

The program for the meeting, planned by Messick, sent a number of teachers in a discussion of the American Association for Teacher Education and Professional Standards. North Carolina State university will be among those participating.

Pool To Be In Use Soon

The new gymnasium will be in use to college officials. Already, a new swimming pool inside the gymnasium has been completed. Located on the back of the East Carolina modernistic and 25-10-50.

VERSE OF THE WEEK

God is faithful, and he will not let you be tempted beyond your strength, but with the temptation will also provide you with the way of escape, that you may be able to endure it. I Corinthians—10:13

Someone Should Respond

In the last issue of the TECO ECHO, which was printed just before the Christmas holidays, there was run on this page an article that was written from excerpts of an American columnist's column. If you remember, the story was headed "We Enjoy Our Christmas While Others Suffer," and the article concerned the conditions facing our South Korean allies. We were making a plea for some campus organization to take as a project the collecting of old clothes from the students here who have no further use for them.

We have had our Christmas, and we take it that most everyone was able to really enjoy it. The families in South Korea had their Christmas, but it is doubtful whether or not they were able to enjoy the Yuletide season, because the extremely cold conditions and the fact that their backyards are being used for battlegrounds made it impossible for them to catch the spirit. We are able to help them and we certainly should try in some way to do so, whether it be large or small.

Little would be required for any campus organization to sponsor the collecting of clothes on the campus. Everyone and his roommate surely has some old clothing packed away in the closet or under the bed that is not being used. If the South Koreans had this clothing, they surely would be making use of it.

Any group that would like to take over the project is requested to drop by the TECO ECHO office, and we will gladly give our assistance in any way possible. Already there has been a member of the college staff who said that she would be more than glad to handle the collected items and can think of no project at the present time that would be more worthwhile and that would be appreciated as much on the receiving end.

A Look Ahead, Back

Take a look back into last year and see some of the things that were accomplished in the history of East Carolina college. First of all, we were able to see a steady growth of our enrollment. The college has grown in enrollment in the number of buildings on campus. We are hoping that very soon our new dormitory will be in use, and the new dormitory building is rapidly progressing. East Carolina college has had its best year in its scholastic standing, and we are facing a little tougher each quarter.

When we look at the traffic conditions on campus, it is best in some time. Every time we have "no parking" signs now in place. With a few "stop" signs in places, we feel that the traffic could be under control. We are working on presenting in obtaining traffic on front campus. The presence of new buildings on campus are a definite step in the right direction.

Ye Editor's Say

by Tommie Lupton

Well, we are all back to dear old East Carolina after a long holiday period and are settling back down and getting into the old routine once again. After not having printed a paper for nearly a month, we find it rather hard to dig in and work. (The more one rests and takes it easy the more he wants to, or something to that effect.) Anyway, this is issue number 13 and we are hoping to publish at least 13 more editions before commencement rolls around in May.

There seems to be a lull in the activities on campus since the holidays, but the ball gets rolling once again tonight when the Phi Sigma Pi presents the Sweetheart dance. The Pirate basketballers swing back into action on the home floors Wednesday. In just a couple of weeks Religious Emphasis week will be underway on the college campus, and we feel that the program this year will prove to be very inspirational.

The Orange and White, University of Tennessee, feels the system of camping coeds who are late getting back to the dormitory is a bit stiff. Any girl who is one to five minutes late gets campused one night. If a girl is more than 15 minutes late, she is campused a whole week. The Orange and White suggests that the administration look into the matter and make some changes. We bet that there are a few girls on the East Carolina campus who could give a few suggestions.

A handy organization at the University of Miami known as the Cabage Patch, offers $5 loans to students. They must be paid off in 14 days, with five cents a day for overtime. The University of Illinois has a similar setup.

Standards at East Carolina are gradually getting higher and higher. Courses that used to be "crip" courses are now requiring much more work than previously. There are a few students now on probation this quarter. You know what this all means, don't you? It means that we are going to have to study a little more.

A cameraman for the Detroit university Varsity News toured the campus recently snapping pictures of articles he might have stolen from unlocked cars. He concluded that many valuable items were "guarded" only by their owners' phenomenal and unfounded faith in the integrity of his fellow students and passersby.

A faculty committee at Clarkson college of Technology, Potsdam, N. Y., recommends a new approach to final exams. What the committee wants are few exams, exams which test a student's judgment and intellectual power rather than his ability to remember facts, exams which would stress "correlation and assimilation" of subject matter. After all most students really enjoy going to classes and mingling between classes, but the exams and homework are what cause worry for the students.

The other day at the book store a student was making an inquiry about a book. The clerk, who was anxious to make a sale, showed the student a book and said, "This book will be half of the work for the course." The student thought a while and replied, "Good, I'll take two of them."

Just select a few of the most important things that you were given and write a few lines about them. You can't study, we can't go to class and think. I doubt whether you ever wanted to do either. Who's Who At East Carolina

by Janice Hardison

Otis Bain

He likes it so well, in fact, that he has recently become engaged to Miss June Pritchard. "The date's indefinite," he says, "but it'll be around a year." He's very happy about the whole affair.

Explores Coast

Is he really an ex-sailor? Yes, Bain joined the Navy in 1946, and for two years he "explored" the east coast from Newfoundland to Cuba on three different aircraft carriers. It was while he was in service that he definitely decided to come to East Carolina. It seems that he and Bob Bradley, with whom he played football at Boyden high school in Salisbury together, agreed to stake a joint claim here. The sailors were roommates when they finally entered in 1948.

Did you say football? Yes, that's right. Otis lettered in high school football, but he says he's "too small for this stuff," meaning college football. Bain also plays a good game of tennis.

Proxy of Vets Club

As a freshman Otis joined the Veterans club of which he is now president. He is also the only remaining charter member of the Circle K club, the others having graduated or left for other reasons. Bain has been four years a member of the Commerce club, and served as its president during the 1949-50 term. This year his fellow students voted him into Phi Sigma Pi, an honorary fraternity.

Bain's activities with the Student Government association have been particularly outstanding. He has been a member of SGA for three years, and has twice represented the college at the Student Legislative assembly in Raleigh. He was chairman of the Social committee last year.

Last year Otis became a celebrity within his own right when he was among those listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." His eventful junior year also brought him a commission in Air ROTC from which he graduated.

There's little doubt that Otis Bain will accomplish his aims. His college career proves it.

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Barbara Grimes

It looks like ole man winter and the song hit parade just couldn't get together in the past few weeks. But the snow was nice anyway. Students donned heavy coats, boots, ear muffs and anything else that would keep them warm, and snowball fights were quite the sport Sunday afternoon!

When the girls who call Cotten hall "home" returned after the holidays they found that everyone had not had as many days of leisure as they. Painters had been busy painting the woodwork and radiators in the halls and rooms. Also there is good reason that Dr. Irons might have had patients with bumps here and there from slipping on the newly waxed floors. Slippery as glass!

Glancing at the calendar, tonight is a red letter night. The Phi Sigma Phi, men's fraternity on campus, is sponsoring a semi-formal dance, the "Sweetheart Ball." A "Sweetheart" will be crowned at the dance. It's the $64 question as to whom she will be.

Say, girls, do you know what year this is? Leap year! So now you can go right out and ask that dream man of yours for a date! You're within your rights!

Wright gym rocked with laughter last Thursday night as the Pirates played the hilarious "House of David" basketball team. Those fellows throw away the rule book when they walk onto a basketball court!

It seems like the period of time from Thanksgiving to Christmas is like the middle of a hurricane. For a short while a deadly calm (the three weeks between the holidays), then the hurricane in full swing (the holidays, parties, parties, parties!), then the calm after the storm (after the holidays). The latter is what we seem to be in now, what with the calendar fairly bare. Therefore, we have no excuses for poor grades for the next few weeks, do we,

Well folks, news has been pretty scarce this week; hope there will be more to write about next week. See you later!

Reprint Of Story From Pitt News Questions Whether High Learning Today Is Worthwhile

by Ed Jensen

(The following is reprinted from the Pitt News, University of Pittsburgh.)

It is about that time in the school year when students are beginning to ponder on the value of higher learning. They wonder if it is all worth the effort they put into it, or, again, the effort they feel they put into it.

Much of the energy they would devote to pursuing that learning they expend in aimless speculation, twistings and turnings of the mind which are most often expressed in the sophisticated terminology of their favorite subjects.

Their uncertainty is explained, and even given a certain nobility, as symptoms of our times, or as indicative of the vast rootlessness and lack of purpose inherent in the intellectually delicate in this country. We offer no haven for the sensitive.

The argument is presented that matters mental are deprecated to the advantage of the materialistic endeavors. We are so engrossed in picking up a buck that we have given it a stature which it doesn't deserve.

Despite all of the free enterprise and rugged individualism propaganda broadcast by the American Legion and others of its ilk, we have developed only a WPA attitude towards living. We want everything easy. If it doesn't come that way, we have manufactured the finest set of rationalizations in the history of mankind.

They are manufactured right here in our liberal arts courses, but they are manufactured inadvertently. Instead of taking what they give us as guides for living, we take them as excuses for not living. They give us high-sounding props for our failures.

"If we can't study, we can't go to class and think. I doubt whether you ever wanted to do either. The answer is simple. Just select a few of the most important things that you were given and write a few lines about them."

Or we can blame it all on the youth of the country or on its size or on the small salaries paid mental workers. But we don't blame it on ourselves. We are here ostensibly to get some knowledge and a degree which will enable us to get some place where we can use that knowledge. The plant is here, the rest is up to us.

Instead of picking out all the fatalistic notions offered in courses, we ought to pick up some of the indications that show us how to avoid the situations that bring about the fatalism. And we ought to lay off ourselves and give the books or the instructors or whatever it is we are

For nothing does more to lower the morale than a continuous dissertation on the depths to which it has plunged. We can talk ourselves into defeat.

But, there probably is no answer. We are what we are and we must make the best of it. Just don't blame someone else for it.

And instead of constantly saying that our problems are greater now than they ever were, and then using anecdotes concocted years ago to solve them, we ought to devise a few modern solutions.

Just quit looking at life through a rear view mirror.

"Say, coach, I understand you are lookin' for a tall center for your basketball team."

TIMELY TOPICS

by Bob Hilldrup

Amidst the titanic pile of junk that accumulates in a newspaper office (particularly the TECO ECHO) we came across a rather interesting newspaper from one of our more illustrious sister schools. It was an avowed communist publication printed by a student at the institution in connection with the Communist party of the USA. In it the student editor denounced every principle of Americanism and democracy. It is indeed unfortunate when a young American privilege with going to college at as fine a school as this is led to believe the line of "baloney" that some people hand out. It isn't strictly Emily Post to hope this but we do wish that someone steps on this ungrateful pup before his ravings become dangerous not only to himself but to others.

Name calling has gotten to the place now where it has become fashionable to call anyone whom you do not like a communist. Just the other day I heard two little boys squabbling over some trifle or other. Finally one of them became so exasperated at the other's actions that he shouted in distraction, "You're so mean that I bet your daddy is raising you to be a Russian." And so it goes.

Well the new year is upon us, the hangovers are gone (sometimes we wonder) and we have another long bout with the books ahead but all in all it might be a pretty good year in the end. We'll be one more step along toward completing our four year vacation here and who knows? We might even get the Democrats out of the White House. We're sorry, you all.

You know, it's a pretty good life despite the Russians and the A-bomb. You can find something humorous in most every situation. Everyone in Washington is either wearing a mink coat or has their hand in an icebox; but be careful of those red clothes or J. Edgar and his posse of playmates will be on your trail.

A charming little lass just came in the door. We don't know who she is but she sure is cute. If the writing starts to waver it means we just got our face slapped. What a way to fill up space.

It seems that the coming Sweetheart dance is going to be quite a shindig. Do any of your charming fillies want to be our "sweetheart"? Don't all speak at once.

The morality play "Everyman" will be coming up soon and should go over big. The Playhouse did a fine job in their production of "You Can't Take It With You," and this should be just as good. Those of you who remember Percy Wilkins in his role as Donald, the colored servant, in "You Can't Take It With You" will be pleased to know that he has the lead in "Everyman."

On the serious side, there is going to be a lot of hard work for all of us from now on so let's not get behind. We don't want any of you fine young men flunking out into the clutches of Uncle Sam. And as for you girls, what would we do without you?

About Saturday's Hero

Apparently Hollywood this year has declared open season on some of college life's more vulnerable components. First it was the Greek-blasted, "Take Care of My Little Girl," and currently it's Columbia with "Saturday's Hero," which is now showing in a downtown theatre.

This picture centers around Steve Novak, the son of Polish immigrants, who is a real nice kid despite the head-swelling distinction of being a high school football star.

As numerous college offers come rolling in, Steve overcomes the temptation to stay home and help support his aging father and war-disabled brother, finally accepts his football scholarship at Jackson university, Va. (a safe distance from Hollywood).

It is made clear that the only reason he accepts it is to get an engineering education.

At school Novak is troubled to find that he must work for his keep several hours a day on the practice field, a schedule which naturally interferes with his studies. As time passes, Novak doesn't. But this is a mere detail to a school with ambitious football hopes, and the marks are doctored to a healthier status.

One boy finds no trouble in making the team—everybody's crazy about him. But as the seasons roll by and his name gets bigger and bigger, Novak's conscience begins to bother him.

To complicate matters, he falls in love with the niece of T. C. McCabe, his alumni benefactor, who is carrying the financial load of building alma mater's football reputation.

Finally, after permanently injuring a shoulder, Novak decided it's a bad deal, takes the girl away from jealous guardian McCabe and goes home to get an education at night school.

The less said about the acting the better. John Derek lets his expressive eyebrows do most of the work as he furnishes a dozen soulful scowls per reel. Donna Reed, as the poor-little-rich-girl heroine, appears to have more frustrations than a tap dancer whose shoes are souled with bubble gum.

We'll go along with the film in its shaming the fans, the coaches (the one in this movie looks more like a bookie), the alumni and the sports writers. But the point has been missed.

The players are portrayed as good, clean, red-blooded, 100 per cent rah rah, American boys who are unfortunate enough to be able to play football. Not a word is offered about the school administrators who hypocritically turn their heads from the questionable activities within their colleges.

In fact, the deepest single impression made by this film—if accepted at face value—is that college athletes must be enormously stupid. Who can sympathize with these "kept men" who play a dangerous game for a paltry $100 per month?

The smartest of history professors will tell you that history does not repeat itself, but similar situations do occur with different results. On the contrary, however, we have come up with a theory to prove that it does repeat itself on certain occasions. At least it has with East Carolina's cage squad.

For the past two years they have opened the conference with astounding victories over a conference and have taken an early lead in pre-holiday North State standings with two victories and no losses.

However, this undefeated loop record was soon eradicated and the Pirates were shoved out of the top spot. It happened in 1951 when the Bucs won the conference openers over Catawba and Guilford. These games were played before the holidays, but when league play was resumed in January, a game was lost.

The Bucs started out this season with identical wins, over Catawba and Guilford. The Pirates still had two more games to play during the holidays and they lost to Appalachian and Guilford. It seems a shame that these boys should have to remain on campus during the holidays to play basketball for they need the rest. We would venture to say that this factor along with others influenced the final outcome of the games.

Bucs Play While School's Out

Another thing that displeased the student body and caused a great deal of comment was the game played in Wright gymnasium on Friday night, December 14, with Camp Lee. School was not in session at that time and the Bucs had a ball game which was not fair to the students.

We noticed in our esteemed contemporary, the Raleigh News and Observer, that N. C. State released their 1952 football schedule and failed to announce a North State brother college, Catawba, on the regular season card. State college's athletic director, Roy Clogston, said that the game was tentative and the reason it was not put on the schedule was that the college was not in session at that time and it would not be fair to the students to arrange the contest before school opened.

That seems to be sound reasoning and we believe some of it should be applied at East Carolina. If it is a conference game and such a deal is the only one that can be arranged, it would be more fair if it was we see no excuse for it.

Intramural Stars Edged In Frolic By Bearded Five

Sparked by Bill Allen's 14 points, the House of David downed a picked team of East Carolina intra-mural All Stars 49-44 in a basketball game at Wright auditorium Thursday night, January 3.

Never behind in the contest, the men with the bushy beards kept the near capacity crowd laughing throughout the game. Little Bobby Roth, the visitors' playmaker, was a big hit with the fans.

The scoring honors for the game were fairly well distributed. Behind Allen came Stan Karpinski with 12 points and Ross Lebeck with 11. For the All-Stars, Jere Hilburn was high man with nine closely followed by George Graybill and Boyd Webb with eight apiece.

The outcome of the game was never in doubt due to the disorganization of the All-Stars. Several times the victors attempted to slow down the game by putting on a display of fancy passing antics but an alert All-Star defense soon disrupted the show.

Buccaneer Cagers Win Pre-Holiday Encounter, 90-65

After a close first quarter, Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina Pirates pulled away from a visiting Fort Lee Traveler team to take a victory in a non-conference ball battle played here December 29. The Pirates ran up their highest point total and their victory margin.

The first quarter the teams played even terms with the Bucs leading a slim 19-18 edge at the end of the period. In the second quarter, with Russell and Blake on the way, began to pull away from the Travelers and by half-time had a 42-30 advantage. The second half saw the locals make a rout of the game. The visitors were never in the contest during the last half and Coach Porter's boys quickly salted it away.

Warren "Sonny" Russell and Bobby Hodges led the Pirate scoring with 21 and 20 points, respectively. Richard Blake was third with 14 followed by Charlie Huffman with nine.

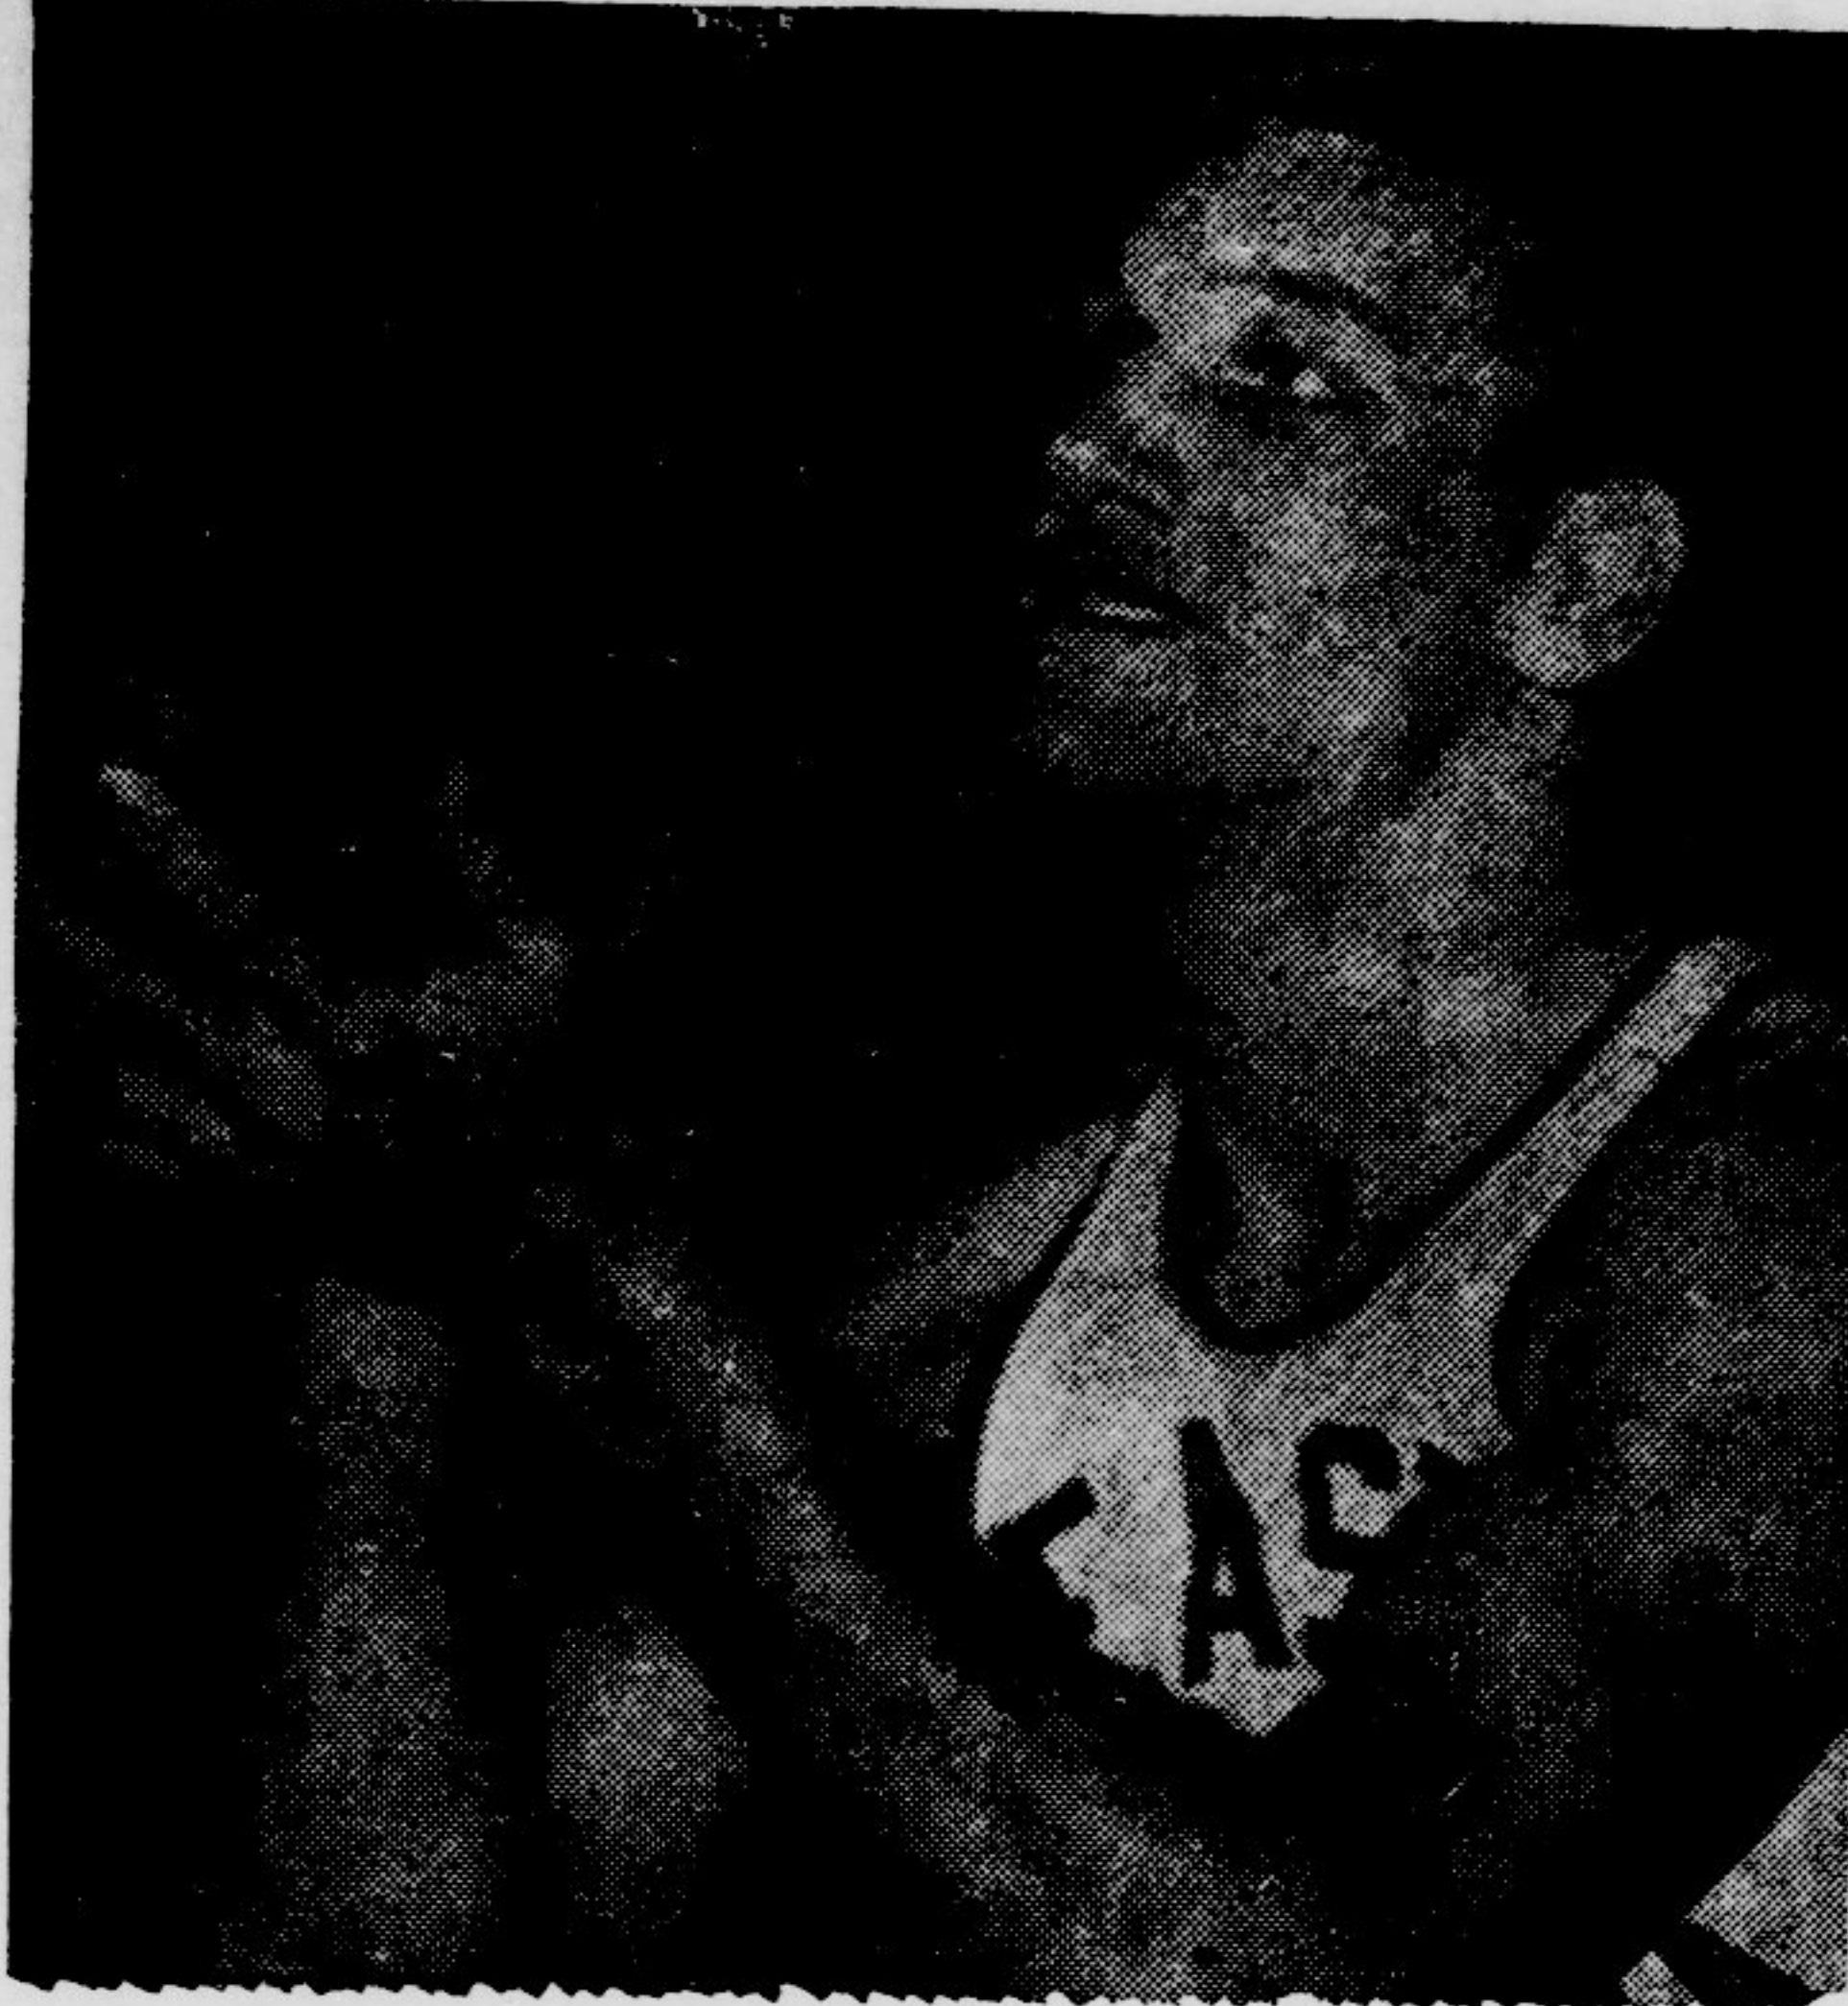

The Pirates played an exceptionally good game in making 39 of 76 shots from the floor for an amazing 51 per cent shooting average. From the free-throw line the locals cashed in on 12 out of 16 for a 75 per cent average. Fort Lee made a respectable 38 per cent of their shots while making good on seven out of 17 from the charity line.

Hodges Continues To Star

Hodges Shatters Own Scoring Record Against Apps With 29

By Frazier Bruton

Well, he finally succeeded! It took a long time, but he did it. Bobby Hodges finally topped his old record of 28 points and bucketed 29 against the Appalachian Bears in his long climb in his career of basketball which started in his prep days.

While all the East Carolina students were out for the Christmas holidays and home booming around, six foot five inch Bobby Hodges, one of the dependable forwards, was up at Boone booming those cords. It didn't seem to him that Hodges, with his scoring ability and know-how, had taken many a wrinkle off the face of Coach Howard Porter.

Stars In Tourney

In 1949 Hodges hit for 28 points—his highest—while playing for Kinslow against Rutherfordton-Spindale in a playoff game to determine who would meet Hanes High of Winston-Salem in the finals of the State's competition, now AA, which is held in Duke's Indoor stadium. This feat, highest in the schoolboys playoff classic, tied Jack Powell's record of 28 points. Powell, who starred for the High Point Bisons, had set that record earlier in the same classic. In this Hodges was selected the "Most Valuable Player" that flung seeds in the bracket.

Hodges did not stop there; he came to East Carolina and so far has ripped the nets for 23 points. All add up to a grand total of 47 points, good enough for "Most Valuable Player" honor.

whole first team was receiving all kinds of awards. Along with Russell, Fennell and Collie, Hodges was selected on the mythical All-Tournament team as the Buc five was the most improved squad on the court. After being named to the All-Tournament team, Hodges was also bestowed the honor again of the "Most Valuable Player" in NAIB classic held annually at Statesville. The Big Boy came in second in the tournament's scoring parade with an amazing 47 points scored in the three-day classic. In the first game of the tournament, underdog East Carolina was matched with Lenoir Rhyne, the team which had come out on top in the long conference grind. But with power and determination the Bucs turned back the leaders, and gained the right to meet Catawba in the semi-finals. The Pirates pulled another upset by dumping Catawba and entered the finals against High Point. Although the Pirates lost by a 66-62 count.

'Most Valuable'

All through the classic Hodges was seen on the backboards offensively and defensively. Not a time did the husky lad lay down and quit. Against Lenoir Rhyne he tallied 15 points, and opposing Catawba he canked 19 markers. Against High Point in the finals he hit paramount strength by ripping the nets for 23 points. All add up to a grand total of 47 points, good enough for "Most Valuable Player" honor.

High Point college's Panthers are again setting the pace in this year's North State conference basketball race while the Pirates of East Carolina are tied for the number five spot by virtue of a two and two record.

The Panthers, with high scorer Ed Sueta leading the way, racked up their second loop victory in as many starts by downing Catawba, 78-67, Saturday night. In the only other loop contest on the card, the Appalachian ball club swamped the Lenoir-Rhyne Bears by a score of 86-63. Although held to a 41-40 half time margin the Apps retaliated with 45 points in the second half while holding the Bears to 23.

Fourteen games are on tap among the teams this week with seven being within the conference. North State leader High Point meets Atlantic Christian on Monday and then follows up with two more important games with Guilford and Lenoir-Rhyne.

The highly rated Pirates from East Carolina stay away from conference competition for another week as they meet the McCrory Eagles Wednesday at Asheboro.

Elon, the only other unbeaten team, is involved in two conference clashes; the first with Appalachian on Wednesday and on Saturday the Christians play host to Catawba.

We noticed in our esteemed contemporary, the Raleigh News and Observer, that N. C. State released their 1952 football schedule and failed to announce a North State brother college, Catawba, on the regular season card.

That seems to be sound reasoning and we believe some of it should be applied at East Carolina. If it is a conference game and such a date is the only one that can be arranged, it would be more feasible, but as it was we see no excuse for it.

Good Intramural Program

Vernon Morrison, men's intramural director, has a wonderful program going among the male students. In fact, it is the best seen since we have been in college here. There are 18 teams in two leagues which is a record number.

There is one more intramural sports that many would love to see in action—that being touch football. It is a wonderful idea and something to think about for next fall.

A note of optimism regarding the new gymnasium comes from Dr. Jorgenson's office. Two swimming classes have already been arranged for next quarter and if things run smoothly Coach Porter's basketball team may even move into the new structure near the end of the season.

Remember the Trenton Teachers college in New Jersey that went eleven years before winning a football game? They shocked the smaller colleges this year by finishing the season with an undefeated season.

High Point Invades Campus

Next week will be an exciting one for Coach Porter's cage squad and for the students as well. High Point's defending conference champions will be on hand for crucial encounter Wednesday night and then on Friday night Atlantic Christian will be here, ready to depart with the famous Bohunk trophy.

Against High Point the Pirates will be attempting to avenge last season's loss in the finals of the Conference tourney and also in the NAIB regional finals. Currently, however, the Panthers are just about the hottest thing in the state with an unbeaten loop record and a high scoring Ed Sueta.

The battle with the Bulldogs will be another rough league battle. The rival college dropped football this season to emphasize the cage sport, importing a new coach and some splendid players. Jack McComas, former N. C. State ace, tutors the cagers and has experienced a rather dismal season thus far.

How Bohunk Originated

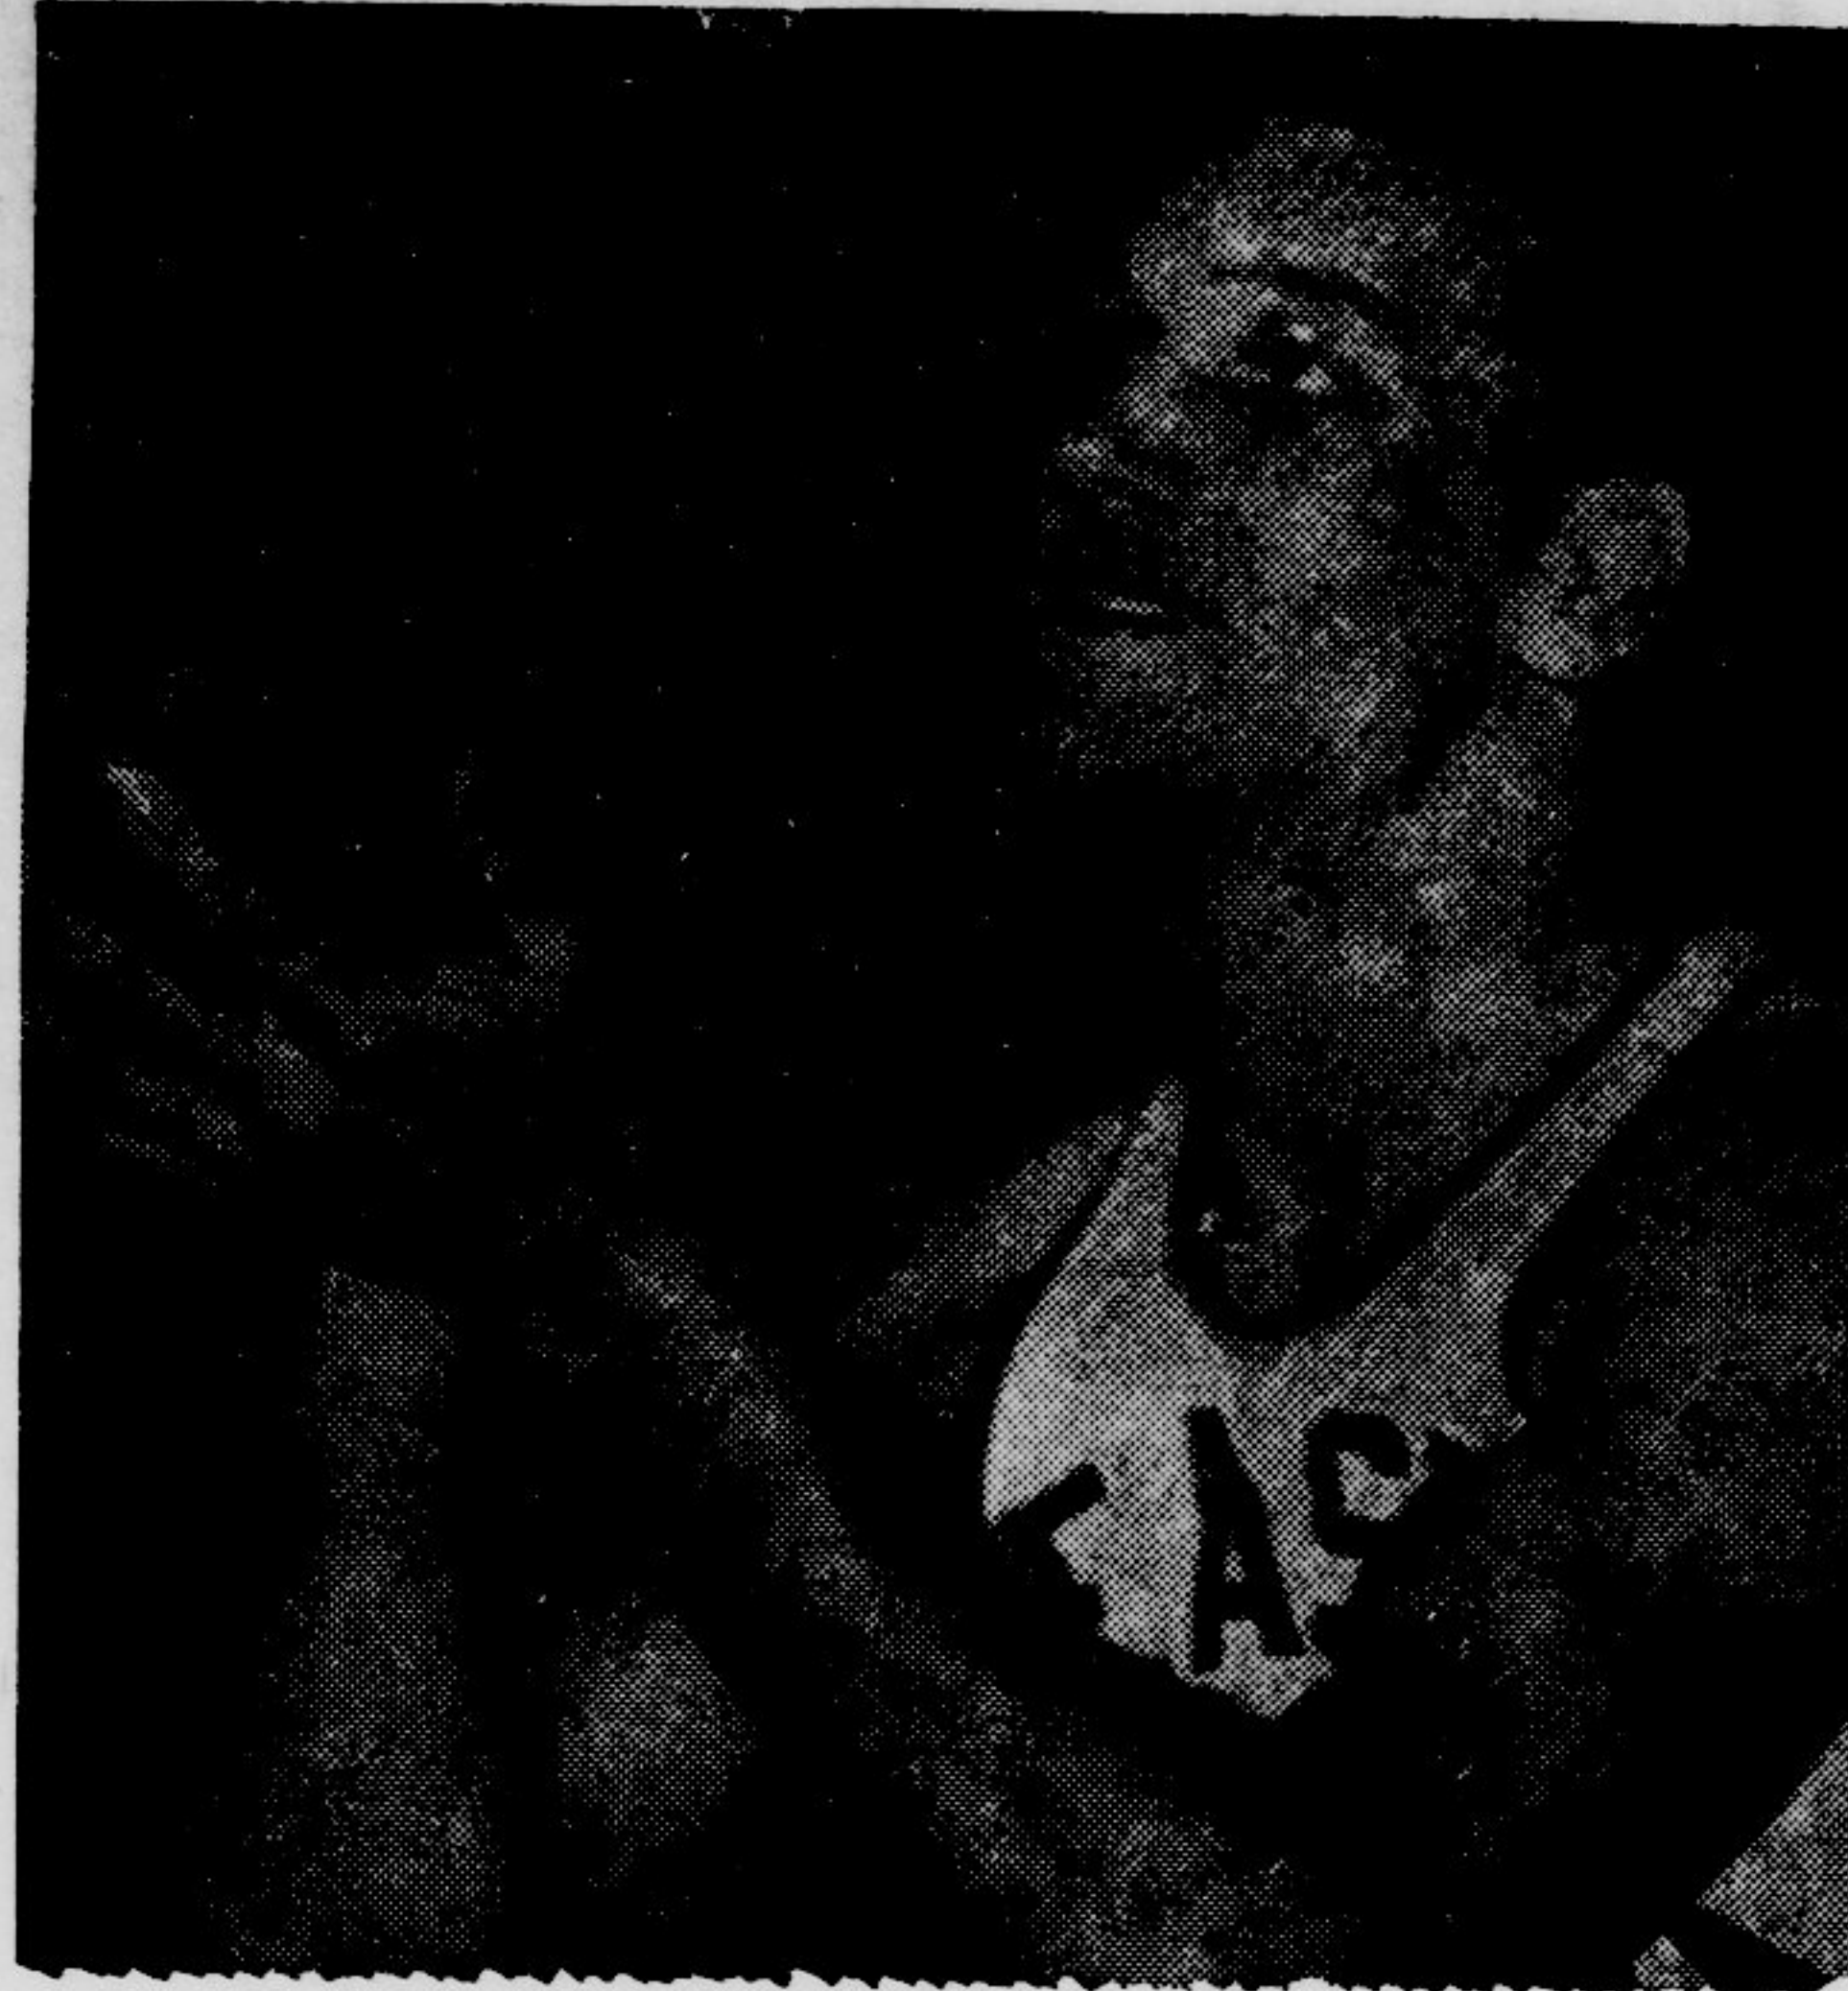

For the benefit of those who do not know the significance of the Bohunk, or how it started we quote Jack Daniels, sports editor of the TECO ECHO in 1939. Daniels is the guy who initiated the idea and here it is, "Because of this corner's policy to promote school spirit at our dear ole alma mater, we have taken into our own hands a very important question which may influence the 'school nerve' of the future generations who might attend this fair 'instichooshum' . . . Yowazh! Your sports editor has indulged in a little . . . mental over-exertion with our fine and very, (oh very) worthy colleague, Johnnie Yavorski, sports editor of ACC's Collegiate. . . Here it is!

"The TECO ECHO and the Collegiate will put up a beautiful, gorgeous, grandacious, splendiferous, colossal (in fact it's pretty) trophy to be respectfully presented to the school (either ACC or ECTC) who wins any athletic contest between the schools in a school year. This fine (?) piece of crockery (oops! . . . we mean valuable trophy . . .) will be kept in the guarded possession of the college who most recently has won in an athletic conflict between the two colleges. The school holding the trophy at the end of the spring quarter will treasure it during the following summer and attempt to hold the darn thing (oops again . . . we mean the valuable treasure) during the following school year.

"We decided to name this trophy in accordance with all it stands for, and so we hereby christen the worthy object of our affection, the BOHUNK TROPHY! Long may it live! (in our possession)."

The original ole oaken bucket is still in use and will live forever. Presently it is battered and worn through use and will not even hold a drop of water, but still it serves as a token of good sportsmanship between two rival institutions.

High Point's defending North State conference champions lays its perfect record on the line in Wright gymnasium next Wednesday night with Coach Howard Porter's hot and cold East Carolina Pirates in what could prove to be the game of the year in Greenville. Also on the agenda for the Buc cagers next week is another crucial loop battle with Atlantic Christian college in the battle for the cherished Bohunk which has been in the Bulldogs' possession since last spring.

The Panthers, a long-time winner within the North State and against highly regarded non-conference competition, have already been chosen as the club to capture all league honors this season, but East Carolina has shown a lot of promise around the circuit and are taking dead aim at the defending champions' laurels. Recent conquerors of Atlantic Christian, the visitors have a big center, Ed Sueta, who has been the scoring punch and a good replacement for Bill Waiz, the notorious scoring demon who was lost due to graduation. Sueta averaged 27 points in the first two contests with a sure-fire hook shot.

Coach Porter will probably rely on his regular starting line-up against the Panthers. Two of the loop's best scoring aces will start at the forward positions, Sonny Russell and Bobby Hodges. In the center slot will be the Pirate playmaker, Toddy Fennell, with two rebound aces and fancy ballhandlers out front in the guard positions, Richard Blake and Lou Collie.

Two nights after the High Point engagement, the Bucs will meet their arch rivals, Atlantic Christian, the school that dropped football to emphasize basketball. That contest will be another family affair and a grudge battle for the highly coveted Bohunk trophy which the Bulldogs have held since last baseball season.

Intramural League Divided Into Two Loops For Season

After two weeks of play with an 18-team league, the Men's Intramural league resumed play Wednesday with an entirely different setup. The teams that were in the top six of the standings went into Class A competition and the remaining 10 clubs were regarded as Class B quints, with their games being played in the Training school gymnasium. The Big Six will reel off its games in Wright gymnasium.

Teams comprising the Class A loop include last season's defending champions and a serious threat to repeat the Orphans. The current title holders have won two battles and have not suffered a setback along with the Sheriffs and the Outlaws. Other fives in the more experienced league are the Busy Bee Bombers, Royals and Snappers.

Intramural director Vernon Morrison says that he would still like to have more teams in the league and if any students are interested contact him. He also reminded the captains that they are responsible for furnishing their own equipment that only ten players are allowed on each squad.

Playhouse Presents 'Everyman' During Religious Emphasis Week

As part of Religious Emphasis week at East Carolina college, the Teachers playhouse, student dramatic club, will present the morality play "Everyman," an allegorical drama dating back to the 14th century. Performances have been scheduled for the evenings of January 24 and 25 at 8 o'clock in the College theatre. The drama is considered the best of the morality plays of the Middle Ages in England.

Cooperating in the production will be the YWCA, the YMCA and other college organizations, including choral groups in the department of music.

Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert, director of the department of music, is serving as musical advisor.

Percy Wilkins of Benson, who performed in the Teachers playhouse production of "You Can't Take It With You" in December, will play the part of Everyman. Approximately twenty students will participate as members of the cast.

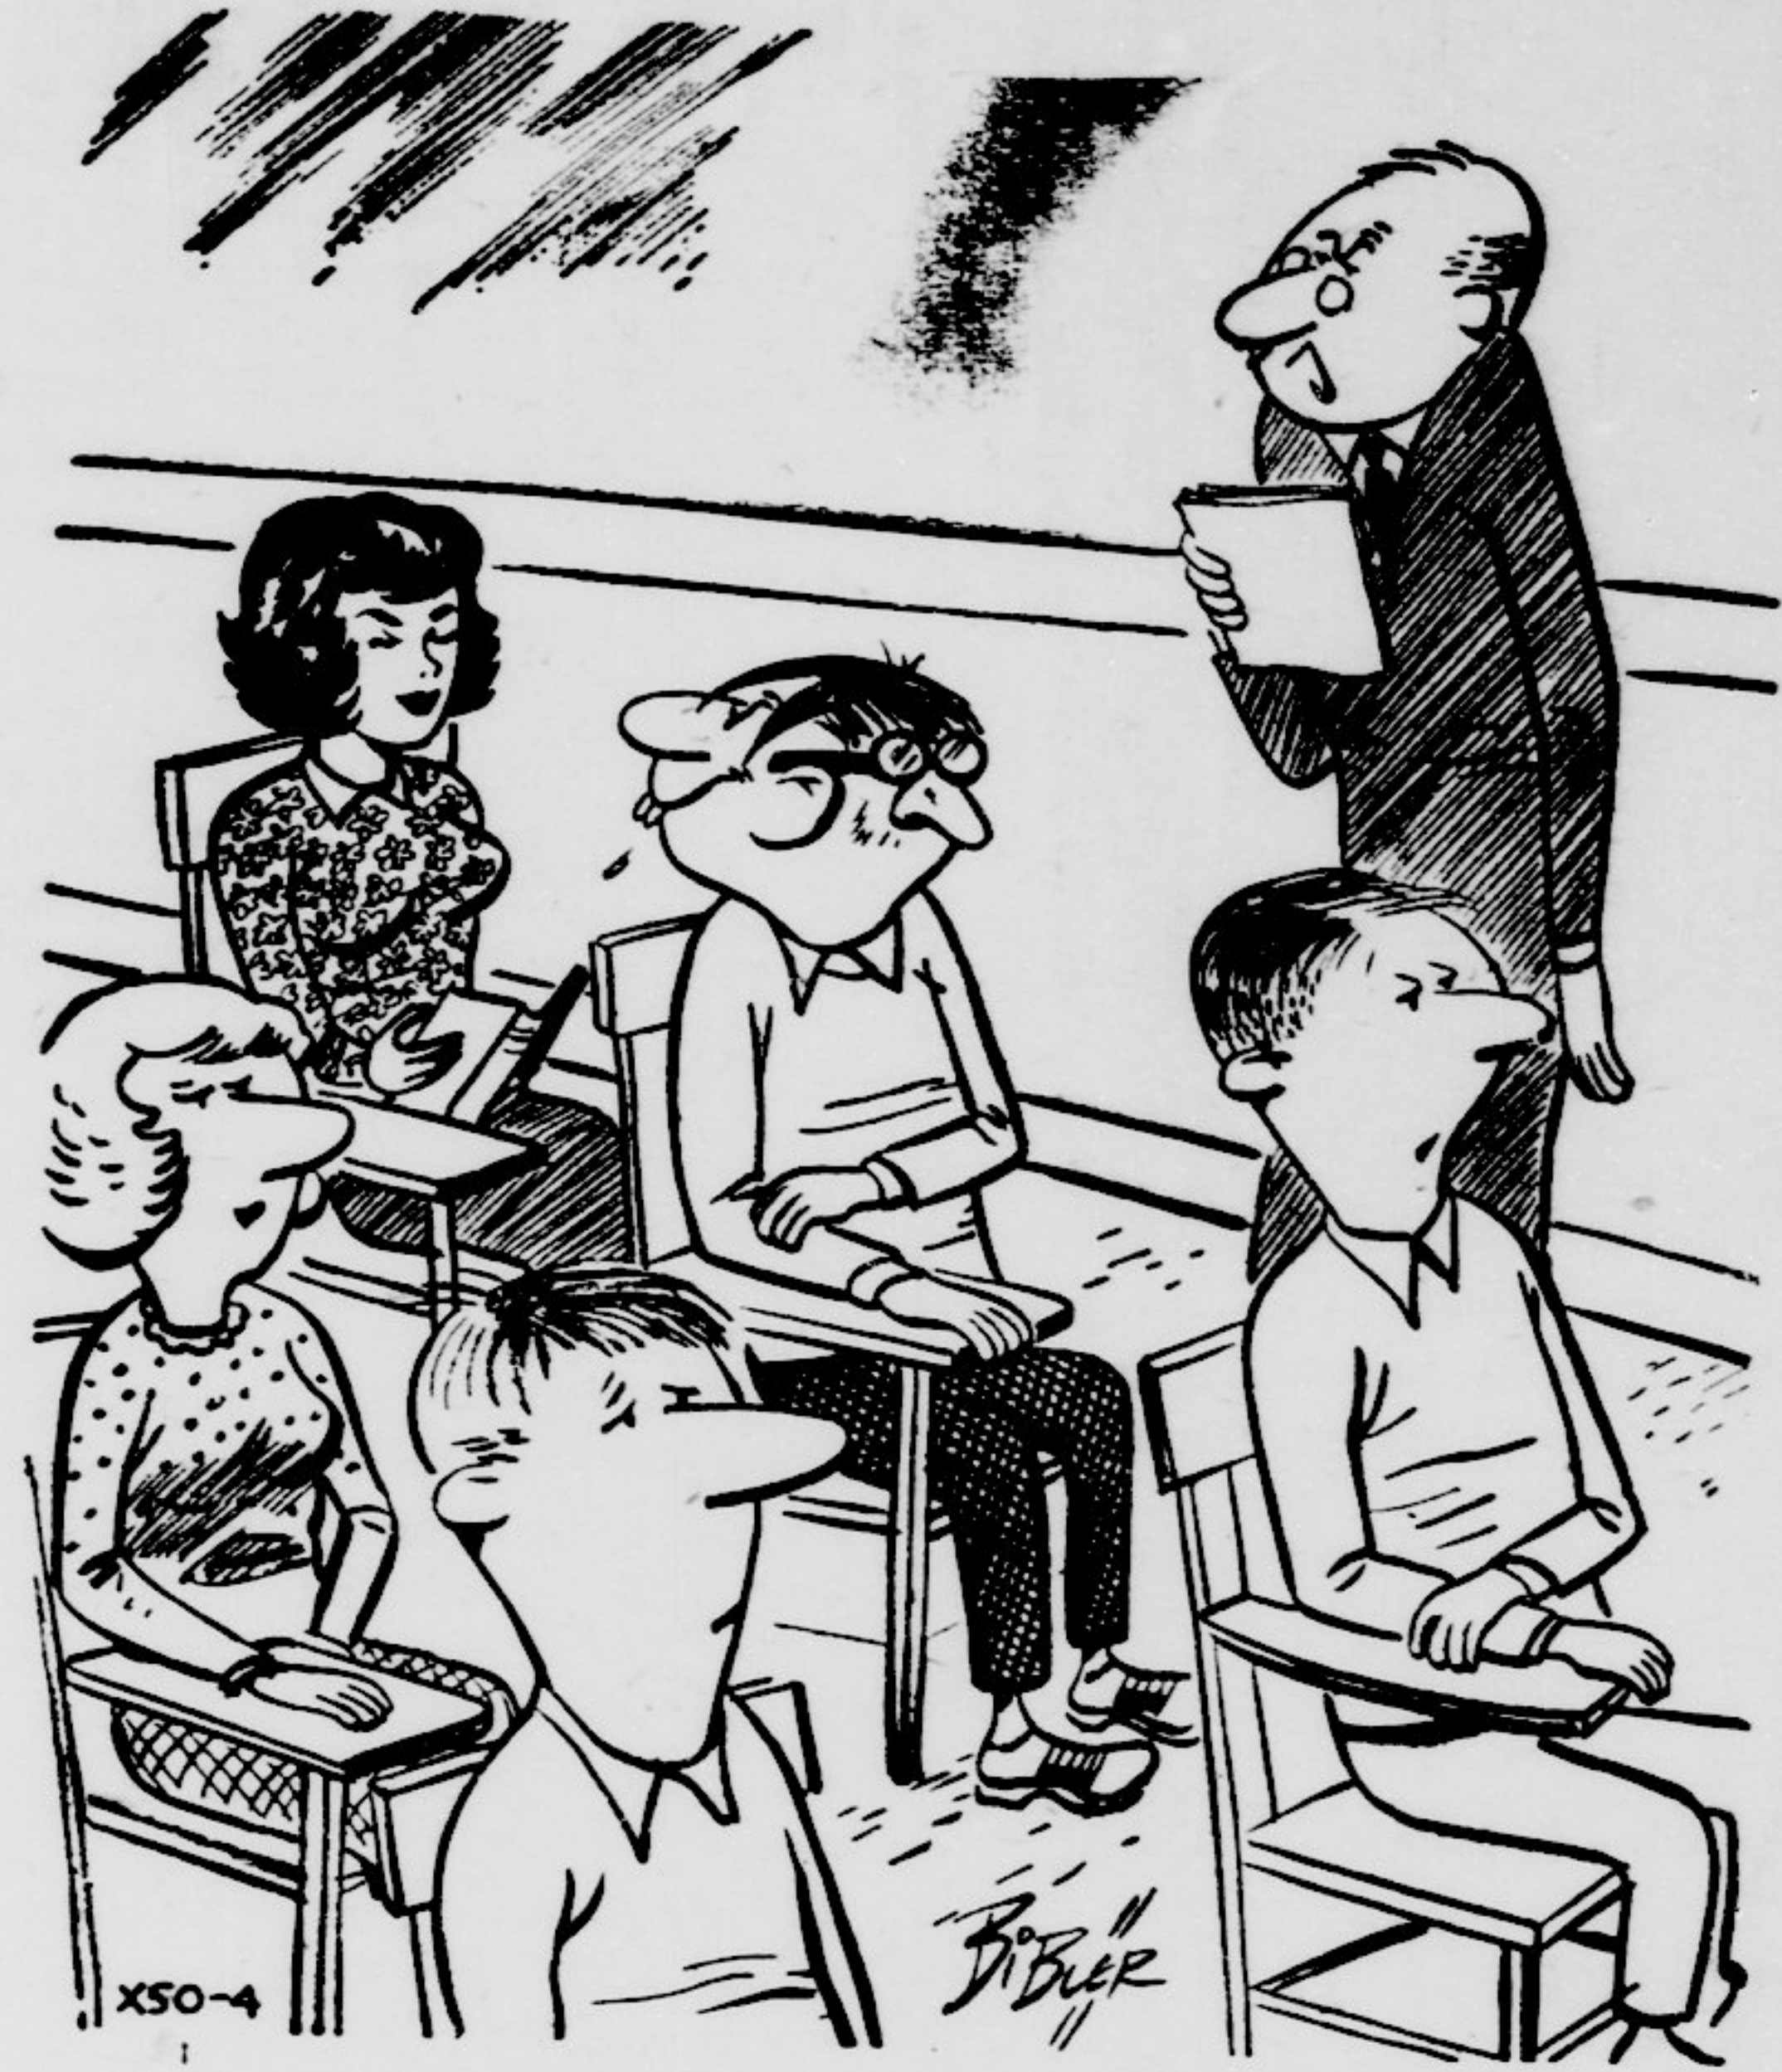

Those chosen for roles in the religious drama include Walter Noona, Norfolk, Va.; Clark White, Belvidere; Donald Roebuck and Charles Cherry, Stokes; Lloyd Whitfield, Kinston; Joan Edwards, Wilmington; Pete C. Williams, Dover; Ralph Rives, Enfield; Bobbie Caldwell, Wadeville; Larry Williams, Ocracoke; Catherine Costen, Hookerton; Elaine Elium, Salisbury; Garland Jackson, Mt. Olive; Janet Waters, Greenville; and Joseph F. Hodges, Washington.

Educational Institute Offers Grants For Study In France

Opportunities to spend a year in France open to American college students were announced today by the Institute of International Education. Approximately 80 grants in all are open for study or teaching in France next year.

Forty of the grants are for young Americans interested in teaching conversational English for one year in a French school. These "assistants d'anglais," in general, live at the lycées or écoles normales d'instituteurs to which they are assigned, teaching about twelve hours a week. Since these schools are located in all parts of France, and some assistants will be the only Americans in the community, the grants offer an unusual opportunity to get a close-up view of French life today. Given by the French government, the grants provide from 22,000 to 27,000 francs a month during the academic year. To be eligible for an assistantship, American applicants must be unmarried, have a good knowledge of French, and by this summer, have a bachelor's degree from an American college.

The French government also is offering approximately 35 fellowships to Americans for graduate study in France. The fellowships, open to students in all fields of study, provide tuition and 20,000 francs a month. Eligibility requirements are the same as for the assistantships.

Four special scholarships for the study of art and music in Paris are also offered the Institute by the Woolley foundation. Each scholarship provides a grant of $1,000, and carries the provision that the student will live at the Fondation des Etats-Unis of the Cite universitaire.

Greenville, North Carolina
Dear Mr. Self:

It has come to my attention that there was some question regarding the reception given the Lenoir Rhyne football squad during their recent visit to your campus.

I would like to state that we were most cordially welcomed and were treated in a very pleasant manner. The athletic director and the football coach met our bus upon our arrival, welcoming us to the campus. The proper arrangements were made for our visit and we were not disturbed or molested in any way. We were very pleased at the reception that we got at your school and are looking forward to visiting again. I believe the school is to be congratulated on the remarkable improvements of the situation that existed during our visit last winter in basketball. We hope to continue our pleasant relationships with East Carolina college and want you to know that we hold a high regard for your institution.

Sincerely yours,
Clarence Stasavich
