High School Day Features Home Ec Fashion Program

Girls To Be Models,
To Exhibit Projects
Made In Sewing Class

Events of High School day at East Carolina college, April 4, will include a fashion show sponsored by the department of home economics, in which students from various high schools in the state will model clothes made in their classes.

Dr. Bessie McNeil, director of the department of home economics at East Carolina college, has issued invitations to home economics departments in high schools in Eastern and Piedmont North Carolina to participate in the fashion show. According to plans, each school represented will choose a home economics student to appear in the show wearing a costume which she made in her high school class.

The fashion show will take place in the Austin auditorium at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon on High School day. Student members of the home economics club at the college will assist Dr. McNeil and other faculty members of the department in staging the event.

The home economics department at the college will hold open house during High School day. Dr. McNeil states: Visiting high school students on the campus for the day will be given an opportunity to see the classrooms, the food and clothing laboratories and the Nursery school, and to inspect other work carried on in the department.

Blazers For Girls On Sale By ACE In Reading Room

Blazers for girls are now on sale in the John Dewey Reading room in the Graham building and the Alumni office on the college campus under the guidance of the Association of Childhood Education.

The blazers are white trimmed in purple with the new college seal on the pocket. After seeing the blazers, students who wish to make a purchase must pay a deposit of about half the cost of one of the coats. The remainder of the cost will be paid when the order is received.

Hours that students may place orders for the jackets are from 10 a.m. until noon and from 1:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. For further information see Anne Dunn, chairman of the Blazers committee; Dr. Eva D. Williamson, advisor of the ACE; Dowdy Hardy, ACE president; or Janet Watson, resident in Ragsdale hall. The committee chairman stated, "This is the first time that blazers have been sold at East Carolina and we hope that the students respond to our project. Most colleges do sell these blazers."

Jenkins To Speak To Civic Groups During February

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, dean of instruction at East Carolina college, has accepted invitations to speak at meetings of a number of civic, educational and business groups in eastern North Carolina during February.

Dr. Jenkins will make an address at the annual banquet of the unit of the North Carolina Education association in Edenton Wednesday, February 6. He spoke at a meeting of the Ruritan club in Fountain on Thursday, February 7, and will talk before members of the Parent-Teacher association in Chocowinity Tuesday, February 12.

Dean Jenkins is scheduled as a speaker during a convention of Group One of the North Carolina Bankers association in Greenville and will appear on a program to be presented at the Sheppard Memorial library of the city Friday, February 22. The meeting will bring to Greenville approximately 250 bankers from localities in the First Congressional district of North Carolina.

On the occasion of Laymen's day at the Farmville Methodist church, Dean Jenkins will deliver the sermon Sunday, February 24.

Scholarship Fund Receives Boost By Faculty Group

To increase the scholarship fund sponsored by the Greenville Chapter of the American association of University Women with the purpose of providing study abroad for students at East Carolina college, the organization will present February 28 a group of college faculty members in the three-act comedy "The Silver Whistle" by Robert E. McEnroe.

Mrs. Walter S. Krausnick, AAUW president, has announced that work on the play has begun and that the performance will take place in the College Theatre. Mrs. Marguerite A. Perry of the East Carolina foreign languages department heads the committee planning the production. Under Mrs. Perry's leadership, casting of faculty members in nine parts for men and five for women is now in progress.

Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of dramatic arts in the English department at East Carolina, will direct "The Silver Whistle." As faculty advisor of the college dramatic club, the Teachers playhouse, she has been largely responsible during the past six years for a series of successful productions by the group. "The Silver Whistle" was first produced by the Theatre guild of New York, with José Ferrer in the leading role. Since its New York success, the comedy has been a favorite among Broadway theatres and other amateur groups.

Assembly Program Shows Navy Use For Visual Aids

How the Navy uses audio-visual aids in its program of instruction was discussed and demonstrated by Commander Robert A. Noe of the U.S. Navy at an assembly program at East Carolina college Monday morning of this week. President John D. Messick of the college introduced the speaker.

Approximately 600 faculty members and prospective teachers at the college attended the program and heard Commander Noe with evident interest and enjoyment. A large number of students and faculty members gathered on the stage of the Austin building after the lecture demonstration to examine an extensive collection of audio-visual materials and to receive further information on their use.

Commander Noe stated that the materials demonstrated were especially effective in the teaching of skills. Many of the devices shown, he said, were planned from the high school level of education downward to meet the needs of the men taught. Audio-visual aids, he explained, provide "fast and effective" methods of instruction and make work "easier for the teacher, easier for the student."

The materials demonstrated proved interesting to the audience of teachers and future teachers because of their applicability to instruction in various subjects in the lower grades and junior and senior high school.

Play Rehearsals For 'Good News' Now In Progress

Rehearsals for the musical comedy "Good News," to be presented at East Carolina college under the sponsorship of the Student Government association, began last week, according to an announcement by Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert of the department of music, director. Twelve committees of students and faculty members have been appointed by Dr. Cuthbert to work on the production.

The play, a humorous and tuneful picture of campus life, will be presented in three performances April 3 and 4 in the Wright auditorium on the campus. A special presentation Friday afternoon, April 4, will complement high school students of the state visiting East Carolina on the annual celebration of High School day.

Approximately seventy committee assignments have been made by Dr. Cuthbert among students and faculty members. These groups are already working on scenery, properties, costumes, lighting, sound effects, makeup, finances and other details of production.

Student chairmen of committees are Edwin Lanier, Chiniquapin, publicity; Dahlia Pendergraft, Portsmouth, Va., art; Patricia Vaughan, Tarboro, costumes; Martha Benton, Fayetteville, house arrangements; George MacFadyen, lighting and sound; Catherine Stephenson, Willow Springs, makeup; Charles Self, Greensboro, program; Carolyn Clapp, Greenville, properties; Robert Selby, Dudley, scenery; Joan Allen, Greenville, staging; and Thornton Staples, Richmond, Va., tickets and finance.

EC Library Acquires Published Music Works

The East Carolina college Library has recently acquired complete editions of the published works of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms, according to an announcement by Wendell W. Smiley, librarian. The books are now ready for use by students in the department of music and others.

The recent acquisitions in the field of music include 101 volumes of the Edwards Music Reprints. These are reproductions from the original German editions of the works of the composers. The books, Mr. Smiley states, are a valuable addition to the collection on music in the college library.

Student Profs Study Hyde County Schools

Three student teachers at East Carolina college spent last week in Hyde county studying problems of rural schools. Their work formed part of a Plan for Cooperative Learning now being carried on through the cooperation of Hyde county school officials and under the sponsorship of the East Carolina department of education and the staff of the campus Training school.

These students were the second group from the college to go to the school at Swan Quarter during the present school year as a liaison unit between East Carolina and the rural area eighty miles to the east. The work of these two units is considered an introduction to an expanded program at the college. Its favorable progress is being carefully followed by interested local and state school officials.

Students who made the study in Hyde county, chosen because of their ability as teachers and special personal attributes, were Margie Smith, Kinston, and Jeannette Tillett, Kitty Hawk, both student teachers in the second grade at the Training school, and Ola Edmundson Perry, Bethel, student teacher in the third grade of the Training school. During the fall quarter Maxine Robinson, Angier, and Rachel Davis, Fremont, made up the first unit to accept an invitation from Hyde county educators to visit the Swan Quarter school.

The purpose of the Plan for Cooperative Learning was to enable college students to learn about teaching methods in practice and to study the needs of rural schools. Their work is expected to bring to the college first-hand experience from which the teacher training program may benefit in its functional approach to rural instruction.

In turn, the student teachers from

Senior Members Speak At Meeting Of Circle K Club

Approximately 40 Circle K members heard four graduating members give five minute sketches of their college career at the regular meeting of the club Tuesday night at Respass Brothers barbecue stand. The club was guest of John Barnhill, Greenville Kiwanian.

The four seniors who leave the club at the end of this quarter are Don McKenzie, Ot Alford, Cecil Winslow and Bill Mulligan. The talks were with "commentary" from the other club attendants.

John Johnson, Bob Bass and Thornton Staples paid the club one nickel for each year that they are old, because the three members had had a birthday since the first of the year. A club policy, the money goes into the treasury. All Circle K members joined in the singing of "Happy Birthday" to the boys.

John Kennedy was appointed chairman of the committee to investigate the possibilities of sponsoring a faculty basketball game. Dr. John Reynolds, faculty advisor, also was named to look into the matter.

Jerry Sanford, club member, introduced Lloyd Whitfield as the guest of the night for the club.

Plans were made for the next meeting to be "Ladies Night." The group has not decided definitely where the next meeting will be, but suggestions were offered by various club members.

State X-Ray unit Here For Tuberculosis Tests

A state X-ray unit arrived on the campus of East Carolina college February 4 and spent the week making tests for tuberculosis, according to an announcement by Dean Leo W. Jenkins. All students attending the college took advantage of the services offered by the unit. Faculty and staff members also had the opportunity of having tests made. The schedule of appointments for students, for all of whom the tests are compulsory, was arranged by Dean Jenkins with the cooperation of faculty members at the college. Several hundred students were tested each day.

Prewitt Talks To BSU

Dr. Clinton Prewitt, dean of men at East Carolina, will speak on "Building an Adequate Personality" to students at the Baptist Student Center tonight at 6 p. m.

There will be a dutch supper previous to his talk and following it a forum will be held. The Union invites everyone to attend both the supper and the forum.

Annual, Paper Staffs Discuss Organization Of Publications Club

Members of the staffs of the "Tecoa" and TECO ECHO met Monday night at the home of President John D. Messick to discuss ways of creating more interest on the part of the students in working on the publications.

It was suggested by Miss Mary H. Greene, director of the East Carolina News Bureau, that a journalism club be formed. A committee composed of Miss Greene, Charles Shackelford, "Tecoa" editor, Roy Creech, "Tecoa" business manager, Tommie Lupton and Annie Lou Butts, editor and business manager, respectively, of the TECO ECHO, is to meet to draw up tentative plans for such a club to be organized this spring or next fall. After the business meeting refreshments were served and a social hour followed.

BSU Re-Elects

Jack Painter, of the BSU, was re-elected president of the council of the BSU at East Carolina college. He has some religious ideas and is a member of the Training school.

Finalists Represent College At Convention In Asheville In March

Names of students who were nominated by supervisors of critic teaching for the honor of being "Mr. and Miss Representative Student Teacher" of East Carolina were submitted on February 5 to the committee appointed by Dean Leo W. Jenkins to make the selections, and the preliminary evaluation resulted in narrowing the final nominations to six students for further consideration.

They were: primary majors, Mrs. Ola Edmundson Perry, Margie Smith and Jeannette Tillett; grammar grade majors, Maxine Robinson and Carl Willis; and secondary education, Philip Gorham, an industrial arts major.

Personal Interviews
These students will be asked to meet with the committee for personal interviews next Monday evening when the final selections are expected to be made by secret ballot. The man student and the woman student with the highest number of votes will be elected the representatives to attend the Convention of the North Carolina Education association in Asheville on March 28, and the ones with the second highest votes will be named as their alternates, respectively.

All the nominees were evaluated on "Suggested Evaluative Criteria" agreed upon by the teacher training institutes of North Carolina. The basic elements of these criteria are: (1) scholarship; (2) teaching competence; (3) the services rendered the college by the student.

SGA Cooperates
The Student Government association is cooperating with this effort to create greater interest in the teaching profession; and it was announced at the committee meeting held Tuesday evening that the Student budget has granted the request of the sponsoring organization, the local chapter of Future Teachers of America, for an appropriation to help meet the expenses of these college representatives of practice teaching here.

The committee to make the choice consists of the head of the Placement bureau, two faculty members from the departments in secondary education, and two from the fields of elementary education, and four students, two from SGA and one each from FTA and ACE.

Concert Climaxes High School Band Clinic On Campus

Colorfully dressed in the uniforms of 84 high school bands in North Carolina, 110 members of a concert band organized on the East Carolina college campus Monday night a program of music and aminating event of the day at the college Friday day of the Eastern Division All-State Band clinic.

The group of young men chosen to attend the clinic were their superior talent was directed by Dr. Davidson's class.

The Eastern Division State Band clinic at East Carolina college, directed by Dr. Davidson, is the largest of its kind in the state, with approximately 100 bands and 1,000 musicians.

A concert by the band will be given at 8 p.m. Monday night. The concert will be given at 8 p.m. Monday night. The concert will be given at 8 p.m. Monday night.

VERSE OF THE WEEK

Who ever knows what is right to do and fails to do it, for him it is sin. James 4-17.

Publications Board Meets

The Publications board met last week and a problem which is ever growing larger was brought up before the group. Why do the East Carolina publications, namely the "Tecoan" and TECO ECHO, have such a hard time in recruiting staff members? We felt that that was a good question, for we have been confronted with the problem for the entire year. In years of the past there has been little or no competition for positions on the two college publications, and the group that met could not understand just exactly why that is the case here.

We read where other colleges actually have tryouts for staff positions and only seniors are permitted to edit the publications. We have to go out and beg students to work on the paper and yearbook here, and when they consent we are not able to rely fully on them. Something is wrong somewhere. We are one of the very few schools where there are staff members who receive pay of any sort, but this does not tend to make competition any keener. There is something lacking somewhere along the way. Many students take journalism in high school and work on their yearbooks and papers, but when they come to college they just throw away all knowledge in that field.

There should be continued interest along through college. Is the reason that everyone thinks that college publications are too much work? It is sufficient amount of work for a few, which have, but with assistance from all enrolled who have had previous experience the tasks of college publications would be lightened. Students spend time on other extra-curricular activities here, and they seem not to mind it in the least.

A committee has been set up to talk over the possibilities of organizing a publication club on campus, which we think would help matters a great deal. The club would meet to work and have just like all other campus organizations. The reason of the lack of interest now is that everyone thinks that working on a publication is all work and no play.

And time again we have invited students in the staff of the TECO ECHO, but they have been few. To become a member of the staff, we do not expect you to do as much as the editor, but only ask of a small amount of time (only a couple of hours a week).

Present the news while it is news, before it falls down because of the lack of interest. We sincerely hope that the Publications Board will be able to stimulate the campus to have larger and better publications.

East Carolina college doing college credits should follow the correct procedure. There have been some students who have found out that they were not carrying credits for correspondence courses because they were not informed of the correct procedure.

Question: When you arrive at a tea, should you give your name to the person who is at the head of the receiving line?

Answer: It is well to do so unless you are quite certain that the person knows your name.

Question: When should you remove your gloves at a tea—on entering the room or just before being served?

Answer: A woman removes one or both of her gloves when she is served.

Question: Do you unfold your napkin at a tea all the way, halfway, or not at all?

Answer: The size of the napkin determines the answer; you will probably want to open it all the way.

Question: What is the correct length of a napkin to remain at a tea?

Answer: The length of time to stay at a tea is somewhat upon the occasion. Usually twenty minutes is about right.

Question: Should you be seated at a tea?

Answer: Yes, unless you are a guest of honor.

Ye Editor's

Say

by Tommie Lupton

The time is approaching once again when we try to tell everyone the proper way to get registered quickly on registration day: but believe us, if you take just a few simple preliminary steps the job will indeed be lessened. Drop by the Administration building within the next few days and obtain a permit from the registrar and pay your fees. Just five or ten minutes now will save a great deal of time, for when nearly 1800 students try to get permits and pay their fees on the same day those lines move very slowly. With proper preparatory steps accomplished one may register in less than fifteen minutes. We tried it last quarter, and it worked!

If you happen to see some English students standing in some secluded spot on the campus taking notes or eaves-dropping on a conversation in the Y-Store, just ignore them. They are not crazy, but they are just doing an assignment for Dr. Pingel's advanced writing course.

The finishing touches have been put on this year's "Tecoan," and the finished product has been sent to the printers. The staff members are in hopes that the yearbook will be back and ready for distribution by early May.

We feel that anyone who did not take the opportunity given to attend the assembly program of audio-visual aids used by the Navy Monday morning really missed a treat. The program was very educational, as well as entertaining. It is a shame that when students are allowed to miss classes to attend such a program that only about 600 show up. Where were the other 1200 students at this time?

The Pirates have another home basketball game tomorrow night, and we certainly hope that everyone will show better sportsmanship toward the visiting team than previously. The visiting squad of players are our guests, but in the past we have not been treating them as such. Let's everyone try to make them feel as if we are glad to have them on our campus.

Quotation of the week . . . (From the Teachers College Index, Missouri) . . . "A lecture is a process whereby notes of the instructor become the notes of the student with no change of knowledge."

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Janice Hardison

In the spring when the "Tecoan" puts in its appearance, there is one fellow at East Carolina who will be greatly relieved. Editor-in-Chief Charles Shackelford says, "It's more of a headache than I ever thought it would be."

When Shackelford was appointed editor-in-chief of the college yearbook, an enormous task was laid before him. He set to work, and in spite of the headaches truthfully says, "I have enjoyed it, though it has been time consuming." This is Shackelford's second year on the annual staff. He was assistant sports editor last year.

Transfers From Carolina

Charles has crowded a lot into his short stay at East Carolina. He came to the campus from the University at Chapel Hill in November, 1949, "because I was engaged," he admits. Incidentally, he married the little lady who brought him here last June. "It was the biggest mistake I ever made," is his comment. "You can say I laughed when I said that. My wife reads the paper," he adds.

Besides getting himself married, Shackelford has made quite a name in various activities. He belongs to the Circle K, Phi Sigma Pi and the Veterans club. He is president of the Young Democrats club, also. "We haven't been too active," he says, "but when this thing goes to press, 'but will blossom out.' By 'this thing' he means the "Tecoan."

When Shackelford transferred, he had been majoring in commerce. Once here he did a complete turn-about, and he is to receive a B.S.

Charlie Shackelford

in English and social studies in May. He is currently practice teaching in the Greenville high school, but he states that his teaching career will be over in about three weeks. There is nothing wrong with the profession, according to Shackelford. In fact he is enjoying his classes with the high school kids, but the salary isn't very attractive.

Likes Air Force Pay

When he graduates, Shackelford will go into the Air Force. "I can make more money there," he explains. He holds the rank of Cadet Major in AROTC here.

Active military duty will be nothing new to Shackelford. The High Point student went into the Navy after his graduation from the Allen J. high school in Guilford county. From September, 1944, until June, 1946, Charles saw action as a sailor in the Asiatic Pacific and on Okinawa.

Shackelford doesn't mind going into service again. "I can't stay put," he says of himself, adding that he sometimes feels like leaving everything at East Carolina behind for a spell. That doesn't mean he regrets that he transferred. On the contrary, he likes this campus even better than Carolina.

Makes "Who's Who"

Despite his roaming tendency, Charles has remained at East Carolina long enough to be recognized as one of its most outstanding students. This year he is among those at EC listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." He is also recognized as a Distinguished military student, an honor which qualified him to apply for a commission in the Air Force.

Shackelford has had a hand in several things which indicate that he is a versatile college man. From business manager of the TECO ECHO in the summer of 1950 through many activities to editor-in-chief of the "Tecoan" he has climbed. If you're not convinced that this guy is okay, we suggest that you pass your judgment in the spring when his "headache" appears. His time now is going toward putting the finishing touches on a masterpiece big enough for any Shackelford to tackle.

And speaking of Shackelfords, we won't be left without one when he's gone. It's his story, but he does have a brother here. This Shackelford story might not be ended yet. At any rate that's all for now.

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Barbara Grimes

Next week marks the beginning of the eleventh week of this quarter as we head into the home stretch. By this time next week we'll be stocking up with a supply of crackers and cokes to keep us awake in the wee hours of the nights before exams! Oh, what a perilous thought!

Forgetting about the rough road ahead, let's turn to something more pleasant. For instance, the Valentine dance tonight. Sponsored by the Commerce club and Pi Omega Pi, this semi-formal affair will open its doors at 8:30 p. m. Here's hoping that everyone will have a wonderful time.

It looked like "High School day" last Friday afternoon when 110 selected student members of 33 school bands in eastern North Carolina began arriving for the All-State Band clinic. Cotten hall housed the girls for the weekend and Slay and Wilson halls accommodated the boys. We hear that the concert given by the group Saturday evening was wonderful.

Quite a bit of complaint has been heard lately about the food in the dining hall. We realize that the food situation is quite a problem but the restaurants uptown are really mopping up on whatever trouble the local cafeteria might be having.

EC students had their pictures taken again this week, although the type of picture varied a little. This "picture" was a picture of the inside rather than the out. The X-ray mobile was kept quite busy the entire week.

On the air waves, "Our Best to You" has been having a great many requests from East Carolina in the past few weeks. Jimmy Catt really plays heavenly music on that program.

We hear that the faculty is planning to present a workshop play this year like they did last year. Many favorable comments have been heard about it.

The TECO ECHO and "Tecoan" staffs were entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Messick at their home last Monday night. We wish to express our deepest appreciation to them for a wonderful evening.

Well, folks, press time is drawing close so we'll terminate this "bull session" until next week. See ya later!

Counselors Cheer Homesick Freshmen Gals

by Janice Hardison

"The system certainly has been the means of keeping a number in school. Fewer have left because of homesickness or other difficulty than at anytime I can recall." These are the words of Miss Ruth White, dean of women at East Carolina.

You read them, especially the word homesickness, and you wonder what miraculous system she is talking about. You who are so well acquainted with homesickness have probably already cast your vote for it. Then she states further, "I definitely feel it was the work of the counselors."

The counselors? Now she is on a subject that freshmen know more about than anybody else. What do counselors have to do with homesickness? you say. There is only one in each dorm, and that can't help much. Right there freshmen in Cotten hall set you straight.

Not Spies, Just Students

The kind of counselors we mean are women students residing in the freshman dormitory. No, they don't get paid. They're not spies or disciplinary officers. They are a group of girls who have experienced the same difficulties as other freshmen who have to get adjusted.

The idea of having counselors or upper-classmen answer questions for new students was made very real last year when a student staff of twenty-six members began to prepare themselves for things to come.

Anticipating the arrival of several hundred bewildered freshmen, Miss White and her staff selected the group from well-adjusted students, with good scholastic and citizenship records, personality and cooperative spirit. During the spring term a training program was conducted to acquaint the counselors with their duties for the coming year. When the registrar and the girls' faculty advisors approved their appointments, they were ready to initiate a long-range program, something new in the history of East Carolina college.

Though little was said about this group of counselors, much was done. Weekly meetings were held, and lectures and discussions developed a group of authorities on counselor-student relationships, faculty-student relationships, the college handbook and even housekeeping problems and how to study.

Mail-Order Friendships

Shortly before the group went home for the summer, each of them received eight or ten addresses, those of their counselors who would be their charges when they returned in the fall. During the summer each counselor got acquainted with her "girls" through mail, informed them of their roommates would be, and start the ball rolling in general.

Then came the big day. The counselors arrived a few hours before the freshmen and organized themselves into a reception committee. Everybody was meeting her pen pals or her next door neighbor, and mail-order friendships became the real thing. Counselors answered hundreds of questions, hung curtains, lugged trunks to the third floor, loaned mothers-safety-pins and did a variety of little deeds during the busy day.

Each girl's counselor lives in opposite or adjoining rooms in Cotten hall, so visiting to discuss problems or to gossip is convenient. The first few weeks the upperclassmen kept their eyes and ears open for signs of homesickness. On several occasions they had to throw a little party or a jam session to dry tears. It didn't take long for most of the girls to learn that they were among friends. Those private meetings at ten-thirty were actually fun. They hashed out regulations and interpreted rules. Counselors passed on to counselees their knowledge of restrictions and privileges. It got so that freshmen could tell you exactly what rule they were breaking, the page and paragraph where it was printed, and even the number of demerits it would have meant if they had been caught. They knew; their counselors had tested them on the handbook.

It was an experiment, this student counseling program, truly. However, it's been so successful that it stands a great chance of becoming a permanent arrangement. Once the spring quarter gets here a new crew will be chosen to fill the shoes of the retiring counselors whose task will be finished in May. Yes, the system works, and next year somebody is going to face the same familiar problems for a different end of the barrel. Who will it be?

Scientific Magazines Publish Two Articles Written By Dr. Eaton

Dr. Theodore H. Eaton of the faculty of the East Carolina college science department has recently had two articles published in scientific journals. They are "Feeding Habits and Relationships of the Lower Chordates" in "Turtos News" and "Origin of Tetrapod Limbs" in "The American Midland Naturalist."

Dr. Eaton joined the East Carolina faculty in September 1950, after teaching experience in the University of California, George Washington university and other schools. Since that time, he has published a text for introductory courses in comparative anatomy, "Comparative Anatomy of the Vertebrates," which was issued from the press of Harper and Brothers of New York in June 1951.

TIMELY TOPICS

by Bob Hilldrup

While it is the policy of this column to criticize someone or something that we think needs criticism, we have no intention of getting nasty about it. We try to be firm in our opinions but as far as some purely controversial issue is concerned we respect an individual's right to his opinion. We hope you readers will see our side of the matter.

We're glad to hear it! In a recent issue of the Raleigh "News and Observer" Ty Cobb, the old Georgia Peach of major league baseball fame, spoke out on the subject of Negroes in professional athletics. Now Ty comes from Georgia, an area where to insinuate that Negroes and whites should be allowed to "mix" is a sure way to get 'et by the Ku Klux Klan.

Not only should this apply to professional athletics but to all other things as well. Don't get us wrong, we aren't going on the record as favoring the abolition of segregation and we are wholly against a certain president of the United States and a certain Civil Rights program telling the people of the south how to handle the affair of segregation.

This isn't the South of the reconstruction period, this is a modern South, a part of a nation founded on unity and sooner or later the barriers of color are going to be broken. It is with this point in mind that we feel that the educated college student of the South should be able to give the matter clear and unbiased thought.

A certain history teacher at East Carolina that has been telling jokes to his classes for nigh on 100 years recently came up with a pretty good one.

It seems that the ex-boss of the White House, one Eleanor Roosevelt, was at a ball game. A man seated near her had been indulging rather heavily in alcohol. He had not, however, managed to consume enough so that Mrs. Roosevelt's features did not strike horror to his very soul so he finally said, "Madam, yuse ish the ugliest woman I've ever seen."

Retorted Mrs. R., "And you, sir, are the drunkest man I have ever seen."

"Yesh," replied the drunk, "but tomorrow I'll be sober."

Concerning The Draft

Major General Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, last week issued a statement clarifying the draft law, complete with 1951 amendments, as it pertains to college students. Here, briefly, is how things stand:

There will be no more Postponements, only Deferments. That is, students who get called for induction will be deferred until the end of the academic year. But students in this situation are granted only one deferment—after that they must enter the service.

General Hershey says a student who gets his induction orders shouldn't get panicky. All he has to do is ask his dean to tell the local board that he (the student) is doing satisfactory work, and that this work began before he got his induction notice.

But remember: Enrollment, acceptance and registration don't count. The important thing is actual attendance at classes.

The classification described above is called 1-S. There is also a 2-S classification. This deferment may be renewed each year, thus permitting the student to finish college before "going in." A 1-S deferment, on the other hand, is a "one year" deal.

How does one get a 2-S deferment? Well, getting a score of 70 or better on the selective service college qualification test helps a lot. So does being in the upper portion of the class. Draft boards take both these points into account when passing out classifications.

General Hershey says students who meet one or both of these qualifications can appeal to their state appeal board, if they don't get a 2-S rating. Furthermore, 1-S deferments may be switched, in some cases, to a 2-S at the end of an academic year.

What about enlistments? The Army, Navy and Air Force have agreed not to accept any man for enlistment after he has been called for his pre-induction physical. Most students, says Hershey, completing their academic year in 1952 will have ample opportunity to join the service of their choice.

Breakdown In Moral Values

A student ring at Washington university has been breaking into campus buildings and offices with a master key to get examination data. All locks have now been changed.

Five students have been dismissed and the university is guarding its papers with renewed vigor. A student survey indicates that cheating is "fairly widespread" in all classes.

Declared Chancellor Arthur H. Compton: "Discussion in university circles throughout the country indicates that student insecurity over the draft and world conditions has led to a decline and breakdown in student behavior and has increased cheating."

Washington university was spotlighted a few weeks ago when it refused admission to a Negro girl. The university, said authorities, did not want to risk placing itself "outside the community." But WU's Student Life pointed out that St. Louis university has removed racial barriers without losing community prestige.

In an editorial on Washington university, The Nation commented, "A university that will not admit qualified students to all departments . . . is hardly in a position to lecture students on a 'breakdown' in moral values."

"As long as the university looks out Negroes, it has little reason to complain if a few students appropriate the master key which unlocks the answers to examination questions."

BY LLOYD WHITFIELD

Word comes out from Elon that the Carolinas National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball tournament will be held in Elon's spacious new gymnasium on February 25 and 26. The two day dribble derby will feature four of the top teams in the smaller North and South Carolina colleges with the winner going to Kansas City in March to represent the Carolinas in the national NAIB tourney.

The classic was held in Hickory last year, but attendance was so small and interest so low at the home of Lenoir Rhyne that the finals was moved over to E'lon. The championship game matched East Carolina against High Point and saw the Bucs lose out by a small margin. We are glad to see the event moved to Elon for it is more centrally located for the schools that will be participating in the tournament.

Take Care of New Gym

Over at the new gymnasium painting of the lines to mark off the three courts is taking place and the structure is taking shape. It is really a beautiful building that should make all East Carolina students proud, and we only hope that the student body will regard it highly and not destroy it by writing on the walls and what-have-you.

The backboards, roll-away bleachers and scoreboard have not been erected as yet, but the workers tell us that they are pushing the schedule in hopes of completing the building before the last home basketball game with The Citadel February 22. We are in doubt, however, because the college officials have not publicized the opening of the gym.

Saturday night is a big one within the North State conference with all the top powerhouses seeing action except Guilford. The results of tomorrow night's contest will probably shape the conference the way it will be at the end of the campaign or at least virtually decide the teams that will be eligible to participate in the NAIB.

Elon Here Tomorrow

Elon is at East Carolina for a contest that could knock the Christians off their high perch and put an end to their nine game winning streak. Lenoir Rhyne is at Catawba, High Point at Appalachian in another headline that could settle the first division pending the outcome of the locals' battle with Elon. Hapless Atlantic Christian takes on Western Carolina in search of their first win within the North State conference.

The surprise team of the conference, Elon, took a firmer grip on the loop's top position last Monday night as they edged the defending champions from High Point 68-61. The Panthers were pre-season favorites to walk off with honors again this season, but the unheralded Elon team seems to be the club to watch. They definitely are the hottest team in the league and are capable of finishing the season undefeated.

The Pirates improved their record on the road last week-end by taking three of four encounters on a western tour. On Thursday night they downed High Point for the second time this year and on Saturday night suffered their fourth reversal in the circuit by dropping a closely fought contest to Elon. However, Coach Porter's five did themselves proud Monday and Tuesday nights by walloping a smaller Western Carolina five, pushing their won-lost record in loop play to 7-4.

Heath Leads Pirate Substitutes

by Frazier Bruton

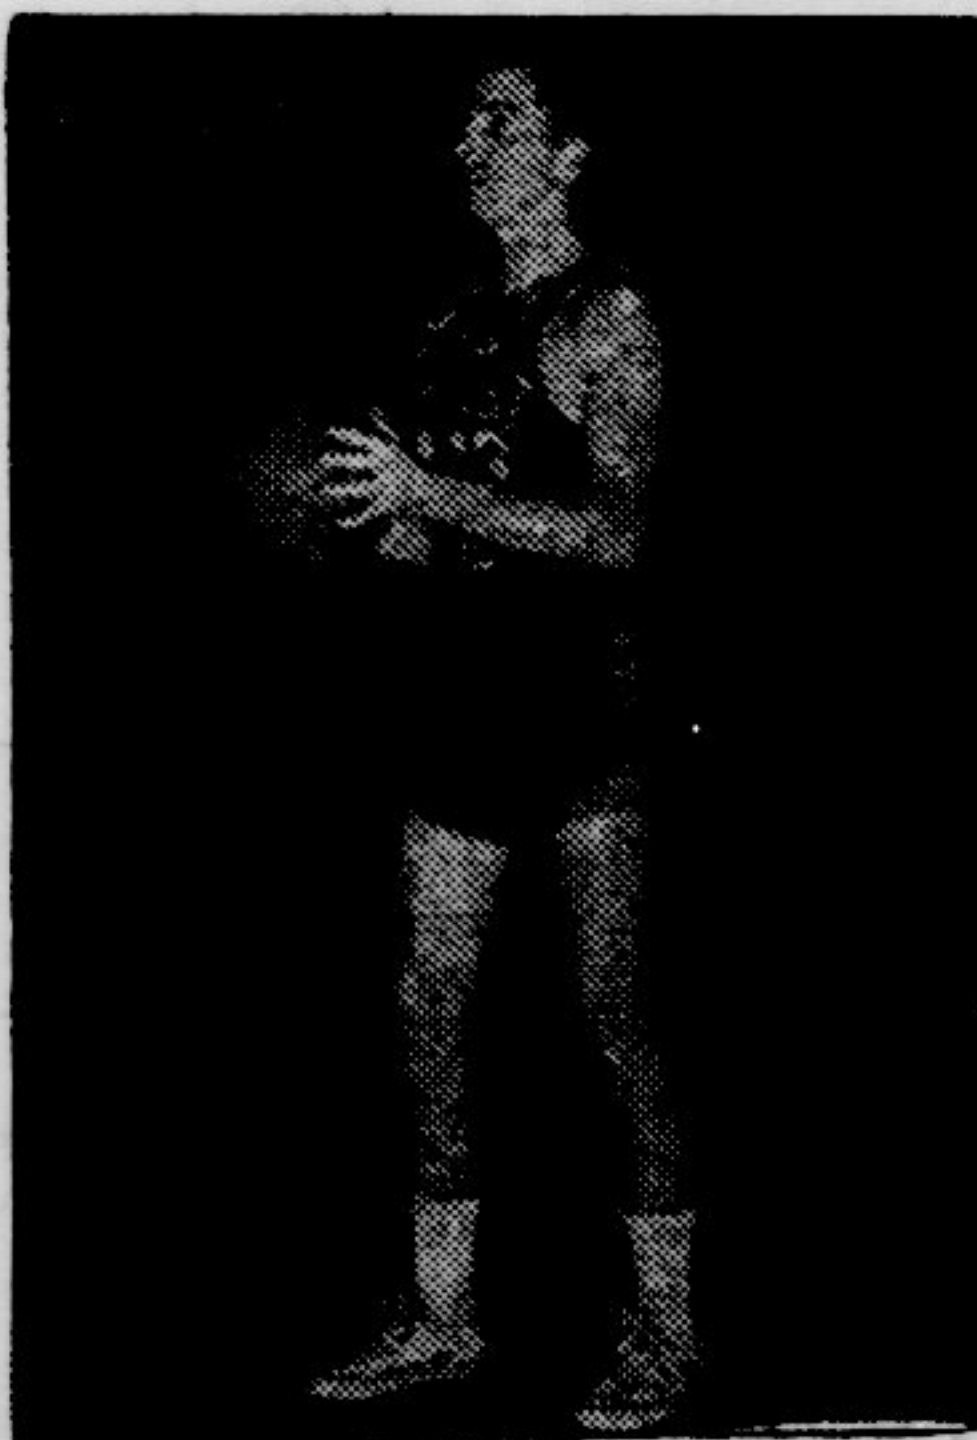

Cecil Heath, scrappy Buc guard, has come a long way in the realm of basketball and is one of the most promising cage prospects to ever set foot on the East Carolina campus. The blond, blue-eyed freshman, who hails from Wilmington, is an understudy of twice-captain "Toddy" Fennell, and when Fennell graduates Coach Porter will not have to worry because he will definitely have a capable replacement in the New Hanover lad.

Cecil is another cage star which New Hanover high school has put out. Coach Leon Brogden, an old hand at coaching, should get much credit for producing so many excellent athletes. East Carolina has its share of the Wilmington boys; included are Fennell, Collie and Heath. Standing only 5 feet 8 inches high, Cecil, in his many actions and floor work, resembles the same work as Fennell's. Heath can dribble with the best of them. When he has possession of the ball and is closely guarded by his man, Cecil has a stop-and-go pace, a valuable asset to be had by a guard.

When we say Heath is playing guard we are referring only to his bringing up the ball and working the ball outside the key hole which a guard usually does. But according to Coach Porter's AP system, when the ball is slowed down in the front court, Cecil, although he is playing out front and being the smallest man also, is the Buc's "towering" center. When Fennell is in the game he is the center.

When Heath graduated from New Hanover high school, he was selected as one of the All-Stars to participate in the East-West All-Star tilt. After considerable margin, Cecil received

Pirate Quint Twice Victors Over Catamount Basketeers

In two basketball games played Monday and Tuesday nights at Cullowhee the Pirates of East Carolina downed Western Carolina by scores of 87-76 and 78-53.

In Monday's contest "Sonny" Russell sparked the Pirates by virtue of a total of 25 points plus some outstanding defensive play. Superior backboard control turned the tide for the Bucs as the teams went all out in the rough and tumble battle. Big Bobby Hodges tossed in 19 points and controlled both backboards to come in for second scoring laurels for the victors. For the home club little All-America guard Ronald Rogers bagged a total of 23 points to pace the Catamounts' attack.

In the game played the following night the Pirates walked off with an even easier victory by a 78-53 margin. Bobby Hodges, superb in the previous evening's encounter, dropped in a total of 29 points and completely controlled the backboards to lead the Pirates.

Sonny Russell, stellar performer of the night before, suffered a bad evening as he was able to hit on only 15% of his shots. For the home club Ronald Rogers again paced the Catamounts as he sank a total of 22 points. In racking up the second consecutive win Coach Howard Porter used every man on the 12 player squad.

The Pirates of Coach Howard Porter started slowly as they were held scoreless for six minutes in the first period, and then found the going rough at the last as they were unable to score for three minutes. For the Bucs, it was one of the most miserable nights of the current campaign, as they could not get their range at the basket.

Sparked by Bobby Hodges and Sonny Russell with 21 and 17 points respectively, the locals led only once in the loop battle, early in the initial quarter. Hodge's 21 points enabled the sharpshooting cager from Kinston to maintain his 20 point per game scoring average.

Don Haithecox, a 6'7" giant center, led the Elon team as he pushed in 19 points and was a demon on the backboards as he sprang for rebound after rebound.

Baseball Schedule Released

Athletic Director Dr. N. M. Jorgenson released a 20-game schedule for Coach Jack Boone's East Carolina baseball team this spring with the opening contest at Cherry Point March 20.

The Pirates will meet only five North State ball clubs this year with the collegiate circuit operating on a two division basis for the initial time. The conference committee decided to split into two leagues with a playoff being held at the end of regular season play to determine the loop champion. In the eastern league with East Carolina, are Elon, High Point, Atlantic Christian and Guilford. Western Carolina, Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne and Catawba comprise the western circuit.

Conference competition will open for the Buc nine at High Point March 28 and will close May 9 when the current title holders, Elon, invade the local field. Each club in the five-team division will be met four times each.

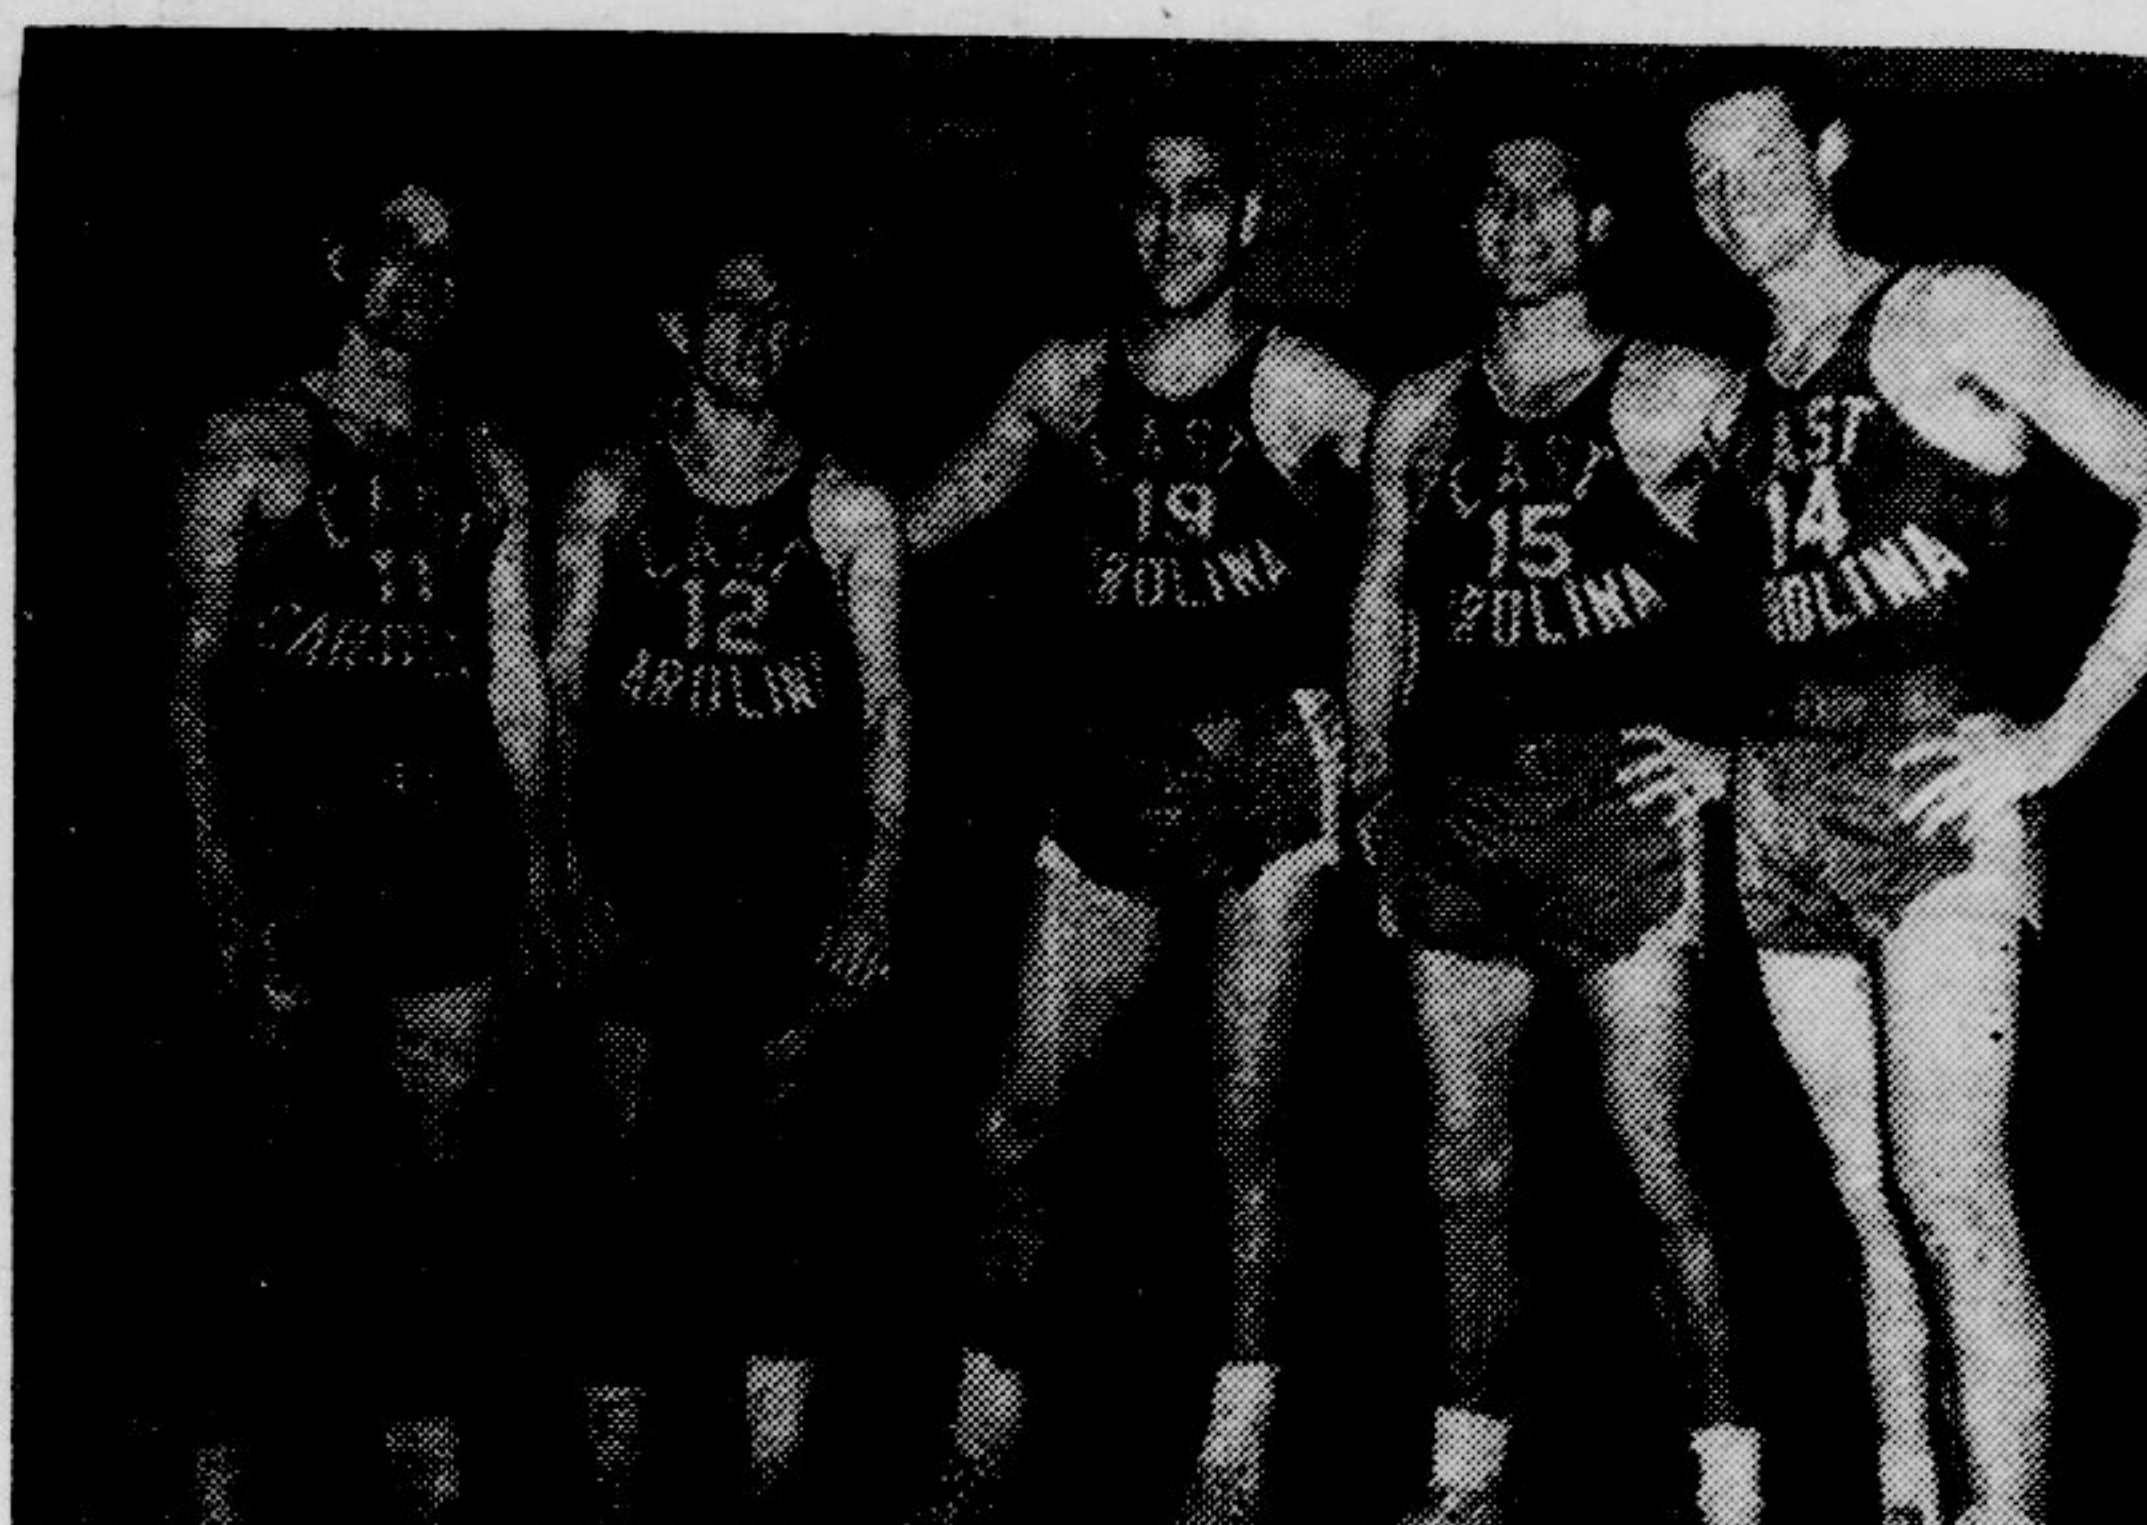

Continuing a custom of several years, the Pirates will take their usual journey into Virginia, during the spring holidays where they will meet the Norfolk Naval station and the Norfolk Air station. The touring Montclair State Teachers college of New Jersey will stop off in Greenville for two contests April 16 and 17.

Coach Boone will start practice later this month with almost all of last year's team reporting for action.

Probable Starting Squad

Home after a four game road trip, the East Carolina Pirates have a run in with Elon, the North State leaders, tomorrow night in Wright gymnasium at 8 o'clock. Probable Buc starters for the battle with the Christians will be (left to right) Lou Collie, Toddy Fennell, Bobby Hodges, Ritchie Blanke and Sonny Russell.

East Carolina Cagers Topple Panthers In NS Loop Battle

The East Carolina college Pirates unleashed their big scoring guns again last Thursday night and came out of their eighth North State conference game with win no. five—a 69-64 victory over the defending champion High Point Panthers. The game was played in the High Point gymnasium.

As is the usual custom, the bulk of the Pirate scoring effort fell squarely on the solid shoulders of Bobby Hodges and Sonny Russell. Russell led the two with 22 points in addition to a magnificent all-round game while Hodges was right behind with 21 points and a great job on the backboards.

Both Hodges and Russell started slowly but once they got warmed up to the scrap there was no stopping either of the two. Russell was simply incomparable in his style of play while Hodges teamed up with big John Postas to almost completely freeze High Point out of any rebound action.

Postas was a pleasant surprise in the game. He had not played at all in the two games immediately preceding this contest but he was sent off the bench to help Hodges under the boards. It was big John's most extensive action for a long time but he came through very well. In addition to his work under the boards, he also came through with a fourth quarter field goal at a critical time.

In the second quarter, Hodges and Russell began hitting and the Pirates easily swept into a lead which they never surrendered with three and a half minutes remaining in the half.

Porter's Squad Seeks To Gain Revenge Win Over League Leaders

Fresh from two dazzling victories over Western Carolina, the East Carolina Pirates will make an attempt to make it three in a row tomorrow night in Wright gymnasium when they challenge the league-leading Elon Christians in a crucial North State battle. Tip-off time is set for 8 o'clock.

Elon, winner over the defending champions of High Point 69-61 on Monday night, comes to Greenville with a record of eight wins and two losses. It will be seeking its second win of the current campaign over the locals, having shaved out a 59-54 win in the previous meeting last Saturday.

The Christians play a slow and deliberate style of ball and rely on their center and guard for the scoring punch. At center is a 6'7" giant, Don Haithecox, who led the offense against the Bucs last week with 27 points. His able assistance in furnishing the scoring punch for the title seeker and playmaker is Bill Kendall, a short little guard with a deadly accurate set shot from beyond the foul circle.

East Carolina, which bounced back from last Saturday's defeat by trouncing Western Carolina in a two-game series on Monday and Tuesday, will be seeking its eighth loop decision against four defeats. Coach Porter's Pirates also need a win to assure themselves of a berth in the top division. The current leaders from Elon will rank as a definite favorite in the rival clash due to the previous licking handed the Pirates and the torrid eight-game winning streak they possess.

Coach Porter will probably rely on the lineup of veterans that trounced the Catamounts earlier in the week, with Sonny Russell and Bobby Hodges at the forwards; Toddy Fennell at center; and Ritchie Blanke and Lou Collie at the guards.

Third Overseas Youth Caravan Being Set For Work In Europe

The third Overseas Youth caravan sponsored by the Board of Missions of the North Carolina conference of the Methodist church is now being set up for work with Methodist churches in Europe next summer.

The 1952 Caravan will consist of eleven young people, in addition to the counselor, and the group will work with established Methodist churches in Germany or other countries in the Geneva area, which includes parts of Europe and North Africa. They will do physical work where there is need for rebuilding of property, and will work with youth organizations to strengthen and foster Christian brotherhood relationships.

Application for membership in the Caravan may be made by college students or graduates and high school seniors, with February 1 as the deadline. Miss Susan Waller, Director of Christian Education at Queen street Methodist church in Kinston, is secretary-treasurer of the Caravan committee and will supply application blanks.

Each individual will be expected to meet his own expenses, approximately $850 plus spending money, which in the average case would make the total cost at around $1,000. Church or civic groups as well as family members have helped to sponsor members of previous caravans.

Further information may be had by writing to Miss Waller.

National Organization Accepts EC Orchestra

The East Carolina orchestra, made up of ECC students, faculty members and townspeople has recently been accepted as a member of the American Symphony Orchestra organization.

Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the ensemble, is a member of the executive committee of this organization of over 100 community orchestras in the United States.

Officers of the East Carolina orchestra are: Leonard Starling, president; Robert Craft, vice-president; Jean Shavender, secretary; and Patricia Vaughn, treasurer.

ALUMNI NEWS

DISTRICT MEETING IN CHARLOTTE MARCH 22

The South Piedmont District of the East Carolina college Alumni association will meet in Charlotte on Saturday, March 22. Announcement was made this week that Dr. J. K. Long, director of the Department of education, and James W. Butler, Alumni secretary, will represent East Carolina college at the meeting. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. Guy Bradford, Jr. (Betsy Hutchinson).

ALUMNI OFFICE VISITORS
Recent visitors in the Alumni office of East Carolina college include: Henry C. Oglesby, Alumni association President, Washington, D. C., who spent the week-end on February 1 in Grifton and Pitt county with "home folk" . . . Miss Mary Andrews Whichard, corresponding secretary of the Washington-District of Columbia Alumni chapter, who was visiting in Greenville during the week-end of February 1 (Mr. Oglesby is administrative assistant to Congressman Herbert Bonner of the first district of North Carolina and Miss Whichard is a secretary in Congressman Bonner's office).

West Edgecombe Group Of Future Homemakers Hears Holt Make Talk

Dr. Robert L. Holt, director of religious activities at East Carolina college, principal speaker at a mother-daughter banquet given by the Future Homemakers of America of the West Edgecombe school Thursday evening, January 31, discussed the achieving of better relationships between parents and children.

The banquet was attended by approximately a hundred members of the FHA, their mothers and their guests. Mrs. Evelyn Gay Glover, home economics teacher in the West Edgecombe school, was in charge of arrangements for the social event.

Mabel Lacy, faculty member of the home economics department at East Carolina, was a guest at the banquet and introduced Dr. Holt to his audience. Jean Ellis, president of the FHA organization at West Edgecombe, presided at the program given during the evening.

Playhouse Takes Popular Comedy To Kinston High

Student members of the Teachers playhouse took their production of the gay comedy "You Can't Take It With You" to Kinston last night for a performance in the Grainger high school.

The college players took their own scenery and lighting equipment to Kinston. Their appearance was sponsored by the senior class of the high school.

Written by the popular team of Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, the play was presented at the college in three performances December 12-14. Later this month two performances will be given at Camp Lejeune, one at the Naval Hospital and one at the camp theatre.

In Uniform

Johnny F. Quinn, a former member of the East Carolina college student body, joined the Air Force on August 30, 1951 and was sent to Lackland Air Force Base in Texas to receive his basic training. While there he was one of the squadron leaders and received honors as an expert shot.

After leaving Lackland he was sent to Camp Gordon, Georgia for eight weeks of training as an air police. He is now waiting orders to be transferred to another base here in the states.

As for Johnny's private life, he is engaged to Miss Glendora Lanier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack J. Lanier of Chiquappa, and he plans to be married sometime in the spring.

Entertainment Program Presents Duo-Pianists In Concert Last Night

The Entertainment committee of East Carolina college presented the talented young duo-pianists, Virginia Morley and Livingston Gearhart in a concert in the Wright auditorium last evening at 8 o'clock. The program was a "concert with commentary."

Informal explanatory remarks on each selection were made by Gearhart, with assistance from Miss Morley. Their comments added "a sparkle to their concerts," were "short, subtle and appropriately witty," and established a close relationship with the audience.

The repertoire of the pianists, stars on the Fred Waring radio and TV shows, includes selections ranging from the classic to the contemporary in music. The program at East Carolina presented the duo in a group of numbers showing both their artistry and their versatility.

Alumni Chapter Sponsors Games Tourney Tuesday

Annual games tournament of the Greenville-Pitt county chapter of the East Carolina college Alumni association will be held Tuesday, February 12, beginning at 8 o'clock, in the North Dining hall.

Reservations for the dessert games tournament may be made by writing or telephoning Mrs. E. T. Stafford, telephone 2559, or Mrs. Susie Webb, Alumni office at East Carolina college, telephone 3006. Participants in the tournament will be expected to provide their own cards and score pads.

Chapter projects will receive the funds from this benefit, announces Mrs. Lenwood Worthington, president, and Miss Grace Smith, tournament chairman. Other members of the tournament general committee are Miss Ruth White and Mrs. Dorothy Johnson.

Members of the tickets committee, which is being organized, include Mrs. Hubert Dixon, Farmville; Mrs. Louella Stancill, Pictious; Mrs. Graham Olive, Winterville; and Gene Hart, Bethel. Mrs. Catherine Walsh is chairman of the publicity committee.

Messick, DeShaw Visit Camp Crabtree; Guests At Luncheon Meeting

President John D. Messick of East Carolina college and Dr. Charles G. DeShaw of the college department of health and physical education were guests Wednesday at a luncheon meeting attended by State Parks officials and others at Camp Crabtree near Raleigh.

Emphasis was placed on outdoor education in discussions held during the meeting. As part of its summer school program last summer, East Carolina operated an outdoor education workshop at Camp Crabtree, the purposes of which included helping teachers to prepare for school camps, to make better use of the school environment in teaching, and to study the natural resources of the Crabtree Park area. Dr. DeShaw served as a director of the workshop.

You don't need to speculate in choosing her DIAMOND
ASK YOUR
Registered JEWELER

Her diamond is one of the most important purchases of your lifetime. It's no time to make mistakes . . . to take chances on quality. True, there is a big difference in diamonds and in the brilliance and beauty that can be yours when you buy one!

Your Registered Jeweler will gladly give you the information you want.

To be a Registered Jeweler means that he has passed examinations by the American Gem Society and is qualified by study, experience and high business principles to serve you. When you buy Diamonds or other jewelry, look to your Registered Jeweler.
