High School Graduates Going To College Should See East Carolina First

'Good News' Cast Goes Over Lines

Going over lines of the musical comedy "Good News" are members of the cast, as Dr. Elizabeth Uterback lends her assistance in the directing of the Student Government sponsored play. Performances of the comedy were given last night and at noon today, and the final presentation comes off tonight at 8 o'clock in Wright auditorium. The production is one of the largest ever attempted on the campus and was made possible only through the cooperation of the 200 students and faculty members working on the comedy, according to Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, head of the music department and director of the musical.

Former Student Leaves For Study In Foreign Land

Carl G. Conner of Windsor, graduate of East Carolina college last year and now a student in the School of Journalism of the University of Minnesota, has been selected as one of a group of students from colleges and universities in Minnesota to study abroad during the summer months. He will spend most of a ten-week period investigating industrial conditions in Israel.

Conner was formerly editor of the TECO ECHO and is the author of a number of feature articles which have appeared in leading North Carolina newspapers. Recently he was chosen as a member of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity.

Through a series of tests and interviews, Conner was awarded a scholarship for foreign study offered by SPAN, Student Project for Amity among Nations. In this project a total of 53 students from Minnesota schools will benefit this summer by travel and study in various countries.

Conner will sail June 10; will visit briefly France, Switzerland, Italy and Greece; and then go to Israel. After a tour of the country, he will spend his time in Haifa and Tel Aviv studying industrial conditions. His work abroad will carry credit toward the doctor's degree at the University of Minnesota.

Several Thousand Seniors Here For High School Day Activities

'Tom Sawyer' Being Staged

Lloyd Whitfield, playing the lead part of "Tom Sawyer" in the Teachers playhouse production of the play "Tom Sawyer," is shown in one of the scenes during rehearsal talking to Peggy Barrow, who plays the part of Becky Thatcher. Two performances have already been given by the East Carolina cast, and four more are on schedule for next week.

Varied Program Gives Students Inside View Of College Work, Play

High School day at East Carolina college today offered a varied program of entertainment and educational activities to public school seniors who visited the campus for the annual event. Invitations were sent to approximately 500 schools of the state, and acceptances indicated an attendance of several thousand students.

About 190 schools and 50 counties were represented. As chairman of the High School day committee, Dr. E. J. Carter, director of the Bureau of Field Services, worked with a large group of East Carolina students and staff members in preparing a full schedule of activities for the honor guests of the day. The program was planned so as to give the high school seniors a glimpse of work and play on the campus and to acquaint them with the purposes and ideals of the college.

Tour Begins Day

The day's events began at 9:00 this morning with a tour of the campus arranged by the Student Government association. Members of county clubs at the college volunteered their services in welcoming visitors and conducting them on the tour.

A series of special exhibitions were arranged by departments of instruction and were on display both to entertain guests and to inform them of types of work being done at the college.

Of special interest among these was a fashion show sponsored by the home economics department and having as participants approximately 50 high school students who modeled clothes which they had made. Science exhibitions entered by high school students of the state in a contest sponsored by the East Carolina science club were also on display. Exhibits by industrial arts students of the state were shown in the college industrial arts department.

AFROTC Unit Marches

The East Carolina AFROTC unit gave a drill on the campus driveways at 10:00 a.m. The college band and the ROTC drum and bugle corps participated in the parade.

President John D. Messick of East Carolina welcomed visitors in a program in the Wright auditorium after the parade. The college band, the college choir and the men's varsity glee club rendered a program of music.

Other events included a baseball game between East Carolina and Elon, a barbecue luncheon, a dance and presentations of a play by the Teachers playhouse and of the musical comedy "Good News" under the sponsorship of the Student Government association.

Goldsboro Minister Speaks At Campus Easter Service

Easter services will be held on the campus of East Carolina Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Austin auditorium. The final in a series of religious services sponsored by the Inter-religious council will have as its speaker the Rev. James M. McClesney of the first Presbyterian church in Goldsboro.

The Rev. Mr. McClesney is a graduate of King college in Tennessee, and has done graduate study at Princeton university and the Union Theological seminary in Richmond, Va. His current pastorate in Goldsboro was begun about eight years ago following a pastorate in Oxford, North Carolina, where he was minister of the Presbyterian church.

Under his ministry in North Carolina the Rev. Mr. McClesney was director of student religious activities on the campus of the University of Alabama. He has been president of the Wayne Recreation council, the Wayne County Ministerial association and has been elected director of the Goldsboro Rotary club. He is serving as a member of the five-man commission of the Goldsboro Public Housing authority.

In addition to his busy schedule as pastor and civic leader, he is active in the affairs of the Alabama Presbytery and the North Carolina Synod of the Presbyterian church. His religious service includes an active ministry among the youth of his community and in his church organizations. He has done research in church problems and the current religious scene.

Teacher Education Topic Of Meeting Of Future Profs

"Improvement in Teacher Education in North Carolina through curriculum, both general and professional, cadet teaching, critic teaching and public relations" was the topic of the monthly meeting of the Robert H. Wright chapter of Future Teachers of America held Monday, March 24, at 6:30 in Austin 103.

Mary Jo Johnson led the discussion which served as a basis for students attending the State FTA meeting in Asheville yesterday and today.

Those attending the convention from East Carolina are: Carl Willis, Margie Smith, Mary Jo Johnson, Joan Kelley, Sibyle Davis, Jean Bradshaw and Miss Emma Hooper, local advisor.

Following the discussion officers for the coming year were installed. They are: president, Mary Jo Johnson; vice president, Ruth Bobbitt; secretary, Pauline Blalock; treasurer, Annie Ruth Savage; TECO ECHO reporter, Joan Kelly; Tecocoan reporter, Anne Spain; librarian, Naomi Bobbitt; and historian, Jean Bynum.

Seniors Of 1953 Pick Klutz New President In Election Last Week

John Robert Klutz of Dudley was chosen to head the graduating class of 1953 at East Carolina college in an election held on the campus last week. He is a member of Phi Sigma Pi, national honorary fraternity for men in education, and of the Circle K club, student branch of Kiwanis International, and has taken an active part in various other student organizations at the college.

Also chosen by next year's seniors at East Carolina to work with Klutz as leaders in various class activities are Janet Tyson, Stantonsburg, vice president; Peggy Grace, Calypso, secretary; Everett Whitley, Kenly, treasurer; Christine Blalock, Timberlake, representative on the Student Government association; and Janice Hardison, Jamesville, reporter on student publications.

Windsor Student Dies In Dormitory Monday Afternoon

Gerald Ray Castellow of Windsor, sophomore at East Carolina college, died suddenly Monday in his room in Wilson hall, campus dormitory.

Gerald had attended a ball game on the campus during the afternoon with his twin brother, Earl Grey Castellow, also a student at the college. About four o'clock Gerald left the field to get a soft drink, and did not return for the rest of the game.

When Earl Castellow returned to his room in Wilson hall, he found his brother lying face down on the bed, and tried to arouse him. He saw immediately that medical help was needed, and Dr. Fred Irons, college physician, was called.

Gerald Castellow had suffered for some time, according to his brother, from epilepsy, and had had an attack about three weeks ago. It is thought that he died of suffocation during an attack.

Music Club Appoints Craft For 52-53 Head

Robert Craft of Beulaville has been elected president of the Music Education club to serve during the school year of 1952-53.

Craft, chosen at the last meeting of the club, will serve with Walter Noona, Norfolk, Va., vice-president; Delores Matthews, Henderson, secretary; Robert Williams, Greenville, treasurer; Laura Pope, Coats, Tecocoan reporter; Ruth Little, Winterville, TECO ECHO reporter; and Carolyn Eisele, Statesville, social chairman.

Regional Festival Of Dramatic Clubs At ACC Next Year

Plans for the Eastern Regional Play festival, an annual event for school, community and other dramatic organizations in eastern North Carolina, are already in progress for 1953. The festival, which has been held at East Carolina college for the past several years, will be staged at Atlantic Christian college next spring, according to a recent announcement by the planning committee of the organization.

Mrs. Doris C. Holsworth of the Atlantic Christian faculty will serve as chairman for the 1953 meeting. She replaces Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of dramatic arts in the department of English at East Carolina. Douglas W. Swink of Wilson, Coon school and director of the Wilson Little theatre, will be secretary during 1953.

Others besides Mrs. Holsworth and Mr. Swink who will serve on the planning committee for the event will be: Dr. Charles, Annie Laurie A. Kew of the Greenville Little Theatre guild, Mamie Chandler of the Wesley players, Mrs. J. H. Rose of the Rose School of Speech, Ward James and Mrs. Howard Mims of Greenville high school, all of Greenville; Jack Howard of the Oak City high school; Mrs. Mildred Kramer of the Rocky Mount high school; Lewton Smith of the Washington Little Theatre guild; and Geraldine Weathers of the Bell Arthur school.

Summer Session At East Carolina Schedules Workshops, Conferences, Clinics, Exhibits

East Carolina college has announced for the summer session of 1952 a series of 24 workshops, conferences, clinics and exhibits, planned largely for the benefit of teachers and administrators in public school work.

Fifteen of these special events are scheduled for the first term of the summer school, June 2-July 9, and nine for the second term, July 10-August 15.

A Camp Counselors course to be held May 19-30 at Crabtree Creek State park under the direction of Dr. Charles G. DeShaw of the health and physical education department, will initiate the summer series at the college. The course, offered last summer for the first time, is aimed principally at preparing camp counselors for their work and includes instruction in and practical application of various phases of camp organization and activity.

McNiell Directs Workshop

A Textile and Home Furnishings workshop, July 14-25, now being organized for the first time at the college, will be based on a tour of textile and furniture manufacturing plants and other centers of interest to homemakers and teachers. The workshop will be directed by Dr. Bessie McNiell, director, and Lilah Gaut, faculty member, of the home economics department. Ten days of the workshop will be spent in visiting textile mills and furniture factories in North Carolina and Virginia. The tour will include also the Jugtown Pottery, the Penland School of Handicrafts and other centers. Students will travel by chartered bus. A speech clinic conducted by Mrs. Dorothy W. Perkins, director of special education in the department of education, will be held during the first term. A clinic in Special Education for Handicapped Children, June 2-July 9, will stress the teaching of slow-learning children and will include individual instruction of a handicapped child by each student registered for work in the clinic.

Schedule Listed

Conferences and workshops scheduled for the first summer term include: Health Education, June 3-13; Legal Aspects of Public School Administration, June 11; Synchronizing

Audio-Visual Aids with Laboratory Experiences in Science, June 12; Teaching of Bookkeeping in North Carolina high schools, June 20; Science in the Elementary school, June 24; Understanding Our Children, June 25; Improvement of Reading in the Public schools, June 26; Alcoholism in Health Education, June 26; Music Education in the Public school, June 30; Red Cross Life Saving Instructors course, June 30; Visual Aids in Art Education, July 1; Special Education, July 3; and Public School Administration, July 7.

The second summer term will include among special events an exhibit, July 8, on Industrial Arts in the Public school, and the following workshops and conferences:

Water Safety Instructors course, date to be announced; Resource-Use Education, July 10-August 15; Geography in the Public schools, July 31; Art in the Grammar grades, August 5; Teaching Aids in the Public schools, August 13; and School Lunchroom Operation and Management Problems, August 4-8.

UNC Chancellor Delivers Talk On Literature As Man's Hobby

"Literature is every man's hobby," Chancellor Robert B. House of the University of North Carolina told an audience at East Carolina college Tuesday, March 25, as he spoke on a program presented as part of the Community Arts festival held in Greenville last week.

Dr. House's lecture on "Literature as a Hobby" focused attention on the enrichment of daily living that is available to all men through books. President John D. Messick of East Carolina presided at the meeting and welcomed the audience to the campus. Dr. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville introduced Dr. House.

"A hobby," the University Chancellor said, "is a resource." It is something, he stated, that one works on without realizing that he is working—something that one intensely enjoys doing because he loves to do it. He deplored the type of education that neglects to teach men how to use their leisure hours pleasantly and that leaves them bored and barren of interests when the time for rest and relaxation arrives.

"The whole philosophy of a hobby," he said, "is that one invests his time in something that he loves enough to return to it again and again."

"Read for fun," he told his audience, and added, "Don't think it is your duty to read." As to leisure time for reading, "If you love a thing enough," he said, "you will find time for it."

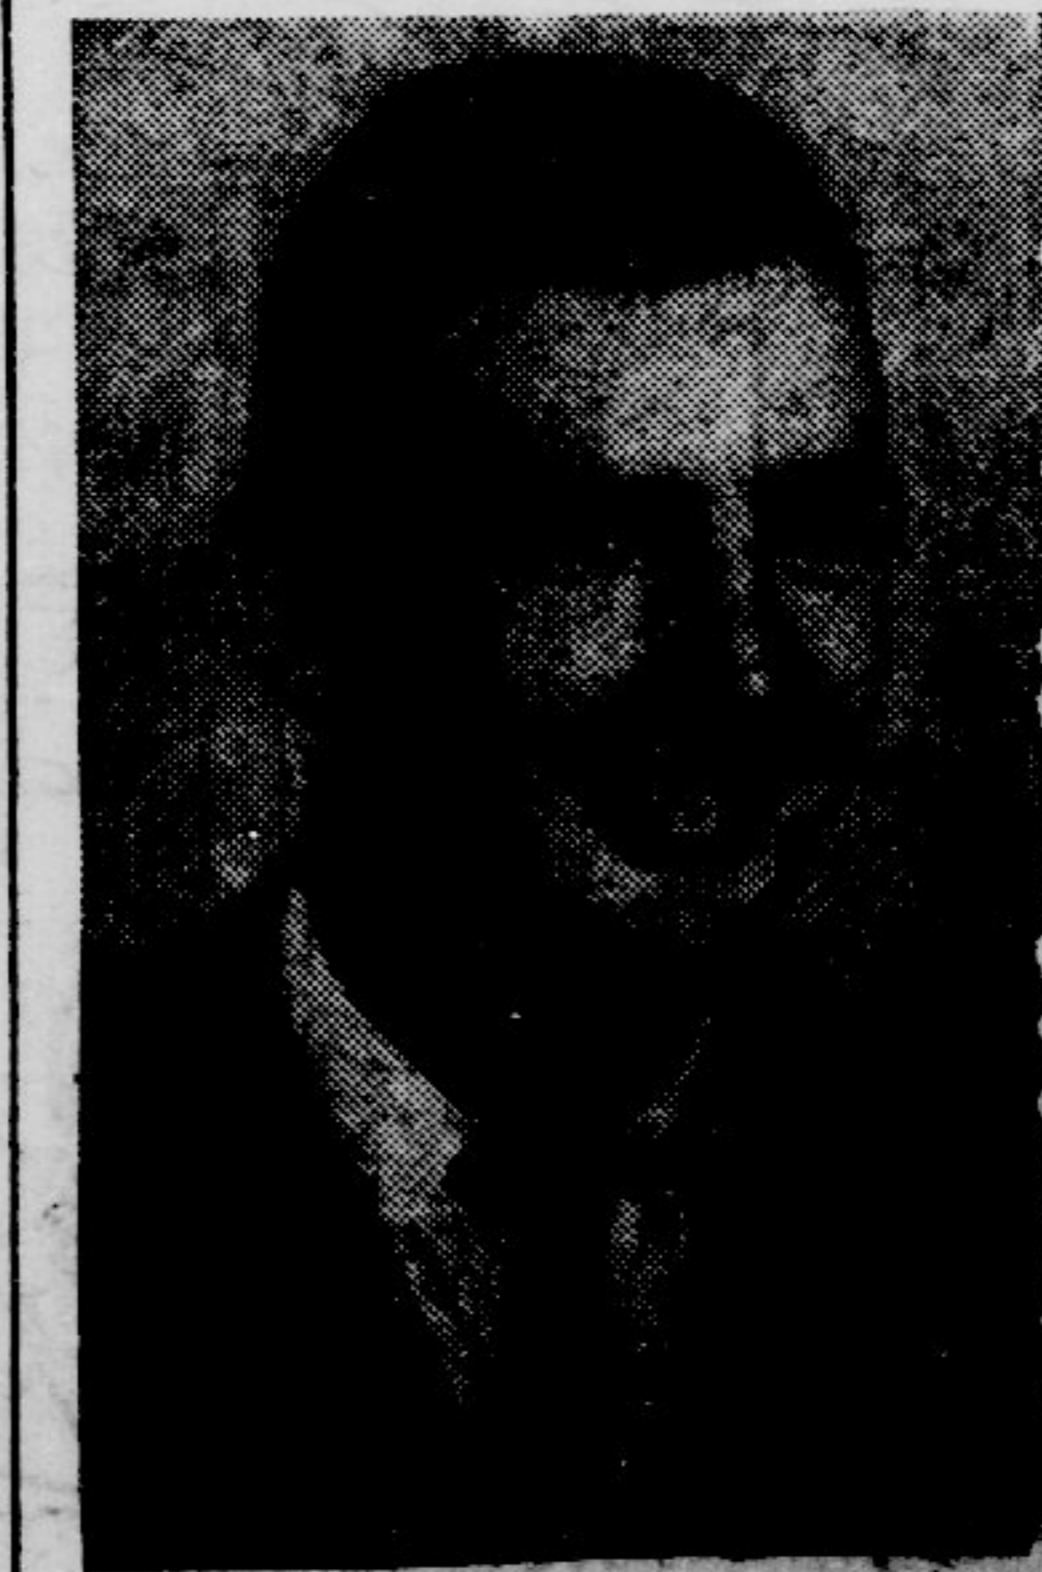

Dr. House then described some of the books that he has enjoyed, exhibiting his varied interests and his catholic taste. The Bible, the Oxford Book of English Verse and a blank book in which to write his own thoughts, he said, were his choice of books to take with him when he entered the army during World War I. Informally he told of authors who had pleased him or exerted a great influence over his life, ranging from Tolstoy to Wedehouse, from Milton to Robert Frost.

Students Listen To Germans Talk On Russian Zone

Conditions in Germany, with emphasis on the situation behind the Iron Curtain, were discussed at East Carolina college last Friday afternoon, March 28, by two high school students from West Germany who are now visiting in this country.

Wolfgang Bernhardt and Wolfgang von Kaltenborn spoke before a group of approximately six hundred East Carolina students gathered in the Austin auditorium. Their personal reports of the hardships and oppression experienced by Germans living in the Russian zone were received with marked interest by the audience of college students here.

Moneybags!

Jack Renny, newly elected SGA treasurer, announces the Budget office hours for the Spring semester as follows: Monday and Wednesday, 8:30 a. m.; Tuesday and Thursday, 8:30 a. m.; and Friday, 8:30 a. m. to 3:40 p. m.

Circle K Club Names Harrington President

Al Harrington, sophomore at Burlington, was elected president of the Circle K club at a meeting Tuesday night this week.

Selected to serve with him during 1952-53 were: vice president, Charles Taylor; secretary, Charles Taylor; treasurer, Charles Taylor; and historian, Charles Taylor.

VERSE OF THE WEEK

Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.—II Cor. 3:17

Inaugural Address

Fellow Students:

To name all of those to whom I owe my thanks for aid in obtaining this position as President of your student body would take much more time than is available to us tonight. Let me combine my thanks and tell you all collectively how much I appreciate what you have done individually. My only hope and desire is that in no way will I betray the trust that you as students of East Carolina have placed in me, and I assure you that all my actions and energies will be directed toward one inevitable goal—that being a larger, better and more well known East Carolina college.

Let us briefly survey the future to find what you as students and representatives want done and the way in which these desires may be accomplished. The main topic of discussion here has been a definite lack of participation in extra-classroom activities which are offered to students. To my mind this has been brought on by several things, two of the most important being: (1) failure of clubs and the administration to supply the needed incentives; and (2) an attitude of indifference on the part of the students themselves.

As director of this Student Government organization I intend to see that each club and organization represented therein does its part in supplying the incentive which has been lacking. Further, I will urge to the fullest the aid of the administration of our school in doing its part in this same way. . . . I feel we can accept some responsibility in exchange for some controls, and by gaining these controls students will be more inclined toward participation.

As to the attitude of indifference—if enough incentive is given the students I have faith that each one will be aroused to a new desire to be numbered among those who really "do things" on our campus. To accomplish this, I charge each member of the association with the responsibility of supplying information to the organization which represents in order to keep each group well informed on the proceedings which we will carry on at our legislature meetings. I suggest that a representative be present at each club meeting for a special report from the SGA representative and if any questions about actions which have been taken are pending be sure that they are answered and you have a consensus of the club to bring back to the legislature. Each one of you as an individual should be made aware of your wishes and let your wishes be known to the administration for the accomplishment of these wishes. This responsibility which will be placed on you, will be the attitude of responsibility from our presence and take the necessary steps to create desirable conditions which will be maintained on this campus.

Therefore, let us all in the direction of our common goals. Through this common effort we can share the responsibility of fulfilling our aims and our hopes to alone. We must have student participation in our own government.

Ye Editor's Say

by Tommie Lupton

Sure was good to see all of those high school seniors on campus today. It will be even better to see them back at East Carolina next year when the new freshmen will be enrolling. The program for the annual High School day was really full, and we rest certain that there were no students visiting our campus who were unable to find something to do to keep themselves busy.

Riding over the campus we saw that work has begun on the new addition to Ragsdale hall. We like to see the new structures going up over our campus, for as long as we can see the contractors marking off the foundations for new buildings we will be able to keep saying that East Carolina is indeed a growing college!

These nice, sunny, spring days students are seen venturing down to the tennis courts for a little sunshine and exercise (while we journalists sit cooped up and pecking away at our typewriters). It must be much nicer at the courts with the new courts that have been fixed this year.

This is just a passing thought, but wouldn't it be nice if the bookstore would get in some new college decals or stickers? The ones in stock are old, and some of them still have the "Teachers" in the college name.

Murder has been committed by the Teachers playhouse! The motive—the production of the play "Tom Sawyer." The victim—a cat. Whodunnit?

Some of our readers might be interested in knowing the latest mailing figures of the TECO ECHO. There were 1063 copies of last week's edition mailed from the college. That number includes alumni, advertisers, servicemen and others.

We heard talk going about that the Azalea festival in Wilmington last weekend attracted nearly half the student body at East Carolina. The consensus of opinion was that the annual event was a most colorful affair with all the bands, floats and celebrities.

Taken from the Kansas State Collegian:

I think that I shall never see A grade more lovely than a "B." A "B" whose marks will be me rate. The points I need to graduate. I need a "B"—this is no jest. This is my mind's sweet flowing best. So that by summer I may wear A cap and gown, a cultured air. Poems are made by fools they say, But surely none can make an "A."

EC Music Department Presents Radio Shows

For sometime now the Music Department of East Carolina has sponsored a program at one o'clock each Sunday afternoon over radio station WGTM in Wilson. Different organizations and individual performers have appeared at this time.

The following groups and individuals will be heard April 6 and 13: Woman's chorus, Varsity Glee club, George Perry and Miss Gladys Reichard.

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Janice Hardison

When Dorothy Bradshaw came to college, she had not decided what her reasons were. She knew that English was her easiest subject, and that fact was about all she had to go on. How things have changed!

"Like everybody else, I used to think that teaching was the last thing in the world I would ever do," Dot says. She isn't quite sure to this day how she decided, but she plans to become a teacher. Explaining that coming to college revealed the "inside" of the teaching profession, Dorothy says it presented a challenge that makes her anxious to get out and try it.

An English major, Dot will get her first chance to try her hand at teaching next fall when she does her practice teaching. After she receives her B. S. she isn't sure whether she will return to work on her master's degree or go to work at once.

More Than Studies
Miss Bradshaw has not devoted all of her time to her studies since she came to East Carolina college from Elizabeth City high school. A minor in French, she is a member of Sigma Pi Alpha, a foreign language fraternity, of which she is vice president. She also held office in the same organization last year while serving as secretary of the Canterbury club,

Dorothy Bradshaw

Episcopal student organization. This group re-elected her also and she is their treasurer this year.

Of all her extra-curricular activities Dot likes her work with the college band best. For five years she was flute player with the famed Elizabeth City high school band, so she naturally joined the ECC band as a freshman. "I used to play the piano too," she says, "but I didn't have time for both, and flute finally won out." The friendly blue-eyed senior loves dramatics, though she has taken no active part in that area since she graduated from high school. She enjoys athletics, especially swimming and tennis, which in itself indicates which is her favorite season of the year.

Serves As Marshall
Miss Bradshaw, complete with brown curls and a warm smile, has been a college marshal this year. She loves the college and her studies. So you want proof for that last phrase: All right! She is a French minor almost solely because she enjoys learning the language.

Dot says her reasons for coming to East Carolina are about the same as anybody else's. She wants to be fairly close to home, a number of her friends were coming here, and she didn't care to go to a larger school. We're still wondering, even with those reasons, why she chose a teachers college when it was "the last thing in the world" for her. At any rate, lots of high school kids are lucky, for Dorothy Bradshaw's whole heart and soul go into anything she decides to do. She's got what it takes to make a grand teacher—perseverance, personality and plenty of know-how. What a teacher!

Registrar Phillips Is Friend To Every Student

For the past two school terms students at East Carolina have been beating a path to a certain door in the campus administration building for information they can obtain nowhere else on the campus. On that door is a sign which reads "Dr. Phillips' Office is closed each day from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m." Incidentally that door with its black crayon sign is rarely closed.

When college people see the first two words, they walk right in unless somebody else got there first. Dr. Orval Phillips is just the man they want to see, and they have known for some time now that he is ready and willing to help smooth the many wrinkles in their crumpled college curriculum.

Dealing With Math
Two years ago when Dr. Phillips was head of the department of mathematics at Mississippi Southern in Hattiesburg, he was offered a position on the East Carolina staff.

When he was told what kind of work he might be doing, he flatly replied, "Nope," but changed his mind when he learned that he would be dealing with statistics not too far removed from his field of mathematics.

Today Dr. Phillips has decided that his work here is just the job he was looking for all along. "I enjoy it," he says very sincerely, and many students are glad he does.

Dr. Phillips spends a great part of his time preparing check-sheets for students who need to see if they are meeting college and state requirements. He'll gladly check anybody's record, and once students reach the end of their junior year, he automatically has them "looked up." That way they have a whole year to avoid troublesome schedule mix-ups and the like.

College students manage to conceal their fears in mid-quarter, or perhaps a number of them are lost in the rush. At any rate Dr. Phillips says that he has a greater number of callers about three weeks before the end of each quarter and for the same period after the beginning of each new quarter. One day shortly before the close of the winter quarter, he saw sixty-one students during the day. For several days he was in his ever popular office by 7:45 each morning, and it was nothing uncommon to find coeds perched on the steps waiting for his office to open for business.

Shows Genuine Interest
Dr. Phillips takes a genuine interest in those who go in and out of his office day by day. "I want them to feel that this is their office," he says, as if most of them hadn't already taken that for granted.

This energetic East Carolina Registrar has made himself as much at home in North Carolina as Texas will allow. He hasn't been to Texas, his home state, since he first came to North Carolina two years ago. "People here are as friendly as they are in Texas," laughs Dr. Phillips. "If I like it any better, they might take my citizenship away." He was born some seventy miles from Dallas and attended East Texas State Teachers college. Phillips did post-graduate work at Annapolis, Md., and spent 53 months in the Navy, serving as a weather officer in the South Pacific. "I did a lot of flying, but I'd rather do this," he says. He also studied at Louisiana State university and received his Ph.D. from Teachers' college, Columbia university.

Dr. Phillips has met a number of interesting "pro-blems" since he came to us, but he still says "We've got a fine bunch here." There's something about the easy manner of this thoughtful Texan that has EC students really hoping that Orval L. Phillips is here to stay.

Opinions Stated In ACP Poll

(ACP) Estes Kefauver is gaining favor as a Presidential candidate among college students, while Earl Warren's popularity has gone down.

This was indicated by results of the latest Associated Collegiate Press Poll of Student opinion. Students were shown a list of ten candidates and asked to pick their first choice for President. The answers reveal that Dwight Eisenhower is an overwhelming favorite and has actually gained in strength during the past three months.

Here are the complete results:
Eisenhower — 42 per cent
Taft — 15 per cent
Kefauver — 12 per cent
Warren — 12 per cent
Stassen — 8 per cent
Truman — 7 per cent
Fred Vinson — 2 per cent
Walter Reuther — 1 per cent
Hubert Humphrey — .5 per cent
Howard Ryan — .5 per cent

Howard Ryan, former managing editor of the Minnesota Daily, has no Presidential ambitions. Thrown into the poll more or less as a "ringer," he polled 7 less votes than Humphrey and at one small college got four out of 50 votes.

Here's a rundown of key candidates' positions currently as compared to results of a similar poll taken in December.

Eisenhower—A six per cent gain.
Taft—A five per cent gain.
Kefauver—An eight per cent gain.
Warren—A five per cent loss.
Stassen—A two per cent loss.
Truman—No change.

Eisenhower is the favorite at 19 of every 20 colleges. He is weakest in the Midwest, where Taft and Stassen are and has his best support in the South and East.

At the University of Connecticut he has polled 57 per cent of the vote. At the University of Texas he rolled up 53 per cent. But at Valparaiso university, Indiana, his vote is 23 per cent, a number equal to Stassen's. Taft leads there with 32 per cent.

Courtesy For Collegiates

One last word on this quality called "charm"—with a reminder that it's not a possession of the feminine sex exclusively.

As already noted, some of its characteristics are good carriage, poise and grace of figure, a cultivated voice, cleanliness, good health, etc. Other characteristics not yet mentioned are cheerfulness, graciousness, interest, sympathy and tact. These, you may note, are called "characteristics," not "definition" of "charm," and rightly so, though some in this latter group are rather fundamental.

As with etiquette—its essence being kindness, its expression, social usage—so with charm in that these outward things are expressions of an inner quality—peace, security, vitality, well-being. The charming person has a genuine interest in and concern for others, but basic to this is his own self-respect, which is reflected in his respect for others.

Understanding of the feelings of others, sensitivity to beauty in all its forms, and knowledge and skill in expression of these appreciations—these constitute "charm."

TIMELY TOPICS

by Bob Hilldrup

It seems that every time we turn around the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is screaming its head off about something new. This week their main pain is again the University of North Carolina and the alleged treatment of Negro students there. As usual they are threatening suit if charges of "discrimination" are proved. The NAACP claims that the University is trying to prevent the said students from graduating by purposely giving them poor grades. The five students, two of whom led their classes at North Carolina college, admitted they have done poorly in law school, but would not name the reason. Said the law school dean: "They've been treated like any other student in grading and scholastic performance."

Dabble, dabble, dabble; that's all some folks can do.

It's a busy week if there ever was one. "Tom Sawyer" and "Good News" have been going full blast plus the fine entertainment presented by the Utah Centennial chorus. With all this it's a wonder if anyone managed to get a bit of work done.

This writer has turned sports columnist for this week and one of the things that was on his mind hasn't left yet: that being the conduct of the Atlantic Christian ball players at Monday's game. While we like to see a hard fought game as well as the next fellow, we feel that bitter squabbling is inclined to take from the game, not add to it. A team without spirit is a team that is not likely to be successful, but then a team composed of players that are inclined to lose their heads won't do very well either.

AT THE HEART OF IMPROVEMENT

On the record, as cited by President J. D. Messick in a letter to the editor of the Daily News, East Carolina college is doing a good job in the field of teacher training and ought to be helped to do an even better.

North Carolina now needs several thousand elementary teachers and this need will be greatly increased as the schools hit their peak enrollment several years hence. Patently until there are more teachers sub-standard teachers cannot be eliminated and the present teacher load cannot be further reduced.

But our colleges and universities, with special emphasis on teacher-training institutions, have been turning out high school rather than elementary teachers. As a result there is an actual surplus of the former and a growing shortage of the latter. Hence it is good indeed to know that East Carolina college, through guidance, proper emphasis and increased realization of its responsibility, has reversed the trend. The college's enrollment of students in the elementary teaching field has jumped from 47 in 1947 to 490 this year. While the state's need is not being filled, the trend and the shift of interest and emphasis are what count. Dr. Messick says that what is holding ECC back is lack of facilities, that the college has had no additional dormitory space for girls since 1927 and that last year it had paid reservations from 487 students who could not be supplied rooms on the campus. An institution which is apparently doing the job assigned to it as well as ECC is doing should indeed have adequate facilities with which to work and to meet its increased opportunities and responsibilities.

In the field of specialized education, where there is a woeful shortage of trained personnel and handicapped children suffering accordingly, ECC is making progress and doing all that its limited funds and facilities will permit. Dr. Messick points to its summer school courses and then stresses that "we haven't been able to get enough teachers to do this work for us in the winter." Specialized education is only beginning to get some attention in North Carolina, but very little progress can be expected until more teachers are trained in this neglected field. The editorial statement which prompted Dr. Messick's letter stands: Some summer school courses are being offered in specialized education but no such courses are to be found in the regular winter term curricula of any of North Carolina's colleges or universities.

Institutions which are seeking to meet their responsibilities in teacher training areas where shortages are most acute should be given every encouragement and funds which will enable them to do what they are supposed and, in ECC's case at least, would like to do.

At the very heart of public school improvement, as affecting both general and specialized education, lies provision of an adequate supply of properly trained teachers.

is strewn with many pitfalls and distractions that would deter us from our goal and only through much perseverance and great diligence will we reach those heights to which we have turned our eyes. It behooves each one of us to pause in our mad haste forward and consider just what contributions we as individuals have made to our college; what contributions we could make and what contributions we intend to make in the future. If we do honestly and adhere to any resolutions which are made as a result of this analysis, I feel certain that there can be only one direction in which our alma mater can travel, and that is forward.

In campaigning for this office I expressed a faith in your ability as a student body. I maintain that faith and know that we as a team will have one of the most successful years in the history of East Carolina college.

BY LLOYD WHITFIELD

by Bob Hilldrup

The versatility of our sports editor, Lloyd Whitfield, has finally caught up with him. Due to complications arising from the presentation of the play "Tom Sawyer," he is unable to present his column this week. The opinions, therefore, expressed here are not necessarily those of our regular columnist.

While browsing through the crop of newspapers received here from other schools, an article in the Appalachian, campus publication of Appalachian State Teachers college at Boone, caught our attention. This article concerned the possibility of wrestling being dropped by that school as an inter-collegiate sport.

Team Wins Too Much

According to our source of information, the reason for the discontinuation of wrestling was the difficulty encountered in finding teams that would engage the Apps' championship squad. What it all boils down to is this: over the past years the men from Boone have compiled such a record that the vast majority of schools have decided that the risk is not worth the possible gain and refuse to schedule them. Many schools are forced to drop a sport because they have had consistent losing seasons, but this is the first time that we've ever heard of a school having to quit because they've become too good.

The most valuable asset that wrestling at Appalachian has had is the publicity one. A small school needs every possible publicity angle and a championship athletic squad is one of the best.

Bucs Had Good Boxers

Although East Carolina has never turned out an athletic team with a record such as that of the Apps' mat men, we were well on our way at one time. Before boxing was, for some unexplained reason, done away with here, the Pirates had gained a large amount of respect from many larger colleges and universities. The national renown that wrestling brought to ASTC could easily have been brought to East Carolina had boxing been continued.

Here's hoping, for the good of both schools, that wrestling at Appalachian will be continued and that boxing at East Carolina will be restored.

Along the spring sports trail: As Ray Anthony would say, "At last!" It took three complete ball games and part of a fourth, but the Pirates finally managed to get a few base knocks when needed. Keep up the good work.

From the looks of things at the ball game Monday the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs could easily have been grooming as proteges of the Brooklyn Dodgers. In a typical hubbub a la Flatbush the AC players waved their arms, tore their hair and did their best to make fools of themselves in dispute of a game-ending decision.

Elon Edges Local Nine, 2-1

Two veteran ball clubs got the North State conference baseball schedule underway last Saturday as the defending champions for the past three years, Elon college, managed to push across two runs on four hits and defeat East Carolina 2-1 at Elon.

For Coach Jack Boone's Pirates it was a fateful day as once again the batsmen failed to give Jimmy Byrd the support needed at the plate. The Christians were out-hit 7-4, but East Carolina could manage to score only one run, with Byrd leading the way at the plate and tallying the only run.

The Bucs reached home plate first in the third frame when Byrd rapped out a double and scored on a single by Fred Soles. The sophomore hurler, an All-stater in high school, banged out two hits in three trips to the plate.

Pirate Nine Mauls Bulldogs In North State Battle, 10-5

Piner Hurls Win Over High Point In League Opener

Behind the seven-hit pitching of Jim Piner, the East Carolina baseballers won their first game of the season last Friday when they beat High Point college 5-2 at High Point in a North State Conference game. The Pirates took an early lead by scoring three unearned runs in the first inning. This lead proved to be enough for Piner as he held the Panthers to seven scattered hits, two of which were doubles. The Bucs added two more insurance runs in the fifth. High Point scored its first run in the third inning and closed out the scoring by tallying another in the seventh.

Gaither Cline led the East Carolina attack with two hits in four trips to the plate. Other Pirates getting hits were Webb, Soles, Sanderson and Heath, each with one safety. For the losing Panthers, Dull and Collette collected two hits each. The Pirates left only two men on base during the entire game while the Panthers left four men stranded. Score by innings:

Pirate Tennis Squad Suffers First Defeat To NC State Club

North Carolina State's powerful tennis squad ruined the outlook for a bright net club here last Monday afternoon as they blanked the East Carolina Pirates 9-0. The defeat marked the first of the current campaign for the locals who defeated Rutgers in the opening match here Saturday 8-1.

The summary: Singles Morris defeated Hallow, 6-3, 6-3. Aksel defeated Cameron, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4. Croxson defeated D. Jones, 6-0, 2-6, 6-3. Jones defeated Richardson, 6-1, 6-2. Duffett defeated Stroud, 7-5, 6-3. Greenberg defeated Mobley, 6-4, 7-5. Doubles Morris and Aksel defeated Jones and Cameron, 6-3, 6-3. Cline and Greenberg defeated Hallow and Kincaid, 6-1, 6-4. Jones and Duffett defeated Richardson and Mobley, 6-0, 6-2.

Heath Twirls Victory In Supberb Relief Role Allowing Only 3 Hits

A five run outburst in the bottom half of the eighth inning plus four and one-half innings of superlative relief pitching on the part of Rodney Heath, a freshman from Cove City, enabled Coach Jack Boone's East Carolina Pirates to rack up a 10-5 baseball win over Atlantic Christian College here Monday in a North State conference encounter.

The victory was number two against one defeat for the Bucs in loop play, having lost last Saturday to Elon's defending champions.

When Heath took over the mound duties in the fifth frame, the slim left-hander with a blazing curve ball had the situation in command at all times as he dominated the show throughout the remainder of the heated contest for the Bohunk trophy. He immediately put a halt to the Bulldog bark, giving up only three hits and slipping the third strike past 10 batters in his stay on the hill.

The visitors' pitching staff collapsed in the eighth frame as the Pirate batters began pounding the ball all over the park, to break a 5-5 tie and win the heated grudge battle. Paul Jones slammed out an inside-the-park homerun, followed by W. C. Sanderson's double, a triple by Jim Corbin and five walks issued by Gilbert Ferrell.

The Pirates found themselves way behind early in the game as Atlantic Christian pulled out front 5-0 in four innings. East Carolina knotted one run in the fourth and tied it up in the fifth with a four run rally on three successive singles, a bases-clearing double by Gaither Cline and a single by Cecil Heath.

Cherry Point Wins Over Pirates Here In Non-Loop Scrap

Failure to rap out base knocks cost the East Carolina Pirates their second consecutive defeat in as many outings last Thursday afternoon as three Cherry Point hurlers combined on the knob to take a 10-2 win over the Pirates in a non-conference test at College field.

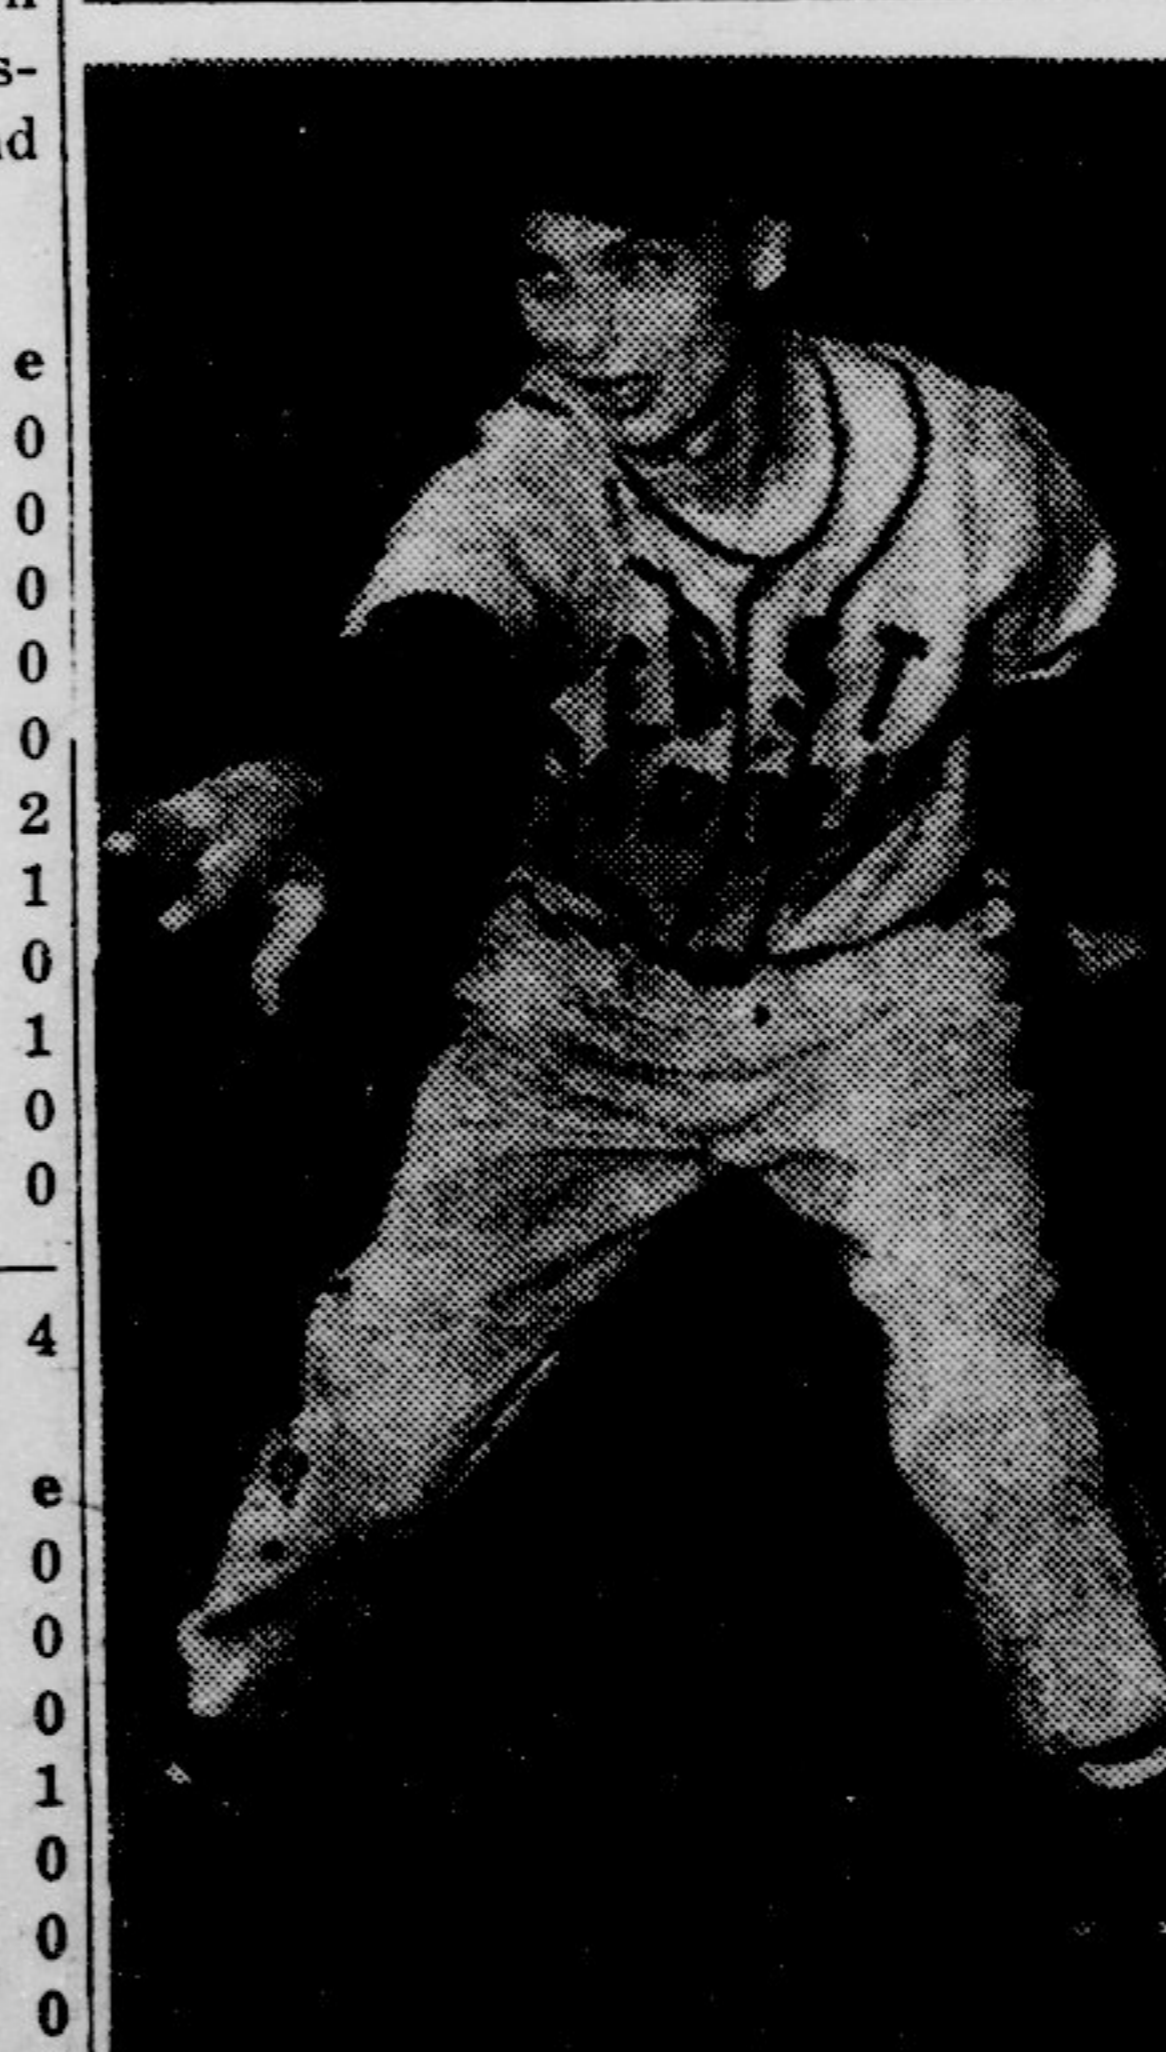

The contest saw three Buccaneer hurlers parade to the mound with the starter, A. J. Rose, getting credit for the loss after receiving help from Leonard Sullivan and Julian Vainwright.

A battle that was full of thrills saw the visiting Marines knock the ball to all sectors of the diamond as two home runs were slammed, and one triple play was executed by the Flyers.

As had been the story in the previous meeting between the two clubs, the Pirates scored first in their half of the opening frame when Cecil Heath was safe at first on an error by the shortstop. After stealing second, Heath ventured on to third when Vengen errored Fred Soles' red hot ground ball, and came charging in to score when Soles was retired at second base on a grounder to second by Gaither Cline.

The Marines tied things up again in the third and put the game on ice in the fourth on a two run homer by Maricich. Two more runs were added in the seventh, four in the eighth and one in the ninth with the nine inning baseball ruling ended the massacre.

Infielder James Sanderson collected three of East Carolina's five hits in four appearances at the plate while Gaither Cline and Claude King gathered one hit each.

Jimmy Byrd, a ruddy-checked right-hander who starred for Kinston's Grainger high school state Class AA champions in prep school, is in his second season for the East Carolina Pirates. In his only North State appearance thus far, he lost a 2-1 decision to Elon, defending champions.

Successor For Popular Grid Coach To Be Announced Later

"Goodbyes are always hard to say. Sunday it will be mighty hard to say goodbye to my many student, faculty and town friends. We have enjoyed our three years in Greenville and our fine associations at East Carolina.

"It is with regret that this opportunity for advancement came right at this time, for I feel that 1952 will be the Pirates' year. I shall follow with interest the outcome of each game the Pirates play during the coming year." Signed W. E. Dole.

Pirates Win!

Jim Piner, righthanded sophomore from Beaufort, racked up his second win of the current baseball season Wednesday as he halted East Carolina's arch rival, Atlantic Christian college, 10-2 in Wilson. The victory pushed the Pirate's North State conference record to three wins against one setback, and the Bucs will attempt to avenge that one defeat Friday afternoon when they meet Elon before the visiting high school seniors.

The Christians are currently leading the loop with an unblemished record and a Pirate win would top the standing into a two-way tie between the locals and Elon. Pirate coach Jack Boone will probably start veteran Jimmy Byrd on the mound with George McSwain as his batterymate against the Elon nine.

Buc Tennis Team Tramples Rutgers In Initial Test

Rutgers university suffered its fourth consecutive loss while touring the south as a strong and experienced East Carolina net club opened its spring schedule with an 8-1 victory over the visitors here last Saturday.

Playing without the services of their tennis ace, Joe Hallow, the Pirates were strong all the way in racking up the impressive win.

Paul Cameron, number one man for Coach Howard Porter's squad, took the measure of his opponent, Gillette, in two sets winning 6-4, 9-7. The only loss for the locals was when Kenneth Wilson rallied to beat East Carolina's Amos Stroud 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

The summary:

| Singles                                                         |  |

In a joint announcement from East Carolina college and Davidson college, it was announced Monday night that Bill Dole would resign his position as head football coach at ECC to take a similar position at Davidson. Dole will assume his new position Monday.

Dole himself made the announcement to members of the football team at East Carolina in a called squad meeting Monday night. He revealed that he has been considering the matter for a out two weeks. He would offer no comment as to who he thought would succeed him at East Carolina. "That will be the job of the President (Dr. John D. Messick) and the Board of Trustees," Dole said in regard to the selection of his successor.

Immediate speculation puts the finger on Jack Boone, former Elon college athletic great, who is serving as assistant football coach and head baseball coach. Boone was Dole's chief assistant last year.

In a prepared statement Tuesday morning, Dole said, "We have enjoyed our three years in Greenville and will miss our many friends here. I appreciate the fine following and support in athletics Greenville has given my teams. We have a fine group of athletes and a most promising team for next year and, naturally, that made my decision a hard one."

Dole came to East Carolina in 1949 after an outstanding record at Fayetteville high school. He coached at Fayetteville after his discharge from the Navy and built the school to a state championship in three years. He had coached at high school ball in Blue Va., and was connected with special education programs in the Navy.

At Davidson, Dole will select his own staff of assistants at Davidson.

Dole would not say whether he would be returning to the three-year coaching career at Davidson.

Industrial Arts Group Hears Community Relations Director

Mott B. Heath of Dearborn, Mich., director of community relations for the Ford Motor company, will be chief speaker at a meeting of the North Carolina Industrial Arts Association tomorrow at East Carolina college.

The event is expected to bring to the campus a group of more than a hundred teachers and students of industrial arts from all sections of the state.

In addition to the talk by Mr. Heath, program attractions will include an exhibition of 27 different types of work by industrial arts students in public schools of North Carolina and a display of work by East Carolina students of industrial arts. These exhibitions were on view High School day at the college today, also; and they were seen then by approximately 3,000 high school seniors visiting East Carolina for the annual event.

Prizes for outstanding entries in the exhibition by students will be awarded Saturday and will be given to winners in a program in the Flanagan auditorium at 4:30 in the afternoon. Many items, including books, tools, hardwood, drawing supplies and other equipment useful in industrial arts, as well as articles of clothing have been given by merchants of Greenville and others as prizes for the exhibition.

Those rated as superior in the local exhibition will be eligible to send their work to Dearborn, Mich., to compete for the Ford award offered each year by the Ford Motor company.

Mr. Heath will speak at a luncheon meeting in the college dining hall at 12:30. Others who will appear on the program will include President John D. Messick, Dean Leo W. Jenkins, and Alumni Secretary James W. Butler, of East Carolina college. Songs by the Men's Varsity Glee club of the college will provide entertainment for guests.

Dr. Kenneth Bing, director of the East Carolina department of industrial arts, and Paul Powell, college faculty member and vice president of the state Industrial Arts association, have made local arrangements for Saturday's program. They have been assisted by Robert Pennington of Rocky Mount, president of the student Industrial Arts club, and other members of the departmental organization.

Pre-Engineering Classes Guests At Dinner Meet

Science students at East Carolina college who are enrolled for pre-engineering courses were guests Monday evening at a dinner given by the General Electric company. R. P. Kloeti, GE sales engineer for the Eastern Carolina district, acted as host at the meeting, held at the Respos-James restaurant in Greenville.

An informal program of questions and answers was staged during the evening. Mr. Kloeti answered for his guests many questions about their future profession. Among topics covered were: the many types of engineers; opportunities offered to and qualifications of a student who wishes to become an engineer; the GE plan of getting inexperienced engineers started on their jobs; and a review of major engineering accomplishments of the past year. The demand for engineers, which is not likely to be met for years, was also pointed out.

The meeting was part of the counseling program at East Carolina sponsored by the Pre-professional committee of the faculty, with J. O. Derrick as chairman.

Voting Next Week

All Baptist students are urged by the Baptist Student union to vote April 6-9 for the officers of the Union Executive council.

Nominees are: enlistment vice-president, Elsie Howard; social and recreational vice-president, Anne Mitchell; devotional vice-president (vespers), Anne Carrawan; secretary, Virginia Wilkes and Della Dean; treasurer, Rex Little and Elbert R. Blanton; visual aids chairman, Evelyn Eury and George Starling; extension work chairman, Alice Jackson; pastor chairman, Alice Bullard and Lillian Haynes; forum program chairman, Mary Agnes Clark and Joe Bryson; forum supper chairman, Gwen Williams and Virginia Harris; publicity chairman, Lib Pate and Mildred Henderson; center host, James Rogers; center hostess, Ramona Outlaw; faculty advisor (elect two), Mrs. Clem Garner, Dr. Bessie McNeil, Dr. J. K. Long and Miss Ruth White.

IRC Elects Alexander President For '52-53

Rudolph Alexander, senior from Goldsboro, was elected president of the International Relations club for the coming 1952-53 year at the monthly meeting of the club held in Flanagan auditorium Tuesday night. Also elected to serve with Alexander were Betty Daughtery, vice president, Fayetteville; and Leland King, secretary-treasurer, Turkey. The new officials will begin their duties in April.

In addition to the election of officers, plans for the North Carolina IRC convention to be held in Asheville April 19 and 20 were also discussed. Local representatives who are going to attend the convention are: Rudolph Alexander, Betty Daughtery, Thomas Pierce, Hal Haire, Evelyn Littleton and Joe Hodges.

Denmark Speaker Here

In Denmark, greater production in agriculture and industry and "good employment, good wages and a good standard of living" have resulted from the Marshall plan, Hans Joakim Schultz, representative of the Danish society in this country, told students at East Carolina college last Thursday morning. These conditions, he stated, have been accompanied by a decline in the influence of Communism.

The visitor from Denmark, now on tour under the sponsorship of the Danish Embassy in Washington, spoke at an all-college assembly in the Austin building. He discussed conditions in his country before an audience of approximately a thousand students, faculty members and visitors. Dean Leo W. Jenkins of the college introduced Mr. Schultz.

Sigma Pi Alpha Names Eighteen EC Students As Fraternity Members

Eighteen students at East Carolina college have been initiated as new members of the Phi Sigma chapter of Sigma Pi Alpha, national honorary foreign languages fraternity. They were chosen because of their excellent scholastic records in the college department of foreign languages.

State Division Of FTA Places Kelly In Office At Asheville Meeting

Joan Kelly, East Carolina sophomore, was elected vice president of the North Carolina state division of Future Teachers of America at the meeting in Asheville March 28.

Other delegates from the local chapter of FTA at the meeting were: Mary Jo Johnson, FTA president, Jean Bradshaw, Sybil Davis and Carl R. Willis. They were accompanied by the FTA sponsor, Miss Emma L. Hooper. Also in the party was Margie Smith, "Miss Representative Student Teacher" here. She and Willis, as "Mr. Representative Student Teacher," were presented with the representative student teachers from other teacher-training institutions of the state at the general session of the NCEA Friday evening.

Clay Heads Summer Workshop For Developing Good Citizens

What the public schools can do to develop students into good citizens will be discussed in a summer workshop now being organized at East Carolina college. Dr. Howard B. Clay of the department of social studies will be coordinator of the Citizenship Education workshop.

During 1950, Dr. Clay was one of a small group of educators in this country chosen to participate in the Citizenship Education project sponsored by Columbia university and financed by the Carnegie foundation. In New York he worked for several months with representatives of six other colleges selected from the nation's institutions of higher learning for work on the project. The purpose of the Columbia Citizenship Education project is "to strengthen citizenship in the nation."

Meets Teachers' Needs Under Dr. Clay's direction, the summer workshop at East Carolina has been planned to meet the needs of teachers who present courses in citizenship education, or allied courses, and who conduct citizenship education projects in their schools.

Entitled Social Studies 360G, the workshop will be given during the second term of the summer session and will cover a ten-day period, with registration scheduled for July 18. Class meetings will be held from 8 to 11 each morning. The course of study will be open only to teachers in service who have senior or graduate standing.

Project Prepares Materials Materials to be used in the course were prepared by the Citizenship Education project at Columbia for subsequent use in the schools. These include more than a thousand annotated and descriptive bibliographical cards which describe and evaluate published works having to do specifically with American citizenship, and a number of pamphlets describing projects or laboratory practices which have been successfully used to teach citizenship in schools in many parts of the United States.

On completion of the work, students will receive three quarter hours of credit. This credit may be applied toward requirements for social studies majors, toward a master's degree, and toward the renewal of teaching certificates, provided that a similar course has not been previously applied.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil
Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

SOMEBODY sent Sheedy this note: "You're a small guy, Paul, but your hair's against you! That's why you've been getting skunked in the race for popularity. I wouldn't even touch you with a 10-foot pole cat! Better get Wildroot Cream-Oil. Everybody nose it's Your Hair's Best Friend." Non-alcoholic. Contains soothing Lanolin. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Relieves annoying dryness. Grooms hair neatly and naturally all day long. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test. Paul got Wildroot Cream-Oil and now he's whiff a new gal every night! So put on your pin-stripe suit, head for any drug or toilet goods counter, and buy a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's biggest-smelling hair tonic. Ask for it on your hair at the barber shop, too. Then all the girls'll fall for you!
