Student Teaching Work Ends For Seniors At East Carolina

A group of 113 seniors at East Carolina college who completed their work in student teaching Wednesday of last week includes the largest number of teachers in elementary education to be trained at the college during a single quarter and East Carolina's first man student to be graduated in the field of primary education.

Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of the college Bureau of Student Teaching and Placement, reports that 66 women and 47 men had teaching assignments in public schools in 13 towns of eastern North Carolina during the fall quarter. They gained practical experience in the classroom under the supervision of a large corps of teachers in the public schools and of faculty members at the college.

First Male Finishes

John L. Fristoe of Greenville is the first man to complete student teaching at East Carolina in the field of primary education. A native of Louisiana, Fristoe entered the college here after three years of service in the Coast Guard. During the fall quarter this year he taught in the third grade of the campus Training school under the supervision of Eunice McGee of the college and Training school faculties and Dr. Eva Williamson of the college education department.

Fristoe, who completed his work at East Carolina the fall quarter, has accepted a position in the West Greenville school here.

Nineteen students, Dr. Oppelt states, completed their work this fall in the field of primary education, and seventeen in the field of grammar grade education. These students compose the largest group ever to do student teaching in elementary education during a single quarter at East Carolina.

Need For Elementary

Because of the acute shortage of elementary grade teachers, the college has encouraged students during the past few years to teach in the lower grades. The large number now completing their work in this field indicates the success of the effort.

Two students did their work in art this quarter as compared to only one in any previous quarter. These students and three music majors taught on both the secondary and the elementary levels in the Greenville public schools. Five student teachers of mathematics made up the largest group in this field for any quarter in recent years.

Centers where student teaching was done by East Carolina seniors and the number teaching in each were: Greenville High school, 34; campus Training school, 32; West Greenville school, 4; Ayden, 6; Farmville, 2; Winterville, 4; Bethel, 6; Belvoir, 2; Grimsland, 7; Grifton, 1; Tarboro, 4; Rocky Mount, 6; Kinston, 2; Robersonville, 1; and Washington, 2.

College Student Has Poem Chosen For Poetry Book

Wilson Lovett of Tabor City, sophomore at East Carolina college, has received notification from the National Poetry association that his lyric "Flower Visit" will be included in their "Annual Anthology of College Poetry" for the current school year.

"The Anthology," says Secretary D. Hartman of the National Poetry association in a recent letter to Lovett, "is a compilation of the finest poetry written by the college men and women of America, representing every state in the country. Selections were made from thousands of poems submitted."

Lovett, who is specializing in work in the department of science at East Carolina, became interested in composing poetry through the influence of the late Lucile Bramlette, English teacher in the Tabor City schools. When "Flower Visit" appears in the anthology of college poetry, it will become the young author's first published work.

At the college Lovett is a cadet in the Air Force ROTC wing and a member of the student science club. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Lovett of Route 2, Tabor City.

Rocky Mount Club Hears Dr. Pingel

A mystery-romance of the Eighteenth century, having as heroine Nancy Stair Carmichael, poet and friend of Robert Burns, was reviewed Tuesday, December 2, by Dr. Martha Pingel of the East Carolina college faculty before members of the Fine Arts club of Rocky Mount.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Armistead Gill. "Nancy Stair" by Evelyn M. Lane, a work presented to Mrs. Gill by a descendant of the Scottish poetess and noblewoman, was the subject of Dr. Pingel's review.

Emphasizing the literary background of the work, Dr. Pingel traced the relationship between Burns and Nancy Stair, in whose honor he wrote several poems. She also discussed briefly a volume of verse by Nancy Stair, several editions of which were published in England.

Next On Entertainment Program

Appearing on the campus of East Carolina in the next program on the college entertainment series will be the Robert Shaw chorale, consisting of 32 voices and supported by a chamber ensemble, on Monday night, December 15, in the Wright auditorium at 8 p. m.

English Department Offers Workshop Of Dramatic Arts

A Dramatic Arts workshop is being offered this winter for the first time by the department of English at East Carolina college. The course will meet a demand among students, particularly those planning to become teachers, for practical theatre experience and training in the theoretical background of dramatic arts.

Work has been so planned as to enable those who complete the course successfully to produce simple plays in schools, clubs, churches and other community organizations. The course is being offered on the senior-graduate level and is carrying three quarter hours credit.

Dr. Lucile H. Charles of the college English department, director of dramatic arts at the college, is directing the workshop. Six other staff members and a visiting instructor from the Greenville High school will lecture during the quarter on various aspects of dramatic arts. Topics will include The Theatre as a Cultural Force, Scene Design, Construction of Stage Sets, Lighting, Dramatic Arts in the Public Schools, Music of the Theatre and the Dance of the Theatre.

Class sessions will include a lecture, a workshop play and an evaluation of this production. All students in the college will be eligible to participate in the plays, and the public will be invited to attend productions.

A dramatic service of worship will be given by the Wesley players Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the sanctuary of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church. This service is a synthesis of music, acting and narrative and pictures, presenting in an unusual manner the message of the Advent season.

The cast: Luke, Hugh Spencer, Engelhard; David, Milton Mills, Watha; Sarah, Joan Crawford, Rockingham. Music will be by the Wesley choir, under the direction of Donald Roebuck. Color slides are reproductions of pictures by Elsie Anna Wood, an English artist, who painted her pictures in the Holy land, using as models people who live in Palestine. The production is directed by Deaconess Mamie Chandler, director and sponsor of the Wesley players.

Donna Yancey Editor

Donna Yancey was named co-editor of the "Buccaneer," East Carolina yearbook, by the members of the college Publications board at a meeting Wednesday of this week. Donna will serve with Roy Creech who was named editor by the board last spring.

Dr. McNeil Elected Vice Prexy Of State Home Ec Organization

Dr. Bessie McNeil, director of the department of home economics at East Carolina college, has been elected a vice president of the North Carolina council on Family Relations. Her appointment was announced following a recent meeting of the organization in Charlotte, which was attended by approximately 350 people, including representatives of state agencies interested in problems of family life.

Religious Emphasis Week Brings Educator Here

Brooks Hays, noted educational and political figure will deliver the initial address at the opening of Religious Emphasis week Sunday, January 18.

Mr. Hays, Representative of the Fifth District of Arkansas in the House of Representatives, was born near Russellville, Arkansas, on August 9, 1898. He was raised in a home in which politics and public affairs played a big role, and upon graduation from law school in 1922 he joined in a campaign to elect his father to the congressional seat he now holds.

That race was unsuccessful but it set the stage for some of the most vigorous campaigns in Arkansas history. In the same year he was elected secretary of the Arkansas State Democratic convention, the youngest man ever to hold that position.

Brooks Hays

He was reelected in 1936 but resigned in 1939.

Mr. Hays tells the story on himself that his name has been on the state-wide ballot so often that one farmer refused to cast his vote in one election, declaring "It ain't legal. Brooks Hays' name is missing."

Farm Authority

During his years of political activity and law practice in Little Rock, the state capital, Mr. Hays developed a continuing interest in social service work and he became a recognized authority on farm tenancy in the South.

During the Roosevelt administration he was called to Washington to assist in writing a legislative program under which tenant families could become independent farm owners. He regards his assistance in drafting the Bankhead-Jones act as one of the most gratifying incidents in his legislative career.

He has long fought for the advancement of educational and economic opportunities for Negroes in the South and took an active part in interracial organizations at a time when such activity was considered politically inexpedient. Since coming to Congress he has continued his interest in working out a solution to that highly complex problem.

In an address on the floor of the House on February 2, 1949, described by the Southern press as one of the most historic utterances in recent years, he outlined a plan under which the full rights of minority groups could be achieved without sacrificing the historic principles of any section.

Public Servant

In addition to engaging in many educational and political activities, Mr. Hays has performed numerous public services. As assistant Attorney General of Arkansas he represented the state in many civil suits involving validity of statutes and regulations. In 1940-41 he served as assistant director of Rural Rehabilitation.

His personal activities include: member of Banking and Currency committee; member of Lions club, District Governor, Arkansas, 1925-27; director of Little Rock Community Chest Drive in 1929; chairman of Pulaski county Hospital Survey committee in 1929; chairman of the first Rural Church councilmen of the Arkansas Baptist convention; president of the Arkansas state conference of Social Work, 1939-40; and member of the Board of Trustees of George Peabody college for Teachers since 1930.

He is a member of the Board of the National conference of Christians and Jews and the National council of the Boy Scouts of America.

He was reelected in 1936 but resigned in 1939.

Mr. Hays tells the story on himself that his name has been on the state-wide ballot so often that one farmer refused to cast his vote in one election, declaring "It ain't legal. Brooks Hays' name is missing."

Performances Offer Laughs During Three Day's Showing

Lloyd Whitfield

East Carolina students are going to be in for a lot of laughs when they attend the Teachers playhouse performance of the popular play "Charley's Aunt." The play, which has delighted thousands of people since its first appearance in London in the 1890's, will be given on the campus December 10, 11 and 12 in the College theatre. The first two nights are special performances for student audiences.

"Charley's Aunt" by Brandon Thomas is a gay, sprightly farce which centers attention on the love affairs of two young students at Oxford university and on the trouble they get into when a millionaire aunt from Brazil fails to arrive on time for a visit. To avoid disaster, the fellows persuade an undergraduate to impersonate the aunt; and then the mix-ups begin. Swift action and funny dialogue carry the play along to a hilarious close.

Johnny King, freshman from Clinton, will have the part of Charley; and Percy Wilkins of Benson will play Jack Chesney, Charley's friend. Lloyd Whitfield of Kinston, president of the Teachers' playhouse, will appear as Lord Fancourt Babberley, who impersonates Charley's rich relative from Brazil. Carolyn Clapp of Greenville has the role of Donna Lucia D'Alvador, Charley's real aunt, who finally shows up and adds considerably to the complications of the plot.

Also in the cast are Anne McCrary of Durham and Billy Canady of Clarendon, who play the sweethearts of the two young Oxford students. Others who have acting parts in "Charley's Aunt" are Ralph Rives of Enfield, Atwood Smith of Kinston, Larry Williams of Ocracoke and Patricia Goodwin of Havelock.

Dr. Lucile H. Charles of the English department, advisor of the Teachers' playhouse, is directing the play with the assistance of Carolyn Clapp, student director. William Paevel of Goldsboro is director of the technical staff which is handling details of staging the play, including costuming, make-up, lighting, scenery design and properties.

Utterback Reads Christmas Story At Baptist Forum

A reading, "The Other Wise Man," will be given by Dr. Elizabeth Utterback at the forum at the Baptist Student center December 12. By popular request Dr. Utterback is being invited to do the reading because her reading of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" for the past two years has been so well received.

Envelopes containing the Lottie Moon Christmas offerings will be tied to the Christmas tree as part of the decorations. This offering is named for Lottie Moon, a missionary to China, and is used for the support of foreign missions. Last year the offering amounted to over $25, and it is hoped by the group that this year's offering will exceed that amount.

After the supper and forum, the group will go Christmas caroling. This has been a highlight of the Christmas season for BSU's in the past and it is hoped that many will participate this year. The supper will start at 5:30 p.m. and the forum begins at 6.

Use Cuts To Take Work

Students who plan, or desire, to work during the Christmas holidays and who have to report to their jobs the week before East Carolina is closed for the holidays are requested by Dean Leo W. Jenkins to use cuts allotted to classes in order to report for work on time.

Concerning the cut the day before the holidays begin, which by college regulations counts double, Dean Jenkins stated that a written statement from the employer must be turned into his office to avoid having one day's absence counting double.

Local Fraternity Sponsors Dance

The Alpha Phi Omega, campus service fraternity composed of ex-Boy Scouts, is sponsoring a Christmas dance to be held December 12 from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. in Wright auditorium. Music will be furnished by the Collegians.

Admission to the dance will be $1.00, stag or drag, and funds obtained will go toward re-opening the campus bowling alley which is located under the North dining hall. The fraternity, local affiliate of a national organization, has taken the issue of the bowling alley as its current service project.

Tickets for the dance, which opens the Christmas month, will be on sale in the student center of the South dining hall. The Alpha Phi Omega is a national fraternity.

Party Given

Music Department Sponsors Program Of Yuletide

The Christmas season will be the theme for a program of music to be given by students of music at East Carolina on Sunday, December 14. The program will be sponsored by the music department.

The student music department is building on the program which began in recital form last afternoon. The program will be open to the public.

The young people presented in the program are pupils of the faculty of the music department.

1941 Pirate Squad Rated As Unbeaten, Untied

The East Carolina Pirates have just completed one of the most successful football seasons in the school's history, but those who have been long associated with the local game will remember the 1941 Pirate aggregation as the greatest of them all.

Having crushed the Naval team, the Pirates headed for Due West, S.C. where they engaged the strong Erskine club in a game played on Hallowe'en, 1941.

In the closing minutes of the final quarter the Teachers tallied what proved to be the winning touchdown when star tackle Jerome Butler blocked a kick which was recovered on the Bergen one yard line.

New Property Requirements Now In Effect For Veterans

Veterans administration announced that minimum property requirements are now in effect on all new construction to be purchased with the aid of VA guaranteed or insured loans.

Public Law 550 (Korean GI bill) directed that such properties must meet or exceed minimum requirements for planning, construction and general acceptability if constructed after September 14, 1952.

This provision, VA reported, does not apply to homes which are completed at least a year before they are purchased with GI loans.

VA minimum construction requirements, to assure veterans sounder construction, have been mandatory since 1950. However, under the law VA's minimum requirements for land planning and general acceptability were not mandatory until the enactment of the Korean GI bill, VA said.

Coupled with minimum construction requirements, VA's code for land planning and general acceptability will be known as VA Minimum Property Requirements.

VA's requirements for general acceptability are planned to encourage the design of dwelling units which will provide living facilities ordinarily considered desirable in the locality.

Such items as room size, storage space, lighting, ventilation, bathrooms, utility and heater rooms, safety and privacy are considered under general acceptability. Land planning requirements are designed to encourage the development of new neighborhoods, so located and planned as to provide reasonable standards of comfort, attractive surroundings for the occupants, and a continuing desirability for residential purposes.

News For Vets

Millions of World War II veterans who hold 5-year or 8-year GI term life insurance still may convert to permanent plans of GI insurance with guaranteed values that term policies do not have.

Veterans administration released the announcement in answer to numerous inquiries concerning this right under National Service Life Insurance (NSLI).

VA said no law has been passed by the Congress which takes away or otherwise limits the right to convert from term to permanent plans of NSLI.

The only GI life insurance which may not be converted under present laws is the special 5-year nonconvertible term policy that is issuable to veterans with service since June 27, 1950, the start of the Korean hostilities.

Messick Speaker For Thanksgiving Service In Austin

President John D. Messick of East Carolina college spoke at a Thanksgiving service Sunday, November 23, under the sponsorship of the Inter-religious council, an organization made up of representatives from student religious groups on the campus. The service, an annual event at the college, took place in the Austin auditorium at 7 p.m. and was open to the public.

Waylon C. Upchurch of Sanford, president of the Inter-religious council, headed a committee of students who arranged the program for the evening. Dr. Robert L. Holt, director of religious activities at East Carolina, assisted in making plans for the service and presided at the meeting.

A program of music presented as part of the Thanksgiving observance included the singing of hymns by those who attended; a solo, "Rejoice Greatly" by Handel, sung by Monteen Winstead of Tabor City; and organ music by George E. Perry, faculty member of the college department of music.

Robersonville Recital Has Perry On Program

George E. Perry, organist, of the faculty of the East Carolina college department of music, will appear in recital in Robersonville Monday, December 8, at 8 p.m. The program will be sponsored by the Music club of Robersonville and will take place in the Christian church there.

Selections chosen by Mr. Perry will be appropriate to the Christmas season. The program will be open to the public.

College Prexy Attends Meet For Educators

President John D. Messick of East Carolina college attended the annual convention of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary schools in Memphis, Tenn. this week. Other staff members at the college have also represented East Carolina at recent national and regional meetings of educational organizations.

Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the department of music at East Carolina, spent the Thanksgiving holidays in Chicago as a delegate to the National Association of Schools of Music. Last year East Carolina was accepted as an associate member of this organization.

Dr. E. R. Browning, director of the department of business education at East Carolina, has returned to the campus after attending a meeting of the Southern Business Education association in Atlanta, Ga.

surely be a significant benefactor to the Pirates' fortune. Possessor of one of the best left-handed hook shots in the business, he is an aggressive cager, and to quote from a pre-season spectator, "Blake ain't nothing but fight."

Charlie Huffman, Cecil Heath, J. C. Thomas and Jere Hilburn have been sparks of brilliance. Huffman excels in the hook from the circle and holds his own at the tip off. Heath, the smallest man on the squad, is the jack-rabbit who can move with terrific speed, and is a superlative "snow-bird man." Heath is a gem-dandy of a floor man and is tops as a playmaker. . . . Thomas and Hilburn, freshman and sophomore, respectively, round out the "nucleus-men," and these two boys will hand out quite a few headaches for the opposing coaches as the 1952-53 dribble-derby gets underway.

Coach Porter has a splendid crop of reserves and their strength will certainly add to the potency of the Pirates. An old saying is, "A team is only as good as its reserves." These boys will give the varsity a run for playing time, and will provide great bench strength. . . . Stand back, folks, the curtain is rising on basketball.

Over 800 Present At Concert To Hear Local Musical Talent

A joint concert Sunday afternoon, November 23, by the East Carolina orchestra, a community organization, and the Varsity Men's Glee club of East Carolina college attracted an audience of approximately 800 people from the campus, the city and elsewhere to the College theatre. All available space in the auditorium, including standing room, was filled; and many who arrived late were unable to hear the concert.

The program for the afternoon was well received, and both vocal and instrumental numbers were enthusiastically applauded. Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the department of music at East Carolina college, was conductor for both groups.

Walter Noona of Norfolk, Va., pianist, a junior music major at East Carolina, was guest soloist with the orchestra. His performance of the Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 2 in C minor was a special attraction of the program, and his interpretation of the popular concert number received much favorable comment from those present.

Selections by the East Carolina orchestra included Bach's Komm Süsser Tod, the overture to Von Weber's Der Freischütz, and the Knightsbridge March from Coates' London Everyday Suite.

The Varsity Men's Glee club, popular music organization of fifty students at the college, appeared in a group of selections by Handel, Purcell and Grieg. As closing number on the program, the group sang, with accompaniment by the orchestra, the inspiring Simeone arrangement of Onward Christian Soldiers.
