Columbia University Prof Director For Band Clinic

Norval Church, noted music educator and professor of music at Teachers college, Columbia university, and a group of 12 North Carolina music instructors are directing student practice sessions and band rehearsals at the Eastern division of the All-State Band clinic at East Carolina college today and tomorrow, Herbert L. Carter of the college faculty, chairman of the program committee for the event, has announced.

Sixty-six high schools of the state are represented at the clinic by 125 selected student musicians. They are being organized into a concert band and, dressed in the colorful uniforms of their home bands, will give a public program in the Wright auditorium tomorrow evening.

Church will direct this Clinic Concert band. The distinguished music educator was formerly national president of Phi Mu Alpha, music fraternity, and, before going to Columbia university, was professor of music at the University of Wisconsin. He is the author of a number of books and articles on music, and his "Band and Orchestra Training Series" is widely used in educational institutions. A nationally known festival director and contest adjudicator in the field of music, he acted as judge last spring in the State Music contest in Greensboro.

Directors of sectional rehearsals and practice sessions for performers on the various instruments of the band are Beatrice Chauncey, East Carolina college, flutes; Richard Denson, Wilmington, oboes and bassoons; Harry Shipman, Kinston, B-flat clarinets; Joseph Fields, Chapel Hill, saxophones; James Rodgers, Greenville, and Lee Rogers, Smithfield, cornets and trumpets; George Bari, Roanoke Rapids, French horns; Boyd Elliott, Sanford, trombones; Marion Rogers, Fayetteville, baritone; Robert Barnes, Raleigh, basses; Scott Calloway, Elizabeth City, the percussion section; and Harry Grasser, Lumberton, bass and alto saxophones.

Marine Corps Recruiting Team Invades East Carolina Campus

The Marine corps Procurement team will invade the East Carolina campus Tuesday, according to an announcement by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins.

The two Marine programs, the Platoon Leaders class for freshmen, sophomores and juniors, and the Officers Candidate course for seniors are still being conducted. Neither course requires any drills to be attended nor uniforms to be worn during the academic year.

The Platoon Leaders class ("PLC") consists of two summer training periods of six weeks each prior to graduation from college and then appointment to second lieutenant. The "OCC" for seniors is a ten week course at Quantico, Va., which convenes after graduation.

Newly commissioned second lieutenants attend a five month Officers Basic course at Quantico before further assignment. Draft deferment is granted to members of both programs. Seniors will be especially interested in the fact that flight training is now available after completing only 14 weeks of Officers Basic course. The next "OCC" will convene in March for February graduates and June graduates will report in July.

The Procurement team may be contacted either here on campus February 10 or at 1400 Pennsylvania avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C.

The Marine corps Medical team will come along to examine any persons who are interested in joining the program.

Banquet Honors Alpha Zeta Frat Monday Evening

The Alpha Zeta Chapter of the National society of Wesley players held its annual Pledge Banquet in Fellowship hall of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church Monday night, February 2.

The tables were decorated in the Wesley players colors, gold and black, with centerpieces of yellow candles.

Elaine Smith, Wilmington, president of Alpha Zeta chapter, presided at the banquet and introduced Olene Civils, of Clinton, who welcomed the pledges and guests. As a special feature of the evening, a recording was played of one of the programs in the radio series, "The Voice of Lent," presented by the chapter over WGTC last year.

Mrs. J. H. Rose was a special guest of the chapter at the banquet which was served by Mrs. J. D. Messick, chairman of Student Work for the Woman's society of Christian service of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, and her committee was assisted by Mrs. George Clapp, local chairman of the WSCS.

After the banquet, the group was invited to the Sanctuary where the following were received into the chapter as pledges:

Marilyn Poole and Pearl May, Durham; Janie Holmes, Whiteville; Sue O'Neill, Windsor; Susanne Shepherd, Wilmington; Joan Crawford, Rockingham; Milton Mills, Wantha. Initiation will be held later in the spring.

Students Attend Dance, Concert By Sonny Dunham

East Carolina college students enjoyed Thursday evening January 29, a concert and dance at which the popular band Sonny Dunham and his Orchestra provided the music. Hosts and hostesses for the event were members of the freshman, sophomore and senior classes.

An hour-long concert, which was attended by approximately 1,200 people, began the evening's entertainment in the Wright auditorium. Dunham, trumpet and trombone stylist, featured singers, and the orchestra gave a program of popular music which won enthusiastic applause from the obviously appreciative audience. At the close of the concert, dancing was enjoyed by members of college classes and their guests.

John Robert Klutz of Goldsboro, is president of the senior class, was in charge of arrangements for the three charge of Benson, president of the sophomore class; Emil E. Boado of Wilmington, president of the freshman class; and several committees of students.

Concerts On Tap

Two concerts will be presented during the Eastern division of the All-State Band clinic. Tonight at 7:30 the East Carolina Concert band will play in the College theater Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock the Clinic Concert band, made up of 125 high school musicians from 36 schools in eastern North Carolina, will give a concert in the Wright auditorium. Norval Church of Columbia university will direct the Clinic band. Members are invited to attend both programs.

Baptist Students Contribute Funds For Scholarship

The East Carolina Baptist Student union has set a goal of $120 to be raised by April 1, which will enable students to have the opportunity to help send Walter Fullbrandt to the Seminary in Switzerland.

Mr. Fullbrandt of Germany is receiving for the second year a $600 scholarship to attend the Baptist Theological seminary in Zurich, Switzerland. This scholarship is made possible from the contributions of Baptist students on all North Carolina college campuses. Mr. Fullbrandt is 23 years of age and is a third generation Baptist minister. His father is a minister at Pforzheim, Germany; his grandfather was a minister in Odessa, Russia. When Walter has completed his B.D. degree he plans to return for an active ministry among his own people in Germany.

North Carolina BSU's are contributing another $800 to send a North Carolina Mission volunteer to work in the Hawaiian Islands during the summer months as an interne under the direction of missionaries already serving there. Part of the goal of $120 will assist with this project.

The East Carolina Baptist Student union is also joining with other BSU's in raising several hundred dollars to send Jimmy Ray, state secretary, to the World Youth conference in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil in July.

Valentine Dinner Fetes Baptists, Home Economists

The East Carolina Home Economists club and Baptist Student union will have a joint Valentine dinner Tuesday evening in the North Dining hall on the campus.

According to Emily Faircloth, president of the Home Economists club, Mrs. Corrine Grimsley, Family Life Specialist of the North Carolina Extension service, will address the group on "Building Religious Convictions into Marriage."

Jack Painter, president of the BSU, will preside, and a number of home economists and extension workers in Pitt county will be present.

Gwen Williams and Mary Agnes Clark, as program chairmen, announce that Dr. Bessie McNeil will open the program with the invocation. Evelyn Eury, in charge of music, says that before the address appropriate music will be provided and by Evelyn Eury and a solo.

Following the address, Seleta Tucker will sing "Bless This House." A few tickets are still available. If interested, you may contact: Marceline Aycock, Cotten hall; Delphia Rawls, Fleming; Ramona Outlaw, Jarvis; Gwen Williams, Wilson; or anyone at the Baptist Student center.

Sophomore Class Picks Bedford New Treasurer

Charles Bedford was elected treasurer of the Sophomore class to succeed Ann Bynum at the class assembly held last Monday night. Ann recently resigned her position due to the point system which permits a student to hold a limited number of offices on campus.

Commerce Group, Pi Omega Pi Give Valentine Dance

An annual Valentine dance, sponsored by the Commerce club and Pi Omega Pi fraternity at East Carolina college, will be held Friday night, February 13, from 8 til 11:45 in Wright auditorium on the college campus.

Featuring music by the Collegians, with vocalist Bernie Ham, the yearly project of the two campus organizations is presented with the idea to add color to and liven up the Valentine season around East Carolina.

Refreshments will be served to everyone at the semi-formal affair. General admission will be one dollar whether you come stag or couple, according to Julian Vainright, publicity chairman.

Mitchell Saieed, representing the Commerce club, and Carolyn Burnette, representing Pi Omega Pi, are serving as co-chairmen of the dance. Working with the two chairmen of the dance are Betty Sue Branch, chairman of the decorations committee; Grace Baker, head of the refreshments group; and Emil Mas-sad, chairman of entertainment.

Other committee heads include Donald McGlohn, door; Jack Edwards, clean-up; and Jean McGlohn, figure.

Newspaper Staff Sponsors Program Of Local Talent

A crowd of over 650 persons packed Austin auditorium Tuesday night to witness the talent program sponsored by the "East Carolinian" staff. The proceeds from the program will help send the newspaper staff to the Columbia Scholastic Press convention, a journalism meeting for college publications in New York City.

Master of ceremonies Eli Bloom, Greenville merchant, introduced the talent and made some ad lib comments on each.

The Varsity Men's Glee club opened the program with "Praise To Your Name So Fair," East Carolina's alma mater, and "Sing On, Brother."

Others on the program were Hannah Phelps, a tap dancing number; Eno Boado and "Bubba" Mathews, an impersonation act of national and local celebrities; Ann Strugan, a recitation of a Negro spiritual; Larry Williams, the "Charleston," assisted by Andy Meeder at the piano; Gene Lanier, two numbers at the piano; Coon Williams' combo, three "Dixieland" pieces; Bruce Phillips and Joe Hallow, a minstrel act; Louise McGowan, a song and a tap dancing number; and Nancy Tritley, a local seven-year-old girl, sang "Don't Let the Stars Get Into Your Eyes" and other songs.

There were no judges for this program; however, each act received a carton of Phillip Morris, which was donated by campus representative Dwight Garrett, and a carton of gum, contributed by the sponsors.

Woman's College Prof Speaks Here Tomorrow On Legislation

Dr. Lyda Gordon Shivers of the Woman's college of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, will discuss "What Legislation Has Done for Women" at a meeting Saturday afternoon of this week of the Delta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, national honor society for women in education. The talk is scheduled to be given in the Flanagan auditorium at East Carolina college at 2:30 o'clock.

Members of chapter from Greenville and other Pitt county towns, Kinston, Tarboro, New Bern, Washington, Williamston and Bayboro and their guests are expected to be present for the program Saturday. At the close of the meeting Dr. Shivers will be honor guest at a tea given by members of the chapter in the reception rooms of the Flanagan building.

Dr. Shivers' talk will be one of a series given during the year on the subject of "Educational Legislation: A Means of Enlarging Opportunities." Arrangements for Saturday's

Mrs. Ann Osborne Shoe and Rudolph Alexander

Shoe, Alexander Named As 'Mr., Miss Student Teacher' For 1952-53

Rudolph Alexander of Goldsboro and Mrs. Ann Osborne Shoe of Salisbury have been chosen as Representative Student Teachers for the 1952-1953 term at East Carolina college.

Along with students chosen for similar honors in other schools of the state, they will attend the annual convention of the North Carolina Education association in Asheville in the spring. There they will be presented to delegates at the Second General session Friday night, March 27, and will be honor guests at a luncheon given by the Department of Future Teachers of the NCEA.

Project Continues

The project of choosing a man and woman from all North Carolina colleges with teach education departments and from all high schools with Future Teachers club's has been carried out for the past several years. The Department of Future Teachers of the NCEA sponsors the plan.

East Carolina's Representative Student Teachers were chosen by a committee of faculty members and of student members of the Robert H. Wright chapter of the Future Teachers of America and the Student Government association. Evaluative criteria were qualities of personality, professional competency, cultural background, scholastic standing and understanding of educational aims.

Meet the Profs.

Mr. Alexander completed his undergraduate work at East Carolina in November, 1952, and is now a graduate student at the college. While on the campus, he has been president of the International Relations club, a charter member and first president of the Young Republicans club, a member of the college band and the student dramatics club and a representative on the legislature of the Student Government association. He plans to continue his education until he receives a doctorate in the field of social studies.

Mrs. Shoe, now a senior at East Carolina, specializes in primary education. Last year during the spring quarter she and her husband Dwight Shoe, East Carolina football player, headed the YWCA and the YMCA on the campus, respectively. She has served on the Student legislature and the Women's judiciary and holds membership in the Association for Childhood Education and the Wesley foundation, Methodist student group. She plans first to become a primary-grade teacher and then to specialize in work in religious education.

Both East Carolina Representative Student Teachers are included in the 1953 edition of the nationally circulated yearbook "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

College Announces High School Day Change Of Date

East Carolina college has changed the date of its annual High School day to Friday, March 20, according to an announcement by Dr. Ed. J. Carter, director of the Bureau of Field Services and chairman of the committee in charge of the event.

Dr. Carter states that the change was made in order to cooperate with members of Beta clubs of the state who wish to attend the national convention of the high school honor society in Asheville April 10, the day first announced for East Carolina High School day. Many students who wish to participate in both events will thus be able to do so.

Plans for High School day at East Carolina, the eleventh annual observance of the occasion, are now being completed. Included are educational and recreational events designed to show "a college in action." A tour of the campus, a musical production, a play, a luncheon, a ball game, a tea dance and exhibits in various departments of instruction are among activities now being arranged for the entertainment of an expected 3,000 or more high school seniors.

Annual Of Last Year Merits First Place Award At CSPA

The 1952 "Teeoan" rated first place in the Columbia Scholastic Press association according to a delayed report recently received by the yearbook's editor, Donna Yancey.

Last year was the first time that the East Carolina college yearbook has submitted their publication to be judged by CSPA. The annual will be entered again this year for an evaluation, but under its new name, "The Buccaneer."

Most of the comments that the CSPA critics gave were favorable. "I like the direct approach and the sincerity of the staff's work," one critic stated.

The comment given on its editorial make-up was: "Your copy is simply and clearly written! I have only praise for the good taste and conciseness that your writers have used."

The photography was "unusually excellent quality."

The closing comments of the 1952 "Teeoan" were: "... The reader feels the enthusiasm that the staff put into its work. The book has a warmth, a 'glow.' Even this reader pined to be young and collegiate again!"

"Congratulations on a most creditable piece of work" was written in the margin of the evaluation booklet.

AFROTC Graduate Speaks Before Senior Cadet Class Members

Lt. Stanley T. Smith of Kinston, a 1952 graduate of East Carolina college who has been on active duty for six months with the US Air Force, was a visitor on the campus here this week and spoke before senior AFROTC classes at the college.

Lt. Smith discussed various phases of active duties with the US Air Force. During his senior year at East Carolina, he was Cadet Colonel in command of the Cadet corps.

Lt. Smith is now on leave prior to reporting to flying school. He has been assigned to the Air Force Flying Training school at Marianna, Fla.

Chandler Addresses New Bern Ladies Club

Miss Mamie Chandler, Director of the Methodist Student center, was the guest speaker at the all-day meeting of the woman's society of Christian service, of Centenary Methodist, New Bern, on Monday.

Miss Chandler's subject was "The Methodist Deaconess—Old and New." She traced briefly the history of the Deaconess order in the Methodist church and told of the program of the Methodist Student center in Greenville.

Methodist Group Attends Meeting In Greensboro

The North Carolina Methodist Student movement will hold its annual conference at West Market Street church, Greensboro, February 13-15. The Wesley foundation is now working for a large delegation of Methodist students from East Carolina college to attend this conference, which will have representatives from all the colleges in North Carolina, and fraternal delegates from other states.

The theme of the conference, "The Christian in Community," will be presented in three major addresses by the main speaker, Dr. Waldo Beach, Professor of Christian Ethics, The Divinity school of Duke university.

Eight Sub-Con Groups will make practical applications of the theme to particular community issues. A Seminar for Directors and Advisors of local campus groups and for the student secretaries of the Woman's society of Christian service, will be conducted by a representative from the Student Department staff of the General Board of Education.

Saturday night there will be a double feature in the conference banquet and the presentation of a new and unpublished Religious Drama by the Wesley players of Duke university.

Methodist students of East Carolina college are eligible to attend. Information may be obtained from Anne Shoe or from Mamie Chandler, Director Methodist Student center. A large number have registered and it would be well for those interested to see Mrs. Shoe or Miss Chandler at once.

Idea For Amusement

A skating rink on the campus? Yes, this can be possible, if enough students are interested and if the Administration approves.

A member of the faculty was in the office last week and suggested that a skating rink could easily be installed in the Wright auditorium. There is a certain type of roller skates with hard rubber wheels that will not damage the floor, he stated. If the college financed the project, they could be refunded by a small fee from the students. This faculty member also looked into the future. "Eventually, skating could be added to the physical education courses."

"Skating," said the professor, "is second to swimming in exercising the body, in my opinion. It is one of the most graceful recreations."

We believe that a skating rink would also add more entertainment on the campus. If this program is carried out, more students would spend the week end here rather than at home.

We have suggested the idea of a skating rink to the SGA, and we feel quite confident that they will give it serious consideration and careful investigation.

Having talked with quite a few students and faculty, we find that they favor this idea with great enthusiasm. Some have said that it would add to the variety of recreation and because it is enjoyable to watch, it would make "good entertainment and amusement to the college."

We sincerely hope that the Administration will find the idea a worthwhile project and will not have difficulties in making it possible. We realize that the Administration is busy with other duties and building projects at the present, but we would like them to consider our suggestion in the near future. TPM

Big Banking Business

Each week the Student Budget office at East Carolina handles over $4,000 in cash transactions. Taking into account that the Budget office is open only two hours a day for five days each week, one can readily see that when the office is open the cashiers have to work.

Most of the business carried on by the Budget office is the cashing of students' checks. The percentage of checks which are bad is low; however, each week there is a certain number of checks which "bounce" for various reasons.

Sometimes the reason for the checks "bouncing" is that the bank does not recognize the signature on the check as being proper. Forgetting to put the name of the right bank on the check accounts for some of the misdemeanors, but the larger portion of the checks which are turned down by the banks are stamped "insufficient funds."

Though, as we stated before, the percentage of bad checks is very low, we feel that it could be even lower if the checkwriters were more careful about filling in the checks and checking to see that there are sufficient funds backing the withdrawals.

After taking all factors into account, we feel that we do not have any serious problem with persons' checks not being honored.

SMOKE CLOUDS AT SMITH

The Sophian, Smith college (Mass.) student newspaper, has launched a crusade for more smoking privileges on campus, and supports a suggestion "for smoking downstairs in college houses until midnight."

"Frequently study habits depend on an occasional cigarette," says the Sophian. "We think that a convenient place to study would create an atmosphere conducive to learning."

In an ACP Student Opinion poll last year it was learned that students are against smoking in the classroom by about two to one, with more women disapproving than men.

The Sphian took a survey of 16 colleges, similar to Smith, and found that only one—Mills college, Calif., permits smoking in the classroom. But Mills girls are not allowed to smoke while walking on campus.

Ye Editor's Say

by Tommie Lupton

Our attention was called the other day to an item appearing in Drew Pearson's Washington Merry-Go-Round. Dr. Edward Pruden, who was pastor of the Baptist church in Washington, D. C., which President Truman attended, will deliver a closing prayer at a meeting of senators and congressmen in Washington. The reason that we thought the item might be of interest to our readers is that Dr. Pruden was on our campus for Religious Emphasis week, and he became acquainted with many of us.

There was a statement on the front page of last week's "East Carolinian" which said that the Alpha Phi Omega was the first non-professional fraternity at East Carolina. Bob Hughes, member of the Sigma Rho Phi, dropped in to correct this statement. He stated that the Sigma Rho Phi was a non-professional fraternity. We believe that we are correct in saying that the Phi Sigma Pi, honorary service fraternity for men, is the oldest such group on campus.

Comments concerning the Sonny Dunham dance were quite favorable, and the night's program cost only $700. All will agree that the group was not as colorful as Ray Anthony; however, we feel that most everyone was well pleased with the first annual Class dance.

Our own Bernie Ham really made a hit with members of the Dunham orchestra, and we heard that Ham was even offered a contract.

Beginning this week each person featured in the "Who's Who at East Carolina" column will be given a carton of Phillip Morris cigarettes by Dwight Garrett, who has recently been reappointed campus representative at East Carolina by Phillip Morris.

The faculty at Wheaton college, Ill. has turned down a student council proposal which would permit unlimited class cuts. The vote was close. Supporters of the plan felt unlimited cuts would give students a healthier attitude toward classes; they cited statistics indicating good attendance records at schools having unlimited cuts.

But the opposition declared that all this was "more theoretical than anything else." The plan, according to the dean, will not be discussed again this year.

We know just what the people at Wheaton are going through, for we served on the committee at East Carolina last year that worked up the present cut system. There were many different plans discussed, and the unlimited class cuts plan was one of them.

While most college papers seem to be tightening their belts in efforts to meet one financial crisis after another, the Connecticut Campus, University of Connecticut, has just announced its switch-over from a three-times-a-week to a daily.

"The new publishing schedule," says the Campus, "will mark the culmination of a long-time dream." But the Campus didn't forget to call on the administration for a "re-evaluation of the University's arbitrary distribution of the student activities fee."

A week before (January 7), the Eastern State News, a weekly at Eastern Illinois State college, began publishing its "diminutive economy size issue," a four-column affair.

Students were warned "to expect similar issues as the result of a reduced publications budget." Like the Campus, the Eastern State News gets most of its money from a student activity fee.

And the Silver and Gold, University of Colorado, has assured its readers that it will continue to be a daily, but told them not to be surprised if most of its issues were only four pages.

The "East Carolinian" weekly is published on student funds, but we have been fortunate enough to have enough to follow our regular schedule. We would not like to have to print a smaller paper, but if we did not have the money we would have to.

Brains

Would you like to be smart? Well, being smart is no fun. If you use your brains—your're showing off. If you don't—you have none.

But that's not the thing that irks me. Whenever they have a task to do They never hesitate to see. If you will help them. Are you a sucker,—too?

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Phyllis Carpenter

"Who's Who" is usually a member of the Senior class; but this week we have an exception, for Rudolph Alexander of Goldsboro graduated from East Carolina college at the conclusion of Fall quarter 1935 with a social studies major and an English minor. He is now a full time graduate student and plans to complete his master's degree in August.

Rudolph came to ECC Winter quarter of 1949 and attended all regular school quarters and two and one half summer terms; therefore, he completed his B.S. degree in a little more than three years. This Dean's list student has found time for many other activities other than curricular.

Active Club Member
 He is very active in several of the prominent clubs on campus. This graduate has been a member of the International Relations club for four years. In 1951 he was a delegate to the regional conference at Lincoln Memorial university in Harriott, Tenn., and a delegate to the state conference in 1952. His senior year he served as president of the club. Rudolph was a member of the college band his sophomore and junior years and business manager of the Teacher's playhouse production "You Can't Take It With You" his junior year.

When a senior, he was a member of the Student legislature and chairman of the college sign committee. Also he received the honor of being chosen as "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges." His most treasured award, though, was receiving the student teaching award, "Mr. Representative Student Teacher of 1952 and 1953."

The Young Republicans club, which was organized Rudolph's sophomore year, elected him their first president. As a senior he was assistant secretary, chairman of arrangements for the campus mock presidential preferential primary sponsored by the YDC and YRC and was also active on campus and in his home community in the presidential campaign. Here we might say that he said that he was quite pleased with the results of the election in November. Last, but not least, Rudolph was chairman of the college delegation to the State convention in Winston-Salem. This he described as "quite an experience."

Receives Charter
 Harold Stassen was the main speaker and several thousand people and delegates were in attendance for the principle address. In the presence of this convention Rudolph was presented the official charter for the East Carolina college Republican club by President William E. Stevens Jr. of the State Young Republicans.

You Must Overcome Shyness

Dear La Rue and Andre,
 I'm a sophomore at ECC and would like to know the kind of methods you would advise to use on a certain male to overcome his shyness.

This boy does not appear too shy, because he always talks to me and even (if I may be forward enough to say) "flirts" with me. He'll do everything towards asking me for a date, except ask me for a date. I've had so many letdowns after talking with him, that I've begun to feel somewhat like a deflated tire!

I must have advice soon.

Miss "Firestone" 1953

Dear "Miss Firestone,"
 Your problem is one we've dealt with at many French colleges. Of course we can't advise you to use any of our French methods—your customs in America are so different—but we'll do our best to help you.

If you have any classes with this boy, why don't you ask him to study with you some night. (Be sure to act very dumb, for a male always likes to feel superior.)

If you aren't fortunate enough to have any classes with this shy male, we'll have to cope with the problem differently.

If he excels in any sport (preferably ping pong) why don't you challenge him to a game? (Again be sure to let him beat you.)

If none of these solutions work, let us know and we'll give you a few "French" tips. They always work when everything else fails.

Shooting

The Bull

by T. Parker Maddrey

There have been quite a few girls who have been complaining about the "United Stag association" here on the campus. This union, as one girl expressed it, "is a group of boys who insist upon going 'stag' to the college dances. Their technique on the dance floor reminds you of cats preying on little mice."

She paused to demonstrate a cat's movements, and continued: "When a large percentage of the boys go 'stag' to a dance, it works a hardship on us girls. We have two choices. One is to deny our privilege of student activity by staying in the dorm while others are enjoying themselves. The other choice is to go 'stag' ourselves and, being bound by the rules of etiquette, we decorate the walls at a dance."

It is not pleasant, we agree, to be confined to a room with nothing to do but morn the death of a chance to participate in an activity with others. Nor is it fun to be a "wall flower."

In defense for the girls, we feel that there is no reason for the USA boys (United Stag association) to pass up a date to go "stag." Financial difficulty is no excuse. These dances, such as the class dance held Thursday night, have previously been paid for by all students and so there is no admission charge at the door. They can't say that there are no girls to date when there are nine females for every eight males here on the campus. Some boys gripe: "I can't get a date," but the girls retaliate with: "You never ask."

To a boy, it is advantageous to ask a girl to a dance. Even if she cannot accept, she will feel highly complimented and will, more than likely, give him first choice the next time.

In the future, we suggest to these girls to make an amendment to Emily Post's constitution stating: "... On certain occasions it is permissible for the woman to ask the man to dance and/or may at any time 'break' on her lady friend who is dancing with the man that she desires."

Another suggestion is to promote a "Girl-Ask-Boy Week" which would seem like a lay-over from leap year. This program would surprise the boys so much that they will forget their bashful, shy ways and the girls would not have any more difficulty about dating for the next ten weeks at least.

The only suggestion we have for the "United Stag association" is to disband and ask a girl to the next dance. And another thing, she would appreciate it more if you asked a little in advance.

TIMELY TOPICS

By Bob Hilldrup

It is the custom each year to hold a National Student Congress at some leading college or university in the United States. This convention, made up of students from all over the country, meets and discusses pertinent problems of both national and academic nature. Some of the items discussed at the most recent congress include the Fair Employment Practices Act, Academic Freedom, the international situation and freedom of the college press.

As was expected the Northern and Southern delegates split in regard to FEPC, although the Southern delegates admitted to being more liberal than the "folks back home." The Congress finally went on record as favoring FEPC on the city and state levels, with a voluntary FEPC law on the Federal statute books.

In regard to academic freedom and investigations the Congress favored having its representatives placed on investigation teams of the American Association of University Professors. It was also decided that the Congress would accept a "unity" meeting in Budapest which is sponsored by the International Union of Students—a communist organization with headquarters in Prague.

With regard to the student press the Congress reaffirmed its previous stand calling for freedom of the collegiate press and added that the press should be unhampered, not only by administrations and faculties, but also by student governments.

From Cornell university:

College students are meeting the draft with a minimum of protest and even less enthusiasm according to a poll taken on 11 campuses by Cornell university. The poll compares the draft-wary student with the income tax-paying adult. He meets his obligation but doesn't necessarily like it. Ninety per cent of the students, says the report, would return to college if inducted before they finished, and only one in four thought military service would be a major disruption in his life. Most students seem to be taking their deferment status seriously and are concerned with maintaining good grades; but there were some who felt they wanted to get in as much fun as possible before being drafted.

The report concludes that should the government drop the student deferment plan, without supplying a substitute, there is little doubt that restlessness and anxiety would return to the campus.

POT POURRI

A religious publication recently declared that people nowadays have a "dictionary-phobia." It went on to say: "The public mind today avoids a dictionary like a bad lobster in a dark cellar. Reading, like traveling, can acquaint one with entirely new vocabularies. Yet the mass reading of today with its strong emotional impact anesthetizes thinking so the reader believes he does not need to look up a word in the dictionary. Some people, regardless of what they are reading, will never go to the dictionary. Dictionary-phobia is part of the mental breakdown."

But a few girls in Fleming hall have proved that not everybody has the dreaded dictionary-phobia. For the past few weeks these enterprising lassies have learned a new word every day. Not through the first of the A's yet, they still have high hopes of complete vocabulary expansion, and soon they intend to continue their studies with two words a day. The fact that their studies met so many new words in their reading prompted them to continue using the dictionary as a valuable friend rather than an enemy to be shunned. When asked what prompted one girl, she answered: "Well, when I had a sociology course under Dr. Toll last quarter, I realized my vocabulary limitations. I decided to do something about it. This way I am actually learning new words by using them, and it's fun, too!" Another girl of the band said that she and her dictionary became such close companions while taking ancient history that she just couldn't part with it. We say best of luck to you girls who are some of the few who don't have "dictionary-phobia."

One of the newer books in the library is "You Must Relax" by Dr. Edmund Jacobson. He has written a practical method of reducing the strains of modern living. Relaxation, the rest method developed scientifically was first presented by Dr. Jacobson at Harvard university in 1908.

Since then he has devoted to it much of his time, energies and personal means. He has written about it extensively in medical and other scientific journals. "You Must Relax," written for the layman, became a best seller when first published. In consequence of his efforts, relaxation now means nerve-rest in common speech.

Such chapters as Tense Persons, The Quest for Sleep, Relaxing the Nerves and Quietening Your Nerves, help make the book a storehouse of practical knowledge.

Although the average college student could not be described as a bundle of nerves, we believe this book will make us understand ourselves and our mechanics much better.

As George Bernard Shaw said, "If the other planets are inhabited, they must be using this earth as their insane asylum."

WINTER BLUNDERLAND

Fraternity and dormitory men at Northwestern university staged a series of spontaneous snowball fights two weeks ago. When the fun was over, about 200 windows were broken.

The dean of men says repairs will be paid for by everyone concerned. Meanwhile, with as many as 64 windows out in one house, members are enjoying the fresh winter air.

SPORTS ECHO

by Bob Hilldrup

Last week this column advocated a trophy case be obtained for the lobby of the new Memorial gymnasium. Now we would like to offer the suggestion that Warren "Sonny" Russell's uniform be the first item to be included in this case.

During four years of basketball play at East Carolina Russell has established himself as a true athlete immortal. This entire column could well be devoted to Russell's athletic achievements and still the subject would not be adequately covered. Let it suffice, then, to state that we firmly believe that never will East Carolina be able to find a hardwood athlete who can surpass Sonny Russell, and as a small tribute to this outstanding performer and sportsmanship we feel that his "No. 14" should be retired.

The game with Western Carolina last Saturday was basketball at its brilliant best. The Catamounts came to town determined to repeat their 1957 early season victory over the Pirates, and for a time it appeared as if they might well accomplish their mission. The men from Cullowhee brought with them All-American Ronald Rodgers and, despite much opinion to the contrary, we feel that Rodgers put on an outstanding show. The little fellow, who scored 36 points in the previous catamount-Pirate game, took on the job of guarding Sonny Russell, but it just wasn't Rodgers' night. Although we feel in all fairness that Russell is definitely the better of the two, Rodgers is indeed a great ball player and an outstanding sportsman.

Many fans who came to the game prepared to see a high scoring total by Rodgers were disappointed in his 11 point output. We'd like to point out, however, that Rodgers attempted only a few goals from the floor during the remainder of the game. Rodgers showed his true sportsmanship when, at the end of the contest, he went to the Pirate bench and personally congratulated East Carolina Coach Howard Porter and Sonny Russell. Western Carolina may well be proud of Ronald Rodgers. Another heartening item of sportsmanship occurred when Jordan, Catamount center, fouled out of the game. The entire Pirate five had a friendly word for him as he left the floor. It is these items, as well as the rough and tumble play, that should be part of any athletic contest.

Athlete Of The Week

by Jack Scott

Charlie Huffman, hook shot artist from Thomasville, was selected this issue's "Athlete of the Week" after three brilliant performances last week.

In helping the Bucs rack up three important victories, Huffman scored a total of 61 points or an average of 20.3 per game. Besides his scoring ability, Charlie is an excellent defensive man as he uses his 6' 3" frame to great advantage and breaks up many of the opponent's passes.

Huffman, now a junior, came to East Carolina in 1950 and broke into Howard Porter's squad with a starting forward position. As a freshman, he scored 342 points in 26 games for a 13.5 average, second best on the squad. Last year Charlie was a victim of the "sophomore jinx" and spent most of the season on the bench. This season he is "playing the best ball he has ever played" as Coach Porter puts it. In 13 games he has dropped in 177 points. His highest total came against ACC last Friday night when he scored 22 points to grab top scoring honors.

Recognized as the most conscientious basketball player on the team, Huffman has regular sleeping hours, studies on road trips and obeys training rules to the word.

A graduate of Thomasville high school, he starred in basketball, football and tennis, lettering in each sport for three years. During his

Huffman Scores 22 As Buccaneers Defeat Bulldogs

by Sam Hux

Stepping out from the shadow of Russell and Hodges, big Charlie Huffman led his East Carolina Pirate mates to a stirring 92-59 victory over Atlantic Christian college here Friday night, to bring the Bohunk Trophy back home.

The six-four forward from Thomasville broke loose with every shot in the book to rack up 22 points, his highest mark of the year.

Sonny Russell and Bobby Hodges, usually high scorers, followed Huffman in the point column. "Mr. Basketball" pushed through 19 points while Hodges was good for 15.

Bill Price and Eddie Johnson were the ACC pace setters as they tied at 13 markers apiece. Close behind was Jimmie Peebles with 10.

There was never any doubt as to the victor as the Bucs built up an early lead and held a 48-31 lead at intermission.

Coach Howard Porter cleared his bench as the subs played almost half the contest.

McCrary's Eagles Play Here

One of the top independent basketball teams in the South will be in Memorial gym tomorrow night when McCrary's Eagles meet the East Carolina college Pirates.

The Eagles yearly play top grade college and independent teams in North Carolina and boast a squad comprised of many of the nation's junior and senior years, Huffman made All-tournament forward in the South Piedmont conference. More honors came his way his senior prep year when he co-captained his football team and was selected as All-conference tackle.

top cage stars. Little is known concerning the team from Asheboro but in two contests between the clubs last year the Pirates were able to emerge victorious but once.

The game will be the final out-of-conference for the locals this season. They have met only one other non-conference club this season.

Following the McCrary game the Pirates will have a week of rest and then will engage Elon's Christians in a game here February 14 that may well have a definite bearing on the final conference standings. The locals bested Tlon in an earlier game at Burlington, 76-75.

Russell Sparks Buccaneers In Tenth Conference Victory

by Jack Scott

With resolved victories over three pressing North State foes, High Point, ACC and Western Carolina, the Pirates have elevated themselves to "the team to beat" pedestal. The High Point and ACC games could be classed as mediocre contests, but the Western Carolina fray was vibrant and thrilling. From this corner, it looks like East Carolina as conference champions.

An enlightening incident during the WCTC encounter came as freshman guard J. C. Thomas stole the leather-covered sphere and raced down the court. Suddenly and tragically he lost possession by over-anxiousness. On losing the ball J. C. erroneously but rib-ticklingly uttered a "naughty" word. For censor purposes the word can not be printed, but you can rest assured it caused much delightful delirium.

The Circle K has most admirably decided to present a trophy to the most valuable basketball player at the termination of the season. This is a most honorable decision and more campus clubs should follow suit. With the many organizations we have awards could be presented in every sport. Less awards are presented here at East Carolina for athletics than any other school we can think of. Each club could have the presentations as one of their biggest projects. Our compliments to the Circle K on its ingenuity.

The winter football rehearsals are in its final stages and the results have been pleasing to Coaches Boone and Biggers. Stalwart determination has been shown and the fight for positions has closely resembled the furiousness of the Korean battles. Optimism is definitely in the air concerning the Pirates' chances for North State supremacy next fall.

Sonny Russell's 32 points sparked the East Carolina Pirates to an 86-67 victory over the Western Carolina Catamounts Saturday night in ECC's Memorial gym before a crowd of 2,000 cheering fans. In winning their fourth straight game, the Bucs gained revenge for the 102-97 loss to WCTC earlier this season, and strengthened their hold on first place in the North State conference.

Western Carolina led most of the first quarter and held a 23-19 advantage at the end of the period. Early in the second quarter, WCTC jumped to a nine point lead but the Bucs came back strong and went ahead shortly before the quarter ended. The Pirates led 41-37 at half-time.

East Carolina broke loose in the third period for 23 points while holding the visiting Cats to only 14 and held a 13-point lead, 64-51, after three quarters of play.

The Catamounts never threatened the ECC lead and tallied only 16 points in the final period while the Bucs were netting 22 to make the final score 86-67.

Western Carolina's Little All-American, Ronald Rodgers, was held to 11 points, two field goals and seven out of 14 free throws. High scorer for WCTC was McCormick with 17 points while Straehla was close behind with 15.

Bobby Hodges followed Russell in the scoring column with 21 markers, while Charlie Huffman accounted for 19.

'Citizenship In Action' Theme Of State Woman's Club Meet

"The great ditch separating the free world from the slave world runs into your back yard," Dr. Guion Johnson of Chapel Hill, president of the North Carolina Woman's council, told approximately 175 members of eastern North Carolina women's clubs at a conference on "Citizenship in Action" Friday at East Carolina college. She challenged her audience to accept the responsibilities of citizenship.

The conference was one of three scheduled to be held in the state within the next few weeks. Asheville and Durham have been chosen as other meeting places.

Under the leadership of Mrs. L. B. Fite of New Bern, the conference at East Carolina was called by leaders in Home Demonstration clubs in the eastern counties, and was attended by representatives of seven women's organizations having branches in various towns of the area.

Women, Dr. Johnson told her audience, must accept the duties of the good citizen. She distinguished between "the no-time, the part-time, and the full-time" citizen.

"The full-time citizen," she explained, "meets responsibilities day in and day out, asks searching questions, is able to separate prejudice from fact, knows the pressure groups . . . and is never too busy to follow through in the day-by-day routine of making democracy work in our country."

A luncheon and an evaluation meeting led by Dr. Johnson completed the day's events.

Five Have Opportunity To Join Business Frat

Because of their excellent scholastic records in the department of business education at East Carolina college, five students have received invitations to become members of the campus Beta Kappa chapter of the national honorary fraternity Pi Omega Pi. A pledge service for new members will be held Monday, February 16, and initiation is scheduled for the spring quarter.

Those who have been honored by invitations to join the Beta Kappa chapter are Clement M. Gray, Trenton; James K. Thompson, Goldsboro; W. Horace Baker, Zebulon; A. Norman Hines, Holly Ridge; and Mrs. Ann H. Phillips, Greenville.

Art Professors Exhibiting Work In Local Gallery

John Gordon and Francis Neel, faculty members of the department of art at East Carolina college, are currently exhibiting 21 of their works at the Community Art gallery, in the Sheppard Memorial library of Greenville.

Included in the exhibition are oils, gouache paintings, etchings and mobile sculpture. Subjects treated by the college artists are seascapes, human figures, animals and abstract designs.

The exhibition is Mr. Gordon's first since he joined the East Carolina faculty last September. A native of Kentucky, he holds the degree of master of fine arts from the University of Iowa and has studied in France at the Beaux Arts school in Marseilles and at Biarritz university. At the college he teaches courses in aesthetics, art education and drawing.

Mr. Neel, who has previously exhibited his works locally at the annual Pitt county Community Arts festival and at the city and the college libraries, is acting director of the department of art at East Carolina. His etchings, water colors and oil paintings have won prizes in several exhibitions in his home state of Missouri, and one of his works was recently included in a regional exhibition at the High Museum in Atlanta, Ga.

Pirates Win Over Appalachian 79-67 As Russell Scores 28

Sonny Russell and Company took their eleventh win of the season on Monday night, as they downed the Appalachian Mountaineers 79 to 67 on the opposition's court. The Bucs broke a seven year jinx by winning in the App gym.

Russell set a blistering pace as he dropped in 28 points and led the team in floor play. Center Bobby Hodges was next high for the Portermen with a valuable 16 points.

The first half showed signs of a very low score. EOC led at the end of the first period 18 to 15. The apps held a slight half-time edge of 29-27.

The third quarter changed all that as the Pirates copped 33 points to the Apps' 19.

Four Bucs broke into the double figures. Behind Russell and Hodges were J. C. Thomas and Cecil Heath, with 12 and 10, respectively.

Appalachian guard O. D. Wallace was high man for the Westerners with 19 points.

Lost And Found

Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, dean of men and director of student affairs at East Carolina, has in his office several items of clothing which have been turned in to him. Dean Prewett comments, "All of these articles are in very good condition, and I am sure their owners would appreciate their return."

The articles include: one man's wool overcoat, olive brown color, size approximately 40; one man's galles-dine jacket, blue-gray color, size approximately 38; and one lady's silk kerchief of varied color.

Other items which have been found on campus are located in the Alumni office and may be claimed by calling for them. If there are persons who have lost personal belongings, they may inquire about them in these two places.

East Carolina's 1941 hardwood edition topped High Point in the last second of play 44-43 to climax one of the most thrilling seasons ever enjoyed by the Pirates.
