Are We Our Brother's Keeper?

I, a man, say, I love God, and hate his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? (1 John 4:20)

Do we love our neighbors as ourselves? Are we our brother's keeper? The week of February 15-22 will be observed in this country as Brotherhood week. What are we going to do to observe Brotherhood week? In our everyday living do we practice brotherhood every day of our college life? How many of us strive to practice the Golden Rule during our life?

Brotherhood week is sponsored each year by the National conference of Christians and Jews. Last year more than 7,000 communities in this country observed Brotherhood week with special projects, programs, services and celebrations; millions of Americans participated.

The motives of Brotherhood week are: rededication to the ideals of respect for people and human rights, demonstration of practical ways in which Americans can promote these ideals and enlistment of more people in year-round activities to promote brotherhood. Brotherhood is giving to others the same dignity and rights one claims for himself.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower emphasizes, "Without tolerance, without understanding of each other or without a spirit of brotherhood, we would soon cease to exist as a great nation."

Brotherhood is founded on the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God. Calvin Coolidge once said, "We need not concern ourselves much about rights of property if we faithfully observe the rights of persons."

We must all realize that to achieve any benefit at all from an observance like Brotherhood week we must do something more about it than just talk of it. We must each decide to work toward realizing the good that can come about by practicing the rules of brotherhood. Brotherhood, like charity, must begin at home. If we cannot get along with our roommates or fellow students, how can we possibly expect to be able to get along with other nations of the world?

In the sight of God every man is created equal; and it is indeed a pity that more love is not shown by nations of the world to their neighbors, regardless of race, creed or color. Brotherhood will not come about in this world by observing just one week each year but it will come about only by practicing brotherhood throughout every hour of every day of our lives.

Let us be good and pleasant to each other and let us all stand together in unity!

Definition, Please

Definition that has occurred in the past to East Carolina students has been brought to your attention once again now that Green-land has raised its prices. On previous occasions the student body has petitioned the Board of Trustees in the form of a petition to lower the prices.

Do you feel that this raise is too high? Do you feel that this raise is too low? Do you feel that this raise is just what it needs? Do you feel that this raise is a little more than it needs? Do you feel that this raise is a little less than it needs? Do you feel that this raise is a little more than it needs? Do you feel that this raise is a little less than it needs?

Ye Editor's Say

by Tommie Lupton

Remember last year's performances of the musical comedy, "Good News?" Well, the Student Government association at East Carolina is sponsoring another such program in April. Sigmund Romberg's popular musical, "Student Prince," is the show on slate this year. Any persons interested in participating in the production should make application soon. There is an article on the front page telling what procedure to follow.

We rest assured that the program will be a spoof as last years', and that it will be real treat for all who see it. All who saw "Good News" really seemed to be well-pleased.

Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert has announced another concert that is to be given at East Carolina. The program this time will be given in Wright auditorium, for the concert earlier in the year was presented in College theater and a large group of persons had to be turned away from the doors.

Knowing the quality of the first program, we feel quite sure that Wright auditorium will be filled to its capacity.

Any items that you desire to appear in the "East Carolinian" between now and March 20 should be turned in early next week, for that issue will be the last to be published until that time.

There will be no paper the week of exams or the first and second week of the Spring quarter. The second week of next quarter the larger portion of the staff will be attending the Columbia Scholastic Press association convention at Columbia university in New York City.

Colorful posters advertising the Valentine dance in Wright auditorium tonight have been well-distributed over the campus. College organizations have really been going out big in publicity for weekend events. The big reason is probably because they realize that most students make a habit of leaving the campus every weekend. Better grab your "sweet-heart" and go to the dance.

Much criticism has been circulating around campus pertaining to the Entertainment series this year, and many persons seem to really be disapproved with the programs on the whole.

The Salzburg Marionette theater, here next week, should be more interesting to more students than some of the other numbers on the series.

We must all try to realize that the Entertainment committee cannot bring many "name bands" here with what funds they have available. What the committee does try to do is bring a variety of programs here of the highest calibre with what funds they have.

We hope to have the name of the dance band that will appear here during the Spring term sometime real soon.

Teachers will post grades again this quarter after the final exams. Registrar Orval L. Phillips asks all students who have changed their address during the present quarter to notify his office immediately in order that their grades may be received on time at the correct address. Since the address given on the permit to register is the only available source, the grades will be mailed to that location.

Columnist William Morris of the Daily Texan tells about a basketball game slated during the Christmas holidays between Center Hill and Stone college. "It so happened that Center Hill went to Stone and Stone ended up at Center Hill. Net result: Disgrunted players, baffled coaches, amused observers and another two inches in this doggone column."

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Phyllis Carpenter

Helen Grace Baker, "Who's Who" for this week, plans to graduate from East Carolina after completing this quarter, with a B.S. degree, majoring in business education and minoring in English. This Kenansville girl entered EC as a freshman Fall quarter of 1949.

Helen Grace Baker

She had originally planned to attend another school, but as a senior in high school her class visited our campus. Grace was so impressed with it that she immediately decided to attend. In her own words, she said, "I liked the looks of things here, and also as I walked on campus everyone acted so friendly and all spoke. The atmosphere was so wonderful, too."

Well Satisfied
Now Grace says that she has been well satisfied here, in fact she said that never a day had passed that she had been homesick.

This present quarter Grace is doing her practice teaching at Ayden high school. Her courses are typing and bookkeeping. She said this was an excellent place to do student teaching because, as she said, "The students are wonderful as a group and are certainly cooperative."

A few days ago she said that she had some of her students cleaning desks, washing blackboards and getting the room straight, when a girl looked up and said, "Well, I sure ought to get janitor's pay for this." Evidently this young lady did not approve of the cleaning chores.

Grace graduates on Saturday, and the next Monday morning at 8 o'clock she is to report for work at Gray high school in Winston-Salem. She said that she would probably be scared to some extent, because she didn't know a soul there and besides she wasn't used to such a large place. The high school that she graduated from was rather small. She said, "The day that I visited there, there were so many students that they were just coming from every angle. I'm sure I'll like teaching there, though." Her courses will be typing and shorthand in the tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades.

Busy Honor Student
This honor roll student has participated in many extra-curricular activities. She has been a member of the YWCA for four years, serving as treasurer her sophomore year, chairman of the freshman Y her junior year and the president of the club this year. The Commerce club has seen her services for four years also. She was reporter for the "Techoan," member of the Pi Omega Pi, a national honorary business education fraternity, and a member of the Teacher's playhouse her junior and senior years.

Her sophomore and junior years Grace was on the business staff of the TECO ECHO. At present she is a member of the Student legislature, FTA and treasurer of the Inter-Religious council. Also she is in "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges."

All of the activities have meant very much to Grace, but she feels that being president of the YWCA has been the most important to her. Also she is very proud and honored at being chosen as Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. As a sophomore, she went to the National YWCA and YMCA assembly at Miami university in Oxford, Ohio. Delegates came to the meeting from all over the United States and from many foreign countries, and while they were there amended the laws of the constitution. This was a business meeting of all the national delegates.

Among Grace's likes for spare time entertainment are movies and reading novels. She does read classics occasionally, though. She said that she liked to read everything from comics on up. Also she likes to play the piano, but she said only for her own amusement.

"I'm glad to be through," said Grace, "but I sure do hate to leave. Now I know what it means to be happy and sad at the same time. I surely don't want to leave all of the friends that I've made here at East Carolina."

Do You Need Financial Help? Scholarships, Loans Available

"There is no reason why a student should drop out from East Carolina college because of financial difficulties," says Dr. Orval L. Phillips, "when there are scholarships and loan funds available."

There are quite a few scholarships and loan funds available at this college that students do not know about. One of these is the Robert H. Wright fund (named after a former president of the college) which provides loans to juniors and seniors for short periods of time.

Kiwanians offer Loan
The local Kiwanis club has established a rotating fund for worthy students from Pitt county. This fund will provide expenses for the students' four years in college. Upon graduation the student begins payment for the money borrowed until he has paid in full. The Kiwanis club charges no interest for this loan, which at present contains $4,300. This year four students are taking advantage of this loan, and there will probably be eight next year.

A fund for all the students is the Pickett and Ratcher Educational fund which is not only available to East Carolina, but to all colleges and universities in the country. Students with good character and initiative may obtain loans from this fund which carries a two-percent interest rate per annum. This fund was organized by Claude A. Hatcher who is the late founder of the Nebi Bottling corporation. For additional information on loans from this fund, the student may contact Dr. Clinton Prewett, dean of men and director of student affairs.

Athletic Scholarships
Consulting Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of health and physical education, we find that there are athletic scholarships offered in varsity football, basketball and baseball. These scholarships are given only to athletes who are in need of financial aid so that they might not attend college otherwise.

The athletes do not get the same scholarship value; this is also based according to the financial needs of the player. The maximum scholarship is valued at $480 per year which is called a "full" scholarship.

There are also the "three-fourth" and the "one-half" scholarships which are the fraction of the maximum. These scholarships, according to Dr. Jorgensen, do not provide the athletes with "pocket money." In fact they do not receive any cash money, but the amount of their scholarship defrays their tuition and room fees and gives them meal books.

The funds for these scholarships are taken from the gate receipts and contributions of the Education foundation. It does not come from the student activity fee, which the Athletic department's share goes to the operating expense and uniforms. This year there are 24 football, eight basketball and one and a half baseball scholarships.

Other available scholarships are listed in the college catalogue.

Feed Your Dates, Boys

Dear La Rue and Andre,
What must you do if you're out with a boy and you're about to starve to death? Is it "Etti-cat" to ask him to buy you something to eat, or must you just wait for him to take a hint after your stomach has growled for an embarrassing hour?
Please help me.

"Skinny"

Dear "Skinny,"
Your problem is indeed a perplexing one. Of course it's very embarrassing to have your stomach growl, but it would probably be even more embarrassing for your date not to be able to pay the bill for your feast. A lot of times the poor boy just doesn't have enough money to buy you anything.

Usually you can tell whether he's rich or not by the clothes he's wearing (cashmere sweater, etc.), or the kind of car he's driving (if he drives anything past a 1940 model he's a millionaire, no less).

Therefore, we would advise you to

Shooting The Bull

This week we would like to relate the sad, sad story of "Troubles" McGooney. (Note: This yarn is absolutely authentic, however, to protect the innocent persons involved, all names are fictitious.)

"Troubles" meandered to our booth in the soda shop with a sad, depressed look and, without invitation seated himself.

"Well, 'Troubles,' what's your trouble?"
"I got plenty," he said.

"Then just tell us about one of them," we said.

"It all started last fall when my girl invited me and my best friend to a Duke-Carolina football game. Muh girl goes to Duke.

"Muh best friend, Brutus, drove me up for the game and got me there after it had started. Never trust your best friends, 'cause they'll certainly spoil everything."

"We go in the packed stadium looking for muh girl, but in all that crowd, we just can't find her. Muh friend says, 'Wait right here and I'll find 'er.' Well, I didn't know what he was up to, but I soon found out. The devil had been to the press box and had her name announced on the loudspeaker."

"At this point we interrupted. 'What's wrong with that?'"
"Well," he resumed, "I didn't think there was anything wrong with that either at the time. But three days later, I got this letter."

He pulled out of his billfold a much-worn letter.

"This is the letter from muh girl, and it's the last time I ever heard from her. She says . . . Pigeon. (she calls me Pigeon) I am so mad at you after what happened at the game that I don't want to see you anymore. My pastor was at the game and when he heard my name over the loudspeaker, he thought that I had been in some kind of accident. He called my folks and they get so upset worrying about me, that Daddy had a heart attack and hasn't recovered yet. Mother was so worried that she hasn't slept a wink in the past 48 hours, and she is afraid that she'll have a nervous breakdown. When Uncle Egbert heard about it, his rheumatism got worse and Aunt Mailda was sent to the hospital with appendicitis and she blames it all on you. None of my folks want to see you anymore, nor hear your name mentioned. . . Now you see what a predicament I'm in."

"Well, what did you write her in reply?" we asked.
"Not guilty," was "Troubles" verdict.

TIMELY TOPICS

By Bob Hilldrup

A few issues back this writer turned out an editorial in which we mentioned the fact that entirely too many personal objects were "walking away" on campus. We could not expect our remarks to have much effect on the situation, but nevertheless the problem has not slackened at all. If anything, it has grown worse.

Word from the Administration building has come forth that students are to be reminded that matters such as this are "shipping offenses" and will be treated as such. It is disgraceful when one realizes how much risk is involved with leaving a personal item within reach of a stranger. We are willing to bet that there are few students who have been here for at least two years who have not lost at least one item.

It is our firm belief that East Carolina is as fine a school as there is to be found, but it remains a disgrace that this thievery continues. The entire student body should well feel the shame that is being cast upon them by the actions of these thieves within our midst. To cite individual examples we might mention the fact that a member of the newspaper staff lost virtually his entire wardrobe to someone who ransacked his room. Just the other day we heard a student remark that someone had entered his room and made off with a meal book.

These thefts must stop!

Although criticism of the administration in regard to student privileges is sometimes heard, we must realize that we are given many opportunities to conduct ourselves as college men and women should. We believe that the responsibility for the thefts that have occurred lies on the shoulders of a relatively small portion of the student body, but without question some steps will have to be taken.

When the time comes that a student must lock his room before crossing the hall to buy a cigarette, then the situation has indeed gone too far. It is up to us to take this issue to heart and do everything that we can to bring this matter to an end.

POT POURRI

by Emily Boyce

Last year, as members of the YWCA, we went on a rather unusual visit, a visit to the Pitt county jail.

When we first walked into the dim, depressing cell we were very embarrassed, for we thought the prisoners probably had us pictured as some sort of salvation seekers that were trying to convert them with our gifts of puzzles, magazines and hymn books. We were even too shy to look at the prisoners, and were very ashamed of ourselves for feeling the way we did.

Then one of our members started a conversation with a colored man, who proved to be a very interesting character. He was anything but embarrassed and really seemed to be enjoying the visit to the fullest extent.

By this time our shyness was beginning to fade and our attention was focused on a man sitting in a very remote corner attempting to seclude himself from the well-meaning little group. We first noticed him because one of the men was attempting to bring him out of his hiding place and to partake in the singing that was to follow. The man was very indifferent to his cellmate and tried to make him go away with a sullen "leave me alone." His friend was not discouraged easily, however, and after a few coaxing words, the reluctant prisoner was persuaded to join the crowd.

By this time we had begun on a series of favorite hymns and some of the loveliest singing we had ever heard was echoing in the dingy little cell. But we had heard only a mere sample, for the interesting character that one of our members had talked to at the beginning of our visit, was offering a special rendition by the prisoners, own choir! The reluctant prisoner was singing the loudest and with a countenance that you would not expect to see on any prisoner's face. But after the singing was over, he again went back to his secluded corner, with the same indifferent expression on his face. We wanted to talk to him in hope that we could possibly help him, but we knew we were incapable of doing anything.

As we looked around, the other prisoners were grinning and thanking us for our visit and asking us to please come again.

When we walked through the low cut narrow entrance, we turned again to look at the indifferent prisoner, but he was in a world of his own, giving no evidence that he even knew we had been there, or were now leaving.

Did You Trip Over Chain?

East Carolina's yard crew has finally gotten a stand of grass on the sloped lawn in front of Memorial Health and Physical Education building; but if persons tending athletic contests and classes at the building continue to walk on the grass, rains will again cause the turf to wash and make gulches.

Chains have been put up to suggest to persons that they are not to cross the grassy hills. Indications, however, tend to lead one to think that there are persons who do not know just why the chains were placed in their positions.

In the future let's all decide to use the side-walks instead of taking a short-cut across the grounds. For persons passing back campus the new Memorial gym serves as a show window of East Carolina. We must all help to keep up the beautification of our campus.

'Couple Of The Week'

by Kay Johnston

Our couple of the week is Mary Frances Peterson and Robert "Corky" Baechus. Probably some of you have taken a course under "Corky" this year, for besides working on his MA he has also been teaching a course in swimming.

Mary Frances hails from Kerr and "Corky" from Norfolk, Va.; (if you don't believe it, just ask him "about" it).

This cute couple has been going together since October of last year, and met, in the not too unusual meeting place, the local soda shop. Mary Frances and "Corky" are very fond of the beach, and both spent the summer working there.

(Editor's note: By being named "Couple of the Week," Mary Frances and "Corky" will each be given a carton of Chesterfields, a free pass to the Pitt theatre, a free meal at the Olde Towne Inn and an item from Saslow's Jewellers.)

All Faiths, Races Observing Brotherhood Week In Country

by R. H. Kirkpatrick
Editor

The Bethlehem (Pa.) Globe-Times
In Bethlehem, Pa., which prides itself on a Christian heritage stemming from a 1741 founding on Christmas eve, it is particularly fitting that we not only proclaim the renewal of Brotherhood week but that by our community acts, make it a shining beacon throughout the year.

Twenty years ago a Catholic priest broached a suggestion to the National conference of Christians and Jews which led to the setting aside of a special period each year in which all peoples are asked to concentrate their thoughts on the need for genuine brotherhood of mankind.

Each year the President of the United States, as honorary chairman of Brotherhood week, invites all people of all faiths and races to consider together the need and the responsibilities of brotherhood in human relationships.

A Paradox

The success of the United States, both spiritually and materially, is something of a paradox. Our development has been predicated on the successful intermingling into one brotherhood almost all the races and creeds of the world. Yet at the same time, we have in too many cases alienated ourselves into separate camps which are unable or unwilling to understand, or to seek understanding, of the ideas and ideals of other groups.

A great percentage of these conflicts is based on sectional interests and it is to our everlasting credit that many of these conflicts are dissipated in the heat of national peril. That we can live and work together in harmony during times of national stress argues well for the belief that one day we shall achieve our goal of perpetual brotherhood.

Give What We Ask

Mankind's search for a workable basis of true brotherhood seems too often to become confused in a welter of lofty-sounding platitudes. Quite simply, it is nothing more than giving to others the rights, privileges and respect which we ask for ourselves.

We have not yet reached that plane nationally; we are still farther away from it on an international scale. Yet, in spite of wars and rumors of wars, we have made progress. That we publicly and repeatedly proclaim the need for brotherhood and seek to advance such a quest through such organizations as the National conference of Christians and Jews is in itself indicative of progress.

Feeble and stumbling as our efforts may appear in the mirror of world events we are on the pathway toward worldwide consideration of the dignity and equality of each individual.

Pessimism Shows Up In Survey

(ACP) College students have little hope of either a speedy end to the Korean war or of peace between Russia and the United States.

In a survey taken by the ACP National Poll of Student Opinion, students across the nation were asked: Do you think the Korean war will be over within six months?

The results:
Yes ..... 5 per cent
No ..... 82 per cent
No opinion ..... 10 per cent
Other ..... 3 per cent

Students were also asked: How do you feel about chances for a peaceful settlement of differences between Russia and the United States? Here are the answers:
Chances are good ..... 3 per cent
Chances are fair ..... 27 per cent
Chances are poor ..... 54 per cent
No chances ..... 12 per cent
No opinion ..... 4 per cent

In a Student Opinion poll taken one year ago the same question was asked. At that time only 45 per cent of those interviewed said "Chances are poor."

Most students lay both the Korean war and cold war at Russia's doorstep. "Russia is not looking for peace but for power," says a junior from Mount Mary college, Milwaukee.

And a Purdue university student sees "no chance" for peace "unless there is a civil war in Russia."

An engineering student at The Citadel, a military school in Charleston, S. C., comments on Korea, "The situation should be turned over to the military entirely; 'statesmen' have already blundered away two years in Korea."

"There will be no compromise," says a sophomore coed from Regis college, Mass. "Either Russia or the United States will be the victor."

Those who feel there is still a chance for peace tend to pin their hopes on:

A revolution in the Soviet Union and its satellites.
Soviet fear of Western power.
US "patience and diplomacy."
Eisenhower.

"A turning back," as one student puts it, "to religion and God."

But a coed at Trinity college, D.C., sums up the feeling of many students when, having granted there's a chance for peace, she adds, "but it will take a miracle."

Typical American Family Views American Documents

While recently attending the American Historical association convention in Washington, D. C., Dr. and Mrs. Richard C. Todd and their niece and nephew, Bona Lee and Michael Burton Pennock, were selected to represent "a typical American family" viewing America's most precious documents at the new bombproof shrine in the National Archives building.

A photograph was taken by Jerry Knib and Ed Armour for Albert H. Leisinger of the General Services Administration, Washington, D. C., who interviewed Dr. and Mrs. Todd and the children for data to be used in a story which will appear in the National Archives publication.

Dr. Todd, associate professor of history at East Carolina college, has done extensive research in the Confederate manuscript collections at the Library of Congress and the National Archives. Speaking for the group, Dr. Todd said they felt highly honored to be photographed as "a typical American family" viewing the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, and the Bill of Rights.

Documents Travel

Dr. Todd said the cherished documents had been separated and moved from place to place many times before they were finally consigned to their present and permanent depository in the National Archives Building. Commenting upon the wanderings of the documents, he said: "The Declaration of Independence, being the oldest, is undoubtedly the most-travel of the three. During its 176 years of existence, it has had almost providential escapes from capture, destruction, fire and theft. Twice in that time it was out of Government hands. It has had many homes in many cities. It fled before the British in two wars. It was hidden in a barn, under a church, and in an underground vault. It narrowly escaped perishing in a supposedly fireproof Government building. No less than nine cities have had the honor of sheltering it."

"The documents have been successively in possession of the Secretary of the Continental Congress, the Department of State, the Library of Congress and finally, the National Archives."

"The Bill of Rights," he stated, "has been in custody of the National Archives since 1938, when it was transferred to that agency by the Department of State. During World War II, from December 26, 1941, to October 1, 1944, the Declaration and the Constitution were stored in the treasure vaults at Fort Knox, Ky. In 1950, Congress prepared the way for transferring the documents from the Library of Congress to the Archives by passing the Federal Records act. It was not until April 1952, however, that the Joint Congressional committee on the Library decided the Records act applied to the three documents as it did to other public papers. Transfer of the documents to the National Archives building was postponed until adequate arrangements could be made for their proper display—this was done December 15, 1952 in commemoration of the 161st anniversary of the Bill of Rights day.

Now Under Protection

"In their beautiful bombproof shrine in the Archives auditorium, the Declaration of Independence, Constitution and Bill of Rights hold the position of honor among the many valuable documents of the United States Government. They are protected by every device known to modern science. Each is enclosed in a brass bound glass receptacle from which the air has been exhausted and helium substituted. They will be on permanent exhibition under armed guard—the Declaration of Independence in a vertical case, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights resting almost horizontally below it. Each night they will be lowered by an elevator directly beneath the shrine into a specially constructed bomb and fireproof vault. The elevator is so constructed that, as it lowers into the tomb, massive five-ton steel doors on top of the vault close automatically and seal its contents from theft, fire and water.

"The vault is seven and half feet long, five feet wide and six feet high. It is of reinforced concrete 12½ inches thick and enclosed in steel sheeting two and a half inches thick. It is 20 feet below the auditorium and above it are five floors and a roof of reinforced concrete with a combined thickness of 46 inches. It is estimated to be resistant to anything except a direct atomic bomb hit."

"If an A-bomb should strike Washington," Dr. Todd added, probably the only moving thing the following day would be the rubble of the National Archives building with the nation's three most historic documents perched safely atop an altar-like shelf."

Concluding his statements relative to the new shrine, Dr. Todd quoted from President Truman's dedicatory address, saying: "If the Constitution and Declaration of Independence were enshrined in the Archives building, but nowhere else, they would be dead, and their burial place would be only a stately tomb. The Constitution and the Declaration can live only as long as they are enshrined in our hearts and minds. If they are not so enshrined, they would be no better than mummies in their glass cases, and they could in time become idols whose worship would be a grim mockery of the true faith. Only as the ideas envisaged in these documents are reflected in the thoughts and acts of Americans can they remain symbols of a power that can move the world."

Constitution And Declaration In New Shrine

"HURMPH!" trumpeted Sheedy, "What a elephant time to have my hair act up. Might as well break my date and get trunk!" Luckily he was overheard by a Pachydermitologist who said, "Tusk, tusk! You've got a messy big top from pouring those buckets of water on your head. Get out of your ivory tower and visit any toilet goods counter for a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil, 'Your Hair's Best Friend'. Non-alcoholic. Contains soothing Lanolin. Relieves dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test." Paul got Wildroot Cream-Oil, and now all the girls tent to him more than ever. So why don't you try Wildroot Cream-Oil? It only costs peanuts—29¢. And once you try it, you'll really have a circus.

Messick Attends Chicago Meeting

President John D. Messick of East Carolina college has been in Chicago this week attending the annual meeting of the American association of Colleges for Teacher Education, national organization for the improvement of teacher education. He is a member of the Accreditation committee of the association and in Chicago participated in the work of this group.

Some 600 presidents, deans and professors in teachers colleges and university schools of education attended the annual convention as representatives of 263 member colleges and universities.

As a member of the Accreditation committee of the AACTE, Dr. Messick and others on the committee reviewed at Chicago the evaluation reports of 25 colleges and universities which are now members of the organization and which have been rated according to standards set up by the AACTE. The committee also made recommendations at the business session held during the Chicago meeting concerning applications for membership from other institutions.

East Carolina's Sonny Russell, 'Mr. Basketball'

by Bruce Phillips

Many heavenly bodies congest our skies which in everyday diction we call stars. These stars have numerous forms and sizes and all glow brilliantly. On the earth we also have stars, in the mold of human beings. Movie, civic and sports stars are idolized by millions, and of all these celestial figures, athletes are the most universal.

On a torrid, moist-less day in August, 1949, at the high school All-Star Basketball revue held at Guilford college, a new star was born! The temperature was hot, but a tousle-haired basketballer from New Bern was even hotter. The drive and speed of this youngster, plus phenomenal scoring finesse, impressed the spectators to the extent that they immediately became Warren (Sonny) Russell-infatuated.

So captivated, they chose Russell as the most valuable player in the contest, proving that boys from smaller schools can surpass their big brethren from larger institutes in basketball. The award was one of the first of many to be given Sonny Russell signifying his basketball brilliance.

Stands With Best

An interested observer that night was Eddie Hickey, astute basketball coach of the St. Louis Billikens, who has developed many national greats including Easy Ed McAuley. Hickey had this to say about Russell: "I can safely report that Sonny Russell is on par with anyone in the land. I'd certainly like to have a couple like him on my team." This statement was made while Sonny was still in high school circles!

Under the tutorage of Lee Morgan at New Bern high school, Russell didn't confine his capacities only to basketball but was also an outstanding three letterman. He was a paragon of football player! Converting his hardwood agility and elusiveness to the gridiron, he developed into an outstanding end on the football team. He was All-conference flanker and led his team in scoring for two consecutive years.

Russell Dribbles . . .

He was a versatile grinder, doing all the punting and booting extra points.

Russell was no slouch on the baseball diamond either. Exhibiting elite naturalness as a first baseman he hit in the neighborhood of .400 for three years in a row. As a prep basketballer Sonny came into his own. He has always found flipping the leather-covered sphere through the basketball hoop an easy feat. He is New Bern's pride and joy and has every reason in the world to be so. He was All-state, All-conference, and as far as the natives around this area are concerned, All-American! As a high schooler he averaged 14.5 points created much agony around the conference.

No Sophomore Jinx

First on East Carolina's schedule was Wilson Teachers college and the sublime Russell was off like Citation with 27 points. He was magnificent showman his sophomore year developing into an electrifying playmaker as well as enormous scorer. Midway in the "50-51" campaign Sonny exploded for a tremendous 35 points against a bewildered WCTC quintet.

At the termination of the year Sonny was chosen on the North Carolina All-state team. His teammates came from the Big Four—Duke, State, Carolina and Wake Forest with Russell being the only "small" college boy to receive the honor. The All-state selection was a pinnacle in the career of Sonny Russell and no basketball player ever deserved an award more. Russell helped lift EC out of the losers' bracket in the North State league and bestowed on the Pirates prestige and esteem. He did a fine reconstruction job in the Pirates' attack and was the stalwart leader and team man.

East Carolina went to the North State tournament that year and played excellent basketball. The entire Pirate team placed on the All-tourney squad and naturally Sonny was endowed with his second straight All-tourney position. The Pirates finished in second place. For the season Russell scored 357 points and was placed on every team's mythical All-opponent aggregation.

Between the basketball and baseball season on May 19, 1951, Sonny de-toured from sports to take to himself a bride. He married the former Miss Sue Ann Harman of Lynn, Ind. Now Sonny had another ardent fan and inspiration in the lovely Mrs. Russell.

The Russell-captured EC team had a good year in "51-52", winning 16 games while losing nine. East Carolina played in the NIAB tournament, but lost to a fired-up Lenior Rhyme club. During the season Sonny bucketed 35 points against ACC and fired away for 27 against a hapless Citadel five. He scored 408 points for a 17.5 average. For the third consecutive time he was honored on the All-tournament team

Joins College Ranks

Luckily for East Carolina Sonny chose a school close to home and enrolled here in the fall of 1949. He immediately struck a flame in the Pirates, who up to this time had been easy pickings for the opposition, and literally set the North State conference afire. In his college debut he was an instantaneous sensation. He found college competition mild prey for his "smooth-as-cream" executions of ticklish maneuvers.

In his initiation against Wilson Teachers college he lit the scoreboard with an even dozen points, and this illumination was th igniting spark that has burned brightly for four years. Mr. Russell ran, faked and scored his way into an All-conference berth as a freshman, and was heralded as one of the finest cagers to hit the North State in many a moon.

East Carolina finished only fourth best that year, but held altitude enough in the standings to participate in the North State tournament. The Pirates played only one game, but that was long enough for Sonny Russell to receive honorable mention on the All-tourney squad.

Russell, persuaded not to waste his abilities, turned to the baseball game come spring, and played a formidable game at first base, hitting .300 as a college player. He was a definite factor in a very successful season for the Pirates. His hardwood co-ordination and speed blended nicely with the diamond demands, and Sonny fitted in like four aces in a poker hand.

Sonny's sophomore year was probably his finest. He had as an affiliate huge Bobby Hodges from Kingston, in his own a sensational cager. As a caging couple they were unsurpassed in North State circles. They gave the Pirates a superb one-two punch, consequently the Bucs

. . . Russell Drives

and by this time Russell's reputation was nationally known.

Another Great Year

Thus far this season Sonny has scored 326 points for a 23.3 game output. The Pirates are currently pedestal aloft the conference with a 11-2 league record. Against High Point a couple weeks ago Russell dumped in a voluminous total of 38 points and backed that up by whipping the cords for 35 against WCTC. Man! That's what we call basket punishment.

This writer has seen many basketball greats including Ranzino, Dickey, Groat, Cousy, McAuley, and McKinhandle Sunday dinner biscuits. He is apt to cover any long-inherited guard with confusion who does not come into the game with reasonable quickness of hand and foot. He can go into a pivot and be extremely effective because of terrific shiftness. He can slice off a pivot with a hand-off and because of his elusiveness, complete a neat handed lay-up with miraculous grace.

His stunning hardwood achievements have mounted until Sonny Russell is being heralded locally as "Mr. Basketball." The eighteenth of this month is the last time Sonny Russell will perform before the student body of East Carolina, the school he has contributed much to. Seeing Sonny play basketball is like seeing a master of deception, speed, agility team work and postmarking. Knowing Sonny is knowing a fine sportsman, a truly terrific athlete and a great guy!

NS Standings

The Buccaneers of East Carolina are currently holding fast to their top position in the North State conference. The Bucs, as of the first of the week, are holding an 11-2 record as against the nearest challenger, Elon, which has an 8-5 mark.

Should East Carolina win at least two of its remaining games with High Point, Atlantic Christian and Elon, they would go to the annual North State conference tournament in Winston-Salem in first place as the top seeded five.

SPORTS ECHO

by Bob Hilldrup

Ramors have been flying back and forth on campus that the coming High Point basketball game, last home court contest for the Pirates, will be added to by a "Sonny Russell Night."

The High Point contest will mark the final home game for East Carolina's great All-State hoopster. The move has been brought up in the Student Government and has received the backing of Athletic Director N. M. Jorgensen. Although plans are not complete as yet, it appears that the advanced idea will be put into effect.

It is our opinion that the Student Government should be lauded for this idea. It is indeed a commendable one and beyond a shadow of doubt Russell is deserving of the honor.

Although there weren't too many students present at Saturday's basketball contest with McCrary's Eagles, those that were on hand were treated to a fine display on the part of the Pirates.

It was good to see the Bucs continue their pace setting and not let up against independent competition. In fact the locals could well consider their triumph over the Eagles as a rather large feather in their hats if one remembers that the men from Ashtero have held their own with some of the top fives in the Southern conference.

Sonny Russell turned in another outstanding ball game as did big Bobby Hodges. Hodges' play under the backboards was especially noteworthy. Charlie Huffman and his hook shot drew gasps of praise from the crowd, and Cecil Heath's play under the backboards against the much taller Eagles was indeed a pleasure to watch. J. C. Thomas, although bothered with the inability to hit on lay-up shots, turned in one of his better ball games.

Unless a major disaster strikes the Pirates, they will go into the annual North State conference tournament at Winston-Salem as the top seeded ball club. The Bucs have been plagued with tough luck in post-season play for many a year and this time will probably be carrying an added jinx. Never, since the tournament was initiated has the top seeded club come off with the laurels. We believe, however, that this is the Pirates' year, and unless over-confidence strikes them down it looks as if the Pirates will bring home their first championship in a major conference sport.

Athlete Of The Week

The title "Athlete of the Week" goes for this issue to Cecil Heath, standout guard of East Carolina's victorious basketball five. Cecil was chosen for the title this week because of his outstanding floor play against the McCrary Eagles Saturday night.

In the McCrary game Cecil ran rings around his individual opponent and time and again was seen to emerge from a backboard scramble in possession of the ball. Despite his height of less than six feet, the sophomore sensation from Wilmington constantly outjumped the taller Eagles.

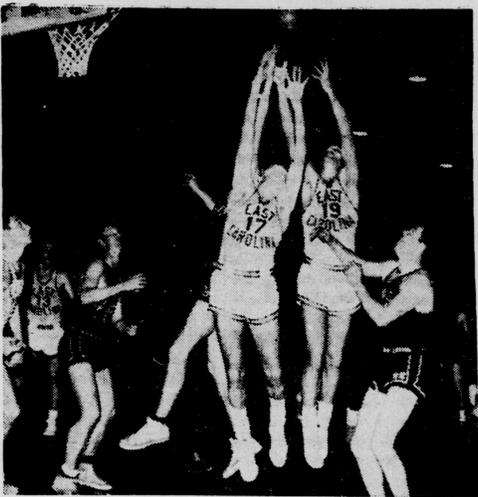

A steady, all round performer, Cecil is a constant thorn in the side of East Carolina opposition. As a ball handler he has few equals and his set shot is the talk of the North State conference.

The big thrill of Heath's collegiate basketball career came on the night of January 10 when the Buccaneers edged Elon 76-75 on the Christians' court. Cecil sank nine important points that night, including five out of six free throws and in addition turned in a stellar defensive game.

Bobby Hodges and Charlie Huffman are shown as they do some rebound work in the recent game with McCrary's Eagles. In addition to controlling the backboards, both boys played outstanding offensive games.

Buccaneers Open 19 Contest Baseball Schedule In March

A 19-game schedule for the East Carolina baseball team has just been released, according to Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of athletics.

The Pirates, under the tutorage of Coach Jack Boone, will open play March 27 at Atlantic Christian college in Wilson. Play will close on Wednesday, May 13, when the Bucs meet the same team on the local diamond.

The first home contest will be played March 31 when the Pirates engage New Bedford Institute of New Bedford, Mass. New Bedford is the only new club to be added to the Pirate schedule this year. The Bucs will meet one other inter-sectional foe, Montclair State Teachers college from Montclair, N. J.

All home games are scheduled to begin at 2:45.

The schedule:
March 27—Atlantic Christian, away
March 31—New Bedford Institute, home

Last year saw the division of the North State conference into two sections with regard to baseball. Five clubs—High Point, Elon, Guilford, Atlantic Christian and East Carolina make up the Eastern division with Western Carolina, Appalachian, Lenoir-Rhyne and Catawba comprising the Western division. At the end of regular season play the champions from the respective divisions meet for the conference crown.

Bucs Down Eagles By 79-65 Count; Hodges Sinks 28

by Sam Hux

Gunning for their twelfth seasonal victory of the year the East Carolina Pirates bested a rugged McCrary Eagles semi-pro five, 79-65, in Memorial gym Saturday night.

Behind a great scoring exhibition by big Bobby Hodges, the Bucs put on a second half splurge to push ahead of the game Eagles. Hodges netted 28 points during the evening.

Next to "Firpo" in the point column was Sonny Russell with 18 points. Although suffering from a knee injury, the All-America candidate from New Bern turned in a great floor game.

Besides the torrid inter-collegiate pace being set on the hardwoods a similar race in competitive spirit is raging in the intramural circles. For six weeks now 17 teams have battled down the wire for campus supremacy.

In the "A" league the Sheriffs seem to be the cream-of-the-crop, with the Carterets and Knights-of-the-Hardwood offering a stalwart challenge. The Sheriffs are well united and could give a lot of college clubs a good battle. Leading the "posse" for the Sheriffs are Sonny Furlong and Larry Rhodes both fine basketballers in high school. Furlong is hitting the can for a 13.6 average and Rhodes is following closely with a game output of 9.1 points.

Second place is co-owned by the Carterets and the Knights-of-the-Hardwood with identical marks of 7-2. The Carterets' Clyde Owen is the outstanding scorer in both leagues with a 16.9 average. He has had formidable help from James Fodrie, though, who boasts a 14.3 mark. This team should give the Sheriffs plenty of trouble for the champ's seat. The Knights-of-the-Hardwood have accumulated their victories on the able aim of Jack Pickett and Bob Oliver who have scored a total of 141 points between them.

The Hot Pants round out the top four, and the "flame" in their attack has been Topypy Hayes with 11.5 points per contest. The Globetrotters are down the ladder five steps. Seven steps down are the Fancyy Pants, led by John McAden. The Arabs are at the cellar door with a skimpy 2-5 record. Joe Hallow is the Arabic chief, possessing a 10-point average. The Whiz Kids are a long ways from home, embedded in the cellar with a 2-7 mark. Stroud has been the only "whiz" on their team with a dandy 10.5 a game claim.

In the "B" league the Jocks have the distinction of being the only undefeated ball club in the entire intramural program. The Jocks have an admirable 9-0 record and have two fine scorers in Don McLawhorn and Tommie Lupton. McLawhorn is basketballing-it with an average of 11.3 and Lupton is hitting the nets to the tune of 9.8 a contest. The Lowlanders have shown class in residing in second place with a 7-2 mark. Johnny Carr, Tommy Owens and Leamon Benson are leading the Lowlanders to higher meadows.

The Slow Pokes, Phantoms and Ham Bones are tied for third place with identical marks of 4-4. The Phantoms' Ned Lee and Jack Benson

Contest Has Bearing On Final NS Standings As Elon Seeks Revenge

The chips will be down tomorrow night when the East Carolina Pirates collide head on with Elon's tighting Christians in a North State conference basketball game that will have tremendous bearing on the final standings.

The visitors have a slim chance at the title and their fate would be considerably improved if they could down Howard Porter's Buccaneers.

Wednesday night, however, promises to be one of the great nights in East Carolina sports history. According to reports received up until press time plans are underway to stage a "Sonny Russell Night" in honor of the Pirates' All-State and potential All-American forward who will be playing his last home game. Approval of the plan has already been received from Athletic Director N. M. Jorgensen, and final measures were discussed at the Student Government's meeting Wednesday night.

Russell will lead the Pirates into tomorrow night's fracas with a 23.3 point per game average compiled through the Bucs' past 15 contests. Bobby Hodges, Cecil Heath, Charlie Huffman and J. C. Thomas will in all probability round out the Pirates' starting five.

The Christians and the Pirates have met once previously this season. In that contest the locals edged Elon 76-75 in a thriller at Burlington.

Bulletin!

The SGA voted Wednesday night to hold "Sonny Russell Night" next Wednesday as planned, after a committee visited Dr. Messick on the subject. Athletic Department Head N. M. Jorgensen has already given his approval to the measure, but Basketball Coach Howard Porter refused to sanction the idea.

are the "spirit" in their drive, both owning 8 points averages. The Ham Bones have Pat Hunt and Rodney Heath in their drivers' seat. Hunt has "waddled" for a 9.3 game standing and has been the spark in the Ham Bones. The Cyclones and Wolfpack share the same records of 4-5. Ward is the Wolfpack "lead-dog" with 62 points in eight contests. The Cyclones' Eston Smith has "whirl-ed" for 81 points and a 9 point average.

The Jelly Bellies are "feeling kinda low" in the eighth position with a 1-5 mark. The "jumpy-stomachs" have one fine scorer, though, in Flyers. The Hot Trotters seem to have been quenched by some sort of extinguisher as they patrol the of the barrel with

Phillips Releases Information For Spring Term Registration

Registration for the Spring quarter at East Carolina college will be held Tuesday, March 3, in Wright auditorium, according to Registrar Orval L. Phillips.

Permits to register may be obtained at the Registrar's office through Friday, February 27 and fees may be paid at the Business office up until the same time. Dr. Phillips reminds students that the time necessary to complete registration will be considerably less for those who obtain permits and pay fees before registration day.

Seniors, practice teachers and transfer students will register from 8:30 until 10:30 a.m.; juniors from 10:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.; sophomores from 12:30 p.m. until 2:30 p.m.; freshmen from 2:30 p.m. until 4:30 p.m.; Graduate students will be permitted to register at any time during the day.

Steps to be followed on registration day are:

1. Those who have secured permits to register and have already paid fees should enter the Wright auditorium through the north door. It will not be necessary for these people to stand in the line of people waiting to pay fees.
2. Those who have not secured permits to register and who have not paid fees should enter Wright auditorium through the center door.
3. If application for 19 or 20 hours has been filed and approved secure the approved application from the registration table near the door in Wright.
4. Secure schedule cards from your advisor. New students may secure table before seeing their advisors.
5. Have the instructor of each class sign schedule cards.
6. Go to check-out table.

Novelist Speaks To Organizations

Books for children are built on ideals of courage, faith and love of beauty and are based on the belief that "It is wonderful to be young," Mrs. Mebane Holoman Burgwyn, North Carolina novelist, said in a talk before East Carolina college student organizations Tuesday, February 10, in the College theatre.

Mrs. Burgwyn, whose home is Jackson, N. C., is the author of three books for young people which have been widely read and have received favorable comments from critics. "Penny Rose," her latest work, was recently published by the Oxford University press. The novelists' visit to the campus was sponsored by the Future Teachers of America, the English club, and the Association for Childhood Education at the college.

"Out of a desire to share," Mrs. Burgwyn told her audience, "comes the desire to create." She recounted many of the adventures of her childhood and of her later experiences in the Occaneechee Neck of Northeastern Carolina, and told how she translated these events and her reactions to them into fiction.

During her visit to East Carolina Mrs. Burgwyn was entertained by members of the student organizations at a dinner at the Greenville Woman's club and, after her talk, at an informal reception at the Training school.

Women Play Intramural Ball

An announcement recently released states that any woman student is eligible to compete in the Women's Basketball program currently in progress. The program is under the sponsorship of the Women's Athletic association and games are held two nights each week.

A tournament is scheduled for the first week in March, at which time a champion of the league will be named.

The officials at these contests are students currently enrolled in P. E. 212, Coaching Girls' Basketball, of which Miss Margaret Tift is the instructor. Sylvia Wynick is leading the scoring parade at present with 58 points. Ann Bell is second with 40, followed by Polly Garner and Evelyn Blount with 39 and 35, respectively.

YOU?

If you can make the grade, you can fly the latest, hottest, fanciest jobs in the air—and do it within one year.

IT TAKES a good, tough, serious guy to wear the gear of an Aviation Cadet. But if you can measure up, here's your chance to get the finest in aviation training—training that equips you to fly the most modern airplanes in the world and prepares you for responsible executive positions, both in military and commercial aviation.

It won't be easy! Training discipline for Aviation Cadets is rigid. You'll work hard, study hard, play hard—especially for the first few weeks. But when it's over, you'll be a pro—with a career ahead of you that will take you as far as you want to go. You graduate as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Air Force, with pay of $5,300.00 a year. And this is only the beginning—your opportunities for advancement are unlimited.

ARE YOU ELIGIBLE? To qualify as an Aviation Cadet, you must have completed at least two years of college. This is a minimum requirement—it's best if you stay in school and graduate! In addition, you must be between 19 and 26½ years, unmarried, and in good physical condition.

YOU CAN CHOOSE BETWEEN PILOT OR AIRCRAFT OBSERVER If you choose to be an Aircraft Observer, your training will be in Navigation, Bombardment, Radar Operation or Aircraft Performance Engineering.

New Aviation Cadet Training Classes Begin Every Few Weeks!

HERE'S WHAT TO DO:

1. Take a transcript of your college credits and a copy of your birth certificate to your nearest Air Force Base or Recruiting Station. Fill out the application they give you.
2. If application is accepted, the Air Force will arrange for you to take a physical examination at government expense.

Where to get more details:

Visit your nearest Air Force Base or Air Force Recruiting Officer. Or write to: Aviation Cadet, Headquarters, U. S. Air Force, Washington 25, D. C.

3. Next, you will be given a written and manual aptitude test.
4. If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet training class. The Selective Service Act allows you a four-month deferment while waiting class assignment.
