VOLUME XXVIII GREENVILLE, N. C., FRIDAY, APRIL 24, 1953 Number 25

Spring Concert On Agenda Tuesday Evening By Band

Senior Music Major Appears As Soloist; Carter, Gray Conduct

Herbert Carter, conductor; Robert E. Gray, guest conductor; and Dolores Matthews of Henderson, clarinet soloist, will appear with the East Carolina college concert band at its annual spring program to be presented Tuesday, April 28, at 8:15 p.m. in the College theatre. The public is invited.

Mr. Gray, faculty member at the college, will conduct the band as it plays "Music For a Festival" by Gordon Jacob. This spectacular selection, commissioned by the Arts Council of Great Britain for the 1951 Festival of Britain, includes alternate movements for a choir of trumpets and trombones with tympani and for full band. Mr. Carter, director of the band, will conduct the group in other numbers.

Miss Matthews, who will appear as soloist on the program, will play C. M. Von Weber's "Concertino for Clarinet," opus 26. She is a music major at the college and a member of the junior class.

Selections for the evening will include a number of compositions chosen for their popular appeal. Among these will be excerpts from the hit musical "The King and I" by Rodgers and Hammerstein; Frank Skinner's "Tap Roots," a condensed score from the original film music; and several spirited marches, including "Commando March" by the contemporary American composer Samuel Barber. Other compositions to be presented by the band will include Bach's "If Thou Be Near" and Wagner's "Invocation of Alberich" from "Das Rheingold."

Program Soloist

Dolores Matthews, senior music major at the college, will appear as clarinet soloist with the College Concert band Tuesday evening at the annual spring program of the group.

Educators Hold Discussion Meet On State Schools

How East Carolina college can help public school teachers in the state by offering an expanded and improved program of teacher-training received comment and discussion Wednesday afternoon of last week at a meeting on the campus of superintendents, principals, teachers and others.

More than 50 representatives of public schools met with college officials at that time to review various aspects of education for teachers. Dr. J. K. Long, head of the college department of education, presided. A large number of those in attendance participated in informal discussion from the floor.

Opportunities of establishing educational television programs and the expense involved; special education, with emphasis on the recruiting and training of teachers in the field; extension work and in-service training of teachers; and recruitment of classroom teachers were among topics under consideration.

Speakers of the afternoon included Hartwell Campbell, manager of radio station WGTC of Greenville, and President John D. Messick and Dean Leo W. Jenkins of the college.

Yearbook, Paper Appoint Editors For Next Year

Editors of next year's publications' staffs were chosen at a recent meeting of the East Carolina Publications board. Donna Jean Yancey and T. Parker Maddrey were chosen to head the annual and paper staffs, respectively.

Donna has served as editor of this year's college annual during the Winter and Spring quarters. For the Fall term this year she served as an associate with Roy Creech. Donna will be a senior next year.

Having served as assistant editor for two quarters this year, Parker was selected to head the editorial staff of the "East Carolinian" next year. A rising sophomore, he has worked closely with the staff this year.

At the meeting of the board, Tommie Lupton, editor of the "East Carolinian" for two years, was asked to serve as student advisor to the college weekly.

Other members of the two staffs of the publications will be selected by the respective editors. Both staffs are open to any students who wish to participate in the activities.

Adding Machine Company Presents Demonstrations

Representatives of the Burroughs Adding Machine company will be on the East Carolina campus throughout the entire week of April 29 through May 5 to present a series of demonstrations of the latest Burroughs business and accounting machines.

These representatives are being brought here through the Beta Kappa chapter of Pi Omega Pi, honorary business fraternity at East Carolina. The demonstrations planned for April 29-30 and May 1 will be open to students in business education only. On May 4 and 5 all college students, faculty, local businessmen and high school students are invited to attend.

All demonstrations will be held in Room 7B of Flanagan building from 9-12 and 3 o'clock each day.

Apply For Deferments

All male students on the campus who seek deferment from the draft for the next school year should obtain a Selective Service form 109 from Mrs. J. L. Lamm at the Registrar's office before the end of the quarter. Those students with 1-A, 1-S and 2-S classifications who have high scholastic ratings and are interested in deferment are urged to fill the form in order that the registrar may send the grades to local draft boards.

Camp Counseling!

Physical Education 130, camp counseling, three quarter hours credit, will be offered at Camp Hardy, Washington, N. C., during the date of May 25-June 5, if there is sufficient student interest.

The course is aimed at preparing students to act as camp counselors, and includes instruction in the areas of arts and crafts, out-of-door living skills, nature study, boating and swimming, camp leadership and recreational activities.

Students should sign up for the course on bulletin boards in the dormitories or Memorial gymnasium and fill out application forms with Miss Nell Stallings or Dr. Charles DeShaw by May 1. The cost is $45 for tuition, board and lodging.

Home Ec Group Selects Hankley Division President

Patty Hankley of Galax, Va., student at Appalachian State Teachers college, was elected president of the College Clubs division of the North Carolina Home Economics association at the Eighth Annual workshop or the organization held at East Carolina college April 17 and 18.

Other officers chosen by the group are Martha Snow of Raleigh, Meredith student, vice president; Sybil Lennon of Evergreen, Mars Hill student, secretary; Edna Lee Page of Buie's Creek, Campbell college student, treasurer; and Katherine Hazeltine of Dana, Gardner-Webb student, reporter. Marion Adams of Appalachian was chosen as faculty advisor.

Reinhardt Addresses Lecture Club, Chapel

Charles A. Reinhardt of Clinton will speak before the Faculty Lecture club of East Carolina college and at student chapel exercises at the college next week. He is a graduate of Harvard and at present is minister of the Universalist circuit in and near Clinton.

Before the faculty organization Mr. Reinhardt will discuss "Church, State and Education." The meeting will be held Monday, April 27, at 8:15 p.m. in the Flanagan auditorium. Those who wish to attend will be welcomed by members.

"Affirmative Faith of a Liberal" will be the topic of Mr. Reinhardt's message to students at chapel exercises at noon Tuesday, April 28, in the Austin auditorium.

Annual Campus May Day Program Offers Oriental Music, Dances

Students Pick Entertainment To Appear On 1953-54 Slate

The results of the balloting held April 9 by the Student Government in order that the students might pick their Entertainment series for 1953-54 have just been released by Bill Pennel.

Considerably less than one third of the eligible voters, or 438 students, voted during the day. Students were asked to check eight of the 15 listed programs. Not all of the voters saw fit to do so, however.

The results are as follows:
*Dora Cossack choir and dancers 235
*North Carolina Symphony orchestra 292
Boris Goldovsky's Opera theatre 141
*American Album of Familiar Music 232

*Barter theatre 210
*Immortal Musicals 354
Ballet Russe De Monte Carlo 102
Panegyris 83
Euzkadi 82
*Philharmonic Piano quartette 228
Dorothy Warenskjold 92
Mildred Miller 86
*Anna Russell 225
Charles L. Wagner Grand Opera company 156
*Famous Dance band 430
(Asterisk indicates the top eight choices.)
Also included on the ballot were spaces in which the voters were to list whether or not they did or did not see individual performances during the 1952-53 Entertainment series. The results for those votes were not available when the paper went to press.

Also included on the ballot was a space in which the voters were asked to comment on the future entertainments.

Bill Pennel, who was in charge of counting the returns, stated with regard to the commentary on the ballots, "The comments have not been formally counted because most of them were dirty remarks which did not pertain to the question."

Various Groups Hear Local Dean In Speech Series

Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina college has scheduled a series of speeches to be made this month and in May and June before various civic, religious and educational groups in eastern North Carolina.

At the annual Boy Scout camporee of the East Carolina council, held at the Tarboro Air field April 17, Dean Jenkins addressed an estimated 3,000 boy scouts, adult leaders and guests from 20 counties. He will speak also at a banquet given May 6 by Washington, N. C., girl scouts in honor of their fathers.

Dr. Jenkins' schedule includes talks at St. Pauls Methodist church in Goldsboro, May 3.

Educational organizations to which the East Carolina dean spoke this month include the Lenior County Schoolmasters club, in Kinston, April 16; the New Bern Parent-Teacher association, April 20; and the Jacksonville PTA, April 23.

Commencement addresses before graduates of high schools in eastern North Carolina will take Dean Jenkins to the following schools: Calypso, May 11; Topsail, May 14; Walstonburg, May 18; Bath, May 19; Stonewall, May 22; Fremont, May 26; Rowwood, May 27; Westbrook in Clinton, May 29; Princeton, June 1; and Swan Quarter, June 2.

Any young men interested in being considered for a job with the Commercial Credit corporation contact M. L. Starkey, telephone 2130, Greenville.

Coronation Ceremonies Highlight Festivities Of Traditional Event

The rich tapestry of the forthcoming May day celebration here relies on the music of six Oriental countries for its background and draws its color from some 50 dancers.

Following the coronation ceremonies at the college stadium at 5:30 p. m., May 1, students participants, under the supervision of Mrs. Grace Eaton, May day director, will execute dances representative of China, Japan, Hawaii, Israel, India and the Philippine islands. The program will conclude with the traditional English May Pole dance.

Brass and percussion ensemble under the direction of Robert Gray of the Music department will accompany the dancers. They will provide the "Grand March" from "Aida" as the coronation processional. Background music, consisting of folk tunes, will be presented by Dr. Dan Vornholt's Woman's chorus.

UNESCO Theme

Currently, with so much attention being given to creating better understanding between nations, the UNESCO theme was deemed appropriate. Mrs. Eaton comments that the theme is promoting better understanding of the cultural aspects of these nations.

A hope for success came from Miss Hideo Tamura, a Japanese student at Warren-Wilson college at Swannanoa. She and four other students were reached through the Foreign Missions and overseas Interchange service in New York. Studies will permit only two of these students to attend the celebration here. They are two sisters, Chalawhit and Oranuth Khongkahakul from Bangkok, Thailand.

Twelve Indian, Japanese and Formosa students of North Carolina State college have been invited to attend also.

The May Queen's throne, situated opposite the bleachers, will be flanked on either side by three decorative booths in which the dances will be staged.

Costumes, Decorations
The Costume and Decorations committee, composed of Miss Jean Brickhouse, Edna L. Lamm, assistant dean of women, and members of the Home Economics department, have procured costumes of Hindu wear, kimonos, saris, and other traditional dress.

Those present to enjoy the evening of music and dancing included students and faculty members at the college and their guests and patrons of the Entertainment series from Greenville and a number of other localities in eastern North Carolina.

An hour-long concert opened the evening's program. Dancing until midnight followed.

Attention Seniors!

John Robert Klutz, president of the Senior class, announced this week that the Senior class banquet will be held in the North Dining hall on May 2 at 6:30 p.m. followed by the annual Junior-Senior dance.

The menu will feature a steak dinner. Jerry Sandford will have charge of the program, the theme of which will be "Remembrance of College Days."

Klutz urged all seniors who have not sent in their money to remember that the deadline is April 26. He added that prior to Wednesday of this week only 150 names are on the list for reservations.

Playhouse Entertains Children At 'Robin Hood' Presentations

Approximately 5,000 school children are having the time of their lives this week as they attend "Robin Hood," presented in a series of performances by the Teachers playhouse of East Carolina college as their annual play for young people. Sponsors of the production are members of the Greenville branch of the American association of University Women.

A series of six local performances began at Eppes School in Greenville April 16, when more than 1,200 Negro children saw the play. Mantinees for pupils in other city and Pitt county schools drew large audiences to the College theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday; and adults and college students saw the drama Monday night. The closing performance here took place Thursday afternoon.

Tonight the Teachers playhouse will take the play to Kinston. There it will be given in Matinee and evening performances at the Grainger high school.

Douglas Mitchell of Greenville and Ann McCary of Durham as Robin Hood and Maid Marian head a cast which includes many of those famous in the romantic legends of the famous outlaw. Percy Wilkins of Benson, as Guy of Gisborne, plays the villain of the piece.

David Lee of Tarboro, Marvin Brown of Rockingham, Kenneth Bordeaux of Mt. Olive and Thomas Pierce of Rocky Mount make up the band of the Merry Men of Sherwood Forest. Clarence Poe Mooring as Friar Tuck and Ralph Rives of Enfield as the Sheriff of Nottingham are turning in hit performances.

Washington Officials Speak At Commencement

US Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and US Commissioner of Education Earl J. McGrath will appear as principal speakers at commencement exercises to be held at East Carolina college in May.

President John D. Messick of the college has just announced that the two officials have accepted invitations to participate in the annual spring graduation exercises on the campus. Secretary Benson will deliver the commencement sermon at 11 a.m. Sunday, May 17. Dr. McGrath will make the address to graduates at 10:30 a.m. Monday, May 18. Both will speak in the Wright auditorium.

Appointed by President Eisenhower, Mr. Benson entered into his duties as Secretary of Agriculture with a wide background of knowledge and experience. His position as a Cabinet member places him in a strategic position to influence the agricultural policies of the nation.

Begins Reorganization
As soon as he took office, Secretary Benson began a reorganization of the $730,000,000 Agriculture department. His work is directed by the philosophy that the Department should teach and educate the farmer, that cooperation among farmers is the best way to get along, and that too much control and a too heavily subsidized economy decrease initiative and industry and are demoralizing to the farmer.

He was appointed a county agent in Preston, Idaho, and then in 1930 he became an extension economist and marketing specialist at the University of Idaho. He was instrumental in organizing the Idaho Cooperative council and became its secretary and representative in Washington. In 1939 he was appointed executive secretary of the National Council of Farmer cooperatives, an organization which represents 2,000,000 farmers in 4600 co-ops throughout the country.

Religious Worker
A devoutly religious man, Mr. Benson was appointed in 1943 as a member of the Council of the Twelve Apostles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day saints. Baptized into the Mormon church at the age of eight, he entered the priesthood at twelve and became an elder at nineteen. He has been abroad twice on missions for his church.

Dr. McGrath has had an outstanding career as an educator. He has served as US Commissioner of Education since 1949.

He received his education at the University of Buffalo and at the University of Chicago, from which he holds the Ph. D. degree. Within the past few years almost a score of American colleges and universities have recognized his services to education by conferring upon him honorary degrees.

As a professor and administrator, he has held such positions as professor of education and dean of administration at the University of Buffalo, lecturer in higher education at the Universities of Minnesota and of Chicago, professor of education at the University of Chicago and dean of the College of Liberal arts of the University of Iowa.

Commander In Reserve
From 1942 to 1944, he was a lieutenant commander in the US Naval reserve. During this period he served as special educational advisor to the Chief of Naval personnel, US Navy department; educational consultant, National Roster of Scientific personnel; assistant director of the Education and Training division of the War Manpower commission; and officer in charge, Educational Services Section Training division, Bureau of Naval personnel, US Navy.

In 1949 Dr. McGrath was named of the US State Department, national commission to investigate conditions in the American Occupation of Germany. He was also named the President's Commission on Education during 1952. He has held various other positions.

Sunday Honor Recital

Carolyn Eisele of Statesville, piano, and Leonard Starling of Mount, baritone, will be presenting the East Carolina college department of music in a joint recital at the Austin auditorium, April 26, at 4:00 p.m.

Seniors at the college, the department of music and the department of art have appeared frequently in the past two years in the leading roles in the comedy sponsored by the Government association in 1952 and this spring.

Changes Affect Woman Here

East Carolina's administration and student legislature should indeed be commended for the action that was recently taken when many of the rules affecting women students on campus were revised. In reality many of the changes merely legalized what has been being practiced by the majority of the students.

Granting women students the privilege of staying out until 11 o'clock on Friday nights (beginning next fall) was one of the big changes in regulation. Last year the SGA had tried to push the Friday night curfew hour up, but their efforts were in vain. The old rule which required the girls to be in at 10:30 on Friday nights was set up when the college had Saturday classes. We are now up-to-date in this respect.

Permission was given for girls to "legally" ride up until the time that they had to sign in from dates and for other reasons. Previously the women were supposed to ride not later than 30 minutes before the curfew. The change will keep many girls from feeling guilty all the time.

We feel that the demerit system was set up in a more lenient fashion. The various House committees now handle minor charges up until a certain number of demerits are received by violators; then they are referred to the Women's Judiciary.

There are other minor changes that will appear in next year's handbook, but we feel that we have hit the major items of interest. We hope that that all who are concerned will not abuse these new privileges that have been granted by the administration.

'Paisan' Proves Educational

With so many of our young men going to battle in Korea, the movie Paisan was among the most timely and appropriate we have had on our campus lately.

Paisan, the story of the allied invasion of Italy during World War II, was one of the more realistically, frank representations of war which are uncommon and usually not preferred in the realm of films of historical fiction. However, we feel it safe to say that the brutal vividness of the movie was good for those who saw it, because it made one think seriously on the destruction and devastation that is inevitable in war.

The movie was definitely one of the better minor films; it was produced by the notorious Rossellini and a mild masterpiece of cinematic art, especially to art enthusiasts. The social aspects of the film deal precisely with the association of the Italians with the allied invaders in 1944 during the last bitter phases of the European war.

The reaction of the Italians to the allies was interesting and the feeling of the Italians toward the American GI's was surprising and seemingly much better than recent magazine articles lead us to believe it is today. The word Paisan was the term used among the GI's for the Italian natives.

We feel that the movie Paisan was excellent. It might be beneficial to all of us to watch for further such movies, not only to watch for them but to make an effort to certify getting them for our campus. Paisan came to us through the Greenville Arts festival. We could perhaps thank those responsible and inquire as to possibilities for obtaining further movies of this type to show here. We, of the EAST CAROLINIAN, will assist and back any such efforts.

Are You A Linebreaker?

There is a lot of line-waiting here on the campus and there are even more line-breakers. Line-breakers do not win the love of the patiently waiting students that they push back. It is a childish practice and an impolite one. The line-breaker certainly isn't upholding the golden Rule nor is he showing common courtesy to his fellow man.

Here is a note of warning: The Student legislature has recently asked the Men's Judiciary to take names of all line-breakers and report it to them. We hope that the Student legislature's action will curb this campus crime.

Ye Editor's Say

by Tommie Lupton

May day is only one week off from today and indications are that the program will provide a gala day's entertainment for all who attend. The event in the past has been a very colorful one, and if old man weather permits this year's May day should follow form.

Many of the boys in advanced AFROTC have been talking up summer camp recently. It seems as if most of the boys are looking forward to the four weeks of military life. Talking the subject over with a few of the cadets who will be attending the camp, we found that most of them think the camp will provide a lot of fun as well as much hard work.

Speaking of camps, the college camp counseling program has been shifted this year to Camp Hardy, below Washington, N. C. Last year the camp was held at Crabtree State park near Raleigh. We feel that much valuable experience can be obtained by those who attend the camp.

Readers of the "East Carolinian" can look for a Student legislature reporter next year. The reporter will cover happenings of the East Carolina student governing body each week and will hold a seat on the legislature. We hope that the reporter will help build up the student interest in the SGA, for that is one of the aims of the new administration of the group.

There will be only two more copies of the "East Carolinian" printed this year, and we advise all persons who have news which they wish to appear in these copies to have the material in the paper office at the very earliest possible date. The earlier date that we have the stories the more consideration we are able to give them.

High school day was a big success, according to all reports. After raining nearly all week, the skies cleared, and we had perfect weather in which to entertain our senior visitors. Just think what 3,500 students would have looked like wandering around in the rain.

Homer Thomas is continuing the intramural program on campus, and at the present time there are seven football teams competing in the men's program. Games are played Monday through Thursday on the college baseball field at 4:30 p.m.

The World Student Service fund is setting up a program for aiding 30,000 Korean students. Food, medical supplies and clothes will be sent to Korea as immediate help.

Later, aid will be given in the form of books and student supplies. WSSF was asked to help Korean students by President Dwight Eisenhower last December. We feel that the program being set up is very worthwhile.

ROTC Cadets Ask Questions; Dean Jenkins Gives Answers

(Editor's note: At a recent assembly of the AFROTC cadets on campus, the following questions were asked Dean Leo W. Jenkins, who was speaker for the assembly. Following the questions are the answers to the student's problems.)

The following questions were raised at that meeting: (Since time did not permit a full answer to several of these questions, an attempt will be made to do so here.)

1. Why can't beginning courses in foreign language be taught every quarter?

Our present foreign language staff consists of two instructors. In addition to teaching the foreign language required of all A.B. students, this department must also offer sufficient courses to satisfy the needs of people who are majoring and minoring in French and Spanish. Therefore present teaching load limitations do not permit an increase in the present offerings.

2. Why do we have foreign language requirements for the A. B. degree and not for the B. S. degree?

Under the present concept of higher education, the A.B. degree consists of a broad academic education. In order to obtain this type of education, it is agreed by most colleges that students study something of the language and the customs and the geography of at least one foreign country. The B. S. degree in contrast is a professional or a vocational degree characterized by instruction for a specific type of work. In this insti-

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Phyllis Carpenter

The East Carolina senior chosen for this week's Who's Who is Waylon C. Upchurch from Sanford. This well known student will graduate from East Carolina May 18 of this year with a BS degree, majoring and minoring in science. He came to our campus directly after graduation from high school, entering fall quarter of '49.

Waylon Upchurch

Waylon decided to attend college in Greenville after visiting the campus only one time. He came for a visit with the principal from his high school, who was inquiring about available teachers for his school. Waylon had previously planned to attend another school in the state, but after his short visit, he changed his mind and decided to come here. "I didn't know a soul here so it certainly wasn't the influence of another person that made me change my mind," he said.

Since he has only a few more days here, we asked him what he thought about having to leave, to which he replied, "It's hard to express, but I do know that I sh'd do hate to leave. You never know how dear friends can become in such a short while. This school has become a second home to me."

Until last summer Waylon had a physical education minor, but after finding out that the state had added courses that would prevent his graduating this year, he changed it to science. While attending the 12 weeks session he worked in the infirmary as a self help student.

Waylon is doing his practice teaching this quarter in Winterville high school in ninth grade general science and tenth grade biology. "Boy am I learning from these classes. My tuition is well worth what I paid this quarter. Those students can ask questions that you've never heard of before," he said. "The other day the department supervisor was in the class and they decided to try to get me confused; so tomorrow (they don't know it) they're going to get a 'pop.'"

Every Day Different
While getting the interview we asked him to tell us something about these youngsters that he is teaching, to which he laughed and answered, "That's really a deep subject. 'Cause you see they probably know more about me than I do them." He said that nothing exceptionally amusing had happened in class but that every day was quite different from the day before. "You really have to prepare your work for class," Waylon said. "I know, for I've already done more this quarter than any of the preceding."

This popular senior has been quite active in the organizations here on campus. These are: YMCA four years (a member of the cabinet sophomore and junior years), Wesley foundation four years (president junior and senior years), Interreligious council junior and senior years (vice president junior and president senior), Science club four years (publications chairman junior year), Circle K senior year and Dorm councillor sophomore year.

He has attended a youth caravan with the Methodist church as a representative from the Wesley foundation from EOC. This caravan is sponsored by the General Board of Education of the Methodist church. Two weeks were spent in training at Lake Junaluska, where he studied recreation with intermediates mostly. At Junaluska students from 25 states and Puerto Rico were present. After completing the training he went to South Carolina for seven weeks, where the caravan traveled over the state working with the youths in the local churches of that certain town.

In February of '52 Waylon was one of 20 attending the MSM state conference in Raleigh. At this Methodist movement he was elected vice president. There they discussed and exchanged ideas for their own local foundations. The meetings lasted over the week end and were held in the Fairmont Methodist church. Two hundred and fifty students represented various colleges from all over the state.

After graduation the future is uncertain for Waylon, for he doesn't know how long it will be before he will have to work with Uncle Sam. Until that time comes, though, he plans to obtain a job that contains some phase of science.

Special Ed At East Carolina Helps Students Solve Problems

by Faye O'Neal

What is special education? How many East Carolinians could give definite answers to an outsider's query on the special educational work that is being done here? We do have a definite and functional division of special education at East Carolina; yet it is not very well known among the students just what is being done. Not many of us even know what special education is.

Special education is the title given to the work being done largely through the efforts of Mrs. Dorothy W. Perkins of the Education department at East Carolina. Mrs. Perkins is always glad to discuss this relatively new work with anyone who is interested. Through her we learned something of what is being done in the field of special education here; information that the students should be and probably are attentive to.

Special education is for any student anywhere who has a problem of any kind. Here at East Carolina more generalization has been done in the fields of speech correction and hearing amendment than in any other, yet such important special cases as those of the partially sighted, the crippled, the cardiac, the epileptic, the spastic who has been affected by cerebral palsy, the slow learner and his opposite, the mentally gifted and many others. Special education deals also with emotional problems.

Mrs. Perkins explained that a teacher in special education is something of a "trouble spotter." She is one who has been taught to identify special problems and who knows how to begin offering the special education needed and lastly to whom to refer the troubled individual for other expert advice and medical help, if necessary.

An example of this is the screening and spotting of persons who are partially deaf. According to Mrs. Perkins 70 per cent of the deafness today could have been prevented had the symptoms been recognized and dealt with in their earlier stages. A worker in special education is trained to recognize such symptoms, and the purpose of the work being done here in this field is to train such workers.

Heretofore, special education work has been confined to graduate students. East Carolina certified the first worker in special education in North Carolina in 1951. However with the beginning of the 1953-54 term, undergraduates at East Carolina will have the advantages of this training. Through the cooperation of the art, psychology and science departments with the education department, new courses will be offered to students who wish to obtain special education certificates along with their teacher's degrees.

East Carolina is the only school in North Carolina to offer this certification program. During the first term of school this summer, a clinic for 20 children with speech impediments will be held under the direction of Mrs. Perkins assisted by a guest professor from Michigan. This clinic will be open for observation daily. Mrs. Perkins added that a Special Education day is held each year at the school, with invitations issued to everyone, including welfare workers.

She also expressed a desire to emphasize that any student in this school who feels the need of special attention is welcome in the special education department, and that every thing possible will be done for him. This comparatively new field holds a challenge to many who may be interested. We are proud that East Carolina is to have a part in the crusade to lend a hand to those who are carrying an abnormally heavy load.

Shooting The Bull

by T. Parker Maddrey

Last Friday night we toured with the cast of "Born Yesterday" to Robersonville high school. The students there were very appreciative to this Broadway drama. Also earlier in the day the cast gave the production in the College theatre for High School day.

Before then the cast had given two other performances of the play. A one-night performance was given here for the college students and another at Camp Lejeune for the Marines. Edenton has asked the cast to present the play at their high school in the near future.

It seems that those Teachers' playhouse kids get around. But dramatic work is not all play. There is a lot of work and time put in a playhouse production, more than the average person realizes. These actors and actresses of our local theatre could hardly be classified as "amateurs," for they put extra work in their lines and acting to give their audiences a "Broadway flavor." Our hats go off to Dr. Lucile Charles, dramatic arts director, and all the active members of the Teachers' playhouse.

Ray Anthony certainly won his audience here Monday night. By the large number of persons who filled all seats and standing room in Wright auditorium and by the loud, enthusiastic applause, it appears that everyone enjoyed the entertainment. The secret of Ray's success of captivating the audience lies in his selection of music, his singers, his asking for everyone to join his crew with a song and his parading around the auditorium with his orchestra in their rendition of "When The Saints Come Marching In."

COUPLE OF THE WEEK

No doubt you have noticed the cute little four-foot-eleven freshman and her ardent six-foot-one companion, who are our couple of this week, for they really make a striking couple.

Anne Straghan, who is a freshman from Siler City, is majoring in business, and Claude King who is a sophomore from Wilmington and who is one of our outstanding football players is majoring in physical education.

Anne and Claude met the first week of school this year and have been dating ever since. Their difference in height does not make a difference in their personality.

(Editor's note: By being named "Couple of the Week," Anne and Claude will each be given a carton of Chesterfields, a free pass to the Pitt theatre, a free meal at the Olde Towne Inn and an item from Saslow's Jewellers.)

Communism is the perfect government... if a perfect race of people can be found to live under it.

Now that we have shocked those people who see fit to read this column, we'd like to go into the matter a little more deeply. In the last several months the amount of communist literature that has been received in the East Carolinian office has risen sharply. Formerly our association with communist publications was limited to a periodic paper from Chapel Hill, printed by Junius Seales.

Now, however, at least one other staff member other than ourselves is regularly receiving a communist paper from St. Louis in addition to the countless letters and pamphlets from other organizations.

The latest bit of material is a pamphlet entitled The Southern People's Common Program for Democracy, Prosperity and Peace and is printed and distributed by the Southern Regional Committee, Communist Party of the USA, 268 Seventh avenue, New York City.

This article is an excellent example of playing on words. Those policies of the Party that might appeal to the patriotic, sectionalistic Southerner are carefully brought to the foreground and those items which might be offensive, when possible, are carefully disregarded.

Even the background policy of the Communist Party, everything for the state, is carefully ignored to the extent that the authors do everything possible to appeal to Southern sectionalism and agitate against the rest of the nation.

In all fairness to those who distribute this material we must admit that we enjoy reading it. In fact, one of the more intelligent things done by the government is to allow these people to continue with their open publication. As Americans, they have as their constitutional right the privilege of free speech. It's just a pity that they don't realize how much they are doing to destroy it.

POT POURRI

by Emily Boyce

There was once a woman who stood in an art gallery of modern art. She idly glanced at the various paintings lining the walls and said, "I just can't appreciate this modern art, but I know what I do like." A man standing nearby turned and looked down at her, smiled slowly, and said, "Oh, no, lady! You like what you know."

All of which raises the question why are we afraid to put forth the effort to learn some of the things that we admit we know nothing about? Why do we deliver Olympian judgments that are worthless because we know nothing about the basis for such judgments?

Let us begin with this question: What is education? If this question could be asked to a student group they would probably hem and haw and have to look it up in some book or suggest some one phase of the subject, which is just what we intend to do here. The poet who said, "I am a part of all that I have met," seems to suggest the crux of the problem in educating an individual. One's education is not a mere matter of schooling, but the result of the sum total of experiences, in school and out of it, which one has encountered. All of which seems to indicate that a variety of educational experiences is in order. Now to bring the matter to our campus.

When something "different" is presented, are we like the woman at the art gallery, or do we recognize that here is something we know nothing about, therefore we will do our best to find out about it.

Reference can be made here to the Salisbury Marionettes. Were you one who said, "They are for children, so I will stay away?" or were you one who said, "Here is an unusual use of drama. I'll see it, I'll see what this has to contribute to my knowledge and enjoyment?" The foreign movie Paisan probably couldn't do anything for a person who was not in a receptive mood.

Even the insignificant rabbit, Uncle Wiggily, set out each morning with the idea of going adventuring, and sure enough he always met adventure because he was all set for it. How can we achieve real education unless our mind is stored with rich experiences?

Go all out to expose yourself to these intellectual experiences. How can appreciation be acquired unless exposure occurs first? Going to the various forms of free entertainment that appears on campus and investigating the little intellectual "extras" that we can take advantage of is certainly a good start.

If a little knowledge is dangerous, where is the man who has so much as to be out of danger? —Thomas Huxley

The Ideal Professor

A Texas paper claims it has "found" the ideal professor. He is:

One who can laugh with his class; a guy who has a sense of humor and uses it with the class.

A well-prepared lecturer who thoroughly understands his subjects.

A friendly, enthusiastic person who is really interested in his class and who is aware of the ideas contrary to his own my be just as sound.

One who does not use the curve system of grading, but rather rates each individual effort as well as achievement.

A young man.

SPORTS ECHO

by Bob Hilldrup

Basketball season may be over, but it looks as if it's impossible to keep Sonny Russell out of the headlines. Last night the Circle K club awarded Russell with its first annual Most Valuable Player trophy.

There can be no doubt that the top selection for the honor was made by the votes of Coach Porter and the members of the 1952-53 Pirate court squad. Another round of congratulations is certainly in order for Russell.

While on the subject of handing out laurels it seems that the Circle K should not be neglected. The idea of giving a trophy each year is a truly commendable one and those responsible should be congratulated.

In addition to the trophy a plaque has been obtained by the members of the Circle K. This plaque will be placed in the lobby of Memorial gym and will bear the name of each year's trophy winner from now on.

The institution of the trophy and plaque is very commendable, but it begins to mind once more the question of a trophy case. We had a word or two on the subject a couple of months back, and now it seems as if we might repeat our statements.

East Carolina has never been a powerhouse school as far as athletics are concerned, but we are quite sure that there is a trophy or two lying around somewhere in the athletic department. Even very small high schools have somewhere to display the athletic awards won by their teams and it certainly seems that East Carolina could do as well.

In the last four athletic contests between East Carolina and Atlantic Christian the Bucs have emerged victorious, thereby maintaining the right of possession of the Bohunk trophy. We wonder once more, just how many students have seen this trophy since its institution some 13 years ago.

There are several organizations on campus that are set up to do "service" to the college. The project of obtaining a trophy case would be one of the most worthwhile causes any of them could undertake.

We at East Carolina are proud of our school and yet, to an extent we take it for granted, never realizing that outside of North Carolina few people are aware of its existence.

The football schedule last year and for coming autumn shows that the Pirates will be meeting schools from a wider geographical area and thereby bring more publicity to the school.

Why not then, we wonder, can't the same be applied to baseball? Now the diamond sport is relatively small scale here in comparison to football and basketball, but it could play its part in spreading the name of East Carolina, if the Bucs might induce some of the numerous "yankee" squads that tour the south each spring to stop off in Greenville.

Just a few weeks ago such clubs as Ohio university and Wesleyan college were in the state and played against other North State conference schools. It is true that the Pirates have met two Northern colleges this spring, yet it seems that perhaps a few more games with these touring "invaders" might be arranged next spring in order to make the name of East Carolina better known throughout other areas.

Elon Beats Bucs In Shutout Game On Local Diamond

Championship chances were looking dim for East Carolina here Wednesday, as the Elon Christians shut out the Pirates 4-0 behind the effective four-hit hurling of Sherrill Hall.

The Christians built their loop record to 7-0 and pushed the Bucs down to 6-3.

Striking for two markers in the opening inning, the Elon nine was never in grave danger. They rapped it up with additional runs later as the Bucs were hapless to drive in a score.

Biggest blow was Bobby Stewart's homer. He connected in the fifth with the sacks empty.

Paul Jones and Gaither Cline shared batting honors for ECC with two for four apiece. Jimmy Byrd scattered eight bingles throughout the Christian line-up with no visitor getting more than one hit.

Basketball Team Votes All-State Performer As Top Star Of '52-53

Warren "Sonny" Russell, East Carolina college's All-conference, All-state and, in the opinion of local fans, All-American basketball player, was last night awarded the Circle K club's first annual Most Valuable Player trophy.

At a regular dinner meeting of the Circle K club held at Respos-James Barbecue house at 6 p.m., the ten members of the 1952-53 cage squad, the two managers and Coach Howard Porter were feted by the members of the organization.

Following the supper Student Government President Mitchell Saied announced Russell as the winner of the trophy and presented it to him. Russell was selected by a secret ballot of the basketball squad and Coach Porter.

In addition to the trophy the Circle K has also arranged for a plaque to be erected in the lobby of Memorial gym which will bear the name of each athlete who receives the award.

Pecking Away Sports

by Bruce Phillips

One of the best years in East Carolina athletic history is rapidly drawing to a close now that the May days are nearly upon us and these last few weeks are being crowded with sporting events from the olive-green fairways to the satiny black of the tennis courts.

Coach Boone's edition of our national pastime has just managed a "B" average on the diamond thus far, but with about half the season yet to go the baseball Pirates have an excellent chance to do some looting in the form of victories. The team has been playing baseball in spurts and not in the consistent fashion that makes "Yankees" out of mediocre ball players.

"Trial by error" is our humble advice—try experiments. Clyde Owens is pulling a lot of bench time, and, in the opinion of many, is capable of starting assignments. Charlie Cherry needs only a dose of experience to start him on an excellent season.

Bill Hardison is a veteran ball-player who hustles and handles a stick well enough to go a few rounds, maybe even the full route once in a while. Wilbur Thompson gives the impression, when permitted to play, of being a formidable gloveman and an able hitter.

These meek remarks are not made with the intention of slighting the regulars nor the coaching staff, but were called to this column's attention by some of the ECC populace.

Another phase of sports that is in full swing now is the intramural softball league. Several enthusiastic teams, masculine and feminine, are battling for the campus crown. Over 200 robust individuals are carrying their respective colors into the "neighborhood brawlings" in search of team and player awards.

Buccaneers Best High Point Nine As Hall Triumphs

The East Carolina Pirates continued their mastery over High Point's Panthers last Saturday as they turned 11 hits into seven runs and a 7-2 North State conference win.

Righthander Ken Hall went the distance on the mound for the Bucs and gave up nine hits. He had a shutout until the eighth inning.

The Pirates' erratic batting power came to life in the contest as Cline, Jones, Webb and Hooper collected two hits apiece. Cecil Heath, the Pirates' diminutive second baseman, came through with an insurance run in the ninth inning when he blasted out a home run with the bases empty.

Bohunk Remains With Buccaneers As Bulldogs Bow

by Sam Hux

On the strength of a 20-hit attack and the four-hit performance of Martin Byrd, the East Carolina Pirates massacred the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs, 15-2, in Wilson Tuesday.

What appeared to be a hard-fought pitching duel blew wide open in the fifth stanza as the Bucs pushed eight runs across the plate. The Pirates also tallied four times in the eighth.

Catcher Bill Cline had a perfect day at the plate for the winners. He collected a double and two singles in three times up. Bill Hardison and Charlie Cherry each had two for two while Byrd added his own cause by driving in three runs.

Guilford Squad Defeats Pirates In 7-1 Contest

A slim righthander not long out of high school weathered a rocky first inning start and then settled down to throttle the East Carolina Pirates 7-1 for Guilford's Quakers in a baseball contest last Friday at Guilford.

Franklin Davis, a native of Greensboro, gave up a run to the Bucs in the opening frame on two singles, an error and a passed ball, but then settled down and gave up but three hits for the remainder of the game.

Jimmy Piner was the victim of the Quakers. He gave up only four hits in five innings on the mound but four defensive errors brought about his downfall. Teddy Barnes hurled the remainder of the contest, being touched for three hits.

No Pirate batter was able to collect more than one safe hit.

Conference Contests On Tap In Coming Week

Coach Jack Boone's Buccaneers met the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs on the ECC diamond today to inaugurate a string of four consecutive home contests.

The game today was one of the important Bohunk Trophy battles. The Pirates currently hold possession of the cherished bucket by virtue of a previous win this season.

East Carolina fans will witness plenty of baseball with two home affairs next week and one the following week. High Point, conquered thrice, provides the opposition Wednesday. On Friday the Pirates get a chance for revenge on Guilford's nine, which took the Pirates 7-1 several days ago.

High School Day Welcomes Seniors To Local Campus

East Carolina college welcomed Friday, April 17, more than 3,500 high school seniors who came to enjoy events of the Eleventh Annual High School day on the campus. Students and staff members at the college joined forces in giving visitors a glimpse of East Carolina at work and at play.

Represented on the campus were 200 schools from 51 North Carolina counties extending from Caldwell through Dare. A number of students from Virginia were also present. The Washington, N. C., high school, with 96 seniors present, had the largest delegation.

The day's program was planned to meet the varied tastes of guests and kept the seniors in a whirl of activity from early morning until late afternoon. Conducted tours of the campus, visits to educational exhibitions in departments of instruction, and a general assembly initiated High School day events.

East Carolina President John D. Messick, principal speaker at the assembly, emphasized that education, not recruitment, of students is the aim of the observance of High School day at the college. He urged students to determine their aptitudes and interests and then to find the college best suited to their needs. "Vision, inspiration, perspiration, character, including love of your fellowman, will almost always assure success," he stated.

Societies Donate Hymnals As Gifts To Local Center

A gift of 68 Methodist hymnals was presented to the Methodist Student center by the women of the New Bern district in an impressive service on Sunday evening at the Wesley foundation vesper.

These hymnals were given by the societies of the Woman's society of Christian service, in the various local churches in the district.

Mrs. Adrian Brown, secretary of student work, and Mrs. Clifton L. Boyd, secretary of promotion, for New Bern district presented the hymnals.

They were accepted for the Student Center by Deaconess Mamie Chandler, director of Wesley foundation. Miss Chandler led in the Service of Dedication of the new hymnals "for the glory of God—to an appreciation of the great doxologies of the Church, to the development of the language of praise which belongeth both to earth and heaven; to such inspiration in the service of song that all people may praise the Lord."

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"LISTEN, BIRD-BRAIN, don't get soar, but I cooed never love you," said Sheedy's little chickadee. "Your hair's strictly for the birds! Better remember the three cardinal rules for social success so you won't be an also-wren. 1. Hop to a toilet goods counter. 2. Peck up a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's Favorite Hair Tonic. Contains Lanolin. Non-alcoholic. Grooms the hair. Relieves dryness. Removes goose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test. 3. Use it daily and people will love you." Paul got Wildroot Cream-Oil for himself and a diamond wing for his sweetiepie. Better buy a bottle or tube today. Or ask for it at your barber's. If you don't you're cookoo!
