

Figures Show Parking Place For Every Car On ECC Campus

In a survey made by George Tucker, president of the EPO, and other members of the fraternity it is reported that there are 406 parking places on the ECC campus in the general vicinity from the Wright to Austin buildings.

There are 317 cars registered with Dean Clinton Prewett's office. "This should be evidence enough that there is no real parking problem on the campus," Dr. Prewett said.

Additional parking places are to get under construction immediately. These new parking places will be in back of the Austin building and near Flanagan. The new parking areas should relieve parking congestion in these immediate vicinities.

There has been approximately $40 in fines collected by Dean Prewett's office since the beginning of school. These fines are imposed for parking in no parking zones, parking overtime in restricted zones and other parking and traffic violations. The money collected through fines goes to the Student Welfare Fund. This is a fund used to aid students who are attending the college.

Students are asked to observe the parking rules and regulations here on the campus inasmuch as they are for the benefit of the student himself. It is reported by the police staff that parking conditions on the campus have improved at least 500%.

"We are gratified by response that faculty and students have given in response to parking on the campus," is Dean Prewett's statement when asked about co-operation of the students.

EC Prof Writes On Englishman For NY Bulletin

Dr. Edgar W. Hirschberg of the East Carolina College department of English is represented in the current issue of the "Bulletin of the New York Public Library" by an article entitled "Captain Bland" on the New York Stage, which traces the history of a little-known dramatic work by the better-known British author George Henry Lewes.

"Captain Bland" was never produced in England, Dr. Hirschberg states, and "was, to use the theatrical term, a flop" when presented May 30, 1864, "for the first time on any stage" at Wallack's Theatre in New York. Its interest now lies partly in its authorship by Lewes, English philosophical writer whose biography is linked with that of the great Victorian novelist George Eliot.

For his study of "Captain Bland" Dr. Hirschberg found available in the New York Public Library the prompter's copy used for the Wallack production and, he states, "as far as I know . . . the only version of the play in existence." From reviews of the play in contemporary newspapers and magazines, he traces the reaction of the theatre-going public to "Captain Bland" and gives a glance backward into conditions on the New York stage in the Civil War period.

Dr. Hirschberg joined the East Carolina faculty this summer. He is a graduate of Harvard, Cambridge and Yale and has taught at Indiana University, North Carolina State College and Ohio University.

PITT ALUMNI HEAR OF COLLEGE OPERATIONS

Pitt County alumni of East Carolina College were urged by ECC President J. D. Messick Tuesday night to give full support to the Pitt County Educational Foundation in the current campaign to raise $100,000.

President Messick spoke on the college growth, needs, and alumni support at the meeting of the Pitt County alumni chapter with Mary Thomas Smith, chapter president, in charge. Faculty and alumni cooperation in furnishing the "soon-to-be-completed" faculty-alumni building being converted from the former home management house was also pointed up by President Messick as a project for early support. He described the building program, including completion of the library, renovation of Wright building ground floor for a student union and the construction of the women's and men's new dormitories.

Homecoming Day plans were reviewed by Alumni Secretary James Butler, who said Pitt County alumni should make reservations immediately for the Homecoming Luncheon at 12:30 o'clock and tickets for the East Carolina-Elon football game at 8 o'clock. Campus participation in selection of dormitory queens and the Homecoming Queen were also announced.

The registration of alumni attending the Northeastern District Meeting of the North Carolina Education Association at ECC on October 23 was also announced by Mr. Butler.

There was a large attendance of alumni for the September get-acquainted meeting which featured on the program Dr. Keith Holmes, guitarist, in a folksong fest, with a "surprise" trio number performed by President Messick, Dr. Holmes, and Alumni Secretary Butler.

Miss Smith announced that the chapter will hold a dinner meeting on November 10, its annual games tournament on February 12, 1954, and a buffet in April. The minutes of the first Fall meeting were read by Mrs. Dorothy Johnston, chapter secretary-treasurer.

A social period followed the business meeting with Mrs. Ruel W. Tyson, Miss Christine Johnston and Mrs. Susie Webb.

BURLINGTON ALUMNI CONTINUE SCHOLARSHIP

The first Fall meeting of the East Carolina College Alumni Association's Burlington-Alamance Chapter was held recently in the home of Mrs. E. C. Pate with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Council as co-host and hostess.

Mr. Council, president, appointed the following committee to help him during the coming year: ways and means, Ida Walters, Mrs. E. C. Pate; membership, Estelle McClees, Margaret Walker; hospitality, Mrs. Helen Pope, Helen Johnson; yearbook, Mrs. W. C. Council, Mrs. Sophia Mayo.

RALEIGH ALUMNI PLANNING BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Raleigh-Wake County chapter of the East Carolina College Alumni Association will be held at the Woman's Club on Monday, Nov. 23, at 6:30 p.m.

Sam Dees, chapter president, who announced the annual event at the first fall meeting held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Rand Jr. Monday night, said officials of the college had been invited.

Members of the chapter endorsed the chapter's scholarship program started last year and decided to begin a solicitation of funds immediately that will enable a Raleigh or Wake County student to attend East Carolina College.

James Whitfield, given recognition at the meeting for having been chosen as state president of East Carolina Alumni and being named recipient of the Alumni Award for 1953, spoke briefly on what other chapters in the State have adopted as projects.

Princeton High School Hear Dr. Holmes, Butler

Dr. Keith D. Holmes of the East Carolina Department of Education and James W. Butler, alumni secretary at the college, participated Wednesday in exercises marking the opening of the new Reading Materials Center at the Princeton High School.

As principal speaker on the program, Dr. Holmes discussed "The Purposes of a Reading Center." Mr. Butler extended best wishes from the college and greeted East Carolina alumni on the school faculty and present as guests of the afternoon.

Episcopal Rector Addresses ROTC On AF Ethics

Dr. Wallace I. Wolverton, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Greenville and a member of the college faculty, discussed "A Code of Ethics for Air Force Officers" at a recent meeting of the college AFROTC in the College Theatre.

The talk was one of a series planned for cadets during the school year with the idea of expanding and improving the general education which they receive in college.

Dr. Wolverton served as Chaplain USA and USAF during 1936-1952. From 1947 to 1949 he gave instruction in professional ethics at the USAF War College, Montgomery, Ala. "Ethical Judgments of Air Force Officers" is included among his published works.

Dr. Wolverton's recent talk to cadets stressed the qualities of self-control, goodwill and cooperation, professional integrity, and loyalty.

VA Says Home Loans Reach All-Time Peak

GI home loan applications received by the Veterans Administration during the month ending August 25, 1953, topped the 31,000 mark, an increase of 5,800 over the previous month, VA announced.

T. B. King, Acting Assistant Deputy Administrator for Loan Guaranty, said: "The August rise indicates that veterans may be finding it somewhat easier to obtain GI financing, although we cannot be certain on the basis of one month's experience. Also, it is still harder for veterans to get GI loans in some areas than in others." Mr. King emphasized that some of the August increase may be attributed to the rush of lenders to get loan applications approved by VA before the 4 percent gratuity was suspended after August 31, 1953.

Alumni Return Here For Homecoming Event

'Hello --- East Carolina College'

25 More Phones Now In Operation With New System

A new PBX telephone system, providing connections for approximately 25 telephones on the East Carolina College campus, went into operation Friday morning.

Installation of the new system has been in progress for several weeks. Approximately 25 new telephones have been added to those already in use on the campus, Business Manager J. D. Duncan states.

"The PBX system," Mr. Duncan said, "will fill a long-felt need for more and improved telephone service on the campus." He pointed out that until this week one telephone and three extensions were the only facilities provided for Austin, largest classroom building on the campus, where the college supply stores, the Student Budget office, the college News Bureau, AFROTC headquarters, the Alumni Office, staff rooms of student publications and six departments of instruction carry on their work.

A switchboard for handling calls both on and off the campus was set up in the Austin building this fall. Mrs. Lou Grissom of Greenville is the operator. The switchboard provides automatic connection for calls within the campus and the operator will handle local and long distance calls.

New telephones have been placed in the offices of heads of departments and of various college officials so as to facilitate communication between East Carolina's 23 buildings, Mr. Duncan states.

Pay telephones now located in student dormitories will continue to be used and to be connected directly to the city telephone system.

Business Ed Frat Initiates Nine In Organization

Because of their high scholastic records, nine East Carolina College students have been invited to become members of the Beta Kappa Chapter of Pi Omega Pi, national honorary fraternity for students of business education, President Donald McGlothin of Winterville has announced. A pledge service for new members will be held October 19, with Peggy Nash of Durham, vice president of the chapter, in charge of arrangements. Formal initiation into the fraternity will take place in November.

Students to be initiated as new members of the fraternity are Russell Barnes, Winterville; Margaret Ann Bunting, Nashville; Nellie Rhea Gardner, Nashville; Edward M. Gore, Ash; Robert E. Hicks, Deep Run; John W. Hudson, Kinston; Iris Matthews, Aberdeen; Geraldine Swindell, Belhaven; and Elbert A. Thomas, Wilmington.

Where To Park

All motorists are requested by the Homecoming Committee to secure off campus parking facilities all day Saturday (tomorrow). No cars will be parked Saturday around Wright Circle, Cotten Hall and the Administration building from 12 noon until after the parade.

Baptists Launch 'Listen' Drive For Missions

Several hundred East Carolinians will unite their efforts with those of thousands of other students as approximately 30 campuses in North Carolina when the "Listen Campaign" is launched by the State Baptist Student Union next week.

"Love Impels Sacrifice Toward Every Need" is the motto-slogan for the campaign, a fund-raising project which will be conducted through this school year. To provide food for starving people in other countries is one of the main objects of the drive.

A penny a day or a meal a month has been suggested as the minimum contribution per student, according to L. L. (Leo) Bishop Jr., a Greenville graduate student, who is president of the East Carolina BSU. On the campus individual containers will be distributed to all interested students and faculty members. The 25th of each month is the date set for persons to turn in their gifts to the Baptist Student Center office.

Several other mission projects will be financed through these funds. For the past six years some $1,400 has been contributed annually by North Carolina students for scholarships and summer missionaries to Hawaii. East Carolina Baptists last year were one of the three groups in the State to contribute more than $100 of this sum.

ECC Dramatists Begin Workshop Productions In Austin Auditorium

Members of the Teachers Playhouse, student dramatic club, will begin their annual series of workshop plays Thursday with a program of two one-act dramas, each presented with an all-freshman cast. The performance will begin at 8 p.m. and will be open to the public.

Chosen for this week are two comedies, "Sparkin'", directed by Douglas Mitchell of Greenville, and "Rehearsal," directed by Patricia Goodwin of Havelock.

Dr. Joseph A. Withey of the college English department, faculty advisor of the Teachers Playhouse, will supervise the series and student members of the club will direct the plays.

Plans for the school year include a program every two weeks. The plays are given informally and the series is designed to give participants practical experience in various phases of acting and production.

16 Cadets Begin Initial Air Trips, Others To Follow

Indoctrination flights for cadets in the AFROTC Wing at East Carolina College are now being held and many of those concerned are having their first experiences in the air, as well as their first flights with the Air Force.

Sixteen cadets participated in a flight October 3. Departing from the Greenville Airport, the cadets were flown to Washington, N. C., and returned. En route, local landmarks were pointed out and each cadet was given the opportunity of flying the aircraft, an Air Force T6G, used as a primary trainer in the Air Force flying program.

A similar flight is now being arranged for Saturday, October 17, when, weather permitting, 16 additional cadets will participate in an indoctrination flight.

Cadets who took part in the initial flight were: Giles Dail Jr., Kinston; Theodore Smith, Roxboro; James Alexander, Columbia; Frank Hammond, Wilmington; Walter Straughn, Rocky Mount; Ralph Smiley, Greenville; Joseph O. Clark, Greenville; Lucious Butt; Hertford; Dalton Mann, Manns Harbor; Phillip Mellon, Winterville; Corbett Daughtry, Clinton; Robert Hicks, Deep Run; David Pennington Jr., Lucama; David Evans, Norfolk, Va.; John A. Messick, Greenville; and James C. Spell, Turkey.

Vets Dedicate Victory Bell Tomorrow At Gym

East Carolina College's new Victory Bell will be officially presented to the college and dedicated to students in military service during World War II and the Korean engagement at a ceremony conducted October 10 at 4:30 p.m. during the annual observance of Homecoming Day for Alumni on the campus.

President John D. Messick of East Carolina will accept the bell from members of the college Veterans Club, who recently completed arrangements to have the bell placed on the campus and to provide a tower for it. Fred I. Joseph of Greenville, president of the student organization, will make the presentation. The marching band will provide music for the event.

Intended as a symbol of victory in East Carolina athletics, the bell will be rung following contests won by the college Pirates.

The Victory Bell is a gift to the college from the United States Department of the Navy. Once a part of the equipment of the "USS Broome," it is made of brass, weighs 382 pounds and measures 24 inches in height and 28 inches in width. Costs of shipping the bell to Greenville and erecting a tower for it were met by the Veterans Club.

The tower is a brick structure located just west of the Memorial Gymnasium and near the college athletic field. A temporary plaque, to be replaced later by a permanent bronze design, will bear the inscription of dedication to East Carolina students in the armed forces.

Nine Students Sign For Marine ROTC Says Dr. Jenkins

Dean Leo Jenkins states that nine ECC students have joined the Marine Reserve Corps program which is offered to students of the college. Many more are expected to join on October 30, when recruiters will be back to the college.

The Marine Corps has no program on the campus. The students enlisted in the program go to camp each summer while in school. The first summer the recruits receive the pay of a corporal and the second summer, the pay of a sergeant. They are then commissioned second lieutenants in the Marines. The seniors, after they receive their commissions, will go to sea for 12 weeks and to a special school for five months.

Several former students who were in the program have returned to the campus: Lewis Collier, Junius Rose, Thomas George and others. Dean Jenkins is a Reserve Officer himself.

Welcome Home, Alumni

Tomorrow will mark one of the biggest days on the year's calendar here at East Carolina as hundreds of former students will return to their alma mater for the annual Homecoming festivities.

One of the "biggest Homecomings ever" is in store for you alumni, according to Charlie Klutz, general student chairman of the committee for the event. A full program is mapped out for you by Charlie and Alumni Secretary James W. Butler, general chairman of the Homecoming events.

You'll find East Carolina has undergone many changes since you were here a year or more ago. You'll see constructions and renovations completed and nearly completed, you'll find a telephone switchboard for the college and you'll discover other improvements on campus taken place within the last year.

But the friendly spirit for which our college is becoming noted has not changed. It still exists, and exists strongly. It is the same friendliness which you helped to establish and to uphold during your years here. We are carrying on this tradition unchanged.

With this same friendly spirit, we welcome you back home and sincerely hope you enjoy the program and the reunion of old classmates and friends. We want you to return to your homes with the pride that you belong to a great alma mater, East Carolina College.

Watch That Line Breaking

"Sam, how did you manage to get up there so quick?"

"Joe let me up here."
"Well, how about me?"
This is conversation that goes on every day in the East Carolina dining halls. It is the conversation of line breakers.

At a recent meeting of the Student Legislature Charlie Huffman suggested a plan to curb this campus vice by placing a $1 fine on the line breaker. However, the legislative body felt that this would be a little "stiff" on students involved and decided to put on a two-week campaign against line breaking. The campaign, which is now in effect, consists of placing posters in the dining hall lobbies "preying upon the conscious of the line breakers." In addition representatives of the Men's Judiciary are being posted to call back line breakers.

If this campaign doesn't succeed at the end of two weeks, there is a possibility that the legislature may accept the $1 fine plan.

But must this plan be necessary? It isn't fair to students waiting patiently in line with others breaking in front of them. Line breaking isn't displaying good citizenship and is childish for any college student to practice.

Though allowing a friend to break line may seem a gesture of friendship, there is more harm than good. The fellow who gets in the neck is the honest one who stands in line.

Don't Cheat Yourself!

You are cheating yourself and the college when you pass on your student identification to a non-student to be used as free admission to athletic events.

The money your friend would have spent for a ticket could help the college athletic department to build better teams and provide more scholarships to potential athletes who would not otherwise have an opportunity for an education. Your student identification cards are being used and come in two colors, distinguishing males and females. Tickets are on sale at a special price at this time this year.

Arnold, head of the ticket committee for athletic events, said that this year's tickets were not necessarily sold at a low price, but to point out the value of their cards.

"Pray for fair weather tomorrow," Charlie Klutz, general chairman for Homecoming, said after completing preparations for the annual event today. "A little rain will sure spoil things," he added.

For the past several years it hasn't been known to rain on Homecoming Day, according to reports. Let's hope that Saturday will not break this record.

However, it has rained every weekend since the quarter began with the exception of last weekend. You just can't tell about this Greenville weather.

A couple of pennies for your thoughts! We received a two-cent postal this week with the following mimeographed philosophy: "Manner of living and method of doing things are more likely to be the real reasons for discrimination rather than differences of religious beliefs or racial lines."

This fellow differed from the other free publicity-seeking hounds who flood our mail box with several pages of new releases every week trying to promote their product. But this fellow tried to sell nothing. If you have any ideas what his motive is in his statement, let us know.

College students should put in at least 25 hours of study a week, so says Mrs. Elizabeth A. Simpson, director of reading services at Illinois Institute of Technology. The 25-hour a week basis was determined on the basis of an average college student's load. If you not a fast reader, Mrs. Simpson prescribes more than 25 hours per week.

If a student followed her prescription, he would average a nine-hour working day with four hours of classes and five hours of study. This also gives the student a free weekend. There are a few hours left for extra-curricula, self-help job and social life. That isn't bad when you consider the fellow who is working for a living puts in about the same amount of hours.

By Wednesday afternoon of this week every student guest card available for tomorrow's game was sold. The Student Budget office had a limited supply of these tickets to sell to students waiting in long lines.

There will be no more guest tickets available for tomorrow's game, Billy Laughinghouse, SGA treasurer, announced.

It shows that students will have to come early in the week that these tickets are on sale to be sure of obtaining them.

Definition of "college," according to the Michigan State Normal News: "Institutions which sometimes lower entrance requirements with an end in view—not to mention promising tackles and backs."

"How to Get Rich Quick." Send only $1 and we'll send you the secret of this art.

The above was an ad appearing in a magazine several years ago. The contents of supposed book was one sheet of paper bearing this philosophy: "How to get rich quick. Make all the money you can and don't spend a cent."

It was evident that the author practiced his philosophy.

Couple Of The Week
"We've been going together for 11 months, two weeks, and one day," Carolyn Johnson and Mac Eure said promptly when they were asked about the beginning of their courtship.

Carolyn, a junior, is a primary major and is from Elizabeth City, Mac, a senior, is a physical education major, and is from Portsmouth, Va. Even though Mac is a Virginian, and Carolyn a North Carolinian, they live only 40 miles apart, "which made it rather nice when vacation came around last summer," Carolyn and Mac said.

"We get along fine," they both said, "but we certainly don't enjoy the same sports; however, we try to be considerate and we both manage to sit through games we don't enjoy without biting off too many fingernails."

"We have quite a bit of trouble with my car, too," Mac said. "It's always breaking down! Somehow we always manage to get back to the dorm safely and on time, though. I just hope this luck lasts."

(Editor's note: By being chosen "Couple of the week," Carolyn and Mac will each be given a free meal at the Olde Towne Inn, a ticket to the Pitt Theatre, a gift from Saslow's Jewelers, and a carton of Chesfield cigarettes.)

Who's Who Among Students At East Carolina

SGA President Finds Little Time To Sleep, Eat

by Kay Johnston

Leadership, character and integrity are three words that describe Mitchell Saiced, a senior from Greenville. Mitchell, who is this year's president of the Student Government Association, realized the importance of the SGA when he was vice president of this organization last year. He said, "It enabled me to see and understand more fully the large and vital part that the SGA plays in the student's life on campus."

From then on Mitchell's greatest desire was to see the SGA made into a better and more powerful organization. As this year's president of the SGA, he has worked to achieve just that. This year our SGA is one of the best and most powerful organizations in North Carolina, according to a state meeting.

"I think few of us realize how much our SGA affects each individual student on this campus," Mitchell said.

SGA Changes

Many changes and improvements have taken place during the short while Mitchell has been in office. The constitution has been revised and 14 new amendments have been added. For the first time the students have been allowed to vote on the Entertainment Series and the budget policy has been opened.

As a delegate in the year 1952-53 to the Student Legislature Convention of North Carolina colleges and universities at Raleigh, Mitchell was elected by unanimous vote as his-

Because of Mitchell's interest in public speaking, he has been a member of the college debate team for the past three years. While Mitchell was a member, the team won several debates against much larger colleges and universities from many states. He was president of the Jarvis Forensic Club, a club which purposes are upholding the right of freedom of speech of the individual and those democratic principals which are a part of our American heritage.

In addition to public speaking, this year's Who's Who is a member of the Varsity Glee Club and sings bass. Mitchell has also been a member of the Circle "K" Club for three years. This organization is made up of men who are considered to have the qualities of leadership, scholarship and citizenship at ECC. Sponsored by the Greenville Kiwanis, the club here is the only Circle "K" Club in North Carolina.

No Time to Sleep

It was at this point in the interview that Mitchell was asked when he had time to eat and sleep. "Well I do stay pretty busy," Mitchell answered, "but when a college offers you as much as East Carolina does, I feel like I would be missing a great deal if I didn't take part in some of its activities."

This year Mitchell received the distinction of being chosen lieutenant colonel and wing director of the personnel in the AFROTC. He attended ROTC summer camp at Moody Air Force Base in Alabama this past summer. "We had quite a few experiences," Mitchell said, "but you had better not print them!"

Mitchell, for the past three years, has also been a member of the Phi Sigma Phi, an honorary educational fraternity which is exclusively for young men preparing to enter the teaching profession.

As a member of the Commerce Club, Mitchell served as general chairman of the club's dance and carnival last year.

Mitchell will receive his AB degree in business administration this May and also his commission from the Air Force. "Then," Mitchell said, "my future plans will be in the

by Valeria Shearson

All the way from the Land of the Midnight Sun comes Berit Hillesland, a scholarship student who arrived on the East Carolina campus Sunday. After a short introduction the "question box express" started rolling and Berit found herself answering numerous questions.

Berit came to America through the Fulbright Scholarship. The local Rotary Club is paying her expenses. Nine other Norwegian students, also sponsored by the Fulbright Scholarship, are studying in other American schools.

Berit's home, Skudeneshavn, Norway, is located on an island close by the Norwegian coast. The island, which is connected to the mainland by a recently built bridge, has two towns and a population of 20,000. The rocky coast is bounded by the North Sea. Heather grows abundantly over the island, but there are few trees, an unusual circumstance since the Eastern and Southern parts of Norway are covered with large forests. There are mountains on the island, but they are not high enough for good skiing, Berit regrets.

"Fishing is to my island what tobacco is to you," observes Berit. Boats fill the harbors the year round, but especially in winter when the North Sea is infested with schools of herring. The fish migrate into inland waters. "Wealthy Americans and Englishmen rent our waterfalls and rivers for fishing in the spring."

Schools Differ
The Norwegian youngster starts to elementary school at the age of seven and continues there until he is 14. He may then enter a three-year secondary school or a five year high school. The secondary school is omitted if the student plans to attend a university. Norway has two universities, the University of Oslo and the University of Bergen. Berit attended elementary school in her home town, but went to high school in Stavanger on the mainland. She has studied for one semester at the University of Oslo, where she took preparatory courses in philosophy and psychology. She plans to major in English. "I think college life in America is more informal. In Norway we don't go up to the teachers and talk with them like you do. The younger ones are friendlier than the old ones."

Last spring Berit discovered how it felt to be a teacher. Her first experience was in a small country school about two miles from Skudeneshavn. She bicycled back and forth every day. Later she taught in the elementary school in Skudeneshavn. The school served around 200 students. She taught the necessary curriculum consisting of reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, religion and history to pupils seven to 11 years old. She also gave a group of 13-year-olds their first lessons in English.

Home life

Berit, an only girl, has two older brothers. Her father owns the only bookshop in Skudeneshavn. "In winter when it is so dark, I enjoy reading," she says, "but in summer we swim, row and take boat trips to small nearby islands for picnics." She thoroughly enjoys an occasional excursion into the lofty, snow-capped mountains of the mainland to ski. Can you imagine skiing and throwing snowballs in mid-summer? They do it in Norway!

Berit's religion is Lutheran, the denomination of the State Church of Norway. There are small sects of Catholics and still smaller ones of Methodists and Baptists. Ninety-seven per cent of the population is Lutheran.

Arrives in New York

Berit sighted New York on October 2, through an early morning mist, thus ending the voyage which had begun on September 23. Enroute, the ship encountered a two-day storm, but Berit cheerfully relates that she did not get sea sick.

Berit will be at East Carolina for the remainder of the school year. She is living in Jarvis Hall.

Next summer she plans to return to her homeland and complete her training to teach. "I hope to see more of America before I go back home," she says.

After Rejecting Pro-Ball Offer

Frosh Girl Continues Study

by Anne George

"Since I was old enough to dribble, basketball has always been dominant in my life," expresses Jean Anne Liverman, freshman from Winterville.

Last month Jean Anne received a letter from John Tucker, coach of the Snow White Girls basketball team, offering her a job at the Snow White Dry Cleaners with an opportunity to play professional ball during basketball season.

Though Jean Anne was honored by the request, she feels that her education is too important now, "as one day I will become too old to play ball."

She is majoring in pre-lab, and hopes to become a laboratory technician.

During her high school years she was on the Winterville High School basketball team, coached by Paul J. Clark, and was co-captain for three years. The last game she played for the high school team she accumulated 65 points alone.

A trophy for the most valuable player was presented to her at the Gold Medal Tournament held in Farmville. The high school team also won the Pitt County Tournament for two years and she received the All-Conference Medal at that time.

Jean Anne hopes to play for the East Carolina team, though she is still interested in her high school team.

TIMELY TOPICS

By Bob Hilldrup

If the celebrations connected with Homecoming this week-end aren't the best that have ever been held on the East Carolina campus then lack of work certainly won't be the cause.

People have literally been tearing their hair in an effort to get final arrangements straight with regard to decorating dorms, staging the parade, electing a Homecoming Queen, etc. We hope, therefore, that our visitors this week-end will appreciate all the work that has gone toward making Homecoming Day a success.

Homecoming again: At least that must be what's getting our secretary in the administration building down. It seems that an "East Carolinian" staff member stopped in a certain office of the administration building and inquired politely of the secretary if Dr. Messick was in the building.

The secretary thought a moment and then, with a puzzled expression, said, "Messick, Messick, I don't believe I ever heard of a Dr. Messick here. Are you sure that's the person you're looking for?" It may sound rather silly but for the benefit of at least one person we'd like to say that Dr. John D. Messick is president of East Carolina College.

It seems that another embarrassing case of mistaken status took place on campus recently. Billy Laughinghouse, treasurer of the SGA, was in his Austin building office when a young lady walked in. Now Billy, being a charming and courteous young man, instantly placed himself at the young lady's disposal by inquiring in his most polished Don Juan manner, "Is there something I can do for you, honey?"

Needless to say our SGA treasurer was a trifle embarrassed when he discovered he was speaking to Dr. Dora Jean Ashe of the English department.

Now that we've had our fling of sadistic jesting we'd like to turn serious for a moment.

There will, in all probability, be a large number of guests on the campus this week-end. We hope, therefore, that the students of East Carolina will conduct themselves as always and attempt to make our visitors feel at home.

Husband: "Has it occurred to you, my dear, that if there were no women we man would need no buttons?"

On Thursday, October 7, a new group was organized here on campus. For the first time in college history, the student library assistants and majors and minors in library science met in a discussion body and organized a club.

Library science will be the prevailing subject discussed at the future meetings. Talks will be given on the various works of the library assistants, exactly what they do and how they do it. Any topics or suggestions brought up by club members are to be considered and talked over during the meetings. Anyone who is interested can join the group. This organization will be a real contribution to the East Carolina campus and it is hoped that attendance in interest and numbers will be large.

James Jones' memorable novel From Here To Eternity seems about to set a record as a best-seller. The Signet paper-backed edition is expected to pass the million mark in one month. Since the widely acclaimed movie of the book appeared a few weeks ago, libraries all over the country report that the book is number one in demand again by borrowers.

There is nothing like a movie to stimulate a reader's interest or vice versa. . . . North Carolina author Ovid Pierce of Weldon is considering a sequel to The Plantation. . . . Frank G. Slaughter had a new novel published last week by Doubleday. His latest historically based novel has a Florida setting in the time of the Civil War.

The State Department of Archives and History, Raleigh, have a great deal of material on North Carolina that they are glad to send free to those interested in obtaining it.

A little booklet entitled Tar Heel Tales, by Mattie Erma Parker contains a group of valuable tales about the early history of our state. The library has a supply of free materials that is good for teacher files. Such booklets as Class Modeling and information on various subjects pertaining to teaching is arranged on tables upstairs.

Women, stop smoking! According to Dr. M. Friedall of Chicago, women are "much more sensitive" to nicotine and other tobacco products than men. The sensitivity probably explains why women who enjoy cigarettes become habituated to them and find it hard to stop smoking. In tests on men and women using radioactive techniques to measure blood flow, women showed an average 33 per cent change in blood volume as compared with 19 per cent in men.

No outsider should begrudge the fare to an athletic event to see one of the top college teams in the state. Whereas, no one seems to mind the two and three dollar tickets to watch a Carolina State, Duke or Wake Forest game, so why would anyone complain about East Carolina's ticket prices?

If you would explain this to your friend in a very tactful way, we are sure he wouldn't mind paying for a ticket. After all, it is for your benefit as well as the college's.

SPORTS ECHO

by Bob Hilldrup

Anyone who says Clyde Biggers and his Catawba Indians weren't "laying" for East Carolina last Saturday night must be just a little bit out of his head.

Most fans had expected Biggers and Co. to go all out against the Bucs and practically all Pirate partisans on hand at Salisbury agreed that the Indians made a valiant attempt to stop the locals' romp toward the North State Conference crown. The Pirates played a good game, of that there is no question, but Catawba's line was slanting its charges and really making things difficult for the locals.

Tomorrow night's contest should be a little different despite the fact that the records through the years favor Elon. Since 1946, the year the East Carolina-Elon series first started, the Christians have taken six victories to one for the Pirates. As a matter of fact, last year was the first time that the Buccaneers had ever been able to stop the visitors and then only with a last half rally that netted 25 points to wash out an earlier 9-0 Christian lead.

In a burst of energy recently we scoured our curiosity by plowing through the files of the "East Carolinian" in order to assemble some history of the East Carolina football team.

Some of the info that might be of interest:

The worst defeat ever suffered by a Pirate club came at the hands of Appalachian in 1939 by a 64-0 count.

In 1941, the only year the Pirates were undefeated, the locals played teams from Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and New Jersey.

During the 20 years that the sport has been played here many records have gone into the books, but nothing we could find indicated that any Pirate season was more successful than 1953 should be.

When the laurels and commendations are handed out at the end of any football season it too often seems that the school band does not receive its proper recognition. We feel sure that those of us who attended the Catawba game Saturday were equally as proud of the local band as of the football squad.

The performance put on by our campus musicians during the half was one of the best we've ever seen. Included in the numbers were "Crying In The Chapel," "The Bunny Hop" and a satire of "Dragnet" which had both Catawba and East Carolina fans roaring with laughter. For the benefit of those who couldn't make the Catawba trip we most certainly hope that the band will see fit to stage the "Dragnet" number

Elon Here Tomorrow For Homecoming

Christians Beaten In First Two Starts Of '53 Campaign

A hectic Homecoming week-end will be climaxed here tomorrow night when the East Carolina Pirates meet the Elon Christians at College Stadium in the annual Homecoming football clash. Game time is 8 p.m.

The locals, coached by Jack Boone, an Elon alumnus, are riding the crest of a three-game winning streak during which they have yielded but one touchdown. Their depth, lightning fast offense and powerful line have tabbed them as odds-on favorites to cop the North State Conference crown.

Elon, however, has not fared as well. The Christians opened their season by taking a 33-0 thrashing at the hands of Wofford College's Terriers. Last week they dropped a 21-19 decision to Appalachian in their first league test.

In an attempt to return to the victory column this season following last year's mediocre record, the Christians have hired Harry E. "Sid" Varney, former University of North Carolina gridiron great, as head coach. Varney's first move in an attempt to get the Christians off on the right foot was to install the "T" formation. The visitors formerly operated from the single wing.

Capacity Crowd
A crowd in the neighborhood of 10,000 or more is expected to pack the local stadium to watch Coach Boone unleash the attack that has averaged 30 points per game in three contests. Dick Cherry, the Bucs' All-Conference sophomore quarterback, is expected to lead the locals' attack. He will direct a veteran backfield composed of Claude King, Paul Gay, Emo Boado, Tom Allsbrook, Tippy Hayes and Bubba Matthews. In the forewall the Pirates will call on the services of such outstanding players as End Bobby Hodges, ing players as End Bobby Hodges, a six-foot-plus senior who leads the club in scoring, Willie Holland, All-Conference tackle, Johnny Brown, Algie Faircloth, Larry Rhodes, Al Habi, George Tacker, Don Burton, David Lee and Bo by Thomas.

Elon, which returned only 13 lettermen this year against East Carolina's 26, will offer senior fullback John Platt as their main offensive threat. Other veteran performers to see action are end, Mal Bennett, J. C. Disher and Gene Williams; guards, Marvin Mass, Nick Theas and George Stewart. Luther Barnes will be at center with Joe Smith, Dwight Dillon and Joe Widdfield sharing the burden at tackle.

The East Carolina-Elon football series began in 1946 and has continued uninterrupted since that time. It was not until last fall that the Buccaneers were able to record their first triumph over the Christians and they are favored to do so again tomorrow.

Pirates Down Indians By 13-6 Margin; Take Lead In North State Conference

Whatever the concoction hypo'd into the arms of the Indians by Coach Biggers of Catawba it sho' was potent. The big man who used to push the Buccaneers through the grind had his v'ibe on the warpath last Saturday in Salisbury and for a while the Pirates' scalps were definitely in jeopardy.

Coach Boone's privateers played most of the struggle on their heels until the Cherry-O'Kelly pass combination gave the Pirates the added weight that made the difference. From kickoff to stop-off, it was sixty minutes of the oldtime knock-down-drag-out style of football. Way ahead in stand-out performance were two bruising linemen, Bo by Hodges and Louis Hallow. Playing end and center respectively, this swashbuckling duo was East Carolina's Rock of Gibraltar.

Dick Cherry came through again like the seven o'clock alarm. The "worth his weight in gold" signal-caller is truly veined in All-Americanism. His touchdown toss in the opening quarter and "set-up" pitch in the final period were passing perfection.

Tomorrow the Pirates should board a merry-go-round and lacerate the Elon lifeline with practically no effort. But with the "nothing to lose, everything to gain" attitude that the North State teams have when they go against the Buccaneers all the remaining foes will have to be given consideration. When the Homecoming smoke has cleared, we see something like East Carolina 34, Elon 0.

There is a student on the campus who never takes a drink. You gotta hand it to him.

SALISBURY—A valiant band of East Carolina Pirates scored a last quarter touchdown to edge the fired-up Catawba Indians 13-6 at Shuford Field Saturday night.

Dick Cherry, who put the Bucs in front early in the opening session with a touchdown pass to end Bobby Hodges, scored the winning marker on a one yard quarterback sneak.

In between the two tallies the two clubs butted heads between the 30-yard lines in a rock 'em, sock 'em display of one platoon football. Catawba managed their tying marker early in the fourth quarter when Harvey Stratton intercepted a Cherry pass and galloped 46 yards to score.

Defense Stiffens
The defense stiffened, however, and the Indians, whose coach was bossing the East Carolina line at this time last season, lost the ball to the Bucs.

Paul Gay, Claude King and Emo Boado combined talents to give the locals a first down on the Indian 43. Cherry then took to the air and hit Hodges for another first and ten on the 33. A pass fell incomplete, Boado picked up 18 yards on a nice run and then Cherry hit Hodges in the left flat for the score. Claude King's attempt for the extra point was wide.

The quick Indian score early in the fourth period seemed to have a hypodermic effect on the Pirates. Stratton, having outraced Sonny Bellahan in the dash for the goal, was snowed under by the charging Pirate line in his attempted extra point try.

Three plays following the kickoff the Bucs had the lead again. Larry Rhodes returned to the 33, Harold O'Kelly got three at tackle and a Cherry-to-Hodges pass misfired.

Winning Score
Then Cherry, with good protection, faked back and tossed a strike to O'Kelly on the Indian 30 yard line. The blond halfback from High Point took the throw on the run but was bumped out of bounds on the one yard line. Bubba Matthews was stopped cold by the Indian line but Cherry crashed over on the following play. Matthews kicked the point and the game, except for a little more knocking of heads, was ended.

Brand-new national survey shows college students prefer Luckies
Last year a survey was made in leading colleges throughout the country which showed that smokers in those colleges preferred Luckies to any other cigarette. This year another nation-wide survey was made—a representative survey of all students in regular colleges coast to coast. Based on thousands of actual student interviews—this survey shows that, as last year, Luckies lead again—lead over all other brands, regular or size—and by a wide margin! The reason: Luckies are better.
