Eastern All-State Band Clinic Brings 110 High School Students Here Today

Woodwind Specialist Guest For Three-Day Annual Music Event

Programs have been announced for the band concert to be presented at East Carolina College this week as part of the annual meeting of the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic on the campus.

Robert Gray of the East Carolina College music department, chairman of the clinic, has announced that the East Carolina Concert Band will play today (tonight) at 8 o'clock in the College Theatre. The program to be offered will be varied and selections will range from numbers by Bach and Beethoven to spirited marches by contemporary composers.

Other selections to be presented by the college band will include the "Flying Dutchman" overture by Wagner, "Fantasy on American Sailing Songs" by Clare Grundman, and Vaughan Williams' "Toccata Marziale."

Waldemar Blysofs of New York City, specialist in the woodwind instruments, will lecture and demonstrate the use of band instruments, especially the double reeds, at the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic at East Carolina College today and tomorrow.

Blysofs will speak each day at 3 p.m. to directors and student musicians attending the clinic. He has lectured at the Manhattan and the Highland Schools of music and has played in outstanding music organizations, including the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic, and the CBS symphony; and for such programs as the Firemen's Hour, the Ballet Theatre, the Sadlers Wells ballet, the Ballet Russe, and various Broadway shows.

A Clinic Band composed of 110 high school seniors from 33 schools in eastern North Carolina will play Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the Wright Auditorium. This band will be organized on the campus Friday, will rehearse during the two-day meeting and will give the program climaxed during the clinic activities.

Saturday night's program will include among numbers Holst's "Suite in F," an arrangement of George Gershwin selections, "Broadcast from Brazil" by Bennett and a number of other compositions suited to band performance.

Herbert L. Carter of the East Carolina music faculty, director of the college marching and concert bands, will conduct both the East Carolina and the Clinic bands in their performances this weekend.

Exhibits Ceramics, Textiles

Rochester Prof Lectures Here

Harold J. Brennan, director of the School for American Craftsmen at the Rochester Institute of Technology, will visit East Carolina College Monday and Tuesday, February 15-16, and, while here, will appear as lecturer and stage an exhibition of ceramics, textiles, silver and small wood objects.

The two-day program by Mr. Brennan will initiate a series of five attractions to be offered at the college during the winter and the spring quarters for the benefit of students and of the public.

The series, announced by President John D. Messick of the college, includes a lecture-demonstration by Eleanor King, modern dancer, at a date to be announced; a talk by Marion Belden Cook on "Introducing the USA to Children through Books," March 15; a World Affairs Institute conducted by four internationally known speakers, March 25; and a talk by Dr. Gerard Priestley, British historian, author, and lecturer, April 9.

Mr. Brennan will speak Monday, February 15, at 8 p.m. in the College Theatre on "The Craftsman and Contemporary Design." His talk will deal largely with the work of outstanding contemporary designers in ceramics, textiles, silver and wood.

The exhibition will indicate the character of contemporary production in ceramics, silversmithing, jewelry, textiles and wood. It will be shown in the Industrial Arts Department in the Flanagan building February 15-16 during the morning and the afternoon. The public is invited to be present at both the lecture and the exhibition.

Dr. Kenneth Bing, director of the department of industrial arts at East Carolina, is in charge of arrangements for Mr. Brennan's visit to the campus. A schedule of appearances before various classes at the college is being made.

Two Publications Elect Delegates To Press Meet

Six delegates and two alternates were elected Monday night at a staff meeting of the "East Carolinian" to attend the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Convention in New York City to represent the campus newspaper.

Those who will represent the newspaper at the convention held March 9-14 are T. Parker Maddrey, editor; Seaboard; Faye O'Neal of Selma, managing editor; Edna Massad of Benson, business manager; and Jerry Register of Elizabethtown, Valeria Shearon of Varina, and Anwer Joseph of Greenville, staff members. Alternates are David Evans of Norfolk, Va., and Anne George of Richmond, Va.

From the "Buccaneer," the yearbook, three delegates plan to attend the annual press meeting, Mildred Reynolds, Columbia; Tommie Lupton, Greenville; and Jane Kanooy, Thom- asville.

At the convention delegates will attend workshops, panel discussions and lectures of prominent journalists. Meetings will be held on the Columbia University campus.

100 ECC Cadets Pledge To Give Pint Of Blood To Red Cross Tuesday

The Department of Air Science and Tactics at East Carolina College has announced that 100 Air Force ROTC cadets have pledged one pint of blood each to the Red Cross Bloodmobile when it visits Greenville February 9.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt County health officer, who is in charge of the Pitt County blood donor program, expressed himself this week as well pleased with the college Air Force ROTC turn-out.

BSC Provides Student Recreation, Worship

At the close of a long rugged day of classes, books and pop tests, you realize the need of a few hours, more or less, to "get away from it all." Perhaps you crave recreation, fellowship, or a chance to do some serious thinking.

But where in Greenville are you going to find this threesome in one spot? The answer is the Baptist Student Center, located at 404 Eighth Street, only one and a half blocks from the campus post office. Here you will find the door opened every day until 10 p.m., except Sundays, when it is closed during the hours of worship services.

The center, owned by the Baptist State Convention and supported by Immanuel and Baptist churches of Greenville, has been open since 1948, under the guidance of Student Secretary Gloria H. Blanton, or Gloria, as she is generally called around campus. While the Student Center's primary function is of a religious nature, there are no long faces to be seen anywhere. As pointed out this is a place for both fun and seriousness. The center strives to promote a spirit of Christian fellowship among all who enter its door.

During the war Rabbi Tolochko served as an auxiliary chaplain with the Air Force. In addition to his rabbinical duties, he is at present on part time duty as a Marine Corps chaplain.

Two Staffers Ill

Two college staff members have been reported ill this week.

Dr. Orval L. Phillips, registrar, returned home this week from Veterans' Hospital in Fayetteville. Dr. Phillips became ill last week and his condition is improving, according to reports. He will resume his duties as registrar soon.

Capt. William R. Young of the AFROTC department is in the Camp Lejeune Hospital for observation. He is expected to return soon also.

Choosing Of King, Queen Highlights Valentine Dance

Plans are underway for a popular election of the King and Queen of Hearts to reign over the annual Valentine Dance, sponsored by the Future Business Leaders of America and the Pi Omega Pi fraternity, to be held next Friday evening, 8 to 11:45 p.m., in Wright auditorium, according to President Julian Vainwright.

Each dormitory on the campus and the men and women day students will nominate one candidate for the election.

Betty Sue Branch of Greenville and Florence Helms of Portsmouth, Va., co-chairmen of the figure, King and Queen Committee, announced that the campuswide election will be held Wednesday. The outcome of the election will remain secret until the crowning of the king and queen at the dance.

The dance will be open to the public at $1 a couple or stag. Music will be furnished by the East Carolina College Collegians. Advance tickets are now on sale and may be purchased from any member of FBLA or Pi Omega Pi.

Bing Becomes Member Of New Arts Committee

Dr. Kenneth L. Bing, director of the department of industrial arts at East Carolina College, has been appointed a member of two newly organized committees which are concerned with the improvement and extension of industrial arts instruction in public schools of the state.

As a member of the State Advisory Committee for Industrial Arts, Dr. Bing will assist in making suggestions to further interest in industrial arts and in arranging for the publication of materials useful to teachers. It is hoped that the work of the committee will lead to the appointment of a state supervisor of industrial arts in North Carolina.

Dr. Bing will also assist in the work of the committee to study A and G Certification Requirements in the state.

Polls Open Thursday To Change March General Elections Date

Playhouse Presents Comedy "John Loves Mary" Next Week

"John Loves Mary," a farce-comedy by Norman Krasna, will take stage Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, February 10-12, in the College Theatre. A 15 minute scene from the play will be presented over WNCN television Sunday at 5 p.m.

The set, designed by Thomas Pierce, will be executed by Bill Sells and his technical staff. Taking place in the living room of Senator McKinly's hotel apartment, the action will move before a simple black and yellow background embracing colorful modern furniture.

Committees include: scenery, Pauline Armstrong, Jean Jones and Barbara Taylor with Eddie Powell as chairman; properties, Marcia Milne and Virginia Reed; costumes, Dock Smith; make-up, Betty Sue Williams and Joy Harris; lighting, Bill Sells; publicity, Marky Jackson, Jean Dupree and Sally Rogers with Jim Coorom and Nancy Cooke as co-chairmen.

Since "John Loves Mary," a romantic comedy, will be produced near Valentine's Day, the posters will use a "hearts and flowers" theme.

Castings in the farce-comedy are Carolyn Clapp, Chuck Shearon, Jim Corum, Percy Wilkins, Jean Godwin, Bob Hill, Bill Penuel, Charles Hill and Thomas Pierce.

Pritchard, Jones Present Program At Circle K Meet

Jeanne Pritchard, soloist, rendered several selections of music and was accompanied by Julia George at the piano at the Circle K Club Tuesday night.

Waylon Bass, program chairman, introduced the two guests. Jeanne of Elizabeth City and Julia of Winston-Salem are sophomores majoring in music.

Pete Jones of Goldsboro, member of the club, gave his rendition of "Romeo and Juliette," an imitation of the original version of his famed high schoolmate, Andy Griffith.

Dr. John O. Reynolds, advisor to the group, reported that Duke University is interested in establishing a Circle K Club on their campus. Plans are being made to send ECC members on the Duke campus to study possibilities.

Oppelt Urges Students To File For Teaching

Students intending to do student teaching during the academic year 1954-1955 should file applications with departmental supervisors during registration period of spring quarter, March 2-9, according to an announcement by Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of student teaching and placement.

Ralph Marterie Provides Music For Class Dance

"The public wants good, sweet and tastefully arranged music with a danceable beat—that's what my band is prepared to give them," says Ralph Marterie, who with his galaxy of musicians and vocalists will be appearing in Wright auditorium for the Freshman-Sophomore-Senior dance Tuesday, February 16.

Senior Class President Royce Jordan announced that this will be a closed dance. Only students and their guests will be admitted. Students will present their identification cards at the door.

Trumpet playing Marterie, dubbed "The Man Born for the Horn," is known to popular music fans through his recordings for Mercury and his own radio shows over the ABC network. A veteran of many years of radio work, both in the popular and concert field, Marterie's working knowledge of his material is veritably encyclopedic. With several hundred arrangements in that band's "book" or library, the Marterie band is certainly one of the best equipped of the newer bands around today.

The instrumentation of the Marterie band is made up of four trombones, five trumpets, five reeds, three rhythm and a male vocalist.

Roebuck Presents Recital In Stokes

Donald Roebuck of Stokes, pianist and graduate student of East Carolina College, will give a recital Saturday (tomorrow) in Elizabeth City. The program will be presented at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Irving K. Midgett.

Donald, a pupil of George E. Perry of the college faculty, is a graduate of East Carolina and is now working at the college toward the master's degree in music education. He was one of a small group of talented students chosen during the 1952-1953 term by the faculty of the department of music to give honors recitals preceding graduation.

As a student at East Carolina, Donald has participated in the activities of a number of music organizations on the campus. He belongs to the Music Education Club and has been a member of the East Carolina Orchestra and the College Choir.

His program in Elizabeth City will include Beethoven's "Sonata in C Minor" opus 10, No. 1. Other compositions chosen for the recital are two Chopin studies, and selections by Paderewski, Schubert, Mozart and Bach.

Tickets For Senior Banquet On Sale Now

The Senior banquet will be held April 10 in the North Dining Hall.

Royce Jordan, president of the Senior Class, has announced that the tickets will cost $1.50 per person and the money must be sent in by April 1 to Barbara Moore, Box 746. Reservations will not be accepted after this date.

Each senior can bring a date either from the senior class or otherwise.

Campus Race For SGA Officers, Marshals Gets Underway Soon

Polls will be open Thursday in the dining hall lobby from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. to vote the date for general elections, Bill Penuel, elections committee chairman, announced this week.

The elections committee has proposed to change the date of elections from the third Friday in March to the third Thursday in March. Students will vote whether or not they are in favor of the change.

Bill says one of the primary reasons of changing the date from Friday to Thursday is to increase the number of voters. There are many who leave to go home on Fridays who would not stay to vote, Bill adds.

Posters will be placed in buildings over the campus announcing any coming election, Bill stated, as another effort to increase the number of voters.

Those who desire to run for a Student Government office in the March elections should file applications to the secretary of the present SGA administration, Shirley Council, within two weeks of the general election, according to Bill.

Positions opened in the student-wide elections are SGA president, first vice president, second vice president (parliamentarian), secretary, treasurer and first assistant treasurer; Women's Judiciary chairman, vice chairman, member-at-large, and secretary-treasurer; Men's Judiciary chairman, vice chairman, secretary-treasurer, and member-at-large. Also the college marshals and May Day Queen will be named in this election.

College Offers Eleven Extension Classes In State

Largely for the benefit of students and administrators in North Carolina public schools, East Carolina College is now offering 11 extension courses in nine centers in the state. Enrollment is open to men and women.

Extension courses are those that teachers in secondary schools may acquire credit toward degrees or certification. The program is carried out under the direction of Dr. Ed J. Carter, director of the Bureau of Field Services at East Carolina, and classes are taught by faculty members at the colleges. Both graduate and undergraduate courses are included among those offered at present.

Two courses are now being taught in both Fayetteville and Roanoke Rapids. Other centers where classes are in progress are Raleigh, Tarboro, Greensboro, Washington, Nashville, Lumberton, and Smithfield.

Some of the eleven courses are in the field of education. Others are in geography, art, English and library science.

Mission Worker Talks Next Week At Vesper Meet

Mrs. Clifford A. Bender of the New York headquarters of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church will visit East Carolina College Thursday and Friday.

She will speak at Y Vespers on Thursday evening and lead an open forum on the work of the United Nations. The International Relations Club has been invited as special guests to this meeting. Other organizations wishing to have Mrs. Bender meet with their groups may see Mamie Chandler at the Methodist Student Center.

Mrs. Bender is on the staff of the Christian Social Relations Department of the Woman's Division of the Methodist Church with headquarters in New York City, and arranges and conducts groups to visit United Nations headquarters.

Why Call It "Suitcase College"

Why do they call ECC a suitcase college? That is a good question. Why do they? There must be some reason behind it. Probably it's because everyone goes home on the week end.

Now comes the question of why they go home. Everybody that we know says that there is nothing to do here over the week end. We wonder if they ever thought of the reason why we don't have any entertainment over the week end? The reason is as plain as the nose on Jimmy Durante's face. Just think for a moment and you will realize it too. If everyone goes home over the week end there will be no one to attend, or to put on this entertainment. You know as well as we do that on Saturday and Sunday around here it is as dead as the inside of Grant's Tomb. Why, there isn't enough students here over the week end to put on any entertainment. How do you expect to be entertained if you ain't even here to entertain? If you would stay, the bowling alley might even be opened up—that is, if you would show enough interest. Just think, if we would stay up here we might even have more dances here over the week end. Now, wouldn't that nice?

Then there was the story of a man coming here one Saturday to see if he could enter his daughter in this college for next year, and when not seeing anyone on campus, went home discouraged because he thought that the college had been closed down. They tell us that his daughter was a good looking too. Just think of all the fun we could have had next year if somebody had been on campus.—JR

Fire! It Could Happen Here

After a hard week's work, it may be relaxing to watch the Entertainment Series movie while inhaling the smoke of tobacco to your heart's content, but there are certain rules that, as student citizens, we must observe.

It has been called to our attention that smoking in Austin auditorium is a "direct and outright violation" of fire department regulations. The Administration has warned that these regulations will have to be observed and complete cooperation of students is necessary to continue the weekly showing of these movies.

There are numerous places students can smoke here and certainly they can sit through a 90-minute movie without a smoke. If this seems impossible, they can always step outside the auditorium to indulge.

It would be quite a tragedy for Austin to burn because students were satisfying an intangible master, Nicotine. It isn't funny. This has been the cause of fire in many public buildings elsewhere and it could happen here. Fortunately, East Carolina has had no fires on campus. In order to maintain this record, fire regulations and cautions should be observed.

More About Teen Suffrage

From the Daily Athenaeum, West Virginia University
A particular segment of America, despite their essential contributions to our nation, are actually second class citizens.

These citizens pay taxes, contribute to all phases of community life, raise families, fight and die for the United States. Yet, they are not permitted to vote.

One argument against lowering the voting age, portrays the 18-year-old as much too reckless and impetuous to be a responsible voter. Wouldn't a little enthusiasm be good for the present political system?

Many people contend that the vote of an 18-year-old would simply be the echo of his parent. The only answer to this is that most mature Americans are capable of making up their own minds.

Ye Editor's Say

by T. Parker Maddrey

Campus scene—Maintenance crew chopping down, digging up and pruning around the thickly populated bushes. It's a shame. Now you can see through the few bushes left.

A professor is seen picking up one of the uprooted bushes and placing it in his car very sneakily like.

Soda shop "cheese-checkers" still hold fast to their position on the long bench near the door. Their eyes survey every female that enters from head to toe. They are real authorities on the subject second only to Kinsey or Freud.

Over the soda shop counter are students receiving all grades of liquids such as cherry Pepsis and Cokes and now, chocolate Cokes. Strange things are happening.

It is 8:05 a.m. and a harrassed student is rushing to an 8 o'clock class.

In the Men's Day Student lounge, there are those who are lounging, shooting the bull or reading a piece of yesterday's paper. And in some corner there is one who studies.

Dorm scene—(This may or may not be the typical dorm room, but it is typical in the campus male quarters.) The student is intensely engrossed in his work—scanning through a thick book and madly writing notes. On one bed lies his roommate, concentrating on comics. Old newspapers, dirty clothes and discarded notes are found on the desk and on the floor. The radiator is decorated by just-washed argyles in the process of drying.

There is a pounding on the door and without an answer, a fellow loaded with suits, sweaters and pants over his shoulder opens it and asks: "Got any clean?" tonight? And to the third person you say, "No."

Then come the sandwich men. And then come others who just want to have a bull session or to study together for a coming test.

And then in the basement of Austin is the fellow who is sweating to write a column about nothing in particular.

The disorganized thoughts and "facts" above probably told you nothing new, but it may portray life at East Carolina which is typical. Just the same, it gave this writer material for another column.

May Be Stupid

But Socks Say It

by Pat Humphrey

"I really don't see why girls do it. Personally, I think it looks rather stupid."

"Well, you know girls. Always have to be different."

Perhaps you are wondering what the topic of the two boys' discussion is. Everyone knows that girls are different, but that is beside the point. Have you noticed recently that some girls are going around with their socks turned up? Just what is the significance of this? Are their legs cold? Are they trying to emphasize "shapely legs"? Are they trying to attract attention with "clean" socks? In fact, just what are they trying to prove?

The secret which is gradually being uncovered is that only girls who are "going steady" have the right to wear their socks pulled up. Therefore, even if your legs are freezing, girls, unless you have a steady beau, you have no right to turn your socks up.

Even though Valentine Day is approaching, boys, beware of the girls whose socks are turned up; they are already taken.

Radio-TV Schedule

2-2:30 p.m.—WNCT-TV, Greenville (Channel 9), will feature Dolores Matthews and Ruth Little of the music department.

6:30-8:45 p.m.—WGTC, Greenville, will present George E. Perry in organ reveries.

Sunday
9:30-9:45 a.m.—WRRF, Washington, will feature George Perry in organ reveries.

2-2:30 p.m.—WGTM, Wilson, will give excerpts from Spiritual Emphasis Week.

9-9:15 p.m.—WGTC, Greenville, will present Dr. E. D. Johnson of the college library in the series, "Books Behind the News."

Who's Who Among Students At East Carolina

Muse Excels In Scholastics Plus Activities

A senior from Tarboro who graduates this winter quarter is this week's Who's Who, Don Muse. Don who transferred from Davidson College his sophomore year, did his student teaching this fall in Greenville High School and has this to say about the subject, "I enjoyed the teaching part just fine but the preparation for the classes was pretty rough. However I was very fortunate not to have any trouble with eraser and spit ball throwing."

Presides at Kappa Delta Pi
During the time Don has attended East Carolina, he has entered into many activities and still maintained a very high average. He was elected President of the Kappa Delta Pi, an honorary education fraternity that was just begun on this campus this past summer. To be a member of this organization, the student must have good scholarship qualifications and the ability of leadership.

He was also elected as vice-president of the Senior Class this past year. Last year he joined the Circle K Club, affiliated with the Greenville Kiwanians.

As a member of the Budget committee this year, Don has done much toward helping to budget funds to the various clubs and organizations on campus.

He was also chosen among "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," an annual publication containing brief biographical sketches of outstanding students in Universities and colleges throughout the United States.

Aside from the different organizations, Don is also interested in athletics. He plays on the Varsity Tennis team and is an ardent fan of all the varsity sports.

Differer from many of the students, Don says, "I especially enjoy the weekends on campus because my girl is from Greenville and comes home every weekend. She graduated from East Carolina last summer and is teaching in Williamston."

Don definitely plans to teach, and definitely plans to get married. "I would like to teach the rest of the year and start on my Master's degree this summer," he says, "but I guess I'll have to see Uncle Sam sometime in the near future."

Beginning this week, "Who's Who Among Students at East Carolina," a weekly feature of an outstanding senior on campus, will receive a carton of Phillip Morris cigarettes, according to Max Joyner, recently appointed representative for Phillip Morris and Co.

Max stated that this will continue throughout the regular school year.

azaleas and camellias. The architect suggested that the bushes which are not necessary be cut down or transplanted to other places.

The main reason for the overcrowded shrubs is that the temporary fillers have never been removed. When the main shrubs were set out, they were placed so they would have sufficient room for growth. This caused bare spaces between the shrubs, therefore, temporary bushes were placed between them.

Now that the main bushes, along with the temporary fillers, have grown to a much larger size, the temporary fillers have begun ruining the shape of the main shrubs. All temporary fillers are being removed. Some replacing is being done, but the removing of unnecessary shrubs is the main project.

Along with removing shrubbery, grass is being removed from around the remaining shrubbery.

Now We Have Chocolate Pepsis

by Anne George

Fancier drinks seem to be in demand by the students at the soda shop. The music majors, in particular, seem to crave the chocolate pepsis. Everyone likes a dash of cherry in anything from coke to milk shakes. The soda shop has to buy several cases of cherry syrup a month for cokes and pepsis alone.

There are only a few of the beverages that seem to have become a fad on campus. Take the student who prefers a dash of vanilla in his coke, or the one that must have ice in his milk shake. Gone are the days of the common coke . . . in fact, the cokes of today bare little resemblance to those bought a year ago.

The "Breakfast Clubbers" of the Y-shop are always good for a laugh. They come in and ask for doughnuts, but when they find out that the bakery goods haven't been brought in yet, they decide they will settle for cream puffs. A startling fact that has been uncovered in our search among the books of the "Y" store is that last week 1,000 dozen cream puffs were bought and consumed by the students.

The sandwiches that seem to be in demand are at the top of the list—pimento cheese, carrying 672 votes

Food

For Thought

by Don King, Ed Mathews "Buzz" Young

Along with the growth in enrollment here at East Carolina College come numerous problems, many of considerable complexity. One of the more difficult questions with which we are faced is whether we should have social fraternities, and, if so, whether they should be local organizations or ones with national affiliation. The following is the first of two articles dealing with this subject that will appear in this space.

In the past half century the trend in American education has been toward "educating the whole man," while in college develops intellectually and socially. The theory states that the college graduate should be prepared to step into life with a knowledge of community living. Along with this trend the college fraternity has, quite naturally, seen a steady growth. The lack of fraternities here puts ECC decidedly in the minority group of schools. Each year the question of staying with this group or leaving them to join the schools with fraternities becomes more pressing.

Advocates of fraternities say that they provide an opportunity for students to learn for themselves the basic principles of democratic living: self-government, responsibility, cooperation and friendliness. They claim that they do this by placing a group of students in a house together where they must manage their own affairs, business and social. Also that fraternities are helpful in coordinating school activities. It is much easier to reach several groups of people than it is to reach many individuals. Fraternities can stand the burdens of leadership and play an important part in organizing the students. The whole fraternity is responsible for the action of individual members which tends to encourage his character among all members.

Furthermore a certain amount of social activity is necessary of any large group of people, whether the group be civic or college, and fraternities are a natural way to carry out this social life and to control it, keep it in respectable and reasonable bounds.

Opponents to social fraternities claim that they fail to do the above; that, instead of creating harmony, fraternities obstruct it; and tend to create class distinctions by excluding students because of religious or financial reasons. They argue that fraternities organize cliques, bring out their differences more than if unorganized.

Probably the strongest of all objections to fraternities is the financial one. There is a considerable cost in maintaining a house and carrying on social functions. Also if there is on social functions. Some deserving students are prevented from joining because they can not afford to.

It is because of this point that some people who are in favor of social organizations on campuses object to national fraternities. The cost of a local organization is much less than that of a national one because all money can be kept in the immediate group.

The problem is naturally affected by the particular position of a college.

POT POURRI

by Emily S. Boyce

Advertising is all around us. Have you really had a good look at the various kinds? Advertising drapes itself in many forms and fashions, whether it is colorful description, smoked, drunk or worn by a notable citizen or modeled after a nation-wide rage, it is usually eye-catching and good work.

The beer page is most interesting. This advertisement for a name brand beer looks and sounds delightful. The particular brand acquires a brightly colored full page, dotted with exquisite food, young beauties in sandals and huge bottles of this unusual beer. Since it is traditionally the finest, this beer prospers and is popular in the sunny southern states (in this case). Quite naturally this refreshing beer has found a place in the land of sunshine and the center of hospitality. "Golden and gleaming in its distinguished crystal-clear bottle." . . . Ah-h-h.

One of the most unique advertisements seen in some time was the one appearing in the News and Observer a few weeks ago. The caption reads "Where it was . . . was First Federal!" Reading on, "Well sir, friends—it's the nicest place, Clem Gaddy . . . told it to me. Fur sometime I had had a little money sewed in my mattress and with my tobacco money this year was $2,000—it was . . . Well, Peavine Taylor said, "Why don't you take it to First Federal Savings and Loan? They is insured and pay 3 per cent." Well, I took it—I did—and friends, you know what? . . . Where it was—was First Federal." The farmer pictured in the advertisement is good too, friends.

The eye-catching young beauty was swinging down a pole in a fireman's hat and a new satin Maidenform bra. The caption—"I dreamed I was a fireman in my Maidenform bra." Certainly such a broad statement announced by a shapely female will cause the reader to read on. Under the picture appears the explanation. "I'm the chief and the siren too—the most incendiary figure in this five-alarm dream! Dangerous, yes . . . but beautifully under control, I'm lifted to new heights of excitement by my dream of a Maidenform." Gosh! Such advertisements are a work of art.

Some observations relating to this advertising world . . .

The "Too fat?", "Too thin?" captions aren't as interesting as the weird pictures presented under them of the broad figure or the wisp of a weakling.

The Toni Twins are still good.

On Your Honor

by Faye O'Neal

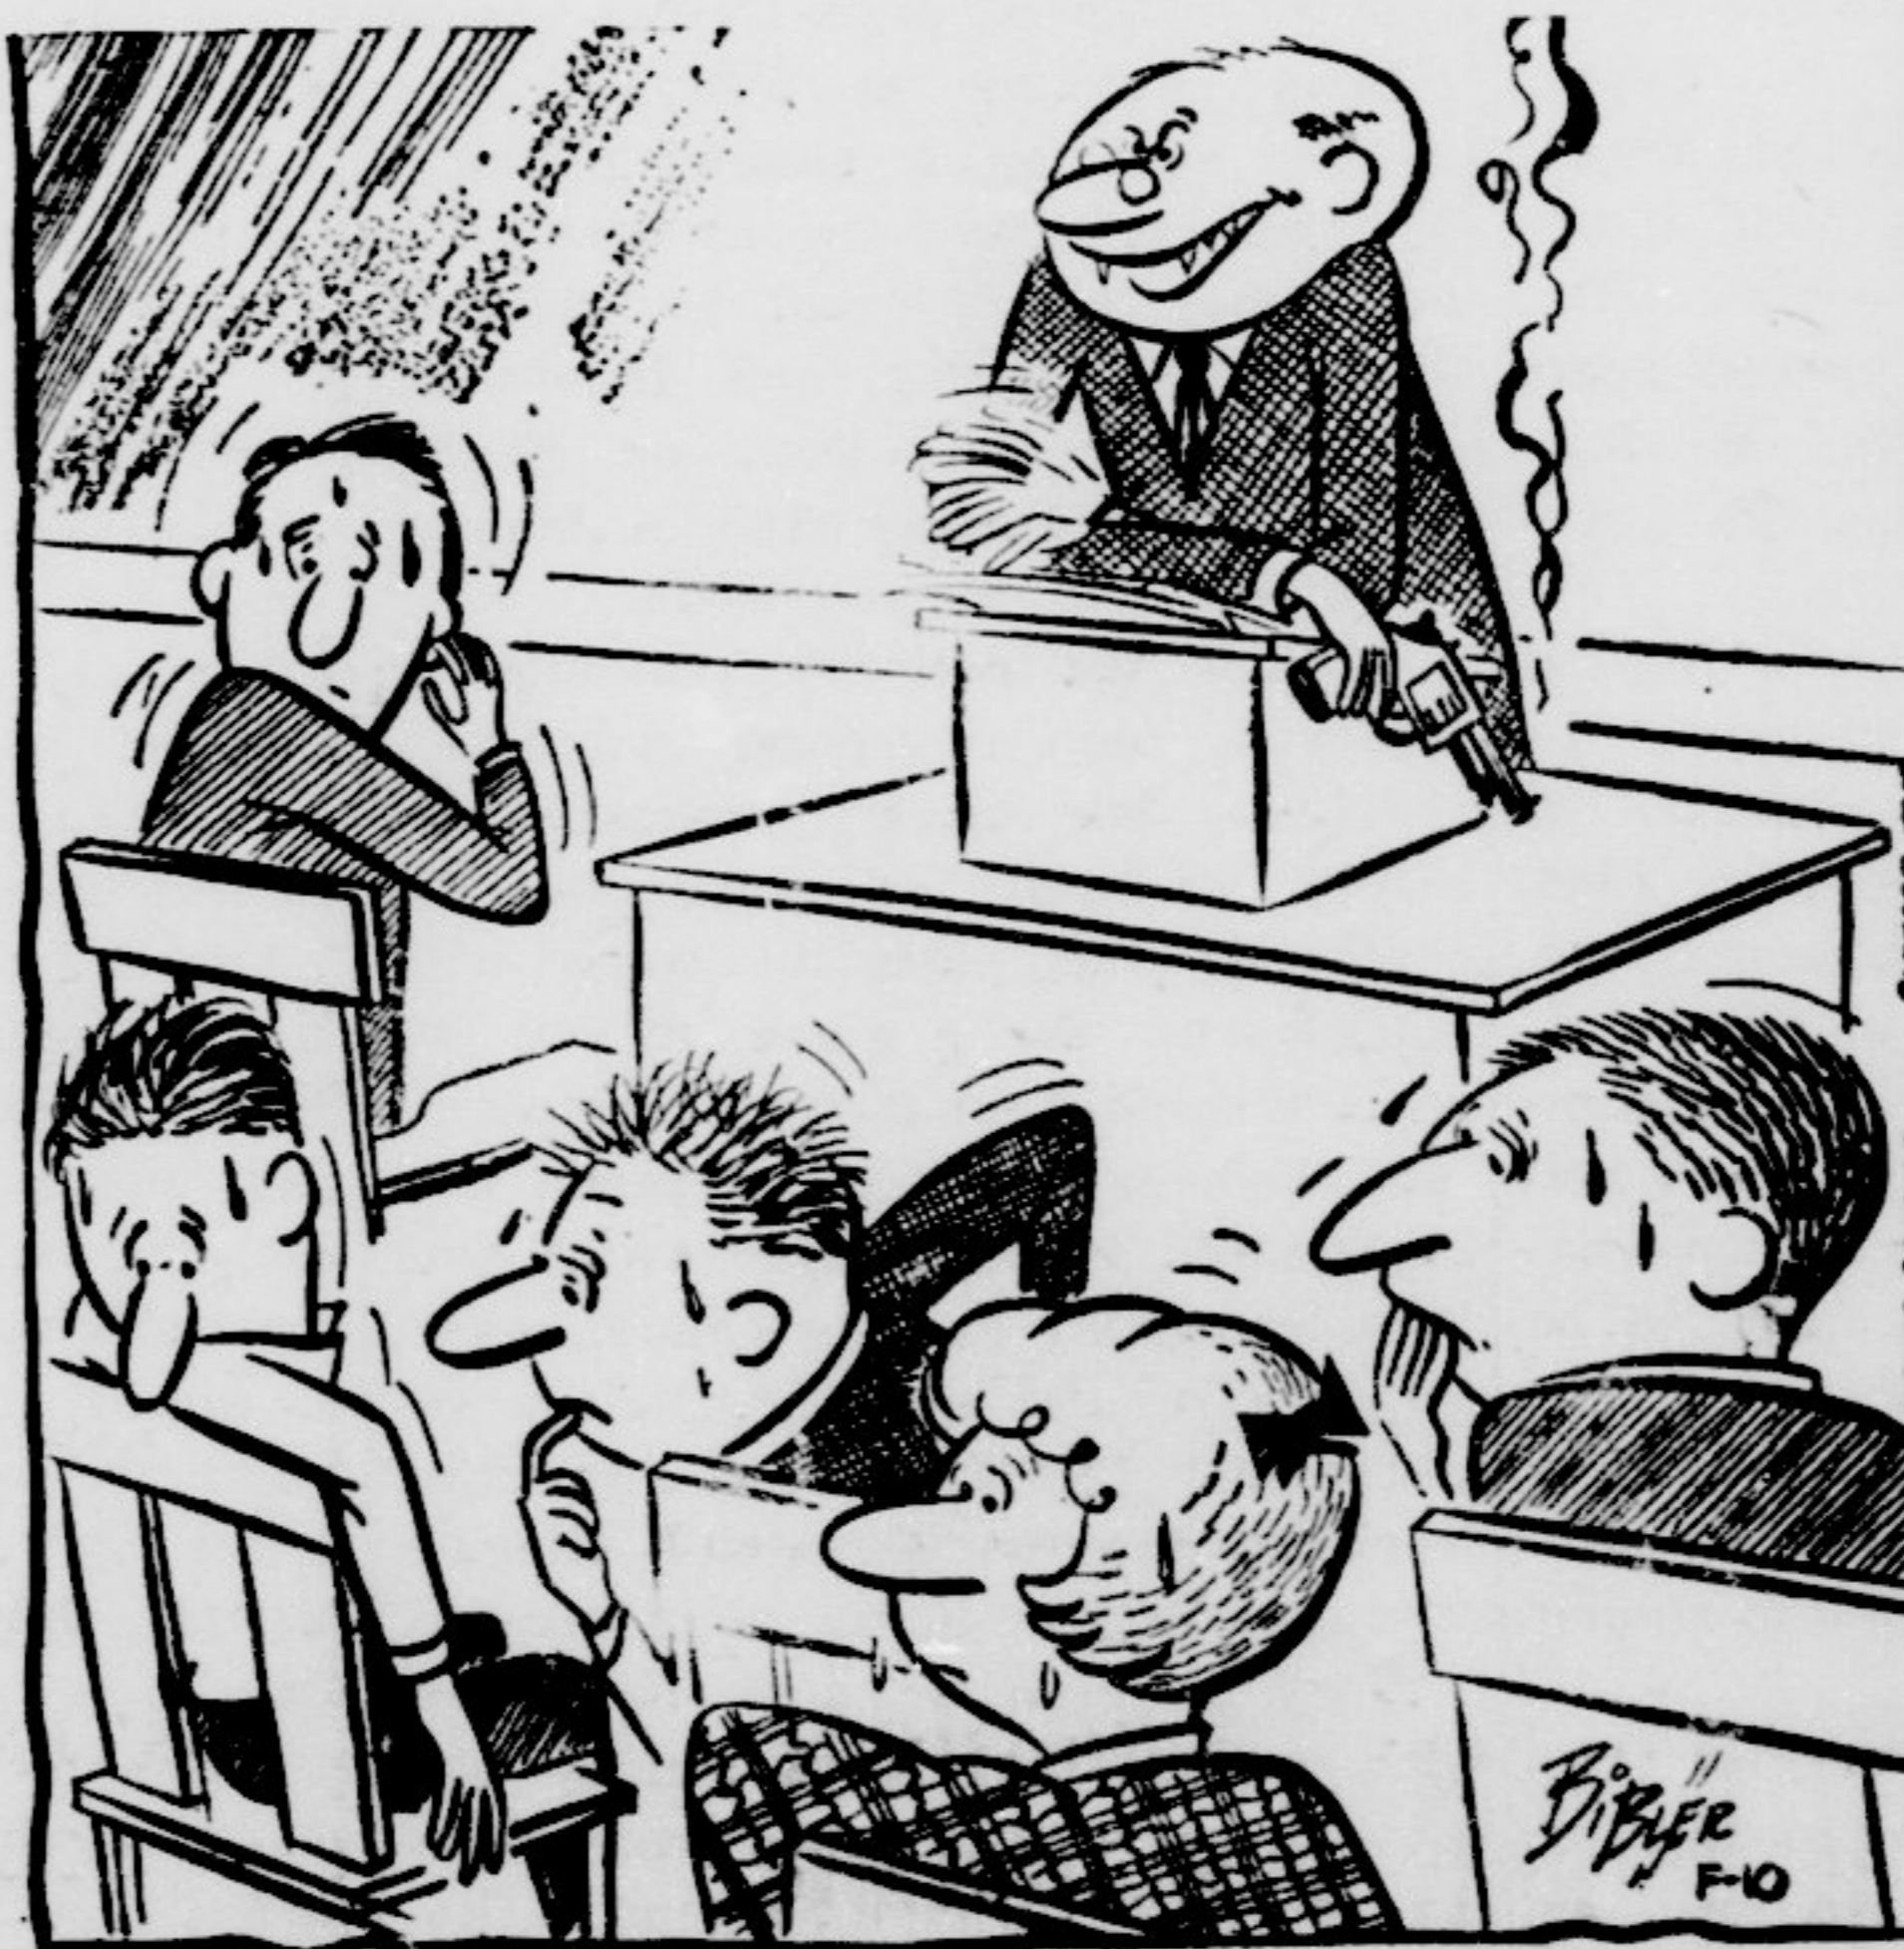

What is the honor system? Simply put the main characteristics of the arrangement are pledges conducive to honor by all students of the school in which the honor system is being practiced. When a student enters the school he signs a written statement which is a part of his permanent record and which says something in accordance with "I will not cheat, lie or steal, or conduct myself in an unbecoming manner while enrolled in this institution." In further practice, the honor system requires absence of instructors during examinations and allows no cheating among the pupils. Also, students are asked to report any infractions of the cheating rules to the proper authorities. No doors are locked in colleges dormitories where this system is practiced, except for closet doors which are locked at the discretion of the student. In effect, the honor system works just as it's name implies—each person is "on his honor."

Many times in the past the idea of putting East Carolina on the honor system has come up. Whether it has gone down, so to speak, we are unable to say. Insofar as we know there is no obvious sign of this college being put on the honor basis any time in the near future. However the topic is not in stagnation and there is almost always some free conversing on the matter. The following examples are typical of opinions of East Carolina students on whether the honor system would be advisable at our school.

On the cheating question, Jackie Sears, a junior from Greenville, says emphatically, "There is a lot of cheating going on here." Jackie favors going on the honor system if there is such available. She thinks cheating would be decreased by this system. "A lot of cheaters are not habitual cheaters, and might be probed by their consciences to stop cheating altogether if they were under pledge to be honest," says this coed.

James L. "Jimmy" Byrd, a senior here who lives in Slay Hall told us that, generally speaking, he is in favor of the honor system. "There is a definite problem concerning honor in the dormitories here. We need an answer. I do not know definitely, because of lack of experience with the honor system, but I believe students who knew that they were under requiring pledge concerning their actions in the dormitories, might think twice before mutilating or stealing other people's property," says Byrd. He further expresses himself on the honor system by saying there would be inconsistency in reporting infractions of rules. Most students would report an individual whom they saw steal something from another's dormitory room whereas they would not report that same person if they saw him cheat on an examination, according to Byrd.

Having attended a West Coast university where the honor system has been used continuously, Tom Ballance, a freshman here, states that he doesn't think it really matters whether a school is on the honor basis or not. Ballance emphatically agrees with those who say that a person who wants to cheat is going to cheat regardless of whether or not he is under a pledge on his honor. As for reporting infractions of the cheating rule, Ballance says, "I would not report a classmate for cheating." In fewer, more concise words, Ballance doesn't think the honor system is worth bothering with.

"I'll continue now, if there are no further irrelevant questions."

Where as the North State Conference schedule is rapidly drawing to a close, the most important games for league teams remain to be played.

At this stage of the game it doesn't seem overly optimistic to concede the regular season title to the Pirates of East Carolina but the result of the conference at Lexington may well be another story.

The Buccaneers, who held the league's top position with a 12-1 mark, laid back their prime threat in the form of Western Carolina's Catamounts 81-67 Friday night and then splattered Appalachian all over the Smoky Mountains to the tune of 99-74 on Monday.

All these things are well and good in the run for the regular season flag but it certainly won't make things any more amiable toward the Bucs come playoff time.

East Carolina owns one of the most admirable records possible as far as winning on the home court is concerned but when it comes to the road trips they naturally can't hit as well. At Lexington the top eight teams of the conference will be entered and regular season records will have little meaning. Last year the Bucs finished first and then bowed out to High Point in the semi-finals. It's evident therefore that the post-season play is what really counts.

It would be quite a help to the Pirates if Western Carolina and Lenoir Rhyne could be paired in an early contest for one of the Pirates' regular opponents would be eliminated. Keep an eye on those two schools!

They'll really be out to lynch themselves a Pirate.

Though basketball may still be very much in the picture, it won't be long at all before baseball at East Carolina will be well under way. The Pirates lost little from last year's club which gave a good account of itself before folding in the stretch, and all indications point to another successful season for the Pirates.

The addition of Jim Mallory as head baseball coach may be the major factor in giving the Buc baseballers a shot in the arm. Mallory is reputed to be one of the best baseball coaches in the state if not in the South.

A glance still further into the future reveals that the athletic department is still hard at work on next year's football schedule. At present, a 10-game slate is being planned with only two schools not signed and under contract.

Agreements have been reached with five North State Conference schools, Elon, Lenoir Rhyne, Appalachian, Western Carolina and Catawba. The first three games will be played away and the latter two at home. Only Guilford, which did not see fit to play the Pirates, will not be on the Buccaneers' loop schedule.

The three out-of-conference schools which have been signed include two opponents from last year, Tampa and Stetson Universities, plus West Chester Teachers from Pennsylvania. The latter school will open the Pirate slate at College Stadium.

Bobby Hodges Honored By Teague Nomination

East Carolina Player Among 19 Men Chosen For Amateur Award

Nineteen men from North and South Carolina, including East Carolina's Bobby Hodges, have been nominated for the Teague Award, given annually to the top male and female amateur athletes from the Carolinas.

A final ballot will be taken among Carolina sportswriters within the next several days to determine who will be the successor to Harvie Ward, the Tarboro golfing ace, who was last year's winner.

Among the 19 men nominated for the honor, three—Furman's Frank Selvy, Duke's Ed Meadows and soft-ball pitcher Nazi Miller of Canton—were also nominated last year.

Unique Honor

Hodges' nomination is unique in the respect that he is the only honoree to be chosen for excellence in two sports—both football and basketball. The ace senior athlete from Kinston captured the 1953 Pirate football squad to a record of eight wins and one defeat in regular season play. He currently is leading the North State Conference's basketball scoring with an average of better than 25 points per game.

The winners of the annual award will be honored later in the year. Other contenders for the top amateur honor given to Carolina athletes are: Football—Don King, Clemson; Johnny Grambling, Clyde Bennett and Bill Wohrman, University of South Carolina; Bobby Burrows, Duke, Shirley Gabriel, Appalachian and Charles Bussey, Clemson freshman.

Cage Stars

Basketball players include, Dickie Hemric, Wake Forest and Bobby Speight, North Carolina State. Tennis—Allen Morris, Presbyterian; Sam Daniels, Columbia, S. C.; Del Sylvia, University of North Carolina; and Bill Umstead, Abbeville, S. C.

The lone swimmer named is Don Evans of the University of North Carolina. Duke's versatile track star Joe Shankle rounds out the list.

Pirate Gridders Holding Sessions Each Afternoon

by David Evans

The Pirate gridders are in full force, except those who are suffering minor illness, are still taking the field every afternoon to continue winter football practice sessions.

The Bucs went through a practice game, braving the coldest weather since the practice sessions started, last Friday. From all outward appearances the Bucs will compensate for their losses without too much difficulty, although the loss of men like Bobby Hodges and Johnny Brown, will certainly be felt.

Beginning with the first week of practice, the squad has been joined by boys from various high schools who have high hopes of becoming part of the powerful Pirate grid squad. Coach Boone's impression of these boys is not openly evident although it is a sure fact that he will find a few whom he thinks will be an asset to the team.

For the past week the work-outs have consisted mainly of blocking drills for the lineman, punting and punt returns along with passing drills for the backs, and combined drills concerning offensive plays with the whole squad taking part.

Barring changes the winter practice game is set for February 18. The Pirates may get a game with another college for the practice game, or it might be an inter-squad game. This problem is unsettled at present.

Monday's Schedule

Monday night's schedule in Men's Intramural Basketball play calls for the following teams to compete: 6 p.m.—Sheriffs vs Knights of Hardwood
6 p.m.—College Celtics vs Johnnie
7 p.m.—Campus Trotters vs Arabs
7 p.m.—Bootleggers vs Badgers
8 p.m.—Wolf Pack vs Jocks
8 p.m.—EPO vs Black Hawks

Western Carolina Bows To Pirates By 81-67 Margin

With too much zip and zeal as the ingredients for revenge, the East Carolina Pirates proved to be too much for the Catamounts of Western Carolina, as they handed them a blistering 81-67 defeat here Friday night before 2,000 fans in Memorial Gymnasium.

The victory moved the Pirates further out front in the North State race and gave them a grand total of 10 wins against one defeat in loop play.

The Pirates jumped to an early 19-15 lead in the first quarter. At half time the Pirates still had only a four point margin, but as the third quarter rolled around the Bucs' attack clicked and from there on out it was a matter of time till the buzzer sounded off that spelled victory for the Pirates.

J. C. Thomas, former Raleigh star, turned in his greatest game in his two years at East Carolina both as a ball handler and shooter, as he took top scoring honors with 27 points. Thomas was followed by Bobby Hodges, conference leading scorer, with 24 points.

Ray with 27 points was high man for the Catamounts of Western Carolina, while teammate Shamel took defensive honors for the night.

McCary Eagles Here For Non-League Game With Buccaneer Five

McCary's Eagles will provide the opposition Wednesday night when the East Carolina Pirates call a halt to North State Conference play long enough to take on a little semi-pro opposition.

The contest, which will be played in Memorial Gym, should find the Buccaneers rated slight favorites of the semi-pro outfit. The Eagles however, annually field one of the top independent outfits in the South and compete against top-notch collegiate squads.

A win for the locals would bring their overall seasonal record to 15 wins against one defeat. The Bucs currently own a 12-1 conference mark.

East Carolina took the measure of the Eagles in two outings last year but still should find the going rough. Included on the Eagle squad are former collegiate standouts from numerous North Carolina schools.

Bucs Thrash Mountaineers 99-74 In Conference Game

by Bruce Phillips

This writer has had the advantage of witnessing every Buc contest both home and abroad, and would like to devote a few lines in answer to a question put to him by one of our readers.

The question: Which game do you think the Pirates played best? Our answer: Well, the Lenoir Rhyne game played here was indeed a thriller in every respect and the Pirates carried themselves extremely well. No one can say the second Western Carolina game which saw the Bucs gain solace by compensating for the whipping in Cullowhee could deny its intrigue. But the best match all season long was the ECC-App encounter Monday night of this week.

All the way down the line every one from Coach Porter to second-manager-in-command Joe Grady feared the Mountaineers prior to game time and expected the fight that they got throughout the affair. Before the game East Carolina had won only once out of the last two visits to the 3,000-foot-plus elevation and the reported "gold in them thar hills" had stayed well hidden.

About 900 partisan fans gathered in the App's gym, mostly to watch the loop's leading ball club and the league's top scorer Bobby (Firpo) Hodges in action. Believe us, they could not have picked a better evening. The Pirates put on the finest and the most brilliant display of the entire season.

Charlie Huffman hit the first ECC basket, a lefty from the side; Firpo followed suit with a one-hander from the outside and the massacre was on. The Pirates went ahead by 10 points, 23-13, in the first minute of the second period. With Coach Porter's four "H's" and the driving Thomas with initials for a first name hotter than a French fox in a forest fire, the purple and gold went ahead 45-33 at halftime.

Hodges had 16 points, considered a splendid output for an entire game, at the half-way mark. The scoring pace was tremendous. At one time in the third quarter Hodges hit six consecutive baskets—four breathtaking hooks and two from the outside like Bevo. His total scoring for the third stanza was 14 points and although sitting out the last five minutes in the last quarter, he collected 36 markers for the night—the greatest one-night spree in the huge center's college career.

When the final whistle blew and the clock read 99-74, twelve players, Coach Porter, indispensable manager Norwood Talton, yours truly and the hoard of mountain folk were thoroughly exhausted.

A 36-point scoring effort by team captain and center Bobby Hodges paced the East Carolina Pirates to a 99-74 win over Appalachian Monday night at Boone. The win was the Pirates' 11th in North State Conference play against one defeat and gave them an overall mark of 13-1.

Charlie Huffman opened the scoring for the Pirates with two quick baskets and the Bucs went on from there to build up a 21-13 margin at the end of the quarter.

Lengthen Lead

The second period saw the Bucs lengthen their margin to 45-33 but the third quarter displayed the best all-around performance of the night. Hodges, guard Cecil Heath and forward Don Harris combined talents on both offense and defense as East Carolina pulled steadily away. At one period in this quarter Hodges hit six consecutive field goals. Heath played his usual outstanding floor game and collected 15 points besides. Harris carried much of the rebound work and tossed in 19 markers.

J. C. Thomas, the other Pirate guard, slacked off a little from his fabulous 27 point total against Western Carolina but nevertheless managed to collect 10 points and turn in one of his best floor games.

Guard O. D. Wallace, one of the best set-shots in the North State Conference, was held to three field goals by the Pirate defense. Brown and Heath took high honors for the losers with 16 and 15 points each.

Cuthbert Directs Summer Music Camp Program Here

East Carolina College has announced that its first Summer Music Camp for high school musicians and for music teachers will be held June 14-25. Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the college department of music and conductor of the East Carolina Varsity Glee Club, will be camp director.

Each student attending the camp will have a well-rounded musical and social program, supervised by skilled teachers and staff members. Dr. Cuthbert has announced. Students will live in college dormitories and may use the college cafeteria for meals. Instructions will be offered to students of music in band, choir, theory, music literature, conducting and small ensembles. Music teachers attending the camp will attend lectures, demonstrations and seminars in band and choral teaching and will have an opportunity to observe classes, rehearsals, and concerts of the camp program.

As part of the work of the camp, four workshops will be offered: a choral director workshop, June 14-19; a band directors workshop, June 21-

25; a workshop in music for elementary teachers, June 22-23; and a majorettes' workshop, June 14-19.

Dr. Arnold E. Hoffman, state supervisor of music for North Carolina, and members of his staff will conduct the two-day workshop for teachers in the lower grades. All phases of music in primary and grammar grades will be covered. Assisting Dr. Hoffman will be Dr. Cuthbert and Beatrice Chauncey of the East Carolina College music faculty.

The faculty of the Music Camp will include nine members of the college department of music. In addition, Mark H. Hindsley, director of bands at the University of Illinois, will serve as Music Camp Band director.

Toni Gill, majorette instructor at Salem College and Elizabeth City, and Shirley Leary, instructor at Woman's College and baton instructor at Elizabeth City, will demonstrate and teach all phases of majorette techniques. Two concerts are scheduled among camp activities. These will include as performers the Music Camp Band and majorettes and the Music Camp Chorus. The programs will take place at 8 p. m. June 19 and 25 in the college stadium.

A program of recreational activities, including swimming in the college pool, is being arranged for those attending the Music Camp.

GENERAL ALUMNI ELECTION HELPS START OWN FIRM DECIDES NUMBER OF DISTRICTS

Alumni of East Carolina College soon will vote on a redistricting plan for the General Alumni Association that will double the present six districts and provide a district for out-of-state alumni.

Redistricting plans were completed at a meeting in Raleigh of a committee headed by Baxter Ridenhour of Durham. Changes call for 12 North Carolina districts as follows: Yadkin Valley, South Piedmont, Asheville, Greensboro, Fayetteville, Wilmington, Greenville, Rocky Mount, Raleigh-Durham, Kinston, Roanoke-Chowan, Allendale and the out-of-state district.

The plan will promote closer coordination among chapters and members-at-large within the districts, Ridenhour said. The Association has been following the six-district plan of the North Carolina Education Association.

Several thousand alumni will be given the opportunity to vote on the redistricting plan. Ballots will be mailed and the deadline will be March 15. If the plan is approved the number of district directors will be increased from six to 13.

Members of the redistricting committee in addition to Ridenhour are Mrs. Ruth Willard Meeks, Wilson; Mrs. Janet Rose Shearin, Louisburg; Mary Thomas Smith, Greenville; Sam B. Dees, Raleigh. Alumni Secretary James W. Butler of Greenville and James L. Whitfield, alumni association president, Raleigh, met with the committee.

EAST CAROLINA COLLEGE ALUMNI CHAPTER FORMED

East Carolina College is developing a program of service for public education and is moving to meet the challenge of a growing state, declared Alumni Secretary James W. Butler at a dinner attended by ECC alumni of a six-county area held in Lenoir Tuesday evening, January 26.

Following the address, the alumni perfected the organization of a chapter, electing J. B. Edwards of Lenoir, Happy Valley high school faculty member, as president, and choosing a slate of other officers.

Named as county vice presidents were Mrs. Russell M. Gaylord of Morganton, Burke County; Mrs. B. E. Scarborough, Hickory, Catawba. President Edwards will appoint vice presidents for Alexander, Watauga and Wilkes Counties.

Mrs. George V. McGimsey of Lenoir, secretary; Mrs. J. Dudley Rabb of Lenoir, treasurer, and Mrs. Anna H. Cartner of Lenoir, reporter, were the other officers chosen.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. McGimsey, and chairman of arrangements was Mr. Edwards. Alumni were present from Burke, Caldwell and Catawba Counties, and reports were had from alumni residing in Alexander and Wilkes Counties. The invocation was spoken by the Rev. B. M. Lackey, Episcopal rector of Lenoir who has served his parish 26 years. He attended summer school here three weeks and his wife is also an alumnae.

Enrollment at East Carolina during the winter quarter is 2,348, with 410 students registered for extension classes to put the present registration at more than 2,700 students, Butler told the group.

Mrs. Davis notes that she has not taught since leaving California, but still works with boys and girls through church, Parent-Teacher Association, Girl Scouts, and belongs to several other civic groups.

Mrs. Stripling Talks On Trip To Lebanon

The Phi Sigma chapter of the Sigma Pi Alpha, national foreign language fraternity, held its monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Mrs. Estella Stripling, head resident of Wilson Hall, was guest speaker. Mrs. Stripling taught in Lebanon for three years and on her return trip, she visited Cairo, Rome, Madrid, Toledo, Paris and Greece.

She gave a lecture on her trip abroad and showed several souvenirs she had purchased.

Hearing Consultant Wanted Offering $6,000 Salary

Mrs. Dorothy Perkins of the education department has been asked to recommend a special education teacher in the hearing field for a position in Michigan as a hearing consultant. The beginning salary offered in from $5,500 to $6,500. The applicant must understand the audiometric testing of hearing, hearing aids and have some knowledge of the teaching of lip reading.

A graduate course in hearing therapy (Ed. 464—Re-education of Acoustically Handicapped Children) will be offered during the spring term on Tuesday evenings from 4:30-7 p.m. This course includes audiometric testing, lip reading and other rehabilitation methods.

The college Speech and Hearing Clinic also offers instruction in an hour's practice in lip each week. This hour is planned for hard of hearing students who need lip reading; however, Mrs. Perkins always welcomes any students who care to learn lip reading.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. says . . .

FOR more than thirty years we have used research day in and day out learning about tobaccos and cigarettes in the public's interest.

Continuously we and our consultants have analyzed, experimented with and smoked all kinds of tobaccos . . . especially Southern Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish cigarette tobaccos.

Our own cigarettes and competitive brands have been submitted to the most exacting scientific scrutiny including thousands of analyses of millions of pounds of tobaccos.

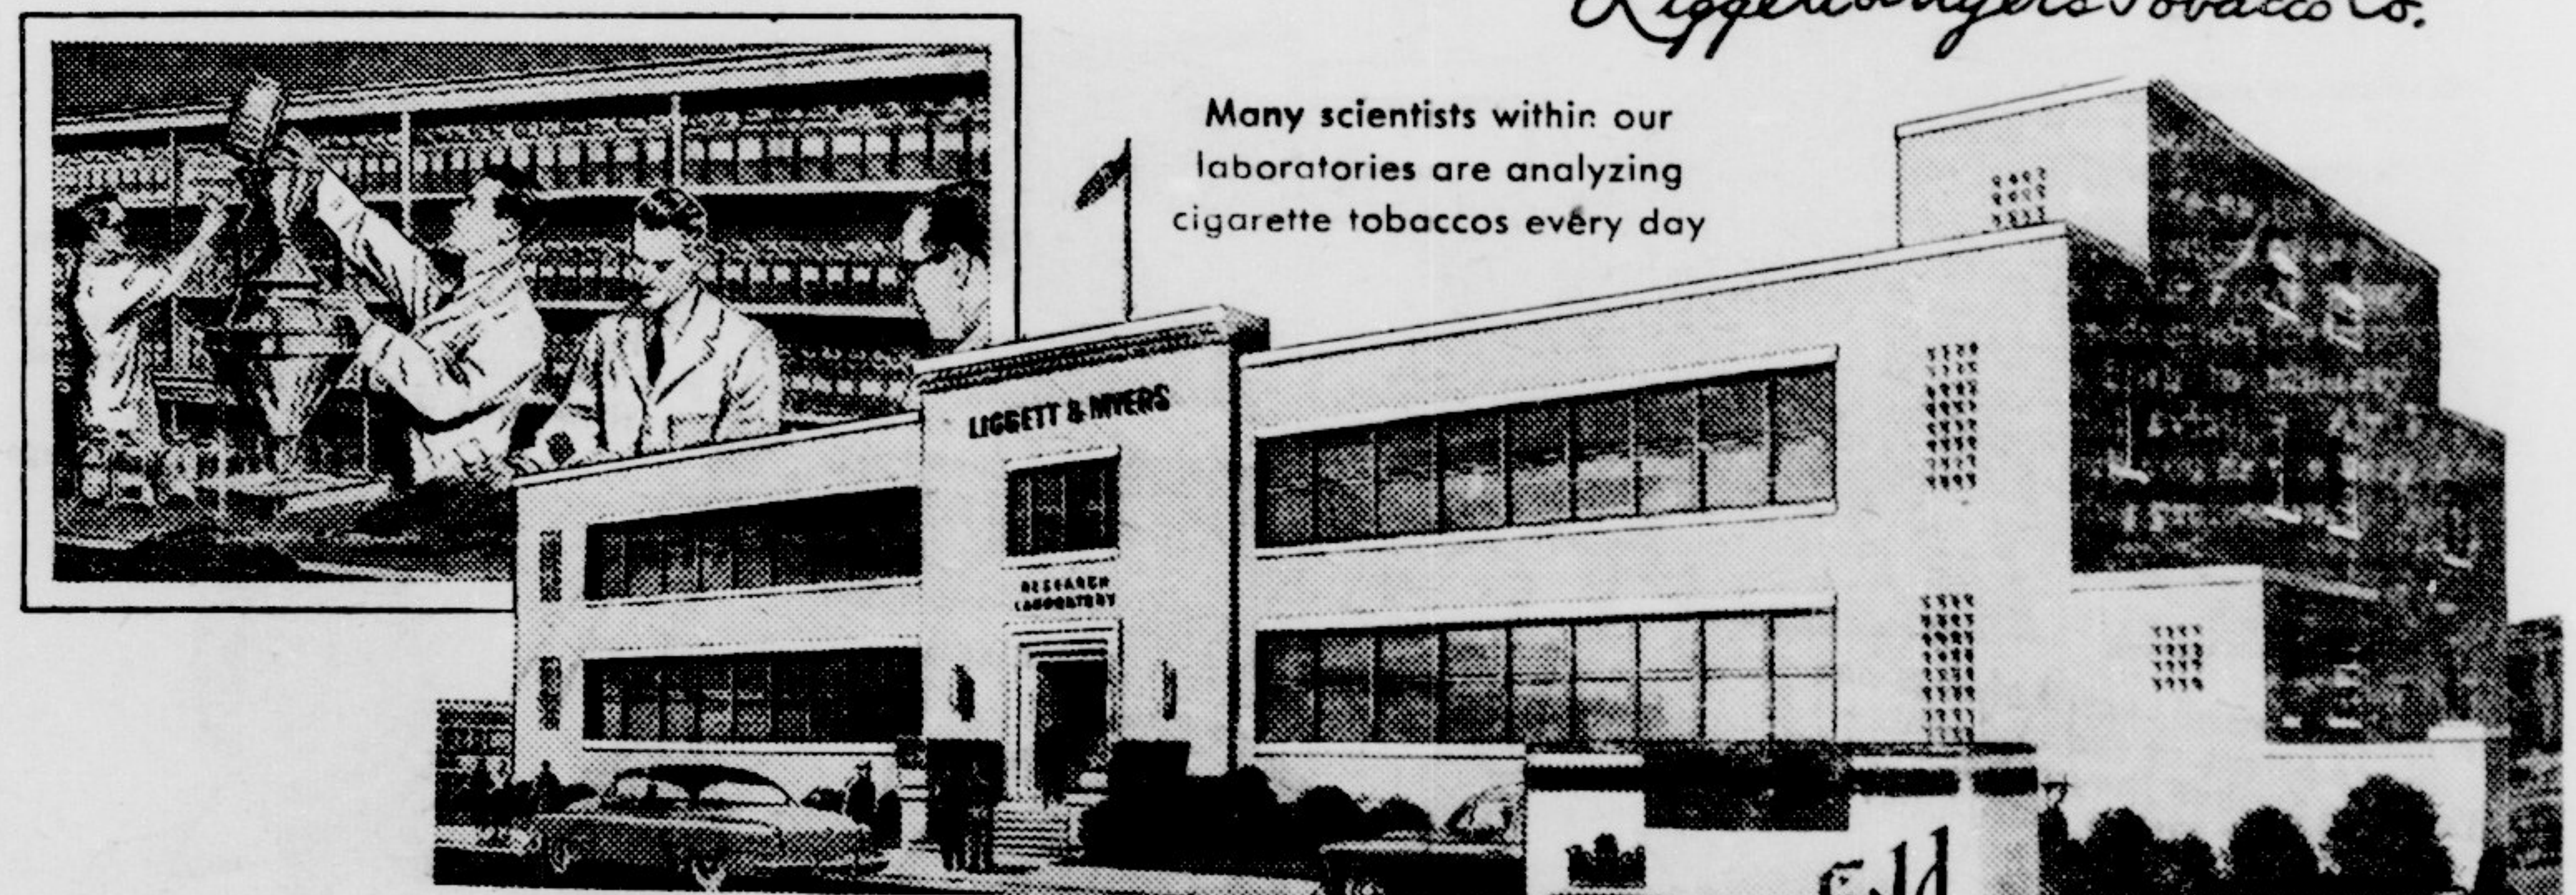

From all these thousands of analyses, and other findings reported in the leading technical journals, our Research Department has found no reason to believe that the isolation and elimination of any element native to cigarette tobaccos today would improve smoking.

For four years we have maintained in the smoker's interest an intensified larger scale diversified research program. A half-million dollar 30-ton machine, the world's most powerful source of high voltage electrons, designed solely for our use has tested tens of thousands of cigarettes. This program has already given to us direct and significant information of benefit to the smoking public.

Our consultants include Arthur D. Little, Inc. of Cambridge, Massachusetts, "one of the largest and most reputable industrial research organizations in the country" (From Business Week Magazine) and eminent scientists from leading universities.

Today the public can confidently choose from a variety of brands—by far the best cigarettes ever made by the tobacco industry.
