President Announces Graduation Program

East Carolina College will observe on May 22-24 the 45th Annual Commencement to be held on the campus. President John D. Messick has announced a program which includes events of Alumni Day, Saturday, May 22; the commencement sermon and the annual vesper service of the YMCA and the YWCA, Sunday, May 23; and ceremonies Monday, May 24; marking the graduation of approximately 350 seniors and graduate students from the college.

standing for service will be made at this time. The Alumni Day program, arranged by James W. Butler, alumni secretary of the college, and association officers, will include a luncheon in the college dining hall at 12:30; a tea honoring seniors, alumni, staff members and guest of the college at 3 p. m.; a lawn concert by the East Carolina Band at 4 p. m.; and a concert presenting "honors" students of the department of music at 8 p. m. Sunday's events will include the annual vesper services held by the YMCA and the YWCA. A traditional candlelighting ceremony will be led by Charlie B. Bedford of Pikeville, John "Topsy" Hayes of Durham, Lilley of Gatesville, officers of the Mairdred Morris of Kenly and Erlene two organizations. Academic processions by the faculty, graduates and special guests will precede the programs Sunday and Monday mornings. Wendell W. Smiley, East Carolina librarian, heads the committee in charge of commencement this spring. Royce C. Jordan of Washington, N. C., and Vivian Talley of Wilmington, N. C., are among those assisting with plans for the graduation exercises.

Fill Out SS 109 Now

Male students who desire scholastic draft deferment for the coming school year should fill out a Selective Service form 109 at the Registrar's office between now and the termination of this quarter.

Dr. Orville L. Phillips, registrar, said that this form must be filled and returned to the office in order that a student may be deferred on his high scholastic averages.

Because of the large number dropped from AFROTC, those students who intend to enter college next fall should make application for deferment, Dr. Phillips urged.

New Student Band Begins Performing

Jimmy Page and his Orchestra, a newly organized student dance band on campus, performed at Louisburg College for their annual May Day dance Saturday.

As a student-cooperative outfit, the orchestra has had numerous other bookings. It is composed of eight pieces with all members freshmen and sophomores.

Led by Jimmy Page, a sophomore, the dance band is open for bookings by contacting Charles Lovelace, business manager, or any member of the band.

Playhouse Slates Two Final Dramas

Two original one-act plays by students will form the last program in the Spring Workshop Series to be presented by the Teachers Playhouse Wednesday, May 12, in the College Theatre at 8 p. m.

"Who Wears the Pants," a folk comedy by Tommy Thompson, is directed by Atwood Smith with a cast including: Bill Penuel, Robert Gardner, Patricia Goodwin and Pat Purvis.

"One Too Many," a marital mixup conceived by Sabra Nunalee, finds Jeanne Dore directing Nancy Cooke, Jim Colson, Sylvia Vaughn, Jackie Jones and Mary Ann Marshbourne in the various roles.

Both plays will be presented as dramatic readings. Students and the general public are invited without charge.

Dr. Pingel Will Head Pitt Literary Group

Dr. Martha Pingel of the department of English here has been appointed Pitt County chairman of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association. Among her duties is management of the membership campaign now being conducted in this area.

Dr. Pingel will attend May 14-15 in Edenton the spring regional meeting of the association. Events will include a tour of historic places in Chowan County; a talk by Richard Walsler of State College; and a luncheon at Bandon Plantation, home of the novelist Mrs. Inglis Fletcher.

Awards Night On Tap Monday

Alumni Day Honors 9 Classes At Annual Reunion May 22

The college will honor nine classes of graduates who will hold reunions on Alumni Day, to be observed May 22 as part of the 45th annual Commencement on campus. Alumni Secretary James W. Butler has announced.

Invitations were issued this week to more than 2,200 alumni who are members of honor classes, Butler states. A large attendance from these classes and others is expected to be present.

Classes which will receive special honor during the day are those of 1929, holding its silver anniversary; 1944, observing its tenth anniversary; and 1953, meeting with the Alumni Association for the first time.

Other classes holding reunions are those of 1914, 1919, 1924, 1934, 1939 and 1949.

James L. Whitfield of Raleigh, president of the Alumni Association, will preside at a business meeting during the morning. The recipient of the annual Alumni Award to an outstanding graduate of the college will be announced at this time. Other events being planned for the day include a luncheon, a tea, two programs of music, class reunions and a tour of new buildings on the campus.

Hooper Presents Recital Tuesday

Marietta Hooper of Elizabeth City, pianist, was presented Tuesday in a recital sponsored by the college department of music.

A senior at the college, Miss Hooper appeared in a program marking her graduation from the college this year. She is a pupil of Robert Carter, of the East Carolina faculty.

For her recital Miss Hooper had chosen a varied group of selections by composers from the classic to the contemporary periods in music.

Among numbers were Beethoven's Sonata, op. 26; selections from Suite, op. 1, by Eugene d'Albort; and "Dance of the White Indian" by Villa-Lobos.

Miss Hooper appeared last year as piano soloist with the East Carolina Orchestra. At the college she has been a member of the College Choir and accompanist for the Women's Chorus and the 1954 production of "Blossom Time" by the Student Government Association of the college.

Baptists Slate Final Programs For School Year

Forums for the remainder of the term have been announced by BSU Forum Chairman Mary Ann Marshburn.

May 10, Florence McFaden, educational director at Memorial Baptist Church, will lead a program on character story telling and Bible study for students interested in Vacation Bible School work during the summer. She will highlight the program by giving demonstrations.

May 17, the Bible School theme will continue with a panel, discussion on the use of handwork and recreation. The panel directed by Shirley Lassiter, Syreenna Thompson and Mary Ann Marshburn will mark the close of the forums for the year.

Beginning in September, forums will be under direction of the newly installed chairman, Shirley Lassiter. Forums are held at the Baptist Study Center every Monday evening at 5:30. All students are welcomed.

Perry Announces Contest Winners

Nancy Carolyn Hamilton and Effie Verlene Mitchell, both of Kipling, won first-place honors in the North Carolina division of the National French Contest sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of French.

Mrs. Marguerite A. Perry of the East Carolina College foreign language department, state contest chairman, has just announced results of the state-wide examinations which were administered in April. More than 2,000 students in secondary schools in North Carolina participated.

Miss Mitchell scored highest in the state in tests for second-year students of French; and Miss Hamilton, in that for first-year students of French. Both are students in the Fayette School and are enrolled in classes in French taught by Mrs. Dorothy Spence Arnold.

Student Workers, Leaders Receive Honors In Field

Decision To Post Election Returns Passes In SGA

A resolution was accepted by the Student Legislature last week to post numerical returns after all general elections hereafter. The former policy was not to make publically known the count of votes.

Don King introduced the resolution which was composed by him and Owen Besselieu.

One member said that the results may be "embarrassing" to a candidate. Another expressed that if the candidates were willing to put their names on ballot, "then they should be willing to take what the election brings them."

President Wade Cooper announced at the meeting that Warren "Sonny" Russell's basketball jersey has been officially retired and placed in the trophy case at Memorial Gym. The outstanding Pirate cage star, who graduated last year, wore the famed jersey number 14 which has been requested for retirement by the SGA all year.

Louis Clark was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy as general chairman of next year's Homecoming. Charlie Klutz, who was also unanimously elected chairman the week before, withdrew because of practice teaching next fall.

Upon recommendations of the coaches here, the body voted for the three teams to receive the John D. Messick Sportsmanship Award, an honor given annually to a team in the North State Conference. Votes from the student legislatures in the conference will be tabulated next week at the annual NS Senate. Colleges cannot vote for their own teams. East Carolina's votes will be Appalachian, first; Guilford, second; Catawba, third.

Kings Of Underworld And 'Peepers'

Many Ways To Cheat On Exams

Many of us use some scrupulous methods to help us get through college! The gambler is well-known on campus, as is also the student who always does those little "extras" for the teacher and comes up with high grades. But, how many of us know the cheaters on campus?

King of Underworld
Perhaps I shouldn't out and out call him a cheater, but refer to him as the "King of the Underworld." During exams the "King's" popularity is immense, but all who seek his aid must pay a high price—loss of self-respect. You can usually spot this figurehead by various means. First, he always carries a ring of keys (that admit him to any building and room on campus). Second, if you notice closely, his finger tips are slightly burned. In his occupation, he must rely heavily on matches to see by, for too much light would attract attention. Third, this man can be found usually surrounded by a crowd of admirers, all wanting him to sell them certain exams. Beware of him!

The Little "Peepers"
Many of the "King's" hoods carry on other forms of this activity in the class rooms. Some forms are the "Peepers," who can't resist taking a look at another's paper. Some like to take their notes with them to exams—either on their cuffs, socks, shoes, or even concealed in their watches. They are sly . . . but beware! Crime does not pay!

Cheating has been with us as long as tests have, and probably will be handed down from generation to generation, unless you yourself put a stop to it. It may be a way to get on the Dean's List, but when you have accomplished this, do you have the inner satisfaction that should go along with the honor?

Beware of the shady way and rely on your own knowledge, for in the end it's what YOU know that counts.

Annual Awards Night will be held Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Austin auditorium, according to Awards Committee Chairman Don King, who will preside at the event. Receiving awards will be outstanding seniors in each department and other student leaders.

Students receiving departmental awards have been selected by a joint committee of faculty and students of the various departments. To be eligible for a departmental award, a student must have at least a 2.2 average in either his major or minor field.

Student Citizen Awards will be presented to the outstanding woman student and to the outstanding male student in the Senior Class. These selections are made on the basis of the vote of the SGA.

Other awards will go to members of the Student Legislature, 28 students who were selected for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," athletes and members of the "East Carolinian" and "Buccaneer" staffs.

Both the faculty and the student officers will be represented in the awards. Dean Leo W. Jenkins will present the departmental awards. Publications awards will be made by Dr. John O. Reynolds to the "Buccaneer" staff, and by Mary H. Greene to the "East Carolinian" staff. The "Who's Who" awards will be given by Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, dean of men and director of Student Affairs. Wade Cooper, SGA president, will present Student Legislature awards. Dr. W. E. Marshall, of the social studies department, will present the two Citizenship Awards. Athletic awards will be made by Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, head of that department, assisted by the various coaches.

At the close of the program, official presentation of the 1954 "Buccaneer" will be made to Dr. Orval L. Phillips, Registrar, to whom the annual has been dedicated. This dedication ceremony will be conducted by "Buccaneer" co-editors, Mildred Reynolds and Tommie Lupton.

Draft Deferment Student Exams Set For May 20

The deadline for applications for the Selective Service examination is midnight, May 10, according to a report released from the local draft board. The test is an intelligence quiz and will be given here for the last time this year on May 20. It is taken to determine whether or not male college students are eligible for deferment from the draft.

If a student passes the exam with a satisfactory grade, he is deferred for four years, as long as he remains enrolled in college. Failure to pass the test cannot be made up, however, as the test is only given once to the same person.

The official designation for the exam is the Selective Service College Qualification test. The present criteria for deferment as an undergraduate student are either a satisfactory score (70) on this test or a specified rank in class (upper half of male freshman, upper two thirds of male sophomore, or upper three fourths of male junior class).

Priestley Gives Address Here On Global Problems

Interdependence and interrelationships among people of the world, especially in their effect on U.S. foreign policy, and peace through international law and order were stressed here Monday by Dr. S. E. Gerard Priestley in an address to students and guests of the college.

Approximately 700 people were present to hear the British historian, lecturer and author, whose talk was the fifth program on the College Lecture Series for 1953-54. He was introduced to his audience by Dr. A. D. Frank, chairman of the college department of social studies.

Science and technology have created a world, Dr. Priestley said, that has become increasingly interdependent and interrelated. Space, he explained, no longer separates peoples of different geographical areas of the world in the sense it once did, and the media of communication have been vastly expanded.

"We need to understand the cultural patterns, the economy, the religion and other aspects of the lives of other peoples," Dr. Priestley continued. "Misunderstanding, misinformation and sheer ignorance" he cited as major hindrances to better relationships among nations and potent barriers in the establishment of peace in the world.

The frontiers of the United States are no longer, he explained, the Atlantic and the Pacific. Isolationism in our foreign policy is being replaced by the spirit of internationalism. This spirit is beginning to grow in Europe also, he stated. He gave as evidence the Schumann Plan and the EDC.

The United States has taken the lead in the establishment of the United Nations, he said, and now occupies a position of leadership in it.

"The ultimate goal of the United Nations," he said, "is the establishment of the concept of international law and order." Peace and security will follow only if this goal is attained.

"The United States," he concluded, "has laid the cornerstone of the Temple of Law and Order."

Science Academy Opens State Meet Here This Weekend

To encourage interest in science among high schools of North Carolina and to give recognition to superior students, the North Carolina Academy of Science is sponsoring this year a series of exhibits and an essay contest, results of which will be announced at the annual meeting of the organization at East Carolina College tomorrow and Saturday.

Mary O. Ellington of the Needham-Broughton High School, Raleigh, is chairman of a committee of the Academy which is arranging the contest. Exhibits will be on display here tomorrow and until 2 p. m. Saturday.

Among program events scheduled for the meet of the Academy here will be a luncheon Saturday for the committee on High School Science, high school teachers of science throughout North Carolina and other interested persons. It will take place at 12:15 p. m. in the North Dining Hall.

Improvement of the high school program sponsored by the Academy will be emphasized in discussions held at the luncheon.

Cash prizes and certificates of awards are offered to successful contestants in the exhibit contest. Entries are by one, two, or three students are eligible for cash prizes; and entries by larger groups of students, school classes and science clubs are eligible to receive awards.

Essay contest this year emphasize forestry and ornithology. Topics are "Better Tree Crops by Good Cutting Practices" and "Water Fowl Refuges of North Carolina."

Industrial Arts Group To Fair

Eleven students here attended the annual state Industrial Arts Fair in Greensboro Saturday.

The Fair included a preliminary contest to select industrial arts projects by students in this state for entry in the Industrial Arts Awards Fair sponsored each year by the Ford Motor Company.

Dr. Kenneth Bing and Dr. Charles G. Risher, of the East Carolina faculty, accompanied the students to Greensboro.

Varsity Club Elects McAdams New Prexy

Howard McAdams was elected to head next year's Varsity Club at a recent meeting. He succeeds Bobby Hodges.

Other officers are J. C. Thomas, vice president; Boyd Webb, secretary; and Willie Holland, treasurer.

The club is composed of members of varsity campus.

Building Progress Cited

Looking over the building expansion and other campus improvements East Carolina has made rapid advancement this year. An outlook to next year shows that even more progress will be made in the building program.

To begin with, a college telephone switchboard was installed to provide more and quicker communication on campus. Seating capacity at the College Stadium was increased by 1,400 last fall through the efforts of the Pirates Club, organized last year by interested alumni and Greenville business concerns.

Ragsdale Hall got an additional wing that furnishes 90 more male students here with living quarters. Plans are underway to start construction on a men's and a women's dorm which will allow over 500 more students on campus.

More sidewalks and drives have been laid recently to ease the flow of automotive and pedestrian traffic. More parking areas are being constructed to meet the present needs and the anticipated larger number of cars on campus next year.

The new Joyner Library is almost completed and will be ready for occupancy next fall. This huge building with its many rooms should adequately accommodate students and books.

By next fall the renovated Wright basement will be completed for a Student Union, housing the Student Supply Stores and offices of student affairs.

Credit for this campus expansion is due to many persons, but in particular to President John D. Messick, who showed our state legislators and State Budget Committee the need for more buildings here for a growing college. Credit is also due to F. D. Duncan, college business manager, who has the job of budgeting the State's appropriations wisely.

There Are Criminals On Campus

There are criminals on this campus. Now that final exams will be coming up two weeks from today, there will be students committing such crimes as breaking-and-entering and larceny.

It sounds bad to place these violations of college regulations in criminal lingo, but the offenses are just about on the same order.

Cheating itself sounds minor. But it isn't. Not when an instructor's office is opened by a pass key and next day's exam is stolen. This is the same as breaking-and-entering with a larceny charge.

Looking on someone's paper during an exam to get information is petty larceny. This is a criminal offense in regard to stealing something from its rightful owner. It isn't fair to this owner who has worked for himself to get his mark.

In the long run, the fellow who gets cheated is the one who does the cheating. This phrase has been used several times to curb cheating but it does not seem to faze those cheating. If a student feels that he must cheat to pass a course, then he isn't receiving what that course offers including the benefits from it in later life.

We are all probably against cheating. We are probably guilty of a little cheating ourselves. But are we willing to put it to a screeching halt now?

Ye Editor's Say

by T. Parker Maddrey

Joe McCarthy, that probing little junior senator from Wisconsin, has set a new trend in the American way of doing things. Now everything has to be "investigated."

Not too long ago the Baptists in the state put on an investigation. Frequently, the Student Legislature passes on motions that begin "Investigate the conditions . . ."

For the past few months tobacco in smoking form, which North Carolina produces three-fourths of the world's crop, has been under heavy investigation. It isn't a Red investigation but a probe on colorless nicotine, which is believed to be a cause of lung cancer, short life, shortness of breath and habitosis.

As the Senate Investigations Committee has put the American public against Communists, so has these nicotine probes put the same public against smoking. There has been quite a drop in tobacco consumption in these last few months.

Only this week, we received a note from an alumni reader who stated that she disapproved of cigarette advertising to encourage the habit through college newspapers. She admitted that she was a victim of the nicotine master.

All these investigations may put us strongly against something we believe is bad, but is it strong enough to make us act against it?

Getting back to cigarette advertising in the "East Carolinian," there is a large majority of smokers already on this campus and our advertisers are trying to get these to consume their brand.

If a person makes up his mind that he won't smoke, no advertisement or any other means will force him to the habit. The alumna who is against college cigarette ads probably subscribes to a quality national magazine which advertises liquor. Now liquor forms a habit worse than tobacco. Again the same rule applies, "if a person makes up his mind not to drink, he isn't, regardless."

Those liquor ads help support that national magazine just as the cigarette ads help support this newspaper. We are not saying that we couldn't do without them, but with so much tobacco business done in this section of the state, what's wrong with the manufacturers leaving a portion of their ad expenditures with us?

To The Editor

May Day Editorial

To the Editor,
 There are some questions that come in mind as I read the editorial "Big Day For Heathens, Communists." First, should we abolish all celebrations that are pagan in origin? Including Christmas? Or only those that have not been transformed into Christian celebrations? The editorial noted that May Day has been celebrated by Christians as the feast of St. John, however did not suggest that this role be enlarged upon.

Another reason given for abolishing May Day is that in other countries it is a day of worshipping gods and goddesses. The important question is how is May Day celebrated here? Is the editorial objecting to the worship of Mrs. Brinson? Should all beauty contests be abolished as un-democratic and un-Christian? In all fairness it ought to be mentioned that "White Christmas" and "Easter Parade" were featured.

As for the charge that Communists celebrate International Labor Day, does that mean we should have no celebrations that the Communists have? Should we abolish our September Labor Day? There are democratic countries that celebrate Labor Day on May 1.

Should the criteria of celebrations be whether they are Christian and democratic? Is there room in our democracy for non-Christian practices?

A final objection was that May Day was a celebration "honoring with humility the leaders of a monarchy nation." Surely England is a democracy. Further, in medieval times "all classes of people, young and old alike were up with the dawn, and we 'a-Maying' in the woods. Branches and flowers were being carried by those who shouldered the maypole . . ."

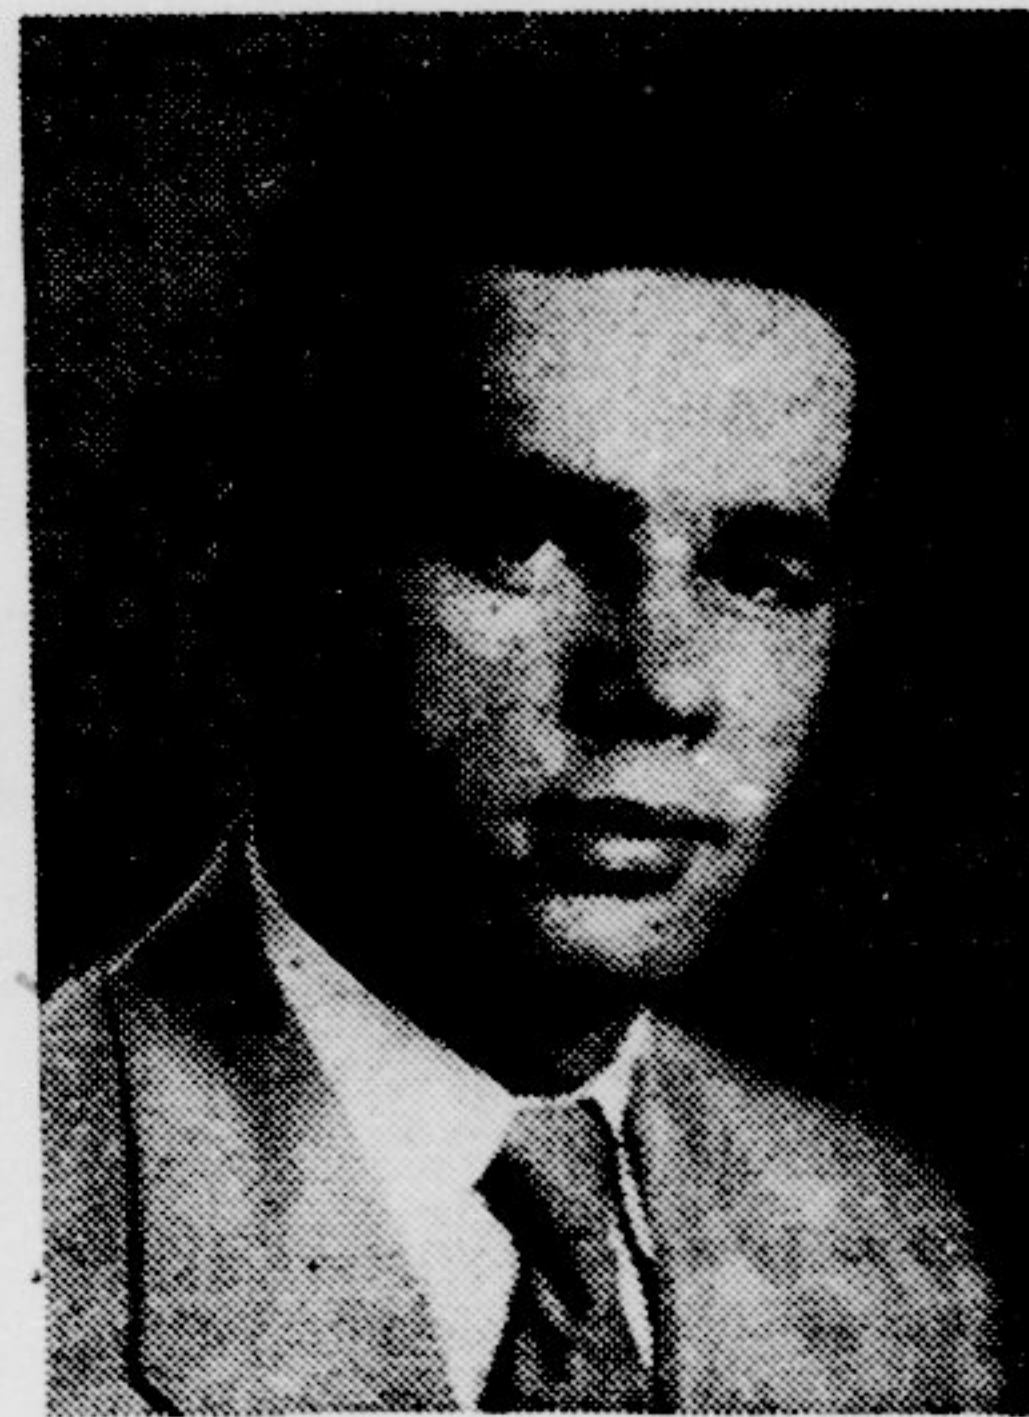

Then, too, it was attacked. As for me, I would have welcomed community participation so as I might have twirled on the go with Mrs. Brinson. To the writer of the editorial, Kudos for asking as did Socrates, "Why do we do what we do?"

Who's Who Among Students At East Carolina

Senior Prefers Teaching To Medical Career

by Kay Johnston

Robert Pennington

Bob Pennington, an outstanding senior from Rocky Mount, has really gotten the most out of his college career.

Bob chose East Carolina because he had heard from many of his friends what a great place this was. He likes almost everything about it, but especially the friendly, "one big family" atmosphere. "My previous plans were to major in pre-med, but I decided eight years was just a little too long for me," Bob says. "I changed my major to industrial arts and my minor to science."

Variety of Hobbies.
 Bob has a variety of hobbies, and likes boat building, making furniture, boat racing, swimming, water skiing, fishing, hunting and almost anything that keeps him outside. "I did my student teaching in Tarboro," he says, "and liked it very much." He was also chosen as alternate "Mr. Student Teacher" of 1953 and 1954.

Bob has been a member of the Industrial Arts Club for four years, and served as president last year. He has also been a member of the Science Club for three years. "Those science trips we take every spring are fun, as well as educational," he says.

A real lover of sports, he has been a member of the Varsity Club for four years. He also played varsity football during his freshman year. An outstanding ROTC cadet, Bob has been a member of the Cadet Officer's Club for three years, and was designated as a Distinguished Military Graduate.

Many Activities
 Bob has enjoyed his membership in the Alpha Phi Omega, which promotes leadership, friendship and service, for three years. This year he has served as corresponding secretary to this organization.

An outstanding student in every respect, Bob was chosen as a representative to the yearly publication of "Who's Who In American Universities and Colleges."

Among his many activities, Bob served on the Student Legislature during his sophomore year. Bob will receive his ROTC commission upon graduation in May, and has received tentative orders to go into flight training at Graham Air Force Base in Marianna, Florida. (Editor's note: This week's Who's Who will receive a carton of Phillip Morris from Campus Representative Max Joyner.)

Coed Forgets About Points

Got An Appointment To Make!

by An ECC Coed
 As Told to Faye O'Neal

A rather sleepy student, I look down at my watch a dozen times every day during my two to three class. It's a boring old class, anyway, and I just live for the bell to ring. I'd never pass courses like that unless I talked to the professor for a few minutes after the class is over.

Just yesterday I waited for the bell to break the dreamy daze I'd fallen into and when it did ring, went up to get in a few points. I stood by the desk waiting for my teacher to leave the group at the other side of the room—I always polish my apples better in private. Unconsciously, I looked down at my watch and saw that it was 2:55.

Suddenly I remembered! I had an appointment at the beauty shop at three. Forgetting all about my brownings points, I left that classroom in a hurry. Just an hour is all I had before another class. I had called for an appointment to have my hair set after my roommate got me a date with a guy from State. The lady had taken my name and asked if I would be on time. Yes, I had told her, for I only had an hour to have my hair put up and dried.

Since the beauty shop is not far from school, I made it in three and a half minutes. I practically ran all the way down there. I went inside and sat down in the lobby. The odor of wave lotion, and the sickeningly sweet smell of cosmetics put circulation for breath but I thought it was worth it. I had been dying to get that cute boy—so must look good.

I waited patiently until 3:15. Knowing that I had to get back to take a test at four, I decided to ask some of the gossiping operators if I couldn't begin having my hair fixed. I approached one of them. She said, "Let me call Miz Duk's in charge."

"Just a moment came a sophisticated reply. In about four minutes and 28 seconds he emerged from a curtained-off area and said to me, "Could we fix your hair for you, dear, or maybe you like to have a manicure or facial?" I could have screamed but I knew that I had made an appointment that might as well forget

Couple Of The Week

by Evelyn Blount

Jean Dupree, a sophomore from Angier, and Jim Alexander, a junior from Columbia, first met about five years ago in Columbia. Jean's mother is from there and they often visit her home. Jean and Jim began dating in September, 1953, and started going steady January 6 of this year. Says Jean, "I thought Jim was a lot of fun and had a good personality the first time I met him. He's always teasing and cutting up. He thought I was a big snob, which I guess might have been true then."

Jean and Jim like dancing (Jean has to sit most of the time at dances, as Jim plays with the Collegians), movies, music, basketball games and other sports.

"Doesn't look as if Jim will get home with me," says Jean. "He never has any time. We did get to the Azalea Festival at any rate."

"We were at a friend's house when Jim gave me his class ring," says Jean. "It was really romantic. All he said was 'Here' and stuck it on my finger. I gave him my ring to wear, but it's too small for him so we both

Food For Thought

by Donald King, Ed Mathews, "Buzz" Young

It is, of course, too early to get a positive picture of the new Student Legislature and to judge what that body will accomplish, but we believe some recent actions of the group are of enough importance to merit comment. Significant changes and is hard at the coming year.

After only two meetings the new legislature has already made some significant changes and is hard at work on others.

In the past no accurate records of all that happened at the meetings were kept. In the minutes of past years only passed motions were included in the official record. Items on which the body spoke its opinion by a negative vote were not included. Often the names of those appointed to serve on committees were omitted. At the last meeting this was changed when a point of order was raised from the floor and from this time forth the record of the body will be complete. The value of this change is self-evident.

Also in the past the total vote received by each candidate in campus-wide elections has been kept secret. A resolution was adopted at the last meeting which requires that all totals be made public as soon as possible after an election. This change of what had long been a custom of this school is significant for two reasons. First, the public announcement of the returns is, we believe, a step forward in democratic self-government by the students here. And second, the change shows that we are capable of sometimes getting away from precedence, of making changes when they are needed.

The new administration has also made an early start on next year's Homecoming in order to make it the best we have ever had. Much can be done to improve Homecoming and it appears as if the present committee is approaching the matter in a straightforward, progressive way.

As we said at the beginning of this article it is too early to judge the new Legislature and administration. But developments so far give the impression that a progressive attitude is being taken. East Carolina is a growing school. While in this state of growth it is always changing. It is the duty of all of us, individually and through our elected officials, to do what we can to lead this growth in the right direction. At this stage in our growth we can't afford to relax our efforts to improve East Carolina.

We hope that the recent attitude of the Legislature and administration will be carried through next year and that every student on this campus will be ready at all times to help in carrying out their program. Improvement and advancement must be the work of many. The effort of everyone is needed.

POT POURRI

by Emily S. Boyce

Next year the students will once again vote on the entertainment for the coming year. Since it is thought that we do not know who and what is good and who isn't, two ways will be introduced to aid wise student selecting. The "East Carolinian" will run articles concerning each performer giving all information possible on the type of entertainment each will be. To benefit the voting student even further, the list will be annotated on the check sheet. This time we will have the opportunity to vote for one or two name bands to appear on campus during the year.

Although it would benefit us all much more to vote for one more good entertainment rather than another "here today" dance band, sadly enough, there doesn't seem to be much doubt that we'll have two bands next year.

The work and organization which developed May Day into the spectacle we saw Saturday afternoon was a tribute to every member that participated in the affair.

The real problem which May Day has slid into was brought up at the SGA meeting last Wednesday night by Miss Shaw of the physical education department.

The problem of "pupil participation" makes May Day a chore for the advisors. Students just don't seem to want to be in the program, although everyone loves to go to the affair. Drafting students from the various PE classes is certainly satisfactory. If interest in the annual event doesn't change for the better, this will probably be our last May Day.

On Marshal Glory

by Faye O'Neal

Many students here consider the selection of the college marshals nothing but a farce. Seemingly there are only a few who know anything about the requirements for those who want to be marshals who still think that the honor is really an honor.

This discussion was begun in the East Carolinian a few issues back. After hearing comments in conversations with different groups around school, we decided to go further with it.

Major requirements for being a marshal at East Carolina follow, as copied from the 1953-54 Handbook: The scholarship of marshals shall attain an average of not less than a three; . . . the chief marshal shall be elected from among them by a majority of all the marshals . . . no member of . . . any organization which performs at commencement may be a marshal.

Other requirements concern dress and performance of duties after election. Marshals are picked by a student vote each spring during the annual SGA elections.

The requirements regarded as too general are the major ones. An average of three is required of any student who remains in school here; it is, then, evident that excellence of scholarship bears no emphasis in the situation. Maybe the idea that the marshals are those with the highest grades came from high school customs. At any rate it is safe to say that most people look on them as representing the best scholarship attainment.

The chief marshal is chosen from the midst; therefore, she has no superiority. Yet the honor is considered among the highest one can achieve here. Bearing no thought of disrespect for any of those who have been picked as chief marshal, many of the students think the position is filled without proper thought.

Also in dispute is whether or not student election is a valid way to select marshals. The ballot has in the past listed names of all the girls who wished to be candidates and voters have been asked to check 16. The voters check those names they recognize and pick some others they don't even know to finish out the number in most cases. Thus the situation develops from a popularity contest to a pick and choose game.

Helen Bland believes the situation is in dire need of improvement. At least a two average should be required, she believes, and the students should not be allowed to choose the marshals. She suggests that they be picked by a committee, made up preferably of faculty and SGA members.

Fan Green considers being a marshal quite an honor. She thinks, however, that the marshals should be at least nominated by a committee similar to the one Helen suggests.

Kathryn Smith says: "The girls who fill the honored position of college marshal should be carefully scrutinized in regard to scholarship and leadership ability, moral character and general personality. They represent East Carolina College to the public and should be the best representatives in every way."

One girl who is now serving as a marshal states that she is inclined to agree with those who think the honor has faded from the job. Another well-known co-ed who has more than the requirements refused to run because she saw no honor in winning.

"But Professor Snarf, aren't you checking out books your class will need to study before finals?"

SPORTS ECHO

by Bob Hilldrup

Regular sea. r play was cancelled Saturday when the Pirate tennis team wound up its 1954 season by bowing to Wake Forest. Overall the Bucs had a losing record but the few spectators who turned out for the home matches saw some good playing.

Particularly of interest were the two matches last week with defending conference champion High Point. High Point's Carlos Horcasitas is really something to watch. Hailing from Mexico, the suave server manages to combine a good bit of clowning with his conquests. Particularly was this in evidence last Thursday when Horcasitas chewed up East Carolina's Craig Kester 6-1, 6-2. Kester gave his best but Horcasitas, who has been playing since childhood, was just too good.

But the odd part of the story is that Horcasitas is not the best tennis player at High Point. Seems that the Panthers also have enrolled a young man named Mike Reyes-Varela, also from Mexico, who can whip Horcasitas any day in the week. Reyes-Varela was last year's singles champion of the North State Conference but has been unable to play this year because of illness.

It'll be a happy day for the Bucs when these two graduate.

East Carolina sends four men to the Conference golf tourney in Lexington today and the pressure is really on. Every year but one since the Bucs entered the loop they have walked away with the league's link crown. This year they've stomped through four conference matches without defeat and are favored to repeat in the tourney.

Here's hoping for another title. It was interesting to note that nary a line concerning East Carolina's 58-55 upset over N.C. State in track Friday appeared in the Raleigh "News & Observer". Of course, we cannot blame anyone for this—perhaps it was an oversight—but we certainly were disappointed that the good word wasn't spread.

Practically everyone knew that State was having one of its worst track seasons in history but few thought that the Pirates, in the first intercollegiate meet ever run by this school, would stand a chance against the more experienced Wolfpack.

Students and faculty can well be proud of the athletic accomplishment and can expect a good showing on the part of the squad in the coming conference meet.

Lenoir Rhyne's Bears, the conference's dominant power in track for the past several years, still is rated as the team to beat. The Bears always turn out a good club in any sport but we have a premonition that East Carolina will give someone trouble in the conference runoff.

Cherry Hurls Win As Bucs Triumph

by Anwer Joseph

Freshman righthander Mack Cherry led the Pirates of East Carolina College to their seventh win of the season in the Eastern Division of the North State Conference loop race April 30 by pitching a two-hit, 8-3 win over the Quakers of Guilford College.

Cherry was credited with his third victory of the season but had to help from teammate Gene Taylor after seven and two-thirds innings. Cherry gave up only two hits in his stay on the mound and Taylor allowed another.

Each team pushed across two runs in the first and the Pirates came back in the fourth to add two more along with one in the eighth and two in the ninth.

W. C. Sanderson took the hitting honors for the day with two hits for three trips to the plate. Sanderson was followed by Gaither Cline and Wilbur Thompson with two hits for four times at bat.

You have always heard of the famous last word of men, but have you ever heard of a woman's famous last words?

East Carolina College made a successful debut in a new sport Friday as the Pirate track squad turned in an impressive 58-55 win over North Carolina State College on the losers field. The outing marked the first time in history that a track team has been fielded by East Carolina.

The charges of Coach Leon Ellis proved their merit in the final event of the day when, trailing 55-53, they rallied to take the mile relay which was good for a winning five points.

Ex-Greenville High School athletic star Bobby Perry paced the Pirate triumph. Perry collected firsts in the 100 and 200-yard dashes, the broad jump and ran a leg on the winning relay team to collect 16 1-4 points.

Eight Firsts

East Carolina took eight first places, four in the races and four in field events. Other firsts collected by the Pirate tracksters included Jack Pickett's win in the 440, Dave Lee's victory in the shot put and two firsts collected by Eddie Hurst in the pole vault and javelin.

The Pirates showed particular strength in the 220 when they swept the three first positions. In addition to Perry's first place finish the Bucs scored on Topsy Hayes' second and Bob Chambers' third.

Next on the agenda for the Bucs is the North State Conference meet coming up soon in which Lenoir Rhyne's Bears are defending champs.

Tennis Team Ends Season By Bow To Wake Forest

The East Carolina tennis team completed a somewhat disappointing season Saturday by bowing to Wake Forest, 6-3. The Pirates finished the season with a won-lost record of three and six and a conference mark of three and two.

If the racket-swinging netters from Greenville could have defeated High Point twice last week, then the conference crown could have been theirs, but the classy Panther squad was victorious in both matches by scores of 5-2 and 4-3.

Paul Cameron and Bob Williams won the North State Conference's doubles tennis championship at Elon College Tuesday.

The No. 1 seeded doubles team, Cameron and Williams turned back Shrader and Borjes of Elon 6-2, 6-1 in the semi-finals and then defeated Frazier and Eller of High Point for the title 7-5, 7-5. The two did not have to play in the opening round by virtue of drawing a bye.

Bob Williams was the season's top performer, winning seven and losing only two. The skillful net veteran displayed a remarkable coolness under fire as he held his own against all competition. His all-around court play, plus an ultimate desire to do his best at all times, contributed much to his splendid performance.

Paul Cameron, usually a consistent stalwart, had a rather hot and cold season, but his skillful slants enabled him to obtain runner-up honors with a five and four record. His accurate placements and superior volleying helped him preserve a most commendable record.

Frazier Bruton, always a difficult man to deal with, proved to be a giant killer as the pint-sized racketeer chopped his opponents down to size. Bruton's tricky placements and perfective strokes earned him a four and four record for the campaign, and his determined hustle kept the midget ace on top as he consistently mowed down his fearful opponents.

Dal Foscoe's superb strokes and general court know-how contributed much to his four and five record. His record does not fully justify his ability as he was sacrificed a few times against the opposition's number one man, but he always displayed a sparkling performance—in victory as in defeat.

Craig Kester, the smooth stroker from High Point, J. W. Browning and Gene Russell rounded out the squad. Kester's work on the courts showed plenty of promise and tennis fans will be glad to note that he is only a freshman. Gene Russell displayed a game of considerable patience and stamina as his consistency rewarded him with a one and one record.

The team as a whole scored 31 points and saw their opposition rack up 44 in nine matches. The statistics:

Jose Dominguez Pitches Atlantic Christian To 7-3 Triumph Over East Carolina Pirates

Jose Dominguez pitched Atlantic Christian to a 7-3 win over East Carolina in an Eastern Division North State Conference baseball game played in Wilson Saturday.

Dominguez, who earlier this year pitched and won both ends of a doubleheader against High Point, set the Pirates down with seven scattered hits. His mates collected 11 from the slants of four ECC hurlers.

The Bulldogs grabbed three quick runs in the opening frame and added another in the third to salt the game away. Cecil Heath sparked the Pirate efforts with two hits in four attempts while David Nance clouted a bases-empty homer in the second inning.

The loss was the fourth for East Carolina against seven wins.

Elon Christians Hold Top Position In Loop As End Of Race Nears

Monday morning found Elon's Christians still leading the North State Conference's Eastern Division as league play entered a crucial week. Elon, which met High Point in a doubleheader Tuesday, needed only another win or a loss by second-place East Carolina to wrap up the top position. An undefeated week for the Bucs, however, would put the title up for contention in Saturday's doubleheader between the two teams.

Bucs At Guilford For Single Game; Play Elon Next

Four more games remain on the Pirate baseball schedule with the crucial ones coming up Saturday at Elon.

Tomorrow the Bucs journey to Guilford for the final bout of the year with the Quakers and then swing over to the home of the Christians for an all-important twin bill.

As of this writing East Carolina is the only team in the North State Conference's Eastern Division with even an outside chance of nabbing the Christians and, if they are to do this, they'll have to sweep Saturday's doubleheader.

After the Elon games, the Pirates return to Greenville for the final game of the year—this one on May 12 with Atlantic Christian. This contest, too, depending on the outcome of the Elon series, may have a definite effect on the final standings.

Without the pressure of having the top position at stake, however, the two clubs will still be trying for the right to keep the Bohunk Trophy through the summer months. Currently the Bohunk, an aged wooden bucket awarded to the victor of each game between the two schools, is in possession of the Bulldogs. The Pirates had it at the start of the baseball season, lost it in the first game against ACC; got it back; lost it again, and now must retrieve it a second time.

The cadets are: Elbert Matthew Prescott, Robert E. Pennington, Willie Ray Sears, Shelby Eugene Russ, Weldon T. Bass and Nolan C. Aleock. Ernest M. Bizzell, Paul A. Cameron, Walter R. Culbreth Jr., James S. McCormick, William P. Emerson, Major I. Hooper and Julian R. Vainright. They will report to Sampson Air Force Base, New York, for processing and reassignment to Graham Air Base, Marianna, Fla., for training as Air Force pilots.

Bulletin!

Formal approval of a plan to hold the 1954 homecoming football game in the afternoon instead of at night has been received from the Administration, according to Louis Clark, chairman of the homecoming committee.

Contacts are being made with Western Carolina in an attempt to discover if the Catamounts can switch their plans in order to play in the afternoon. Other plans which are currently under consideration include staging the annual parade in the morning and holding a gala homecoming dance that night.

High Point Edges Buccaneers By 2-1 In First Game, Locals Take Next, 3-2

Single runs were the margins April 28 as East Carolina and High Point split a baseball doubleheader on the local field. High Point took the opening contest, 2-1, while East Carolina won the second, 3-2.

Freshman Dave Harris started on the mound for East Carolina in the first game and gave up only three hits during his six inning chore. Ken Hall pitched the seventh. The Panthers scored the winning run in the sixth when Thurman Chappel squeezed home Broadus Johnson from third.

East Carolina's only run came in the sixth when pinchhitter Wilson Hux tripled home Bill Cline.

Second Game

In the second contest the Pirates were forced to come from behind in the fourth with two runs to take the win. Wilbur Thompson scored on an error to tie the game. Then Cecil Heath added the winning marker by stealing second, going to third on a balk, and then stealing home.

Jimmy Barnes, the first of three Pirate pitchers, received credit for the win.

Both games were tough and go from the opening pitch. High Point played errorless ball in the opener while the Bucs were committing two miscues. In the second session High Point was charged with a single error while the Pirates were committing none.
