

'What It Was Was Homecoming ... ECC Style'

A Skeptic's View Of The Various 'Odd Things' That Went On At East Carolina Last Weekend

by Jerry Register

It was back last week, and I was coming in to Greenville for a tent meeting. I came to town about three days early, so as to secure a place to put my utensils, I did.

Well sir, I found a place just outside of town that I thought it ought to be a nice place to set up shop and do a little recruiting. I picked out a kindly quiet spot, so as all them cars wouldn't upset us by a'cludin' and a'slammin' on brakes and all that sort of stuff.

Well sir, I got my tent set up and was all ready for business, but it was that the other members of my little party hadn't commenced to get here yet. It was that they weren't a'goin' to get here until Sunday morning, just before it was that we were going to open up.

Being that the day was Friday, and they wasn't comin' until Sunday, I figured that I had two days to kill somewhere. So I kindly figured that I might go back into that place called Greenville and see what it was that I could see.

When I got into town, the wind was a'blowin' so hard that it could blow the false teeth out of my old bog back home.

Well sir, I come up the main street and there wasn't much left around anywhere. So I thought that I might go on up to that place they called East Carolina College to see what was goin' on down there, I did.

Well sir, I got up there about 6:30 in the afternoon, I did. I had commenced to go in the main gate, when I heard all of this big noise. I said to myself, "They must be holding a hangin' down there," and I being what I was, I thought that I might go down there and try to break it up. Well, I run down there in a fast horse trot to see what it was that was a'going on. As I got down a little farther, the sound changed from a hangin' sound to a sound like someone makin' a political speech. As I commenced to get closer and closer, I saw what it was that was a'happenin' down there.

There was this whole bunch of people standing around and hollerin' at one another. On one side there was this whole bunch of people standing together a'tootin' and a'blowin' on all kinds of instruments they were. Then, right below them, there were about ten or twelve boys and girls all standing in a line with some kind of uniform on, that is the boys had on one kind and the girls had on another kind. Well sir, they would every now and then go together and decide on something to say, and then they would come out and get in front of that big crowd of people and they would line up, they would, and start a'hollerin' and every time they would holler, that big crowd would holler right back at them, they would. Then those people out in front would holler back and then they would all commence to holler. And then those people out in front would jump up and down like they were a'dancin' on some hot coals.

Well I watched that about fifteen minutes, until it was that I got tired of it. So, I decided that I might go back into town to try to get me something to eat, because it was that I was a'gettin' hungry.

Well, I went down town and got me a hot dog and a big orange drink for my supper, I did. I messed around there at the billiard academy watching all those boys shoot billiards for about an hour, I guess it was. After a while I got tired of watching that so I started back to the college to see what it was that was a'goin' on down there.

When I got there, I heard some kind of noise comin' from one of those buildings on the campus. I do believe that it was the one that I was in the last time I come to this town. Well sir, when I saw that there was not no one at the door, I just decided to go right in and make mys-elf at home, I did.

I got in there and there were a whole bunch of people in this place, too. There were more people in this place than you could shake a stick at. Well, I got myself down in the back of this place and commenced to listen. Man, I'm tellin' you, there was some of the daddendest noise that I had ever heard in that place. I don't mean that there was noise comin' from that big congregation; it was comin' from all those people up in front of them. I think they were a'layin' some kind of music. But it seemed to me that they could have played it better if they all played the same thing at the same time.

Well sir, I listened to that a while, and when it all stopped, all of those people commenced to move on out. Well, it wasn't much that I could do but move with them, on account that there were so many of them.

We commenced to move and we moved out of that "barn like" building and moved on down the street. Well sir, I tried to get out at first, but I figured that it was a loosing battle, so I just went with them. When we got down the street it was that I felt hungry again, so I got me another hot dog and big orange drink, I did. Well, I finished that and I saw that all those people were a'goin' back from where it was that they had come from. Well, I decided that I might go back with them to see what it was that they were going back for. We got back and went into the same building that we came out just a little while ago. Of all the jumpin' and a'stompin' I have never seen the likes. Man, I tell you, they were really goin' to town. I got tired of that a'ter a while, and being that it was gettin' late, I figured that I might mosey on back to where it was that I was a'stayin' that night and get me some sleep. I decided right then and there that I was a'comin' back the next morning to see what it was that was a'goin' on, bein' as I didn't find out Friday night.

Well, I got up about nine o'clock and messed around town 'til about ten before I thought it was that I might go back to ECC to see what it was that was a'goin' on down there.

Well sir, I come upon the main gate and I saw plastered all over it "Alumni Hello" I don't know what it was that was "Alumni," but I did know what "Hello" meant. It seemed to me like they were expecting somebody to come a'callin'. I went on down the road, and looked up at one or two of the dormitories and saw some people a'standin' up on the porch. They were a'standin' just as still—and all around them were some sort of pictures and writing and all that sort of stuff. Well, I went on down the road and all of a sudden there commenced to come out of one of the gates a whole bunch of people a'walkin' down the middle of the highway. I was getting sort of suspicious of all those people, I didn't know what it was that was a'comin' off. There was a whole bunch of people a'standin' on the side of the street, too, there was. They seemed to be a'watchin' and a'waitin' for something. So I topped too, I did.

Then I saw what it was that they were a'standin' and a'waitin' for. That whole bunch of people that was a'coming down the street was what they were a'watchin'. They were a'marchin' in lines just as straight as a crow's feather, they were. Some of them were a'totin' shootin' irons, and some of them were a'totin' horns and all that sort of stuff. And there were some little girls out on that highway with real short frocks on, and they were a'doin' all the little girl things they could think of.

Well sir, that lasted for a long time. I don't quite know how long it was, but it was quite a spell. They went down the street a'prancin' and a'dancin' and a'blowin' and a'tootin', and after a little while they came back a'doin' the same thing.

Well sir, it was along about then that it was that I was a'gettin' hungry. It seems that my stomach was havin' a fight with my back bone, and my back bone seemed to be winnin' the battle. So I ups and goes, and gets me two or three hot dogs and a big orange drink, for my dinner.

During dinner I determined myself to go back down there and find out what it was that was a'goin' on down there. So I come back and see a big bunch of people a'standin' to the side of that big "barn like" building that I went into last night, so, I took me and my forceful nature and commenced to get right in the middle of that crowd to find somebody that could maybe tell me what it was that was a'goin' on. As I got in the middle of that crowd, the thing started to movin', and there wasn't much but what I had to move along with it, bein' I was in the middle.

We moved right on down the road, and all of a sudden we commenced to come upon a gate. I was trying like everything to get out before we came in to contact with that gate. I didn't much want to go in that thing, being as the last time I went in something like that, it cost me something, and I didn't seem to have a cent on me today. Well sir, I saw that man that I was afraid that I might see. He was standin' at the gate hollerin' "tickets please." He come up to me and said, "do you have a ticket?" and me bein' as I didn't, I said "Mister, I don't have a ticket, and what's more, I don't even know where it is that I'm a'goin'." And he said, "Well, come back out as soon as you can." And I turned around to him and said, "I'll do'er, I'll do'er the first chance I get," I did. When the crowd started to thin out, I saw where it was that I was at.

We were in this place called a football field. You know, the one where one bunch of people get on one side and another bunch get on the other, and they both sit there and holler at one another. Well sir, I said to myself, This is the craziest college I do believe that I have ever seen," so I turned around and headed out of that place, I did. Because it figured to me that this was where it was that I came in.

Boy, let me tell you, I got away from that college and headed back to my tent, I did. The meetings in my tent get rough, but not that rough.

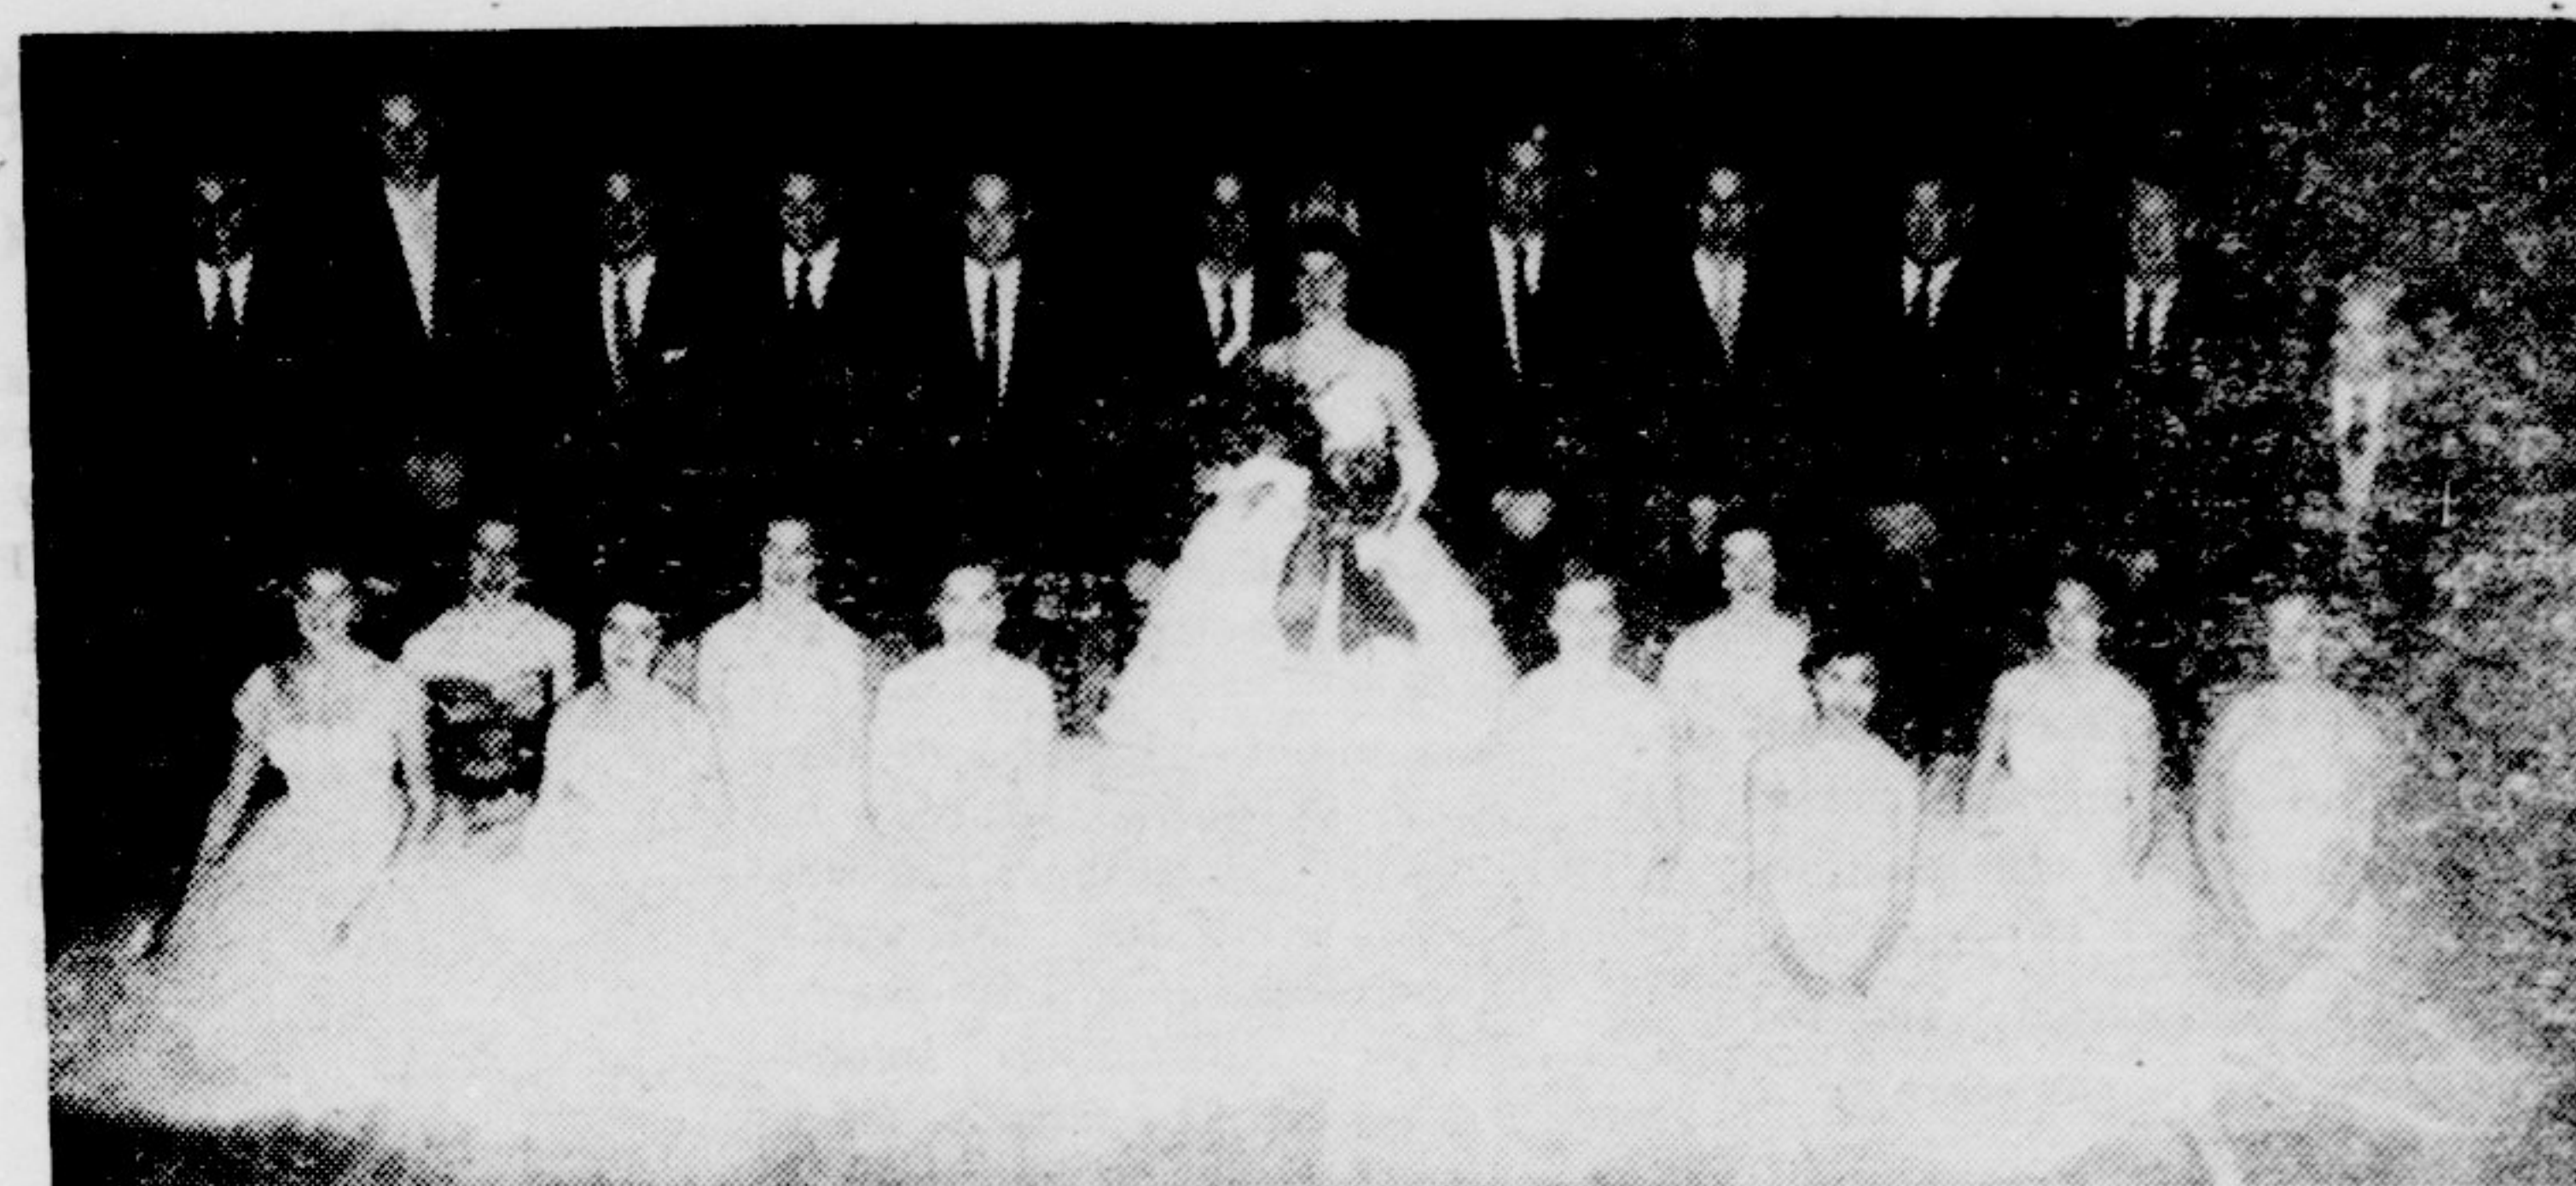

You know, I still don't know what it was that was a'goin' on down there. But as I was a'flyin' out of that gate, I heard someone say, "Aren't you going to stay for the HOME-COMING game?" "So, I figured that what it was was HOME-COMING at East Carolina College.

There are many complaints about the weather, but not so many as there would be if the government regulated it instead of predicting it.

"I've got my husband where he eats out of my hand."

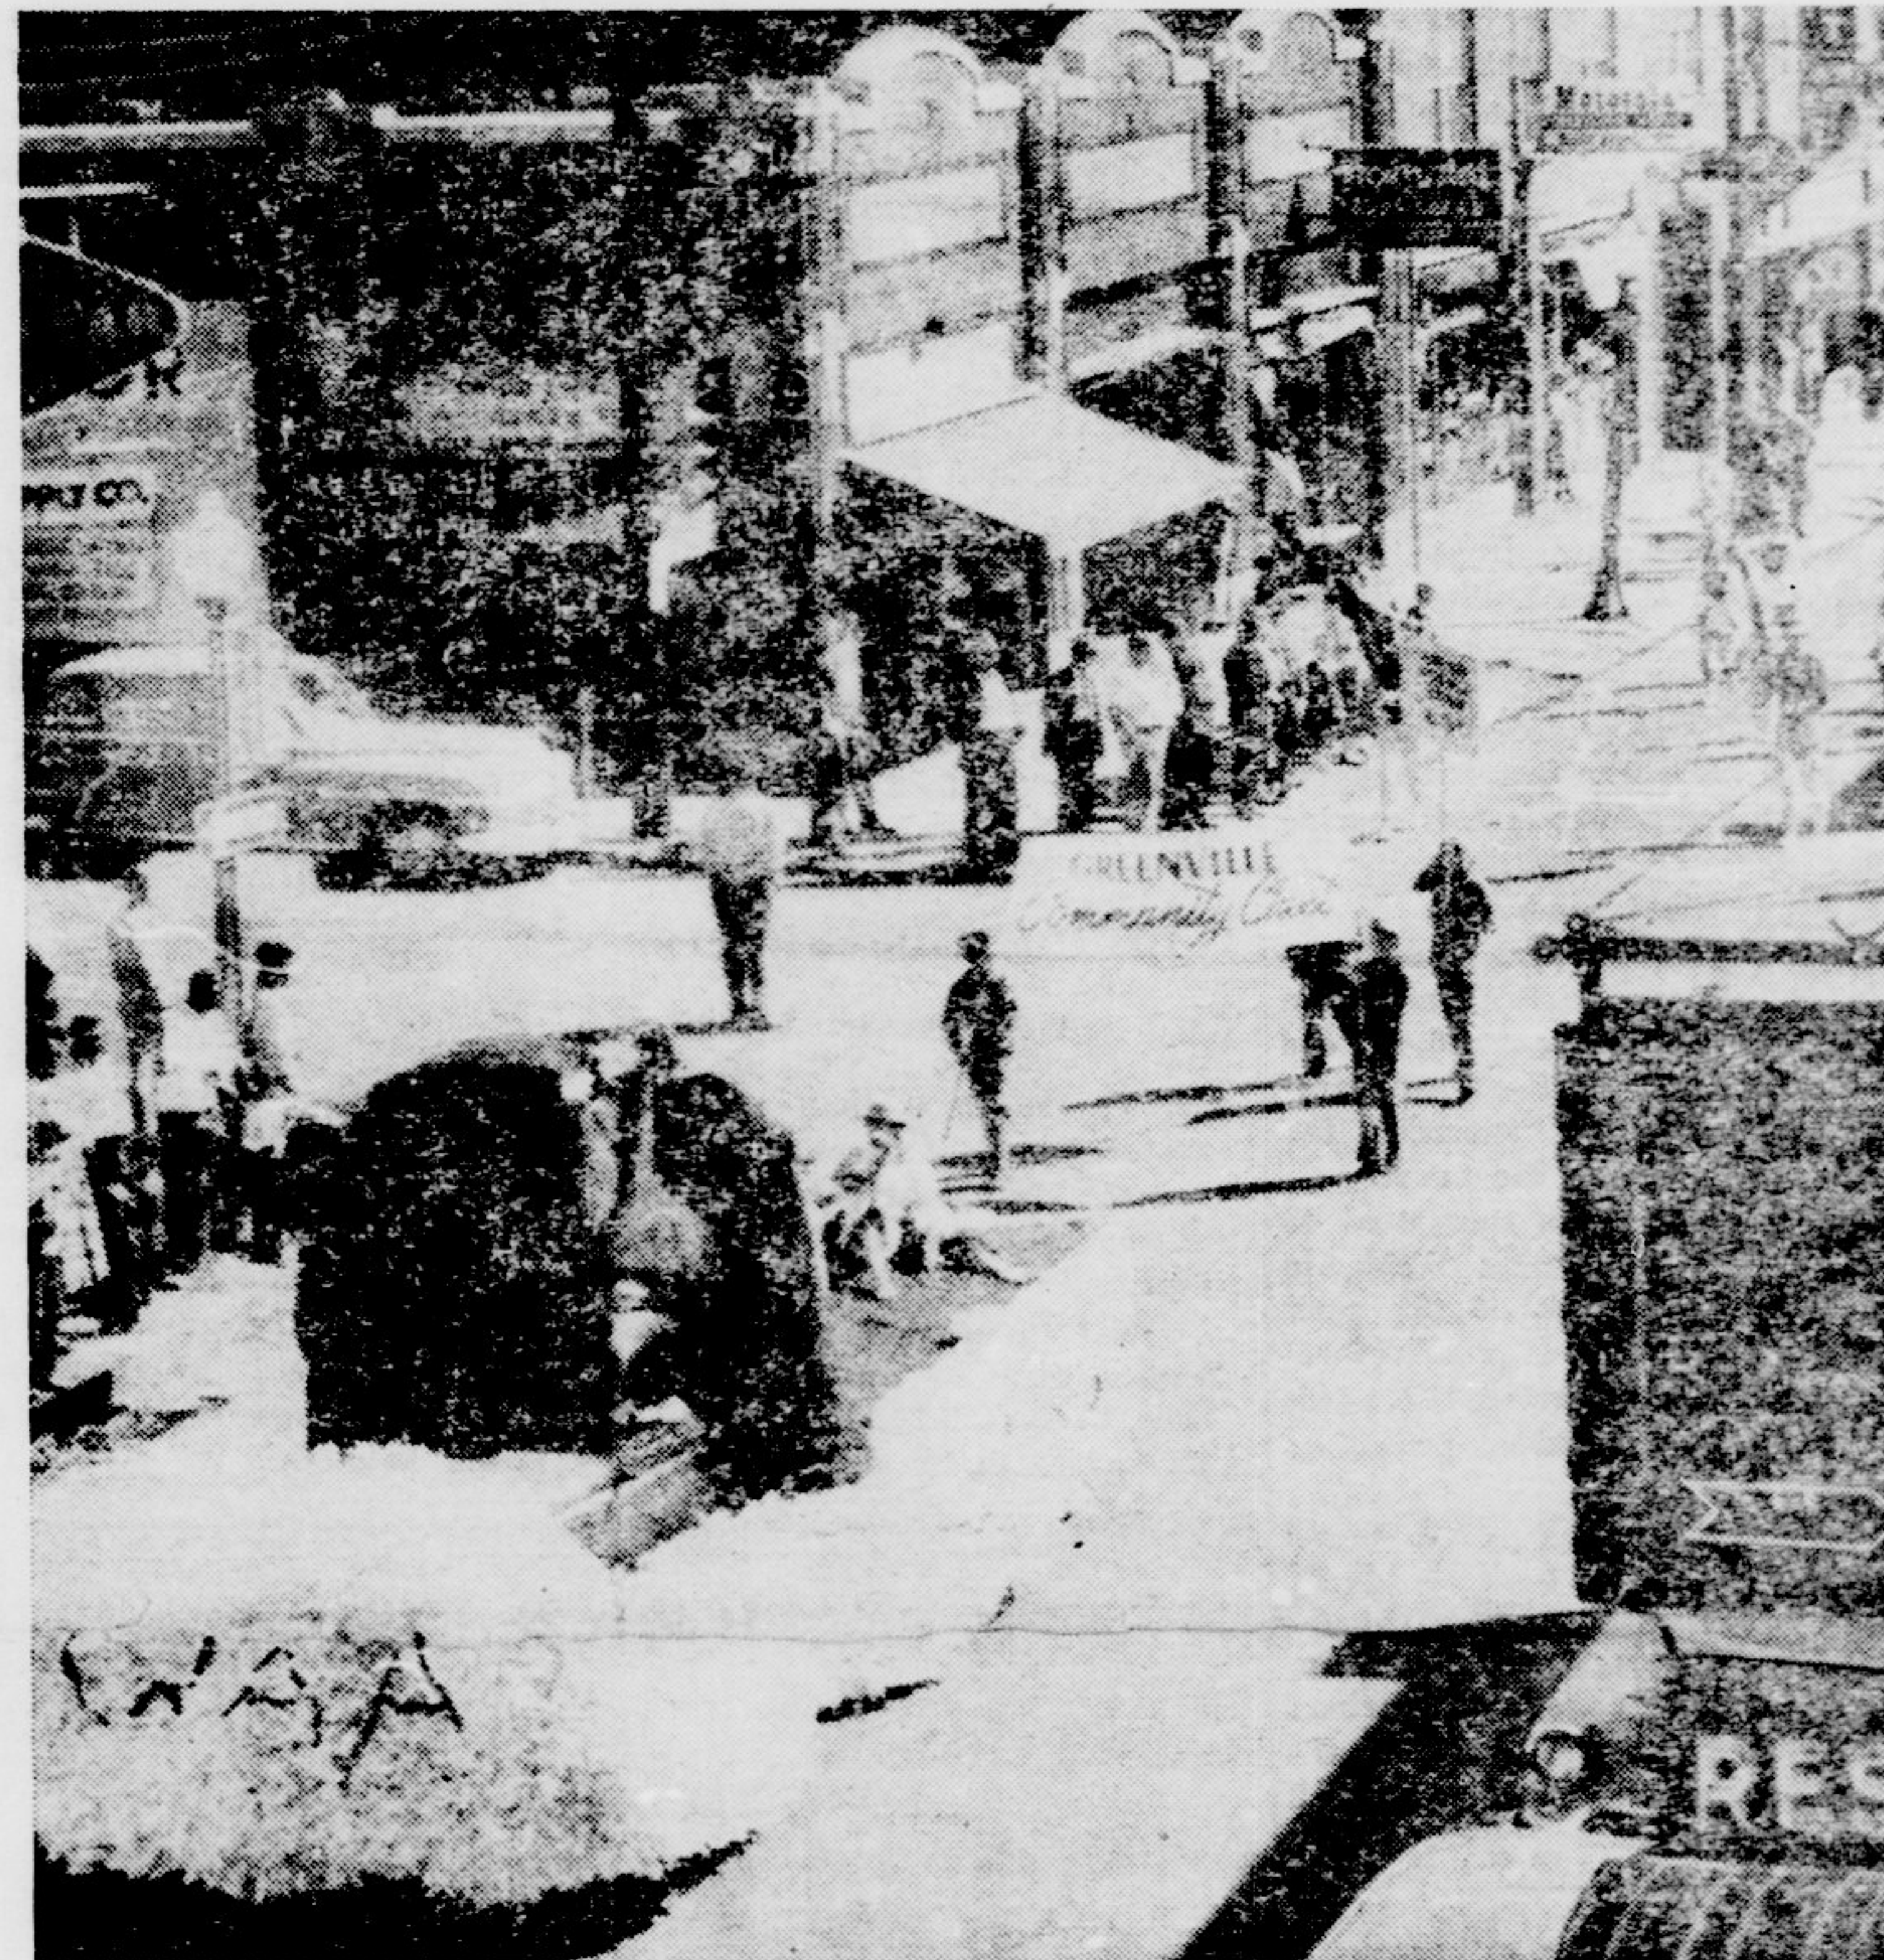

"Saves a lot of dishwashing, doesn't it?"

The Queen And Her Court

After Saturday night's crowning, Katherine Dismuke, Queen, called her court together and they posed for pictures. The court was made up of the sponsors of the various dormitories and women's and men's day student organizations.

Parade Moves Down Fifth Street

The parade, part of the Annual Homecoming Day activities, was one of the longest ever to march from our campus. It was led by the college band. Five visiting bands also participated in the parade. Floats, such as the one shown above, built by campus organizations and local civic groups, also helped make the parade a success.

Saturday Fete Colors Town With Parade

East Carolina's annual Homecoming Parade was quite an exhibition for returning Alumnus and friends of the college. A moist, brilliant morning was the setting for Pirates color, co-eds, convertibles, marching feet, music, grunting pigs, hobbin' chrysanthemums, majorettes, crackling whips, and gaiety, which were quite the thing of the hour.

Dotting the sidewalks of the parade route, expectant crowds welcomed the lead unit, the marching East Carolina College Band. Leading this facade were five very skilled baton twirling, high stepping majorettes.

Ensuing units were college officials; smiling Dorm, Club and Fraternity sponsors; visiting high school bands from Eastern North Carolina; and the very attractive Homecoming Queen, Katherine Dismuke, sponsor of the Industrial Arts Club.

Representing various campus organizations were festive floats originally bedecked. Many of these were indicative of the hope to "beat West Carolina!" Others catered to color and fanfare. The EPO Fraternity float "De-feet the Cats" won first prize as the best float in the parade. Their motif was a mammoth white cat with head bowed in defeat. Second prize went to Phi Sigma Pi Fraternity for their "Pearl of the Old North State." "Peace and Brotherhood," the YW-YMCA float, took third honors. The Circle K and the Future Teachers Clubs rated honorable mentions.

Such was East Carolina's Homecoming Parade, abounding in school spirit and a hearty welcome to returning Alumnus.

An almost capacity crowd filled College Stadium Saturday to see the ECC-WTC game. The view was taken of the ECC section.

The game got pretty rough at times Saturday afternoon. East Carolina led from the beginning, although it looked as if the score was going to be tied a couple of times in the second and third quarters. The game was not a dramatic thriller, but there was some action, as shown above just before the half.

The Girl, The Boy, and The Maestro

Pretty Shirley Johnson of Fairmont, a junior here, was the sponsor for the Young Democrats in the Homecoming parade. Friday night she was at the Shep Fields dance in Wright, as you can see, with the maestro himself, along with her escort.

What A Lucky Fellow!

Marshall McLamb, Benson, thought himself a ... lucky man indeed this weekend, as he escorted the beautiful queen of Homecoming. The two are shown above as they posed at the dance Friday night. It was announced Thursday night that Katherine was "Miss Homecoming, 1954."

SPORTS ECHO

by Bob Hilldrup

Saturday's Homecoming triumph over Western Carolina came as the climax to a weekend almost spoiled by the arrival of Hurricane Hazel. There were those who feared that the Pirates, unaccustomed to playing in the glaring light of day, might suffer thereby.

That, quite evidently, was not the case. The Pirates dominated the contest far more than the score indicated and kept the Catamounts bottled up except for two momentary lapses.

As evidence of the Pirates' overall superiority we point to the fact that (1) East Carolina got off some 80-odd plays from scrimmage and (2) the Bucs vastly rejuvenated passing game accounted for all four scores. Whenever a team controls the ball enough to run 80 plays or more, then it has the ball often enough to win. As for the passing—it was the best aerial show by the Pirates this year. Both Boyd Webb and Milton Collier looked exceedingly good in completing 13 of 19 tosses.

But now for a brief look at basketball. Coach Howard Porter, who last year guided the Bucs to their best record in history, has been holding one-day workouts and pointing for the season's opener December 4 at Guilford.

Last year the Pirates, with Bobby

Hodges' 662 points leading the way, posted an overall mark of 23 wins against two losses. One of the losses came as a mid-season upset by Western Carolina and the second in the opening round of the NAIA finals at Kansas City, Kan.

St. Benedict's, the team that ousted the Bucs in the first round at KC, later won the tourney.

Included in the titles amassed by the Pirates were crowns from the North State Conference and the NAIA District 26. And now, with these records to live up to, the Pirates are faced with some crucial problems.

The big loss of course, will be Hodges. The Kinston ace scored 2020 points during his career here and his height will be sorely missed. Prior to last year however, dire things were predicted for the Pirates in the absence of Sonny Russell, believed by many to be the greatest basketball player in East Carolina history.

This year, with Hodges gone, the problem of who will take up the slack once again presents itself. But things may not be too dim. In regulars Cecil Heath, J. C. Thomas and Don Harris the Pirates have three of the conference's better players. These, plus what should be a capable bench full of substitutes, should make the Pirates contenders for another conference crown.

East Tennessee Plays Here Saturday

Locals Seeking Win In First Grid Meeting Between Schools

The Pirates of East Tennessee face the Pirates of East Carolina at College Stadium here Saturday night as the locals leave North State Conference competition for their seventh game of the season. Game time is 8 p.m.

East Carolina will probably rule as a slight favorite due to the advantage of the home field. Only mutual opponent faced by the two teams this year has been Western Carolina College. Both East Tennessee and the local Pirates recorded two touchdown wins over the Catamounts.

Boado Out

Head Coach Jack Boone probably will send the same starting lineup against the visiting Pirates—with the exception of one man—that started in the Homecoming contest with Western Carolina here last Saturday. The one exception is right halfback Emo Boado. Boado suffered torn thigh muscles in Saturday's game and may be out for about two weeks. His place may be taken by Harold O'Kelly, the High Point speedster, who has been enjoying his best year.

The remainder of the Buccaneer lineup should see Larry Rhodes and J. D. Bradford starting at ends and Willie Holland and George Tucker at tackles. Center Lou Hallow will be flanked by guards Don Burton and David Lee. In the backfield Boyd Webb, who led the squad to the win over Western Carolina, will again be at quarterback. Topy Hayes should start at left half and Claude King, recovered from an early season injury, at fullback.

First Game

Saturday's game will mark the first grid meeting between the two schools and little is known concerning the calibre of the visitors' ball club. Last year, however, the Pirates, under the tutelage of Hal Littleford, a 1948 graduate of Tennessee, posted a 5-4 mark. Wins were recorded over Western Carolina, Carson-Newman, Tennessee Tech, Emory & Henry and Appalachian. The four losses came at the hands of Austin Peay, Western Kentucky, Maryville and Middle Tennessee State.

PIRATE SCORERS—J. D. Bradford (30) and Harold O'Kelly (20) scored three of the Pirates' four touchdowns in Saturday's 27-13 win over Western Carolina. Bradford took in two touchdown passes from Boyd Webb while O'Kelly was on the receiving end of a payoff toss from Milton Collier.

Homecoming Crowd Enjoys Good Music, Good Weather

It was a beautiful day for football. At College Stadium here Saturday East Carolina thumped Western Carolina, 27-13, while an overflow throng swelled by Homecoming alumni in various stages of deprecation and students in various stages of inebriation, looked on.

Two early Pirate touchdowns put East Carolina rosters at ease. The Catamounts scored with but five seconds left in the half but even at that a day full of sunshine and music provided in turn by clear blue skies and a colorful array of high school bands left Pirate partisans in a good humor.

At halftime the announcement that the EPO "service" fraternity float had won first prize in the Homecoming parade brought a squawk of joy from frat members. Cotten Hall took the top dorm prize while Slay Hall finished third, the first time in history that the upperclassmen's dorm had even placed.

Play got under way once more after a series of intricate figures by the combined bands under the direction of East Carolina's Herbert Carter. Fans on the northeast side began to squint into the sun trying to figure out just what was going on and Western Carolina's Catamounts began to get some of their scratch back.

The Cats played the Pirates to a 0-0 stalemate in the third quarter but the Bucs salted things away in the fourth. Early in the final period East Carolina that King had stepped out of bounds midway through his jaunt.

Pirate fans and players enjoyed a good yelp at the official fullback Claude King set sail around his own right end for a healthy gain. An eyes-on-the-sideline official, however, ruled who put the ball down where he said he was going to in the first place and the game went on.

The final whistle ended it all soon after and two tired teams trooped off to the showers. Later, when the Western Carolina players had showered and were heading for the cafeteria one Catamount voiced an opinion on Hazel's damage to the East Carolina campus. "Gosh," he said, "ole Hazel really tore this joint up."

"Yep," retorted a passing East Carolina fan, "somehow along the lines of what we did to you today." The Catamount player started to sharpen his claws on the Pirate supporter but hunger got the best of him and he headed toward the cafeteria instead.

Prizes Await '54 'Maid Of Cotton'

An exciting international tour, a fabulous wardrobe, and a brand new 1955 Ford convertible may be waiting for a cottonland college girl in 1955. The Cotton Belt colleges have supplied 15 of the 16 Maids of Cotton in years gone by.

Any girl born in a cotton-producing state who is between the ages of 19 and 25, has never been married, and is at least 5 feet, 5 inches tall, is eligible to be the Maid of Cotton. Entry forms are available at National Cotton Council, P. O. Box 18, Memphis, Tennessee.

Entry forms must be completed and returned to the Cotton Council headquarters no later than midnight, December 1st. An entrant must include two photographs with the completed forms. One is to be a head and shoulders view and the other a full length view.

Judging is on the basis of intelligence, personality, and poise, as well as appearance.

The girl who is chosen "1955 Maid of Cotton" will tour some 40 major cities in the United States, Canada and Europe to carry news of American Cotton fashions and a good will greeting from the cotton industry.

Coach Reconsider!
In an exclusive interview this week, Coach Ernest T. Gosh of the famed Goofers stated: "I will not be intimidated by the alumni but I am open to persuasion. And they were right! After taking the 8-day test I'm here to say, You can't beat the zesty flavor of frosty cold Dr. Pepper. Try it yourself: Drink Dr. Pepper 3 times every day for eight days. Then you'll be

What makes a Lucky taste better?
"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

College smokers from coast to coast prefer Luckies to any other brand. Luckies lead, and by a wide margin, according to the latest, biggest college survey. Once again, the No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better. They taste better because Lucky Strike is the cigarette of fine tobacco... and "It's Toasted" to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better. This explains the Droodle below, which is: Eskimo seminar enjoying Luckies in badly built classroom. Like all real cool people, Eskimos know Luckies taste better. Alumni News

Guilford
 The Guilford County Chapter of East Carolina College Alumnae held its first meeting, October 12, at the home of the R. W. Wechters in Greensboro. A goodly number of loyal alumni attended and blended their voices in singing the "Alma Mater" as a rousing beginning for a very interesting meeting.
 Matters of business were attended to concerning the constitution of the chapter, the making of a yearbook, dues, Alumni Day plans, and the selection of East Carolina professors who will be invited to come to Greensboro to speak to the chapter.
 Officers for the current year include: R. W. Wechter, president; Mrs. Dorothy James, Secretary-Treasurer; Miss Rowena Montague, Program Chairman; Mrs. Margaret Killbrew, Yearbook Chairman; Nell Wise Wechter, reporter.

Raleigh-Wake
 The annual banquet session of the Raleigh-Wake County chapter of the East Carolina College Alumni Association is tentatively scheduled to be held Wednesday, November 10, at 6:30 p.m. at the Country Club.
 Plans for the banquet were discussed Wednesday night at a chapter meeting held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Marcom, 1805 Craig Street. Mrs. James L. Whitfield was co-hostess.

Miss Jane Hall, alumna of East Carolina College and member of the college's board of trustees, spoke to the chapter on points of interest visited on a trip to England and Scotland. Miss Hall returned from the tour this summer.

Progress in the building program and scholarship foundations at East Carolina was made by Dr. J. D. Messick, ECC president of the Greenville-Pitt County Alumni Chapter, held in the Alumni-Faculty Building on the College campus, October 13.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Robert W. Fennell, chapter president, and included a tour of the new Joyner Memorial Library led by Charles T. Laughter of the librarian's staff, and a report on Homecoming Day plans by Alumni Secretary James W. Butler.

Registration for the fall quarter indicates 1,208 men and 1,258 women students on the campus for a total of 2,466 registrations for the term to date. Dr. Messick said, noting that the increase in student body will continue for the future as the college expands its program.

The capital improvements recommended for the coming biennium include two new dormitories, renovations and additions to the cafeteria, completion of the fourth floor of Flanagan building, and a new classroom building. President Messick pointed out.

The scholarship and foundation programs need the support of all alumni. Dr. Messick said and he urged the Greenville and Pitt County group to give their active efforts to this phase of the college program.

Homecoming activities were reviewed by Mr. Butler, and chapter members were urged to be present for the various activities, including the luncheon, football game, and open house in the Alumni-Faculty Building.

Mrs. Fennell announced the appointment of committee chairmen, as follows: Membership, Mrs. Lily Rouse Carr; Program, Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, chairman, Mrs. Margaret S. Brown, Miss Gladys Stokes, Mrs. Ruth Garner; Social, Mrs. Mack Stocks, Mrs. Peggy Rowlett, Miss Mary Eakes; Publicity, James W. Butler, Mrs. Chester A. Walsh.

Projects adopted by the chapter include the Christmas corsage for scholarship benefit and the annual Games Tournament on February 11. A social hour followed the meeting with Mrs. Fennell, Mrs. Paul Scott, Mrs. Ed Moore, and Miss Christine Johnston as hostesses.

Members of the Raleigh-Wake County chapter of the East Carolina College Alumni Association held their first meeting on Wednesday night, October 13, at 8 o'clock, with Mrs. J. L. Marcom, 1805 Craig Street, hostess for the meeting.

The first meeting and other activities for the chapter during the year were planned at a recent conference of the Executive Board of the chapter held at the home of Miss Lois Jernigan, chapter president. Miss Jernigan said the chapter's annual banquet is tentatively scheduled to be held at Scandia Village on November 8.

The chapter already has sent two Wake County high school seniors to East Carolina College under its scholarship program and plans are being made to send another next fall. Raleigh and Wake County seniors are eligible for the scholarship.

Mickey Northcutt, membership chairman, said that plans are proceeding to continue building the chapter's membership. He is being assisted by Bruce S. Gay.

Men's Judiciary Lists New By-Law Changes

Men's Judiciary
 The Amendment to SGA By-Laws concerning the Men's Judiciary which was presented to the SGA legislature at the meeting on September 29 was unanimously accepted by the legislature on October 13. After being presented to the faculty, the By-Laws as they now stand will be voted on by the students.
 They are as follows:
SUBJECT: Amendment to S.G.A. By-Laws "Regulations Concerning Men Students"
WHEREAS: We feel that the present By-Laws concerning the men students are inadequate we do hereby recommend that the following amendment be considered.
 Change Article X, Section 4 to read:
 A. It shall be the duty of the Men's Judiciary to act on cases of student conduct referred to it through its chairman from any member of the faculty, students or college administration.
 B. All decisions of the Judiciary concerning "guilty" or "not guilty" shall be made by secret ballot.
 C. Should a student be found guilty of an offense, the Judiciary shall notify the student, the Dean of Men, and file a copy of the decision as a permanent Judiciary record.
 D. The Judiciary shall consider the student's past record and any extenuating circumstances.
 E. The Judiciary shall refer directly to the Discipline Committee any cases pertaining to expulsion, or suspension.
 F. The Judiciary shall have original jurisdiction in all matters concerning discipline of men students.
 G. The Men's Judiciary shall interpret offenses according to their policies.

OFFENSES AND PUNISHMENTS
 I. A. Disfiguration or destruction of public or private property, such as carving on desks, breaking of furniture or windows. (Possible demerits: 8 to 15). Student may be forced to pay for damages.
 B. Disturbing the peace, such as excessive noise in the dormitory after 11 p.m. . . . Excessive noise that disturbs a class in progress. (Possible demerits 3 to 12).
 C. Drunkenness, that is a person who has had so much to drink that he cannot control himself. (Possible demerits 3 to 12).
 D. Ungentlemanly conduct, such as public fighting, being thrown in jail, or in any way casting a bad light upon the name of the college. (Possible demerit: 2 to 18).
 E. Cheating and stealing. (Automatic referral to the Dean with recommendation of suspension or expulsion.)
 F. Any failure to abide with the decision of the board will be referred to the disciplinary committee with a written recommendation for action.
 II. A. Any student receiving 30 demerits in one school year may be expelled from the dormitory for at least one quarter. If the student lives off-campus he will be referred to the disciplinary committee with a written recommendation.
 B. Any male student receiving more than fifty demerits during his college career may be referred to the disciplinary committee.
 C. Any male student may be expelled on second offense with twenty demerits in one year for the rest of his school career.
 III. A. Any decision of this board may be appealed to the disciplinary committee through the Dean's office.
 Section 2 of Article XI was changed to read as: "The presidents of the Men's House Committee, the President and the Vice-President of the Men's Day-Student Committee, President of Men's dormitories, and two (2) members-at-large, with the other officers named, shall constitute the membership of the Men's Judiciary."

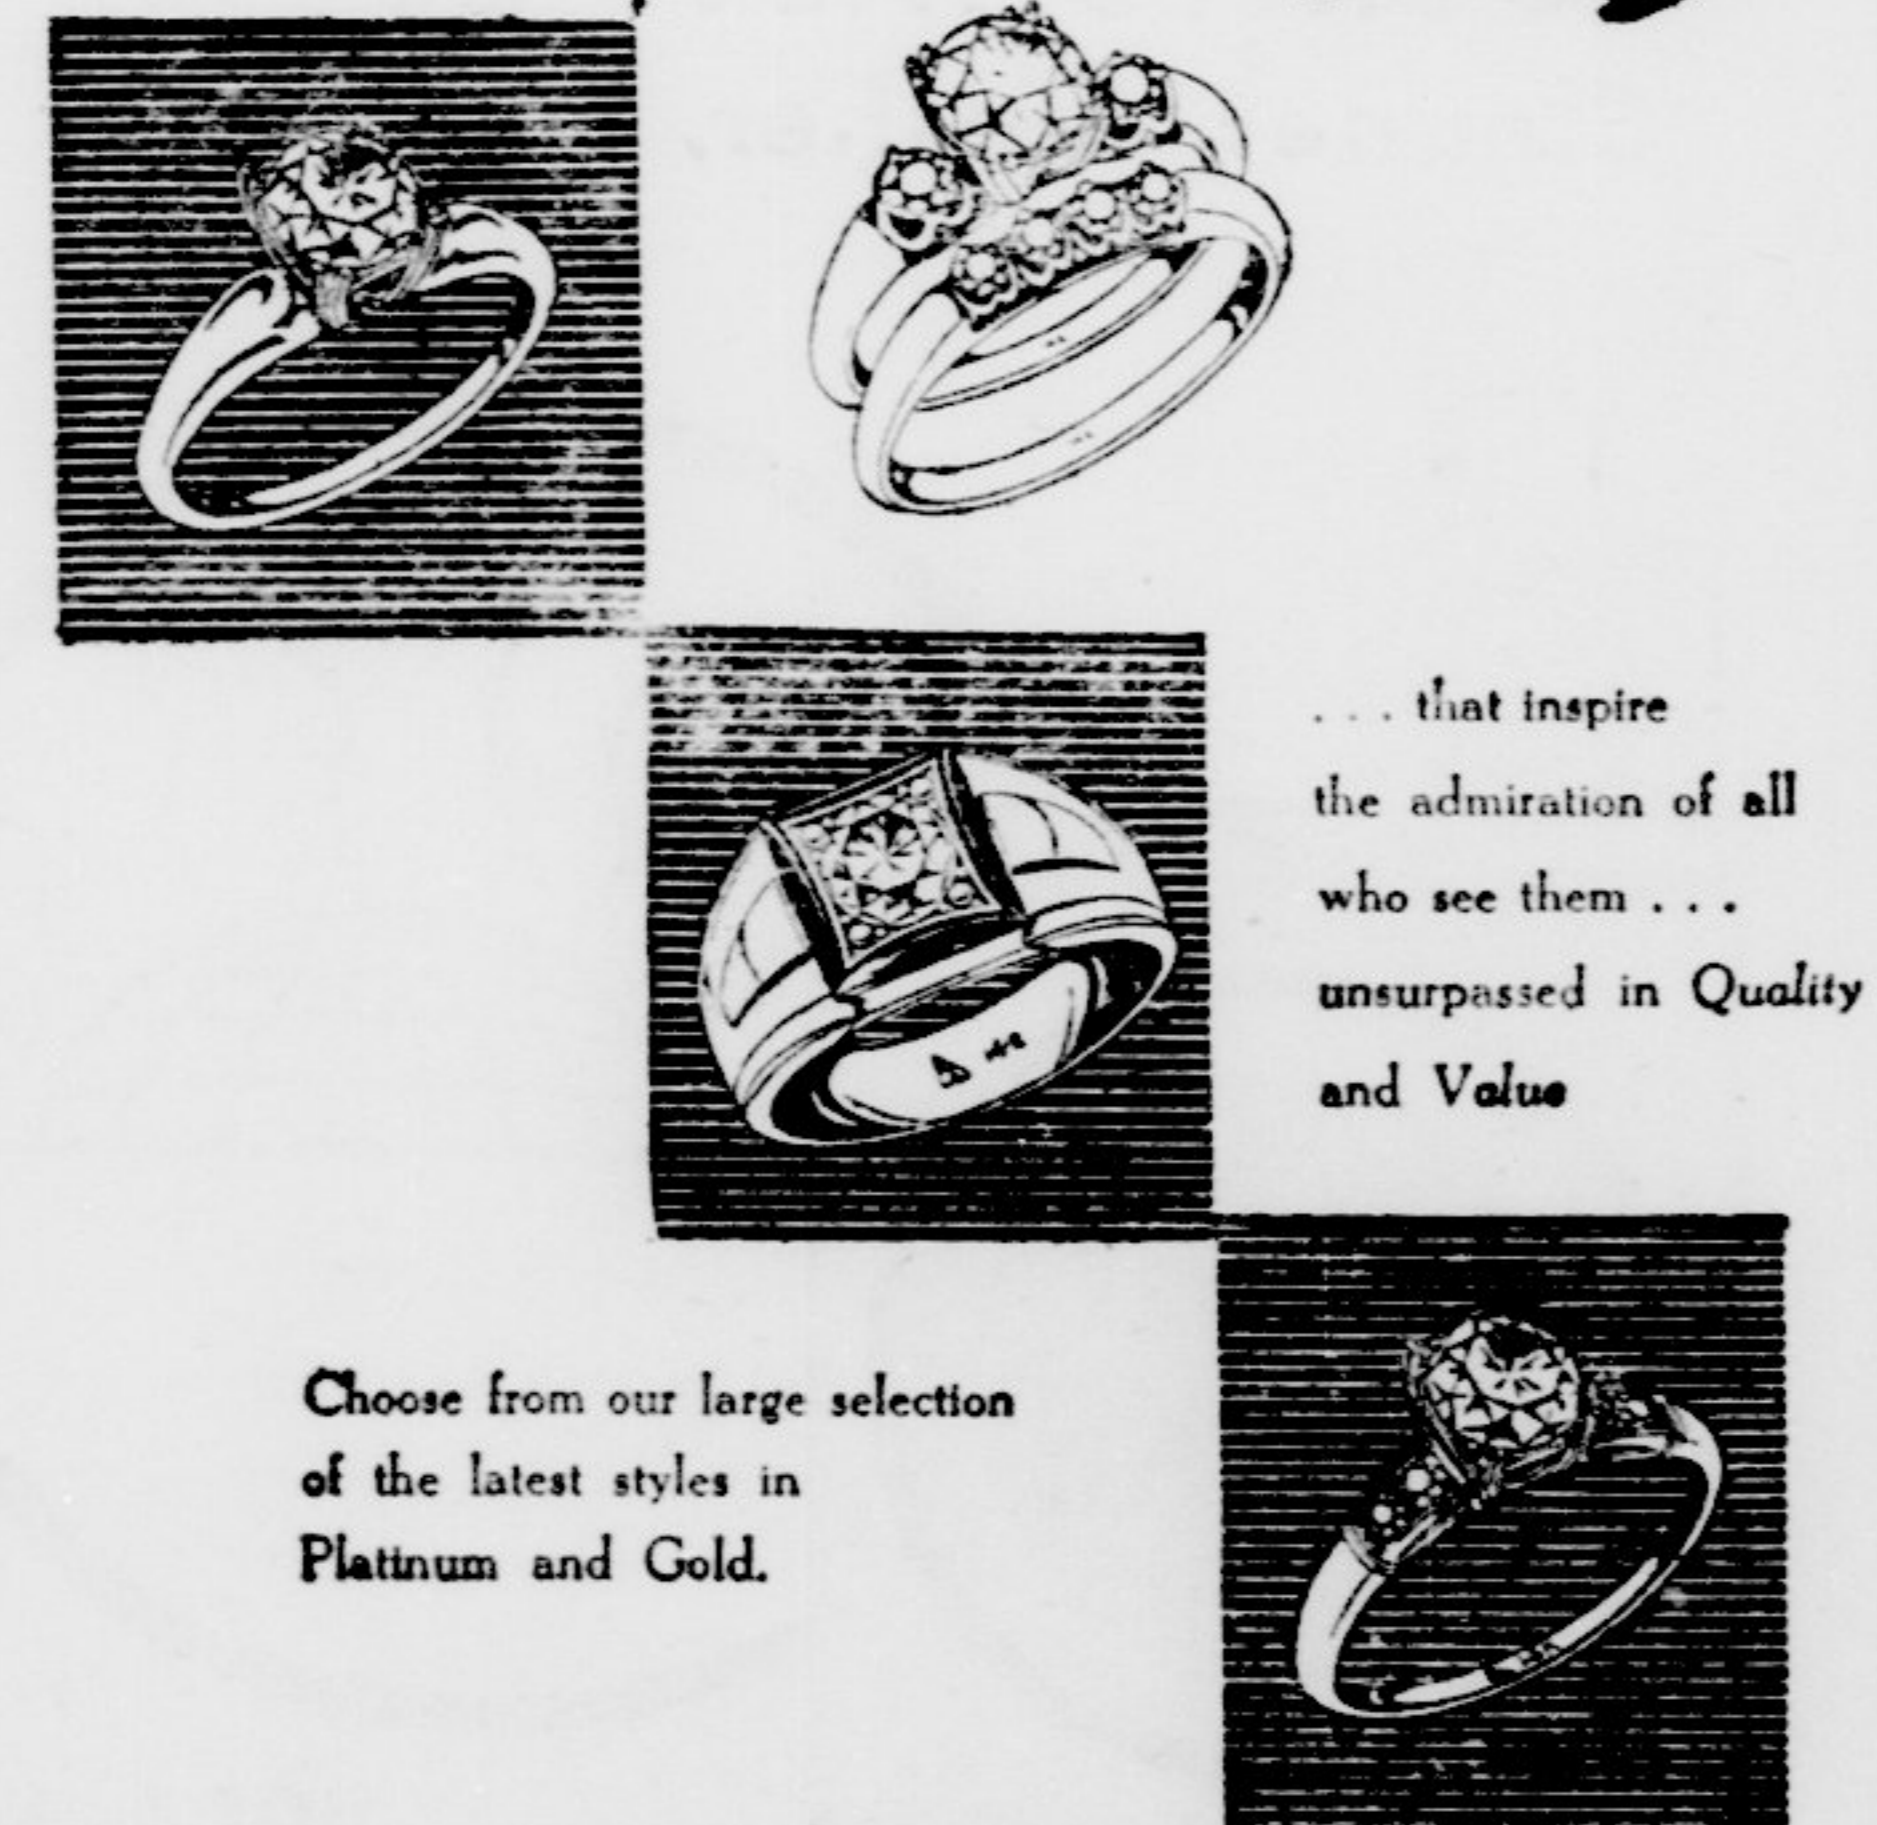

Jorgensen Speaks
 Dr. Jorgensen, of the Physical Education department, was present at the meeting and discussed the problem of lending student tickets. As was pointed out by Jorgensen, we are cutting our own throats by issuing student-cards to non-students. Our school needs more money for scholarships and by issuing student-tickets to non-students, we are defeating our own purpose. The problem, as stated by Jorgensen, is "how to keep students from lending their I D cards." A way, according to Jorgensen, is to educate students to the seriousness of the matter.

A committee was appointed to investigate the ticket situation and the committee is to report at the meeting on October 20. Serving on the committee is Don King, chairman, Harvey Davis, Howard Rooks, Ed Matthews and David Lee.

The recommendation that the Homecoming chairman be a standard member of the SGA legislature was accepted. The Young Democrats were accepted and given a seat on the legislature also.

The resignation of Richard Ivey, assistant treasurer, was accepted and Billy Sharber was elected to fill the vacancy left by Ivey's resignation.

Business Ed Students Hear Veteran Discuss Salesmanship Merits

Selling as a career offers both opportunity and security. Shirley Stancil, Raleigh business man, told students of business education at East Carolina College. Mr. Stancil, manager of the Raleigh office of the Friden Calculating Machine Company, spoke Wednesday night to students of salesmanship taught by W. W. Howell of the faculty.
 "One of the chief reasons so few young people consider selling as a career," the speaker said, "is the mistaken idea that a job carrying a nominal fixed salary offers security, whereas a selling job where rewards are based on the efforts of the salesman does not." Where opportunity lies, there lies security, he concluded.
 He advised students who choose selling as a career to give careful consideration to the product and company which they represent.

Dr. Gilbert G. Rutenber, left above, professor of philosophy of religion at Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Philadelphia, and author of "The Price and The Prize" and "The Dagger and The Cross," will be the main speaker at the State Baptist Student Convention to be held in Salisbury, November 5-7. Joel Farrar, right, East Carolina College BSU President, will head a local delegation of 75 students. Monday, October 25, is the deadline for making reservations; a registration fee of $1.00 should be turned in at the Baptist Student Center.

Methodist
 The North Carolina Methodist Student Conference will be held in the First Methodist Church, Salisbury, N. C., on October 22-24, 1954. Platform speaker for the Conference will be Dr. Glenn Martin, Director of The Wesley Fellowship of the University of Tennessee.
 Nine workshops have been developed. They are: Music, Deputation, Drama, Churchmanship, World Christian Community, Recreation, Program Emphasis and the Campus Directors' Seminar.
 The Sunday Morning Worship Service will be delivered by Dr. Arthur Kals, Chairman of the Inter-Conference Commission on Student Work and a faculty member at Duke University.
 Officers of the Alpha Zeta Chapter are Joan Crawford, president; Jackie Penny, secretary; Walter Johnson, treasurer; and Laura Kirven, "Footlight" reporter.
