Performances Of 'Devil's Disciple' Set Next Week

Campus Science Club Brings 'House Of Magic' To ECC

"House of Magic," an educational stage show sponsored by General Electric, depicting the wonders of industrial research in science, will be shown at East Carolina College Monday at 8:00 p.m. in Austin Auditorium. This representation is under the auspices of the Student Science Club, announces Roy McGinnis Jr., president. There will be no admission charge, and the public is invited to attend.

Since its inception in the middle 1930's, this science stage show has thrilled millions of people throughout the Western Hemisphere. It graphically presents many of the most recent developments in scientific research, especially those which will contribute to a more enjoyable and comfortable life in years to come.

Features of the show include a mechanical hand used in atomic research to handle radioactive material, plastic foam that grows from a few ounces of chemicals to a large cone in a second, a sun motor which demonstrates that electricity can be made directly from light, and a gear moving at 1200 revolutions per minute appears to stand still for study by the use of the stroboscope light.

College Seniors Do Practice Work

East Carolina College has begun its program of student teaching for the winter quarter, and 114 seniors are gaining experience in the classroom as they prepare themselves for careers in education.

Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of the Bureau of Student Teaching and Placement at the college, has just issued a report which indicates that 66 women and 52 men are now conducting classes in public schools in Eastern North Carolina. In addition to the Wahl-Coates Laboratory School on the campus, the Greenville High School, and other city schools, the seniors are located in 14 other public schools of this area.

Thirty-four of the total number of seniors are teaching classes on the primary and the grammar-grade levels. Others are engaged in work in grades nine through 12 of secondary schools. Four students of music are teaching both elementary and high school classes so as to gain a well-rounded experience in public school music instruction. One senior majoring in art is teaching this subject in the elementary grades of the Greenville public school system.

Centers where East Carolina seniors are now teaching include, in addition to the campus laboratory school, Greenville, Washington, Tarboro, Robersonville, the School for the Blind in Raleigh, Kinston, Williamston, Bethel, Winterville, Ayden, Stokes, Farmville, Grimesland, Chocod, and Belvoir.

ROTC Cadets Receive Honors For Service In Ceremony

Twenty-two Air Force ROTC cadets at East Carolina College, all seniors, received awards last week in recognition of their acceptance by Flying Training Air Force for pilot or observer training. The ceremony, held in the Austin auditorium, was attended by students and faculty members at the college.

Cadets honored were chosen because they possess desired officer qualities, have high pilot or observer aptitude, are medically qualified, and are effectively motivated toward flying training.

The awards, in the form of half wings, will be worn on the cadet's uniform to signify he has been accepted for flying training. Lt. Col. Lewis J. Partridge, professor of air science at East Carolina, made the presentations to the cadets.

During the ceremony brief talks were given by Dr. John Reynolds of the East Carolina mathematics department, a Lt. Commander in the Naval Reserve with a navigator's rating, and Dr. Elwood Keister of the college music faculty, a civilian pilot and member of the local Civil Air Patrol.

Dutch Rotary Student Talks To District Clubs

Anna van Andel of Bussum, North Holland, student here, will make a series of talks before fifteen Rotary Clubs in various Eastern North Carolina towns during the next three months.

Miss van Andel is attending the college here on a scholarship provided by District 278 of Rotary International, which includes the area from Burlington to Manteo. She is the second foreign student to enroll at East Carolina under the sponsorship of Rotarians.

Arrangements for her visits and talks are now being completed by James L. Fleming of the East Carolina department of foreign languages, who represents the Greenville Rotary Club. On each trip Miss van Andel will be accompanied by a member of the local organization, which is serving as her host during her stay in this country.

College Players Present Shaw's Top Melodrama

The East Carolina Players, student dramatic club here, will present George Bernard Shaw's melodrama "The Devil's Disciple" as its major production for the winter quarter. Performances are set for Wednesday and Thursday, January 19 and 20, at 8:15 p.m. in the College Theatre.

The play deals with a situation during the American Revolution and is written in the witty and trenchant style characteristic of Shaw's works.

James L. Thompson of Durham and James K. Dupres of Angier are student directors of the play. Billy Ray Sells of Tarawa Terrace is technical director. The production will be supervised by Dr. Joseph A. Withey of the department of English, director of dramatic arts at the college. Special attention is being given to costumes and scenery for the play. Settings will be designed and built by members of the Playhouse, working with Dr. Paul Running, director of the college department of art. Alvis B. Carr Jr. of Rocky Mount, in the role of Richard Dudgeon, "The Devil's Disciple," leads a cast of 40 people who are now rehearsing the drama. C. Merle Kelly of Raleigh will play the dashing British General John Burgoyne, whose defeat at Saratoga is imminent as the play closes.

Religious Emphasis Week Opens With TV Program; Begins Officially January 23

Religious Emphasis Week, January 23-28, sponsored by the Inter-Religious Council with the counsel of Dr. John B. Bennett, will have for its theme "Wanted, a Positive Faith for Today."

On the television program, "Let's Go to College" the afternoon of January 23, Religious Emphasis Week will be discussed. Later that night there will be a dinner for the speakers, members of the Council, and advisors. A meeting will then follow of the Committee of One Hundred, so that they can have an opportunity to know the speakers before the week officially begins.

The week will officially begin Monday with an all-college assembly in Wright Auditorium. At this time the different speakers will be introduced and Dr. Maurice Kidder, Chapel Hill, will address the group with his topic being "What Beliefs are Basic?" Throughout the week there will be morning worship in Austin Auditorium at 7:30. A guest speaker will lead the devotion each morning. The speakers will have classroom visitations, personal conferences that any student can take advantage of, and will also visit the various dormitories each evening for informal "bull-sessions" that may be attended by anyone.

Each afternoon at 3:30 there will be a coffee-hour at the Y-hut that all students are invited to attend. At 7:00 each evening there will be an open-assembly in Austin Auditorium.

The aim of this week is to emphasize personal, social, intellectual, and vocational goals. During the week each aim will be broken down into the different topics and discussed fully for the benefit of all.

The Publicity Committee has already begun preparations with the idea of having reminders of Religious Emphasis Week stamped on the napkins in the cafeteria, and on bookmarkers. They hope also to get "spots" on the radio and in this way reach not only the student body but the people of Greenville.

Speakers for the week include: Dr. Maxine Garner, Meredith College; Dr. Gordon W. Lovejoy, Greensboro and Guilford College; Dr. Maurice Kidder, Chapel Hill, Mr. William H. Crane, traveling representative for the Student Volunteer Movement for the Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Robert Holt, Mars Hill College.

Sara Giles, president of the Inter-Religious Council, urges all students to attend these meetings for they will have a "strong broadening value, not only spiritually but in many other aspects as well."

Jenkins Surveys Public School Problems In National Magazine

The time is ripe for the nation's schools to pause and "consolidate their position," Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College states in the December issue of "The American School Board Journal."

Tremendous changes, he points out, have been effected by the phenomenal growth of the public school system, increase in enrollment, expansion of the curriculum and of physical plants, and introduction of new courses. These call, he says, for a moratorium, an inventory, and a plan for the future.

He suggests a two-year study by all groups interested in improving the public school system and charged with clarifying its purposes and organization.

a national foundation representing all groups interested in improving the public school system and charged with clarifying its purposes and organization.

"There is nothing basically wrong with either our children or their teachers," he states. In view of prevalent attacks on public education, however, he says, educators, parents, students, and many others would welcome a re-examination of the nation's schools.

The task of evaluation is a responsibility of all segments in our society—parents, business men, farmers, professional groups, labor organizations, and churches, as well as colleges and the schools themselves, Dr. Jenkins states.

Parliamentary Aid Sessions By SGA

The second of three short sessions in parliamentary procedure will be presented in Flanagan auditorium next Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. by the Student Legislature. The first of these meetings was held last night.

All students on the campus are invited to attend, according to Wade Cooper, president of the Student Government Association.

Miss Lois Grigsby, a member of the English Department faculty, is serving as instructor to the group. At one time, Miss Grigsby taught regular classes in parliamentary procedure.

At the end of three class periods, the group will be tested on the basics of parliamentary law. Members of the student legislature should pass the test, according to Cooper. If they fail the first quiz, a second test will probably be offered.

Film Club Shows French Comedy; Three More Shows

The East Carolina Film Club, sponsored by the Greenville chapter of the American Association of University Women, presented its first program, "Carnival in Flanders," on Wednesday, January 5. There were two showings, at seven and nine p.m. in the main auditorium of Joyner Library.

Both in the United States and abroad "Carnival in Flanders" has won the highest praise and the most coveted prizes, as a masterpiece of wit and historic reproduction.

The story the film tells deals with the invasion of Flanders by the Spanish army, which threw the Flemish burghers into terrified mourning—but not their charming wives, who were overjoyed at the change. Infused with the humor of Brueghal's art and Boccaccio's genius, "Carnival in Flanders" has been judged a classic film, "one of the best in 40 years."

The motion picture was the first of four outstanding films to be put on by the East Carolina Film Club.

Eastern Drama Festival Govt. Takes Over ECC Post Office

Final arrangements for the annual Eastern Regional Drama Festival of the Carolina Dramatic Association will be made at a dinner meeting of the Planning Committee at the Silo Restaurant in Greenville Thursday, January 20, at 6:30 p.m.

The Festival will take place at East Carolina College Friday and Saturday, March 25-26. It is expected to bring to the campus a large number of school and community drama organizations from the eastern counties of the state.

Dr. Joseph A. Withey of the East Carolina College department of English, director of dramatic arts at the college, is chairman of the Planning Committee. Also serving on it are seventeen members of school dramatic clubs and community theatres in Eastern North Carolina.

The program, plans for which were begun early this winter, will include presentation of a series of short plays by the drama organizations participating in the Festival. These productions will be either rated in order to qualify for the State Drama Festival at Chapel Hill or evaluate for the benefit of the groups concerned.

A special attraction of the Festival at East Carolina College, Dr. Withey has announced, will be a presentation of the original three-act play "The White Doe" by Professor Samuel Selden, director of the Carolina Playmakers of the University of North Carolina. The drama will be produced by the Goldmasquers of the Goldsboro High School under the direction of Clifton Britton, whose work in the theatre has attracted favorable attention throughout the state.

Govt. Takes Over ECC Post Office

Effective January 1, the post office of East Carolina College became a sub-station of the Greenville post office, under operation by contract with the federal postal system.

Ralph P. Smiley, local young man and clerk-in-charge, said that the major difference here will be no postage free communication. Prior to this, notices were placed in boxes without stamps being required.

All the regular facilities of a postal unit will now be available for the college; money orders may be obtained, packages registered, and other services of a regular post office.

Special delivery letters addressed to a box number will be placed in the box. If addressed to the dormitory, the Greenville main station will still deliver the letter to the dormitory.

Students who paid their box rent at the beginning of the quarter are advised that it is paid up for the year. Anyone wishing a box may rent one at the window. Hours for service at the window are: 9 to 11 a.m. and 3:30 to 6 p.m. The mail is picked up at 7:45 a.m. and 5:45 p.m. It is placed in the box the same hours as before. Students may get mail twice a day.

Recipe For Teacher

(Editor's note: The following little piece of prose was sent to us by a former East Carolina student, Lt. Don Cox, now at Columbus Air Force Base, Miss. We think it may appeal to the humor of our reader.)

Select a young and pleasing personality, trim off all mannerisms of voice, dress, or deportment. Pour over it a mixture of equal parts of wisdom of Solomon, the courage of young Daniel, the strength of Samson, and the patience of Job.

Season with the salt of experience, the pepper of animation, the oil of sympathy, and a dash of humor.

Stew for about 4 years in a hot classroom, testing occasionally with the fork of criticism. Trust in by a principal or superintendent.

When done to a turn, garnish with a meager salary and serve hot to the community.

Editorial Comment

The New Year and Segregation

A belated happy New Year was the favorite greeting of most of the crowd here after we returned from the holidays. The new year is the time to make resolutions. And the time to break them. We wonder if anyone ever intends to keep the little promises they make to themselves. It's a proverbial "powerful few" of the resolutions that do get kept, at any rate. On the same subject, re-evaluation of one's capabilities and willingness to use them is proper at any time during the year. Most of us fail to do our best.

Although all the comments made on the segregation issue do little but add to the muddle of confusion, everybody who thinks keeps thinking and speaking about it. Over the holidays, we took a little trip through North Carolina and Virginia and saw a few everyday things. These things made us think of the two solutions and wonder again if there is any clear way to know what is right and best.

Quite shocking was the thing observed in a small North Carolina town: Two children of about eight years of age were standing before the local movie theatre. They were little girls, smiling and, at one time, their arms were locked together. They must have been friends, of a sort; they looked quite content with each other at the time. One was a white child and the other was a negro. Does the solution lie in the sincerity and simplicity of children? It seems to us that those children would have been happier to sit together had they gone inside to see the movie than to be separated, in view of their friendliness outside on the street.

In another town, in Virginia this time, we hear a nice looking teenage girl curse vehemently when a colored youth accidentally bumped her shoulder getting off a crowded bus. Would she have been as profane if the boy had been of her own race?

In a town not too far from Greenville, we saw a group of children, all white, playing at a municipal skating rink. They were shouting happily; they must have been happy. In another part of town, near the railway depot, negro children were playing just as happily, skating on the streets and in the concrete laid out around the station. Knowing as much as we do about the town, we risk saying that those children were happy under their present conditions and wouldn't want things changed.

There is no theme to this bit of wondering. The only concrete statement we feel like making is the same printed in this paper before: Situations are different in every locality and each situation will have to be dealt with according to its simplicity or complexity.

The SGA... On The Ball

The recent move by the Student Government Association to acquaint East Carolina students with the practical essentials of parliamentary procedure is a very good one. Last night the first of three sessions was held in Flanagan Auditorium under the direction of a faculty member who was once a teacher of parliamentary procedure.

The primary aim of the project was probably to aid the members of the Student Legislature who cannot deny their need for study of legal ways of speech. Most of them know little or nothing of parliamentary procedure. And if the legislature need help, it is a sure bet that the rest of the students here need help too. Anyone is invited to attend the sessions; more students should be there next week for the next lesson.

Anyone tempted to term his ignorance of parliamentary procedure as negligible should stop to think for a moment. Most East Carolina students are going to be teachers. At one time or another, every teacher is called upon to preside over student meetings or asked questions about the correct way to carry through the duties of class or club officers. Most teachers are asked to sponsor clubs or social organizations. It is the duty of a teacher to know certain things anyway whether he is called upon to discuss them or not; parliamentary procedure is too necessary and useful to be disregarded. Although the procedure is not simple, it is not too complicated for college level students. If we aspire to be in the company of the greater colleges and universities of the country, it is a shame that we have to admit our present ignorance.

The Student Government Association this year has been progressive thus far. Those who know the inside obstacles to be met by the officers of the organization and those who have watched neutrally have no choice but to commend the young man from Raleigh for his leadership and the body as a whole for its unity toward progression.

The Gaddy

by Stan Jones
Don King, Owen Besselleu and Hugh Young took a giant step toward better government at East Carolina last night when they introduced a bill for changes in the college judiciary system.

For years, the only functioning judiciary we have, the Women's, has not accorded defendants the protection one might expect, even of a military tribunal. A Court Martial will provide basic protection for the accused.

The King Amendment will provide for lawyers, a right to cross examine witnesses and the accused, and the right to present witnesses in defense and for the prosecution, and the right to appeal to the legislature. Judiciary members may not discuss a case before it is tried and they must turn in a general report to the legislature each quarter.

WHEREAS: The Advisory Board of East Carolina College recommended on November 30, 1948 that "if council checks are to be held, a provision be added to the constitution outlining the proper procedure for same", and
WHEREAS: This motion was carried unanimously and was never acted on by the Student Government Association, and
WHEREAS:

At the same meeting of the Advisory Board it was recommended "that in accordance with practices of American legal procedure the accused is entitled to demand that persons bringing charges be named and be required to face the accused, and the accused may demand witnesses both for and against him or her," and
WHEREAS:

None of these Democratic Rights have been included in our Constitution, and WHEREAS: Our Judiciary has not conformed to these Democratic Principles in the past, therefore,
BE IT RESOLVED by this legislature:

That the following amendments shall be added to our Constitution immediately, and that they shall be retroactive as of January 1, 1955.
Article X, Section 5
STUDENTS RIGHTS BEFORE THE WOMEN'S JUDICIARY

A—The Judiciary may not discuss any case, either among themselves or with anyone, before the trial. They may only accept the charge.

B—A defendant may, if she desires, be represented by counsel throughout her trial.

C—The defendant may, if she desires, examine and cross-examine her accuser and all witnesses presented by the prosecution.

D—The defendant may, if she desires, present witnesses in her behalf.

E—The defendant may, if convicted, appeal her case to the Student Legislature. In cases of appeal the Legislature may uphold the conviction by a majority vote of the total membership, or call a mistrial and try the case on the Legislature floor, or send it back to the Judiciary for retrial.

Article XI, Section 5
STUDENTS RIGHTS BEFORE THE MEN'S JUDICIARY

That student rights before the Men's Judiciary shall be identical to the rights before the Women's Judiciary as expressed in Article X, Section 5, A through E.

AND THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by this legislature:

That the Women's Judiciary shall present to this body a complete definition of the term "Council Check" and also that they shall present a specific outline of the procedures involved in the act of "Council Checking" so that this body may add this information, if acceptable, to Article VI, Section 3 of our By-Laws.

None of the things mentioned in the King amendment have been guaranteed to women students in the past. An accuser does not have to confront the accused and is involved only as the "finger man." Witnesses in behalf of an accused have been denied on some occasions in the past. This implies that the "femme" judiciary arrives at convictions without going through proper court procedures. It would seem that the accused comes to the judiciary as a matter of form to receive sentence.

Should the Men's Judiciary be accepted in next Tuesday's general election, rights granted women by the King Amendment will be identical for men.

Perhaps the "old order changeth" for the better. Congratulations to King, Besselleu, Young and Co.

Elections Tuesday

There will be a general election Tuesday to decide the fate of the Men's Judiciary. All students are urged to participate in the voting. Ballot boxes may be found in the lobby of the dining hall from 9:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m.

Who's Who Among Students At East Carolina Senior Active In Campus Religious Groups

This week's Who's Who had planned to transfer to Wake Forest or Carolina after two years, but after being in school here for awhile readily changed his mind. Charlie Bedford of Pikeville says he first planned to go to Wake Forest, but after visiting East Carolina several times he decided to come to East Carolina for two years and then transfer. However, as is true with so many students, he was easily won over to staying at East Carolina.

"In my opinion East Carolina is tops. I have visited many colleges at this state and in others and ECC has something that you just don't find anywhere else," says Charlie.

Charlie, who is a social studies major and English minor, did his practice teaching fall quarter in Greenville high school. He says, "It was quite an experience and I guess I learned more last quarter than any other quarter; however, I enjoyed it."

Charlie has been very active in extra-curricular activities while in college. This is especially true in YMCA. He served as president his Junior year, treasurer his Sophomore year, and he is on the "YM" cabinet this year. This year he is also president of the Southern Area Student Council of YMCA. At the National Student Council of YMCA and the United Student Christian Council which was held last August in Oxford, Ohio, Charlie represented the Southern area of YMCA.

This active fellow has been a member of the SGA for two years. He served on the Points Committee last year and is a member of the Budget Committee this year.

By being president of the Senior class Charlie is taking an active part in the planning of the Freshman, Sophomore, Senior dance. He also renders many other important tasks for the senior class.

For the past three years Charlie has been a member of the Circle K and has been a member of the Board of Directors for the past two years. In commenting on Circle K he says, "I think it is one of the best organizations on campus. Next to belonging to church groups, I believe everyone should belong to a group like this." Charlie was able to attend the convention for Circle K and Kiwanis which was held this past year in New York. Through this he was able to learn a lot more about the club.

For all four years of college Charlie has been a member of the Wesley Foundation and he has been on the council for the past three years. He went to the Methodist National Quadrennial Student Conference which was held at the University of Kansas. Many valuable experiences have been added to Charlie's knowledge as the result of the many conferences he has attended.

Charlie is also a member of the inter-Religious Council. He served as treasurer of his class during his sophomore year. For two years he was a member of the IRC.

As for interest, Charlie is interested in people mostly. He enjoys talking to people and getting to know them. Sports, movies (if they are good), dances—in fact anything pertaining to social life is enjoyed by Charlie.

The greatest honor, in his opinion, for Charlie was that of being chosen one of Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities.

This fine student, who will graduate in May, says, "I sorta hate to leave but it seems good to know I've gotten this far." Military plans will probably take over after graduation, but he would like to go to graduate school. He would like to go to teach, preferably on the college level, or either go into some field of social work.

AROUND THE CAMPUS

with Jimmy Ferrell

Jean Fisher

Love Those Vacations!
That long-awaited Christmas vacation is gone for another long year. After two weeks of no studies, sleeping late, television, and just loafing, it was pretty hard for everybody to get back down to the ole grind of school life last week. Just hold your head up high and say, "It's only about 75 or 80 days until Spring Holidays."

A Look At '54
East Carolina continued to grow in 1954. The largest freshman class in the history of the school enrolled fall quarter, and the other classes along with the record-breaking freshman class made up the largest attendance in the history of the school.

Beautiful new Joyner Library and the new Student Union were completed and a new woman's dorm was begun next to Wilson Hall plus progression on the men's dorm.

Early in 1954 Coach Howard Porter and his basketball aggregation swept through the North State Conference to gain the conference crown and then romped over arch rival ACC from Wilson to win the tournament championship.

The Pirate footballers failed to defend their North State football crown but put up a great showing in the conference. They were handicapped tremendously by the loss of stars Dick Cherry and Paul Gay.

Two freshman girls, Jane Crofton of Plymouth and Katherine Dismuke of Burlington, were chosen Miss Summer School and Homecoming Queen, respectively.

Soph President

of the Sophomore class. Jean is the only girl on campus who holds the position as president of her class. We didn't go way back into the records but it seems that it has been quite a while since a girl was elected president of her class.

She is now working with officers of the Freshman and Senior classes in preparation for the "Freshman, Sophomore, Senior Dance." Jean says, "We think it's going to be the best of these dances yet. We are going to have Tex Beneke and his orchestra and the dance will be semi-formal also on a weekend."

She was treasurer of last year's freshman class and along with being president of the sophomore class is serving as secretary of Fleming Hall.

Five Years Ago
From the files of the January 29, 1950 "Teo Echo":

"The newly organized Circle K Club held its first official meeting. The club's first officers named were: Virgil Clark, president; Jeff Warner, vice president; Hilton Styron, secretary; and Gene Midgett, treasurer."

"Miss Mable Daugherty, a native of Birmingham, Ala., joins the Home Economics Department."

Gilbert Carroll of Weldon was named to the "Student Spotlight."

1955 Resolutions Promise Parties, Pleasure, Sleep

by Pat Humphrey

Although the New Year has already arrived, many persons have made resolutions which they may or may not already have forgotten. Some of the declarations would perhaps be best forgotten, while others would do good if kept in mind.

Some of the students have made resolutions, and a few of them appear below:

Marie Parsons: Resolve to quit studying and have myself a ball!!!
Jean Whitfield: Not to forget to go home every weekend.

Bobby Mann: To do my best and accept whatever is accomplished.
Sandra Medford: To look for the best in people.

Jane Tucker: To pass business law and accounting sometime during 1955.
Kathleen Neal: To be where I am supposed to be when I'm supposed to be there, doing what I'm supposed to be doing.

Les Gaddy: I am going to slow down on studying and do more socializing. (She can afford to, for she made Dean's List last quarter.)
Ann Bunting: To graduate from college.

Larry Elmore: Not to cut so many classes this quarter.
Faye Huggins: To go to bed every night at 11 p.m.

Kenneth Cole: To spend less time on school work and more time for personal pleasure.
Joyce Smith: To try and budget my time so as to have more time to spend for newspaper and BSU work.

Faye O'Neal: To remember to sign out.

A Case Of Mistaken Identity

by Joyce Smith

Williamston is the home of this week's couple. They are Nanette Harrison and Jimmy Page. As for how they started going together Nanette laughingly says, "Jimmy had a crush on my best girl friend, but she did not pay him any mind so he started going with me."

If we could go back to the past to Christmas eve four years ago we would find the two on their first date. They have been going steadily for four years.

In recalling an embarrassing incident they tell of one day when they were in Perkins-Proctor looking at a tie. Nanette went over to the other side of the store to look for something else, while Jimmy looked for the tie. While on the other side of the store she heard Jimmy say, "Come on, honey, let's go." When she looked up, to her amazement she saw him going out with his arm around another girl. Jimmy, however, caught sight of Nanette and discovered he had his arm around a complete stranger. Jimmy says, "I do not know which of the three was the most embarrassed."

Both Nanette and Jimmy enjoy watching football and basketball. They also enjoy being in the band together. Incidentally, we might mention here that Jimmy has a dance band here on campus and from all reports it is very good.

Nanette is a sophomore primary major and plans to graduate in 1957 while Jimmy, a music major, plans to graduate in 1956. Both plan to teach, but Jimmy will have to serve a little time with Uncle Sam first.

Good luck to both of you and who knows, maybe in the future 1-2-3 or more "Pages" will be added to this story.

A ROSE
by Marilyn Poole

A rose, discolored, stood there in the vase
And yet, its head held high, uplifted face.
The leaves turned brown and curled along the edges—
The veins were dark and showed their brownish ridges.
But yet its beauty shone within the room
For marked was its eloquence and grace.

A maiden stared at the undauntedly rose
And wondered if she too someday may pose.
With all such dignities, though she grow old
If she would stand uprightly half so bold.

If all her charms of youth someday may leave
Could she still stand as jauntily as the rose.

NIGHT SOUNDS
by Jo Ann Harris
The night has wrapped the earth about
And muffled the sounds of day;
But to tired heads as they lie abed,
All too slowly they fade away:
The wail of a siren, the bark of a dog,
The rustle of wind-blown shade,
The tick of the clock, the tap of water
By dripping faucet made.
Can't go to sleep? Ignore the sounds
Be they dimmed or be they clear;
Slip into slumberland peacefully
Night sounds inspire no fear.

POT POURRI

by Guest Writer Emily S. Boyce

One of the underlying problems which has drifted more and more into general campus conversation lately is the prospect of East Carolina College adopting some type of honor system.

Every college campus faces this same problem or has faced it at one time. East Carolina is not peculiar in that we harbor some students who evidently do not think before they commit a dishonorable act which is detrimental to the particular individual and to their school. Actual workable solutions to campus cheating are difficult to find and if a solution is found, it is even more difficult to put into operation. Many colleges have a strict honor code or system involving each individual student. These codes did not appear or completely work overnight. It takes years of honor and obedience to build up the tradition which many colleges abide by so effectively.

East Carolina has not been idle in their thinking on this subject. How can we stop stealing and cheating on our campus? Before Christmas the Student Government Association appointed a committee to investigate this problem and report any possible solution back to that body. No report has yet been made, but this committee may be one of the first moves toward some type of workable system East Carolina could adopt.

The Baptist Student Union have been working on this particular aspect of some students' behavior since last May. A committee has been appointed to set up a type of individual honor code. This code would apply to each individual, that is, each student would be responsible for his own behavior. No complete campus honor code is voiced, this step would have to come directly from the SGA.

If discussion and publicity concerning cheating at East Carolina does nothing more than bring the problem to the attention of every student and faculty member, we will consider it a good start. A good start in the achievement of eliminating such activities at this college.

Controversial Currents

ECC And Southern Conference

by Ann George and Stanley Jones

The Athletic Department at East Carolina College is doing everything in its power to have a superlative athletic program, not only in intramurals, but also in the field of intercollegiate sports.

We had the North State Conference Basketball Championship in 1953 and 1954. They seem to be well on the way to another successful season with a 8-1 record in all games to date. The 1955 football team was North State Champions. The 1954 season was plagued with injuries to key players; however, they finished in the first division. The next few seasons will find East Carolina's football team back on top to stay in the North State Conference. The first track team in the history of the school competed in one meet last spring, the North State Conference meet, and won by a wide margin.

Our "Athletic Brain Trust" feel that the Southern Conference is their meat. It would definitely add prestige to our school and Athletic Department, not to mention the boost in students' morale and added local interest.

Southern Conference's members consist of V. P. I., William and Mary College, V. M. I., West Virginia University, University of Richmond, George Washington University, Furman, Davidson College, The Citadel, and Washington and Lee University.

If we could gain admittance into Southern Conference, our players would be eligible for All-American Honors, All-Southern, and other forms of national recognition. This type of opportunity would naturally attract better athletes to this institution and wider interest and support from surrounding areas.

We have the physical plant, but not the quality of competition to bring in the paying customers it takes to support the type of Athletic program the Athletic Department aspires to.

For instance, football gate receipts for the 1954 season contributed only $9,000 to the Athletic Fund. State funds are not allocated for a single football or basketball shoe, so the money we receive from gate receipts and the SGA supports our athletic program. This $9,000 would not even be sufficient to support a AAA high school program.

The following question was asked, "Do you think East Carolina would benefit as a member of the Southern Conference? Why should or shouldn't they seek admittance?"

Dr. George Martin, professor of geography, who attended two colleges that participated in large conference games, feels that if it would benefit East Carolina in the respect of being able to schedule more games by becoming a member of the Southern Conference; then he is for it. As he pointed out the Athletic Department has been having some difficulties getting the North State District schools to compete with us because of our growing size and strength, especially in football.

Jim Stanley, football player, firmly believes that we are not ready yet because "we are not yet prepared financially and academically." But I do think that perhaps later we should seek admittance after we become more prepared for the situations we have to meet," said Jim.

Wade Cooper, president of SGA, feels that it includes many other aspects besides football alone. Most important, all the other standards besides those of the Athletic Department would have to be kept on a parallel with those of the other Southern Conference schools.

Before we send another application to the board, Wade believes we should, "survey the entire situation including the cost, financial benefit, and concessions that we would have to make. A lot of thought will be needed on the subject," he concluded.

SPORTS ECHO

by Bob Hilldrup

Elsewhere in this paper this week there appears a survey of sorts concerning local attitudes toward the possibility of East Carolina gaining admission to the Southern Conference.

Talk of such a possibility brings to mind once again the problem—as old as sport itself—of where to draw the line with regard to the amount of expansion an athletic program should do.

Certainly most people can see, without overcrowding of dorms and the expanding building program, that East Carolina is growing in size. And, too, on that basis, advocates of an expanded athletic program have their argument.

But perhaps joining the Southern Conference isn't such a good idea after all. Currently, East Carolina is at the transitional stage where the choice must be made whether to retain a "small-time" athletic program in what, with a few badly needed academic changes, soon should become a "big-time" school.

Personally, we can't see the merit of moving out on the North State Conference, assuming, of course, that the opportunity presents itself.

Proponents of such a move may say that joining a conference of higher classification and ability will bring East Carolina into competition with more nationally known schools, thereby giving the Pirates some very good publicity.

That, to us, seems to be practically the only argument for such a move. On the "con" side of the ledger one may find several equally good reasons for not dissolving a wedlock with the North State Conference which, though not always harmonious, has been at least fruitful.

In considering this matter we cannot confine ourselves to thinking of next year, the year after, or even 10 years from now. We must think instead of what the situation may be even farther in the future.

As time goes by, and assuming that our Republican-generated prosperity continues, East Carolina may well father a group of monetarily able alumni. Then, seeing as the football program here must depend on receipts and contributions, these generous alumni may well wind up where they are at other schools—in the driver's seat and dictating practically all athletic policy.

Alumni are nice people. They give money for many good projects at ye olde alma mater, they guide the footsteps of high school seniors toward their old school and, at homecoming, they give the current crop of undergraduates something to laugh at when they put in their once-a-year appearance on campus.

But that's enough. If we may be so trite we'd like to say that today's schools—and today's athletics—belong to today's youth.

Athletics are a necessary part of any college life. But let's remember the original purpose of an educational institution and not sacrifice that ideal on the altar of a heathen god.

Pirate Swimmers Lose Local Meet

Davidson's Wildcats, capturing eight of 10 events, handed East Carolina's winless swimming team a 60-24 setback here Saturday.

Pirates took the 300-yard medley relay in 3:25.7 and chalked up their other first in the 200-yard backstroke when Ron (The Nose) Rose defeated Davidson's Ormond and Kiker in 2:37.

The summary: 300-yard medley: East Carolina (Rose, Gartman, Denton). 3:25.7. 220-yard freestyle: 1. Carroll (D); 2. Sheppard (D); 3. Cooper (ECC). 2:44.

Pirates Triumph Over Blue Hose By 81-70 Margin

by Billy Arnold

Led by sensational Don Harris, the powerful East Carolina basketball machine rolled over a highly-rated Presbyterian team 81-70 in a devastating display of speed and accuracy Thursday in Memorial Gymnasium. Harris, a sharp-shooting sophomore, collected 27 points to share top scoring honors with Blue Hose ace Ron Ragan.

The Pirates' victory over the South Carolina power-house was their sixth in a row without defeat. Coach Norman Sloan's squad, which boasted a 7-1 record before the contest, came here seeking revenge for an 80-71 loss to the Bucs in last year's NAIA play. The Pirates jumped ahead late in the first period, however, and held their lead throughout the game.

Coach Howard Porter's boys pounded out a 39-28 edge at half-time with junior guard J. C. Thomas pumping in 10 points from long range to pace the squad. Thomas amassed a total of 23 tallies to grab second-place scoring honors. Dribble-daddy Cecil Heath, team captain, added 12 points.

Outstanding in the rebounding line was 6-4 senior center Waverly Akins, who pulled in 14 from the backboards. Bill Lipp (6-8) and Ragan (6-6), PC's rebounding giants, had to take a backseat to the hard-driving Akins, who, along with Guy Mendenhall and Nick Nichols, dominated defensive play.

(D). 2:37.0. 200-yard breaststroke: 1. Edwards (D); 2. Travis (D); 3. Moore (ECC). 2:53.5. 440-yard breaststroke: 1. Edwards (D); 2. Cummings (ECC); 3. Tutton (ECC). 6:39.0. 400-yard freestyle relay: Davidson (Query, Winfree, Sheppard, Sharpe). 4:11.6.

East Carolina Plays Games At Lenoir Rhyne, Western Carolina

Buccaneers Must Win To Stay In Contention For Conference Lead

What could be the season's most crucial pair of games awaits East Carolina's Pirates Saturday and Monday when the Bucs journey west to meet Lenoir Rhyne and Western Carolina.

The Pirates, who dropped their first league game after five straight victories last week, must win both contests if they hope to be in the running for a first place finish in the North State Conference. Then, too, East Carolina must face Belmont Abbey's Crusaders on January 18 in another away game.

On the other hand, once the Lenoir Rhyne, Western Carolina games have been played, the remainder of the schedule will favor the Pirates. Of the eight conference games that remain after January 18, five of them will be played at home. The other three contests will be at Appalachian, Catawba and the season's finale with arch-rival Atlantic Christian.

The coming road trip will also test the mettle of Coach Howard Porter's collection of veterans and frosh. Guards Cecil Heath and J. C. Thomas, as well as forward Don Harris provide the nucleus for the East Carolina squad. The two frosh starters, center Guy Mendenhall and forward Nick Nichols, may hold the key to a successful defense of 1954's North State Conference title.

Both boys so far have played standout ball. Mendenhall, the number two scorer for Cary High's state champs last year, has blossomed into a good rebound man and owns an excellent hook shot. Nichols, too, has snared his share of rebounds and has proved his capabilities on defense as well.

Harris, a sophomore surprise, is leading the East Carolina team in scoring with an average close to 25 points per game. Heath and Thomas have been the playmakers and each has had several good scoring nights.

Elon Christians Hand Bucs First League Setback, 76-64

Elon's Christians throttled the Pirates, 76-64, at Elon Saturday night, largely on the strength of two determined scoring spurts.

East Carolina, which had been pushed only once in winning its first six starts, lagged behind from the opening gun. Halftime found Elon out in front, 40-33.

Late in the fourth period, however, Don Harris, offensive star of the evening with 29 points, sparked a rally that pulled the Pirates into a 62-62 deadlock with 3:45 remaining in the game.

Senior Dave Maddox tossed in a field goal, added a free throw, and Ed Juratic tapped in a rebound, however, and before the Pirates could collect themselves Elon had built up a safe margin.

Guard J. C. Thomas collected 15 points to help the Pirate cause but the Bucs were hurt when playmaker and captain Cecil Heath fouled out.

East Carolina cashed in on 18 of 24 free throw attempts while Elon hit on 24 of 34 from the charity line. Maddox, with seven field goals and nine free throws, led the Christian scoring. Forward Earl Stone was runner-up with 15 points.

Harris Collects 21 Points, Bucs Down High Point

Sophomore forward Don Harris bucketed 21 points Monday night as the East Carolina Pirates edged High Point, 80-77, on the losers' court. The win was the fifth against one loss for the Bucs in North State Conference play.

In addition to Harris, forward Nick Nichols collected six field goals and eight free throws for a 20 point total. Center Guy Mendenhall, guards Cecil Heath and J. C. Thomas, the other three starters, also hit in the double figures, getting 13, 11 and 12 points respectively.

High Point, on the road back after a near-disastrous season last year, pressed the Pirates throughout most of the game. Halftime score found East Carolina in front by a 42-35 count.

Three games involving conference teams are on tap tonight. Guilford is at Elon, Lenoir Rhyne at Catawba and High Point asks in some out-of-conference competition by playing host to Wofford.

OBVIOUSLY, THE TITLE of the above Droodle is: 47 insectology students enjoying better-tasting Luckies while studying 3 fireflies. All kinds of students are bugs about Luckies. Matter of fact, college smokers prefer Luckies to all other brands—and by a wide margin—according to the latest and greatest of all college surveys. Once again, the No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better... cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, enjoy the better-tasting cigarette... French Movie Pictures Flanders In 1616

(Editor's note: We are fortunate in securing Pauline Catel, French exchange student at our college, to write the following review of the French movie, "Carnival in Flanders," which was shown here last week for the Foreign Film Club.)

"Carnival in Flanders" brings us back to a small town in Flanders in 1616, when every one still remembered the horrors of the Spanish Inquisition. Its actual French title, "Kermesse heroique," sets the scene of this fantasy with its contrasting burlesque comic and heroic background, reminding us sometimes of Don Quixote.

The Spanish duke is announced with his escort. The Alderman, frightened by memories of bloodshed, disguises his cowardliness under a fake burial. His "widow" with womanly decision and sturdy Flemish commonsense, will take things in hand and lead an uncommon army of the women in the village to receive the Spaniards in state, using feminine charms to prevent bloodshed. Making a complete fool of her husband, she then dutifully surrenders her pearls to him, knowingly looking at her pearls, a gift from the Duke for her... kindness.

The setting gives us an opportunity to admire beautiful pictures of Flemish architecture from the famous Flemish School of Art.

An artistic masterpiece, "Carnival in Flanders" is pervaded with that element of coarse comic pertaining more to a farce than to a true picture of French life. The contrast between the men's unmanly and the women's manly behavior with its exaggerated features does not give a better picture of French life, then or now, than a cartoon would, but is universally entertaining in the way it shows that Woman's will is... God's will.

Any students or local artists talented in singing, dancing, pantomimes, or any other form of entertainment should contact either Anne George, Box 514, or Roy Askew, Box 405, or leave a note at the newspaper office.
