Thirteen Students Named To Represent SGA At State Student Legislature Meet

The annual State Student Legislature meeting will be held the week-end of November 19 in Raleigh, according to Hugh Young, vice-president of SSL Interim Council. Speaking for the ECC members of the council at the October meeting of the Legislature, Mr. Young presented the names of the proposed delegation to represent East Carolina. This roster includes, after consideration, a number of juniors and sophomores and a limited number of seniors. The reason, explained Mr. Young, is that future legislatures will need members who have attended state conventions before. This year's body has only three students, Hugh Young, Barbara Strickland and Eno Boado, who have had any experience with the state organization.

A new statewide method of selecting delegates is now in effect. Previously, schools have elected delegates in various ways. It has been East Carolina's policy in the past to nominate the delegates from the floor. This procedure had its obvious shortcomings, pointed out Mr. Young, since people should attend who are willing to "stand up and speak out" on topics being discussed. At present the Interim Council of the schools discuss, choose and recommend a delegation to the general legislature for official approval.

The East Carolina Interim Council is composed of Hugh Young, Barbara Strickland, and Ann Willis. The delegation they presented and the legislature approved Wednesday night follows: Peggy Barfield, Dunn junior; Eno Boado, Wilmington senior; Hugh Young, Raleigh senior; Barbara Strickland, Clinton senior; Lillian Griffin, Henderson sophomore; Ann Bowles, Wilmington senior; O'Brien Edwards, Chocowinity senior; Russell Newman, Leaksville junior; Billy Sasser, Elizabeth City senior; Robert Forrest, J. B. Nichols, Greenville junior; Lemuel Cox, Goldsboro junior; Billy Arnold, Greenville sophomore; Jim Clark, Tarboro senior; and Stanley Jones, Norfolk, Virginia sophomore.

During the weekly SGA meeting, discussion arose concerning cost of the convention, past participation of ECC delegates and the number of representatives this college is allowed. Ann Willis explained that at this time the number to attend is thirteen delegates and seven alternates until further notified. Two more names will be submitted for approval in the near future.

At past conventions East Carolina members have held such positions as President of Senate and were otherwise active in the politics and discussions.

Annual Halloween Carnival Set For Wright Tonight

The Pi Omega Pi and Future Business Leaders of America will sponsor their annual Halloween Carnival tonight in the Wright Auditorium at 7:30. The purpose of the carnival is to make enough money to operate the Pi Omega Pi and FBLA for the coming year. Bruton Taylor, representing the Pi Omega Pi, and Greenville Banks, representing the FBLA, are co-chairmen of the affair.

The carnival will consist of a variety of booths, including bingo, cake booth and cake walk, car races, fortune telling, dart throwing, penny catching, pea guessing and pulling strings.

There will be a concession stand where popcorn, drinks, and other refreshments will be sold. Also, some lucky person will win a door prize.

Bobbie Lou Avant is chairman of the prize committee; Glenn Woodard, clean-up; George Cantory, ping pong; Jimmy Phelps, weight lifting; Bobby Mann, poster committee; Fred Devenport, bingo; and Jimmy Ferrell, publicity. Chairmen in charge of the different booths are: Margaret Melton, cake booth; Jack Edmondson, car races; Arlene Barboza, fortune telling; Ann Bowles, stage show; James Blake, dart throwing; Thomas Griffin, penny catching; Barbara Strickland, pea guessing; Pat Stetson, pull a string; and Clarence Brown, door prize. Dr. Humphrey and Dr. Norman Chatham are the special advisers.

Serving as director of "Darkness at Noon," major fall production being staged by the college players is Marion Evans, shown above. This production will be given at the College Theatre November 2, 3, and 4.

Kappa Delta Pi President Seeks Marshall Scholarship

Miss Lou Mayo, senior math major from Greenville, North Carolina, has applied for one of the Marshall Scholarships being offered by Great Britain in cooperation with the United States government.

Twelve Marshall scholarships are being offered in 1956 for tenure at any university in the United Kingdom for study of any subject which will lead to a British degree after two years. Three scholarships have been allotted to the Southern region. Finalists who have been selected by the Advisory Council in Washington, D. C. will go to New Orleans November 15 for interview and final selection. Successful candidates will begin their studies in the Fall.

Each scholarship will include the minimum of approximately $1550, the maximum $1700 per year for two years and may be extended for another year. Transportation over is provided.

In appointing Marshall Scholars the selectors will look for distinction of intellect and character as evidenced by their scholastic attainments and other activities and achievements.

Miss Mayo is now president of Kappa Delta Pi fraternity, an honor society in education. She has been a member of SGA for three years, and is secretary-treasurer of the Math Club. She served as president last year of the Women Day Student Association.

Other activities which she has taken a part in are: Jarvis Forensic

Teacher Writes Piece For Folklore Journal

Dr. Lucile H. Charles of the East Carolina College department of English discusses "Drama in War" in an article published in the fall edition of the "Journal of American Folklore."

The article, one of a series of twelve studies of primitive drama on which Dr. Charles has been working for several years, deals with an area which, she says, "has apparently not been hitherto investigated, although dramatic elements in primitive war of single cultures, have been voluminously recorded by ethnographers, sometimes with penetrating comments."

"Drama in War" is "a cross-cultural investigation of the psychological significance of drama in war among primitive peoples" and an "examination of dramatic activities associated with war, in a search for insight and understanding."

Several of Dr. Charles' studies in the series dealing with primitive drama have already been published. Her material has been drawn largely from files of the Cross-Cultural Survey in the Institute of Human Relations at Yale University. For the past two years she has been on leave of absence from East Carolina while she studied and did research work at the Jung Institute in Switzerland.

The series of twelve articles presents an interpretation of primitive drama from an educational and psychological point of view and is of significance in the field of ethnography, psychology, anthropology, and drama.

Fresh Run-Offs Scheduled Today; Robbins New Veep

Jay Robbins from Greenville was elected vice-president of the freshman class in the first run-off held Tuesday, October 25. All other candidates who were not eliminated will have to undergo another run-off which is being held today. Those students running today are Charlie Briggs and David Bennett for president; Diana Johnson and Ann Smith for secretary; Mary Lou Parker and Bobby Feet Severn for treasurer; and for S. G. A. representative, Ann Adams and Martha Wilson.

All the candidates in the final runoff will please meet in the ping pong room of the College Union at 4:30 p. m. today.

On Thursday, October 20, the Freshman class held their first election primary. There were 37 candidates running for the five different offices. The polls opened at 9:00 o'clock and closed at 4:35. The votes were counted almost immediately by Ronnie Rose, chairman of the election committee, and two members of his committee. None of the candidates running for their respective offices received enough votes to total a simple majority, thus making a run-off necessary which was held Tuesday, October 25.

Candidates who drew enough votes to participate in the run-off were Tody Thorne, David Bennett, and Charlie Briggs for president; Ann Smith, Rachel Steinbeck, and Diana Johnson for secretary; Bobby Feet Severn, Mary Lou Parker, and Harriette Hagan for treasurer; Ann Adams, Martha Wilson, and Johanna Elizabeth Leuewenburg for S. G. A. representative.

Other candidates who were running were Ronnie Harley Trull, Mike Katsias, Charlie Elgin, and Jim Kohler for president; Lyle Cooper, James H. Causby, Pat Twiford, and Lenora Newton for vice-president; Sylvia Jones, Bee Mendenhall, and Carolyn Massengill for secretary; Dolores Atkins, Jerry Stokes, and Janet Hodges for treasurer; Sylvia Lassiter, Geraldine Smith, Margaret Rose Powell, Linda Perry, Lou Ellen Flowers, Joyce Ellen Kelly, Elaine Head, Mary Jorgan, and Lena Kay McLemore for S.G.A. representative.

East Carolinian Talent Show Appears Next Tuesday Night

One of the annual features, the "Talent Show," sponsored by the East Carolinian, will be presented on Tuesday, November 1, at 8:00 p.m. in Austin auditorium. Plans are now underway for the project which has as its purpose the raising of funds to send staff members to the Columbia Scholastic Press meeting in New York in the spring.

Under the direction of Roy Askew, with Janet Hill and Mary Alice Medry assisting, the Talent Show will include numerous acts, such as impersonations, monologues, and song and dance routines. Freshmen are especially being urged to contact the newspaper office to try out for the show.

Some of the acts include "Seasons in Song" featuring L. E. Alford, O. B. Gilley, Roy Askew, and Bobby Langston; an impersonation by Ben Waters; a monologue by Jackie McDaniel; a hypnotic act by Gus Mayus; dance routines featuring Kay Wagoner, Helen Matthews, and Roy Askew; and a number of other acts featuring Topsy Hayes, Eno Boado, Carolyn Wallace, David Evans, Jeanette Moye, and Billy Arnold.

SGA Probes Student Inactivity On Entertainment Committee

By recommendation of the Executive Council of the college SGA, Donald Umstead, president, designated a volunteer committee of three to investigate the Entertainment Series and the selection policy thereof. Decoma Byrd, junior, and Shirley Phillips, senior, volunteered service and the chairman, Dock Smith, junior, was appointed by Umstead.

The reason for investigation, explained Mr. Umstead, is the lack of apparent student participation in selection of the types of programs presented. Umstead pointed out that although every freshman class has two members who remain, or "follow through" on the Entertainment Committee, there is no record of who as students were active last year except the chairman and one faculty member.

Discussion from the floor disclosed the bewilderment and displeasure of the representative, concerning past and present policies of the committee. Henry Whitener commented in contrast that not half the student body bothered to check their preferences on slips provided last year. Ronnie Rose asked if the suggestions of those few who complied were followed. No answer was supplied.

Decoma Byrd reported that, according to one member of last year's committee, no meeting was called all year. The committee selected at this meeting were instructed to probe the operations of the program series selection group with the possibility of effecting a new selection policy.

Dr. W. E. Marshall, Social Studies department, and Dr. George C. Martin, Geography department, were elected by the body as faculty advisors. Dr. Martin, a former advisor to the organization, was suggested from the chair and Dr. Marshall was nominated from the floor. The Executive Committee presented three recommendations other than the investigations of the entertainment series procedure. Alpha Chapter of Tau Beta Sigma submitted a constitution in application for a seat in the legislature. After a short explanation of the fraternity's purposes was made, the body accepted the Council's recommendation.

A seat was also granted to the Inter-Religious Council unanimously by the legislature upon recommendation of the Executive Council.

O'Brien Edwards was designated by President Umstead to obtain or purchase a United States flag for use at all Student Government meetings.

Eno Boado suggested that the possibility of a better public address system in the dining hall, be referred to a committee. After several rewordings, the motion that a committee investigate improvement of the old system, and for purchase of new equipment emerged and carried. The members of the committee are O'Brien Edwards, Eno Boado, and Billy Sharber.

Mr. Umstead referred the question of Wright Circle's pending improvements to this year's Senior Class president Garland Tuton. Mr. Tuton stated that no information was passed to him from last year's class. Billy Sharber added that Mr. F. D. Duncan accepted the money allotted the project and the responsibility of "seeing it was done." Garland was requested to look into the matter.

TV Class In World Geography Offers Three Hours Credit

Beginning October 31 East Carolina College will offer a television class in World Geography with Dr. Robert E. Cramer of the local geography department conducting the classes. This course, which will carry three quarter hours credit, will be taught over station WNCT-TV, Channel 9, Greenville. These classes will be conducted every afternoon, Monday through Friday, from 3:30 to 4:00 and it will last through January 23, 1956.

The course will be geographical survey of the characteristics and problems of the countries of the world. The approach is through a study of broad regional groups and by individual countries. Numerous maps, charts and illustrations will be used.

The daily television presentations will consist of lectures and demonstrations, as well as use of maps, charts, pictures, slide and motion pictures. The instructor is planning to take advantage of the unique opportunities afforded by television as a medium, and is making use of a great deal of material that will illuminate and vivify the regions and countries discussed, so that the course should be a stimulating experience for the observer.

There will be a final examination and probably a mid-term examination for those seeking college credit. The examinations will consist of discussion questions in which the student will compare, interpret, and analyze some phase of the material studied.

The instructor will welcome questions, comments, and suggestions concerning the course. Members of the audience can address letters to him at the Department of Geography, East Carolina College, Greenville. Those wishing to take the course for academic credit should communicate with Dr. Orval Phillips, Registrar, East Carolina College, Greenville.

Dr. Cramer has been on the staff at East Carolina College for one year, coming to this institution from a position with the United States Government in Washington, D. C. His undergraduate work was taken at Ohio University where he majored in geography and geology. His graduate work was completed at the University of Chicago, one of America's foremost Departments of Geography. Dr. Cramer's experience includes work as a cartographer, aerial photograph interpreter, industrial research analyst, as well as additional college teaching.

Anyone desiring additional information may obtain it by writing to the instructor of the Department of Geography, East Carolina College.

Congratulations

I want to express my appreciation to the students and to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Martinez for having open home at Umstead Hall Tuesday night. The occasion was obviously a grand success and should motivate components of other departments to do likewise. J. D. Hasty

Annual Assembly Of NSA Convenes At Lynchburg, Va.

The annual regional Fall Assembly of the National Student Association is to be held at Lynchburg College this year on December 8-10. The overall theme will be "The Role of the Student in International and U.S. Affairs" with four major topics for discussion: Segregation, the Educational Crisis, the International Crisis, and Personal Freedom.

Plans for this assembly were made up at the Regional Officers Meeting of the Carolina-Virginia chapter at Woman's College, Greensboro, North Carolina. Also discussed at this meeting was the Williamsburg Project, which proposes a foreign student seminar to be given in architecture and American history. The seminar will be held during one of Williamsburg's slack seasons, Christmas or Easter, and will thus provide foreign students with an interesting place to go during their vacations.

Our region is initiating the program and will act as host. It is hoped, however, that soon foreign students throughout the nation will be able to participate. Both of these projects promise to be educational experiences.

Pingel Guest Speaker For Philosopher Meet

Dr. Martha Pingel of the department of English at East Carolina College participated in a program offered at a meeting of the South Atlantic Philosophy of Education Society at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Monday, October 17.

Dr. Pingel spoke on an afternoon panel dealing with the national Teacher Education and Religion Project which is sponsored by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education and is now being carried out at fifteen pilot centers, including East Carolina College. She discussed progress made at East Carolina during three years of work on the project.

Eugene Dawson of Pittsburg, Kansas, national coordinator of the project, was chairman of the discussion. Dr. Franklin McNett of the Woman's College, University of North Carolina, Greensboro, is president of the South Atlantic Philosophy of Education Society.

East Carolina Host To Appalachian Saturday

Bucs Could Break Four-Way Tie For League Second Spot

by Johnny Hudson

After playing on the road for the past two weeks, the Pirates of East Carolina return home this weekend to play their final conference foe of the season. The final loop game will be played against an old rival and the defending North State Champion, Appalachian.

The Apps swept past Emory and Henry 26-0 last Saturday evening while the Pirates came out on the short end of a 35-20 score with East Tennessee. Both teams are out of contention for the conference crown but will be fighting for second place. The teams, on the basis of earlier games, are pretty evenly matched although Appalachian has been given a slight nod by the experts. The Apps have defeated Catawba and Elon in conference tilts while losing to the conference leader, Lenoir Rhyne, and Western Carolina. ECC holds wins over Elon and Western Carolina while their defeats have come at the hands of Lenoir Rhyne and Catawba.

Coaches Jack Boone and Jim Malley are expecting to have their boys keyed up for the game in hopes of reversing a 13-7 setback suffered last year at the hands of the Apps. The Pirates had beaten the Apps the two previous years and all but knocked the Mountaineers out of the crown last year but let seven fumbles slip away to prevent the upset.

ECC Injuries

The team has been working through spirited sessions during the week but contact work has been limited due to the many injuries suffered in the East Tennessee game. Many injuries were reported in the Saturday evening game to such key players as Dick Cherry, Bob Perry, Emo Boado, Bill Helms, Jerry Brooks, Ken Burgess, and Harold O'Kelly. Only Boado is considered definitely out for the Appalachian contest. The speedy halfback received a leg injury and will be out for the season.

Lack of an offensive punch will probably be the main trouble for the Pirates this weekend. Due to the lack of experienced linemen, Boone has not been able to muster a consistent offensive forward wall. The line has shown steady improvement and at times has looked unbeatable. The defensive line is expected to play their usual good game. Before last Saturday night's game with East Tennessee, the Pirate line had yielded only three touchdowns via the ground.

Jim Ollis, an All-Conference candidate, is expected to be the big workhorse at the Apps backfield. Ollis is a scabback runner, and is a dangerous passer, besides being the visitors' leading ground-gainer. Teaming with Ollis in the backfield will be Jimmy Moore at the other half, Jim Kiser at fullback, and Charlie Taylor at quarterback. Spearheading the Apps line will be big Ted Freeman at tackle. Freeman weighs 215 pounds and is considered one of the most vicious blockers in the conference. At the other tackle spot will be Rick Lippard. At end posts it will be Johnny Matthews and Bob Pope. The guard positions will be manned by R. E. Cummings and Hillard Clark. Joe Eller is expected to be the center. Directing the speedy ECC backfield will be Dick Cherry and Milton Collier. Collier, playing behind Little All-American Cherry when the season opened, has come into his own and is now a big man in the Pirates' offense. Gary Mattocks and Bob Perry will probably get the starting nod at half, although Bob Lilley, Dallwyn Suggs, and Robert Gay are slated for plenty of action. Co-Captain Harold O'Kelly or Bob Maynard will be in the fullback spot.

Buc Defense Strong

Big Lou Hallow is expected to anchor the Pirate line from his center position. Hallow, who will soon be closing his college football days, has been the ironman on the Pirate club and is almost a sure-fire bet for All-Conference honors. Paul Popov, Ken Burgess, and Richard Monds will get the call at the guard positions. All three played outstanding roles in the 14-6 upset over Western Carolina. Heading the list of tackles slated for action are Raymond Overton, Charlie Smith, Jerry Brooks and Waverly Chesson. Bill Helms, J. D. Bradford, Ray Pennington, and Bob Conway will be on hand to handle the end positions. This will be Helms' first game in College Stadium since his injury in the second game of the season.

The game is a "must" for the Pirates if they have hopes of a winning season. The locals have won three thus far while losing four and must defeat the Apps and Tampa the following week to break into the win column.

To help earn my way through college, I worked as a lecturer on the sight-seeing buses that take in Boston's many historic sites. On one trip, as we rode around the base of Bunker Hill Monument, I described the battle and pointed out a stone marker where one of the heroes of the Revolution fell mortally wounded. A brisk little old lady passenger strained her neck, looking from the marker to the top of the monument and back again. "Well," she snapped, "that fall would kill anybody!"

Boonemen Downed 35-20 By Rugged East Tennessee

by Bill Boyd

East Carolina suffered a 35 to 20 setback Saturday night at Johnson City, Tennessee, as East Tennessee State College overcame a 13 to 0 deficit in winning the non-conference tilt.

The Pirates' opening tally came as the result of Milton Collier's 49-yard aerial to Emo Boado. Collier's attempt at the extra point was successful. After using a short passing and running attack, East Carolina scored its second touchdown when Harold O'Kelly took Quarterback Dick Cherry's handoff and went over for the four yard marker. Collier's try at the extra point was no good.

East Tennessee broke into the scoring column when Howard Tippet raced around right end for 15 yards to reach the goal line. East Carolina halfback Bobby Perry retaliated against East Tennessee's thrust by racing down the sidelines for 26 yards to paydirt. Cherry's attempt at the conversion was successful.

Lanky end Bob Evans gathered in Quarterback Don Riley's second quarter pass for East Tennessee's second touchdown and the half ended with East Carolina holding a narrow 20 to 14 edge.

During the first half, injuries became Coach Jack Boone's main worry as backs Gary Mattocks, Harold O'Kelly and guard Ken Burgess had to leave the game. The plague of injuries continued to cause a shuffling of the East Carolina lineup as Dick Cherry and Bill Helms were hurt. This cut the strength of the team considerably and East Tennessee wasted no time in taking advantage of the fact.

Emo Boado fumbled the opening

THE CROW'S NEST

by Billy Arnold

It is interesting to note just how wrong people can be when it comes to judging the potentiality of an athletic team.

Sports predicting has become a pretty big thing in modern times, for it touches practically every fan in some way or another. Every fan has probably, at least once, tried his hand at predicting the score of a big football contest; and then, there are those who are always ready to wager on the outcome of a particular battle. Others are just interested.

Anyway, the point I'm trying to put across is that the so-called "experts" of this field have become very big dogs in today's world of sports.

Somebody Goofed

Many of these experts have become pretty good over the years and perhaps register as much as 80 or 90 per cent of their predictions correctly. However, when these boys goof, they usually do a spectacularly complete and thorough job of it. A classic example of this is found right here in our own North State Conference. Pre-season reports by the State's crystal ball gazers indicated that the Christians of Elon College were to be a fire-spitting, hell-for-leather aggregation that could sweep through the loop and ultimately end up with the crown. The mighty Christians were rated highly because of a strong line and speedy offensive attack, led by an elusive halfback named Kerry Richards.

(Let me state here that I am not attempting to take anything away from Richards and his crew. The simple fact is that the Christians DO have a fine team, despite the many factors that would indicate otherwise. In fact, this points out how extremely hazardous the life of an expert can be. Richards has been an outstanding ground-gainer throughout the season and his team has been a hard-fighting squad.)

Who Can Explain It? On paper and in pre-season drills, the Christians DID appear to have the upper hand in this year's Conference action. However, at the present time, the Elon team is resting on the bottom of the league with six defeats under their belts. The Burlington eleven has played a half-dozen games and lost all of them. Adding further humiliation to both the team and forecasters of its greatness is the fact that the squad has yet to score a single point in North State play.

ECC Follows Suit In similar fashion, the Pirates of East Carolina have also done their share of making monkeys of the men who predict. Their up-and-down antics throughout the 1955 season have caused fans and forecasters alike many a headache. Slated to roll over Norfolk Navy in the opening contest, the Bucs barely squeezed in a victory by a single touchdown. Rated on an even basis with West Chester and Catawba, Coach Boone's boys could not measure up.

However, by the time the Elon match came around, the experts had wised up and tagged the Pirates a definite underdog. ECC then drubbed the Christians 13-0 and went on to slap down Western Carolina as well. Last week, the Purple and Gold were rated one touchdown favorites over East Tennessee (the forecasters again reversed their field) and promptly suffered a 35-20 shellacking.

A word of thanks is extended to three freshman reporters now actively working on the East Carolinian sports page. They are Johnny Hudson, Mike Katsias and Bill Boyd.

Browning At Meetings

Dr. Elmer R. Browning, director of the department of business education at East Carolina College, will participate during early November in meetings of business education groups in North Carolina and Georgia.

Bears Hold Top Niche In League Standings; Bucs Tied For Second

East Carolina's Pirates now share the distinction of being in a four-team tie for second place in the North State Conference. The other teams sharing second place are Appalachian, Catawba, and West Carolina. This week's Appalachian game will be of great importance to East Carolina, as it is a contest which may well decide the number two spot and is the last conference game of the season for the Buccaneers.

Appalachian celebrated homecoming with a 26-0 triumph over Emory and Henry, a victory which has left it with the desire to add yet another victory to its list. The big question this week will be whether or not the Pirates can suppress the ambitions of the invaders from Appalachian.

Lenoir Rhyne is firmly entrenched in first place as the conference leader, a position which now seems to be theirs exclusively.
