SGA Studies Possibility Of Benefits And Privileges For Married Students

James Phelps, sophomore, introduced action in the January 18 meeting of S. G. A. rescinding the resolution passed to seek aid for married students here. The bill, moved by Emil Boado, senior, last week provided that a strong committee be appointed to formulate plans permitting the spouses of married students to attend campus activities without charge.

Mr. Phelps presented several facts and examples pertaining to present special-rate policies. He reported that the athletic department now sells season tickets for $5, and that he believed that the entertainment committee might cooperate in providing rates, at least similar to those of the faculty. He said none of the two hundred students, nor any members of the faculty and administration, that he consulted favored the proposed action.

to vote because of lack of information when this issue had been publicized in the paper and at the polls.

Forty Students Make Highest Possible Grades On Courses

Forty students at East Carolina, all North Carolinians, made the highest possible grade on all courses included on their schedule for the fall quarter. This list has just been announced by Dr. Orval L. Phillips, registrar.

and Jimmy Ferrell. A suggestion from O'Brien Edwards that the S.G.A. suggestion box be moved to the post office lobby and set up permanently won him the job of performing this task. Decoma Byrd of the College Union Student Board volunteered help from her group in making posters to announce the location of the box.

Orchestra Group Plans Convention Here This Week

One hundred and twenty-four outstanding high school orchestra players will begin a three-day session January 27th on the campus of East Carolina College. Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert, Head of the Department of Music, will have charge of all arrangements.

Griller String Quartet Appears In McGinnis Auditorium Tonight

Proclaimed Official Quartet Of British Royal Air Force

The world-famous Griller String Quartet, which has been proclaimed the Official String Quartet of the British Royal Air Force, will appear in concert in the McGinnis Auditorium tonight at 8:15. The concert is a part of the regular college entertainment, according to James W. Butler, chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

Final Religious Emphasis Week Activities Set Tonight

Tonight marks the final service of Religious Emphasis Week activities on the campus. The student and faculty assembly in Austin Auditorium at 7:00 p.m. will be led by Dr. Robert Paul Roth, professor of New Testament Theology and Dean of the Graduate School at the Lutheran Southern Seminary in Columbia, South Carolina. The topic to be discussed is "Reconciliation through Christ and the Church."

These firesides, such subjects as "Sex and Marriage," "Faith and-or-Reasons," and "Christianity and Race Relations" were discussed.

Choir Plans Annual Tour In Three States With Sixteen Concerts

Plans have been completed for the annual tour of the East Carolina College Choir. During past years the Choir has performed sixteen concerts at high schools, churches, and colleges throughout North Carolina. This year the tour is being enlarged to include Virginia and South Carolina.

Cities to be visited include Rockingham; Sumter, South Carolina; Columbia, South Carolina; Charlotte; Portsmouth, Virginia, and Virginia Beach. An additional concert will be held at Campbell College and television programs in Charlotte, Columbia and Norfolk are being arranged.

This year's tour will bring the one-hundredth concert given by the East Carolina Choir in three seasons to a total audience of more than 75,000 persons.

All-State Band Clinic Meets On Campus February 3 And 4

The Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic will meet at East Carolina College Friday and Saturday, February 3 and 4. Members of thirty-four bands in high schools throughout the eastern section of the state will play in a concert band organized during the clinic and will receive instruction from experienced teacher-musicians.

Herbert L. Carter of the East Carolina College department of music is chairman of the clinic and is now completing plans for the program. Mr. Carter is director of East Carolina's concert and marching bands.

Students From Seven Counties Participate In Typing Contest

Students of both beginning and advanced typewriting in high schools in seven counties of Eastern North Carolina will participate during this month, February, and March in a series of typewriting contests sponsored by the department of business education at East Carolina College.

Instruction and rehearsal of various sections of the clinic band will be conducted Friday and Saturday under the leadership of ten band directors in high schools of Eastern North Carolina.

New Faculty Group

East Carolina College Research Associates, a new faculty group at the college here, was organized this week with more than a dozen members of the staff as participants.

College Union Student Board Urges Students To Join Committees

The College Union Student Board, formerly known as the Social Committee, announces the establishment of committees. Students are urged and invited to sign up for the committees, which would help with programming and activities at the Recreation Area of the College Union.

Proceeds Of Dance For March Of Dimes

On Monday night, January 30, in Wright Auditorium, the Moose Lodge of Greenville will sponsor a dance on behalf of the March of Dimes drive. Larry Williams' Orchestra will play for the dancing pleasure of what is expected to be a large turnout.

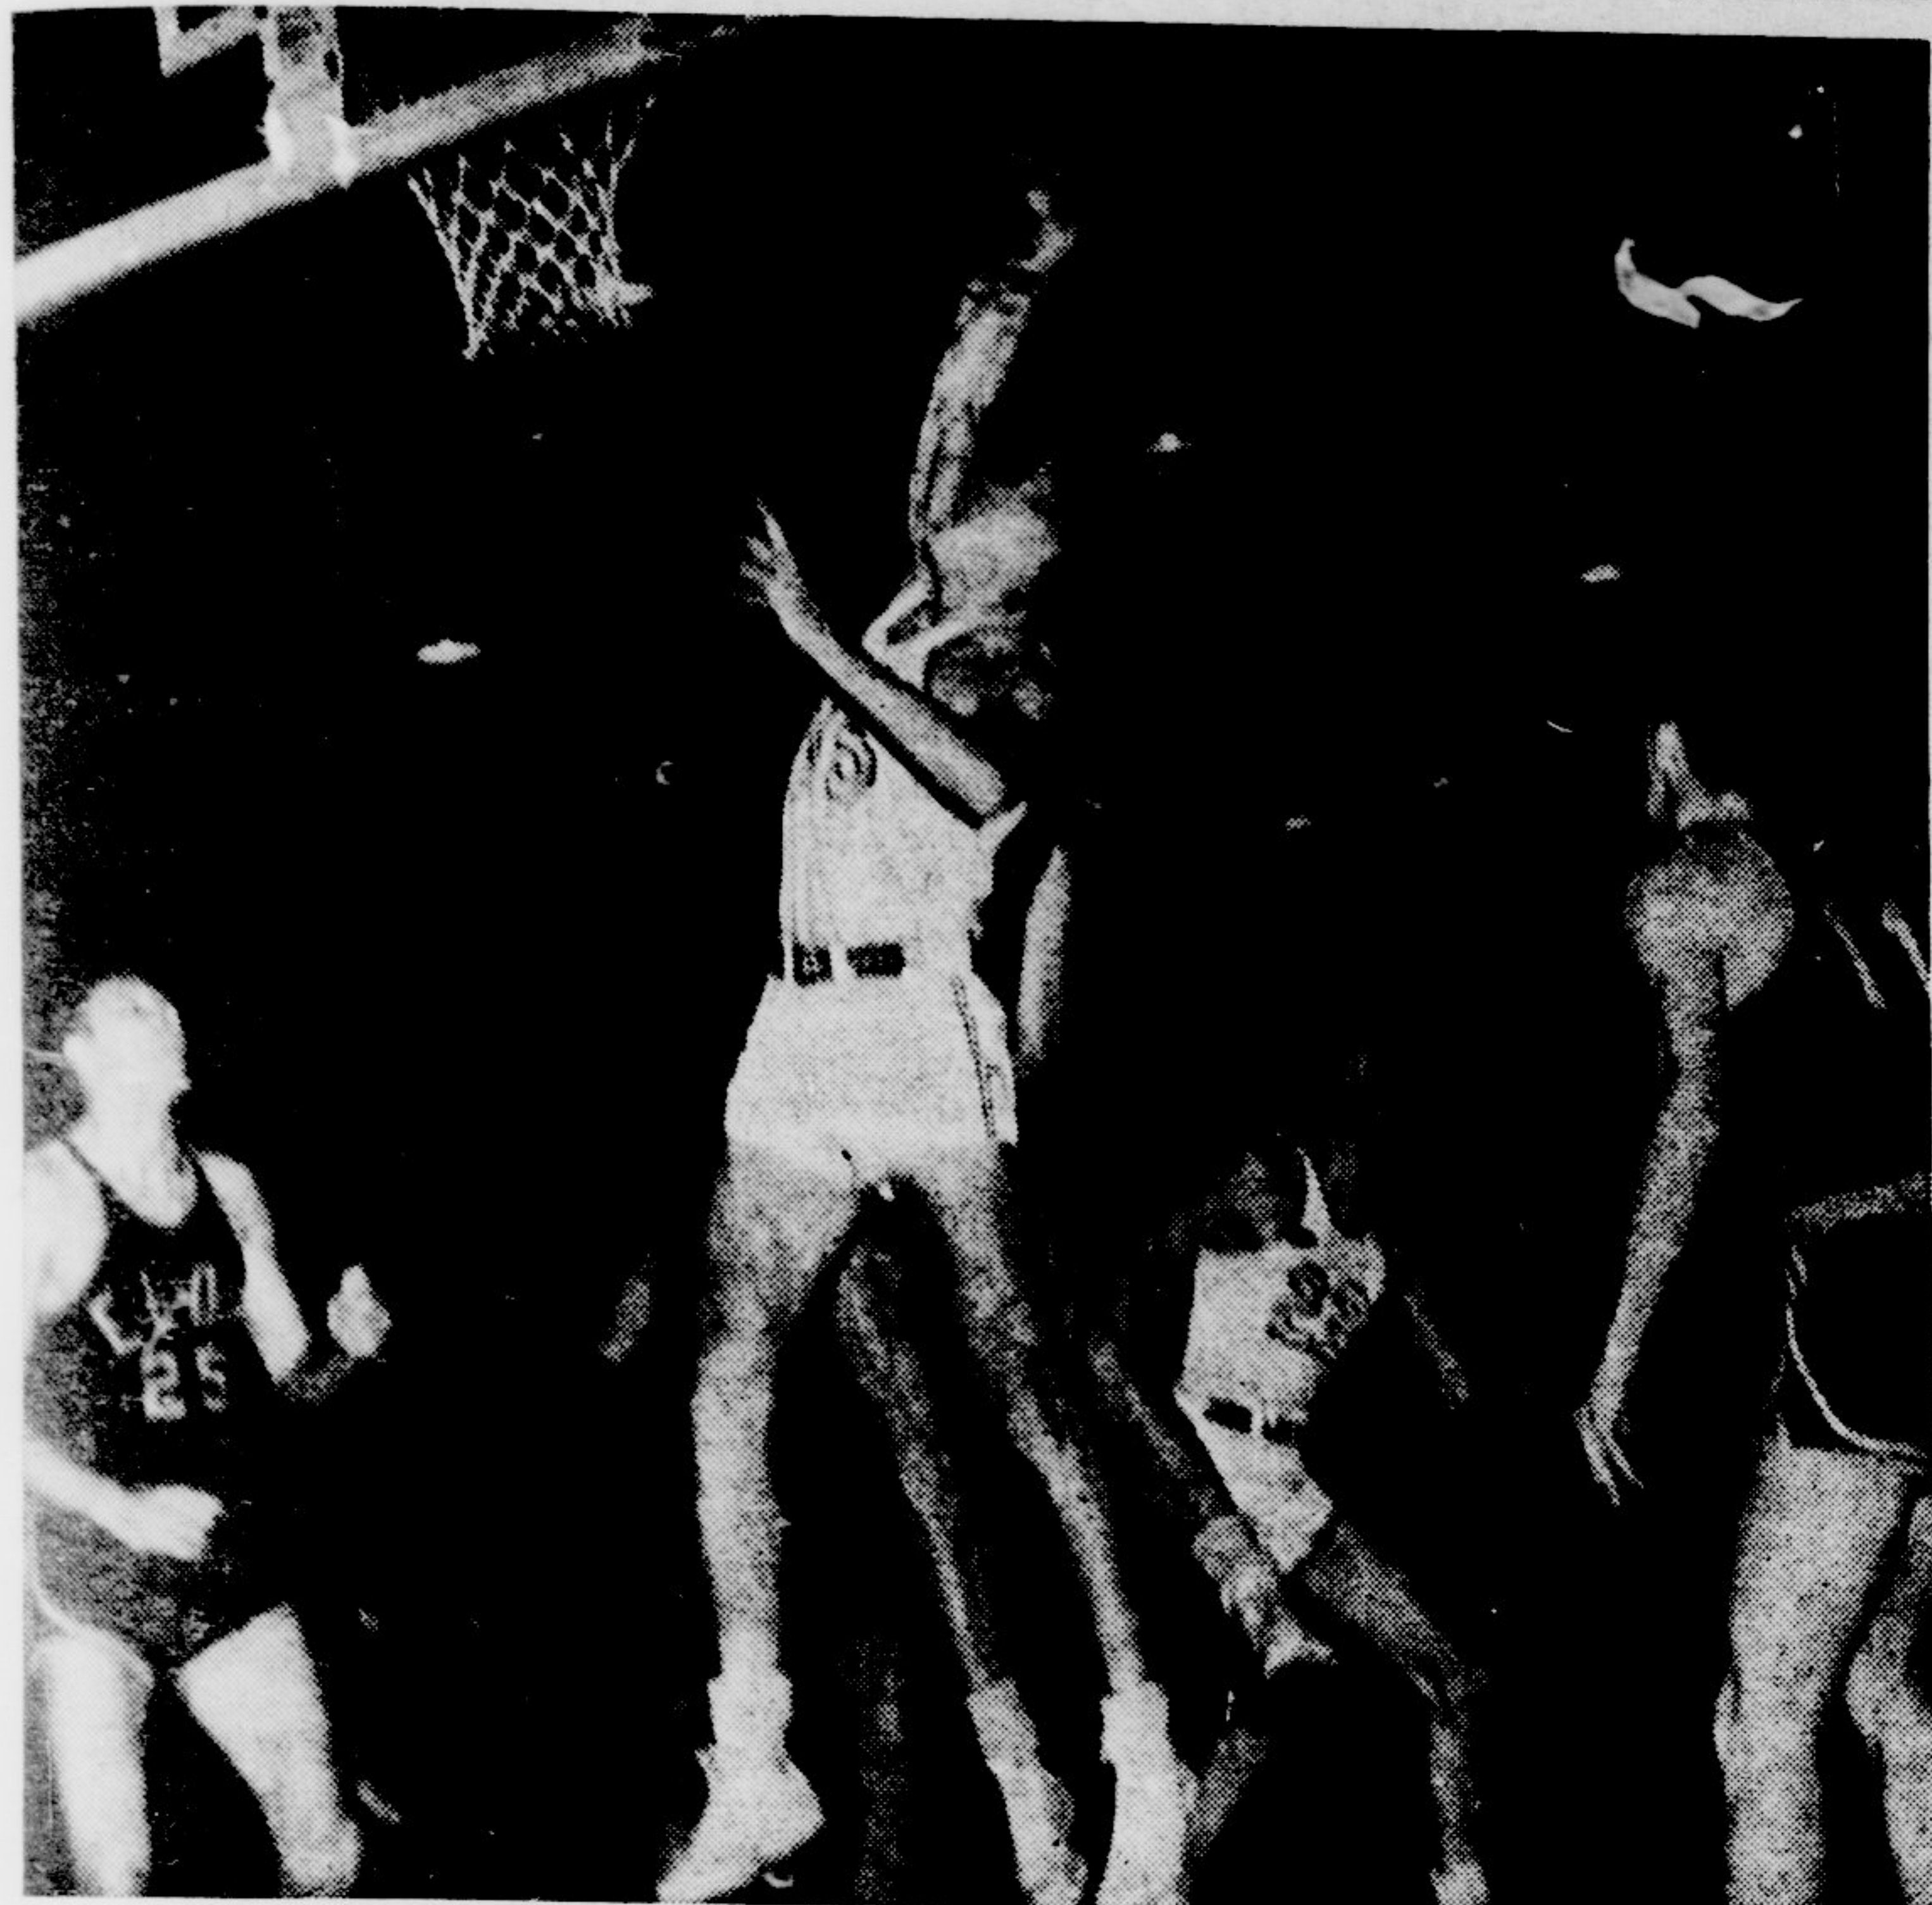

French Examination

Mrs. Marguerite A. Perry of the department of foreign languages at East Carolina College and a committee of public school teachers in this state have completed work on an examination in second-year French to be used as a part of the National French Contest.

Lost And Found

The Lost and Found Department in the College Union is loaded with an accumulation of last and this year's found items—pens, notebooks, glasses, clothing, jewelry, etc.

THE CROW'S NEST

by Billy Arnold

East Carolina's student section has brought about a hot controversy in the past few weeks concerning their conduct at home basketball games.

Outsiders, as well as campus officials and students, have expressed disappointment in the "apparent poor sportsmanship" that our students have shown at recent ballgames. One high officer of the administration showed open dismay earlier this season about the "POOR ELON" cheer that sprang up from the ECC bleachers during the Pirate 105-69 rout over the highly-rated visitors.

Booing Unnecessary? Several tilts this year in Memorial Gymnasium have brought forth jeers and boos from Pirate fans that have been cited by some observers as terrible conduct for a school that supposedly has an enrollment of adults. Officials, interested outsiders, and a few stray students have made frequent remarks that the booing is degrading to our institution and is absolutely unnecessary.

This thing, however, has TWO sides to it.

Perhaps Buccaneer fans have been somewhat demonstrative in their actions at recent home games—possibly in a way that is not entirely pleasing—but, the spectator reactions can not be classified as bad sportsmanship.

Granted, booing is not the most pleasant form of expression in existence. It is, however, a natural means of communication for the spectator. After all, there are only three ways a fan can express himself at an athletic event: He can cheer, he can boo, or he can keep his mouth shut and make no noise at all.

Silent Boo's Best? There are those who would apply the old saying, "if you can't say something nice, don't say anything," to this situation. This suggestion is completely ridiculous. No sane fan is going to cheer happily when his team is receiving a bad shake, and if he remains silent, school spirit would become as extinct as bundling. Booing is as natural to the fan as is cheering, and (unpleasant as it may be) must be accepted as a necessary evil. It is a spectator's rightful privilege to express his likes and dislikes over the proceedings at ballgames. He has paid his money to be entertained, to see a good contest, and if poor officiating or unkind action on the part of an athletic participant threatens to throw a bad light on the evening's battle, he should (and undoubtedly does) voice objection. This in itself is not bad sportsmanship.

Often, spectators act in bad taste, booing for the sake of booing, and without just cause. But it seems unlikely that the arena would be full of these kind of people, and that they would all have the same trouble-making idea at the same precise moment. When a large body of fans reacts violently to something in a contest, it can usually be justified.

It should be noted that many times the boos and jeers are in favor of opposing players, if the latter are the ones receiving an unjust treatment. Prejudice is one thing—we're not discussing that—but the spectator's right to assert himself is another.

We feel that East Carolina fans are fair, capable of judging and performing good behavior, and entitled to a good boo whenever the situation calls for it.

Pirates Favored To Triumph Over Cats For 45th Straight

by Bill Boyd

Coach Howard Porter's quintet will be out to avenge their only league setback tomorrow night when they play host to Western Carolina's unpredictable Catamounts. This "make-or-break" contest, as far as the Bucs are concerned, will be played in Memorial Gymnasium with game time slated for 8 o'clock.

All interests concerning the affair will be aimed at two big things. The first is to see if the Bucs can hold their slim league lead over Elon College and second is the possibility of a 45th victory in Memorial Gym.

James Still Out

East Carolina is in fair shape for the contest after taking it easy game-wise. The last game was with McCrary's Eagles last Thursday night when the Eagles suffered a close 87-77 setback. Western Carolina's last outing was with North Georgia on Monday. The only thing hurting the Portermen at present is the absence of Fred James from the line-up due to a dislocated shoulder. Harold Ingram and Harry Blevins have the inside track on the replacement task and both Ingram and Blevins will see a lot of duty at the guard slot tomorrow night.

The Catamounts put forth a tight defense against the Pirates when the two clashed on the former's home grounds a few weeks ago. Inability to hit from the outer circles led to the Buc defeat, 73-68. Without James to hit from the outside, he big question is, Can ECC break up the tight defensive tactics that will no doubt be used by WCC during the contest?

Bob Bowen, towering center of the Catamounts, led his squad to their earlier win over the Bucs, he hit with 21 markers, and Bowen is definitely the top scoring threat for the visitors.

As usual, Don Harris and J. C. Thomas are expected to lead the way under the basket for the Pirates. Lanky Guy Mendenhall and Nick Nichols, if in top form, should hit in the double figure bracket.

Conference Effects

On the bright side of things, a combination of an Elon defeat and an East Carolina win could put the Bucs far in front of their hard court rivals, but on the dark side of the picture, an Elon win and a Pirate defeat could prove disastrous as far as the Pirates' reign of the North State Conference is concerned.

The Christians boasted an impressive 6-1 mark as of Monday, while ECC presently holds an 8-1 record. Both of these are league records only. Atlantic Christian College is the next nearest competitor for the top spot with a 5-2 mark.

Western Carolina possesses a 5-3 conference won-and-lost record, but always proves to be trouble to the top teams, especially East Carolina. It was the Catamounts who knocked the Pirates out of their bid for the crown last year and they could prove to be giant killers again this year.

With the "jinx" of Memorial Gymnasium again dominating the local spotlight, and the fact that the Buc-WCC tilt is strictly a toss-up, Saturday morning "second guessers" will certainly have something to talk about and will probably start their argumentative conversation when the sound of the buzzer ends tomorrow night's game!

No-Names, Crazylegs Lead Intramurals

Intramural basketball among the boys this season has gotten underway with a bang. The two leagues of action have produced several undefeated squads and quite a number of individual stars.

The No-Names are currently leading the league No. 1, with an impressive 4-0 record, followed closely by the Country Gentlemen and the Comets with 3-0 slates.

In league No. 2, the E.P.O. cagers and the Crazylegs have posted identical 4-0 records to pace the fold. The "Y" and the Grasshoppers take a first second with 3-0 marks.

Enrollment Reaches 2,814

Winter Enrollment Shows Men Students Only Sixteen Behind Women Enrollment

According to Dr. Orval Phillips, registrar, the enrollment for Winter Quarter totals 2,814. Of this figure, 1,399 are men students and 1,415 are women students.

The break-down according to classes is as follows: freshmen—514 men and 532 women, totaling 1,046; sophomores—408 men and 319 women, totaling 727; juniors—215 men and 246 women, totaling 461; seniors—191 men and 218 women, totaling 409.

The total number of full-time students reads 2,661—1,340 men and 1,321 women; while the total number of special students, those taking less than nine hours, attending without credit, etc., reads 153—fifty-nine men and ninety-four women.

Eighteen—twelve men and six women—are enrolled as full-time graduates.

Following is an account of the enrollment according to majors: teaching degree—856 men and 1,097 women, including one man and 347 women in primary education, twenty-one men and 183 women in grammar grade education, and 334 men and 567 women in secondary education; AB degree—345 men and fifty-four women; pre-vocational courses—ninety-six men and thirty-two women; two-year business courses—forty-three men and 137 women.

Enrolled as new students this quarter are 199—126 men and seventy-three women.

'Lucky Me' Plays Saturday Night

'Lucky Me,' a Warner production, will be the free movie that is to be shown Saturday, January 28, at 7:00 p.m. in Austin Auditorium.

This movie is something of a Cinderella story. Doris Day, the heroine, is working in a hotel scullery, when along comes the hero, Robert Cummings. Bob is a famous song writer who is staying at the hotel. Cupid does his job and Prince Charming offers her a Broadway part. The Cupid in all this is Phil Silvers.

Local Fraternity Organizes On East Carolina Campus

Kappa Sigma Nu, a local fraternity and the only one of its type at East Carolina, was founded here October 19, 1955. Its purpose and aim shall be to promote fellowship and mutual trust among its members, to uphold the traditions and ideals of the college, to encourage excellence in scholarship, and to inculcate in its members the highest ideals of Christian manhood and good citizenship.

This fraternity was formed for the purpose of adding to the social life of its members and students of East Carolina College. Members of this fraternity have as a standing project the encouragement of students to remain on campus over the weekends and to provide adequate entertainment therefor.

Membership in the fraternity is open to all regularly enrolled male students who have been at East Carolina for at least one quarter and have a three average. The first pledge class of the fraternity is now being selected. In order to set a precedent of naming their pledge classes after people who have served the school, the members unanimously voted to name the first pledge class the Dr. John D. Messick pledge class.

A special project of the group now getting considerable attention is the sponsoring of a literary magazine composed of writings by students of the college. Other special projects are being planned and will be announced later.

Serving as advisors of the fraternity are Dr. E. W. Hirschberg of the English department and Dr. J. H. Stewart of the Social Studies department. Officers of the Kappa Sigma Nu are Jimmy Phelps, archon; Jack Beaman, treasurer; Dick Newell, secretary; Charlie White, warden; and Gene Hodges, chaplain.

Other members are: Roddy Jones, Harlon Moseley, Harrell Ruffin, Voight Pritchard, Benny Waters, David Lane, James Scott, Bobby Conway, Robert Jackson, Jay Robbins, Jerry Miller, Joe Keen, Steve Rush, Bobby Hunt, Larry Blythe, Billy Cozart and Billy Arnold.

AFROTC Staff Members Named To March Of Dimes Committee

Major Edward J. Maloney, member of the staff of the East Carolina College Air Force ROTC, has been appointed to represent the college as a member of the steering committee in charge of the March of Dimes campaign in Greenville. The 1956 drive for funds in the city is sponsored by members of the local Moose Lodge.

Major Maloney is acting as coordinator of activities on the campus directed toward making the campaign successful. The annual March of Dimes ball will be held in the Wright building at the college Monday, January 30, he states.

He is cooperating with various student groups on the campus in furthering the drive. Members of the Circle K Club, student branch of Kiwanis International, are selling tickets for the ball. Boxes to receive individual contributions have been placed at cash registers in the college cafeterias. Students will collect funds at several college basketball games scheduled in the Memorial Gymnasium on the campus, and other activities are being planned by the East Carolina Student Government Association, according to Major Maloney.

There are two kinds of people at every party: those who want to leave early and those who don't, and the trouble is, they're married to each other.—Central of Georgia Magazine

Grass Roots Opera Performs Before Capacity Audience

An excellent and very entertaining performance of "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini was presented to a capacity crowd in McGinnis Auditorium last Monday night, January 23. The performance given by the members of the Grass Roots Opera was one of outstanding acting as well as singing and was given with tremendous vivacity and feeling.

The story of the opera centered around the colorful and dynamic barber of Seville, Figaro. This was played exceptionally well by William Beck whose plots and schemes finally brought the two lovers, Rosina, played by Diane Holland, and Count Almaviva, played by Raymond McGuire, together in matrimony. However, Figaro did not accomplish this without some forced assistance from Basilio, Rosina's music master played by Alec Dantre, as well as interference from Dr. Bartolo, a physician and guardian of Rosina, played by Robert Bird, whose antics add life and laughter to the entire opera. Also, adding interest to the plot is Bertha, the maid to Dr. Bartolo, played by Catherine Frantzis, who sings a comical ditty about the unfortunate situation in which some people are determined to get married. Also, adding considerably to the plot of the story were the servant to the count, Fiorello, the Guard, and the notary, all of which were played by one actor, David Witherspoon.

The stage settings and scenery were very good but simple, presenting a background that would blend in and not detract from the singers. Also, the pianist did a grand job of accompanying the singers and opera moving. Therefore, a fine performance of singing and acting, which will long be remembered, was definitely presented by the Grass Roots Opera troupe in their appearance here at East Carolina in "The Barber of Seville."

Playhouse Presents 'Blithe Spirit' February 8, 9, 10

"Blithe Spirit" is scheduled for performances February 8, 9 and 10 at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium by the East Carolina Playhouse. This presentation of Noel Coward's comedy hit is the major production of the Playhouse for the winter quarter.

James Corum of Reidsville appears as Condomine, a skeptical novelist. Eugenia Trulove of Wilmington plays the second wife, and Alice Ann Horne of Tabor City portrays the ghost of Condomine's first wife. Margaret Barnes of Raleigh is Madame Arcati who summons the ghosts of Condomine's first wife and creates such a devastating and hilarious situation that from this point the play develops into one rocking comical scene after another.

"Blithe Spirit" opens with Condomine and his second wife are awaiting guests and Madame Arcati. Condomine has arranged a seance to get copy for a new novel. The ghost of his second wife is summoned by their communication with the dead. With the arrival of the ghost of Condomine's second wife creates a triangle with the mortal and the immortal for angles. Later this situation is reversed when the second wife is killed and is also summoned. She returns to the unreal land of ghost paradise. Others chosen are Charles Starnes of Wilmington, Nancy Cooke of Dunn, and Jacqueline Rouse Heston of Havelock.

Jack Cherry, from Washington is director of the play. Dr. Joseph A. Withey of the English Department is the faculty consultant for his production. Tommy Hull and Agnes Markham are technical director and publicity chairman, respectively.

Richard Watts, Jr. of the N. Y. Daily News, describes "Blithe Spirit" as a gay, bright and brilliant farce, filled with debonair laughter, deft, airy humor and bantering spirits... mocking jauntiness. Here in "Blithe Spirit" is Mr. Coward at his most brilliant, telling a merrily macabre comic tale with the lightest and most slyly hilarious of touches. His new work finds him in his best and most characteristic vein since the happy days of "Private Lives." It is Mr. Coward in his most glibful mood.

Cadets Participate In Orientation Flight At Stallings Air Base

On Saturday morning, January 7, fourteen cadets from the AFROTC Detachment here at the college participated in one of the many orientation flights initiated by the Department of Air Science and Tactics. Twice each month the Department flies a proximately the same number cadets, and in that manner presents an opportunity for each of its cadets to fly at least one or twice during the year.

The purpose for these flights is two-fold. One is to allow the cadets to become acquainted with the Air Force base facilities, and in general to get an overall insight into the Air Force through direct experience.

Those cadets who are scheduled to fly are briefed the preceding afternoon on those matters necessary to know when flying in a military aircraft, such as the correct techniques of safety and the general operational procedures of the aircraft and the air base itself.

The next morning the cadets either assemble in front of Austin building to travel with the staff members, or either furnish their own transportation to Stallings Air Base in Kinston. Once inside the base, they assemble at the control tower. While the aircraft are being readied for flight, the cadets are briefed on the instruments in the planes. Then the flights begin, each to last approximately 20 to 30 minutes each.

Bridge Classes Open

The Games Committee of the College Union Student Board announces the opening of a bridge class for those students who wish to learn to play bridge.

Those students who are not at all familiar with bridge—and want to learn it—"from the ground up"—are urged to come Thursday, February 2, 1956, at 4:00 p.m. to the TV Room in the College Union.
