Fourth Social Fraternity Group Organizes Here

New Chapter Plans National Affiliation If Ban Is Lifted

A fourth social fraternity has organized on campus and plans to become affiliated with a national social fraternity Delta Sigma Phi if and when the ban on such organizations is lifted here, spokesmen from the group revealed this week.

The new chapter, Delta Sigma Ro, organized last week while Kenneth Kanapp, fraternity field representative, was visiting here investigating the possibility of organizing chapter affiliates.

Dean of Men James H. Tucker said the representative had talked with him on two occasions during the past few weeks and told him he had "talked with numerous students" interested in becoming affiliated nationally and that his group was ready to go to work.

Sunday Conference

He said the committee now studying national social frats "can't make any decisions and will try to feel out student opinion." As to how this opinion will be reached, he said the committee doesn't know yet.

Commenting on Mr. Kanapp's statement that his group was ready to go to work, Dr. Tucker said he told him the final decision as to whether or not national social fraternities would be allowed here would be left to East Carolina's Board of Trustees, and not students.

Cost

Mr. Kanapp explained that the cost of organizing would include a pledge fee of $2, initiation, $45, national dues, $13 a year, and a $100 charter fee, according to Dr. Tucker.

He estimated that for any worthwhile program the local dues would have to be at least $6 or $7 a month after becoming affiliated, the Dean continued. These figures did not include the cost of a fraternity house, however.

Completed

Delta Sigma Ro officials told the East Carolinian they had already paid their initial dues and that final organization has been completed.

Group Interviews

Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of student teaching and placement, announces that C. E. Merrill, regional Manager in Richmond, Va., of the General Accounting Office will be interviewing accounting graduates on Wednesday, October 24, at 7:00 p. m. for all those interested, fall, winter, and spring graduates.

The General Accounting Office is interested in employing accounting graduates for positions in either the Washington office or one of the 19 regional offices.

Group interviews will be held in room 217 of Joyner Library on October 24.

Chief Marshal

Position Requiring Dignity, Poise

By JANET HILL

A position requiring dignity, poise and dependability is that of Chief Marshal.

Ann Hughes, a junior from Pollockville, was elected chief marshal by a majority vote of the other fifteen marshals after the 1956-57 Student Government elections last spring.

The position of Chief Marshal carries a number of responsibilities which are not required of the other marshals.

It is the duty of the chief marshal to preside at all meetings of the marshals and to be the leader at all events in which she serves. It is her duty to appoint marshals to serve whenever fewer than the whole group are needed and to keep a record of each marshals service in order that all may serve equally.

Committees are appointed by the Chief Marshal, and it is her duty to lead the procession at commencement or to be the marshal of the speakers. Regalia are distributed and collected at the beginning and end of each marshal's term of service.

It is also the duty of the Chief Marshal to contact the advisor whenever necessary, especially if she thinks marshals are needed at an event.

Marshal Functions

It has always been considered quite an honor to be a college marshal. The marshals represent the college at public functions wherever they appear, and also at commencement which is considered to be the most outstanding event in which the marshals participate during the year. The marshals must have and main-

Governor Luther H. Hodges is shown with House Speaker Sam Rayburn, following the Eastern North Carolina Democratic Rally held in Wright Auditorium last Friday night. Mr. Rayburn delivered the main address and Governor Hodges made a brief talk. North Carolina's Senators W. Kerr Scott and Sam Ervin were also present.

Tar Heels Happier Under Democrats--Rayburn

By JIMMY FERRELL And OLIVER WILLIAMS

After a whirlwind of handshaking following his address last Friday night, House Speaker Sam Rayburn sat down for a rest in the Wright lobby and talked with East Carolina reporters about East Carolina's YDC and pretty coeds.

Mr. Democrat termed the local Young Democrats a "wonderful" organization. Club president Bobby Hall and other members met his plane

"Oh, she was something," he explained, speaking of lovely Joed Jonnie Simpson, a member of the YDC. She escorted him to his table on the Wright stage and planted a kiss on his cheek while 1100 Democrats watched amusingly.

Mr. Rayburn said the only way any other baseball team could win the American League pennant would be to place Ike in charge of the Yankee farm system.

He said, too, the boys and girls of this generation "are smarter than those of my generation because they have better opportunities." Another interesting point was his comment, "I'm an old hard-shelled Baptist."

Those attending gave a sounding applause of approval when he said, "North Carolinians are much happier under Democrats than Republicans."

Annual Freshman Plays Set For McGinnis October 10, 11

Two one-act plays will be presented by the East Carolina Players in McGinnis Auditorium at 8 p. m. on October 10 and 11. These are the annual Freshman Plays, with their boasts consisting entirely of freshman talent.

One of the plays is the stage version of W. W. Jacobs' masterpiece in suspense, "The Monkey's Paw." The setting of this drama is a small English village, where Mr. and Mrs. White, an elderly couple, live with their son Herbert, an ambitious employee of the Electric Company.

They are visited one night by Sgt. Major Morris, an old professional soldier, who relates to them the mystic properties of a mummified monkey paw. The paw, he claims, entitles each of its owners to three wishes, each of which, however, brings disastrous results.

The Whites receive his tale with scepticism, but through much haggling and copious draughts of grog, jokingly persuade the old warrior to let them have the gruesome charm.

Mr. White's first wish is for a sum of money, which is granted him via his son's death. With the second wish the terror and suspense mounts to a nervous pitch, and the play ends in one of the most dramatic climaxes in stage history.

Cast

Mr. and Mrs. White are portrayed by Edward Pilkington and Judy Dennis, with Jerry Stokes as their son Herbert. Sgt. Major Morris is played by J. C. Dunn; and Gerald Powell fills the role of Mr. Sampson, representative of the Electric Company.

Also to be presented is "Overtones," in which the "baser selves" of two society women bring about hilarious complications. Nellie Bau-

Twenty-seven of the thirty-one counties invited to attend the rally were represented Friday night. Pitt, Beaufort, and Martin counties led in the sale of tickets.

Among the other dignitaries present were Governor Hodges, Senators Scott and Ervin, Thad Eure, Lindsay C. Warren, Representatives Fountain and Bonner, Thomas J. Pearsall, and local Democratic officials.

One speaker termed the group "as great a group of North Carolinians who could be assembled in any one spot."

Governor Hodges got in the political campaigning by saying that Eisenhower's cabinet was made up of "nine millionaires and a plumber."

Final Plans Being Completed For Big Homecoming

Activities are being planned for the returning alumni who will visit the campus on Homecoming Day, Saturday, October 13. The plans are shaping up under the direction of Alumni Secretary James W. Butler, general chairman, and Jay B. Nichols, student government association chairman. The day will be filled with a series of events in honor of the former students including two dances, a parade, and the annual Homecoming football game with Western Carolina College.

Several thousand students and alumni will participate in the event, according to Mr. Butler. Most of the day will be spent in renewing friendship and attending the parade of events.

The committee has been hard at work during the past few weeks striving to make this the best Homecoming Day yet. Several contracts have been sent out in efforts to secure a top-name band for the Homecoming Dance to be held on Friday.

Homecoming Queen

The Homecoming queen who will be selected from the sponsors is due to be chosen next week. All of the dormitories, fraternities and student groups will select a sponsor and the queen will be chosen from the twenty-two nominees.

President Dock Smith Reveals Tentative Plans For Forming Campus Inter-Fraternity Council

By OLIVER WILLIAMS

Tentative plans for an Inter-Fraternity Council which will "control or govern new fraternities and keep down excessive spending among them" are being formulated by S. G. A. President, Dock Smith.

In releasing plans to the newspaper, President Smith said, "In the event social fraternities become a part of this campus, I would like to suggest an Inter-Fraternity Council which would be composed of the president of each fraternity and maybe two other representatives of each fraternity.

Help Attain National Fraternities
"I think that the plan will help us get national social fraternities in that the student body and administration will be able to see that there is some check over the conduct and expense of the fraternities, and will more readily accept them."

The plans for the council which are in a very early stage would give control and activities of all fraternities to a central council which would also have the power to establish rules and regulations concerning the individual organizations.

Have Power to Suspend

The council would also have the power to suspend a fraternity from active participation in campus activities as an organization if they should prove unworthy as far as conduct is concerned.

Smith also pointed out that another advantage of such a council would be to act as a control over each fraternity trying to outdo the other. As an example, the council could sponsor one big dance a year with each fraternity contributing their part of the expense.

The plan, according to Smith, was drawn up to affect national social fraternities, in the event that they come to the campus, but could be applied to other fraternities as well.

When asked if the proposed plan was similar to any plans now operating on college campuses, Smith stated that he wasn't sure but that it is possible that it might be.

Nothing Definite Yet

It was further stated that there is nothing definite about the plan as of yet, but that these are a few suggestions as a start. No definite plans for presenting the ideas have been formulated, nor has the plan been discussed among the present fraternal groups that are now organizing on campus.

Comments on Fraternity Situation
After releasing the plans for his fraternity council, Smith commented on the present movement for national social fraternities on campus. "The boys," he said, "seem to be working very diligently toward having national social fraternities here. They're a good group of boys and if they work as hard in the future as they're doing now, I can't see how they can be denied something that means as much to them as being members of a national social fraternity."

S. G. A. Approves National Groups
Several weeks ago the Student Government Association, upon the recommendations of the Advisory Committee, voted to go on record of approving national fraternities on campus.

Jeffrey Lynn To Star In Production

By BRYAN HARRISON

Jeffrey Lynn, prominent Hollywood motion picture star, will arrive on campus soon to appear with members of the East Carolina Playhouse in "State of the Union," to be presented at the College Theatre, October 30 through November 2. A Pulitzer Prize winning play, by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, it is the Playmakers' first major production of the year.

It is not definitely known when Lynn will arrive on the campus, but he is expected sometime after the twenty-third of this month.

Lynn, who is also a star on television and the Broadway stage, will portray Grant Matthews in the leading role and will aid with the actual production of the play. Lynn is the only outside member of the cast; the remainder being made up from members of the Playhouse.

Featured in the cast will be Bob Tyndall, Bobbie Harrell, Bill Dixon, and Margaret Starnes. Tommy Hull will act as understudy for Mr. Lynn and will play a minor role. Dr. Witney will direct.

Lynn has enjoyed a great personal success in his first singing role, "Call Me Madam." Lynn is also a serious television actor and has starred in numerous TV shows for all the leading networks.

Versatile

According to critics, Jeffrey has displayed remarkable versatility throughout his acting career. Dr. Withey believes that his superb dramatic ability and years of varied experience will enable him to offer important aspects of stage work to the East Carolina playmakers. His participation in the production will be an unquestionable asset to all connected with the play and to those who attend the performance. Dr. Withey said Lynn was asked to participate in "State of the Union" primarily to stimulate wider and greater active interest in dramatics on the East Carolina campus. Another purpose is to help drama students realize the dedication that goes with their work and to provide an interesting educational experience for those interested in drama, says Dr. Withey.

New Campus Parking System Proves Its Merit

by Claudia Todd

The new system adopted by the traffic committee has proved its merit, administrative officials believe.

ing, whose office handles all parking violations, feels that by designating certain areas for day students, men dormitory students, women dormitor students, and the staff, the committee has made the campus a safer place. He explained, too, that the zoning of parking areas has cut down on much of the traffic between classes.

Mr. Baker said more traffic tickets are being given this year than in the past, pointing out that an average of 25 or 30 tickets are given each day, although the number has dropped since the beginning of the quarter.

Willing To Pay

The housing director stated that the violators know they've done wrong and are usually willing to pay their fines. When a ticket is given, a ten-day period is allowed for payment of the fine. Upon identification of the ticket a letter is written to the offender immediately. If it isn't paid at the end of ten days, steps are taken to prohibit the offender from attending classes.

There are approximately 1150 student cars registered on the campus. The ratio of boys to girls is about three to one, but even with this ratio

CHIEF HARRELL . . . parking violators keep him busy.

Drinking

Ignoring drinking in the stands at home football games has not improved the situation any, so we shall try a different angle.

This is a state-supported institution and one of the by-laws states that drinking alcoholic beverages is prohibited on the campus of such schools. Besides this, the first article of the by-laws of East Carolina concerning the honor code stated in this year's handbook says, "the student shall refrain from gambling or being under the influence of intoxicating beverages while attending the college." We believe that these rules should either be abided by or else revoked.

Criticism of the college has arisen from visiting relatives of students and alumnae and local residents who attended our football games. These visitors can not help but reach certain conclusions when they are surrounded by rambunctious students "feeling their liquor, and interfering with their enjoyment of the game which they have paid their money to see—not to watch "alcoholics incorporated" in action.

These students who are busy passing the bottle around do not have time to think (nor eventually the ability) to be concerned about the welfare of those who are unfortunate enough to have seats in their immediate locality. They have just as much right (if not more so, as they are not ignoring the rules of the college and the common rule of politeness) to be in those seats as the student who is so bored with the game (or says he is suffering from social shyness) that he must have a drink (and then just "one more") to enjoy himself.

If some people would spend less time rationalizing on why they should drink and more time being honest with themselves and others, they might discover that it is possible, to enjoy the companionship of others without being in a state of semi-daze.

The poor "innocent" soul who thinks he has to go along with the crowd and drink himself silly would do well to find a different crowd. He may be impressing the immediate few who are sharing his alcoholic state, but he certainly is impressing in a more lasting and negative manner those who have a strong dislike for drinkers. Those people are his future contacts in the business world, people who are looking for employees of strong character and good taste. A man who shows his liquor is reflecting exceeding bad taste. A man who does not know when and where to drink is showing his lack of intelligence or has forgotten how to use it.

People say that drinking at football games will never be stopped. We say that as long as rules and regulations are not enforced, then that will be the case.

Elvis And Ezra

Elvis Presley, and you just can't keep that boy down, has finally made Dorothy Dix' column. We don't know what kept him so long from doing so, or for that matter why he hasn't given him high office in the State Department along with that other notable unguided missile, John Foster Dulles. The account reads:

"Dear Dorothy Dix: I read about the girl who was in love with James Dean. I also thought I was in love with him, but Elvis Presley came along. I think he is the perfect cure for getting over James Dean.—Alicia.

Dear Alicia: And who, please, is the cure for Elvis Presley?"

Well, Dottie and Alicia, perhaps time, alone, is the best cure for Elvis Presley. His musical and gymnastic hangover can't last but so long. Getting over this hangover, to us oldsters, only seems to be so wickedly protracted because the anguish is so frightful. The poet of the guitar, the Pavlova of the peg-leg pants, has temporarily usurped American poetry with his rendition of that sterling classic:

"You ain't nothing but a hound dog, and you ain't never caught a rabbit yet."

Some dog. Some song. Some Elvis. The old-timer fervently wishes for the return of an Al Jolson or an Eddie Cantor or a Bert Williams.

Elvis, like Extra Benson, may not be really bad sort at heart. The only complaint is merely what they're doing to the entertainment and the farming of the country. But the American people are tough as old hickory. They can outlast both Elvis and Ezra.—The News and Observer.

Jimmy Ferrell Mr. Sam Shook A Lot Of Hands . . . Marilyn Wiggled

I GOT A BIGGER kick out of meeting Mr. Sam last Friday night than seeing Marilyn Monroe wiggle into a New York theater back in 1954. And that was quite a thrill.

MR. DEMOCRAT is an extremely kind, considerate gentleman. Following his address, he shook a lot of hands and made many "small" democrats very happy. If he symbolizes the characteristic of his party, voters should certainly re-elect them in November. Washington needs more leaders like Sam Rayburn.

ADMIREES SWARMED him at the conclusion of the rally. Men as old as Mr. Rayburn sought his autograph and he didn't mind at all.

Photographers kept him busy posing for pictures with Governor Hodges and other dignitaries. Finally he announced solemnly, "Please boys, that's enough. You've got enough." "The light is hurting his eyes," one man explained.

Governor Hodges and the Senators left the stage and had hardly no trouble at all getting through the crowd. They were met by many on the outside, however.

But everybody wanted to meet Mr. Rayburn, and his short walk from the Wright stage out to the lobby was quite a slow process.

I WAS SORRY to see that so many East Carolina students turned down an opportunity to see some of our state's leading political figures as well as Mr. Rayburn. There was plenty of room in the balcony and it was all free.

But as one student explained, "I'd like to go but I haven't seen the Gregory Peck-Jennifer Jones movie that's playing tonight." I hear Austin was pretty well filled.

THE LOCAL Young Democrats Club proved to be a great help in the big rally after selling tickets and acting as ushers, they assisted in cleaning Wright Auditorium Saturday morning and it was a pretty big mess.

Several newspapers, including The News and Observer, carried front page pictures of local YDC members with Mr. Rayburn. President Bobby Hall was awarded the huge banner, "Help Wanted — to Send Benson Back to Utah," which decorated the stage. You'll probably be seeing it on their homecoming float.

THE RALLY was a great experience for me, and I'll never forget Mr. Rayburn. Neither have I forgotten Marilyn Monroe. But I didn't have the pleasure of shaking her hand. It was the night "East of Eden" was being premiered at the Astor Theatre on Broadway — a benefit performance. A group from the East Carolinian staff was in town for the Columbia Scholastic Press Convention.

After learning of the big premier I rushed my way through the hundreds gathered in front of the theater, found standing room in a safety zone, placed a firm grasp on my thin wallet, and waited for what I didn't know was coming.

IT WAS GETTING late and the people pouring from the Cadillac weren't familiar at all. A few people left.

Things perked up a bit when one limousine making its way down the street was suddenly surrounded by a group of screaming teenagers, trying desperately to get a look inside the car. The poor cops didn't have a chance.

"IT MUST BE MARILYN MONROE," two women in front of me cried in a brogue that was definitely flatbush. They turned to me, "It is Marilyn Monroe." I gripped my thin wallet harder. They didn't look to be Madison secretaries.

I blinked my eyes and looked carefully. It was Marilyn Monroe! She was with Milton Greene and some other character spruced up in a tux. The screams came again when she left her car. Monroe tugged at her ermine, slithered up to the TV cameras and offered a big smile. I didn't see the spare tire that this gal in London harped about during the summer. An Associated Press story once called her "loose-hipped." And she is! But I got a bigger kick out of meeting Mr. Sam.

MEANWHILE, BACK at Washington . . . I'm beginning to like this guy Stevenson more and more. He recently called the military draft "a wasteful, inefficient and often unfair" way of maintaining armed force strength. I wonder how he feels about national social fraternities.

Greek Paddles Flashing In The Darkness

By PURVIS BOYETTE

Silver shadows played across the dew dampened pavement. A double set of footprints could be seen leading out of a wooded area, onto the highway, and away into the still darkness. Two miles distant the two print-makers plodded toward Greenville . . . tired to almost exhaustion but happy. Night sounds made weird melodies around them but did not deter their progress.

Car lights rounded the curve in front of the boys, moving with the caution of the night driver. The appearance of the automobile produced a most startling reaction. They suddenly became very animated and moved with a sureness of purpose that surprised the on-looker, especially at such an early hour of the morning.

One wondered if they were convicts or shared some other past that would not make them socially desirable for they dashed toward the road-ditch and flung themselves into it with such gusto that they definitely appeared the escapee. The twosome lay in the dirt hoping not to have been seen but fearing otherwise. The automobile was clearing the ditch-lovers now . . . it was a Ford — a black Ford.

And indeed, it was the red-eyed cyclop with its needle-like tail erected in a starchy salute. It rendered the youths' pounding "hearts to stone. As motion would have it, the boys became as the rocks by the roadside. The monster seemed to sense the two's presence and cat-like moved on past them. Then with the speed of the cunning victor, wheeled around and pinned the pair to the ground in a blaze of white light. They squirmed as if frying but finally rose and addressed the policeman cased in the "cyclop."

Evidently the two boys had trouble convincing the law enforcers of their innocent purpose. During their explanation they used as evidence a sort of paddle which had heretofore gone unnoticed. Finally, the officers laughed, bade the boys good-by, and sped off. The young men smiled, sighed deeply, and somewhat sluggishly resumed their journey toward Greenville.

"The Long Gray Line"

By Kathryn Johnson

Football fans will get an added thrill from the "Long Gray Line," the free movie to be shown in Austin Auditorium October 6.

This technicolor cinemascope picture, starring Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara, is the story of the United States Military Academy at West Point, and of generations of Cadets who have made it famous. Not the least of these is young Dwight Eisenhower, portrayed by permission of the President by Harry Carey, Jr.

The film re-creates one of the most famous football games in sports history—the first game between Army and Notre Dame in 1913. Fans will recognize Los Angeles

Ray toward Greenville. The new obvious paddles became cadence pendulums flashing the Greek letters Phi, Sigma, and Pi back and forth . . . back and forth . . . again into the darkness.

Teacher: "When I say 'I have went' what is wrong with that sentence?" Johnny: "It's wrong; you ain't went yet."

ECC Professor: "And now, Mr. John, what do you know about French syntax?" Male Student: "I didn't know they had to pay for it."

Teacher: "How would you define 'unaware'?" Johnny: "It's the last thing I take off at night."

Professor: "Think carefully, and state the number of tons of copper exported from the United States in any given year." Student (thinking carefully): "The year 1492 — none."

Teacher: "If you had seven apples and I asked you for two, how many would you have left?" Johnny: "Seven."

What Is Education?

By KEN WEST

Many times when people think of an educational institution they place a limited boundary around it and see it only in a few of its many phases. Many times the meaning behind an institution of higher learning is misconstrued as it is thought of in the narrow sense as a place to gain an accumulation of facts and data and information to assist one in making money. Is this the whole of such an institution? Let us see.

In a good educational institution one who seeks knowledge finds that knowledge, and in the process meets friends and gets a better idea of other people from other places through the social aspect. One learns to learn, to help, to lead, to create, to reason, to criticize, to understand. Not only to understand subject matter but people and things and whys and wherefores.

When one thinks about education what does he include? Accumulation of facts? Perfection of a skill? The ability to get along in the world with others? To make money? Yes, these are the things which make up education, not any one alone but all of them and many more. Education is life, the understanding of it and the advancement in it in a desired society. And what is life? Life isn't just the material things; it's also the spiritual and the emotional. Life is the opportunity to reach for happiness and satisfaction. For only the happy person has lived — really lived.

About National Social Frats

Dear Editor,

This letter is in reference to a column in last week's East Carolinian. It seems that some people will continually stand in the way of progress and resist anything that is a change from their customary way of doing things. The reason for this is not readily clear. Perhaps, they have a feeling of insecurity and in their immature thinking they are afraid to try something new. These persons belittle the efforts of those individuals who are working for the change, hoping to discourage them.

In order to annihilate the asinine statement made in last week's East Carolinian about the fraternity situation at E. C. C. being a "joke," I would like to offer the following facts.

First, the S. G. A. has not as yet recognized any fraternity that has not served a period of probation. (However, several clubs, not one half as well organized, have received recognition without going through such a process.)

Second, there is nothing wrong with a local group working toward the goal of someday being affiliated with a national social fraternity.

Third, departmental and honorary fraternities are not intended to serve the same purpose as social fraternities.

Fourth, I would like to assuage these local fraternities to organize an Inter-Fraternity Council. This will give them a better chance of accomplishing their goals. An I. F. C. will promote strength and unity among these fraternities and provide the necessary help and encouragement needed for the newer fraternities to succeed.

Sincerely,
Roddy Jones

Rayburn Has Faith In Modern Youth

by Oliver Williams

Flashing cameras, roving reporters, the band playing "Yellow Rose of Texas", Governor Hodges, Senators Scott and Erwin, and Sam Rayburn were all a part of the gala political banquet, of which, according to a near-empty balcony, many students didn't take advantage.

Among the many things discussed, the faith Mr. Rayburn expressed in American youth was among the most interesting to me.

"Youth today," he said, "are smarter than I am, because they have better facilities and opportunities. They are patriotic enough, clean enough, and their shoulders are broad enough to go forward and carry on our democratic way of life."

Imagine a man of Mr. Rayburn's position, intelligence, and experience expressing such faith in the younger citizens, when others are saying, that along with rock and roll, this younger generation is "going to the dogs?"

Incidentally, I would have liked to ask Mr. Rayburn what he thought of rock and roll, but with all of those political footballs flying, I wouldn't have dared to do much.

In reply to such a question, however, I expected he would have said, "It just came too late for me to get the swing, son."

Evidently, the whole party is taking Eleanor Roosevelt's pre-convention advice of investing their faith in America's youth.

With such a philosophy, the Democratic party is bound to go forward!

According to latest reports, British TV is going American style. In fact, they say an American visitor watching television in Britain might almost think he is still back home.

Besides the already favorite "Liberace," "Superman," and "I Love Lucy" shows which are produced in America, the British are now going strong for "The 64,000-Sixpence Question."

British sponsors are more modest than ours. Sixty-four thousand sixpence are equivalent to only about 4,400 American dollars.

One consoling fact, however, is that what you win in Britain is yours — there's no tax on quiz-show prizes.

Man Of The Hour

by Jan Raby

An eye-catching football rally poster had as its center attraction the current rage, Elvis Presley. Trade press reports that Elvis is due to sell around 10,000,000 records during his first year with RCA Victor, with the young man harvesting a royalty of $400,000, a record-breaking annual payoff for a record artist. Presley co-stars in a film by 20th Century Fox called "Love Me Tender," being released November 1.

[This being the pre-homecoming issue, students might be interested in some ECC historical data. Ragsdale Dorm was named for William H. Ragsdale, superintendent of the schools of Pitt County. He was one of the first superintendents interested in the founding of this college and was instrumental in getting it located in Greenville.

Jarvis Hall was named for Ex-Governor Thomas J. Jarvis, who was on the original steering committee to get the school established and to get it located here. Claude W. Wilson, secretary of the original board, an early faculty member, was slated to honor Wilson Dormitory with his name. The man for whom Fleming Dormitory was named, James L. Fleming, introduced the bill at the state legislature which made the college possible.

[The most modern building on campus, Garrett Dormitory, was named for Ralph Garrett, a Greenville man on the Board of Trustees and chairman of the Building Committee. Cotten was named for Mrs. S. Cotten, prominent in the Women's Club.

Rumors to the contrary, this has always been a coed college. In 1909 there were 104 females and 19 males, then during WW I the boys dropped out and none reappeared until 1926. Eight years later the boys were 107 strong; this was a far cry from 1948 when there were 710 men and 644 women.

[This is the tenth homecoming since 1947. Sometime during the early period of World War II, homecomings were discontinued, but were resumed at the close of the war. Otherwise, homecoming dates back to a fairly early period of East Carolina's history.

Taxicab is an abbreviation of taximeter cab. Taximeter means, literally, a "tax meter," and cab is shortened from cabriolet. Before the days of the automobile, a cabriolet was a light, horse-drawn carriage. The name cabriolet is a French noun formed from the verb cabrioler, which is from Italian capolare, "to caper", "to act like a roebuck," from capriolo, "roebuck", from Latin capreolus, "wild goat", which is from caper, "he-goat, capra, "she-goat". Such a carriage was called a cabriolet because, being light, it bounded on a rough road. (seems like those cabs still do)

Dick Cherry Resigns From School Monday

Family Illness Given As Cause Of Departure

Dick Cherry, East Carolina's Little All-American, All-State and All North State Conference quarterback, has officially dropped out of school because of "problems at home."

The sandy-haired senior from Washington, who has been East Carolina's regular quarterback since his first year of enrollment four seasons ago, and who has been the most publicized athlete in the school's history, has returned to his home town.

Cherry was unavailable for comment when the news was released, however, he told reporters earlier that he had been thinking about making the move for some time.

Coach Jack Boone, who will now have to search for a capable man to take the coveted "Bomber's" place in the lineup this season, has made it plain that Cherry's dropping out of school had nothing to do with football.

"He's been under a terrific strain for a long time," Boone said. "He is and has been a worried boy."

Home Problems
Cherry's problems are of a serious nature and are too personal to be delved into for publication. However, in brief, it is known that Dick's parents are both suffering from illness and unable to carry on the family work. The Cherrys operate a furniture establishment.

Dick Cherry

Boone said further that Cherry hasn't been able to concentrate on football for some time and thus has not been in top shape. "He played good ball in our opener against Norfolk Navy, even in his confused condition," Boone stated.

The coach expressed his sorrow at losing Cherry in this way, "Any coach would be sorry to lose a player of Cherry's talent and reputation. He has been an outstanding performer for East Carolina for the greater part of four years and may well be one of the school's greatest athletes. Much of our football strength has been built around him as a triple threat quarterback."

Stepping into the Washington boy's shoes at that slot will probably be Gary Mattocks, who played the major portion of the Catawba contest as quarterback. Mattocks, too, is a triple threat with three year's experience.

Also, Boone will have an able performer in Ralph Zehring. Newcomers who are in position to run at quarterback are Billy Skeeter, of Norfolk, George Turner and Stuart Holland.

Intramural Big Wheels

ON COUNCIL—Bucky Monroe and Bobby Floyd, officials on the newly formed Intramural council, discuss plans for the 1956 intramural tag football program, which got underway Wednesday afternoon. The new athletic program will include basketball, softball and volley ball.

Council To Establish Organized Intramurals

An organized effort to bring a substantial intramural sports program to East Carolina has been put into effect and will begin next week with regular tag football contests.

For the past several years, intramural sports have been somewhat of a haphazard thing at ECC. Problems of officials, players, equipment and other details have caused dissatisfaction among those connected with the programs. This, according to student supervisor Lem Cox, will be done away with in 1956, '57.

In the new set-up, a council has been arranged, consisting of Bucky Monroe, President; Fred Floyd, Vice-President; Ronnie Davon, Secretary and Treasurer. This council will preside over all intramural athletics, carry out the details and make rules.

All clubs, fraternities, or individual groups who wish to take part in intramural athletics this year, must contact the council and must be willing to sponsor teams in three of the four intramural sports offered. After paying an entrance fee of $5.00, if the club does participate in at least three of the sports, $3.00 will be refunded at the end of the year.

The sports offered are football, basketball, softball, tennis.

A point system will be observed, whereby each team in a particular sport will receive points to its position in the standings at the end of each season. Then, at the end of the full year, the club, fraternity, or group which sponsors the team with the most points will win a trophy.

Bucs At Elon This Saturday

This Saturday night, the East Carolina gridders, minus Dick Cherry, will travel to Burlington to tangle with Elon's highly-rated Christians. Elon, which has posted two impressive wins over Newport News Apprentice School and Appalachian, will be waiting for the Bucs with open arms, 21 lettermen and a strong offensive attack led by Kerry Richards.

Gary Mattocks

Richards is the leading halfback on the Christian squad and sparked the ground attack for them this season.

Cherry Is Gone

With Cherry in the line-up, East Carolina was expected to be a touch-down underdog to the up-and-coming Elon. Now, odds are expected to be even more lopsided against the Bucs, due to Cherry's resignation from school.

Gary Mattocks, senior, is expected to handle quarterback duties, as he did last week. He will command the team, do most of the passing and one of the kicking. Behind Mattocks, Ralph Zehring, George Turner and Billy Skeeter, are ranked.

Reports have it that Charlie Smith, injured two weeks ago against Stetson, will probably be back in the Pirate lineup at tackle. Bucky Dennis, who saw action against Catawba, will also be in at either a guard or tackle post. Bull Overton and Larry Howell will also work tackle positions, and Charlie Hoover, Ken Burgess and Dick Mondis will be guards. Other linemen are expected to be Billy Helms, Ray Pennington, Bobby Derring, Paul Popov, Joe Guess, Ruel Edwards and Algy Faircloth.

Elon Line Thick

Elon's big forward wall is thick with reserves and is expected to give ECC trouble in depth. Lyn Newcomb, Glenn Varney, J. B. Vaughn and Pat Catasso are the big guns in the front wall positions.

Coach Jack Boone's team is rated approximately a three-touchdown underdog to the Elon crew.

Ever since a sightless passenger told him of the publication sixteen years ago, Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, head of Eastern Air Lines, has provided a copy of Reader's Digest in Braille for every blind person boarding one of the company's planes.

Catawba Takes Close 23-13 Victory From Buccaneers

East Carolina's Pirates met the visiting Indians of Catawba in College Stadium in the conference opener for both elevens and came out on the short end of a 23-13 score.

The first half found the Pirate gridiron machine well oiled as they pierced the beefy forward wall of the visitors for a 13-0 half time lead. Quarterback Gary Mattocks' star shined brightly as he directed the sharp Pirate offense. Bobby Perry, the fleet halfback, collaborated with Mattocks on a 71-yard scoring play and sped 14 yards for the other tally. Larry Howell accounted for the lone conversion attempt.

Enraged by the fine showing of the home aggregation, the visitors began the second half by a bruising display of ground offense. The heralded line of Coach Clyde Biggers used its weight to turn the tide of battle; when the smoke had cleared, the Indians of Catawba had emerged the victors by the score of 23-13.

Even though the line was outweighed, it gave a splendid showing during the first half. Among the stalwarts were "Horse" Howell, Charles Hoover, and Ken Burgess.

Ping Pong Play To Begin Soon

A ping pong tournament, sponsored by the games committee of the College Union Student Board, is scheduled for October 8th.

There will be no charge for the contest, and anyone interested may participate. Union officials have stated that all persons interested must sign up at the Union before October 6th.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners.

Sticklers!

HERE'S A STICKLER!
WHAT IS A JAIL AT LIGHT-UP TIME?
(SEE PARAGRAPH BELOW)

IF YOU HAVE recently become a smoker (duffer puffer), ask any old-hand Lucky smoker (prudent student) why he settled on Luckies. Bet anything he says they taste better. You see, Luckies' fine, light, naturally good-tasting tobacco is TOASTED to taste even better... cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, when it's light-up time, light up a Lucky. You'll say it's the best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked. Okay—what is a jail at light-up time? Answer: Smoky Pockey. Isn't that criminal?

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

DON'T JUST STAND THERE... STICKLE! MAKE $25

Sticklers are simple riddles with two-word rhyming answers. Both words must have the same number of syllables. (No drawings, please!) We'll shell out $25 for all we use—and for hundreds that never see print. So send stacks of 'em with your name, address, college and class to Happy-Joe-Lucky, Box 67A, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Phi Sigma Pi Initiates Eight Men Students

Eight men students were formally initiated into the Tau Chapter of Phi Sigma Pi, national honorary education fraternity, at ceremonies held last Thursday night in the private dining hall of the Old Town Inn Restaurant.

New members include Jesse Beaman, Wendell; Warren M. Browning, Washington; Daniel R. Godfrey, Lynchaven, Virginia; Wallace Lee Giles, Raleigh; Malcolm Rhodes, Jacksonville; Eugene C. Crawford, Rockingham; Purvis E. Boyette, Raleigh; and Oliver Williams, Rocky Mount.

Phi Sigma Pi is one of the oldest honorary male fraternities on campus. To become a member, a student must maintain a "B" average and show outstanding qualities of leadership and fellowship.

Horace Rose, a senior from Richmond, Virginia, heads the fraternity this year. Other officers include Mack Edmondson vice-president; Lloyd Bray, secretary; Eddie Dennis, assistant secretary; Frankie Keaton, treasurer; Glenn Rose, sergeant-at-arms; and Ed Outland, historian. Dr. Richard Todd, of the Social Studies department, serves as advisor to the group.

The fraternity is already formulating plans for the annual Sweetheart Ball which will be held during the winter quarter.

NOTEBOOK

Other Democrats said Ike has earned, since the campaigning started, that he is no longer a general. He has gotten down from his horse and found out that he, as well as the other Republicans, will have to run to beat the Democrats in November," Mr. Rayburn commented.

The Speaker said he knew Ike was a good man because "he was born in the district that I represent in Congress."
"The people said he was a good baby and a good neighbor," he chuckled, "but he moved away to Kansas and became a Republican."
"He's also a good general," Mr. Sam continued. "He was made great by two Democratic presidents."

Mr. Rayburn, who is a bachelor, has been Speaker of the House longer than any other person.
In explaining the Republican theory of trying to create wealth at the high levels (big business) and let it trickle down to the people, Mr. Rayburn said, "None of it has ever trickled down to me."

The 1190 Democrats present at the rally were hoping to raise at least $10,000 above expenses which will go directly to the party.

MARSHALS

tain an average of not less than "B". They are elected by a vote of the student body on the basis of dignity and personality. They are required to attend rehearsals for commencement and they cannot participate in any other activity during commencement.
Candidates for marshal must agree to buy whatever type dress the office requires. This attire is usually a long white evening dress for formal occasions; a white street dress agreed upon by the group for commencement; and a dark suit for informal activities.

Marshal Advisor
Advisor for the marshals this year is Miss Cynthia Mendenhall who is taking over the duties of Miss Elizabeth Walker who has served as advisor to the marshals for a number of years.

This year's marshals include Ann Hughes, Chief Marshal, Pollockville; Katherine Dismuke, Burlington; Betty Jo Butts, Angier; Racheal Lanz, Greenville; Janet Hill, Elizabeth City; Marcia Forbes, Farmville; Paige Lilley, Gatesville; Dot Laughlinhouse, Dunn; Jackie McDaniel, Fayetteville; Jerry McDaniel, Fayetteville; Jonnie Simpson, Greenville; Suzanne Terry, Greenville; Ann Tucker, Monroe; Janet Fletcher, Elizabeth City; Peggy Spruill, Merritt; and Elaine Smith, Deep Run. Alternate marshals are Dot Branch, Greenville, and Marie Vines, Arlington, Va.

E. C. Radio License Approved Except For Call Letters

The Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D. C., has granted East Carolina College's application for a 3,000-watt F. M. non-commercial educational radio broadcasting station at Joyner Memorial Library on the college campus.

Librarian Wendell C. Smiley said the transmitting tower will be on top of the library building and 150 feet above ground. The tower and studio are expected to be ready for operation in about 90 days. The application requested the call letters WFOC, but these letters are already in use. The college is to forward five preferred call letters to the commission for approval.

Mr. Smiley said the college broadcasting station will broaden the scope of East Carolina's facilities. The station will offer to the radio public musical programs and all college events. He said the radio station will make available to the general public college activities and special events and render a public service in education.

TRAFFIC

He gave as a reason the fact that the girls' parking areas are more favorably located and there is less excuse for their getting a ticket.

Many students are still complaining that there aren't enough parking spaces, according to Mr. Baker. But he was quick to point out that the parking lot near Umstead usually isn't filled and that men don't usually can always park in front of the gym which is hardly being used at the present time.

Money
Where does the money taken in for fines go? F. D. Duncan, college business manager, explained that some of the money from fines is used for erecting signs in the parking areas.

A sum of around $350 has been spent for pipe and signs, and this doesn't include labor costs. More of this money may be used to hard-surface the parking lot near Umstead, Mr. Duncan said.

"The money you pay in parking fines is used for your safety," Mr. Baker commented, "this is the main reason for the new system."

The Collegians, featuring vocalist Doty Wiley, will play at the dance Friday night at 8 p. m. sponsored by Phi Kappa Alpha. The dance is semi-formal.

The Circle K Variety Show will be held for the last time tonight in Austin Auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Messick Studies TV IN Teaching At NY College

Dr. J. D. Messick, at the request of the Director of Higher Education, recently visited Montclair State Teachers College, New Jersey, and New York University to study closed circuit television in teaching. Television is being used in these two colleges as well as at Penn State, and is being found a very effective method of teaching.

The Board of Higher Education is studying closed-circuit television with a view to recommending that the State install such a system in one of the state-supported institutions. East Carolina already has a good bit of the equipment needed which would cut down the initial outlay, to some extent. No action has been taken, as yet, Dr. Messick says.

Handbook Committee Offers Suggestions For Next Year's Book

By Elizabeth Hylton
During the second meeting of the Student Government Association, Rachael Lang gave a report on the '56-'57 Handbook. Rachael had several suggestions for improving the handbook and for aiding the handbook committee for the coming year. She suggested that the chairman be appointed early in the year, that fewer members be appointed to the committee, that each organization turn in the list of their new officers during the spring quarter, that the handbook be completed during the summer in order that they might be sent to the freshmen before school starts, that all constitutional changes be reported, and that the S. G. A. Constitution be kept up to date and available for use.

Freddie James was appointed by President Dock Smith to arrange for a dance after the next home football game. Robert Forrest, Treasurer of the S. G. A., reported that a bid had been made for the old S. G. A. lounge furniture; he was in turn appointed to be in charge of selling the furniture at a reasonable price.

The presidents of the classes and organizations were asked to work as a committee to deal with funds given to East Carolina College by the Danforth Foundation. This committee was asked to meet Thursday afternoon to study the situation.

Methodists Discuss Summer Experiences

The Women's Recreation Association held its first regular meeting Thursday night, September 27, 1956, at 6:30 in the gym.

New members were welcomed into the organization by President Janie Stallings.

Plans were made for a cook-out which was held Wednesday afternoon at the gym fireplace.
A committee was appointed to work on the WRA homecoming float. The possibility of having an evening of dancing and inviting the Varsity Club was discussed, and a group was appointed to investigate. Members interested in playing the club's fall sports, tennis and volleyball, signed up on a team. Any girl who wishes to participate in either sport should contact one of the club members. Those interested do not have to belong to the WRA.

Officers for the '56-'57 term are: President: Janie Stallings; Vice-President: Jo Evans; Secretary: Sylvia Beasley; Treasurer: Ann Wilson; East Carolinian Reporter: Raye Winstead; Buccaneer Reporter: Mary Lou Wyrick; Publicity Chairman: Peggy Butler; Awards Chairman: Melba Lucas; and Historian: Faye Neal.

This year, several of the Methodist Students gave their summer to the Methodist Church for service. As an outgrowth of this, the Sunday night vesper program for the month of October will be on the topic "Spiritual Growth Through Summer Service."

Lem Cox, worked at a Workcamp in the Rio Grande Valley. This project is sponsored by the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church, and is especially designed for work with the Mexican people, in helping them build up their Methodist Churches.

Three of the people who worked this summer went on Caravans in the United States. They trained at Carritt College in Nashville, Tenn., which is a Methodist Graduate School for Christian workers, and one of the four training centers for Caravan work in the United States. Ralph Schumaker went on a Drama Caravan which toured the Southeastern United States. This caravan stressed the importance of drama as an active part of the church program. Letty De Loatch went on a Youth Caravan to Alabama, where she worked with rural churches in setting up a better youth program for the church. Joann Ashley also went on a Youth Caravan, to W. Kentucky and Tennessee, where she worked with the Methodist Youth Fellowships of six churches. The Youth Caravan program is sponsored by the Board of Education of the Methodist Church, and as an active part of the nation-wide Methodist program, in which young people are given a chance to learn what type of work they will be doing, should they decide to go into full time Christian service.

It is the hope of the Methodist Student Center that these programs will give students some idea of the type of work offered during the summer.

THE DISCIPLES STUDENT FELLOWSHIP
The Disciple Student Fellowship meets every Sunday evening at 6 p. m. in the educational building at the Eight Street Christian Church. The purpose of the D. S. F. is to have programs that will be helpful to students in strengthening their spiritual lives on the campus of East Carolina.

On September 23, at the last fellowship meeting, they elected new officers. They are: President, Nancy Harris; Vice-Presidents, Mary Hall and Betty Lou Griffin; Secretary, Jinnell Whaley; Treasurer, Peggy Jackson; and representative for the Inter-Religious Council Joyce Gwaltney.

All students on the campus are cordially invited to attend the fellowship every Sunday evening at 6 p. m. at the Eight Street Christian Church.

There will be a supper-business meeting next Tuesday, Oct. 9, for all members of Gamma Theta Upsilon Fraternity at Respass James Restaurant.
Besides the business meeting the program will include an address by Raquel Cordier of Argentina who will speak on her home country and a short movie dealing with rice production in Japan. All members are urged to be present to finish plans for the Homecoming Parade float and those who are coming should sign up no later than 1:00 p. m. October 9.
