East Carolina College

Summer School Issue

Greenville, N. C., Thursday, July 25, 1957

Number 4

East Carolinian staff members for the second session of summer school are: Carole Williams, Linda Perry, Janet Hill, Dr. Wolf, Peggy Stewart, Sylvia Jones, Lois Hunt, and Carolyn Waters.

The staff has adopted two quotes which seem to fit the occasion pretty well: "Don't be afraid to be different. Your suggestion may be the best one." and "Remember your work is important . . . or you wouldn't be here."

Library Staff Has Turnover

Three new additions to the Library staff will begin in the fall, it was announced by the administration.

Taking over as new Circulation Librarian will be Mr. Gene Lanier, a native of Hillsboro, with a B.S. from East Carolina and a M.S. in Library Science from the University of North Carolina.

Mr. Charles T. Laughler, who has held the position of Circulation Librarian this past year and of Periodical Librarian for two years previous to that, will leave East Carolina at the end of this summer school session. He plans to attend Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio, to complete work on his Ph.D. in American culture.

Two other persons will become members of the Library Staff at the beginning of the fall quarter. Miss Bernie Wilder of Nashville who obtained her A.B. and M.A. from ECC has been school librarian of West Edgewood School near Rocky Mount. She will work as an assistant in both the catalogue and order departments.

As fulltime assistant to Miss Walker, the catalogue department will also acquire Mrs. Ruth R. Prince, of Knightdale, N. C., wife of Dr. J. Roy Prince, who will join the English and Foreign Language departments in the fall. Mrs. Prince received her A.B. from Meredith College and her B.L.S. from Millsaps College, Jackson, Mississippi.

Miss Dorothy Brock, of Rocky Mount, is here temporarily, working in the Catalogue and Circulation Departments during the second summer school session. In the fall she will return to Benvenue High School in Nash County where she will teach English and serve as Librarian in the new library there.

Enrollment Increases

Summer school enrollment seems to be increasing each year. Dr. Phillips announced that this summer the number has passed last summer by 13-15%. The many workshops and camps have helped to boost the figures up for the past few years.

With the heat and other inconveniences of the summer, East Carolina might be proud to have surpassed its own former records.

Book Exhibit Shown

Junior Library Books were on exhibit for the second time this summer in Joyner Library, last week. The 550 new books made up the selection as made for schools and libraries by twenty-five publishing companies.

The assistant Librarian, Miss Mildred D. Southwick, was in charge of the display. Thirty-three different subject categories were covered for all grades from Kindergarten through High School. A graded and annotated catalogue of the exhibit was available for free distribution to teachers, librarians and other people who were interested.

The exhibit was strictly promotional and no orders were taken. The sole purpose of the project was to give those unfamiliar with the suggested books in this area a chance to see the actual books and obtain a catalogue from which to order.

Music Camp Convenes Here

Climaxing two weeks of musical drills, the 1957 Summer Music Camp will pause in review to afternoon at 4:30 p. m. at the Sylvan Theatre which is located on the far side of Garrett dorm.

The Camp which began July 14 and will continue until July 27 is composed of a faculty of 33 and workshops of three bands, and orchestra, majorettes and drum major, and piano. Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthebert, head of the ECC Music Department, is Camp Director with Herbert Carter, also of the ECC Music Department, as Director of Bands. The three bands are under the direction of James Hall of Kinston, Edward Benson of Roanoke Rapids, and W. T. Hearne of Henderson, N. C. Camp Piano Director is Dr. Robert Carter of ECC.

The culmination of this summer's work for the fourth annual high school student music camp will be seen and heard in the Gala Concert to which the public is invited. The program will consist of varied musical selections by the bands, the orchestra, and chorus, and will feature as a fi-

Marcia Robie Appears Here

Marcia Robie, appearing in Austin Auditorium at East Carolina College on Thursday, August 1, presents in her character portraits entitled "Laughter With the Ladies" a series of events drawn from people and their problems.

An accomplished comedienne, Miss Robie actively participated in dramatic projects during her college years at the University of Connecticut, later attending the Trapaghan School of Design in New York, and turning her interest to the theatre.

Miss Robie has appeared in many productions of summer stock at various theatres in the East and has had many guest appearances on television.

Miss Robie's program is unique in that she writes, produces and costumes her own shows. And, suitably enough, they are known from New England to Minnesota under the title of "Laughter With the Ladies"—a new series of which appears each year, necessitated by the fact that she generally plays a number of repeat dates during the season.

Her personal life is a quiet one—devoted to her small son, Cricket, now 10 years old. She is active in Community Theatre projects, radio and television programs, and an almost full-scale schedule of personal appearances before women's clubs, colleges, and other groups over the country.

The appearance of Miss Robie at East Carolina is under the management of the ECC Entertainment Committee, and the public is invited attendance at this feature.

nale the Fred Waring arrangement of the "Holy City" for orchestra and chorus. Also on the program, there will be an exhibition by the drum majors and majorettes.

Student Government Sponsors Summer Dance

The Miss Summer School election will be held July 29 as a campus-wide project of the Student Government Association. The winner of the election will be honored at the dance to follow in Wright Auditorium July 31. Miss Summer School will be presented at the dance by Freddie James, president of the SGA.

Les Elgart, one of the top orchestra leaders of the year, and his orchestra will play for the gala occasion. Recent recorded releases done by the orchestra include two albums, "Sophisticated Swing" and "Just One More Dance", and numerous single records, such as "Dream", "Good-night Sweetheart", and "East is East".

Les got his start in the big time as a trumpet player when he won an audition for Bunny Berigan along with the title "The Trumpet Player's Trumpet Player". After a year with Berigan's band, Les was a featured trumpet player with some of the foremost bands in the country, such as those of Hal McIntyre, Charlie Spivak, Harry James, Woody Herman, and Billy Butterfield. His professional playing was interrupted when he joined the U. S. Navy; but as soon as he came out, he went to Hollywood for a year and then came back East to play on radio for CBS.

About this time, Les got together with his original band, including such personalities as Ralph Flanagan, Nelson Riddle, and vocalist Lisa Kirk. Although his band was very popular, a recording ban in 1947 forced him to disband. In 1953, he reassembled an orchestra and created his own band style, Sophisticated Swing, which is modern dance music.

Scholarships Given

Approximately $2,100,000 is being held in trust funds by the AAUW Fellowship Program and an additional $250,000 was sent in last year by members; the purpose to encourage women in creative scholarly work and to help them acquire training for effective professional service.

The American Association of University Women has undertaken the Fellowship Program for a period of over sixty years. Awards are given for advanced scholarly work, aside from fellowships administered by colleges and universities.

Of 431 American women who have received awards, three fourths went into college or university teaching and research. One became a college president; seven became academic deans; ninety-seven have served as full-time professors, and many others have filled responsible posts in government and industry.

Women students with high academic records who are interested in applying for one of these awards may contact Miss Lois Grigsby of the English Department for further information.

FBLA Workshop

Plans were made for the annual state convention of the Future Business Leaders of America, which will be held March 15, 1958 at the Battery Park Hotel in Asheville, North Carolina, by a workshop directed by Dr. James L. White.

The organization held its first workshop July 11-14. The nucleus of the workshop was formed by the State Executive Committee while many sponsors and interested FBLA members attended.

The main project for the workshop was preparing a handbook to be used statewide.

The group was enthusiastic about plans for FBLA in North Carolina. It is hoped that through FBLA the students and businessmen in North Carolina will become better acquainted, therefore keeping graduates of North Carolina schools in our state to work.

The bandroom in the music hall is in the process of being air conditioned. The project should be completed in the fall.

Acknowledgment

It is always a pleasure to hear from graduates who have gone elsewhere to further their education. The letter on the editorial page this time took us by surprise somewhat because it has been some time since we received one of its kind.

The friendliness of our campus is evident to everyone who even walks across the lawn or through one of our buildings. Very few people here are too busy to lend a helping hand to those in need of assistance. Many comments have been overheard which were made by visitors concerning the willingness of our students to speak to anyone whom they met in passing.

The rules of conduct seem to be almost traditional in that freshman and transfers usually fall into the pattern of things as they have been set by the former students. Although some regulations are broken or momentarily forgotten sometimes, all in all we abide by the standards of the college to a great extent.

Politeness and consideration seem to come natural for most of those on our campus. In the minds of many, East Carolina College has come a long way in comparison with some other colleges in North Carolina.

A tribute to all the scholars who have and are practicing the Golden Rule on our campus. May this college merit its rewards as long as . . . . .

Radio And TV Corner

Radio and TV cover a vast field for those who are engaged in that type of work as an everyday affair. East Carolina has come a long way since the days of yore when to have a radio station on campus would have been preposterous. Now that we have one, what are we doing with it?

Student participation has been steadily increasing, we are happy to report. The programs have centered around what the students have wanted. Some cultural programs have been presented along with news, weather reports, announcements, and various types of educational programs. The part played by the student is the one of disc jockey, reporter, soloist, or man in charge of tapes.

Recently, we were pleased to see something new develop in the form of a thirty minute program done by the students with the purpose of introducing various people and discussing their accomplishments and plans for the future. The thirty minutes slid by rapidly and everyone was almost astonished to learn that time had flown so fast. The informality of the program broke the ice for many of the persons appearing. We would like to see this worthwhile work continue in the weeks to come. There is also a well known saying that practice makes perfect.

Well, the students of East Carolina may not be perfect and their radio programs may not be exact, but we would like to applaud their efforts and say that for the time that they have had, we think they have done wonders.

Our Regrets

There are those who could have filled my shoes much more adequately during the past three weeks I am sure. The duties of an editor are long and involved, especially during the summer when news is rather scarce. One can look back on deadline day and wish to change practically every phase of a paper.

If it is true that one should never be entirely satisfied with a product which he has finished, I am safe in letting this paper go to press. I guess there has never been a more dissatisfied editor than I.

I make a plea to the students of ECC and to any one else who reads this edition of the East Carolinian that they overlook the mistakes of a greenhorn and bear with me on this, my first editing job.

Letters To Editor For All We Missed

Dear Peggy,

. . . Since I have been here at Duke I have been observing the students closely, and have come up with some conclusions which might interest you. First, I realize more than ever that East Carolina is a friendly campus, and there is so much good will among the students. Some of the students here seem to think it so unusual or odd if you speak to them in passing. Second, I am surprised and disappointed at the laxity of rules and regulations here; it really makes some of the conduct seem atrocious. Third, the lack of manners and feeling for your fellow student here is surprising to me. The boys here would just as soon let a door slam on you as not. I certainly think that we can be proud of East Carolina for upholding some of these qualities which are just as necessary in life, or even more so at times, as the intellectual pursuits . . . .

Sincerely,
An ECC Graduate

Dear Peggy,

I ran across this little poem the other day and thought you might like to share it with your friends and the readers of your paper.

O world, thou chooseth not the better part!
It is not wisdom only to be wise,
And on the inward vision close the eyes,
But it is wisdom to believe the heart.
Columbus found a world,
And had no chart save one that faith

Deciphered in the skies;
To trust the soul's invincible surmise
Was all his science and his only art.
Our knowledge is a torch of smoky pine
That lights the pathway but one step ahead
Across a void of mystery and dread.
Bid, then, the tender light of faith to shine
By which alone the mortal heart is led
Unto the thinking of the thought divine.

Pot Pourri

By MARTHA PINGEL WOLF

What happens when a group of philosophers from North and South America (and a few other places around the world) get together? They talk. Theoretically, they think. And they exchange ideas. From July 8-12, your reporter was one of three hundred delegates in attendance at the Fifth Inter-American Congress of Philosophy held in Washington, D. C. It was fascinating. To help us understand one another the Voice of America assigned interpreters to all of the sessions (including the social events). We wore the headsets and portable receivers so characteristic of international meetings nowadays, and wonder of wonders, if we got tired of hearing speeches in our own language, we could tune in on an immediate translation in another. Most of the meetings were conducted in Spanish (since our guests were philosophers from the Latin American countries), with occasional snatches of English—such as a welcoming message from the President of the United States.

The Congress, including yours truly, were the guests of Gallaudet College, where most of our meetings were held. Incidentally, the college is the only one in the United States exclusively for those handicapped by deafness. And all of us were surprised to learn that one of its sponsors is the Congress of the United States, the other the President of the United States. Speaking of sponsors, our convention had a lively assortment of same—The Ford Foundation, The Creole Foundation, Mr. Nelson Rockefeller, Gallaudet College (which housed and fed us), and the P. Ballentine and Company. No comment. Days were spent in getting acquainted; for many it meant a reunion with friends. Arguments were everywhere (friendly ones), both in sessions and out of them. Subjects ranged from what philosophy and philosophers are (and I'm not at all certain any of us ever came up with a definite answer to that), to human conduct, world affairs, the atom bomb, and on the lighter side, the attempt of the Inter-American Congress to purchase a castle somewhere in the world where all philosophers could go when they wished to think undisturbed by the so-called ordinary affairs that bother us in the "civilized" world. We were all in complete agreement on that one. Social events included visits to the Pan American Union, where ambassadors and dignitaries congregated and discussed the weather under crystal chandeliers in a huge ballroom, with butlers going in and out holding trays loaded with refreshments, and piano music in the background. The Library of Congress, where our host told us impressively 10,000 books a month are received for cataloguing and the National Gallery, where Dali's unearthly "Last Supper" held the spotlight, were all part of the program. Your reporter, as one of the host-delegates, had to admit that it was a wonderful trip—worthwhile, entertaining, stimulating, and friendly. And we know, from the comments dropped along the line that our visitors from foreign lands also enjoyed their one week visit to Washington. Best of all, all of us came away with the feeling that cooperation and exchange of ideas between thinking people of any nation are not only possible, but also the most important elements of our twentieth century culture. Hasta la vista; auf wiedersehen; au revoir; be seeing you!

To An Officer

By PEGGY L. STEWART

What does it mean to hold a responsible office? The person who occupies a position for a given length of time must follow a few essential rules. One must exercise self-discipline to the extent that he sets an example for those by whom he was elected. The officer must never show partiality any more than can be avoided. A conscientious person will share responsibility as soon as he recognizes it.

Certain offices carry with them time-consuming duties. If one accepts a position, he should be willing to relinquish his time and efforts to his job.

Why not soften the grind by doing what others have trusted one to do and by all means place a smile on that solemn face and create an appreciation in that burdened heart!

Janet Wins Again

By JANET HILL

There are many types of contests today, but perhaps one of the oldest and most thrilling experiences is the beauty contest.

East Carolina's own Janet Mason Mitchell was recently crowned Miss Roanoke-Chowan which carried her to compete for the North Carolina title of Miss Universe on July 3, 4, 5, and 6 at Nags Head.

Janet entered her first competitive contest when she was seventeen with the title Miss Ahsokie-Hertford County. As a result, she became first runner-up in the Miss Ocean View Centennial Girl Contest.

Miss Ahsokie

The next title to be given to Janet was that of Miss Ahsokie to enter the Miss Albemarle Beauty Pageant at Elizabeth City. Capturing first place, Janet walked off from the three night competition with Crown trophy and the title of Miss Elizabeth City. Crowned by Congressman Herbert C. Bonner, she had won an official Miss America elimination which entitled her to enter the Miss North Carolina contest of the Miss America Pageant at Wilmington.

In Miss Universe Contest

Janet modestly said that she felt very honored to enter the Miss N. C. competition of the Miss Universe Contest after participating in the state division of Miss America two years ago. "I didn't place in the Miss N. C. Pageant 2 years ago and I didn't expect to place in the last contest but each experience is such a valuable one, I feel that everyone gains something from pageants—for there really are no losers!" states Janet. Janet placed as second runner-up in the Miss North Carolina competition of the Miss Universe contest.

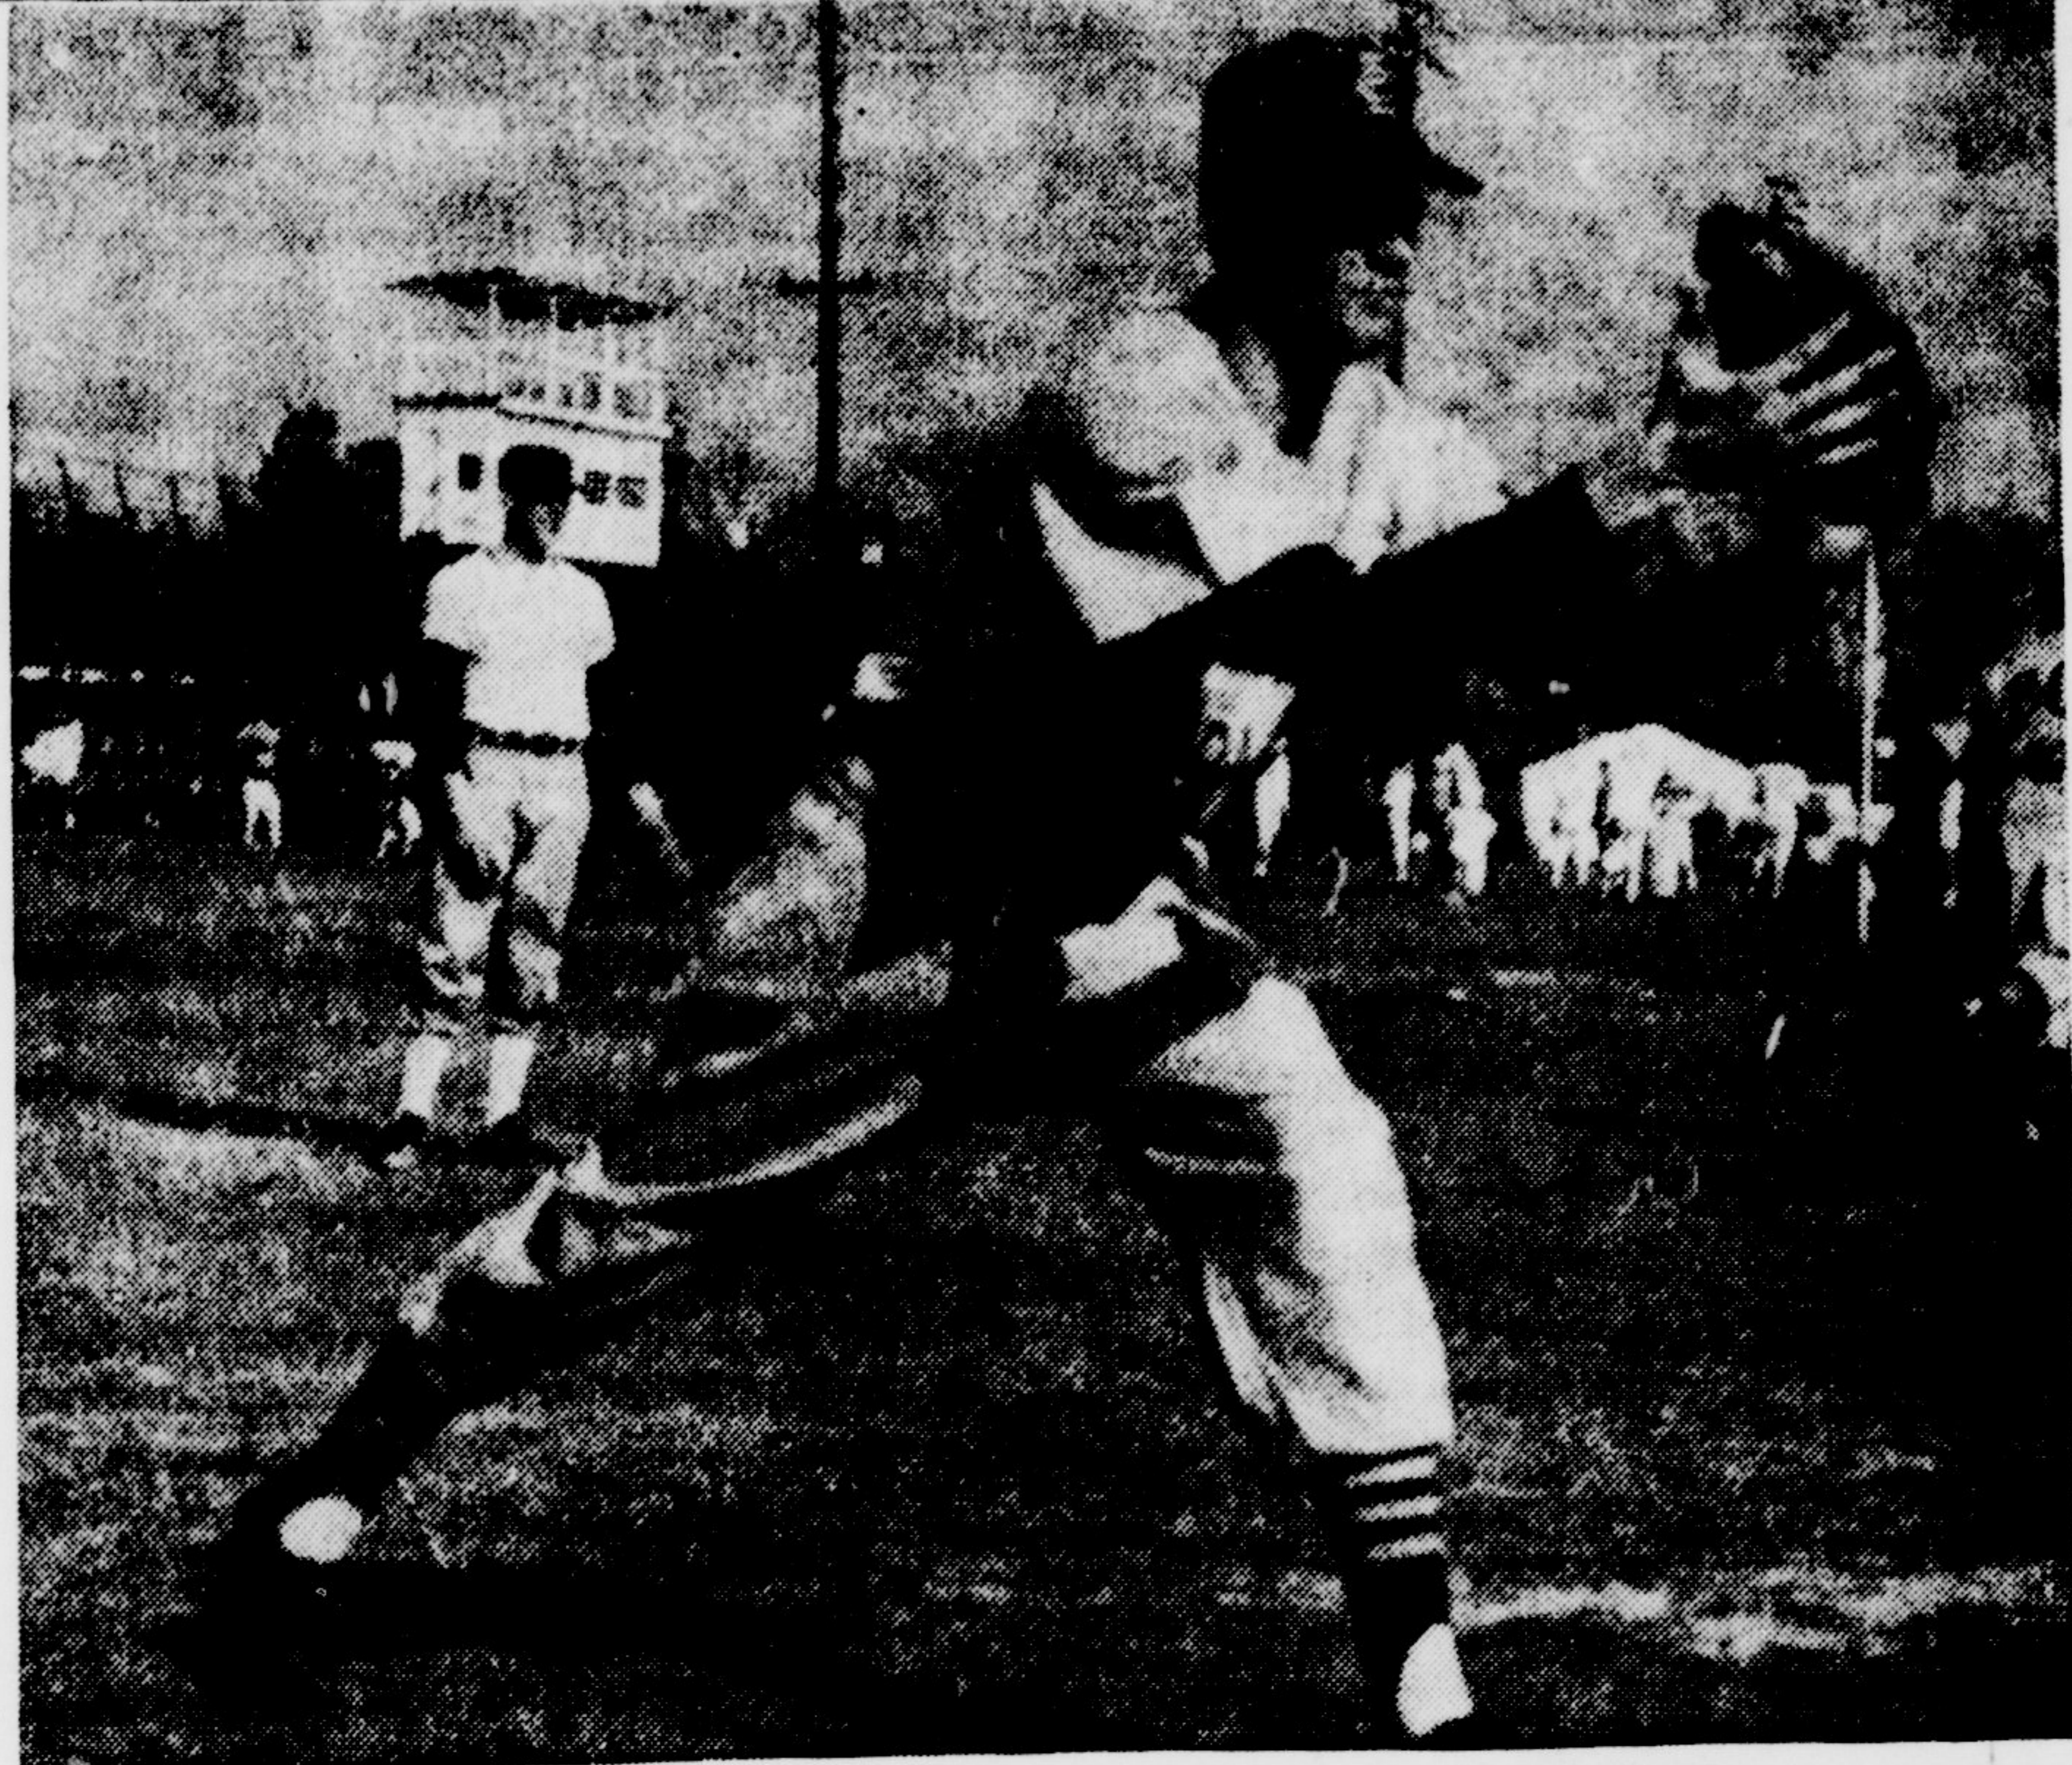

After the Miss N. C. Pageant, Janet was first runner-up in the

Girls Undefeated

The girls' softball team, which is sponsored by the College Union, has made two trips to Rock Mount, taking both games from the Parkview Hospital Student Nurses. The girls who have been working out on Monday and Wednesday afternoons for the past six weeks with coaches Herb Spencer and A. J. Rose are: Hilda Roberts, Sylvia Beasley, Charlotte Fitchette, Carolyn Fulghum, Jan Raby, Leora Holland, Jane Carroll, Nancy Alford, Julia Vickers, Marty Martin, Peggy Stewart, Linda Perry, Rosemary Mountcastle, Dot Denning and Carole Williams.

On July 3, there was a two-game engagement, when the College Union team beat the Rocky Mount High School team 10 to 5 and the Parkview Hospital Student Nurses 14 to 3.

On a muddy field, July 16, the C U team came away after much slipping and sliding, with a victory from the student nurses of 14 to 9. Nancy Alford was the winning pitcher, who also made the game's only homerun.

Pictured above is Dean Robbins who has signed a contract with the Boston Red Sox club. Contracts were signed by Joel Long with the New York Giants and Garry Treon with the St. Louis Cardinals. These students signed the contracts with the understanding that they will finish their college education at the expense of the pro clubs.

Miss International Cup Regatta at Elizabeth City in 1955.

Janet has entered many contests—and has been asked to participate in many others. But, one of which she is proudest of having been asked to participate was the Miss Dixie Contest. However, she was unable to enter due to her studies here in summer school last year.

Having had the thrill of crowning her successors in pageants, we hope that Janet will always have the thrill of coming out on top in everything which she may attempt in the future. Good Luck, Janet.

Duo Pianists Perform Here

First in the series of performances presented by the East Carolina College Entertainment Committee for the second summer school session was the duo-piano team of Melvin Stecher and Norman Horowitz, who gave a concert in Austin Auditorium on the evening of July 18.

Both young men were accomplished pianists, and have played in solo concerts and with symphony orchestras throughout the country.

Public notice was first attracted to the new piano team with their superb series of 80 concerts at the Radio City Music Hall in their native city. From that time on they have continued to add to their successes, both in the United States and in Canada; and are in great demand as they travel from coast to coast, accompanied by their Steinway two-piano van.

Both musicians received the usual extensive education in classical music as a foundation, and they have gone on from there to build a repertoire that is both modern in appeal and versatile in scope and execution.

Talent Show Given

The College Union Social Committee presented a talent show in McGinnis Auditorium July 2. On the same program was a one act play, "In Remembrance," by Lloyd Jones Bray, Jr. The play was presented by the Dramatic Arts Workshop and Summer Theatre.

First place in the talent show went to Vickie Cooke, who did a comedy dance accompanied by the song "Old Gray Mare." Lois Hunt, sang "Serenade" from Romberg's

Methodist Activities

By MARY JANE CARROLL

The Wesley Foundation, which is the Methodist Church at work on the college campus, is carrying on a program to meet the needs of students during the summer sessions.

On Sunday at 9:30 a. m. buns and coffee and cocoa are served in the Y hut on the college campus. Students can sleep late, dress for church, and come over to the Y hut for breakfast and fellowship.

After this period of fellowship, Bible study in the Gospel of St. Mark is conducted by Miss Chandler, director of the Wesley Foundation. All students are invited to join with the Wesley Foundation on Sunday Morning and to come to vespers at the Methodist Student Center at 7:00 p. m. in the evening.

Morning worship at 11 a. m. is conducted by the pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Austin Auditorium on the campus. Services are being held in this building while the church building is being renovated.

"Student Prince," won second place. Mike Uzzle, who played a guitar and sang a solo, "Sugar Mama," placed third. Other participants in the contest were Lynn Baine, Comedy monologue; Peggy Bullock, vocalist and pianist; Charlotte Fitchette, baton twirler; Hal Stout, comedy; and Rosalie Dalton, tap dance.

Frank Fagan was master of ceremonies, and Emmett Mays was piano accompanist for the comedy dance and tap dance. Judges were Freddie James, President of the SGA, Dr. Todd of the Social Studies Department, and Miss Margaret R. Johnston, of the Business Office Staff.

A Look At

Our BSU

By HELEN MARSHBURN

A person who is in college has many activities to choose among which occupy his extra time. Surely everyone has a definite need for spiritual and moral guidance.

The church is a formal institution from which one can receive help. A homey place which we at East Carolina are fortunate to have is the Baptist Student Center. Here anyone can go at anytime to talk to our most wonderful leader, Miss Gloria Blanton.

The program at the Center follows a general plan which, during the summer, is on a smaller scale than during regular term. Forums are held on Monday nights which are followed by a Dutch supper.

Here after an inspiring program the students and leaders have a chance to get acquainted with new friends. The forums are always very meaningful and helpful. On Monday night, July 15, the forum entitled "Campus Problems" was led by Dean Tucker, Dean White, Miss Mendenhall and Freddie James.

CUSB Holds Open House

The CUSB Social Committee under the able supervision of its chairman, Patsy Leonard, brought to the East Carolina campus another evening of dancing this past Tuesday, July 16. It was a night for gala social entertainment as the College Union presented its third combo dance of the summer season, featuring Bill McAdams and his combo.

The combination Open House-Night Club affair with plenty of refreshments proved to be quite a success, and there was the added excitement of the college radio interviewing the students. C U welcomes you and hopes you enjoyed the dance.

FTA Meets

The Future Teachers of America celebrated the fourth of July with their annual weiner roast.

On July 18, their monthly meeting was held in the Music Hall. Dr. Flanary of the Education Department, guest speaker of the evening, spoke of the preparation of small children for the first grade. The group was shown Metropolitan Readiness Tests, which determine whether or not a child has the mental capacity to start school.

Dr. Flanary is advisor for the FTA this summer. Since the Center has varied facilities for entertainment, people to help budget time and lend a helping hand with spiritual problems, and such a convenient location on Eighth Street, we hope you will find time to visit the Center for surely some good can be accomplished
