Driving Range Declares 'Free Day' For ECC Next Thursday

Next Thursday will be "ECC Free Day" at the Greenville Golf and Driving Range.

Si Meye, owner of the local driving range and miniature golf course, states that all East Carolina students bearing ID cards will be admitted to the facilities free.

Meye will increase his staff for the event next Thursday and free lessons will be administered to those who are not familiar with the game of golf.

"Golf is one game that young and old boys and girls alike can enjoy," Meye said. "I hope all the kids will come out; I don't care if they've never hit a golf ball."

Since 1953, Meye has given free golf lessons to ECC students, both individually and in classes. He does so purely out of love for the sport. His entire staff is composed of East Carolina students or graduates.

The "Free Day" will be open to the students during the day and night. Meye said that golf is the fastest growing sport in America today and that it is by far the largest participant's outdoor sport.

He maintains to those who do not know anything about golf that there will be no embarrassment, and he encourages both "old pros" and novices to take advantages of "Free Day."

The golf range is located on the Ayden highway.

Douglas Observes World Institute

George A. Douglas, Director of the Danforth Foundation project at East Carolina College, was an observer at the World Affairs Institute to be held at the Blue Ridge Assembly Grounds at Black Mountain July 24, 25, and 26.

Dr. Douglas said this week that plans for the Danforth Foundation lecture series at East Carolina College for the 1959-60 college year are being developed and the speakers to be announced later. Douglas has participated in institutes of this type for many years.

Currently Dr. Douglas conducted a workshop in Family Life skills. Beginning on August 1 he will conduct a workshop on Family Problems. This latter workshop is designed for teachers, welfare workers, ministers and others interested in the field of human relations.

ECC's Dottie McEwen Named 'Miss Congeniality'

East Carolina's own Dottie McEwen, current Miss Wilmington, was named "Miss Congeniality" in the Miss North Carolina Pageant recently. Dottie, a senior at ECC, was also named "Miss Congeniality" in the "Miss Wilmington" Pageant. This is the first time in the history of the pageant that both awards have been given to the same girl. Previously, the winning of the "Miss Congeniality" award was not in the top three. A new pageant rule this year changed it.

Dottie said about being "Miss Congeniality of N. C.": "Passing the inspection of the judges is quite an honor, but passing the inspection of 61 girls is very thrilling. I still don't understand how I got it."

Dottie's talent in the "Miss Wilmington" pageant was a comedy skit to the song, "I Enjoy Being A Girl" from FLOWER DRUM SONG. She said "I stuck to comedy in the State pageant where I did a comedy pantomime. It was a 'Red Skelton' type of pantomime showing the beginning of a day for a hobo." One of the most exciting things about the pageant to me was meeting and talking to Mary Ann Mobley, "Miss America of 1959," she added "Mary Ann was there the entire time and is one of the most natural and likeable persons I have ever met."

"The most thrilling time for me came Saturday night when I was announced as the winner of the 'Miss Congeniality' award. It is one of the top honors of the pageant. Along with the title I receive a trophy and $300 scholarship. I also receive a $200 scholarship for winning the Wilmington pageant."

Dottie plans to return to ECC this fall and hopes to graduate next spring with a major in Home Economics. While at ECC she has been a class officer, cheerleader, marshal, C. U. board member, "Y" cabinet member, a member of the Westminster Fellowship, and the Home Economic Club. She has also represented the College Union in Homecoming one year. She is a member of the Pi Kappa sorority. This year she will be leading the cheering squad.

"I'm extremely happy that I entered the Pageant because I can think of no other place you can earn $500, meet around 200 wonderful people; and have such a grand time in only 3 weeks," Dottie exclaimed.

Summer Queen To Be Crowned At Dance Next Week End In Wright Auditorium

CANDIDATES . . . for Summer School Queen: Jackie Byrd, Sigma Epsilon; Janet Arnold, WWWS; Jo Ann Bryan, Wilson Hall.

Election To Be Held Tuesday

One of four lovely co-eds will be crowned Queen of Summer School August 7, at the annual summer school dance.

Jo Ann Bryan, Janet Arnold, Sylvia Capps, and Jackie Byrd have been nominated by campus organizations to contend for "queen of the hop."

"The Rhythmaires," a 5-piece campus combo managed by Jack Pindell, will play for the annual affair when it gets under way at 8:00 in Wright Auditorium.

Nancy Harris, 1958 Summer School Queen, will crown the new queen at the intermission ceremonies. Miss Harris was sponsored by Theta Chi fraternity last summer.

Jo Ann Bryan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bryan of Grantham, is sponsored by Wilson Hall. Present secretary of the SGA, an office she has held for a year, she is 20 years old, a senior, and a major in English. Miss Bryan was Wayne County Dairy Princess in 1957 and a member of Kappa Delta Kappa.

Janet Arnold, a junior art major, was one of the finalists in the Miss Greenville Pageant last spring. She is 19 years old and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Arnold of Raleigh. A member of Kappa Phi Epsilon, she is being sponsored by WWWS, Campus Radio.

Sylvia Capps, who was Delta Sigma Rho's (now Lambda Chi Alpha) "Christmas Queen" in 1957, was nominated by Cotton Hall. A junior primary education major, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Capps of Warrenton. She represents Pi Kappa sorority on the ISC.

Jackie Byrd, who has been the sweetheart of both Phi Sigma Pi and Phi Mu Alpha, is being sponsored by Sigma Epsilon social fraternity. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin Byrd of Windsor and a senior primary education major. Miss Byrd is 21 years old and was a member of last spring's May Court. A member of Delta Sigma Chi, she is president of the ISC and a college marshal.

"The Rhythmaires" include Frank Wilson, Ted Beach, E. W. Lee, Keith Dobbins, and Jack Pindell. Dance Elections Committee Chairman Don Griffin states that this band, although composed of EC students, has had a variety of experience and has played for many occasions.

"I think this is probably the finest college combo we could get. One of the best I've heard anywhere," said Griffin.

NOTICE

SGA President Bobbie Kennedy has announced her office hours as follows: 10-12:00 a.m.—Monday through Friday, 3-4:00 p.m.—Monday through Friday.

Campus Radio Station WWWS Marks Progress; Hopes For Future Goal To Be Realized

Progress highlighted the events at Campus Radio Station WWWS during the summer sessions this year. Money totaling over $500 was appropriated by the Summer School Student Government Association for the purpose of improving and expanding Campus Radio's present broadcast equipment, and enlarging the record libraries of 45's and L-P's.

The College Union Dance Party, which was initiated last spring by station manager, Jim Kirkland, and assisted by J. Wayne Johnson during the Spring Quarter and Rudd L. Jensen and E. T. Rogers during the Summer sessions, has been a source of Friday night entertainment this summer, as it is the only event which has been regularly scheduled by the Student Government Association, working with the staff. Part of the money appropriated by the SGA went for the repair of the remote broadcast equipment used in presenting this program from the patio of the college union each Friday night.

Sponsored time sometimes known as commercial time, was instituted on a regular basis this summer by Frank Grayiel, Business Manager of the Campus Radio Station. Money taken in from advertising is used for the improvement of the station's facilities, as well as enlarging the pre-music library. Much of the "sold" time was done on a "swap" basis with the local merchants in which the merchants gave campus radio materials in return for campus radio's advertising service.

Along with the innovation of sponsored time, Campus Radio then began operating on Sunday evenings for a short while, and now has increased Sunday time to three hours of broadcasting.

Special events, headed by Rudd Jensen, was another major item on Campus Radio this summer. The programs of interest with Dr. Messick and Dr. Jenkins were continued, and a special week of programs with Dean White were added. When the High School Science Institute arrived for three weeks, Jensen was there to greet them with a tape recorder. Plans now for interviews with the Summer Music Campers are complete and this week will mark the close of these interviews. Newsworthy items such as interviews with Doug Clark and his combo and interviews with the members of the Dave Burbeck Quartet also highlighted the work of the special events department.

Campus Radio was fortunate in receiving a lend-lease gift of a Gates Sound Truck, for use during the next school year. This equipment will be used to feed programs to WWWS-FM, the educational section of Campus Radio.

So far as plans for next year go, attempts to merge with the college Radio Corp., to handle national advertisements are being made. It is hoped that the College Radio Corp. will be able to furnish the school with a news machine, so that the students operated radio station will be able to keep the students up to date on all of the latest world events. CRC is also attempting to bargain with national advertisers to sponsor away football games, that will be played by the Pirates during the 59-60 football season.

Present Station Manager Jim Kirkland, is making arrangements with SGA for paid positions on the staff of the radio station next year, and hopes that Rudd Jensen, who will act as Station Manager for the first of the coming school year, will follow through on these plans. Kirkland is leaving the Radio Station September 8, to assume a new position opened by the Publications Board as Photography Editor of the BUC-CANEER, college annual.

Kirkland stated that he has hopes that the completion of the installation of Jones Hall for reception will be complete by the first of the 1959-60 school year. "It's been a lot of fun working with the staff of this very industrious group. Without a doubt, Campus Radio will become one of the more outstanding service organizations on the Campus of East Carolina," Kirkland stated.

Buc, Loveable Campus Mascot, To Observe First Birthday

By BRYAN HARRISON

In a couple of weeks Buc, the college mascot, will observe the first anniversary of his arrival on the campus.

It was an exciting day, when Buc came. A big crowd gathered outside the College Union when his owner let him out of the station wagon.

Johnny Hudson, who was president of the SGA, and Clint LeGette, who headed the committee to acquire a mascot, and a host of other students were on hand to shake the great dane's paw.

The first thing the boys did was take him out to Dora's and buy him a beer. Buc lapped it up and we all cheered.

At the time Buc was only four months old and he weighed only 50 pounds. He was shy and his feet were wobbly and he was afraid to walk up the steps leading from the college union to the SGA office.

He spent his first night here in Slay Hall much to the delight of the other students who showered Buc with too much attention. He spent a lot of nights in Johnny Hudson's room.

Buc was well-loved from the very first. He could be seen taking walks with his many trainers. The first trainer was Hugh Giles, who gave Buc his first walks, started his diet, and took care of him at the first football game.

Buc had a difficult time getting used to football. First attempts to teach him to run out with the team were unsuccessful. And when the crowd cheered Buc dived for safety under the grandstand.

Buc loved the cheerleaders. They petted him and fed him peanuts. Once he had his picture taken with Betty Lane Evans, who was then Miss North Carolina.

Buc's house was constructed shortly before his arrival; his pen shortly after. From all appearances, the mascot has outgrown his living quarters.

His present trainer, Ronnie Knouse, says that Buc now weighs 135 pounds, and when he stands up he measures 6 feet 8 inches.

The big great dane eats six cans of dog food a day, 2 pounds of dry meal, and drinks two pails of water. Ronnie says, "Buc walks me at least a mile a day. He goes further than that."

When Buc first arrived, he couldn't be trusted off the leash. One of his trainers, Bob Connelly taught him to go on the loose.

Once some of the students became concerned over Buc during the big snowfall last winter. Howard Black received several phone calls from students urging him to take him indoors.

But Buc was right at home in the snow, moreso in fact, than in the present humid weather.

Buc has always been a source of pleasure to the students. He has been known to take an ice cream cone right out of a coed's hand, and to knock a grown man down when playfully jumping up on him.

Buc is a year and four months old, happy and content, still playful as a puppy. He is the first mascot and a great credit to the school.

BUCANEER Editor Uke Armstrong and Photographer Jim Kirkland get the 1959-60 yearbook underway during the summer.

BUC . . . One year old.

An Educational Bargain

We Americans are often criticized for not appreciating all that we have. This accusation is true, of course, human nature being such as it is, but it has made the United States one of the most hated countries in the world.

Human nature or not, there is no excuse for ingratitude.

Take, for example, East Carolina College. It is a small school, insignificant against the multitude of other colleges and universities, but important, nonetheless, to a small group of students in eastern North Carolina.

ECC offers an educational bargain. The people who go there have no money to waste on expensive schooling. They are here to get an education and get it fast before the money runs out or the tobacco crop fails. Yet there are some who would criticize this school.

Once in a while there is a misfit, some guy who wants the advantages of a larger school without paying for it. He tries to reform. He tries to set up political parties in the SGA, to think up ways to entertain the students to keep them on campus on the weekends, to make ECC a "big time" school.

It won't work. It will not work until a completely different class of students inhabits East Carolina College. The students here are interested in getting an education and little else. They go home every weekend mainly because they must. There is the farm, the family business, or another job. To stay in school they have to go home.

Therefore, because there is nothing anyone can do about existing conditions at ECC, be grateful for what there is and stop griping.

Is Bobbie O. K.?

The question has been raised: is Bobbie Kennedy qualified to be President of the SGA?

The answer is unquestionably, yes.

Although the constitution states that a student must be at least a third quarter junior to run for president, we must remind the frustrated office seekers and constitutional hair-splitters that Miss Kennedy did not run for president, but for vice president, an office which does not carry that particular qualification.

Also the constitution plainly states that the vice president succeeds the president in case of his withdrawal.

Miss Kennedy is not only legally qualified to be president, but she is far more able than any of the recent "they also rans" who are now raising the fuss. What's more she's a lot better looking than any of them.

What Miss Kennedy plans to do or will as president remains to be seen, but we feel that most of the student body will enjoy watching her do it, rather than listening to weary old political harangue of the disappointed office-seekers.

East Carolina College is a co-educational college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the purpose of giving young men and women training that will enable them to earn a Bachelor of Science, a Bachelor of Arts, a Bachelor of Music, or a Master of Arts degree. The physical plant of the college consists of approximately 130 acres and 25 buildings appropriate to the work of the college. Enrollment for the 1957-58 school year is in excess of 3700 and includes students from nearly all of North Carolina's 100 counties and adjoining states.

A sound general education program is offered as the foundation on which specialized training may be based. Pre-professional training and Secretarial Science are also available. Students may take work in the following fields: Art, Education, Business Education, English, Foreign Language, Geography, Health and Physical Education, Home Economics, Industrial Arts, Library Science, Mathematics, Music, Psychology, Science, and Social Studies. An Air Force ROTC unit located at the college provides an opportunity for men, upon graduation, to be commissioned as Second Lieutenants in the Air Force after which they may enter flight training and earn their wings.

Editorially Speaking Summer Camp Is Subtle Ad For East Carolina

By JEAN ANN WATERS East Carolina College's biggest advertising project will end its second and last week Sunday with a big bang and a concert. The annual Music Camp attracts several hundred high school students per year and the number increases steadily.

These students, who in general have not made up their minds about which college they will attend or even thought about it, for that matter, are silently brainwashed during their stay here. The very subtlety of the campaign is its strongest factor.

The main advantage is that most of them have never seen a college before, so East Carolina has the jump on other institutions in the state.

Next, most of them come from small town or county schools. They see our large, new library, our air-conditioned band and choral rooms, and our modern classrooms. They get a taste of the freedom of college life. Oh yes, don't kid yourself. You have a darn sight more freedom now that you did in high school.

This place looks mighty good to them. This college is big enough to be important, but small enough to maintain the small town atmosphere. They like it here, and they remember that they liked it when the time comes to choose a college.

The older campers, judging the school by the Music Department, look for competence in instructors, adequacy of facilities, and departmental standards. They have a chance to work with the various teachers, see if they like them, see how much they learn under them. The instructors must be on their toes for they can influence the campers for or against ECC.

Meanwhile, the teachers are surveying the current crop of campers for potential talent, which they hope to lure into the ECC Music Department, eventually.

The summer music camp is definitely a valuable program to East Carolina and it will benefit the college in many ways.

Being loyal members of the ECC student body, we up here in the EAST CAROLINIAN office will grit our teeth; try to ignore the trumpets on one side of us, the clarinets on the other, and the band below; and think of what this din is doing for dear old EC in the way of free publicity, and not what it is doing to our poor shattered minds.

Which brings to mind a sign on our wall which reads, "Just because we think you think we don't know what we're doing, don't think we don't think we don't either."

We hear that Aladar Ecesedy, the sad-eyed Hungarian pianist who gave a concert here last Wednesday night, had reason to be gloomy. After patiently listening to his performance of 12 variations on "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star," the greater part of his audience left. The remaining few must have been children or asleep.

The arboretum is finally bowing to progress. It is said that a wing is being built onto the new classroom building on the frontier of the arboretum and soon the road from Jones Dormitory will be extended across it. The football field, I suppose, will be the last to go.

The international political scene isn't as peaceful as that of the college. Although our Student Government Association has done little more than appropriate money, one person seems to be getting things done.

Three cheers for the biggest surprise of the year—Richard Nixon. He and Krushchev really had it out and strangely enough each claims that he wasn't offended by the outburst. Nixon with one eye on the presidential nomination seems to have accomplished more in a few days than the Geneva Conference did in weeks.

Herter, too, seems to be doing an excellent job of not taking any foolishness from the Russian delegates. Let's hope he can prevent them from making fools of us again.

Since this is the final paper of the summer, I would like to take this opportunity to thank my poor, over-worked staff who have been under terrific strain and pressure for six hectic weeks. This handful of student's has worked long hours, each day, much more than his share. To one and all a sincere "Thank you."

Columnist's Swan Song I've Been Hanging Around Too Long

By BRYAN HARRISON

This makes my 32nd column for the EAST CAROLINIAN. I've written twice that many features, a couple of dozen editorials, and well over a hundred news stories.

I've written out and I'm ready to go. As the song says, "I've been hanging around this old town too long."

I've worked for five different editors, four of them women, whom I've never gotten along with. I've seen seven SGA presidents come and go.

My favorite editor was Jimmy Ferrell. Bald-headed at twenty-two, he worried constantly, refused to agree with me on everything from how to write a column to what constituted good drama.

He knew how to run a newspaper. He was a journalistic dictator. His word was law and you did what he said or took a powder. A mild-mannered person, he ruled the EAST CAROLINIAN with an iron fist.

He was an avid supporter of Eddie Dennis when he ran for president against Jimmy Phelps. He told the staff we would vote for Dennis or else. We all went out and voted for Phelps, but never told him.

Ferrell put out the best EAST CAROLINIAN in the school's history. He knew how to write and he knew how to teach others to write. I learned everything I ever knew about newspaper from Jimmy Ferrell. I only hope I've been a credit to him.

Oliver Williams was on that staff, too. Oliver is Sunday editor of the Rocky Mount Telegram now. If he continues in journalism, he will be a great success.

Those were the good old days, when the college was a happy place, the pre-old-yellow days.

My favorite SGA president was Johnny Hudson. He was President last summer. He did more for the school in one summer than all the other six that I've seen did in three and half years.

Johnny was a real screwball. He was the last guy on earth that you would think was an executive. Everything he did, he did with color and humor. I learned a lot about politics from Johnny, and a lot about living too.

Johnny was a rare diplomat. He knew how to get the administration to go along with him. He never got Dean White to say yes on Bermuda shorts and he never got Raleigh's Mayor Enloe to give East Carolina students a discount at Pitt theatre. But he got the school a wonderful mascot and achieved a brilliant record in student government, and had a lot fun doing it.

My favorite actor and actress were Bubba Driver and Alice Ann Horne. Bubba Driver was a great performer, offstage as well as on.

If you ever had a party, you would want to invite Bubba. He would whip out the uke or the bongo drums and sound more like Harry Belafonte than Harry Belafonte did. He was a natural wit, always laughing and smiling and acting. I never heard an unkind word said about Bubba.

Alice Ann Horne was simply the greatest. I wrote a feature on her when I was a sophomore and it was the best I ever wrote. Her everyday conversation was as lyrical as the

James B. Mallory

The EAST CAROLINIAN feels that the college made a wise choice, one which will prove popular, when they appointed James B. Mallory Dean of Men.

The friendly, well-liked baseball coach has been here six years. He is well-known and respected by the men students on campus. It is a fine thing when the college does not have to look for people off the campus to fill administrative vacancies when they can be filled by capable members of our own teaching staff.

Already Coach Mallory has approached his new job in the best collegiate spirit when he stated that he was not going to wait for the students to come to him with problems, but will try his best to approach the students as a friend, so that they will feel free to come to him whenever they need him.

He will have the toughest of tough jobs. It will require tact, courage, and intelligence. Here is a "hats off to" Jim Mallory—and good luck!

A Low-Water Mark

East Carolina has reached the low-water mark in school spirit. Out of well over a dozen organizations on campus who could nominate some co-ed to run for summer school queen, four have chosen to do so.

Although we feel that any one of these four could carry the honor with grace, we believe that there are many more girls on campus who could successfully enter the competition.

We hope this is not an indication of student enthusiasm over the summer school dance. If so, there will probably be too few people there to hold the dance.

When students on this campus feel like supporting a dance, they can do it in grand fashion. We hope that many turn out at the dance and see the queen crowned.

The Luckless Legion

More than 2,800,000 Americans were drafted into the Luckless Legion of automobile casualties in 1958.

In its annual highway safety booklet entitled "The Luckless Legion", The Travelers Insurance Companies pointed out, "This is an army of suffering humanity which grows more rapidly each year. It is made up of the injured and the dead, the heedless and the innocent, the young and the old. Since the automobile first appeared on the American scene, these ranks of the crippled and the dead have included more than 60,000,000 of us."

The Luckless Legion is a silent, haunted army. We erect no monuments to it. No grim reminders mar the sleek beauty of the roads and highways which are its field of battle. A newspaper headlines, perhaps, marks the induction of the latest recruit. Then silence. Silent suffering. A lifetime of pain. Or the silent memories of those who mourn when the dead are laid to rest.

There were 36,700 men, women and children numbered among the dead of the Luckless Legion during the past year. For every fatality there were 77 people who suffered painful injuries. Hour by hour and day by day, this total climbed until it reached the staggering total of 2,825,000.

Injuries during the past year rose 12 percent—twice the rate of increase for the previous year. In the rising curve of injuries lies the greatest waste of property and human resources in our nation. Behind the lines of our efforts toward national progress, the Luckless Legion stands as a vast fifth column.

Statistics, pledges and slogans do not seem to change us. Something more is needed. During 1959, the Luckless Legion will be meeting in our community—on a stretch of highway, in a hospital room, in the morgue.

You alone will know when the meeting time is near. In the temptation to bear down a little harder on the gas, to beat the darkness home, to test your reflexes when they are dulled by sleep or alcohol, to jay-walk on crowded streets, to forget caution when weather and road conditions are bad. During 1959, every time you are behind the wheel of a car, remember that the Luckless Legion is looking for recruits. Don't be one.

Adieu

It has already been a long hot summer. The "Hot Nuts" have come and gone. Dave Brubeck was here again. Campus politicians were lazy. (We'll blame it on the heat.) Too much was said of Earl Long.

But next fall, the fireworks will start again. The EAST CAROLINIAN will have some news to print and their reporters can dig facts and quit writing fiction.

This is our last issue, and so we—Jean Ann, Bryan, Gwen, Sherard, Marcelle, Alice, and Nam Young—wish you all a pleasant end-of-summer and a happy vacation.

BAND CAMPERS . . . Diane Snakenburg, Kay Yearby, Doris Robbins, and Jo Anne Overcash.

Teresa Saieed, ECC Graduate Holds 'Miss Boating' Title

By ALICE CORIOLANO

Teresa Saieed, an employee in the registrar's office, has just been awarded the national title of "Miss Boating" for her skill and obedience of safety laws while piloting a boat. This award is given by the National Small Craft Club, of which the main branch is in New England. The Argonaut, a recently formed boating club here in Greenville, of which Miss Saieed is a member, is an offshoot of the branch in New England. A "Miss Boating" is elected monthly from April to August by clubs all along the eastern coast, and data on the elected is sent up to New England where a national "Miss Boating" is chosen.

It hasn't been too long since she joined the Argonaut, Miss Saieed said, and for the first time she has taken up boating as a hobby. The club owns two motor boats and a seventeen foot sailboat, which some of the members of the club are now covering with fiberglass. This will make the boat fireproof, waterproof, and shockproof. In this boat, 3 or 4 members of the club are planning to go to Portsmouth and the Outer Banks.

The club also owns a hydroplane, but Miss Saieed has not yet experimented with it.

Miss Saieed graduated from East Carolina in 1953. She started off with a double major in Social Studies and business. Later on, changing her mind, she decided to drop business and minor in English. When she graduated, along with a BS in Social Studies she received a two-year business course certificate for the courses she already taken. As president of the women day students she was a member of SGA. She was also a member of the Women's Judiciary, FTA, and the Mixed Chorus, which is now called the College Choir.

When she left school she was employed by the State Budget Bureau in Raleigh. After working with them for four and a half years, she worked for a private architectural firm in Washington, D. C., for almost a year, after which she came back to Greenville, her hometown. She joined the East Carolina staff last January, and is classified as a stenographer, although at the present she is mostly occupied with grades, quality points, and number of hours of each student.

Ecsedy Reveals Adept Technique At ECC Concert

By MARCELLE VOGEL

Aladar Ecsedy, a young Hungarian pianist, recently presented a program of classics for the Summer School students. Ecsedy performed a very acceptable concert, and revealed a dynamic, as well as a facile, technique. He was in complete control of his fingers throughout the concert. His interpretations, especially of the children's numbers, were individual, but most explanatory. In spite of the extreme heat and his woolen evening clothes, he was gracious in the reception of the approval of the audience.

Ecsedy was born in Hungary, where he spent his childhood. His father, a Presbyterian minister and a violinist, started Ecsedy playing the piano at the age of six. Ecsedy, however, hated to practice, but his father kept him at it. Finally, when he was about 16, Ecsedy really became interested in the piano. Then it was hard to tear him away from practicing.

Ecsedy met his lovely wife during a concert tour of Canada. They now have two small daughters who usually travel with him on tour.

Ecsedy attended the University of Budapest, and then received a scholarship to study in Finland. He was awarded the Jean Sibelius ring there.

He has presented concerts in Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Switzerland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany, Italy and Hungary, as well as appearing in 48 of the States, and the major cities of Canada.

His advice to young pianists, is, "It is not the amount of practice you do, but how you go about it. If you are not interested in playing, no amount of practice will make you a good musician."

The Travelers Insurance Companies studies show that exceeding the speed limit caused 12,770 deaths and 980,000 injuries during 1958 on our highways.

Cars that did not have the right way injured 608,400 and killed 3,890 persons on U. S. Highways in 1958.

Even good drivers can be forced into accidents! A hill-climbing truck ahead and a parade of honkers behind can try your patience. A tailgater with blazing lights can make you boil. But don't let them push you into a rash move. Traffic accidents killed 37,000 people last year. Who knows how many died because some good driver let another pressure him into taking a foolish chance? Don't let anger force you to risk lives—yours or others!

Where traffic laws are strictly enforced, deaths go DOWN! Published in an effort to save lives, in cooperation with the National Safety Council and The Advertising Council.

Regular East Carolinian Staff Works At Various Jobs During The Summer Months

By MARY JANE SMITH

What do journalists do in the summer? Let's take a look at the regular term EAST CAROLINIAN staff.

Editor Kathryn Johnson is assistant head counselor at a swank summer camp in the Adirondacks in New York State. She has met many interesting people, she says. One of them was the granddaughter of former Cuban President Batista.

"Anything can happen at Moss Lake!" she sighed. One day, according to Kathryn, a counselor was preparing to give a demonstration on how to make a fast getaway in a canoe. He jumped into the craft and began paddling madly, but his progress was abruptly arrested when he reached the end of the rope he had forgotten to untie. The same unfortunate man, while demonstrating the technique of jumping into a canoe from a 25-foot tower without going through the bottom of the canoe, forgot to allow for a slight breeze which rippled the lake, and after lecturing for some minutes at the top of the tower, he leaped without looking and ended up waist deep in you know what.

Speaking of soft jobs (that's the way it looks from the outside, anyway), Derry Walker, Managing Editor, has one. As night clerk at the elegant Oceana Motel at Atlantic beach, he gets down to the beach every day. He has his own room, complete with TV set and air-conditioning.

Business Manager JoAnne Parks is acting as receptionist, nurse, maid, and what-have-you for her veterinarian uncle. Her biggest complaint is people who leave implicit instructions for her uncle to follow, when as she says, "After going to school all those years, he certainly should know more than they do about taking care of their dog."

The only one of the old crowd to continue using his newspaper experience is Johnny Hudson, Sports Editor, who is now Sports Editor for the DAILY REFLECTOR. Johnny is also working at the Greenville Golf Range and attending summer school at ECC.

Former Co-Sports Editor Bill Boyd has joined the ranks of those taken from us by the Army.

Gwen Johnson is slaving away as Summer School EAST CAROLINIAN Business Manager, and Tom Jackson has forsaken his job in a pickle factory for another on the tobacco market.

Messick Chosen Member-At-Large Of Boy Scouts

John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, has been elected a member-at-large of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America by action of this group at its 49th annual meeting in San Francisco. Announcement of the election was received from Chief Scout Executive Arthur A. Schuck.

Dr. Messick is an active member of the executive committee of the East Carolina Council of the Boy Scouts of America and has served as president of the Council for two years. In other areas of service he has been a member of the Council committees on finance, programs and policy, and is now a member of a development committee for long-range planning.

In 1958, more than 49 per cent of the traffic injuries resulted from weekend accidents.

CU Contributes Much Enjoyment To SS Students

By MARCELLE VOGEL

The College Union has done much this summer to add to the entertainment and enjoyment of the Summer School students.

The numerous watermelon cuttings they had were always looked forward to by the students. The hot days never seemed so bad if there was a watermelon cutting in the afternoon to break the heat. Another cutting is scheduled for Tuesday the 18th at 3:00 p.m.

The bingo and bridge parties given in the evenings are another of the CU's accomplishments. Every Wednesday evening at 7:30 a beginner bridge class is also held. On the 5th of August another bingo party is planned, and on the 14th there will be a bridge-party.

This summer for the first time, the CU sponsored an invitational table tennis tournament, which consisted of players from 3 states.

On Sundays the swimming pool is open to everyone for recreational swimming from 2:30 to 4:30. This is another CU project. This summer they also purchased a tandem or a "bicycle built for two". Now there are five bicycles for the students use.

The last combo dance will be from 7:30 to 10:15 on Monday the 17th. Gene Lusk and his combo will furnish the music.

Also coming up on the CU calendar is the Talent Show scheduled for Thursday the 18th at 7:00. This event will precede the evening movie in Austin. Any one with talent is urged to sign up as soon as possible.

Events lined up for the fall include the 5th Birthday Party of the College Union, the annual Freshman Open House, a Homecoming program, a Christmas decorating party, a carnival, combo dances, and various tournaments. A senior night and a Foreign Student tea are also being planned.

Traffic Accidents Cause Many Deaths, Injuries In '58

Traffic accidents on U. S. highways during 1958 caused more than 2,825,000 injuries although deaths decreased five per cent, according to statistics compiled by The Travelers Insurance Companies.

The record number of injuries represented a 12 per cent increase during the year over the 1957 totals—more than twice the percentage increase of a year ago.

Highway deaths for the year totaled 36,700. Travelers estimated that for every highway fatality there were 77 injuries.

During the past year drivers under 25 were involved in 27.1 per cent of all fatal accidents and more than 20 per cent of non-fatal crashes, the report pointed out. This record was compiled by a group which constitutes at best only 14 per cent of all licensed drivers, the report empha-
