Lambda Chi Opens New Cotanche Street House

Highlight of a weekend of activities staged Friday through Sunday by members of the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity was the formal opening of their recently purchased chapter house on Cotanche Street. Other events of the weekend included initiation of ten students and four faculty and staff members from the college into the fraternity, and a banquet and dance Saturday night. Guests were welcomed Sunday afternoon at the Lambda Chi Alpha Chapter House by President Mike Katsias and other officers of the fraternity. Attending the social affair were parents of Lambda Chi members from several states, alumni members of the fraternity from the Eastern section of North Carolina, and fraternity brothers from High Point College and Duke University. Friday night an installation service was conducted for ten new members of the fraternity. The new brothers are W. Ted Gossett, James S. Chester, Paul Ramey, Eddie A. Back, Richard C. Glenn, David Harvey, Eugene Hodges, Larry Fink, Max Woodlerry, and Linwood Hartsell. Initiation of Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of the College; Dr. Cleveland Bradner Jr., director of religious activities; Paul Minnis of the art department; and Harry Rainey, assistant manager of Student Stores, as honorary members of the fraternity was the major event of Saturday afternoon. At a banquet for members Saturday night, Mahlon J. Coles, director of the College Union and manager of Student Stores at the college, as chapter advisor of Lambda Chi Alpha, presided at a program given during the social event. Dr. James W. Butler, assistant director of college public relations, acted as toastmaster. A dance for fraternity members and their dates followed the banquet. During the banquet, fraternity members presented President Jenkins with a Lambda Chi Alpha pin. Sunday morning the members attended services at St. James Methodist Church, at which the Rev. C. F. Hirschi gave a message on "Brotherhood and Fraternity."

East Carolina SGA Acts As Host To N S Student Government

Last weekend, delegates from eight member colleges of the North State Student Government Association were at East Carolina College for their spring meeting. The E.C.C. Student Government was host for the event. After registration on Saturday morning, the delegates convened in Rawl Auditorium where they were welcomed to East Carolina by the president, Dr. Leo Jenkins. Dallas Wells, S.G.A. president, introduced Dr. Clinton Prewett, Director of the Psychology Department of the college. Dr. Prewett presented a challenge to the group to strive for greater efficiency and fulfillment through student government work on their respective campuses.

The business session was called to order by Association president, John Callihan of Catawba College. The main item of business was the nomination of officers for the coming year. Catawba College was selected as the site for the central office of the Association.

After lunch in the college cafeteria, the visiting delegates were taken on a tour of the campus. Bob Dean of Western Carolina College was unanimously elected to head the Association. Dave Mustian of Atlantic Christian College will serve in the capacity of vice president. Mary John Best of East Carolina and Dale Brown of High Point College will be secretary and treasurer respectively for the approaching school year.

Prior to the afternoon business meeting the group was divided into discussion teams, and topics were assigned. These small groups exchanged ideas and discussed problems common to all colleges such as better school spirit, recreation, project, rules, and the judicial system.

The climax of the meeting came Saturday evening when the visitors were entertained at a banquet in the new south cafeteria. Dr. and Mrs. James Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. James Mallory, and Dr. and Mrs. Clinton Prewett were among the guests. Following the meal served by the cafeteria staff, Barney West introduced Dr. Robert Holt, dean of the college, who was the principal speaker of the evening.

After an interesting and entertaining speech by Dr. Holt, John Callihan, outgoing president of the Association, presented two plaques in recognition of the most outstanding Student Government and the most outstanding SGA president of the past year, Dale Brown, who received the plaques for his college, expressed appreciation to the Association for this recognition and for the help afforded his college by the other student government associations. The newly elected officers were installed and the retiring president made a short speech summarizing his term of office.

After the banquet a dance was held in Wright auditorium in honor of the guests. Sunday morning a short closing session met in Rawl Auditorium. At this meeting the newly elected officers presided and the spring meeting of the Association was adjourned.

West Loses In Run-Off

Winner Assumes Duties By End Of Spring Term

After a close race between James Speight and Barney West in the initial Student Government election, Mr. Speight rallied in the run-offs to defeat West by over three hundred votes. Speight will take over his presidential chores before the end of the quarter.

Ruby Bradshaw was the deciding winner in the contest for the vice-chairmanship of the Women's Judiciary. She won by a small margin over Markie Smith. The secretary and member-at-large positions of the women's judiciary were also decided in the run-offs. Gail Walker, who will take over as secretary, was the victor over Dee Davis. Five girls started in the member-at-large competition, but only two, Beth Baker and Gracie Barber, were in the run-offs. Beth won by over two hundred votes.

In the original March 24 elections Bill Nichols was selected to the vice president's position and Barbara Jones was chosen to take over the secretary's duties. Charles Munn will move into the treasurer's seat with Robert A. Ward taking over as assistant treasurer. Unopposed Gloria Hoffer will serve as historian.

Otis Strother and Evelyn Crutchfield, both unopposed, will head the 1960-1961 men's and women's judiciaries. Judy Jolly was chosen as treasurer of the women's judiciary.

The remaining men's judiciary positions were topped by Paul Gibbs, vice-chairman; Carlyle Humphrey, secretary-treasurer, and Michael C. Wilkinson and Michael W. Keziah, members-at-large.

Approximately 2,000 students cast their votes in the preliminary election, but the number was narrowed by about 500 in the final voting.

Committee Makes Play Choices

The committee for the publication of a volume of plays from East Carolina College, a project sponsored by the East Carolina Playhouse, has made final selections of plays to be included.

The plays to be published and their authors are: In Remembrance by Lloyd Bray Jr., October Wife by James Ferrell, The Wedding by Maxwell Burt Williams, Night of Decision by Ann Howard, Tumbleweed by Connie Erwin, and Heil, Hitler by Sherry Maske.

The playwrights are now engaged in a final revision of manuscripts, when the plays will be submitted for final approval to the committee consisting of Leigh Dobson, Mr. Robert Rickert, and Dr. J. A. Withey, chairman.

In Remembrance received an award two years ago when it was presented in the Carolina Dramatic Association One-Act Play competition. Its author, Lloyd Bray Jr., is now studying theater at the Pasadena Playhouse.

October Wife, recently presented on campus and at the State College Fine Arts Festival, was praised here and received a high rating at the Festival. Playwright James Ferrell, now working on a full length play, teaches English at Farmville High School.

The other plays have not been produced, but the Playhouse plans to present them before the book goes to press.

Warman To Speak At Workshop Here

Dr. Henry J. Warman, professor of geography, at Clark University, Worcester, Mass., will be principal speaker at a workshop in geography at East Carolina College April 2. The meeting will be the first of its kind at the college.

While at East Carolina, Dr. Warman will also speak on the Danforth Lecture Series March 31 and will appear before various student groups April 1.

Of special interest to many will be an informal lecture by Dr. Warren Thursday March 31 at the Joyner Library Auditorium. The lecture, which is entitled "Criss-crossing the Andes," will be illustrated with color slides taken on Dr. Warman's recent trip to Peru.

The purpose of the geography workshop is to stimulate interest in geography and to present an opportunity to learn better techniques and methods through hearing and seeing prepared papers, demonstrations, exhibits, and panels revolving around the field of geography. Dr. Robert E. Cramer of the East Carolina faculty is chairman in charge of arrangements.

Other speakers who will participate in the workshop program include President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina; Homer Lassiter of the N. C. State Department of Public Instruction; staff members at East Carolina College; and teachers and supervisors in public schools of the state.

Dr. Warman's field of special study and research are weather and climate, geography in education, human and cultural geography, and Latin America. He has done field work in this country, Central America, the Eastern Caribbean, and Northwestern South America.

He has participated in geography workshop programs at the University of British Columbia, the University of Southern California, Northwestern University, and the University of Colorado.

Organizations in which he has held the office of president are the National Council of Geography Teachers; Gamma Theta Upsilon, national professional geography fraternity; and the New England Association of Social Studies Teachers.

Dr. Warman is the author of a textbook for teachers of geography and of approximately fifty published articles in the field of geography.

Correspondence Indicates 'Rebel' Winter Issue As Most Successful

According to the number of letters received by the Rebel staff, the winter issue was the most successful in the two year history of the literary magazine.

Letters came from such prominent people as former president Harry S. Truman and North Carolina Governor Luther Hodges, and former students who are now residing as far west as California.

Dr. Donald Murray, advisor to the University of Illinois literary magazine said, "We (the magazine) don't have the sense of mission or theme that the Rebel seems to have."

"No doubt your budget will not allow it but the magazine should be sent to everyone interested in East Carolina," stated Oliver Williams, Sunday editor of the Rocky Mount newspaper, who continued by saying, "It does well in expressing literary and artistic accomplishments of students and this is often difficult to carry to outsiders."

Henry Belk, editor of the Goldsboro Argus and member of the E.C. Board of Trustees, considered the Rebel to be " . . . of the highest tradition of magazine publishing."

The literary magazine was announced as a definite asset in Earl E. Beach's letter which said, "the excellent work you are doing with this publication will pay off to each of you as individuals. It is certainly an excellent medium of advertising for East Carolina College. Each of you are to be highly commended.

The Rebel exchanges magazines with all colleges in North Carolina who also publish a literary magazine and also several quarterly copies and many, such as the Charlotte News and Observer and The Greensboro Daily News, carry articles on the Rebel.

Dan Williams, editor, said, "We send our magazine to most of the major publishing houses and they send us the books free of charge which are used by the Rebel book reviewers. So far this year they've sent us about $120 worth of books."

Dorm Rooms For Fall

Men students now living in the dormitory who wish to reserve their rooms for Fall quarter 1960, should do so at the Housing Office on the dates indicated below:

Jones Hall residents—April 6 through April 8, 1960.

Umstead Hall residents—April 9 through April 2, 1960.

All men dormitory students will be housed on the southeast campus beginning Fall quarter 1960. If there are particular rooms desired in Jones Hall, reservations should be made as soon as possible within the dates given above.

Cadets Train To Earn Pilot's License

Eight future U.S. Air Force pilots from the 600th AFROTC Cadet Group at East Carolina College recently completed training to earn their FAA Private Pilot's License. They received the training under the Air Force Flight Indoctrination Program, a plan whereby qualified AFROTC cadets receive thirty-five hours of flying instruction in light aircraft. In order to receive the Private License each cadet had to pass rigid written and flying examinations established by the Federal Aviation Agency. The cadets receiving their licenses were: Willard K. Baker, of Elizabeth City; Dennis M. Biggs, of Williamsport; Kirby P. Branch, of Greenville; Glenn C. Dyer, of Greensboro; Melvin P. Edwards, of Washington; Linwood C. Johnson, of Angier; Henry A. Leeuwenburg, Jr., of Wilmington; and Thomas T. Turner, of Greensboro.

The flying instruction was done at the Pitt-Greenville Airport by Mr. Dick Harmon of the Rocky Mount Air Service. T/Sgt. Leon Manning of the Detachment Staff, assisted by the Cadet Operations Officer, was responsible for the scheduling and over-all administrative details of the program.

Air Force thinking behind such a program as that offered at East Carolina is that the cadet who successfully completes it is much better prepared to meet the challenge of Air Force pilot training with its high performance aircraft than someone with no flying experience.

Why Not Let The Girls Start Honor System?

At a recent meeting of the Dean's Advisory Council, a complaint arose concerning the office hours in the girls' dormitories. The offices in all the dormitories are closed from 12:30 until 1:30 and from 5:30 until 6:30 weekdays. In addition to these hours, they are closed from 12:30 until 2:00 on Sunday. Also on weekdays there are no counselors in the office from 4:00 until 6:30 to sign the girls out.

If a girl wishes to sign out during these hours she must go to Jarvis hall to get her slip okayed. This is highly inconvenient and, we feel, unnecessary.

We realize that housemothers and dorm counselors must eat, but then there are a number of businessmen who eat lunch and never close their place of business . . . they have someone to substitute for them while they are out.

The dormitories could provide someone to alternate eating hours with the regular counselors and thus make the messy business of signing in and out much more convenient.

However, this is a mediocre solution to the problem. It will mean extra work, trouble, and expense to those responsible for the dormitories.

We propose another way entirely . . . Just don't have anybody to sign the cards any of the time. Let each girl sign herself in and out. By doing this, the tedious procedure which housemothers and counselors go through each day can be avoided. Time and trouble can be saved.

In addition, this new system will put the girls on their honor. It will set up a program under which they are assumed to be honest and will deal with them accordingly.

It will allow the girls a chance to demonstrate honesty and integrity and will take much of the sting out of necessary but distasteful procedure.

Not only will it accomplish these things but it could also be the first step toward a complete honor system at East Carolina. If we are ever to have an effective honor system here, it must begin somewhere. This is the perfect place. We contend that by gradually initiating an honor system, the ultimate goal can be more successfully accomplished by indoctrinating the students to such a system slowly.

Students Show Apathetic Attitude Towards College Extra-Curricular Work

It is quite disturbing to note the degree of academic apathy on campus. However there is another aspect of apathy which is disturbing at East Carolina. This is the surprising fact that the students are even apathetic toward extra-curricular activities.

A good example of this is the recent Student Government election. About one third of the student body took enough interest in the SGA elections to vote. This would seem to point out that two thirds of the students here either have not taken enough interest in student government to find out that they are actually governed by it, or they know it and just don't care.

It seems that anyone who must spend $45.00 each academic year on student government activities would become interested in that government if only to see that he got full value for that money.

As bad, if not worse, than this situation is the fact that only a very small number of students participate directly in student government and related activities. In the recent election, some of the offices only had one candidate to file for them.

On our own staff there are only a handful of students who take enough interest to participate. Last year the East Carolinian spent $8700.00 of student money. This money came from the $15.00 per quarter activity fee that each student must pay. Why didn't they come up and take advantage of their money? Who knows? Who knows why they don't take part in many of the school activities.

At present the East Carolinian has vacancies on the staff for writers, proofreaders, photographer assistants, typists, circulation assistants, and exchange personnel. We can use people in all phases of newspaper work. Yet only a very few ever apply for the positions and of these few about half of them are really interested in working. The rest just come along with friends and stop coming after two or three days.

There are six paying jobs on the East Carolinian staff with salaries ranging from $50 to $125.00 per quarter. These are open to those who work hard enough to merit such a job.

In addition to direct financial reward, qualified staff members are treated to expense paid trips to press conferences each year. Last year nine members of the staff went to New York City for three days . . . compliments of the college SGA (you, the students, paid for it).

This year the conference will be in Chicago; again the staff will travel at the expense of the students. These trips are in addition to visits to other schools for local press meetings.

All these rewards are available to any student who takes enough interest and works hard enough to merit them.

This is only one branch of campus activities . . . others include the year book, the Rebel, the student senate, etc.

The field is open, the rewards are many and worth while . . . why don't you participate?

To The Editor

'Old Fashioned' Spokesman Talks About Politics

Dear Editor,

For a long time now I have had a good many things to say and no time to sit down and put them on paper. Since my time is still limited I shall say the hell with the form or procedure, and simply list them numerically.

1. I believe that it is about time someone on the faculty took the responsibility of seeing that a sidewalk is laid between the gymnasium exit on Tenth Street and College Hill Drive. While the faculty, the city authorities, and the state argue over who is responsible, some student will probably forfeit his life. It never ceases to amaze me how men with, what we consider great responsibility, make a habit of "passing the buck." I am not laying the blame on the shoulder of the faculty, but rather attempting to spark someone to action.

2. The second concern has to do with politics, a subject that I would like to avoid, but just as the sick man must vomit to feel relief so I also must spew my troubles.

I won't be here next year at election time to see what is happening but I certainly hope that the students won't be quite as vexed with the posters. Posters are excellent in their place, but their place is not in the classroom on the front bulletin board.

As for the actual election procedures, I must admit that if your candidate hasn't any chance to win, the best thing to do is to eliminate the opposition. There are many ways of accomplishing this, but I couldn't help but notice one in particular mutilation. Though I may not have been in full agreement with the platform of my ultimate candidate, my decision was greatly influenced by this one factor.

I may be old fashioned, but I believe that if a person has a good platform and is honest he is the man for the job. When I witness a "publicity" man tearing down the opponents' posters, I cannot help but feel that his candidate must have an awful weak platform, else why the underhandedness.

Classifying the candidates as I did, in terms of their honesty, I found only one person fit for the office. This person however, will probably not get into office. So I held onto a sinking ship. No matter though, at least I felt justified in doing so.

3. This last article is in regards to the trite matters that are put into this column. (This seems a little ironic, since I imagine some people will think this letter trite) I have never seen a more childish reaction to what I term "nothing," than the retaliation in last week's column regarding the statement made by Mr. Walker. This was no more than one huge conglomerate of words, and no matter how hard I tried, I could get nothing out of them. It would appear that each of the three persons contributing to this article, after having exhausted their vocabularies, evidently felt they had struck back at "that mean man who stepped on my foot."

In short, if it took three people coming together to form something, that was nothing, there must have been very little to begin with. (Name withheld by request)

Dear Editor,

Are Republicans obsolete on campus?

There are some qualified persons on campus who may be able to answer this question, but as of this moment the question is still unanswered in the minds of a few interested followers of political parties here at East Carolina College.

As everyone knows this year is an election year in the United States and voters as well as non-voters should be informed exactly what an election and consequently Republican victory will mean to students here at ECC. This as well as other problems will be primary concern in what we hope will be the establishment of The Young Republicans Club of East Carolina College.

In past years there has been a Republican movement on campus, but due to the lack of interest the club was disbanded. Interest in any club is stimulated by its members whether it be social, religious, political, etc.

An old adage worth remembering, "All work and no play makes Jack a DULL Boy." With this in mind, if any one is still reading this article and is interested in forming this club please attend the meeting in the small auditorium (Room 209) of Flanagan Building, Monday night, April 4. College System In Japan

Japanese Writer Says 'It's... Hard To Enter But Easy To Graduate'

By HIDEO KUSAMA

In Japan most college students, who succeeded in passing the hard entrance examination, have to face how to open their own way under the mass-communication and mass-production. On the other hand, college life must be the paradise for students, for it probably is the only time that allows them to enjoy their young days as much as they please away from the real society like "horse race."

In a land of nearly the same size as California, there are more than five hundred colleges and universities in which some study hard, some don't. The standard of government supported colleges is rather different from that of private colleges.

The ratio between private colleges and government colleges is six to four. The balance between colleges of art and colleges of science is the same. This unbalanced ratio is becoming the chief problem of the Japanese college education.

The education in private colleges is made completely under the mass-production in which a hundred kinds of club activities are prepared on the campus for the students. It does not always become helpful for a student's life, but sometimes means that students are tempted into various activities.

So far as Japanese colleges are concerned, it is very hard to enter, but easy to graduate.

College System

The semester system is generally accepted in most colleges of Japan. The entrance period is limited to the spring season of cherry blossom. The minimum units necessary for graduation are 124.

Usually students complete almost all of them during the time of freshman, sophomore and junior, and use the final time of senior for efforts to complete a graduation thesis.

Student activity is conducted by three departments, which are Student Standing Association (which compares to East Carolina's SGA), Cultural Clubs, and Sports Clubs. About twenty per cent of school expenses is for the club activities.

Underwritten are chief clubs: In Cultural Clubs are the English Speaking Society, Drama Study Club, International Relations Study Club, Social Study Club, History Study Club, Student Christian Association, Music Club, Classic Arts Study Club, Broadcasting Study Club, Foreign Language Study Club, Literature Study Club, Education Study Club, Movie Study Club, Economy Study Club, Law Study Club, and Stock Study Club, etc.

In Sports Clubs there are Baseball, Football, Volleyball, Mountain climbing, Basketball, Hiking, Swimming, Tennis, Ping Pong, Wrestling, Drive Club, Horse riding, Judo, Kendo, Fencing, etc.

How Did Lindsay Affect You?

By PAT HARVEY

Cuba's getting pretty daring. After all the United States doesn't have too many fly boys to spare. Wonder if they wish to retract that last blast? . . . The Junior Class had a meeting—congratulations—and put the finishing touches on plans for the prom. Lattimore must have been on their minds when they chose an oriental theme, but where's the excuse for choosing the completely formal dress? Nominations for senior officers were conducted also. The qualifications are that you must be free one night during the school year.

Belated orchids are extended to Charlie Dyson, who proved his versatility by portraying a giant. He had the most charming giant snarl and growl ever heard from the McGinnis masters . . . Perhaps being ignorant in matters concerning China accounted for my actions during Lord Lindsay's speech last week—trying to appear interested, counting the stutters, wondering if Mr. Lattimore was going to sleep or was rubbing his eyes because he needed an anacin and trying new, and old sitting positions . . . how about you?

With the mention of Peyton Place still bringing a smile to the reader of all types of garbage—the average reader, Bramble Bush came to town and made some viewers wish they were a part of another animal species. After a movie script writer adds his touches, sin becomes something to cheer about. Verdict: a pulse stimulator.

The Pannhellenic council seems to have their troubles, but knowing how intelligent and broad-minded the council representatives are the problem should be erased shortly . . .

Thanks to the campus radio station, all local listeners, who were interested in the elections, were able to hear an on-the-scene report. These college announcers are really on the ball—Greenville's station should also observe.

Don't forget to remember yesterday was the deadline for dropping courses . . . begin all term papers . . . attend the college union spring carnival tonight . . . support the baseball team, tennis team, bridge team . . . read this column again, this time with an open mind.

Away from the noise of outside, morning lecture was begun quietly. It was my favorite class of English Literature. At nearly the end of the class, I was just thinking how to spend in the afternoon effectively. Around 2:00 p.m. at library I realized someone touched my shoulder who was my friend. I almost forgot the club meeting from 3:00 p.m.

On our way home, down town, some of our group offered to drop in a coffee shop. All said, "Let's go." At first we listened to the music, Bethoven's symphony No. 5. Our topics were colorful, some about foreign affairs, some about our future but one was serious about a love affair. After a long discussion, at last, we concluded that a big courage and a strong decision are needed to propel true love in college days under the circumstances like Japan.

Soda Shop Frameup

En Garde

By PAT FARMER

The campus should ache with a poignant loneliness this weekend due to the Azalea Festival in Wilmington. Quietness will prevail over the campus and the ones who remain should be able to find entertainment by reading books that they purchased at the first of the quarter. . .

Our student body was treated recently to a visit by Professor Owen Lattimore. His lectures were not only educational, but interesting. I was one of the fortunate few who had the opportunity to speak to Professor Lattimore and it was a privilege to do so. . . "The Glass Menagerie" which was to be presented in April, has been postponed . . . probably till next fall. . .

Overheard in the Soda Shop on election day . . . "It's easy to predict the new SGA president . . . the one who campaigned" . . . Of course, there are still people on campus trying to determine just who did campaign. . .

The secret to being waited on in the Soda Shop . . . Be of the masculine gender, wear long pants, a big "come hither" smile, and ask the clerk for a date . . . Of course, this procedure does not produce service for females. . .

There is a girl on campus with long brown hair and brown eyes who is the only person that I have ever met who can play four hands of bridge by herself and still have a good time . . . This special talent of hers should lead to greater things . . . Be sure to set your radio dial for WWWS and Wayne Johnson who will play the "Zombie Jamboree" for all spooks on campus. . .

'A Magnificence Incomparable'

House And Grounds Create Fascinating Reflections In The Observing Eye

By ROY MARTIN

The house stood amid the cluster of oaks as though it had evolved within them . . . a product of nature and not of man.

There was something about the place that was different from any other we had ever visited. It was the air, I guess, or the grass, or the fields, or really, I suppose you could say it was everything combined.

A white fence ran up the hill in back of the house, enclosing the animals which were roaming there. There were white ducks, and white-faced cows, and once in a while you could see a mallard drake with his brilliant, colored plumage skimming across the pond in jaunts of three or four feet at a time.

The front lawn stretched as a carpet down in front of the house. It gave the eye a rolling effect as it extended down to merge with the corn field.

The grass was rippled by a breeze blowing from the road. The grass was brown now . . . from the stiffening effects of winter's frost and chilling winds. Summer would come soon, and the grass would be green again.

Under the big trees, the shadows created by the sun on their limbs cast the darkness in splotches over the ground. The acorns crunched underfoot.

In the afternoon, the little colored boys came out on the front lawn and played softball. It really wasn't softball, I guess, because they only had a bat made out of a tree limb, and what was left of a baseball . . . ripped, torn, with strings hanging from the battered cover. They never complained about the torn ball, or the bat . . . they just played with all the zeal of any bunch of kids . . . yelling and running until they were tired, and then they broke up, and headed back across the fields to their homes.

It was quiet again, and the sun was going down. In the distance you could see the yellow dust swirling with the wind currents, as a car, hidden from view by the cloud, traveled away.

Time here was meaningless. Nothing existed but this one place, and its people and its building. Everything seemed to have life . . . to speak, but yet not speak. Everything told a story . . . not by words but by appearance. There was no grandeur, no white columns, nothing lavish . . . just people, buildings, grass, trees, stirring breeze, and shadows . . . a magnificence incomparable.

Quarters Sometimes Seem To Drag; Azalea Festival Stampede Begins Friday

By DERRY WALKER

The sap is rising. Last Sunday was a pleasure and a relief. It may snow tomorrow, but at least we have had a day or two bearing signs of a deteriorating winter. Seems hard to believe that it has been six months since Homecoming, and three months since Christmas. Quarters seem to drag at times, but time somehow manages to slip by in a hurry.

I wouldn't begin to elaborate on the various preparations for the Azalea Festival. The stampede will begin Friday afternoon for most EC students. Cars and trucks loaded with men, women, blankets, jugs, suitcases, just plain cases, sleeping bags (that will be neglected), portable radios, cameras, sun lotion, no-doz tablets, and various blends of luxury items, will begin the annual pilgrimage.

Have you ever noticed the old colored man who walks around picking up paper on campus? He wears a defeated felt hat and blue denim overalls with matching jacket, and he uses a long wooden stick with a nail in the end of it to perform his duties. I've been around this place for four years, and I remember having seen him all four of them. He's probably been here longer than that. Now there is the ideal occupation. No worries, no troubles; just walk around and . . . smack . . . pick up a piece of paper; then . . . smack . . . pick up another. He will always have a job because there will always be paper. He is his own boss, and he can pick the paper up any way he sees fit. He's got it made.

Note to Fred Ragan, C. W. Warrick Jr., and James K. Hall, (and other members of the intelligence department of the East Carolina Gravel-crunchers Association:

Gentlemen, please! Stop boning up on the art of the open palm and bayonets. Judging from the great chagrin displayed (with a somewhat superfluous vocabulary) in your letter to the editor last week, I assume that you mistook a facetious comment for slander. Frankly, I don't care whether you got the flowers from the president's lawn or from Gravel Gertie; however, it seems that there are persons who do, and just to set the record straight, I have infinite confidence in the integrity of the Veteran's Organization. I don't believe that you would ravish anyone's jonquil bed, or any other kind. For anyone who has accepted my humor as truth, by all means, man, you have my apology, and my sympathy. Parade rest.

Bucs Split Pair With Yale

The East Carolina baseball team split a pair of games with Ivy League representative Yale on Monday and Tuesday, winning the first contest by a 7-2 margin, and dropping the second game to the northerners 12-6.

Sophomore pitcher Larry Crayton earned his first victory in the Pirates home opener on Monday, while Johnny Ellen, also a sophomore, was credited with the Tuesday afternoon loss.

Giving his Yale visitors a sporting chance, Crayton had control trouble most of the day, walking seven, but each time squirmed out of the Bulldogs grip with some tight clutch pitching. The stocky southpaw also struck out seven, and left eleven Yale runners stranded on base.

East Carolina, playing before a home crowd estimated at close to 500, exploded for three runs in the first inning to take a lead it never relinquished.

With one out, Jimmy Martin tapped out a single sandwiched between walks to Wilber Casteloe and Gary Pierce. An infield throwing error allowed Wally Cockrell to reach first and Casteloe to score from third. Martin was thrown out at home on Glenn Bass' grounder but right fielder Jerry Carpenter sent two runners across the plate with a long double to right-center.

Yale committed two costly errors in the fifth inning to allow EC to add one more tally. In the sixth, the Pirates capitalized on Yale wildness to score three more runs and sew up their first victory.

Casteloe and Pierce reached base on singles and with two out, reliever Tony Murphy lost all conception of the whereabouts of home plate, walking four straight batters and cutting loose with a wild pitch that let in another run. Murphy finally got out of the jam when Crayton grounded out.

Yale, still rejoicing over three impressive victories at Camp Lejeune, scored single runs in the second and fourth innings but were never able to hit Crayton with any consistency.

The Bulldogs scored in the second when Pete Lindley led off with a looping double to center field and scampered home on Paul Porvasnik's single to left. Then Crayton eliminated the Yale threat by forcing the next two players to pop up.

Two walks and a sacrifice put the Greensboro native in trouble once again in the fourth, but the infield grounders by Bill Leckanby and Herb Hodos produced only one run.

In becoming the first East Carolina pitcher to go the route this season, Crayton scattered five hits in the seven-inning game. It was his eighth victory in an EC uniform, winning seven of eight decisions last year.

The Bucs touched loser Bill Leckanby for five hits and added two more off his successor, Tony Murphy. Gary Pierce, the conference's top batter in 1956, collected two hits in the victory while the others were sprinkled over the Pirate lineup.

Besides Carpenter's double, Spencer Gaylord had the only other extra base blow for the Bucs. A sophomore, Gaylord slapped a triple in the second inning.

Lindley had a two-bagger for Yale in the second and Hodos did likewise in the third.

In Tuesday afternoon's game, a cloudburst hindered Johnny Ellen in the top half of the first inning, in which Yale was able to put across six big runs.

The Pirates came back in the last half of the first to score four runs but to no avail.

Track Team Drops Tournament Proves Season Opener To Successful Event

The East Carolina track team's 1960 debut was spoiled by Atlantic Christian College when the Bulldogs squeaked by the Pirates by a score of 68-63.

The Pirates took seven first places, five second places, and eight third places in the meet.

Leading the point-getters for the Pirates was Richard Stevens who scored 17 points and helped win the mile relay.

East Carolina's first places were taken by the following people:

Mile—T. C. Godwin
440-yard dash—Sonny Basinger
220-yard low hurdles—Cedric Johnson

Broad Jump—Ron Knouse

Pole vault—Richard Stevens

Javelin—Cedric Johnson

Mile relay—Sonny Basinger, Nick Hildreth, Mac Seymore and Richard Stevens.

Ron Knouse broke the East Carolina College school record for the discus but came in second in that event.

"We did a real good job considering the amount of work that the weather has allowed us to put in," remarked Coach Gary Mattocks. He also said that the track team lacked depth, and that he would welcome any additional interested men who would like to participate in track to practice with the team. Practice is held every afternoon at 3:30 on the field across the road from Jones Hall.

Tournament Proves Successful Event

The Women's Singles Spring Quarter Table Tennis Tournament, held March 23, in the College Union, featured the best play of any women's table tennis event this year.

Sonia Azam, the Fall Quarter champion, finally took the title, by defeating Ramona Kilpatrick and Judy Ballance in a special play-off.

In this play-off Azam had little trouble in hitting and chopping Ballance down, winning 21-5, thus reversing the results of the regular play.

In which Ballance had defeated Azam 21-16, 9-21, 22-20. However, the hard hit forehand drives and backhand kill shots of Kilpatrick forced Azam to make return after return from 10-12 feet back of the table, before her consistent retrieving defense finally allowed her to win the game 23-21, in what was the tourney's most spectacular match.

Ballance then reversed the results of the regular play herself, by defeating Kilpatrick 21-11, with her blocking defense and forehand drives, to take second place in this event.

In the regular round-robin play Azam's defense had worn down Kilpatrick's attack 21-19, 21-16, while Ballance was winning a close match from the defense of Pat Adams 25-23, 21-19. Kilpatrick had defeated Ballance 21-9, 21-10, with her backhand push shots and forehand smashes, after Ballance had defeated Azam 22-20 with a net point and a forehand drive.

Pirates Place Third In NAIA; Kingery Shines

Southern Illinois University, competing for the first time since 1957, walked off with the fourth annual NAIA National Swimming and Diving Championships held at Ball State College March 17-18.

Located at Carbondale, Ill., and coached by Ralph Casey, Southern won both relays, nine of 14 individual events and established 10 of 11 new records in finals events. The Salukis had balance-plus, scoring two men in the top six in 12 of the 14 individual events including three men in four events.

Southern piled up a grand total of 150 1/2 points, far out in front of North Central College's 87 1/2, defending champion East Carolina's 55 and Detroit Institute of Technology's 44.

Other scores in the meet were: Slippery Rock State Teachers College 13 1/2; Ball State 12; Central State 12; Tennessee A & I 5; Kansas State of Emporia 4; Wisconsin State of LaCrosse 4; Gustavus Adolphus 3; Morehouse College 2 1/2; Kansas State of Pittsburg 2; and Augustana 1. Earlham College and Howard University failed to score, and Hamline University entered the meet but did not appear.

In all, there were 50 NAIA and Ball State pool records re-established during the two-day meet, most of them the "shattering" victory. Included in the 50 were marks set in preliminaries.

Southern Illinois owned four swimmers who scored doubles in the meet, and all four men accounted for new pool records. Walt Rodgers, 19-year-old sophomore from Lenoir Hills, Md., won the 1500 meter freestyle and the 200-yard individual medley in times of 19:16.5 and 2:14.1.

Bert Rumpel, 26-year-old junior from Schweinfurt, Germany and captain of the squad, easily won the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke events; Ray Padovan, 18, a freshman from North Miami, Fla., won the 50- and 100-yard freestyles; and Ron Ballatore, 19, a sophomore from Chicago, Ill., copped the 200- and 100-yard backstroke races.

Rodgers, in addition to his victories, placed third in the 440-yard freestyle while the other three men were members of winning and record-setting relay foursomes Rumpel and Ballatore swam on the 400-yard Medley relay team, while Padovan was anchor man on the 400-yard freestyle relay quartet.

Paul Wachendorfer, another Saluki, won and set a record in the 100-yard butterfly. Wachendorfer is 22 and a junior from Rome, Italy.

Only three men managed to wrestle away from the powerful Southern swimmers. Richard Blick, North Central, and Bob Kingery, East Carolina, did it and scored doubles. Ernie Alix, also of North Central, won a single event.

Blick eased to victories in the 220- and 440-yard freestyles, events he won in 1956, but he was forced to take a second to Padovan in the 100, another event Blick had won last year.

Kingery easily outclassed a good field of divers in the one and three-

PIRATE'S DEN

By LEONARD LAO

The two games that the EC baseball team was scheduled to play against Springfield College were called off because a couple of the Springfield players were injured during their stay at Camp Lejeune.

Richmond - ECC Tilt

The possibilities of a football contest between the University of Richmond and the Pirates of EC seems to be very much within reach. The contest were to come about, it would be played on Pirate soil and Nov. 19, an open date on the Buc football schedule. The game would not only help East Carolina on the road to becoming a member of the Southern Conference. The Virginia school is willing to make the game possible and is also willing to give East Carolina the chance to show whether it is capable of supporting a team in the larger conference.

From this corner it appears to be up to the citizens of eastern Virginia as well as the student body of East Carolina College, whether we make it into the Southern Conference. This larger conference would have to be supported in a bigger and better way than North Carolina Conference athletics have been in past years. We have the personnel to be a competitor in the Southern Conference, and with a little support from our sides we should be members.

Wilt The Stilt Quits

Wilt Chamberlain, formerly of the Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Association, quit the Pennsylvania team last week. The seven-foot, one-inch Negro star, who has only played in the N.B.A. one year, is already a basketball legend.

He had the highest per-game scoring average at 37.6, the highest rebounding average, the greatest number of total points, and the greatest number of total rebounds. But Wilt (THE STILT) did more than just set records. The basketball great was also the figure that increased the league attendance mark by 23 per cent.

Many fans will sympathize with the fact that Chamberlain quit an unnecessary beating in his first season in the N.B.A. Almost all ribs show the effects of many well-thrown elbows, and in one game his mouth was badly gashed. Chamberlain feels that if he continues to be pros, that he may have to resort to physical violence. Even though Chamberlain was not entirely innocent in handing back a little rough stuff (what pro is), he was still not as aggressive as Coach Neil Johnston would have liked him to be.

Chamberlain's temper finally did overboil in the playoffs against Tom Heinson of the Boston Celtics. All Wilt gained out of the ordeal was a badly swollen right hand which greatly reduced his shooting.

If the basketball world loses Wilt Chamberlain it has lost one of its greatest sports figures in the history of competitive athletics.

SPORTS SHORTS . . . This corner extends congratulations to four well-known figures in the Physical Education department. They are George Tucker, Wendell Carr, Gary Mattocks, and Lee Atkinson. All will be taking over the coaching duties of a spring sport. Tucker will be the golf team; Carr, the tennis team (who opened their season March against Cornell University); and Mattocks and Atkinson will share the duties of tutoring the track team. . . . Gary Pierce, All-Conference leftfielder for the Pirate baseball team, seems to be taking up where he left off last season in the conference batting race. The husky Pirate is the leading hitter in the league last year when he hit at better than .400 clip. So far this season the outfielder has collected a four-bagger and two doubles to lead the Pirates at the plate.

meter competition. He scored 42 points in the one meter and soared to 420 in three meter diving. His three meter total exceeds what he had previously been the high scorer of the event (403.3), but it is not considered a record.

Alix, who won two events last year, finished on top only in the 200-meter butterfly this trip. His 2:14.6 time was a new record, however, better than his own former mark of 2:19.8.
