Twelve East Carolina College students left yesterday afternoon to represent East Carolina at State Student Legislature.

The students will stay in the Sir Walter Raleigh Hotel in Raleigh and will participate in mock meetings of the Legislature in the State Capitol building.

Among the delegates will be representatives of University of North Carolina, North Carolina State College, Wake Forest College, and many other schools.

The students representing E.C.C. will be Jim Speight, Nancy Coggins, Charlie Mann, Evelyn Crutchfield, Otto Strohman, Mary John Best, Sue Spackman, Jayne Chandler, Barney West, Raymond Gillikin, Bobby Ward, and Merle Summers.

The E.C.C. representatives have agreed to present a bill for adoption in the North Carolina State Students Legislature.

Following is the bill in its entirety:

WHEREAS it has become in the course of present events an accepted right of men and women to exercise their wills in determining the birth of offspring.

WHEREAS the dissemination of information concerning the exercise of these rights has been interfered with and forbidden in certain areas of our country.

WHEREAS the burden of unwanted children are increasingly laid upon the state or local welfare agencies and are a costly tax burden upon all citizens and,

WHEREAS the children of such unfortunate events greatly suffer the lack of affection and material needs.

Be it resolved by the North Carolina State Student Legislature that:

1. All states repeal any statutes which forbid the free dissemination of information with regard to all birth control methods and free use thereof.

2. A Federal Agency under the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare be established to provide such information as might be deemed advisable and useful.

3. This agency shall furnish aid to local and state welfare agencies to provide funds for the sterilization of those who voluntarily submit to such and are found to be in need of such treatment by local welfare agencies.

Faculty Tourists United At Weekend Dinner

East Carolina faculty members who traveled in Europe last summer on the Grand Circle Tour sponsored by the college Extension Division entertained members of the group and other guests during the weekend at a reunion including a buffet dinner and a showing of slides and movies made on the trip.

Mrs. Myrtle B. Clark, director of the tour, Mrs. Lily Rouse Carr, H. F. Dade, and Ruby Edens were hosts at the dinner Saturday night in Erwin Hall. Mrs. Clark entertained at a breakfast at her home Sunday morning.

'Rebel' Announces Writing Contest

"Since last year's contest was so successful," announced Roy Martin, Rebel editor, concerning the writing contest, "we felt that another such competition would bring about more interest in the literary magazine."

This year's contest calls for short stories, essays, and poetry. Any student is eligible to submit his literary work. A prize of five dollars will be given to the winner whose story will be published in the Spring issue.

"We hope that many students will enter this contest," stated Mr. Martin, "and we urge everyone to try their hand at writing."

In the fall issue of the Rebel Harry Golden was interviewed and the present Rebel plans call for a continuation of this interview. "We have many changes in mind for the coming issue. We are coming along very rapidly in accumulating excellent material for the next issue," continued the Rebel editor. "The Winter issue should be the largest volume in the history of its publication."

Annual 'Messiah' To Be Given Sunday In Wright Auditorium

Soloists for the annual performance of Handel's "The Messiah" have been announced by Dr. Carl T. Hjortsvang of the department of music, director of the oratorio. Seven students of voice, chosen by members of the college department of music as soloists, will sing arias in the presentation of the Handel work Sunday, Dec. 11, at 3:30 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

Sopranos are Betsy M. Hancock, Jessamine Hiatt, Marjorie Kennedy Moore, and Patricia Lane Roberts. Mrs. Martha Bradner will sing alto arias.

Peter R. Johl, tenor, and Ronald J. Knouse, bass, will appear in arias for men's voices.

Miss Roberts in 1959 and Mrs. Bradner in 1957 and 1958 were soloists in performances of "The Messiah" at East Carolina.

A chorus of approximately a hundred voices has rehearsed under Dr. Hjortsvang's direction since October. Accompaniment for "The Messiah"

Kilgore, Johl Star In Christopher Fry's 'The Lady's Not For Burning'

With Priscilla Kilgore and Peter Johl in the leading roles, Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not For Burning" will open tonight at 8:00 p.m. for presentation by East Carolina in McGinnis Auditorium for a three-day run.

Miss Kilgore was co-founder and co-producer and for seven years owner of the Barksdale Memorial Theatre at Hanover, Va. For a season she was with "Rounders on the River," summer stock company, St. Clair, Michigan. For WTVR, Richmond, Va., she did commercials and had her own show "Perky's Parlor."

She has also made documentary films for Tautamout Studios in Richmond. Johl, student of music at East Carolina, received training in the American Theatre Wing and the Juillard School of Music. From 1954 to 1959 he played more than a dozen roles in musical comedy stock in Hyannis, Mass.; Kansas City; Toronto; and North Tonawanda, N. Y. In 1959-1960 he toured with the Grass Roots Opera Company. He has had experience as stage manager in productions at Syracuse and Rochester, N. Y., and elsewhere. He is a member of Actor's Equity Association and the Screen Actor's Guild.

In Fry's comedy of England in 1400 Johl has the role of Thomas Mendip, discharged soldier whose wish to be hanged arises from his revulsion from the world's wrongs. Miss Kilgore plays Jenet Jourdemayne, accused of witchcraft.

Dr. Robert T. Rickert, acting director of the East Carolina Playhouse, is director of "The Lady's Not for Burning." His student assistants are Ben Avery and Rose Gorto. Costumes for the play were designed by Dr. Corrinne Rickert of the college faculty, and scenery was designed by art students working under the direction of Paul Minnis of the art department.

Others who will appear in the cast of the play are Carole Barham, James Bateman, Lois Garen, Sanford Peele, Douglas Mitchell, Thomas Hull and Pierre Benmouyal.

California Group Votes To End Controversy

BERKELEY, CALIFORNIA (UPS) University of California students voted last week to retain Student Government Executive Committee (ExCom) control of the Daily Californian and to retract ExCom's acceptance of the Daily senior staff resignations, thus ending the month long Berkeley controversy.

The former Daily editors, who resigned last month after a row with ExCom, will continue to produce the Independent Californian on a weekly basis.

The west coast uproar developed over a month ago when Daily Californian editors endorsed a candidate for an ExCom post. ExCom disapproved of this move and exercised its prerogative as legal publisher of the paper to prevent such actions from recurring. The editors then resigned in protest and set up their own paper, the Independent Californian.

In mailing, it is not necessary to attach a stamp as long as students use the college post office. The questionnaires should be mailed to Dr. Napp at box 36.

Tri Sigma Purchases First Sorority House At ECC

Sigma Sigma Sigma became the first East Carolina sorority to acquire a chapter house when they purchased the Skinner home on Fifth Street here in town last Friday.

The group, 41 strong, has announced tentative plans for occupation of the house beginning spring quarter.

A sorority spokesman said this week that the house is already furnished and will need only minor repairs to adapt it for sorority occupation.

Tri Sigma's National Officers were notified and approved the fact that the Gamma Betas were interested in a house, and they were willing to take the initiative to get sorority housing approved at East Carolina. Mrs. Chester Kyle, Tri Sigma's Collegiate Secretary, and Mrs. Ray Minges, Gamma Beta's Alumnae Advisor, visited Dr. Leo Jenkins, who was very cooperative and approved the housing.

Sororities Begin Rush Season With Dance, Convocation

East Carolina's social fraternities joined with the eight sororities on campus November 29 to help stimulate interest in the annual formal rush being held by the girls.

Rush was started by a sock hop in the college gymnasium. Prospective rushees were escorted from their dormitories to the gym by sorority girls to dance and share social activities with the Greeks.

Mike Katsias presided as Master of Ceremonies for a number of songs and skits presented by the fraternity men.

A convocation for all freshmen girls and others interested in entering formal rush was sponsored by the Panhellenic Council.

Speaking to the assembly of sorority women and prospective rushees, Miss Ruth White, Dean of Women, explained "What it means to be a sorority member."

Each of the presidents of the eight sororities were introduced by Jaye Finnegan, Panhellenic president, and given an opportunity to speak on their respective sororities.

Following the presidents' talks, the 125 prospective rushees were given the necessary blanks to fill out and complete in preparation for formal rush which is to be held the third week in January.

'On A Lonesome Porch' Wins Second 'Raleigh' Award For Author Ovid Pierce

Among the four North Carolinians winning top literary awards of the N.C. Literary and Historical Association was Mr. Ovid Pierce of the English department for his novel On A Lonesome Porch. This is the second time Mr. Pierce has won the Sir Walter Raleigh award.

Mr. Pierce won his first "Raleigh" award in 1954 for his first novel, The Plantation. This novel also received good reviews and was brought out in a French edition a year after its publication.

Ring Sale

Lee H. Blackwell, Balfour Representative, will be in the College Union Tuesday, December 13th, 9 a.m.-4 p.m. to take orders for class rings and to make adjustments and corrections of rings.

Pierce joined the faculty of East Carolina in 1956. He has restored a house on his farm near Weldon and spends most of his weekends there writing and engaging in the interests of a landowner.

While at Duke University where he graduated in 1932, Mr. Pierce edited The Archive, the campus literary magazine. He later attended Harvard where he received his masters degree in English. At Harvard Pierce studied with Pulitzer Prize winner Robert Hillier. Following graduation he returned to Weldon, where he wrote his first novel.

Mr. Pierce served with the Army during World War II and was stationed on the Mexican Border for awhile then served with counter intelligence in Puerto Rico, Trinidad, Haiti and British Guiana.

Recently he was honored in Greenville during the Fine Arts Festival. April 30 was proclaimed "Ovid Pierce Day" and a luncheon was held in his honor. Many writers including Henry Belk, Inglis Fletcher, and Thad Stem came to pay tribute to him.

Peace Corps Signifies Hope For World Peace

In the pre-election months crammed with the usual hot air proposals, promises, compromising political maneuvers, and political 'hogwash' one proposal was made which stood out much like a rose bush in a stockyard. The proposal to which we refer is the United States Peace Corps offered originally by Democrat Senators Humphrey and Reuss, and later strongly supported by Senator John Kennedy, now President-elect.

The Peace Corps, if established, will include "a body of young men and women of above-average intelligence and zeal" to enlist for a period of three to five years in a type of foreign service. One year would be devoted to intensive training in the needs, language, interests, and culture of a country. The remaining time would be spent participating in both government and private technical assistance programs in that country. They would probably be utilized in the village and rural areas where their semi-skilled labor could prove most useful. This service would count as an alternative to peace time selective service.

This program, we feel, is the most rational, most useful, and most progressive one proposed in many years. Instead of learning to throw grenades, men may learn to distribute fertilizer; they can drive bulldozers instead of tanks; learn to build irrigation ditches instead of becoming demolition experts. Would it not be better to learn to utilize the $50,000.00 each it costs to kill a man (World War II figures as quoted from J.H.S. Bossard in the American Sociological Review) to help those who beg for food (or worse, those who must pimp for their relatives to live) in some countries than to use it learning more efficient ways to pour men's blood into the dust with motor oil, tobacco spit, dogs' urine and those other things that commonly soak into the dust.

Are not men's lives more valuable than nuclear devices that kill 75,000 in one blast (as happened at Hiroshima). According to Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statistics over 9,125,000 men were killed in World War II. Multiply this by the $50,000.00 each it cost to kill them and try to imagine what this much money could have done if it had been spent on education, or housing, or scientific research or a hundred other things. We think this makes our point: as Ernest Hemingway said, "In modern war there is nothing sweet nor fitting in your dying. You die like a dog for no good reason."

We realize the Peace Corps could not bring about world peace overnight. However, it could be the first of a number of steps to bring about better understanding between nations. Who is better able to accept the differences in culture, understand the diversity of problems, and learn to live in harmony with other people of the world than the youth of America? In our own country college students have taken the lead, in most cases, to understand and satisfy the differences bred toward a minority group for over a century.

Very few exchange students return with anything but admiration for the country in which they have studied . . . and we have heard of no cases of malice toward these countries. What better diplomat could we have than a young one whose prejudices are not so deep rooted, whose political ambitions are limited, and who stands to die in a war that "will" end wars if his diplomacy fails. We feel the youth of America and of the world do not want war and will do anything to prevent it. The Peace Corps is one way of letting them try to prevent it. Men trained to work for good will be able to do more for the world than men trained to kill.

There is nothing noble about learning to effectively use a flame thrower. There is no honor in being an expert at opening a man's stomach with a bayonet so his entrails will run out. There are titles more worthy than "The best trained fighting man in the world."

We feel that if the new president succeeds in establishing this Peace Corps to work effectively (and we see no reason why it shouldn't work) he will have accomplished more for world peace and American security than the combined measures taken since the last war.

"They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Concert Reviewed As 'Commendable'

By JAMES H. PARNELL

Sunday afternoon a large and appreciative audience gathered in the Wright Auditorium for the 1960-61 debut of the East Carolina College Orchestra under the able direction of Donald H. Hayes. Throughout the concert the orchestra proved once again that it can present commendable performances of music of all styles.

The program opened with a rather cautious rendition of the First Movement of Brahms' Second Symphony. Mr. Hayes and the members of the orchestra placed great emphasis upon the lyrical qualities of this music, but, in so doing, the rhythmic and dramatic elements seemed to be somewhat lax. Many professional musicians contend that the music of Brahms is among the most difficult to perform correctly; however, the ECC Orchestra presented a satisfactory account of this masterpiece.

After a sensitive performance of excerpts from Handel's "Water Music," the group turned to a contemporary American work—in this reviewer's estimation the highlight of the concert. John Barnes Chance, a young Texas-born composer who is a "composer in residence" at Greensboro this year, conducted the orchestra in a stirring presentation of his Symphony.

It is the policy of the ECC Orchestra to champion the works of our American composers, and the Entertainment Series is to be congratulated for its efforts in bringing these composers to our campus to conduct their own compositions. The Chance Symphony reminded this listener of Shostakovich and Prokofiev; but it contained much original material in the true American idiom. This number is characterized by good melodic content, contemporary scoring devices, and a strong rhythmic drive. It will be interesting to follow Mr. Chance's future development as a composer.

Following the intermission, Mr. Hayes returned to lead his forces in an authentic account of the "Emperor Waltz" of Johann Strauss. To close this successful concert, the orchestra—complete with solo speakers and a speaking chorus—performed the "Declaration Suite" by the American composer Morton Gould. Mr. Gould is noted for his excellent arrangements and colorful orchestration. Although this work does not appear to be one of his better compositions, it does contain some rather exciting passages. It is a difficult piece, and it requires the utmost in performing skill by all concerned.

In summary, this initial orchestral concert of the 1960-61 academic year proved to be a very satisfying experience. There were, of course, occasional intonation difficulties, some faulty entrances, and problems of balance (some due to the acoustics of the auditorium); but, these were overshadowed by many notable examples of fine musicianship.

Mention should be made of the outstanding work by the trombone section. However, it was the combined effort by the entire orchestra and its conductors which produced this interesting program.

There was one disturbing factor during the concert: audience noise. There were many late arrivals, and the resulting noise and confusion made it almost impossible to enjoy the soft portions of the Brahms and Handel compositions. Perhaps as the concert season progresses, our concert etiquette will show improvement.

EC Senior, Rachael Spivey, Dies In Automobile Wreck

An East Carolina College coed was fatally injured in an automobile wreck last Sunday afternoon. Edith Rachel Spivey, who was on her way back to campus from her home in Hertford. Driving the car was Jennette Williams.

She and Shelby Overton, who was a passenger in the car, were only slightly injured. Miss Spivey was a member of Rho Zeta chapter of Chi Omega Sorority. She was editor of the chapter Chi Omega newsletter. She was a Marshal and a member of the Y.W.C.A. for three years. Miss Spivey was a member of the Buccaneer for three years and was editor of the class section this year. She was a member of the Home Economics club for three years, also. She was currently Chairman of the Fleming Hall Social Committee, in the Young Democrats Club, and a member of the College Union Student Board. She was an academic "B" student.

Miss Spivey was a member of the New Hope Methodist Church near Hertford. In high school she was editor of the yearbook, the newspaper staff, the Beta Club, the F.H.A., the 4-H club, the basketball team, the Glee Club, the most outstanding student, and her school's representative in the Azalea festival. She was a member of the State 4-H Honor Club, and attended the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Ill., as State Home Improvement winner. Miss Spivey was runner-up in the Miss Greenville contest last year. Surviving are her parents, Mr.

Student Feels Apologetic For Conduct Of Others

Dear Editor:

A short time after enrolling at East Carolina, I became acquainted with the phrase used in the cheers of rival schools during athletic contests describing E.C. as "high school." It was the immature conduct of a number of students from our school following the East Carolina-High Point game that made me realize why our student body might be classified by outsiders in such terminology.

I am disturbed that I cannot choose to associate with fraternity brothers and friends from an opposing school during an athletic contest without having to apologize for the distasteful conduct displayed by fans from my own school. I regret to have to admit to my friends and those outside, who must judge any group by what they see, that a part of the student body at E.C. could appropriately be labeled as "high school."

I feel that any man who will make another have to apologize for conditions at his school is definitely a menace to that school and to his associates.

Jerry W. Moore

Coed Defends Concert

Dear Editor:

Mr. Philip Williamson asked for answers to his questions concerning the concert by the Atlanta Symphony.

Perhaps his comment that the orchestra members were not enthusiastic was not justified, considering the fact that there were so many unnecessary noises both in the audience and outside the building. It is amazing that the musicians could hear themselves, much less be enthusiastic.

As for the closing of the Student Union, Mr. Williamson apparently was not thinking of the people who work. If the Student Union should remain open, someone would have to miss the educational, cultural, and entertaining activities on our campus. In addition, the detracting noises would probably be even greater when the activities are in Wright Auditorium.

Mr. Williamson's question about the compositions played on the concert tells me that if he were really interested in developing his listening knowledge of classical music, he would be interested in hearing something besides the two symphonies or the three sonatas with which he is already familiar. If every musical organization played only music which Mr. Williamson knows, then how would he ever grow in his knowledge of the musical world?

Most sincerely,

Betsy Orr

Is Minority Superior?

To the Editor:

While ambling along the left bank of the Tar river t'other day on the way to pick up my welfare check, I was inspired to write the following poem. I feel it is publishable, since the type of which I am speaking comes from my impression of the typical E.C. student as gathered from the pages of the East Carolinian. This part of a larger work I plan to publish entitled "A Pithy Pitful of Pungent Perversity." This poem is called "Who Put The Petunias In The Deep-freeze" or "Kennst du es Wahl?" and is dedicated to all fraternity boys who can read words of two or more syllables:

In their Ivy league togs
Complete with rainproof Fogs,
Knowledge-proof brains
Which keep out the rains;
They seek their kindred kinds
With button-down minds
In Playboy like joints
And gather activity points.
Therefore
I think there's no superiority
In the minority;
Life's for idiots—
Let's get with it-s!

Wayne State University Limits Facilities To Specific Groups

DETROIT, MICHIGAN (UPS) After a month of meetings and discussions, Wayne State University has issued a statement defining what kind of organizations may use the school's facilities. The Council of Deans unanimously approved seven categories under which groups may use facilities.

The need for such a policy was brought to light last month when suit was brought against the University for attempting to cancel the appearance of Global Book Forum speaker Harvey O'Connor at the McGregor Memorial Center. Circuit Court Judge George Bowles ruled that the denial was "discriminatory and capricious" and in denial of the constitutional rights of the Forum. The University attempted to cancel the engagement on the grounds that it did not "conform with the educational purposes" of McGregor center.

The new policy limits use of school facilities to:

Holiday Season Ushers In New Alcoholic Craze

By JIM STINGLEY, JR.

What's the newest craze around campus? Some might be surprised to hear that it is one which deals with the consumption of alcoholic beverages. It might be called Alcoholic Unanimous.

Now that is a naughty thing to say about our wonderful school, isn't it? But, happily for some, that is the case at present. It is a sort of chain-letter which, if you are lucky enough to have a lot of people interested in it, will get you a grand number of fifths of whiskey. This is truly a boon to our "participating populous" and a grand way to make the forthcoming holidays really gay and filled with cheer. Of course it may result in rather drastic after-effects but one must realize that life is a gamble.

My, my, we're becoming almost as fluid-minded as U.N.C. Of course, to gain such a reputation as theirs we'll have to work a bit harder, but it can be done. Half of the fellows on my hall are near-alcoholics anyway, so this shouldn't be too much of a problem.

But what about those who don't? What will these poor people be doing during the holidays to enjoy themselves. Could it be that they have a method better than the one that is now circulating. Horrors, Hades, and Hinkles! If they do. It could well be a blow to the cause.

Just think, these people may well go through the holidays sober, and enjoy it! And look at all the things they will miss; headaches, upset stomachs, jail, horrified parents, road-map eyes, and many other wonderful things which come along with this habit of alcoholic consumption.

Well, don't let this stop you from having your fun. Remember, your reputation is at stake, and this must be fulfilled. Have a merry holiday season, and may all your drugstores be filled with Alka-Seltzer and aspirin.

School Spirit Needs New Channel Outlet

By RUTH JOHNSON

The East Carolina Pirates closed the 1960 season with an exciting victory over the University of Richmond Spiders. The fans cheered, the coach was carried off the field, then everyone went their separate ways to talk of other things.

What did they have to say about the wonderful 7-victory, 3-defeat season? What praises were heaped upon the Coach? Concerning these there was a curious silence. A victorious season was taken as a matter of course. It is pitiful, the small amount of enthusiasm exhibited over the fact.

But . . . what if the facts were different? Suppose it had been a 3-victory, 7-defeat season. This would not be taken so lightly. Oh, no, there would be cries of "Hang the Coach" and the students would be enthusiastically indignant at such a poor season.

Why can't the students of East Carolina College show some spirit in the right direction? Why not do something big that would help get E.C.C. "known"? Good publicity would not harm our chances for the Southern Conference.

Why talk about "We'ness," why not take some action that would show our pride and appreciation of our coach? He works long hours, receives little material reward, and bears the brunt of much more criticism when we're down than praise when we're up.

A small contribution from each student would allow us to present the coach with a new car. This is BIG, certainly it's big, but we're a big school and to get anywhere it's up to us to let other people know it!

'Blue Sweater' Kid Disregards Audience

By ROY MARTIN

She came into the tavern alone. A small figure, she wore a faded pair of brown slacks and a blue sweater underneath a gray coat.

Immediately, heads began to turn. You could see people leaning over and whispering to one another. Some stared. Others glanced back and forth from the woman to the people at their table.

She walked over to the cigarette machine in the corner. First she took off her coat, laying it across the top of the machine. Then she took several packages which she had had at her feet, and she placed them on top of the coat. Many of the people in the tavern were still watching her. Some whispered. Others pointed discreetly.

After she had arranged her articles, she walked over to the counter, where she seated herself upon one of the stools. She talked to the waiter so loud you could hear her all over the place. The waiter went off to fill her order. She began toying with the items in front of her . . . the salt shaker and the selection outlet for the juke-box. She talked to the people around her as though she had known them all of her life.

She drew her legs up under her, sitting on the counter stool Chinese-style. Now, many of the people in the tavern began to chuckle softly.

She had ordered a beer. The waiter brought it to her, and set it down before her. She picked up the bottle and poured about three-fourths of the contents into the frosty glass. She downed it all in a long series of swallows.

When she finished the beer, she ordered another. She struck up a conversation with the man sitting next to her. One of them must have said something funny, because suddenly the two of them began to laugh loudly. The people in the place didn't point, laugh, or even whisper. They just looked at the two in wonder, as if they were crazy or something.

Soon, the waiter brought her the second beer. She finished it in the same fashion as she did the first. She got off the counter stool, slapped the man next to her on the back, and walked over to the cigarette machine. She put on her coat, stuffed the packages under her arm and walked out the door. The eyes of the people in the tavern followed her as she left. She never seemed to know they were watching her.

Americans Lose Spirit Of Christmas In Hustle

By PAT FARMER

Christmas denotes to many individuals a religious holiday which is celebrated on the twenty-fifth day of December to commemorate the birth of Christ. Yet in this day and time, Christmas has become a mockery of religious ideals. Christmas parades are staged in the latter part of October and in early November to encourage consumers to spend their money for thus and so . . . These parades encourage better business for the merchants and the transportation companies . . . Pageants which are held in schools and churches have become ridiculous farces of the Nativity story. These pageants encourage members to support their school or church via monetary means . . . The "organizations" care little about the spiritual salvation of their members' souls. Groups gather on street corners and in front of homes to render religious music in muted alcoholic tones . . . This is the type of Christmas we have come to know and to want . . . We can almost conclude that Americans have become a nation of "non-believers" of religious principles and ideals . . . Religion like Father Time has outgrown its usefulness and is ready for the final act of interment . . .

Christmas no longer means that awe-filled, sacred moment of belief except for the very young and the very old . . . For the individuals who find themselves between this group on the plateau of life, Christmas is the time for gay parties with spiked eggnog and gift exchanging . . . A time for hangovers and a time for sleep . . . This is our Christmas—this is our religious holiday . . . Shall we rejoice in one loud and clear voice or do it individually without a drinking partner??? Shall we petition the government for the abolishment of religious orders??? Shall we make it known to the world—the true identity of the little fat man dressed in red??? All these sound like sane suggestions after witnessing the hypocritical actions of our fellow men . . .

Let's do away with religious orders—after all religion is the crutch of society. Let's tell the world who the man in red is and what he symbolizes . . .

Let's forget Christmas and its meaning. But let's keep the gifts and the parties and the holidays . . .

So Merry Christmas to all, and next year may we have a holiday without all the hustle and bustle of the crowds and the noise . . .

'Weavers' Present Concert At EC

America's most popular folk-singing group, The Weavers, recently presented a folk music concert at East Carolina. This program was the fourth attraction on the 1960-1961 Entertainment Series at the college.

The quartet, which has proved to be a solid sellout attraction in concert halls throughout the country, has played a notable part in the re-discovery of the treasury of American folk song. Each member of the foursome is a soloist in his or her own right.

The repertoire of The Weavers includes well over four hundred songs. Among these are work songs, blues, ballads, tell tale songs, dance songs, spirituals, national songs, and songs of war, peace, and friendship. Their staging is combined with fine instrumental work of guitar and banjo for melodic and rousing effect.

The Weavers have appeared at major concert halls in this country as well as Canada and Europe and Israel. For the past few years, they have devoted their work to concerts and recordings. Their records for Vanguard continue to be best sellers.

Student Information Service Places College Students In Summer European Positions

The American Student Information Service has just completed its second large scale year of operation in placing American college students in summer jobs in Europe. The demand for summer jobs on the European continent has prompted ASIS to enlarge its facilities to the extent that it can now offer several thousand paying summer jobs to American college students. The jobs pay the standard wage of the country in which they are located and are available in Germany, France, England, Israel, Spain, Switzerland, and Scandinavia.

Openings include farm work, construction work, resort work, factory work, hospital work, and a few selected office jobs for those who have a working knowledge of German or French.

ASIS, a non-profit organization, also helps American college students arrange low-cost travel to and from Europe, provides a mail forwarding service, fascinating inside information on Europe, and many recreational and educational activities.

Artists Present Ceramics At Center

Works by Dr. Kenneth Beittel and Dr. Robert Berkhart, ceramic artists, are now being displayed at the Greenville Art Center and on the campus. The major part of the exhibition is at the Art Center. A sampling of the show is on view in the display cases at the entrance of the Rawl building.

The art department is sponsoring the pottery exhibit in cooperation with the Greenville Art Center.

Dr. Beittel teaches at Pennsylvania State University, State College, Pennsylvania. Dr. Berkhart teaches at Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, Michigan. These two artists operate a studio pottery each summer.

The pottery on display in the Art Center shows variety in size, shape, and approach to the function of the object. Attracting particular interest is a collection of candlesticks. Some of these are traditional in design. Others are unusual because of the daring height achieved by means of piling up clay forms on top of one another.

Composer Barnes Discusses Visit, Musical Career, His Achievements

By MARCELLE VOGEL

East Carolina College had as its guest last weekend John Barnes Chance, a young American composer. His primary purpose in coming to the college was to conduct the East Carolina Orchestra in one of his own compositions, "Symphony."

Mr. Chance said, "I started playing the piano when I was nine years old, and I took piano lessons from my neighbor across the street, who was one of the town's better piano teachers." Chance made rapid progress as a pianist and received a very thorough grounding in basic theory. In high school he became interested in composing, and while still in high school his works included a First Movement in a Symphony. He also played the percussion instruments in the high school orchestra.

Chance received his BM and MM Degrees from the University of Texas, where he majored in percussion. He continued to compose in college and wrote his "Symphony" for his thesis requirement for the masters degree. At the University of Texas, Chance twice won the Carl Owens Award for the best student composition.

Upon joining the Army, Chance served for three years in the Fourth Army Band at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and with the Eighth Army Band in Seoul, Korea, where he arranged for and conducted the band while continuing to write chamber and orchestral music.

The prominent composer said, "I find the best time to compose is early in the morning from 1:00 a.m. to 5:00 a.m. I do much of my composing at the piano," he added. "One of the best investments I ever made," he continued, "was a $15. used piano chair with wheels which made it possible to roll from the piano to the table where I keep my manuscripts. Now, I can work something out on the piano, and then get it swiftly down on paper, without having to bother getting up and down all the time, although it's still hard on the rug!"

Among his compositions, in addition to "Symphony" are chamber music and selections for band and orchestra. A number of his works have been performed by the Oklahoma City Symphony, including the "Symphony" and an "Overture to a Fairy Tale." The latter composition was also performed recently by the Greensboro Symphony Orchestra.

"I have enjoyed visiting East Carolina," said Chance, "and seeing part of the country which is new to me. It has been an honor and a privilege to work with the EC Orchestra." He added, "I hope it's been as much fun for them as it has been for me."

Mr. Chance, a native of Beaumont, Texas, is presently living in Greensboro, N.C., on a Humanities and Arts Grant from the Ford Foundation. This organization provides funds for 12 young American composers to live for a year in different communities throughout the country which have exceptionally good public school music programs. Their main purpose is to compose music within the high school musicians range, and to hear the music played by the young musicians of the community. Other cities in this area which have this program are: Arlington, Virginia; Jacksonville, Florida; and Lexington, Kentucky.

Besides the Chance "Symphony" the College Orchestra, under the direction of Donald Hayes of the Music Department, also performed: "Water Music," by Handel; "Symphony No. 2," by Brahms; "Emperor Waltz," by Strauss; and a special number based on the Declaration of Independence called "Declaration Suite," by Gould. Solo speakers for the Gould number were John Spence, and John H. Wilhs. The speaking chorus was composed of members of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, the National Professional Men's Music Fraternity on campus.

"There are more men than women in mental hospitals, which just goes to show who's driving who crazy," -Peter Veale.

UNC Trip Planned By Math Students

The Math Club plans to visit the University of North Carolina on December 10, 1960, to see the Computing Center located there.

All Math students who desire to go on the trip to U.N.C. for a tour of the center are invited. Those students who desire to go will meet in front of the college post office on Saturday morning at 8:00 a.m. The tour will last for approximately one and one half hours.

Each student will have to pay for his own lunch and a ticket to the Planetarium if they desire to go. They also will be expected to help pay the gas bill of the person driving them to Chapel Hill. The group is supposed to arrive in Chapel Hill by 11:00 a.m. for the tour.

Those who want to go should sign one of the sheets on the math bulletin board.

While on the campus, Chaplain Tindall will consult with Lt. Col. Norman F. Merritt, Jr., professor of science, and members of his staff, with cadets interested in the chaplain's program of the U.S. Air Force and other cadets; and with wives and fiancées of cadets.

He is an ordained minister of the Disciples of Christ Church and his pastorate was in Waynoka, Oklahoma. Commissioned in the US Army Air Corps March 1943, Chaplain Tindall attended the Chaplain's School, Harvard University. During World War II, he served overseas with the 442nd Troop Carrier Group in Europe. He was Base Chaplain at March AFB, Langley AFB, McChord AFB, Hickam AFB and was Staff Chaplain of the 25th Air Division and AF Liaison Chaplain of Arlington National Cemetery.

Chaplain Tindall was awarded the "Four Chaplains Award" in 1953 and the Air Force Commendation Ribbon in 1959.

Wayne State University Loses Contact With Delta Theta Phi

DETROIT, MICHIGAN (UPS)—Wayne State University has withdrawn recognition from the legal fraternity Delta Theta Phi.

The expulsion, which means the fraternity may not use Wayne State facilities for any purpose, was caused by a restrictive clause in the fraternity's national constitution limiting membership to white Christians.

The decision was based on a 1954 faculty ruling which gave Wayne State fraternities and sororities until 1960 to eliminate restrictive clauses.

Wayne State President Clarence B. Hillberry wrote a warning letter to Larry Fowler, fraternity president, this summer. When no action was taken on the letter, the fraternity withdrew recognition.

Two years ago another national law fraternity, Sigma Nu Phi, found they could expect no successful action on the part of their national in removing the restrictive clause.

Sigma Nu Phi then withdrew from their national affiliation. For a year they existed under a local constitution until they joined Phi Alpha Delta, a national law fraternity which has no restrictive clause.

The Delta Theta Phi chapter at the University of Detroit has dissolved for the same reasons.

Y Plans Caroling Party

There will be a Christmas Tree Trimming and Caroling Party on December 8, at 7:00 p.m. in the "Y" Hut sponsored by the YWCA and YMCA.

The "Y" is also sponsoring a Christmas Chapel program which will be on Tuesday, December 13, at 6:30-7:00, in the "Y" Hut. Three student speakers will address the group. Following the program, all of the religious groups on campus and friends will join together for Christmas Caroling.

The "Y" is also planning a Tea for the Foreign Students to be given in the "Y" Hut on January 5, at 7:00.

FBI Inspector Discusses Student Demonstrations

(ACP)—Iowa State Daily quotes the following from the Daily Californian in regard to student demonstrations:

"An FBI inspector told a group of University of California students that 'Bay Area students with unorthodox political views should not be identified with the Communist movement.'"

"The inspector, making reference to the student riots on the West Coast last spring, said, 'Students have a perfect right to organize demonstrations within legal framework. It's part of our whole free structure in this country.'"

Fire Safety Urged By National Board

Families throughout the United States are being urged by the National Board of Fire Underwriters to make Christmas this year a fire safe one.

Last year in the three days beginning at 6 p.m., on Christmas eve, 43 persons lost their lives in fires in this country.

These 43 fatalities were part of 11,300 fire deaths that occurred in 1959.

The count of Christmas fire deaths the last Yule Season was less than in 1958, but the 1958 fatalities covered a four-day Christmas holiday period. In the four days beginning at 6 p.m., December 24, 1958, fire took 93 lives.

"Care can prevent loss of life by fire," the National Board pointed out. Around three-fourths of all fires are caused by carelessness or forgetfulness.

Fire takes no holiday, the National Board reminds.

Behind The Scenes With The College Union

CU members compile and organize information to go into the new student directory.

Many students don't realize that the College Union is an organization, just like all the other organizations on campus, and everyone who is a student at EC is a member of the College Union.

Those who are interested in working on the College Union volunteer for committee work. The committees which are offered are: social; record and dance; games; special projects; fine arts; and publicity. Each committee has a chairman, who is elected by the group, and each committee has special duties and they meet separately whenever necessary.

The six chairmen work with the officers who are elected the previous spring to form the College Union Board. The Board meets every other week to map out major plans and to discuss any new ideas which might arise from a committee member, or anyone else. Twice a month there is a joint meeting of all board and committee members.

The College Union is here as a service to the students, and they plan such events as combo dances, bridge parties, games, and many other items of interest for the students.

Dot Smith, who is president of the CU this year explained, "Many students think of the College Union as the lounge downstairs, and they don't recognize the group who is behind the actual buying of all the supplies such as cards, games, table tennis equipment which add to the students' enjoyment during their leisurely hours."

One of the activities which the College Union is planning for the near future is a Christmas decorating party, which will take place on December 8, at 7:30 p.m.-10:00 p.m. in the College Union. This is open to all students. There will be hot chocolate for everyone, and Christmas Carols will be sung afterward.

The College Union has also compiled a campus directory, which is available now in the College Union. This year the CU is striving to give bigger activities, than so many little things.

Dot Smith, "We know that the College Union Board can't do it all, but in the near future."

College Union officers are: President, Dot Smith; Vice President, Nancy Brown; Recording Secretary, Patsy Oliver; Corresponding Secretary, Nell Marston; and Business Manager, Ellie Speckman. Committee chairmen are: Elaine Gittelson, Bill Gittelson, Bowie Martin, Ann Rollins, and Ed Speckman.

Recently six delegates were elected to attend the 14th Annual National IV College Union Conference, which was held at the University of Tennessee, in Knoxville. They also had with them ideas to make the CU a better organization.

So, the College Union is a student organization for the benefit of East Carolina, and something to be proud of. If anyone is not a member, it is a shame. If anyone is not interested in the current activities, let the College Union and have a hand in planning future events.

Games Committee members make plans for the table tennis tournament.

Summer Stock Veterans Take Part In English Mystery: Former Opera Participant Heads Cast

By PAT HARVEY

"It is a pleasure to have the opportunity of working in a play of this caliber," announced Patricia Kinnear, who is portraying Jeannette in the second production, The Lady's Not For Burning, opening tonight.

Not only is the play, Christopher Fry's mysterious comedy of high caliber, but according to reports from Director Robert Brockert and other cast members, the cast is also one of extensive experience.

Miss Kinnear spent several years with the Interstate theatre in Hanover, Virginia. She also had a year of summer stock at St. Clair, Michigan. Playing opposite Miss Kinnear is Thomas Mearns as Peter John, a young man who is in love with Jeannette.

Last year while touring with the Grand Opera House, Peter returned to see Kinnear with that group's production of Carmen. He has worked in summer stock in Toronto and other major cities.

Mr. John stated that "it is a pleasure to work in this production mainly because it is a first experience for him."

SPORTS REVIEW

By RICHARD BOYD

The Citadel Impressive

After two consecutive wins at the expense of light opposition, The E.C.C. eaglers found The Citadel of the Southern Conference more competitive. In fact, the Cadets managed to turn back the Bucs by an impressive 99-83 margin. The Charleston, South Carolina crew is coached by former N.C. State star Mel Thompson and were surprisingly strong. The game five from Greenville were behind 48-40 at the half way point and could not catch the larger school. However, several Pirate players endangered their team's chances thanks to the fouls in which they committed.

Bucs Could Be A Southern Conference Team

Coach Earl Smith's five should be ready for a league schedule of some fine basketball teams. The competition will not be as such if the Bucs were in the Southern Conference, but the North State cage teams can be plenty rough.

Speaking of the Southern Conference, this would have been a fine year for the Pirates to enter competitive athletic teams against foes such as George Washington of Washington, D.C., West Virginia, and Virginia Military Institute, Virginia Tech, and William and Mary, from Virginia, Davidson's Wildcats and Furman from the Carolinas should also be included.

The Citadel and the University of Richmond of course already have competed against the Bucs. East Carolina made respectable showings against these Southern Conference representatives.

Surely, the Pirates could have held their own against a few of these teams on the grid iron, and certainly on the hardwood as well. The Citadel, Virginia Tech, V.M.I., and George Washington may have been too much for the East Carolina football eleven. But certainly, any of the other teams from this highly rated conference would have had their hands full against the speedy Bucs.

Glenn Bass is a great back that many of these coaches from major colleges would love to have if they could have known that Glenn would develop into one of the finest backs in the college ranks. His terrific play against Richmond proved that he would have been a standout in the Southern Conference.

The Pirate basketball quint would certainly win their share in Southern Conference competition. Possibly not a first division contender for the first year of play, but certainly a dangerous ball club. Cotton Clayton could start for any team in the Southern Conference and probably for the "Big Four" cages as well. Don Smith, the Senior Captain would hold his own against the more publicized schools. The rangy forward is a terrific rebounder and has been known to hit in double figures practically every game.

The Pirate five may win the North State League title, but of course would not be even a match for teams like West Virginia and George Washington of the Southern Conference.

Speaking of Coach Earl Smith's squad, there are two players who have been nothing short of sensational during the early campaign. Charles Lewis from Kinston netted 24 points against The Citadel for an outstanding showing in Charleston last week, and a Hawthorne, New Jersey native Bill Otte has been one of the leading scorers thus far. Incidentally, Otte is 6'6" tall, and an ex-Marine who can hold his own in the rebounding department as well as the scoring column.

The sport fans on the street can see why the Pirates are Southern Conference material with players like this to show off in front of the spectators. Another good point concerning the Bucs is that the majority of the E.C.C. squad are Freshmen and Sophomores. If the Pirates should win the North State Crown this season, an E.C.C. favorite for the next two campaigns would definitely be in the making by the experts.

E.C.C. Holds Their Own In Other Sports

East Carolina has and will be making their name known in football and basketball, but the sports in which the Bucs have proven best at are coming up. Swimming is a sport in which the Pirates have been able to cope with many of the major schools, and the same thing can be said for baseball. The E.C.C. nine takes on many major colleges such as Wake Forest, Yale, Carolina, to mention a few.

If anyone should suspect that these are the only sports that the Pirates have proven to be outstanding competitively speaking, they should take a glance at the golf team, where the Bucs were North State League champions.

East Carolina is a growing school, not only academically but athletically as well. High hopes have been set for the future and these desires of all concerned who are connected with the school are slowly but surely beginning to come true at one of the most growing schools in this part of the country.

Congratulations to four outstanding E.C.C. footballers for their nomination to the All North State team. Glenn Bass and Sonny Baysinger are two halfbacks that the experts could not afford to leave off, and Vernon Davis as well as Clayton Piland proved to be instrumental during the 1960 campaign in the hard working Buc forward wall.

Glenn Bass continues to receive great honors. The last one was probably his greatest. An offer to play in the All-American Bowl against the larger schools throughout the land. Incidentally, the Wilson speed merchant managed to make the honorable mention Little All-American selection this past season despite being handicapped during part of the campaign with a leg injury.

Sophomore Cotton Clayton whose 28 points paced East Carolina's opening victory over Catawba is seen here in action during the rugged contest. The all-conference guard is expected to be one of the outstanding players in the conference this season.

By RICHARD BOYD

Sophomore sensation Cotton Clayton stole the show Saturday night as East Carolina launched their home hardwood season off with a come from behind 80-63 win over Catawba's Indians.

Clayton tallied 28 points in a dazzling exhibition of shooting, and played an outstanding floor game that baffled the visitors. Don Smith and Charlie Lewis scored 16 and 15 points respectively for the winners, who by clinching the contest in the final few minutes of play remained in undisputed possession of first place in the North State League race.

The underdog Indians played a University of Maryland type of basketball during the majority of the hard fought, but loosely played contest by holding the ball, waiting for the clear shot. This procedure was paying dividends until the final moments of play when Clayton and Lewis led a red hot barrage of baskets which spelled defeat for the tournament champs of 1960.

The first half of play witnessed by 2500 spectators saw a nip and tuck battle in which the lead changed from time to time until the initial half ended with the Indians ahead 30-29. Clayton was the only Pirate hitting with accuracy, but his teammates gave the Henderson, North Carolina star plenty of assistance during the final minutes.

With the score knotted at 51 all, Clayton's two pointer put the Pirates in the lead to stay with approximately eight minutes left on the scoreboard clock.

Then, it was all East Carolina as Charlie Lewis, Don Smith, Bill Otte, Ben Bowes, Lacy West, and Clayton were too much for the game visitors.

The win left the Pirates with an overall 3-1 record, and 3-0 in league play. Coach Earl Smith's five faced High Point Tuesday night, and tomorrow night battle Lenoir Rhyne's highly rated Bears. In comparative scores the Hickory ball club walloped Pfeiffer 81-56, while the Bucs managed to squeeze out a 71-67 win over the same opposition.

The Friday night contest will be the final pre-Christmas attraction of the year, as the Pirates take to the road next week to Boone and take on Appalachian's Apps in a December 14 contest. Coach Smith will probably start the following lineup in the Lenoir Rhyne contest. Guards Cotton Clayton and Lacy West, forwards Charlie Lewis and Don Smith, with either Bill Otte or Ben Bowes at the pivot position. Although the Pirates played a erratic brand of ball against the Catawba Indians the majority of the contest, a great deal of potentiality was shown by the aggressive Bucs. For instance, those final eight minutes of play against the Indians, in which the Pirates scored 29 points was a good idea of just how strong the Bucs may be during the 1960-61 campaign.

East Carolina College was handed its first defeat of the season last Thursday night when it lost a 99-83 game to the Citadel. A contributing factor was that four Pirates fouled out with over ten minutes left in the game. The Citadel boasts a fine team however as evidenced by the fact that North Carolina State took a beating from this same club last year.

The loss terminated in two game winning streak of the Pirates, and left the Bucs with a 2-1 record overall. High point man for that night was Howe of the Citadel, with 25. E.C.'s Charlie Lewis was next with 24 big ones. The Citadel Bulldogs, under former N.C. State Wolfpack star Mel Thompson, are a very prominent member of the Southern Conference, and the loss was not indicative of the caliber of this year's East Carolina Club.

Bass Invited To Play In Bowl

By RICHARD BOYD

One of the all time greats at East Carolina has been invited to play in the annual All-American Bowl at Tucson, Arizona. Glenn Bass, will participate in the December, 26 classic. The speedy halfback will be the first Pirate in the history of the school chosen for this fine bowl.

The All-America Bowl competes the top players from the large colleges against the chosen celebrities from the smaller schools. Only two players from the North State Conference were chosen. Besides Bass, Lee Farmer, the pride of the Lenoir Rhyne single-wing attack was honored.

Glenn was chosen first team All-Conference, and All-NCAA during the current campaign. The speedy Wilson native also was an honorable mention selection on the All-American team.

Missing several key games because of a leg injury certainly hindered Glenn from making the first or second unit of the small college All-American team. Realizing this defeat, he was still chosen over other fabulous football standouts throughout the nation to play in the Christmas season affair.

Glenn was honored in his selection for the bowl; he was quoted as saying "that he only hoped that he could represent East Carolina in a manner which would be a contribution to the school." The 6'1" 185 pounder also stated "that just being selected for such an affair was a great thing in his life."

The halfback who broke Richmond's back with his lightning 100 yard touchdown run in the final ECC contest is a definite candidate for professional football, and Glenn plans to give it all he has for the big time. The Los Angeles Rams of the National Professional Football League may be the first to draft the East Carolina star.

Cotton Clayton is seen here taking a rebound away from three Catawba Indians in last Saturday night's opening basketball attraction. The Henderson, N. C. native is expected to give the Pirates a considerable boost under the backboards during the current campaign.

Sports Briefs by Richard Boyd

Four of East Carolina's stars were honored last week with their nominations as All North Staters. Halfbacks Glenn Bass and Sonny Baysinger, and guards Wayne Davis and Clayton Piland were the Pirate representatives. The latter is only a Junior, while the other three will be loss for the 1961 campaign through graduation.

East Carolina's nearest neighbor, Atlantic Christian may give the Pirates plenty of competition on the hardwood. The Wilson school demolished Catawba with ease the night before the Indians hit Greenville.

Lenoir Rhyne was forced to play to a 20 and 20 deadlock with Northern Michigan at Hickory Saturday, but was awarded the contest by net yardage totaled from passing and rushing. As most local fans know the Bears are Bowl bound, and so are Duke's Blue Devils who had some of their great pride in the 1960 campaign knocked out of them in their final contest with North Carolina and U.C.L.A. The Cotton Bowl bound Atlantic Coast Conference representatives are still a mighty fine football team and should give Arkansas a run for their money in the Dallas classic.

The football season has come to a successful end in the intermural competition and the Fraternity All-Stars are champs of the season as they won their contest with the Dorm All-Stars. Basketball was expected to get underway this week in Inter-Mural competition. Basketball is not the only sport to be represented this Winter at E.C.C. Swimming will be sharing the spotlight. The first swimming meet will be at Chapel Hill, December, 10, against the Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina.

The annual Physical Education Convention held at E.C.C. this year was a booming success with over 500 people represented from the various high schools and colleges throughout the state. A swimming demonstration was staged by The P. E. Department during the convention. East Carolina usually has a terrific swimming team, and this year may be no exception.

Medical science seems to bear out the claim that women are the stronger sex, according to a report in the November Reader's Digest. It reveals that twice as many men as women die in the 25-to-44 age group. For example, Though women are sick more often, they resist more successfully than men every major killer except diabetes.

Center Ben Bowes is expected to carry a big load for the ECC cage Pirates during the 1960-61 campaign. Ben is seen in action here during the Catawba encounter. Ben is a senior letterman from Burlington, N. C. and was instrumental in aiding Coach Earl Smith's charges during his junior year. The 6' 5" pivot man should see considerable action in the Lenoir Rhyne contest tomorrow night.

The Bears are in first place in the loop standings, but with the aid of this rangy center, the Hickory school may find themselves in a different position after the contest.
