Shaw Chorale Presents Bach 'Passion' Classical

The Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra, currently on its fourteenth concert tour of the United States, will appear here Monday, January 29 in the Passio According to St. John by Bach.

The program is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in Wright. The performance of the celebrated Bach work is sponsored by the SGA.

This will be the first time in history this music will have been taken on tour. For the occasion, Mr. Shaw has augmented his chorus and orchestra to approximately sixty performers, forces that approximate the size of the ensemble used in Bach's own day. The St. John Passion was originally presented on Good Friday, 1723, in the city of Leipzig, where Bach was about to receive an appointment as cantor of the Thomaskirche, a post the composer held until his death in 1750.

The Passion is particularly well qualified for a touring concert, in Robert Shaw's opinion, because it is suitable in its entirety in an evening.

This "most active, direct, and dramatic" of Bach's classical works, as Shaw describes it, will be rendered in English in a version supplied by the conductor and based on the translation of Henry S. Drinker.

The success of Mr. Shaw's achievement, both in clarifying the meaning of Bach's great creation for the English-speaking public and in projecting the values of the music itself, has already been attested to by the unanimous praise accorded his RCA Victor recording of the Passion According to St. John.

Jenkins Announces Renewal Of College Acreage Option

EC has recently renewed the option on 73 acres of land, owned by Miss Louise Tucker and her brother, Lloyd Tucker, of Greenville. This land was included in the recent bond issue which was defeated and is very much needed to expand the men's campus and athletic fields to south and west of the campus.

Selection Team Visits Campus

The U. S. Marine Corps Officer Selection Team will be on campus today and tomorrow, January 23, 24.

The Corps will talk with students interested in becoming Marine Corps officers under the Marine Corps program with no interference with your college work. All Marine Corps officer training takes place during the summer or after completion of college.

The Platoon Leaders Class program is available for freshmen, sophomores and seniors. All interested students should contact the Marine Officer Selection Team at the CU.

ECC To Withdraw From Conference

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins said last week that he was advised by the Athletic Committee to withdraw ECC from the Carolinas Conference, because of the new scholarship limitations of the conference.

However, the EC President stated, "A definite decision as to whether or not EC will remain in the conference will not be made final until the meeting of the conference president on January 22."

The scholarship limitations will allow only 10 basketball and 22 football athletic scholarships starting this fall. At the present time, EC operates under 15 basketball and 38 football scholarships. It would be impossible for EC to expand their athletic program because of this new rule by the Carolinas Conference.

Dr. Jenkins said, "It is not feasible for us to go in two directions at the same time and we therefore prefer to place our athletic program in a position where it should be for a college of this size."

New Football Coach Favors Action

East Carolina has been increasing in its enrollment every year; a total of 6000 students are expected to be enrolled next year. The new football stadium and an outstanding football coach will be featured in next year's program. EC's new coach, Clarence Stasavich, former head mentor of the Lenoir Rhyne's conference champions for the past seven seasons, and 1960 national champion coach, favors the committee's decision on

The opera, "Martha," that was postponed because of snow, will be presented in McGinnis Auditorium, Thursday at 8:00 p.m. The production is sponsored by the Greenville Music Club.

their vital proposal. "I think they acted wisely, but I will go along with Faculty Athletic Committee and Director of Athletics, Dr. N. M. Jorgenson on their final decision."

Stasavich went on to say, "EC needs to work on their goal for the Southern Conference membership. However, we will not be that good next fall, and we are hoping for a .500 season because of the rebuilding that we must do at East Carolina."

"We are organizing a new program, but we do know which direction that we are going toward, despite the work that we have toward the new program." Stasavich feels that EC will not meet the objectives at the present time and also feels that it could take four to five years for a strong athletic program.

Coach Smith's Comments

Head cage mentor, Earl Smith stated that he would attempt to schedule all the schools in the Southern Conference if EC leaves the Carolinas Conference. Also, Smith let it be known that EC would have to have Freshman basketball in the college's program. EC has played Richmond, The Citadel, and William-Mary in SC competition this season and has one Southern Conference school remaining on their schedule. The Bucs travel to Blacksburg, Virginia to battle the Virginia Tech Gobblers later this season.

Dean Jim Mallory, coach of the national champion baseball Pirates, stated that his team will not be effected if East Carolina withdraws. "We have been fortunate in scheduling northern teams and I feel sure that we will be able to schedule Southern Conference teams as baseball schedules are made up year-to-year and not in advance. In the baseball schedule released in today's East Carolinian, the Buc nine plays such outside foes as Yale, Michigan State, Ithica College, Delaware, Wake Forest, UNC, and Florida State.

Buckley-Rodell Meet In Austin

Political Debate Set For Thursday Night

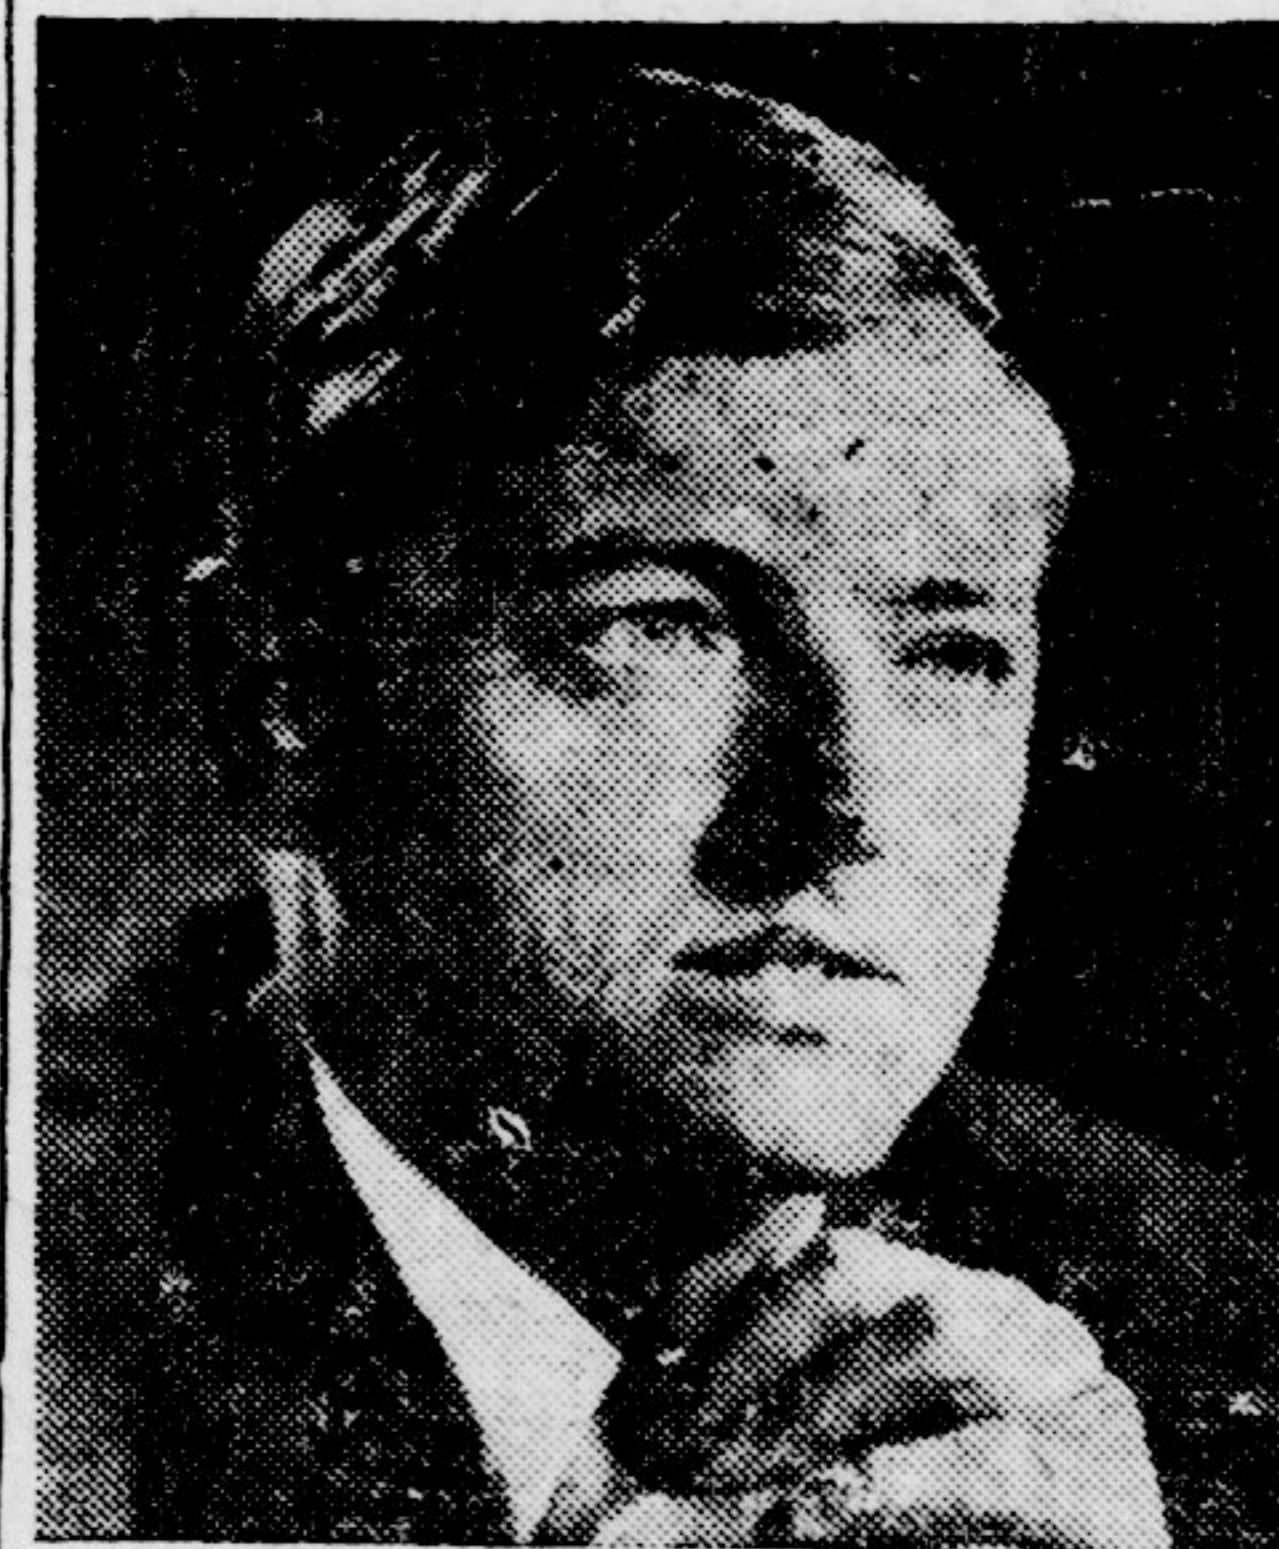

The SGA Lecture Committee has completed final details for the Buckley-Rodell debate Thursday. The committee had difficulty in arranging the debate since Buckley is in demand by many college and political groups.

Conservatism versus liberalism will be discussed by these two learned speakers. Near riots have occurred when Buckley and Rodell have met in the past. "Buckley's willingness to enter the lists against any and all adversaries sometimes get him into the oddest situations."

Rodell comes to EC from Yale, where he is professor of law. Buckley is currently editor of the controversial "National Review." Both speakers are highly respected in their individual field.

Buckley recently won a case that was in the New York courts banning him at a New York college. He is an outspoken individual who creates controversy wherever he lectures. Buckley has been called the "Challenger of Kennedy's 'New Frontier'" since he feels that "liberalism has no new ideas."

The debate is scheduled for 8:15 in Austin Auditorium, Thursday night.

Orr, Dandliker Plan Dual Recital

Betsy Orr, pianist and Ronda Dandliker, flutist, will present their senior recitals, Thursday at 3:00 p.m., in Austin Auditorium.

Betsy is a member of the Concert Band, College Choir and Sigma Alpha Iota. Mrs. Eleanor Toll is her instructor. Betsy will perform "Sonata" in E-flat, "Allegro" by Haydn, "Nocturne" by Faure, and "Poem" by Khachaturian.

Ronda, a member of the Concert Band and Tau Sigma, will present "Introduction and Variation" by Schubert, "Sonatine" by Dutilleux, and "Sonate" by Hindemith. She is instructed by Beatrice Chauncey. Emily Vinson will accompany Ronda.

Pitt County Takes Lead In Educational Strides

While Pitt Countians should take pride in the words of recognition in education made last Thursday by Dr. Charles Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, they should necessarily accept the compliment as a challenge for even bigger achievements in the future.

Carroll told a group attending a City Council-P.T.A.-sponsored program, "You people in Pitt County deserve a special word for your achievements in education."

We can't begin to feel too proud, however, when reports of Tar Heel students as compared to students nationwide reach us. Yet, one county alone cannot change a discouraging report made to the Governor's Commission on Education beyond the High School. This is a matter of concern to all counties in North Carolina . . . from the coast, the piedmont, to the mountains. It is of concern to us at East Carolina who plan to be leaders in education.

The report indicated that North Carolina students do not meet the norms in college preparedness. They are not as 'ready' to do college work as other high school students across the nation. The report read that Tar Heel high school students "fall below national averages in the scores they made on achievement, educational development and scholastic aptitude tests".

This is not surprising when one considers that "North Carolinians also rank below national averages in per capita income, dollars spent per pupil for education, and in certain other indices of economic and cultural resources."

The report further showed that on the National Merit Examination three-quarters of the state's students scored below 99, while on a national level only half the students made less than 99 out of a top score of 150.

On the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test, one-quarter of N. C. students made better than 500 in the verbal aptitude section, while 43 per cent of all students nationwide scored above the 500 mark on the possible 800 score test. Tar Heel girls scored a little higher than boys in meeting national averages.

North Carolina boys had 76 per cent making less than 550, while 89 per cent of the girls made less than 550 on the mathematics section. Throughout the nation, comparable figures were 58 per cent for the boys and 79 per cent for the girls.

According to the report Tar Heel boys and girls are not even prepared to take the tests. Courses offered in high schools across the state vary widely in mathematics, although four years of English is required of every student. This variance in courses offered affects test scores; needless to say, those schools which offer a minimum of mathematics have not adequately prepared the student for college work and pose the largest factor in the distressingly low scores by our home state students.

College Youths List Best Sellers

Students Carry Mixed Book Bag

By KAYE BURGESS

"The profundity of reading by recent college graduates is roughly comparable to what might be expected of a good healthy orangutan." This is in Rev. Joseph L. Lennon's description of college student reading habits. However, the good father was evidently exaggerating for shock effect.

But, what are the reading habits of American college students today. There are many opinions, although no one actually knows. College librarians, bookstore managers, and teachers believe that on the whole, students do read more than they used to. They came to this conclusion because of the increased number of paperback books that are being purchased by college students.

Best Sellers

Bestselling titles at college bookstores include Bierce, Conrad, Dos Passos, Dostoevski, Faulkner,

Fitzgerald, Freud, Hemingway, Huizinga, George Kennan, Arthur Koestler, Jack London, Michener, Niebuhr, Orwell, Pasternak, Poe, Salinger, Sartre, Steinbeck, Tolstoy, Twain, Robert Penn Warren, Edmund Wilson, Sarah Orne Jewett, Aldous Huxley, Henry Com-manger, Vance Packard, Walt Rostow, Bertrand Russell, and Upton Sinclair. Such a varied list of authors indicates that today's college reader's may well be known as the "Generation of the Mixed Book Bag."

However, in any group there must be the leader. "Without any doubt," writes Dean Daniel Fagg of Emory University in Atlanta, "the favorite author is J. D. Salinger, and the favorite work, Catcher in the Rye. Bill Garland, editor of the campus newspaper, expressed the opinion that most students could easily understand the characterization in the book and sympathize with "an alien and bewildered in a distorted environment."

Topic of Cancer Rates in Shirer's Third Re- . . . among the student body. This popularity is most likely accounted for by the fact that the author was the "international man" during the childhood of the present-day undergraduates. Another current best-seller, Thoreau by the "elder brother" Miller is Tropic of Cancer, some readers regard as "interesting."

As would seem natural, college reading is a result of influence from the faculty. Professors are in a position to form the student's literary taste. Poet Theodore Holmes who studied English at Harvard states that undergraduates are so harassed by assignments, activities, love affairs, and brainstorms that their personal reading is in most cases reduced to a spare book to read then. And when they choose to read it is apt to be along lines that mark their instructor's taste. extension of their course and something their contemporaries are discussing . . .

Crowded Soda Shop

Prodding Brings Results

By JEAN PEACE

In only seven years campus population has doubled. With an increase of this size various campus activities should double if not triple.

We have witnessed a greater interest and participation in athletics, and scholarship. Otherwise, all we have to show for a doubled enrollment is a crowded soda shop and crowded dormitories. Cultural interest has sadly lagged behind . . . until recently.

Some interest has been shown in the Sperry-Hutchinson debates and in the presentation of foreign films, but EC will have the opportunity to move up several notches in cultural development when Dr. Withey presents the Burmese play, "The Wages of Sin."

His Excellency U On Sein, Burmese Ambassador to the U. S. has accepted EC's invitation to visit the campus and attend the performance on February 24. Dr. Withey and persons responsible for the presentation should be commended.

Notice has been taken for our attempts at cultural advancement. In Sunday's "News and Observer" an article appeared concerning the forthcoming play and visit of the Burmese Ambassador.

Perhaps the idea of having Carl

Sandburg as a resident poet will not be too "far-fetched" if groups on campus keep prodding for student interest in the arts. The Garrett poetry reading, foreign films, plays, and productions such as "Martha" are slowly bringing EC to a higher level of cultural development.

The only remaining problem lies in student interest.

Sellout Audiences Praise Work Of 'Auntie Mame' Production

By KATHRYN E. JOHNSON

Sellout audiences attended the East Carolina Playhouse's presentation of the Broadway and motion picture hit Auntie Mame.

The play, written by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee is a two act comedy based on the best-seller novel by Patrick Dennis. Dr. Ralph H. Rives staged the production. Paul R. Minnis and Donald Sexauer designed the scenery.

Mrs. Lois Garren, well known for her costumes, designed and made most of the costumes in the play. These are even better than her usual ones.

Law Student Speaks At EC's YDC Meeting

Sid Eagles, Jr., Wake Forest law student and 1961 College Organizer for the Young Democrat's Clubs in North Carolina, will be the speaker January 25, at 7:00 p. m. for the YDC on campus.

The meeting will be held in the Joyner Library Auditorium.

Eagles will talk on his experiences as a college organizer and on the development and organization of the college Young Democrat's Clubs.

"Although we realize that there will be other conflicts, we hope that as many people as possible can attend the meeting," announced Frances Allen, campus YDC president. "It will be an excellent opportunity for the students on this campus to realize the place that college participation in politics can attain."

Plans for the February program are almost complete with the program to feature Miss Flo Robinson, North Carolina state secretary for the YDC for 1962, and Bruce Bach, president of the Wake Forest club and recipient of honorable mention as Outstanding College Democrat for 1961.

It is hoped that several members of the Wake Forest club will accompany these two delegates when they arrive on the ECC campus.

Geography Frat Sponsors Seminar

The Geography Fraternity sponsors a seminar tonight on topics of interest to North Carolinians.

The meeting will be held in the Y Hut at 7:00 p. m.

Topics will include the fundamental differences of the three regions of N. C., the economics of our state, and the tourist trades value to North Carolina.

Members of the fraternity, Gamma Theta Upsilon, the Geography staff and geography majors will attend. Everyone interested in the geographical aspects of our state is also invited.

AAUP Sets Panel

A general meeting of the College chapter of AAUP will be held in the Joyner Library, Wednesday, January 24 at 4 p. m. A panel will discuss "The Responsibility of the college Professor for the Guidance Program."

Participant will be Mr. Ed Nicholson, Educational Testing; Dr. Frank Fuller, Guidance; and Dr. John Horne, Registrar. The panel will be moderated by Dr. James Poindexter. All faculty members are invited.

High School Musicians Here For N.C. State Band Clinic

Student musicians chosen for their talent will represent Eastern N. C. high schools Friday and Saturday, February 2 and 3, in the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic.

Herbert L. Carter, director of bands and chairman of arrangements for the clinic, has announced the program for the annual event.

Keig Garvin, nationally known trombonist and clinician with the U. S. Army Band of Washington, D. C., will be a special guest at the clinic. On Saturday he will meet for discussion and rehearsal with band directors and students interested in the brass instruments.

Sectional rehearsals for students of various band instruments are also included on the program. Band directors in Eastern North Carolina schools who will act as leaders are Durwood Bray, Edenton; William Glasgow, Farmville; Raymond Babelay, Wilson, Stuart Patten, Plymouth; Jack Pindell, Wilmington. J. C. Sykes, Rocky Mount; Robert Watson, Robersonville; and William Adecock, Wilmington. Members of the East Carolina College music faculty will also participate in these events.

Two public concerts will be presented as highlights of the clinic. The EC Symphonic Band, with Mr. Carter as conductor, will give a program Friday at 8 p. m. in Wright auditorium. The Symphonic and Concert bands will appear Saturday night at 7:30, also in the Wright auditorium.

Members of the Greenville High School Band are assisting the music department in arranging the entertainment of high school musicians during their participation in the clinic.

A number of social events being arranged for visitors on the campus include a dance Friday night after the concert. Music will be provided by the East Carolina Collegians.

New Nurses' Club States Threefold Aim

"The fame is nothing; the dead is everything" is the motto of sixty-eight coeds who are now participating in the work of their new organization, the Nurses' Club.

Organized in October, 1961, the club is sponsored by EC's newest department, the School of Nursing, which began operation two years ago.

Club's Purposes

The purpose of the club is threefold: To aid in the development of student nurses as democratic citizens; to promote professional and social unity among the student nurses; and to serve as a channel of communication between the Nurses' Club and the North Carolina Student Nursing Association. One meeting is scheduled for each month of the school year. State representatives of the Student Nursing Association of North Carolina, faculty members, townspeople, and students are among the guest speakers.

First President

Filling her duties as first president of the Nurses' Club during the present school year is Selba Morris. Other officers of the club are Billie McDougald, vice president; Gloria Crawley, secretary; Donnye Barnhill, treasurer; and Jeanette Jones, historian.

Mrs. Ruth J. Broadhurst, faculty member in the School of Nursing, serves as advisor of the club.

'Knight Winds' Present Program

"Knight Winds", a program performed by four different wind ensembles of the Department of Music will be presented in McGinnis auditorium Wednesday, January 24, at 8 p. m.

Special Program

The evening of music is the first program of its kind to be given at the college. Selections will range from Beethoven to Shostakovich.

Parnell Conducting Brass

James H. Parnell, faculty member of the Music Department, will conduct numbers performed by the Brass Choir, including Funeral March, from "Die Gotterdammerung" by Richard Wagner.

Marie Wurst As Soloist

The Clarinet Choir, under the direction of David Miller, graduate assistant in the Music Department, will present Caprice Sentimental by Lucien Cailliet, featuring Marie Janet Wurst as soloist, and Saltarello, from Symphony No. 4 by Felix Mendelssohn.

Selections Of Shostakovich

Patricia Ayscue, student of Dr. Robert Carter of the Music Department, will appear as pianist in the Woodwind Quintet Prelude, Opus 34, No. 17 by Dmitri Shostakovich in an arrangement by Lewis Danfelt of the faculty.

National Director Aids KD Rush

Mrs. Eames Harrison of Matthews County, Va., National Director of Membership of Kappa Delta Sorority, is visiting for nine days with the Gamma Sigma Chapter. While here, she will aid the sorority in carrying out a successful rush program during Formal Rush Week.

Mrs. Patterson is a graduate of the University of Maryland. She was a charter member of Alpha Rho Chapter of Kappa Delta and later became its treasurer. She has also served as Alpha Province President of Kappa Delta.

The East Carolina Chapter of Kappa Delta strives to form close friends among college girls by instilling in them the principles of truth, duty, and honor.

The president of the Gamma Sigma Chapter is Katherine Raynor. Lynette Hobbs is vice president, and Sara Smiley is secretary of the chapter. Betty Derrick holds the position of treasurer.

Western Carolina Play Here Friday

SPORTS REVIEW

By RICHARD BOYD

Yesterday's meeting of the college presidents was supposed to have one outstanding issue . . . East Carolina's withdrawal from the Carolinas Conference because of limited scholarships.

It would have been a mistake for EC to stay in the conference because of the minimizing of athletic scholarships. There is only one direction for the Pirates to go in the eyes of Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, and that is forward in the world of athletics. The proposed scholarship limitations by the Carolinas Conference states that the teams in the conference can have only 10 basketball and 22 football scholarships. EC could not possibly go "Big Time" with this new rule in effect.

The Pirates at the present time operate with 15 basketball and 38 football scholarships. Plans for the future are to increase production and try to bring in the "best" of athletes.

Naturally, what all this leads-up to is the Buc's membership proposal in the Southern Conference. Steps such as: 1. construction on a new football stadium, 2. Clarence Stasavich as head football coach, and 3. membership in the NCAA have already been clearly taken. A defect such as the decreasing of scholarships would be a vital blow in the athletic program. Actually, East Carolina had no alternative but to withdraw from the conference, if we wished to meet our goal as a member of the Southern Conference.

What A SC Member Means

Southern Conference membership means competition that will be the strongest in the college's history. There are no weak sisters in the conference, and the EC athletic administration plans to make the Pirates no exception. Therefore, this means better athletes coming to East Carolina than ever before.

SC competition would be against West Virginia's Mountaineers from Charleston, West Virginia, George Washington's Colonials from Washington, D. C., Virginia Tech's Gobblers from Blacksburg, Virginia, William-Mary's Indians from Williamsburg, Virginia, Virginia Military Institute's Keydets from Lexington, Virginia, Davidson's Wildcats from Davidson, North Carolina, Furman's Paladins from Greenville, South Carolina, and The Citadel Bulldogs from Charleston, South Carolina.

Those who have just a small knowledge of these schools realize that we would have our hands full in athletic competition. The date that East Carolina will be a member would be in all probability September of 1963. A 15,000 plus seated football stadium should be ready next fall and possibly additional seats could be made available the next fall. Plans call for a new field house, although it can be stated that the Bond Issue downfall hindered the chances for immediate plans for such an addition to the "new" athletic program.

Sport Names In The News

EC swimming sensation, BOB KINGERY, from Norfolk, Virginia lost his first diving event of the year last Thursday night in Chapel Hill, against Carolina's outstanding swimming team. UNC easily defeated the Pirates, sweeping all first place events including Kingery's specialty in diving.

Other notes of interest in the Pirate sport world: LACY WEST, veteran Pirate forward has been playing some outstanding basketball for the Pirates. Lacy, scored 13 points and was credited with two crucial steals in the win over WCC at Western Carolina.

BILL OTTE hit his personal high in the point production for a single contest, with his 27 against WCC. The 6'-7" center who seems to play his best in the clutch, won the game with his basket in the final two seconds.

WALLY COCKRELL, last year's star centerfielder for the Pirates will report to Arizona for his Spring Training. Wally led the Class D Bristol, Virginia team in hitting last season with a .330 mark. The former Pirate hitting star reports to the training camp of Eugene, Oregon.

LARRY CRAYTON, a St. Louis Cardinal product, reports to Florida to train with Tulsa, Oklahoma, class AA team. Crayton was voted the outstanding player in the National tournament last season.

Bucs Play Catamounts Without Bowes

EC returns to action Friday night against a good Western Carolina team in the Pirate Gymnasium. It is quite likely, that the Bucs will have to play without the services of veteran Co-Captain Ben Bowes from Burlington. The 6'5" forward has been out with a twisted ankle, hurt in a practice session, since last week.

The Pirates will return to action after a twelve day layoff. The Bucs defeated the WCC five in their last outing by a 62-60 margin. Coach Earl Smith will probably start Lacy West, Charlie Lewis, Bill Brogden, Bill Otte, and Richard Williams against the Westerners. Lewis is leading the team in scoring as he is averaging over 16 points per contest. Otte and West also are hitting in double figures for the Pirates.

With the absence of Bowes, Coach will probably play his two freshmen, Bill Brogden and Richard Williams. Both have hit for over twenty points in a single contest. Veteran guard Danny Bowen will be ready for plenty of action Friday night. The contest will start at 8:00 p.m.

Buc star Bille Otte ready for action.

Buc Nine Plays Rough Schedule

The 1962 baseball schedule has been released. The Buc nine will play several new foes this season. The NAIA defending champions play their initial contest at home against Yale University on March 21-22.

Michigan State and Ithica College will battle EC after the Yale contest.

Other new foes on the Pirate schedule include UNC, Furman State, and Washington-Lee. Forest, who handed EC only 3 losses last season but the Bucs at home on March 18 on the road twice. Coach Mair will have several veterans returning, but the majority of the national champions signed professional baseball contracts, or lost by graduation.
