College Marshal Elections May Undergo Change

The SGA, at its weekly meeting on Monday night, discussed the advantages and disadvantages of electing the college marshals. Discussion centered around selection by a special committee, or students electing them as has been the practice in past years.

Their minimum scholastic average was also a point of discussion. Woody Shepherd, chairman of the elections committee, suggested that the marshals be required to have a 1.5 average. A 2 average was also suggested.

Discussion was tabled until next week, when the Student Senate will vote on the future policy of choosing marshals.

The Senate was asked to express opinion on the two issues per week published by the East Carolinian this quarter. The semi-weekly has been on a trial basis, and the policy for next quarter will be voted on at the next Publications Board meeting.

The Student Government Association generally agreed that the twice weekly paper was more effective as news was fresher and was more selective.

Merle Summers recognized Jerry Fulford as new sophomore class vice president, and Jack Riddick as senior class senator. These appointments were recommended by the executive council and were approved by the Student Senate.

Walter Faulkner, Editor of the Buccaneer, has announced that the final copy of the 1962 Buccaneer was mailed to the publisher in Dallas, Texas, the first of this week.

There will be a Combo Dance in the lounge of the CU tonight from 8:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m.

Student Voice Needed

Why Take Responsibility From Ours Shoulders?

At Monday night's meeting of the Student Senate, a topic brought under discussion, but tabled until the next meeting, was the selection and qualifications of college marshals. In the past, marshals have been selected by student body vote at the regular SGA elections. The only requirement for a marshal, as stated in the Key, is a "C" average.

It seems that previous elections for the position have been won by many girls on the basis of popularity, and at times, on their position on the ballot. The latter case occurs when students vote too hurriedly to read an entire list of names instead of considering each name on the ballot.

To combat any such popularity contest and unintelligent voting, a new system and basis for the election of marshals is underway. Among points discussed by Senate members was raising the scholastic requirement to a "C" plus or "B" average. If the main objective is to place more emphasis on scholastics rather than popularity, perhaps a "B" average would be more desirable. In addition, poise, dignity, and personality would be considered.

It is the opinion of some students that a committee would make a wiser selection of marshals than a student body vote. This committee would be composed of faculty members, students, the marshal advisor, and perhaps the current chief marshal. Is this democratic? Is the student body incapable of making a wise selection? Do we need a committee to take the responsibility of voting from our shoulders?

If there are students who have an opinion on the system and selection of marshals, they should let these opinions be known. They should be expressed now, while action is pending. The senate meets Monday night at 7:00 p.m. in the Library . . . the appropriate time to voice any opinions on the matter.

Literary Censorship Continues; 'Snow White' Attack Probable

The nation's censors never give up. It seems they are at it again . . . this time a continuation of discussion and debate on one of the college set's best sellers, Tropic of Cancer. One of the most controversial censorship cases since James Joyce's Ulysses, "Tropic," following its latest hearing, now awaits a decision from a Philadelphia court.

The decision will announce whether or not a permanent court order will ban sales of Henry Miller's much talked about book.

At the hearing, which occurred last month, several college and university professors testified in defense of the book. One of them noted in testimony that the book is "a picture of its times" and "a serious work for the mature and has sufficient merit to survive."

Needless to say, the prosecution was not so mild in its remarks.

The outcome of this trial in Philadelphia is easily predicted with the presiding judge making it evident that censorship is more than justified. Regardless of the outcome, "Tropic" will be taken to the United States Supreme Court for a final decision on its obscenity.

We are reminded slightly, in this talk of censorship, of the recent outcry against Tarzan and Jane. But, since it pleased the general public to know the famous couple were married. Tarzan Books, we hope, have suffered no severe setback and youngsters will continue to marvel at the jungle wonder man and woman.

We are curious now as to what the next object of the censors will be . . . have they thought of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs?"

Spraying Sam Poses Campus Sniffle Danger

By KAYE BURGESS

The sniffing season is upon us. From here on, it's every man for himself — on guard against members of the Gesundheit Gallery who will happily share their symptoms with anyone.

See how many of these cold characters you recognize. Chances are, this very day, there's one in your car pool, one in at least one of your classes, and one at your club meeting.

Spraying Sam's a dangerous man . . . but you always hear him coming. He habitually forgets his handkerchief (or he has just given up carrying one) and is sure to snare anyone within sneezing range. His favorite haunts are crowded college classes, movie theaters, and rush-hour at the soda shops. When you see him coming, run, do not walk, to the nearest exit.

Sam is fair game for Quincy the Quack, who'll prescribe cold cures for anyone who'll listen.

Poor old Quincy is sick as a dog, and loves it. Anything you've got, he's got worse . . . and while he boasts he's beyond all medical aid, there's no way to ward off his trying to cure you. His coat pockets and desk drawers are all stocked with remedies. Take a cold shower . . . an alcohol rub . . . soak your feet . . . a swig of honey and garlic syrup. You're left wondering what he'll come up with next.

A far cry from old Quincy is Wheezing - Wally. Wally loves people. Even when he knows he should be home in bed, he's at the soda shop socializing. Wally wallows in sympathy . . . punctuates every agonized phrase with a wheeze, sputter, gasp or choke. No point telling him to save his breath . . . the Wheezer is so touched by your concern that he launches into a new mangled monologue.

There's the whole Gesundheit Gallery on display. Avoid them as you can. Take heed at the first sign of a cold and treat yourself to sensible care . . . or your own portrait may land in Gesundheit Gallery this year!

'All-American Coed' Search Underway

A nationwide search for the "All American Coed" is being sponsored by the Fiesta of Five Flags Association in Pensacola, Fla.

The "All-American Coed" contest, June 6-10, will be a feature of the 13th annual Fiesta of Five Flags, a week of pageantry celebrating 403 years of colorful history in Pensacola, dating back to the landing of Don Tristan de Luna and his Spanish colonists in 1559.

A young woman from 18 to 26 years of age, who must be unmarried and a student in an accredited college or university, will be chosen on the basis of intelligence, beauty, personality, poise and talent.

She will share in scholarships or savings bonds totaling $5,000 and will receive an all-expense paid vacation in Hollywood, Cal., where she will appear with Jackie Cooper in the "Hennesey" television series. Contestants will be feted at the spectacular DeLuna Coronation Ball, the Grand Fiesta Ball, and will appear in Fiesta parades as representatives of their colleges or universities.

Entry blanks and further information may be obtained from the Fiesta of Five Flags; Room 330 Brent Bldg.; Pensacola, Fla.

Blue Haze Envelops Lovers Of 'Fine Arts'

By MONTY MILLS

Student appreciation of the "finer arts" has finally come to the campus. During the height of the day's activities, students push aside the remnants of noon-day meals and make their way to the gathering of other lovers of "fine arts."

The atmosphere is reminiscent of a dim, smoke filled beatnik coffee house, and amidst the blue haze, poetry—bizarre and offbeat—is offered to the throng of eager listeners. The performers, the readers and the musicians who provide a jazz background, emit strange tidings from strange posts to a curious audience.

A dedicated host of poetry lovers has searched the dark pages of some almost forgotten writer's work in order to bring to those who care to listen, poetry that transcends the limits of casual verses of light poetry. The observer must put away his trivial thoughts, and allow himself to become enveloped by the atmosphere set by the readers and the musicians, if he is to appreciate and understand the depth of the selections offered.

Some of the more popular off-beat works come from the pens of these dedicated performers, and the audience is excited, enthused, and often shocked by the message in these original offerings. Often the audience is entranced, as if the poems being read were their own. Yet, there are some who are offended by these bizarre selections. These are not the run-of-the-mills poems that students read when they have a moment or two to spend in the interest of poetry. The music of the accompanying jazzmen sets the tempo for reception and acceptance or as it sometimes is — rejection. Low, moaning sounds or vibrating, rhythmic sounds set the stage, and poetry and music fill the room. Listeners are lost, for the time, in a new and different world — a bizarre world.

A musician strikes the last note, and the reading comes to an end. Time has come to return to the business at hand, and the empties. The listener, free from the dimness of the haze, leaves and quickly turns his mind to other activities, or he may be still deep in the mood set by the noon-day readings. He is serious and contemplative — the message in the selections has stirred something new or something old in him, and he refuses to leave the present mood.

Come on out for the next reading, amidst the crowded, smoke-filled room. You, too may find a message in the selections, or others have, you may remain untouched by the poetry. Poetry and jazz await those who care to take the time.

Veteran Directing Staff Stages Spring Musical

By KATHRYN JOHNSON

The forthcoming campus presentation of the Broadway sensation Guys and Dolls has a directing staff which is both experienced and well known.

Mr. Donald Hayes, the musical director, says that he has had more experience in professional aspects of music than in teaching. He has played with orchestras on Broadway, as well as with symphonic orchestras. His experience includes performances with the Radio City Music Hall Orchestra, touring musical comedy shows, and Army band in Europe where he appeared with such big name stars as Bing Crosby, Ingrid Bergman, Jack Benny, and Bob Hope.

Since coming to EC, Mr. Hayes has been very active in campus musical productions. He has conducted the last eight musicals which included South Pacific, Annie Get Your Gun, Connecticut Yankee, and Oklahoma. In addition to his teaching activities, he conducts the College Symphonic Orchestra, the operas, and the concerto programs.

Hayes commented, "I deeply enjoy doing this work. It's a wonderful thing that the student government organization has this interest in musical productions. We have always had wonderful support. I think that the musical does more to cement relations between the departments than any other one thing. People from all the departments work together, bringing about a sense of brotherhood."

Mrs. Lois Garren, well known for her theatrical talents, is the choreographer for the production. In addition to her skill in costuming, Mrs. Garren is a talented actress and dancer. She has appeared as Eleanor Dare in the "Lost Colony", and has had dancing roles in many other productions.

W. Larry Griffin, the stage manager, is a graduate student in the music department. During his undergraduate years, he was closely connected with the campus musical productions. He will also serve as the rehearsal pianist.

Spring Blossoms At EC; Snow Fads Cover North

By KAYE BURGESS

Just as the EC campus begins to long for spring, the winter season is at its peak in many northern colleges. The Winter Carnivals begin in the New England schools near the end of January and last through February. On these campuses, the fad becomes snow sculpturing, and suddenly the childhood snowman evolves to a college level masterpiece sculptured from the ever present snow.

The beginnings of this fad, which has over the years become a tradition, is vague. It was supposedly all started at Dartmouth College in the early Nineteen Twenties. The University of New Hampshire's first sculpturing dates back to 1921. Other colleges and universities soon began putting their snow to good use, and in no time snow creations became legendary.

At Williams College, in Williamston, Mass., the fraternities vie for points in their yearly intramural contest in the sculpturing competition, while the freshman class constructs a large central figure in their quadrangle. And even the faculty gets in on the fun with their own entry in the contest.

Some of the creations are of such size that they present hazards. Last year's space ship at Dartmouth required a full-sized telephone pole for its center core. Safety now necessitates the measuring of the construction details by the engineering department of the school.

The pink elephant in some unusual pose at Williams is master-minded annually by the Zeta Psi Fraternity. Probably the most famous, however, was the snow sculpture at Dartmouth which was built in Florida and carefully transported to Hanover in a refrigerator car. This hit of the carnival was made of frozen orange juice!

NC Colleges May Fall Under Full Jurisdiction Of State

Location and financial support of North Carolina's future public institutes of higher learning may soon come under the full jurisdiction of the State.

Governor Sanford's Commission on Education Beyond the High School will study a resolution, submitted by the Committee on Community Colleges and New Colleges, that proposes more State support for colleges.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chairman of the committee, pointed out that "there is a different rate of support for every institute in the State." At the present, the State discriminates in the degree of support that it gives to these institutions.

Under legislation passed in 1957, between 30 and 40 percent of the operating costs of the four community colleges now in operation

—Elizabeth City Teachers College, Mecklenburg College, Wilmington Junior College, and Asheville-Baltimore — is paid by their respective communities: Elizabeth City, Charlotte, Wilmington, and Asheville.

The four colleges will receive an annual $410,000 for the current biennium. The remainder of the finances will come from the community and from student tuition funds.

Location of future colleges by the State, would lead to growth of a State-wide system of public two year institutes in areas of greatest need.

With the State contributing a fixed amount and with community contributions, a community college would operate in a manner similar to public schools.

SPORTS REVIEW

By RICHARD BOYD

EC Seeks Comeback

It is not easy for a team to make a comeback after being in first place one week, and dropping to fourth and fifth place the next. But EC's Pirates are the type of team that can comeback with the best of them. Coach Earl Smith's cagers had lost three straight prior to the High Point game; but you recall, back in December, the Buc cagers had their bad nights and lost the first three games of the season, eventually climbing to the top.

It was a long climb from the bottom back in December, to the top in February. The Pirates can not possibly win the top seeded position for tournament play, but they can make themselves known in the tourney. EC should go into next week's Lexington classic at full strength with the return of Bennie Bowes and Bill Brogden. These two Buc cagers have missed several contests from injuries and sickness.

Gridders Hard At Work

The football story at EC concerns primarily the change from the "T" to Single-Wing to be employed by Coach Stasavich. The backfield has Vince Eiduke at tailback and Larry Rudisill at wingback, while last year's quarterback Dan Rouse appears to be switching to end.

Pro Wrestling Bout Set For Next Week

On Thursday, February 22, at 8:00 p.m., the college is sponsoring a wrestling match in Memorial Gym.

This match is no ordinary match, as some of the leading wrestlers in this profession will be here.

The main event will feature Poncho Villa vs. Lenny Montana. Both are widely known, and have wrestled in such places as Richmond, Baltimore, Charlotte, Norfolk, and Madison Square Garden. This event will be two out of three falls with a 60 minute time limit.

Women Wrestlers

Of interest to both women and men students will be the second event which will feature two women wrestlers: Carol Little vs. Rita Cortez. Miss Cortez is one of the leading women wrestlers in the United States. This event will have a 30 minute time limit, with one fall.

Blue Blood

If there is any blood spilled it will be "Blue," as the last event, a Tag Match, will feature Sir Alan Garfield and Tinker Todd vs. Young Bill Dromo and Guy LaRose. Sir Garfield has just arrived from Nottingham, England, where, in 1958, he was knighted by Queen Elizabeth.

Tinker Todd is a recent "Mr. Canada," and his build shows why he was selected for this coveted title.

President Leo Jenkins urges all students to attend this match, or at least purchase a ticket, as all of the proceeds will go toward the stadium drive. Money taken up at the concession stand will also go toward the stadium.

Proceeds for Stadium

Additional money is needed in order to continue the construction of the stadium as quick-sand has been found on the stadium site. This money, being raised now, will be used for padding to go under the stadium.

Tickets may be purchased from the administration or from dormitory counselors for 99 cents a student. General admission is $2.00 per ticket so students are urged to purchase their tickets now.

Dr. Jenkins also stated that if this match is successful there will be another match scheduled for the Spring, and will be staged in the college stadium.

Stasavich's New Chargers are hard at work afternoons on the Pirate practice field. Winter grid practice will offer the new coach a chance to select potential starters for the Bucs when the regular season gets underway in the fall.

Stasavich Takes Charge As Pirate Gridders Begin Drills

New head football coach Clarence Stasavich, took his first look at his new charges last Thursday when the grid Pirates began winter drills.

The Bucs will hold winter practice for 20 days in compliance with NCAA and Southern Conference regulations.

Switch To Single Wing

One of the biggest changes for the current members of the squad will be to switch from the T-formation to the single-wing. Commenting on the switch Stasavich said, "We plan to spend a great deal of our time in shifting the boys around to see where they will best fit in the single wing offense."

Twenty-two lettermen were in the total of 64 boys who have been invited out for the winter grid drills.

Heading the list of returnees are backs Larry Rudisill, Billy Strickland, Vince Eiduke, Pete Thorell, Tom Michel and Frank Galloway. The linemen are Maury McDiarmid, Earl Sweet, Skipper Duke, Bobby Bumgardner, and Richard Honeycutt.

Stasavich accustomed to working with about 25 boys at Lenoir-Rhyne stated that "this large number will be a test for me to see what kind of a teacher I really am."

Won't Hinder Academic

The practice sessions are scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m. with a skill session lasting for about thirty minutes. During this period coaches and the team will discuss the things they plan to cover on the field that day. The plan is to be on the field shortly after 4 o'clock and practice until 6 p.m.

There will be no evening sessions which should give the players plenty of study time during the next couple of week before exams. Stasavich said he did not want to hinder the academic work of the team members with the winter drills.

Coach Mallory has announced that there will be an organizational meeting of all prospective baseball players on Monday, February 19, at 8:00 p.m. in the Gym.

East Carolina Defeats Panthers; Lewis, Otte Lead Buc Victory

East Carolina redeemed themselves from their 69-66 loss earlier in the week to Pfeiffer by turning back High Point's rangy Panthers in the EC Gym, Wednesday night. The EC attack was led by Captain Charlie Lewis and Center Bill Otte. The pair scored 25 and 23 points respectively.

Thus the Bucs broke their three game losing streak, and the win gave the cagers a 10-6 record in conference play and 13-9 overall. Bill Brogden and Russ Knowles also hit in double figures for the hustling Pirates. Brogden, a fine freshman playmaker from Wilmington hit for 12, while Knowles, a 6-3" forward scored 11. EC had to play the game without first team forward Lacy West, but Knowles subbed well for the ailing West who had the flu.
