Senate To Appropriate Balance

Four Freshmen Give Concert May 16

By BILL GRIFFIN

Treasurer Jimmy Chesnutt, at the last regular meeting of the SGA, announced that a $15,000 overstatement had been made in the treasurer's report submitted the previous week by former treasurer Bob Ward. Chesnutt explained that the error had been made in deferred disbursements and receipts and the balance now stands at $17,000.

It was announced that the Four Freshmen would appear on the campus the evening of May 16 if the Senate would vote to appropriate the funds needed for this.

Normally the money would come from the entertainment fund, but there is only $860 for less than $1250. The Senate voted to appropriate the balance.

Tom Mallison, president, announced that the Liggett and Meyers Tobacco company would provide receptacles for empty packs of cigarettes made by their company and would pay one cent per pack for all packs collected.

The proceeds from this project will be donated to the Stadium Fund. Mallison appointed a committee consisting of the Sophomore officers to handle this project.

Mention was made of the fact that some students had voted in the last election for officers of classes other than their own. Elections chairman Woody Shepard explained that there method of insuring whether a voter is qualified to vote for a specific officer.

Dean Tucker then announced that the new IBM machines, to be used shortly, would make it easier to classify students for voting purposes.

A proposal, by East Carolinian Editor Jean Peace, to have a reporter sit in on Executive Council meetings was rejected by the Senate.

Dean Tucker announced that, in connection with the current self-evaluation being conducted by the college, the students would be offered a chance to evaluate the faculty. This will be handled by a special committee of the SGA.

Centers Draw Trade

There are some 5000 shopping centers in the United States today, as compared with just about 100 a decade ago, reports the May Reader's Digest. These centers do an estimated business volume of 55 billion dollars yearly, account for about one of every four dollars we spend on retail trade.

EC Builds New Women's Dorm

Self-Study Calls For Mature Answers

If we're suffering from the pangs of crowded rooms, three girls in a two-girl room, then a celebration is in order. The Advisory Budget Commission has given its approval for EC to build a new woman's dormitory with $1,100,00 in federal funds.

It seems that we are progressing in many phases of our extensive or at least hopefully extensive building program. The Committee also is making it possible for the issuance of $625,000 in state bonds for the men's dorm. Hold your breath . . . we are to receive an additional $21,720 to supplement our stadium fund.

Even though we are in the Eastern part of the state and feel our cries for state aid are sometimes unheard, we are being heard and we are actually making progress. We received more money in state bonds than Western Carolina or Appalachian. The "Sleeping Giant" (as we were once called) has been caught yawning and has received recognition. "No-Doz" could be added to our shopping list. We don't want to be caught sleeping again.

We will soon be called upon to answer questionnaires concerning our school and professors. We will be grading the institution and issuing grades for our instructors. Admitted it's a change from the usual situation, but to consider seriously how our college is functioning will be of an unlimited help to us.

We want to remember that we must be fair and serious. The program is called a Self-Study and it is just that. Not only will we find how our college ranks, but we will also find whether or not we are satisfied with how the institution is being run.

We meet in friendly groups daily to discuss professors and policies. We either like them or we do not. This survey will be no different; however, we sometimes are prejudiced in our comments to friends. We've all been guilty of saying "He gave me a "D" in that course and I got a "B" in his course." This may seem trivial, but it will be no small questions that will matter in many cases.

We are a growing college and we are experiencing growing pains. Let's not mistake growing pains for campus problems. Of course our dormitories are crowded, parking spaces are limited, Austin Building is old, cafeteria lines are long, CU facilities are inadequate, and Wright Fountain is sudsy. These are typical of our criticisms at EC. There will be no room for petty quarrels when we fill out the evaluation sheets. We must be honest, fair, and above all mature in our answers.

Let's upgrade and not downgrade. It's our college and our future degrees that will receive the benefits.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"LOOK AT IT THIS WAY, WORTHAL — MEBBE TH' BAND DON'T NEED NO MORE TROMBONE PLAYERS."

Course Aids Students In Capturing Oral Barrage

The average college student sits through approximately 2,000 lectures and listens to possibly 10,000,000 words! He is also exposed to another 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 words in his textbooks, collateral reading, and research assignments.

Much of this oral and verbal barrage represents fleeting intelligence, facts, and other invaluable knowledge, which the student must capture, absorb, and hold if he is to develop his talents to the utmost. Since 50 percent of what he hears is forgotten almost immediately, his ultimate success lies in the making of discriminate notes for study and review.

To aid EC students in achieving this success, the School of Business is offering for the first time NOTEHAND (Bus. 24)—a course in the principles and techniques of discriminate notemaking which is implemented by a brief writing system based on the alphabet of Gregg Short-hand.

This is an easy-to-learn, non-vocational version intended strictly for personal use. It is intended to be an elective course for non-business majors and for those business majors who are not required to learn Gregg Simplified Short-hand.

NOTEHAND will be taught during the first session of summer school. It will meet five days a week at the third period, and three quarter hours of credit will be given upon the successful completion of the course.

Anyone desiring further information about this course may contact Miss Frances Daniels in Rawl 121-A.

Bicycles Solve Parking Problem

By MONTY MILLS

Frank Sinatra or one of the Kingston Trio maybe? On a night with a full moon, a strange wolf-like performer with straight black hair and a ukelele snarles and serenades by the fountain. The "howling wolf man" may be EC's surprise gift to the entertainment world.

Moon Students? ?

With a hopeful U.S. landing on the moon by the late 60's, EC's travel-study tours could encompass a broader scope of advantages and adventures. One day as parents we may send our own children on a travel-study trip to the moon. Quite a few teachers would like to send their students to the moon and on the first trip if possible.

Have Bike Will Travel

The greatest problem of college students today is not finances, grades, or after-graduation job opportunities, but possible parking space on campus. Extra-curricular boy-girl parking space is no problem, but students do need a place to park their cars. Some colleges and universities allow no cars on campus, and commuter have converted to bicycles and motorscooters.

SUDS — DUZ OR BUD?

More suds in the fountain, more students engaging in do-it-yourself laundering— No, not Duz suds, but Bud suds. What next — outdoors showers or outdoor swimming pools? If you must throw something in the fountain, why not use it for wishes and throw in coins. I could use the extra money to finish school.

Reception Of Foreign Film Annoys Viewer

Editor:

I would like to thank the foreign films committee for obtaining for us the film Black Orpheus. I am just sorry that this school was not able to give it the reception it merits.

Apparently this school does not consider art worthwhile. I refer to the number of vacant seats in Austin Auditorium on the night of the movie.

I am sure that those who want to see a work of art received full measure of enjoyment and satisfaction from the film if they were allowed to concentrate on the story being shown. I do not consider students who sit and constantly annoy other viewers with their insulting, vile, derogatory remarks as ones who would appreciate this film. If I want to hear obscenity for the sake of obscenity I will obtain some of the current records and tapes which are floating around.

I think that students should be allowed to see a worthwhile piece of art but I would like to request the majority of those who were at Wednesday night's showing to please stay away next time so that those who wish to view and enjoy and understand the film can do so.

If you wish to see a film and feel free to make all the public remarks you wish, please wait until the weekend and see the films presented then. Many of the offenders of Wednesday night would not have dared make remarks aloud in one of the public theaters, and I feel that this series of films deserves at least as much consideration. Apparently the students feel free to express anything aloud since they will not get thrown out if they disturb other viewers. I suggest that the college make some arrangement to prevent any future occurrence such as we had Wednesday.

Joyce Evans

Latest census bureau figures show that the average college graduate earns $178,000 more during his lifetime than the person whose education ends with a high school diploma. The average male college grad can expect to make $420,000, while his high school graduating contemporary can look to future earnings of $242,000.

THE BRAMBLEBUSH

By BILL GRIFFIN

Will the idiots who keep Wright Circle fountain overflowing with soap-suds please find another manifestation for their insanity?

Have you heard about the ban-the-book campaign going on in our fair city? Some of the local cleaner-uppers are on the rampage against "obscene literature." Thank goodness — for a while there I thought I was going to be corrupted.

FLASH: Monty Mills, one of the many literary geniuses to grace the offices of our paper, has lost her coloring book and crayons.

IFC weekend (this year labeled "Spring Greeks") is next weekend. First it was the festival, then Easter, then this. Oh, my head.

The Four Freshmen will be on campus the night of May 16. That's on a Wednesday. The SGA is a little short of funds in the Entertainment department, but they plan to appropriate what money they need for this attraction since it is felt that the student body will appreciate this type of entertainment.

EC is losing one of its most qualified and best liked faculty members at the end of this year. He's leaving of his own choice but not because he has received a better offer.

Everyone seems pleased with the outcome of the Miss Greenville Pageant. Congratulations, Polly.

'Buc Beauties'

An Ayden product, Joyce Ailene Garris, like most Primary Education majors hopes to become a school marm and instruct fourth grade "unteachables" on graduation from EC. The eighteen year old beauty plans to spend most of the summer sunning and swimming at Morehead City.

Foreign Language Department Presents Workshop Tomorrow

EC's Department of Foreign Languages will present a workshop dealing with new ideas and techniques in instruction and with problems involved with teaching foreign languages tomorrow in the Graham building on the campus.

Prof. James L. Fleming, director of the Foreign Languages Department at the college, has announced that teachers and others who are interested are invited to attend.

The program will open at 9 a.m. with two concurrent sessions, one for French teachers conducted by Mr. Fleming and Mrs. Marguerite

A. Perry and one for Spanish teachers conducted by Mrs. Fred C. Martin and Julia Escalona. These discussion leaders are all members of the college faculty.

Dr. Martin, director of the Foreign Languages Laboratory, will discuss "Laboratory Techniques and Practice" at a meeting at 10 a.m. Those in attendance will have the opportunity not only of observing but also of using the modern electronic equipment in the Language Laboratory.

"Foreign Language in the Public Schools of North Carolina" will be the subject of the closing session beginning at 11 a.m.

Mrs. Tora Ladu, State Supervisor Languages in public schools of North Carolina will be principal speaker.

Collier Receives Graham Award

Cara Collier is recipient of the 1962 Maria D. Graham Award, which is presented annually to an outstanding senior major in the Department of Mathematics.

Named for the late Miss Graham, a member of the college's first faculty and for many years a teacher in the East Carolina Department of Mathematics, the award is presented on the basis of scholarship, character, leadership, and participation in the Mathematics Club and other campus activities.

Job Advancements

Campus Illustrated reports that the nation's employers plan to hire up to 25% more graduates this year than last and pay them as much as 15% more money to start! Aircraft firms are bidding highest for seniors, with salary offers averaging $568 a month. Electronics firms are second with offers averaging $563. The next most lucrative professions for seniors are aeronautical engineering ($572); electrical engineering ($571); general business ($450); liberal arts and biological sciences ($444).

Youth Fellowship Installs Officers

The King Youth Fellowship held its installation of new officers on April 2, in the Y-Hut. The outgoing president Lindsey Quids presided over the meeting.

The newly elected officers are President, Glen Bailey; Vice President, Johnny Hedgepeth; Secretary-Treasurer, Edith Tyndall; Board Member, Buford Kaylor; Program Chairman, Jean Hoell; Song Leader, Paula Plaster; and pianist, Margaret McLaurin.

The Fellowship is currently planning their annual spring trip.

Automobile engines that will get more miles per gallon from cheaper fuels than are now used may be in use soon, according to a May Reader's Digest article. Developed by the Texaco Company and soon to be tested by Ford, these engines do not require the high octane fuels that most modern cars need. One Texaco engine has averaged 24 miles to the gallon in 40,000 miles of driving running on gasoline, jet fuel, diesel fuel and even kerosene.

Teacher Training Tailored To Fit Low Levels

Yale U Finds Faulty System Of University Accreditations

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (I.P.) — The following things are wrong with the present system of accreditation, according to Professor Edward J. Gordon, director of Yale University's Office of Teacher Training:

1. No two courses in the Psychology of Education are at all similar, so that quality is never assured.
2. Too often the process of getting accredited to teach is only a matter of putting in time ("the process is not connected with what a student-teacher knows").
3. Anyone can get in to some teacher training program whatever his lack of ability ("since courses are tailored to fit the lowest level in the teacher's college, good students cannot sit through them").
4. The most serious indictment of all is that knowledge of the subject to be taught matters so little ("in manuals on accreditation of teachers the subject-matter requirements are nearly always in fine print").

5. The omnipresent joker is that once a teacher is accredited, he often winds up teaching in another field than for which he was prepared ("about half of the English teachers in the country were not English majors").

On the optimistic side, the Yale professor, outspoken critic of accreditation procedures in American education, said more states every year are requiring more subject-matter training. "New York and Pennsylvania have led the way. New York has greatly increased the amount of subject-matter training required of teachers: 36 semester hours in English, 24 in foreign languages, 18 in mathematics."

However, this is still only a start, he said, since dividing semester hours by six to get the full number of courses, "one can teach mathematics in New York with only three courses in the field — and this is one of the best states in this respect.

"Pennsylvania," he included, "is the only state I know which requires foreign language teachers to actually pass a test in speaking the languages. A foreign language teacher in Connecticut, for example, needs only three full courses of training in the subject."

NCEA Appoints Jones Chairman

Dr. Douglas Jones, director of the Department of Education has accepted an appointment to serve as state chairman of the College Advisory Committee of the Future Teachers of America, a division of the North Carolina Education Association. He held this office during 1961-1962 and will continue his duties during 1962-1963.

The invitation to Dr. Jones to continue his services was extended by Executive Secretary A. C. Dawson at the request of President Dan S. Davis of the NCEA.

ACE Delegates Attend Meeting

Five student members of the Association for Childhood Education and their faculty advisor, Dr. Mary Lois Staton of the Department of Education, represented the college at the recent State ACE Convention in Charlotte.

Dr. Staton and Ann Martin, president of the college ACE organization, attended the Executive Banquet. Other EC representatives who participated in convention activities were Brenda Nunnery, Opal Hall, Judy Biggs, and Judith Godwin.

Alcoholic Suffers

An estimated five million Americans suffer from alcoholism, the disease characterized by inability to stop drinking or to "handle" liquor. Of these five million compulsive drinkers, a May Reader's Digest article notes, an estimated 750,000 are women. The actual number, however may be considerably higher, if meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous are valid indications.

Bargain rates for student travelers are making it easier than ever for young people to see the world, reports the May Reader's Digest. More than a quarter of a million young people will enjoy group discount rates this summer. Many of their trips will be arranged by nonprofit travel organizations run for and by students in more than 30 countries.

Forestry Association Offers Rugged Vacation

At a time when most of us are starting the annual struggle to plan vacations, the May Reader's Digest suggests one that could be the most unusual — and the most rewarding — that you have ever spent.

Think of spending twelve days without seeing a newspaper or hearing a radio, without the tinkle of a telephone bell or the blare of an automobile horn, without even the sight of a road. Consider travelling on horseback through some of the most rugged and picturesque trails in the country, of hiking and fishing among mile-high mountains and lakes, of sleeping in tents, eating over open fires and washing in icy streams.

If this appeals to you, then you might join the more than 3600 Americans who have taken advantage of a non-profit service of the American Forestry Association, which each summer since 1933 has organized a score or more of summer trips into wilderness areas of America.

Although wilderness vacations do call for rugged travel, Digest writer Paul Friggens says they require no special physical condition other than general good health. On the trip he joined, the group of 25 ranged in age from 17 to 70, was about equally divided between men and women. Nearly all had previous riding or hiking experience, but for out-and-out "dudes" help is readily available from old-timers.

Costs of the twelve-day trips average $250, including horse, tents, food and services of a doctor, if needed. Bring your own sleeping bag and other personal effects.

Advantages of this kind of vacation? Says Friggens: "In 12 days we saw some of the magnificence of yesterday's America, made fast friends, and enjoyed one of the most enriching vacations of our lives."

Festival Features Dance Program

Two EC students, both wives of faculty members, presented a lecture-demonstration on the modern dance Monday, April 16, at the college and will follow up with programs on the modern dance at the Greenville and the Jacksonville Fine Arts Festivals April 28 and 29.

Mrs. Betty Rose Griffith and Mrs. Jo Saunders appeared in the Dance Room of the Memorial Gymnasium before the Dramatic Arts Workshop, class taught by Dr. Lucile Charles of the college Department of English. They discussed and demonstrated for the prospective students of the theater the importance of stage movement through the medium of the modern dance and gave an insight into basic dance techniques.

Swindell Accepts Research Committee Appointment

Dr. Lewis H. Swindell of the Department of Education has accepted an appointment as a member of an Advisory Committee on Research which will work with the Department of Curriculum Study and Research of the N. C. State Board of Education.

Dr. I. E. Ready, director of the Department, in making the appointment, stated that the new committee will act in an advisory capacity as the department increases activities in support of research projects, particularly those in local schools of the state.

The Advisory Committee will include in its membership representatives of institutions which award graduate degrees, of the State Department of Public Instruction, and of local school administrative units.

As representative of the college on the committee, Dr. Swindell will attend a meeting May 9-10 in Durham and sessions of an Institute on Research Design, sponsored by the Department of Curriculum Study and Research, May 10-12 also in Durham.

The event will take place at Moravian College and will bring together delegates from all parts of the United States.

World's Fair Trip For Students Being Planned

Student groups visiting the World's Fair in Seattle this summer have a triple treat awaiting them.

Excellent accommodations at a moderate price have been made available for students on a floating hotel in Seattle's beautiful harbor. A luxury liner, the Dominion Monarch, will be permanently berthed at a Seattle pier and operated as a hotel during the Fair. Multiple dormitory quarters for 82 women are available on the liner's C deck. And dormitory quarters for 205 men are available on D Deck. Baths are adjacent. Rate for each bed in these areas is five dollars a night. Accommodating from two to a maximum of six, these rooms provide ideal space for student groups.

Students staying on the Dominion Monarch will be able to enjoy services similar to those of a pleasure resort. For, in addition to all the conventional facilities of a top

Presser Grants Music Scholarship

The Department of Music has received from the Presser Foundation of Philadelphia, Pa., a scholarship grant of $400 for the academic year 1962-1963. Professor Earl E. Beach, director of the department, has announced.

The Presser Foundation stresses the Founder's provisions that the Scholarship be allocated to students in need of aid, and that preference should be given to those who expect to become teachers of music.

The sum will be used, Mr. Beach stated, to provide financial help to two students majoring in music here. Recipients will be announced later in the spring.

Senior Music Student Receives SAI Award

Marie Louise Sutton of Kinston, senior music student, has been named as recipient of the Dean's Award presented by the Beta Psi Chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, national fraternity for women musicians, Director Earl E. Beach of the college Department of Music has announced.

The award is presented to a student with an outstanding record in scholarship, leadership, and musicianship at the college.

Bat's Sonar System Under Observation

An exciting new science, bionics, is attempting to solve some of man's problems by studying some of nature's special mechanisms. The May Reader's Digest notes as one example the "sonar systems" of bats, which make man-made sonar look shamefully elementary. By bouncing supersonic squeaks off objects around him, the bat can fly through a maze of wires without touching a single one. Learning the secret of this behavior could mean vastly improved man-made sonar.

To Increase Trained Public Health Personnel

Student's Training Program In Public Health In Operation

The Public Health Traineeship Program is especially designed for college students to increase the number of trained professional public health personnel and to bring new people into the field of public health through training. These traineeships include a stipend for tuition and fees and an allowance for transportation.

Modern public health practice needs the skills of members of professions including physicians, nurses, engineers, sanitarians, health educators, dentists, statisticians, laboratory personnel, veterinarians, medical social workers, nutritionists, and others.

The eligibility requirements for entering the public health traineeship program include the completion of basic professional education, U. S. Citizenship, and the intent to enter, or remain in, public health employment. Also necessary is the prior acceptance by the school of your choice that offers a nationally recognized graduate or specialized public health training program in your professional field.

"The purpose of the clinic," Mr. Fickling said, "was to prepare EC students for teaching in Vacation Bible Schools during the summer."

The Rev. Bennie Pledger of Ayden, director of the Vacation Bible School Clinic of the South Roanoke Association, conducted the meeting. Seth Lewis was chairman of the student planning committee for the clinic.
