Garrett Leads SGA Debate

The number of representatives allotted to each dormitory was the chief topic of discussion at the regular meeting of the Student Government Association held on October 9.

Lynda Lewis, president of West Garrett Hall, moved that the student senate take into consideration the amendment of Article VIII, Section I, part "f" of the constitution to read as follows:

"Each dorm will have at least one representative regardless of size; and that there be one representative for every 150 students over the original 150."

A lengthy debate led by the Garrett representatives followed the motion. Nancy Lomax, leading the affirmative side, pointed out that Garrett operates as two separate dormitories and supports the SGA as two separate dorms. More representation would enable the SGA to be a better organization.

The negative side of the debate was led by Woody Shepherd, Elections Chairman. He stated that Garrett was recognized as one dorm by the administration and the student body. The SGA needed people who would work, not just more people.

The motion for consideration was defeated 8 to 15.

Bill Eyerman, presiding vice president, announced that a special committee had been appointed, however, to investigate the representation problem. The motion was made and passed that the committee report its findings to the senate in two weeks.

The newly-elected freshman officers were sworn in by the vice president of the senate. The are as follows: President, Tom Scott; Vice President, Keith Douglas; Secretary, Kathy Cauble; Treasurer, Tim Bagwell; Male Senator, Emmett Ward; Woman Senator, Frances Cupton.

Marching Pirates Plan Homecoming Half-Time

The Marching Pirates' plans for the half-time show of the 1962 Homecoming football game have been announced by Mr. George Knight, the assistant director of the band.

The band started drilling for the Homecoming football game last Monday. The show theme this year is "North Carolina." The band will start the show by marching up the field playing the variety vacationland song. Upon reaching the middle of the field, they will break into a series of drill maneuvers based on the Indian arrowhead. The drill will be accompanied by a blues march. From this drill, the band will break into a teepee to salute the Indians of the western part of the state, and will play

"Cherokee." The basic tune that the band will use to go from formation is "The Old North State." The band will form an airplane in honor of the Wright brothers at Kill Devil Hill, and will play "Flying Home." As a salute to the furniture industry of North Carolina, the band will make a rocking chair and will play "The Old Rockin' Chair."

The next formation will be a surprise formation to be announced at the game. The song for this formation will be "Mountain Dew" in a tribute to the "slightly illegal" industry of the mountain region. This number will feature John Berry doing the Burke County Stomp. The Marching Pirates end their program with the traditional E.C. and the "Alma Mater."

McGuire, Jenkins To Discuss Possible Coaching Position

By JIM FORSYTH

Frank McGuire, basketball coach of national fame, will visit with President Leo W. Jenkins today to discuss the possibilities of his coming here as head basketball coach. McGuire led the UNC Tarheels to the NCAA championship in 1957, and he has an outstanding reputation for being able to build up a team. Last year he accepted a coaching position with the Philadelphia Warriors, but he dropped the job when they recently moved to the west coast.

Dr. Jenkins, in response to previous statements made by various papers throughout the state, said that there is nothing final as far as McGuire will be here sometime this week, have absolutely no basis.

Dr. Jenkins' secretary expressed regrets that several newspapers in the state had "jumped the gun" on the McGuire situation rather than waiting for the eventual outcome.

No statement was offered by Dr. Jenkins to the press because there is nothing to be said, the matter is still in the "talking stages." There is the strong possibility of an official statement sometime after Wednesday. He urged that students and the general public disregard such rumors that McGuire has purchased a house and that EC has offered him more than he was ever offered at UNC.

Campus Station Plans Campaigns For UNICEF

The campus radio station intends to use October 31 to support the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. In order to do this, WWWS has three main functions in mind to campaign on UNICEF Day.

The first will be a Radiothon by Campus Radio to be held from 1:00 p.m. until midnight. All contributions, requests, and dedications will be announced over the air.

The second will be a dance party at the CU on the night of November 2 for all students, including freshmen. Contributions will be collected for admittance.

The last idea, which is still in the formative stages, is a proposed dance party for the high school with all contributions going to UNICEF. The radio station intends to provide both music and disc jockeys.

Pep Rally

A pep rally will be held Thursday behind Wahl-Coates Training School at 6:30 p.m. The rally will be conducted by the cheerleaders and they will introduce cheers to the student body. A bonfire will accompany the rally, and all students are urged to attend.

It's Up To Us

East Carolina College is surging toward the ranks of respect among institutions of higher learning. This phenomenal progress is due in large part to the acquisition of new facilities and extremely competent personnel. College officials are, it seems, doing their part toward making EC a place of which we can be proud. It is time for the student body to make itself felt in this pattern of progress.

What better time could there be for the student body to, in the interest of progress, assert itself and bury forever the legendary apathy of which it has so often been accused. What better time could there be for the student body to make its voice heard.

If we want improvements we must request them. If there is opposition to any policy, movement, or situation, this opposition should be voiced—with intelligence as well as vigor. Nothing is likely to happen unless we make it happen.

With this in mind, it would also seem imperative that the student body cast a critical eye upon itself in an effort to discover the amount of responsibility it is willing to accept. This is necessary because all rights carry with them certain responsibilities. We must decide if we are willing to take on these responsibilities.

To whom are we responsible? First, it would seem, we are responsible to ourselves. If we are to fulfill this responsibility we must overcome the fear of public opinion, censorship, and consequence. We must learn to call a spade a spade without regard for the results of such action. We must be true to ourselves. It seems logical to assume that if this first responsibility is met, the others will also be fulfilled.

It is up to us.

Opinions

To those of you who disagree with our stand on civil rights: We respect your opinion (or rather your right to it) but don't expect us to change ours simply because you don't agree with it. We are not secret agents for the NAACP. What we have said and will say is a product of deep convictions.

Late Permission

It is encouraging to see that women students have been granted late permission (1:00 a.m.) for both nights of the Homecoming weekend. If everything goes well, this could be the start of something big.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

THE BRAMBLEBUSH

By JIM WILLIS

Overheard: Coach Stasovich's favorite Chinese food: Wun Wing Sic Fling.

The notices announcing the various departmental meetings are sometimes posted before the meeting takes place, but all too often the matter tends to be ambiguous. To some, we are aware, quality points mean very little; but to most of us they are considered dear, especially when we lose one of them because we failed to attend a departmental meeting when the notice announcing the meeting was posted at 3:00 on the afternoon of the day the meeting took place.

We are eagerly awaiting the results of the junior English test so we can find out if we're going to be in the same remedial class with the rest of the EAST CAROLINIAN staff.

She had the look of a freshman as she curiously wandered into the EAST CAROLINIAN office recently. Sensing her unfamiliarity with the place we glanced up at her and offered her our assistance.

"I'm looking for Kaye Burgess. She told me that she worked with the EAST CAROLINIAN in the make-out room. Can you tell me where the make-out room is?"

"The what kind of room?" we inquired.

"The make-out room. She stays in there most of the time", she pleaded innocently.

"Doing what?" we asked.

"Oh I don't know. That's where she told me to find her," she replied.

"You must mean the make-up room," we said laughingly.

"That's what I . . . oh my gosh!" stammered the dark-haired co-ed, blushing a bright red from the top of her pixie to the bottom of her Weejuns.

"It's in the next room, but I don't think Kaye is in now. Would you like to leave her a note?" we said, pretending not to notice the momentary misery she was experiencing.

"No," she replied as she scurried out the door not looking back.

A professor of ours states that he's sure that he must be an old timer since he can remember when the College Square was the name of a place instead of a person. That's all.

Editor's Notebook

Last week J. Alfred Willis, creator and author of the column, "Hamburger", stormed into the office frothing at the mouth. After being calmed somewhat, he explained that someone had just accused him of being an agent of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. They had read the remarks of Jim Willis concerning drinking in his column, "The Bramblebush", and had, along with a lot of other people, attributed them to J. Alfred Willis. The same sort of thing, in reverse, had happened to Jim Willis.

These two writers do not wish to be confused with one another but neither of them will agree to change his name, so try to remember that J. Alfred Willis writes "Hamburger" and it appears on Friday. Jim Willis writes "The Bramblebush" and it appears on Tuesday. (What do you mean, you don't read either one?)

problems better than the rest."

A young man in his late twenties, Giles is friendly and open-minded. He tries to read as much as possible and to keep up with the news. He believes a person is never too old to read, but admits it is hard to find time. He is an avid sports fan, liking all sports. He plays golf a little and goes bowling in order to give his wife an opportunity to beat him.

Registering students is done differently at each college, so Giles is in the process of learning the inside track of the work here. He not only finds the work different, but also the town of Greenville different. Chapel Hill is a University town where nearly everyone is connected with the University. In Greenville tobacco plays an important part along with the college.

Commenting on the IBM machines, Giles says, "Students shouldn't blame 'those machines' for their schedules. We do not have a computer; instead, much of the work is still manual." He is hoping the mistakes can be worked out. After all, humans do make mistakes. Even after careful study, something different seems to turn up frequently. This happens to students on exams. Learning by experience, therefore, must still be the best system.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

Can education bring happiness?

This is a question that in recent years has caused much lively debate and several hundred stabbings among American college professors. Some contend that if a student's intellect is sufficiently aroused, happiness will automatically follow. Others say that to concentrate on the intellect and ignore the rest of the personality can only lead to misery.

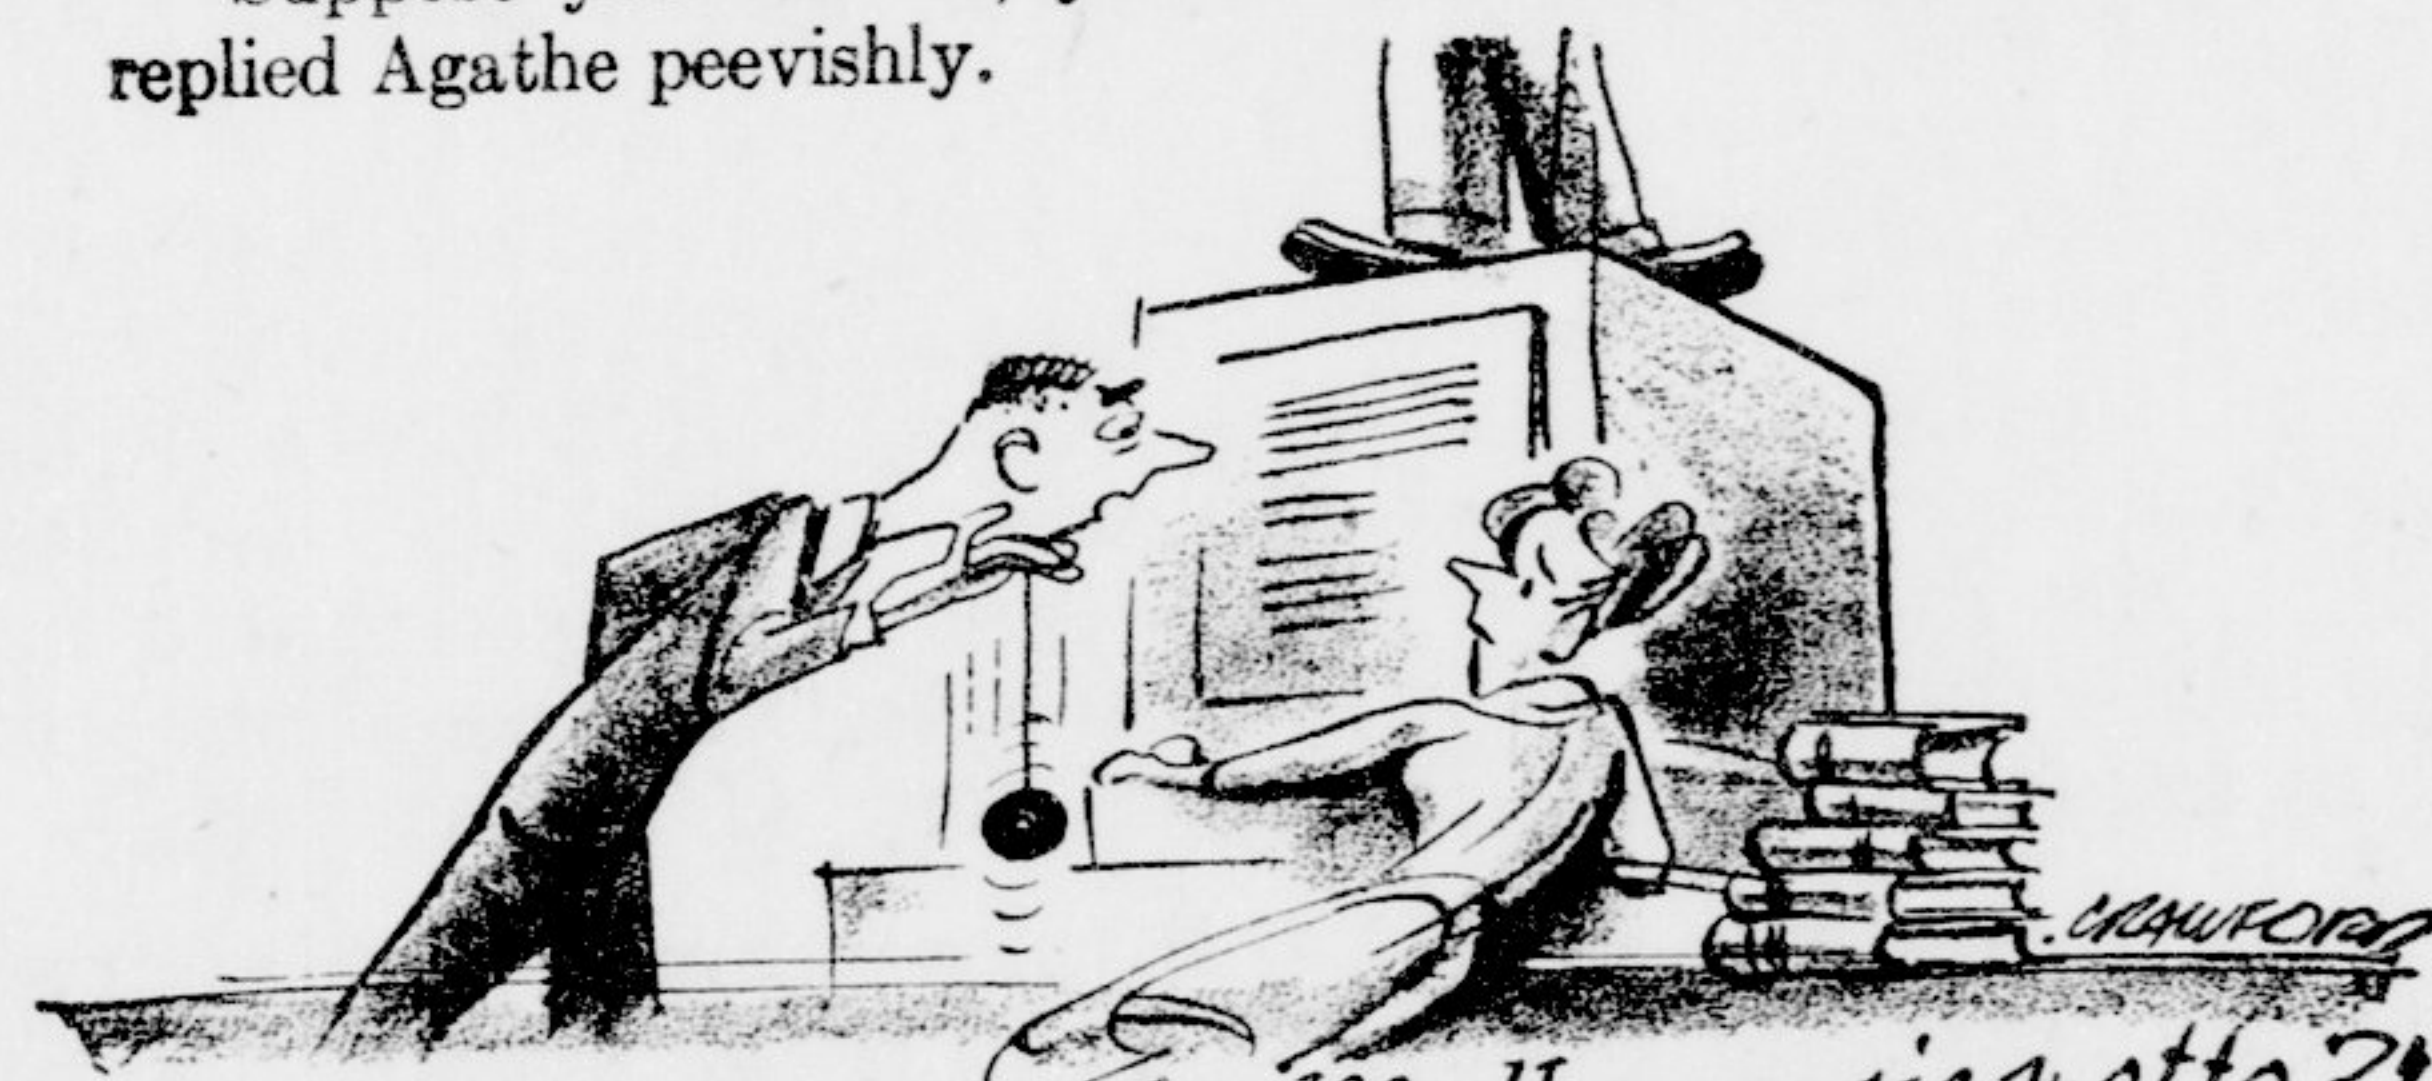

I myself favor the second view, and I offer in evidence the well-known case of Agathe Fusco.

Agathe, a forestry major, never got anything less than a straight "A", was awarded her B.T. (Bachelor of Trees) in only two years, her M.S.B. (Master of Sap and Bark) in only three, and her D.B.C. (Doctor of Blight and Cutworms) in only four.

Academic glory was hers. Her intellect was the envy of every intellect fan on campus. But was she happy? The answer, alas, was no. Agathe—she knew not why—was miserable, so miserable, in fact, that one day while walking across campus, she was suddenly so overcome with melancholy that she flung herself, weeping, upon the statue of the Founder.

By and by a liberal arts major named R. Twinkle Plenty came by with his yoyo. He noted Agathe's condition. "How come you're so unhappy, hey?" said R. Twinkle.

"Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major," replied Agathe peevishly.

"Have you ever smoked a Marlboro cigarette?"

"All right, I will," said R. Twinkle. "You are unhappy for two reasons. First, because you have been so busy stuffing your intellect that you have gone and starved your psyche. I've got nothing against learning, mind you, but a person oughtn't to neglect the pleasant, gentle amenities of life—the fun things. Have you, for instance, ever been to a dance?"

Agathe shook her head. "Have you ever watched a sunset? Written a poem? Smoked a Marlboro Cigarette?"

Agathe shook her head. "Well, we'll fix that right now!" said R. Twinkle and gave her a Marlboro and struck a match.

She puffed, and then for the first time in twelve or fifteen years, she smiled. "Wow!" she cried. "Marlboros are a fun thing! What flavor! What filter! What pack or box! What a lot to like! From now on I will smoke Marlboros, and never have another unhappy day!"

"Hold!" said R. Twinkle. "Marlboros alone will not solve your problem—only half of it. Remember I said there were two things making you unhappy?"

"Oh, yeah," said Agathe. "What's the other one?"

"How long have you had that bear trap on your foot?" said R. Twinkle.

"I stepped on it during a field trip in my freshman year," said Agathe. "I keep meaning to have it taken off."

"Allow me," said R. Twinkle and removed it.

"Land sakes, what a relief!" said Agathe, now totally happy, and took R. Twinkle's hand and led him to a Marlboro vendor's and then to a justice of the peace.

Today Agathe is a perfectly fulfilled woman, both intellectually and personalitywise. She lives in a darling split-level house with R. Twinkle and their 17 children, and she still keeps busy in the forestry game. Only last month, in fact, she became Consultant on Sawdust to the American Butchers Guild, she was named an Honorary Sequoia by the park commissioner of Las Vegas, and she published a best-selling book called I was a Slippery Elm for the FBI.

© 1962 Max Shulman

The makers of Marlboro are pleased that Agathe is finally out of the woods—and so will you be if your goal is smoking pleasure. Just try a Marlboro.

"Dedicated To . . .

A Young Man's Taste"

SPORTS REVIEW

By RICHARD BOYD

One of the most highly respected men in the state of North Carolina has stepped down from a position he loved to devote full-time duty to one of the more important duties in our administration. Due to the time required by his position as Dean of Men, James B. Mallory has resigned as head baseball mentor.

The employing of Coach Earl Smith to head baseball coach gives EC a man surpassed by few in his experience and knowledge of the game.

Coach Smith has nothing but the highest respect for Mallory. "I consider it a privilege to follow Jim Mallory as baseball coach at EC. Jim is one of the finest coaches I have ever known."

Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, the EC Athletic Director, stated that "The college has reached national fame in baseball under Coach Jim Mallory. His outstanding achievements, both as a player and coach, will mark him as one of the all-time greats."

Many people do not realize the success this man has brought to EC in the field of athletics. Five championship baseball teams in eight years in the old North State Conference was a great accomplishment within itself, but the winning of the 1961 NAIA baseball championship was a feat equaled only by the 1957 NAIA swimming team of EC. In 1962, EC was hit hard by graduation of many top performers of the 1961 champs. But, despite this handicap, Mallory's nine conquered national powers Wake Forest and Florida State.

A baseball coach for 15 years, Mr. Mallory has the stunning record of 170 wins against 33 losses. Besides the five championship records he has added to EC, the successful mentor added five championships to Elon's record prior to coming to EC. Mallory has helped many boys that have played for him gain professional baseball contracts. For example, in 1961 the following were signed from the national championship team: Pitcher Larry Crayton; infielders Floyd Wicker and Jim Martin, and outfielder Wally Cockrell.

Last year, the famed college coach received one of the highest honors ever bestowed upon a baseball coach in the state of North Carolina. The Raleigh Hot Stove League honored Mallory as "baseball's man of the year" in North Carolina for the year 1961. The man who contributed most to the game that year in this state deserved the honor probably as much as anyone in the history of the award.

Future students of EC will know James B. Mallory as the highly respected Dean of Men. But the people that have known Mr. Mallory in the past, the people that have been associated with him in the great game of baseball, and the many fans that have seen his teams in action will remember him differently. He will be remembered as a man who left his coaching position in the interest of a growing East Carolina College, but regretted doing so, because he loved the game so well.

P. E. Club Elects 62-63 Officers

The Physical Education Club met Thursday, October 4 to elect officers for the 1962-63 year. The executive officers are Gordy Patrick, president; Joyce Clark, vice president; D. L. Scott, Jr., treasurer; and Nancy Miller, secretary.

To handle this year's programming, Mike Senkier was elected Men's Program Chairman and Pat Dercole was elected Woman's Program Chairman. The Program Chairmen plan weekly recreation for the members. Membership is open to all P. E. majors and members of the P. E. staff.

HORSESHOE ENTRIES

Catamounts Edge Bucs; Cline Scores Twice

By LLOYD LANE

Western Carolina's Catamounts edged our Pirates 20-16 Saturday night at Cullowhee.

Co-captain Smith accounted for the first Pirate score when he spilled a Catamount in the end zone for a safety to give the Pirates a 2-0 lead. Bill Cline added to this score with a 15-yard touchdown jaunt late in the second period. Earl Sweet kicked the extra point that gave our Pirates a 9-0 halftime lead.

Substitute quarterback Ruta put the Catamounts into the scoring column in the third period with a 13-yard TD pass to Walter Swainey with Stayton booting the conversion. Minutes later Fullback Ken Samford scored for the Catamounts on a 14-yard run. The WC try for the two-pointer failed, and the score was 13-9—Western Carolina.

Bovender Leads Baby Pirate Win

By LLOYD LANE

The running of Buddy Bovender and the great defensive line of the Freshman Pirates gave EC a 7 to 6 victory over nationally-ranked Chowan College in Greenville Saturday night.

Chowan scored in the first period on a sustained drive that started on their 37 yard line and was climaxed on a fullback dive by Ron Wallace. What proved to be an important extra point try was missed due to the gap-shooting of Buddy Bovender.

Buddy Bovender scored the Pirate touchdown on a reverse from 4 yards out and Jerry Wallace converted the all-important winning point. Bovender's running was important factor later in the game when he pulled EC out of a hole. The ball was on the Pirate 3 yard line where the Pirates had taken it over after a great goal line stand. Bovender ran it from the Pirate 3 to the Chowan 27.

The Pirate defensive line was outstanding. The play of Bill Sheffield, Ken Heath, Jon Rife, Gene Schmidt, and Jay Andrews was a decisive factor in the outcome of the game. Their defensive ability proved itself in the last quarter when Chowan had the ball first and goal on the Pirate 4 yard line. The EC line stiffened and held Chowan to a total of 3 yards on four plays, although Chowan's offensive line outweighed them by 15 to 20 pounds per man.

Intramural Spotlight

By KENNETH SMITH

This week's "Intramural Spotlight" is focused on Tennis, a moving, exciting sport which has shown tremendous popularity among the male student body at EC.

A few of the main strokes in Tennis are the "volley," which is struck before the ball touches the ground; the "backhand," which is a stroke hit high in the air; and the "overhand," which is known as a "kill stroke" in which one player tries to overwhelm his opponent.

A good player should have a good sense of timing and balance, strength and the ability to place the ball in the right place at the right time. Good footwork is also responsible for making such accuracy possible.

This past week has seen the beginning of the men's Intramural Singles. The Semi-finals were played Tuesday, October 16, at 4:00 p.m., with the final championship match to be held Wednesday, October 18, at 4:00 p.m. in the gymnasium. The court directly across from the Dormitory is the site of the championship play-offs.
