McGuire Obtains No Specific Job Offer From EC

By LLOYD LANE

The following is a press release given to the EAST CAROLINIAN at 1:30 p.m., October 16, by President Leo W. Jenkins:

Greenville, October 16

Dr. Jenkins . . .

"Frank McGuire visited East Carolina College today for a general discussion of our development program. No specific job offers were made and Mr. McGuire is not a candidate for a coaching position. I have found Mr. McGuire's visits very beneficial to several of our proposed activities both in athletics and in other fields. We are not in a position for decision-making and do not intend to arrive at one in the near future."

Mr. McGuire . . .

"I would like to say that I have enjoyed the visits and have been greatly impressed with both the physical surroundings and the spirit of the campus. I am also greatly pleased with the projects discussed. In fact, I am happy to say that I have already been of some assistance and am looking forward to further visits on the East Carolina campus."

Council Chooses Junior Class VP

Johnny Bryant Parker has been named vice president of the Junior Class. From a submitted list of five candidates, he was elected to the post Monday by the Executive Council of the Student Government Association to fill the position vacated by Mack Worthington.

Worthington has been moved to the office of presidency to succeed Bryan Bennett, who has resigned.

Judges To Select New Buccaneer Queen From Six Finalists On Personality, Beauty

The Buccaneer Queen for 1962-63 will be selected this afternoon from six finalists. They are Cathy Chesno, Julia Payne, Sue Little, Kathy Wesson, Marilyn Miller, and Kaye Modin.

The contestants will make individual appearances at a tea and will be interviewed by the judges. The judges will then announce the winner on the basis of beauty, poise, and personality. Nancy Lockwood, last year's winner, will crown her successor at the tea with approximately 35 persons attending.

The queen will ride in Saturday's Homecoming parade and will make a personal appearance at halftime. She will appear in a color photograph in the yearbook, and will be guest at the annual spring banquet of the Buccaneer staff.

The judges for the Buccaneer Queen finals are Frank Gorshin, movie and television star; Mrs. James T. Little, Jr., the former Barbara Taylor, Miss Kinston 1959 and judge and contestant of several beauty pageants; Mrs. N. O. Van Norman, Jr., who works with the local Giss Greenville pageant; Mr. Lou Collie, local insurance representative; and Valjean, renown pianist who will be visiting the campus for Homecoming.

The names of 42 contestants were entered in the contest. They were judged on facial beauty only by the following committee Monday afternoon: Ed Loessin, Playhouse Director; Dr. John Ellen, Buccaneer faculty advisor; Dr. Frank Adams, East Carolina advisor; Walter C. Faulkner, Buccaneer Editor; John Garriss, Buccaneer Associate Editor; Tony Bowen, Buccaneer Managing Editor; Junius D. Grimes III, Rebel Editor; Tom Mallison, SGA President; Jim Chestnut, SGA Treasurer; and Bill Griffin, East Carolinian Editor.

The Theta Chi's, along with other fraternities and sororities, spent many an hour laboring on homecoming floats which will be presented to the public tomorrow morning.

Registrar Announces Preregistration Plans

Preregistration advising will take place during the period of October 22 to October 27 in accordance with the following procedures:

Undergraduates

1. During this period, each student will see his adviser and have the Trial Class Schedule completed showing the courses to be taken next term.

2. The student must take the Trial Class Schedule to the Registrar's Office immediately for final processing and further instructions.

The Registrar's Office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Remember, despite the fact that your adviser has filled out your Trial Class Schedule, you are NOT preregistered until YOU deliver the schedule to the Registrar's Office.

Graduates

1. For all graduate students presently enrolled for the Fall Quarter, it is strongly recommended that they preregister for the Winter Quarter. Instructors will handle the preregistration at the beginning of class on each of the above dates.

2. All graduate students who do not preregister and all new graduate students must register on the regular registration day which is Wednesday, January 2, 1963 or on Saturday, January 5, 1963.

There will be no night registration.

Committee Sells Homecoming Mums

Members of the EC Chapter of the Association for Childhood Education are sponsoring their annual chrysanthemum sale for Homecoming weekend.

An ACE committee, composed of representatives from each women's dormitory, will have on sale today yellow mums for the spectacular occasion. Worn as corsages, the blossoms make a colorful contribution to Homecoming festivities.

Court System

There are certain things concerning the judicial system here on campus that need to be more clearly defined. There seems to be a general lack of knowledge in this area, especially as to who does what, and why.

As closely as we can figure, all judicial bodies on campus have only that power with which the president intrusts them. This seems to be true regardless of whether the body is SGA sponsored, dormitory sponsored, or administration sponsored. If this is true, then the president has the power to intervene at any point in the judicial process. Also, he may absolve one who has been found guilty or expel one who has been found innocent. In short, the president of the college may be both judge and juror in any case he chooses.

We do not, at this time, care to challenge his right to final authority, but we feel that the fact that he has such authority has been poorly emphasized. The office of the president is not mentioned anywhere within the regulations section of the Key.

This position of final authority held by the president would also seem to warrant a general revamping of the lower courts. Since, for all practical purposes, they have no power except the power of recommendation, there seems to be little reason for the many different courts with so many areas of jurisdiction.

There are approximately seventy-five people on campus holding positions on judicial bodies. It is doubtful that there are seventy-five others who thoroughly understand the judicial system. This is not a fault of theirs — the entire system is ill-defined, and this probably means that it is ill-conceived.

We feel that it would be well worth the time and effort involved if a complete investigation of the judicial system on campus were to be undertaken.

Marching Pirates

For the last week or so the afternoon air has been filled with the brassy sounds of the Marching Pirates. The long lay-off since the last home game plus the fact that Saturday is Homecoming probably has the band regarding this weekend as something akin to D Day. We wish them luck.

Homecoming Police

President Jenkins has said that there will be several policemen in the stands this Saturday during the football game. We are not sure they have any business there, but we thought you should be warned.

HAMBURGER

A Column for People Who Can't Afford Lobster Newburg

By J. ALFRED WILLIS

Not being a moralist myself, I take great glee in pointing out the unmoral behavior of the moral "booboisie." This opportunity presented itself at the October Fifteenth meeting of the Student Senate. "The seeming insignificance of our own life . . ." (in the words of the devotional) was put asunder as the Senate became concerned over the significance of stealing a hand-made $150.00 ring, illegal voting for the Homecoming Queen, ID cards being used by non-students, and smoking in the fire hazardous Austin and Wright auditoriums; and I became concerned over the promotional gimmick of the Atlas Service Station and SGA President Mallison's stand on last week's Dean White Editorial.

Chronologically speaking, VP Eyerman said that the Balfour Ring Company had accidentally broken the master dye of the new ECC ring and had made two rings, valued at $150.00 apiece, for demonstration at the College Ring Sale. Someone has accidentally slipped one ring on his finger and walked off with it. VP Eyerman said that it was easy to do. Next it was noted that in the Homecoming Queen elections some students had voted two or more times by borrowing someone else's ID card. Someone asked if there was an existent rule which said that ID cards were non-transferable. Dean Tucker said that there was no rule and that there was no need for a rule because it was a dishonest practice and thus it was conduct unbecoming to an ECC student. Then there was a comment made about the weakness of smokers who are compelled to endanger their fellow students by lighting a cigarette during the free movie in Austin and in the entertainment series and dances in Wright. Of course there may be a consideration for smokers of Ligget and Myers Products.

Speaking about cigarette packs, it brings to attention the latest addition of crass commercialism to the East Carolina Campus — the Atlas Service Station Campaign. For every gallon of gas bought at the Atlas Gas Station by an ECC student, they will contribute one whole cent to the Ficklen Stadium Fund. (Apparently, classroom buildings and dormitories are out of the realm of private contribution.)

As to the Editorial in last Friday's EAST CAROLINIAN, President Mallison informed the Senate that one o'clock permission has been granted for Friday and Saturday night of Homecoming (as if one o'clock permission had never been granted before for SGA functions) and that he was on a committee formed to investigate changing the dormitory closing hours. He said that this was more responsible than propagating rumors among the student body — as if the student body is not a responsible agent for accomplishing reforms. The student body of Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, Ohio, went on strike and forced the president of the college to resign. The student body of East Carolina College elected Thomas Mallison as SGA President.

Cheerleaders

To The Student Body

Is it not collegiate to cheer for the football team on this campus? Something is missing at our games this season. Could it be that a student thinks that his date will think his cheering is "high school?" Too many times we are content to let our neighbor do our cheering for us. The result is that the cheering comes from the other side of the field. There is no need to yell until we are hoarse; but if each spectator should say "Go" on cue in a normal tone of voice, the result would be tremendous support, a big, big, roar.

It is easy to cheer for the team when it is winning, but the boys need our support even more when they are behind. Each and every one of the football players tries his best to uphold the name of East Carolina. When they can't bring immediate and obvious victory on the field, we as students need to let them know how much we appreciate their efforts.

This Saturday at two o'clock the students will see the result of great efforts on the part of the football team, the college band, and the cheerleaders. The whole student body will be on display. Who knows? Maybe it will be the greatest homecoming yet. You can make it that way. Visiting alumni and guests will be here for the weekend. Among them will be people who have been asked to support

Freshman Team

To The Editor:

Hats off to our fine Freshman team who are displaying a brand of football for the homebound.

Their play in the Chowas was most inspiring and team as well as school spirit personified. Again, a hardy congratulations to the team and their coach for a great game.

Gripes

To The Editor:

I think your editorial about segregated newspaper articles in the "Daily Reflector" is a weak attempt at sarcasm and very bad taste. Consider the episode in Mississippi. You could resist the urge to evoke a similar crisis just to your desire to be controversial.

If you must criticize, I suggest you start with your newspaper. If the newspaper presents the views of this school our school has reached a low point. Why not print some stories that are informative? Why find some columnists that say something?

Jerry Hester

To The Editor:

In every edition of the EAST CAROLINIAN there has been an article on segregation. Your articles on the subject are well known and I would suggest that the "school" columns such as Hamburger and It Happened At be cleaned up before you are straightening out the city paper. Your sarcastic little "Segregated Newspaper" is an idea of convenience for the in the Colored News section also the confusion that results from the number of Negro and whites with the same name why not quit trying to stir and write helpful articles in adult fashion that will help the students and faculty.

Francis

To The Editor:

After reading the editorial titled Barnett in the September edition of the EAST CAROLINIAN, I feel compelled to state my opinion and belief on why Barnett is fighting to keep Mississippi schools free of integration.

Barnett does not believe that schools in Mississippi should be integrated and he is exercising authority as governor by putting out his belief in actuality. Barnett would not have taken a huge step against the Federal Government by blocking the integration of the Negro. Mr. Barnett, if he had not studied over the advantages and disadvantages of his protest, he would have known that he would be throughout his decision to block integration, but Barnett was to stand up for his rights and respect him, both as a man and governor.

Whether he is making a of himself, as your column I don't know. But I do know he is doing what he feels is and just.

Nash To Reappear

Frank Gorshin, known to the college crowd for his role in "Where the Boys Are" will serve as master of ceremonies for the Queen's Pageant.

Gorshin was working in the pajama department of a department store with the intention of following his father in the refrigerator business, when an autograph seeker in Pittsburgh mistook him for one of the Four Lads. He explains, "When that autograph seeker mistook me for a somebody, I immediately gave up pajamas, figuratively speaking, and enrolled in the drama department of Carnegie Tech."

Known as a television personality, night club entertainer, a movie star, a comedian, an impressionist, a dramatic actor, and a singer, he has one other current ambition. He wants one of the Four Lads to be mistaken for him.

The Lester Lanin Travelers, featuring Chubby Silvers, will play for the Queen's Pageant, tonight at 7:00 p.m., and for the Homecoming Dance Saturday night at 8:00 p.m.

Easily recognized by their "dance team," the Travelers have been playing in the "best places" for more than twenty years. They have played in all the large cities from New York to California, for every sort of occasion whether it be white tie or sport jacket.

In 1957 and 1958 the Lanin dance band albums outsold all other similar albums in this country. Within the last six years, his six albums have sold a quarter billion copies.

The piano artistry of Valjean Johns will be featured in the entertainment-packed Homecoming festivities. Valjean recently made his hit record debut on the Carlton label with his best-selling rendition of the "Ben Casey Theme."

Valjean has made numerous concert appearances with the Oklahoma City Symphony, Tulsa Philharmonic, and the Dallas Symphony. He has toured with his own concert and comedy series called "An Evening With Valjean" (aka Victor Borge).

The vocalist to appear on the program is Johnny Nash, a seasoned performer of long-standing acclaim. This, incidently, is Johnny's second appearance on the EC campus this year; he scored a success here this past August with the orchestra of Pat Dorn in a chairless concert.

Johnny's first step to stardom came in 1957 with his prize-winning appearance on "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts," which was followed by his first big seller, the softly sentimental "A Very Special Love." After his single made the top-seller brackets, he released a well-received album simply called "Johnny Nash." With the orchestral accompaniment of Don Costa, he has recently cut another album, "The Quiet Hour," a moving study of religious moods. A recent recording by him which is destined to make a sizeable dent in the top ten is the familiar "Ol' Man River." Johnny has been assigned the starring role in the Hecht-Hill-Lancaster production of "Take a Giant Step," his first motion picture appearance.

Upperclass Art Majors Assist In City Schools

Fifty-six students in Greenville city schools are increasing their interest and training in art through participation in public-service classes being conducted by the Department of Art at EC during the fall quarter.

Two classes taught by Ruby Ball of the college faculty are now in progress, one for students in grades 7-12 and one for children in grades 4-6. Each has an enrollment of 28.

Junior and senior high school students are now occupied with crayon batik work and figure drawing. Later they will take up wire sculpture, other types of drawing, and some painting. Those in grades 4-6 are also studying drawing and later will begin work in block printing and crafts.

Miss Ball is assisted in conducting the classes by a group of upperclassmen art majors, Duffy Toler, Patricia Farrow, Jean Ingram, Joy Hahn, and Linda Touchton.

The two classes this fall continue a series offered during 1961-1962

Business School Plans Open House For Dept. Alumni

Quarterly Of Current Authors Includes EC Faculty Members

Two EC faculty members are included in Vol. I of "Contemporary Authors," a publication of Gale Research Company of Detroit, Mich. The book, a quarterly, is described in its sub-title as an "International Bio-Bibliographical Guide to Current Authors and Their Works."

Ovid W. Pierce, novelist and faculty member of the Department of English, and Dr. Wellington B. Gray, Director of the Department of Art and author of works of art and art education, are listed in the work, with biographical and career data, bibliographies of their writings, and statements of work in progress.

Dr. Gray's "Student Teaching in Art" was published in 1960 by International text books. He has also contributed to periodicals a number of articles on art and art education. He is now preparing for publication a handbook for elementary art teachers, a handbook for art supervisors, and a survey of historic furniture styles.

Mr. Pierce is author of "The Plantation" 1958 and "On a Lazy Some Porch" 1960, published by Doubleday. Each won high praise from critics throughout the country and in the year of its publication the annually presented Sir Walter Raleigh Award for the best work of fiction by a North Carolina author. At present Mr. Pierce is writing a new novel with a setting in Eastern North Carolina at the beginning of the Nineteenth Century.

Artist In Residence Begins Second Year

By CAROL JOYNER

Francis Speight is starting his second year as EC's artist in residence. Before coming here he taught for thirty-four years at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Speight paints mostly landscapes. He says, "Models are too expensive and landscapes are not. If I did paint models, I would do head and figure paintings, not portraits." Besides painting, he teaches drawing and painting in the Art Department, but prefers drawing.

Born near Windsor in Bertie County, Speight is now Vice-President of the Bertie County Historical Society. Yesterday he exhibited some of his paintings at a meeting of the Society. Since his return to North Carolina, he has painted in his native county along Chowan River. He has also painted in Greenville, Roxboro, and Statesville.

While on various leaves from the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Speight has taught and visited at the University of North Carolina, Shrivensham American University in England, Lehigh University, DePauw University, and Westminster College in New Wilmington, Pennsylvania. When he taught at the 1934 session of summer school at UNC, he was the first artist to teach there. He taught this past summer at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts between sessions at EC and plans to teach there again next summer.

Speight's works hang in more than fourteen museums in this country and Canada and are included in several private collections. He has won recognition for his work through the years. In 1960 the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts granted him its highest award, the Academy Gold Medal of Honor.

He has been a member of the National Academy of Design since 1940. In 1960 the select National Institute of Arts and Letters elected him to membership. He is listed in Who's Who in America and in the Encyclopedia Britannica, in which one of his works is reproduced.

While attending Wake Forest College, he began studying art. He studied at the Corcoran School of Art and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts after service in World War I.

Moore, Sneden, Loessin Teach Course On 'Introduction To Costume Design'

The Home Economics Department will offer a new course entitled "Introduction to Costume Design" (Home Ec. 235) in the winter quarter. Beginning with a survey of the history of costumes, the program of study will include work in all areas of theatrical costume design. The final project will consist of actual designs done for a specific production.

Dr. Miriam Moore, chairman of the Home Economics Department, in announcing the new course said: "We feel this new area of study will be of value to all people interested in dress design and clothing and will hold particular interest for all students who plan to do work in production of plays."

John Sneden and Edgar Loessin, directors of the Playhouse, will work with Miss Ernestine Nichols, instructor of the course. They will give guest lectures dealing with specific technical problems of costumes and the relationship of costume design to the actor and the play being produced.

In discussing the course, Miss Nichols pointed out that the work in this particular class will be concerned only with the design of costumes and will not require a previous knowledge of construction or sewing. The new class is open to all men and women on the sophomore level or above. Anyone wishing to enroll in the course should see either Dr. Moore in Flanagan or Mr. Loessin in Wright 209.

Faculty Selects Waff As Student Of Month

Miss Patricia Waff has been selected as the art student of the month by the faculty of the art department for October. Pat, a junior from Edenton, North Carolina, feels that her major interests in art lie in the field of painting; but she is also interested in graphics. Pat served the art club last year as secretary, and at the end of the year she was honored as "Most Outstanding Art Student of the Year." Currently she is a student advisor to freshman art students, a member of the art club, and a pledge of Delta Phi Delta, the national honorary art fraternity. Other activities in which Pat participates include Keppa Delta sorority of which she is president, publicity chairman of the SGA, member of the Dean's Advisory Council, and a Marshal. Along with these activities, Pat continues to be on the Dean's List every quarter.

Pat's work has been exhibited among a traveling show extended from the art department to various areas of the state. She also held a one-man show in Edenton this summer in which various media were represented.

How natural should a shoulder be?

This most subtle area of the natural shoulder suit requires extreme caution and understanding in the cutting and tailoring. Our many years experience with the style has proved that the properly proportioned natural shoulder should accurately follow the angle and contour of a man's figure with the same degree of slope. This gives the shoulder the soft look and comfortable fit that is the true expression of the natural look. Of course heavy padding should always be avoided.

From The Top Of The Stack

By LLOYD "STACK" LANE

Homecoming Day is a big day for all of us — students, alumni, and the Greenville supporters of the Pirates. Saturday will arrive with a splash of color, pageantry, and social activity which add that important something to a football game. The fact that tomorrow is Homecoming puts an extra meaning into our game with Newberry. A victory would sweeten the taste of the punch served at the Homecoming Dance that night and make up a little for the 1-3 record of the Pirates.

The Indians of Newberry have a strong team this year as evidenced by their one point loss to Lenoir Rhyne. I shouldn't have to point out that LR is undefeated and nationally-ranked this season. Newberry will provide our Pirates with all the offense they can handle.

The Pirates are strong offensively. The question seems to be centered around the defense. Can the defensive team hold the Newberry offense? You can bet that Coach Stasavich has given this a lot of thought during defensive drills this week.

Offensively, the Pirates can go; defensively, there lies the question mark. I think that the defensive team is ready. The material is there to stop the Indian offense.

The game will be a big one for us to win. Besides making it a successful Homecoming Day, Pirate morale would be up for the Appalachian and Lenoir Rhyne games which fall on consecutive weekends.

Is he or isn't he? It seems that nobody knows. After reading the press release on our front page, I have developed a slight headache. I talked to Mr. McGuire Tuesday, October 16. I told Mr. McGuire that there was nothing definite on anything in the press release. He pointed out that I was mistaken.

"I visited here today," stated Mr. McGuire. I shall close on that note, (I mean quote).

An Instructional Course In Football Simplifies Game For Pirate Coed Fans

By LLOYD LANE

What it is, is football. That is how the Andy Griffith record of the same name starts off. It is surprising to me how many girls know next to nothing about this game to which they enjoy having boys take them.

"What are they doing now?" is a cry I have heard from about every girl I have ever taken to a football game. I usually end up giving a course in "pigskin-ology" before the night is over. To alleviate this most disturbing problem, I have decided to dedicate some spare time to the study of a simplification of football for students, especially girls.

American football was originated from the English game of Rugby. The English game requires that a person does not run with the ball, only kicks it as in soccer. Then some bright young individual decided that he could make better time if he put it in his arms and ran with it.

This, thought the players on the other team, was not quite cricket (I mean rugby). They decided that if he could pick the ball up and run with it, they could too. This was the start of football as we know it in America.

There have been many deviations since that first one back in the 1800's. Because of the high injury rate in the early history of football, rules started popping up. No longer could you pick up a player and toss him over your opponents' line for a first down. The rules forbade things like the "flying wedge" and the "left-hook, right upper-cut tackle" (although this rule is still violated today).

Compared to those first football games, football today is a gentleman's sport. But try to tell that to a back who has just been steam-rolled by a 250-pound tackle and listen to his opinion. Today a man must not only be in good physical condition, but he must have some degree of mental capacity.

This brings us to the subject of our discussion, Modern College Football.

The object of your team (it is very important to know which team is yours so that you will not be embarrassed by cheering at the wrong time) is to get the ball across your opponents' goal line. For this magnificent feat, your team gets 6 points. These 6 points are very hard to come by in most games; so if your team does score, you should jump up and down and yell. If you do this, it may make up for some of the bruises that your players have accumulated in getting that score.

Now comes another chance for your team to get some "bonus" points. If it kicks the ball between the top part of the goal posts, it will get 1 more point; if it runs or passes and somehow manages to get the ball over the goal line, it gets 2 points.

The next hardest part of the game is to keep those "nasty" men on the other team from scoring. This means that your team must somehow stop that triple-threat All-American back who plays for your opponent. If it does manage to stop this "big gun" of the other team and renders his three other playmates in the back-field impotent, they will be forced to kick the ball to your team.

The object of the game, from your point of view, is to have your team score more points than those big lugs on the other team. When it does this, you win; when it fails you lose. Simple, isn't it? If you are still interested in learning something about football, keep posted next week for an article on the single-wing offense and the theory of penalties (that's the purpose of that funny little man in the white and black shirt wearing the knickerbockers).

Bucs Host Newberry's Indians In Homecoming Game Saturday

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 the Pirates take to the gridiron against the Indians of Newberry — a strong and experienced eleven from South Carolina.

The Indian offensive runs from the Wing T formation which switches occasionally to a double wing formation. There is little chance that they will use the double wing this Saturday because of late they have been concentrating on their running game. Newberry's running game is strong and very well-balanced. Their strong running game beat Catawba 27-0 earlier in the year.

Featured in the Newberry attack are halfbacks Phil Orsini and Lieder. Orsini plays wingback and Lieder is left halfback. Both run with speed and agility, especially Orsini, who is reported to be a great broken-field runner.

Calling the plays will be quarterback Tom Gorman. He can pass and run, but his claim to fame is his ability as a field-general. He mixes his plays up well and is not afraid to take a few chances occasionally.

The Newberry line is about the same size as the Pirate line — they be a shade heavier at tackle. They have an All-Conference guard, Jimmy Routon. Routon has made All-Conference for the last three years. He pulls out of the line often to lead interference for the Indian end sweeps that have been devastating thus far this year. The whole offensive line is better than last year and has experience.

Newberry is an experienced and well-balanced ball club. They will be taking a 3-2 record into tomorrow's game — their two losses being to Lenoir-Rhyne (by one point) and Wofford. The Pirates' record is 1-3.

This should prove to be an exciting game for football spectators since both teams have offenses that have been tried and proven to be effective. The Pirates are on for a good game about now and this win would be an extra notch on the Pirate outlast.

Brett To Start As Pirate Defensive Guard Tomorrow

Claude William Brett, a husky lineman, has taken over as a first team defensive guard on EC's "fighting" eleven.

Bill received his start in football at Cradock High School in Portsmouth where he performed under former Washington Redskin quarterback Larry Weldon. Bill played four years of high school football and won the school's annual "Blocking Trophy" award his senior year. A 195 pounder in high school, Bill has added 20 pounds of muscle to his husky frame since coming here.

During his scholastic career, Bill performed four years as a wrestler and one year as a member of the track team. It is a small wonder that the Virginian's major is Health and Physical Education. The 6'1", 19-year-old lineman hopes to coach and teach upon graduation.
