Sunday's Orchestra Concert Proves Musicians' Proficiency

Without a doubt, the orchestra concert presented last Sunday afternoon gave evidence that EC has some of the finest young musicians in the state. Under the direction of the new director, Mr. David Serrins, the orchestra gave a concert which will long be remembered on campus. The program opened with an interpretation of the Overture to "Cosi Fan Tutte." This was an artistic performance in every sense of the word.

In the opening bars of the Bach number the basses seemed to have an attack problem; however, this could have easily been an accoustical difficulty. In the Fugue of that piece, any conductor would have been pleased with the way the basses worked together. All four could have easily been mistaken for one. Another outstanding feature was the question and answer between the basses and violins which was well brought out and clearly defined the subject.

The Mailman "Prelude and Fugue" was as all Mailman work are, MASTERFUL. East Carolina should be highly thankful that we have in our midst one of the finest composers of our day. In the opening bars of the Prelude, the harp seemed to be a little behind the beat; but this was remedied after she became accustomed to the conductor's tempo and beat pattern.

The second half of the program opened with the Symphony No. 8 in B Minor by Schubert. In the second movement, the clarinet, oboe, flute played with a great sense of artistry and understanding. These three instruments, in their turn, gave the second movement the lingering theme for which it is famous.

The final number was the "Allegro" from the Symphony No. 5 in C Minor by Beethoven. From the downbeat to the final note, this piece was played with an unequalled enthusiasm. The orchestra seemed to leap into the first measure and continue the same process throughout. The surging crescendo of this was heard and felt as Mr. Serrins' spirited movements led them from one measure to the next. With the final note, an applause rose which has not been heard in Wright for some time. This display continued to the point of three stage calls by Mr. Serrins.

Dr. Tucker Heads Finance Committee; Program To Help Deserving Students

Approximately 20% of the student body at East Carolina receives some kind of financial aid other than athletic. Included in this figure are scholarships, loans, self-help jobs, and/or a combination of one or more of these.

This aid is made through the Student Financial Aid Committee. The Committee is as follows: Dr. James H. Tucker, Chairman; Don R. Borthwick; Dean James B. Mallory; John B. Davis; Dr. Gerald Royce; Barry M. Shank; Mrs. Mary S. Steele, Dean Ruth White, Ex Officio; President Leo W. Jenkins, Dean Robert L. Holt; and Vice President F. D. Duncan.

The projected figure during the year July 1962 until June 1963 is that 1,093 students will receive some kind of aid. During this period, 609 scholarships will be awarded, varying in amount from $25 to $150.

At the same time, loans will be made to 725 students. The National Defense Student Loan Funds and the EC Student Loan Funds will loan 425 students approximately $150,000. Loans of $350 each will be made to prospective teachers by the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction. Awards are based on financial need, scholastic record, and potential.

Also, there is an average of 565 students working per quarter to help with their expenses. They work up to 180 hours a quarter and make as much as $120 per quarter.

The same kind of program is anticipated for the coming year. In addition there will be nine new scholarships of $500 for outstand-

The U.S. Air Force has announced that a special Air Force Procurement Team will visit the EC campus March 13-14. The team will be located in the Student Union and will be available for consultation from 10 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

This special procurement team will represent all departments of the Air Force Recruiting Service. Persons from EC and the Greenville area will be welcome to stop by for information.

Captain Shelby Townsend, Officer-in-charge of the team, states that his team will have information concerning men and women in the Officer Training School (OTS) program for college graduates, the

A $250.00 scholarship for the winner and a $150.00 scholarship for the first runner-up are the major awards to be given by the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce to the winner of the Miss Greenville Pageant to be held March 28th in Wright Auditorium on the campus of East Carolina College starting at 7:30 P.M.

There are to be ten contestants for this year's Miss Greenville title, representing the college and Greenville. The winner of this year's Pageant will represent Greenville in Greensboro in July in an effort to return the Miss North Carolina title to Greenville after Betty Lane Evans won the state title representing both East Carolina College and her home town of Greenville. The Miss North Carolina winner receives a scholarship of $1,000.00, a complete wardrobe, and many other awards and prizes.

Tickets for this year's Miss Greenville Pageant may be obtained from the Student Supply Stores in the Wright Building at a cost of $1.00 each. There will be no reserved seats so the early bird will get the seat on March 28. If you are unable to get to the CU before Pageant time, there will be tickets on sale at the door the night of the Pageant.

STUDENTS AND THE SGA

It has become increasingly difficult to remain factual and unbiased in writing the weekly student senate report for the EAST CAROLINIAN. Therefore, I would like an opportunity to express some personal opinions about our Student Government Association.

Student Government at East Carolina College, even though the student senate prostituted its power and responsibility when it failed to take the initiative in making the office of president and vice president available to any qualified member of the student body, has performed many useful services for the students and recorded some worthy accomplishments.

However, there is one area in which the SGA has failed decisively—in its relationship with the student body. Student government does not have the respect and backing of a large number of students which it could have. It is, quite frankly, ignored.

We are not criticizing the lack of a Utopia where every single individual takes part in governmental affairs. We are not living in Athens where citizens had leisure time to discuss public affairs and regularly attend the Assembly while slaves performed the less pleasant tasks. We don't expect everyone to be concerned with all the routine affairs of government any more than we expect them to be familiar with the surgical methods of treating cancer. What is important is that each individual have contact with the system of government under which he lives to the extent that he is aware of, and can influence, collectively at least, that system.

There are at least two outstanding factors behind this apathy concerning student government. First, there are too many individuals in the senate who are there simply because they are entitled to a seat because they hold a certain office or position. The winner of the presidential race in at least one dormitory was not even aware of his responsibility to represent his residents in the student senate. After learning of this duty, he appointed someone to take his place. It is understandable that the students did not know that they were electing a senate representative when they voted for dormitory president, but it is inexcusable that a representative should be elected and not even be aware of what he was elected for.

In the second place, the effectiveness of a representative system based primarily on dormitory units (where residents on the same hall often have little in common), and individual classes (when too many students don't even know their class officers) is, at best, very doubtful. Students are identified mainly as a major in a particular department. Since students within each department attend classes together, belong to many of the same organizations, and have definite common interests, it seems reasonable to assume that senators elected by and representing the various departments on campus would feel a greater tie to the students who elected them. The students, in turn, would have more contact with their representative.

Election campaigns, even on the national level, are based on emotion and instinct. Issues are introduced only to reach the emotions. However, there are definite issues involved even in a campus campaign. Few people read an editorial page, and even fewer would read a letter about student government. But let's hope that those who have shown an interest by reading this far will make themselves heard in the coming SGA elections.

—Dan Smith

With SGA elections coming on we thought it would be fair to give someone with different opinions a wack at the editorial column. But Burk Stevens, elections chairman, informs us that response has been less than pathetic. Only one person has filed for Vice President and no one has filed for Men's Judiciary. This sort of thing certainly isn't good for student government. Deadline for filing for an office is Saturday.

LETTERS

Students Not Given The News

To the Editor:

The EAST CAROLINIAN, student newspaper, has printed nothing in whatsoever about what actually happened the night of the snow. There has been and editorial condemning whatever it was that was done and there have been a few letters printed, one of which was specific enough to mention a "perverted act." My objection is that students are not being given the news. I have heard many rumors on the subject, but I have not heard or read anything resembling an attempt to state what did happen. Why has the EAST CAROLINIAN not sent a reporter to find out?

A student can read in the student newspaper what awards faculty members have received, complete with pictures. This is fine, but I personally do not give a tinker's damn about faculty awards when there is a story as big as the snow incident. Would the EAST CAROLINIAN recognize "news" if they were hit on the head with it?

A favorite reason given by the staff to excuse the dullness of the paper is, "Nothing ever happens around here." Well, gentlemen, something did happen. An incident happened that may permanently damage the reputation of the school and the EAST CAROLINIAN has not seen fit to report (1) what happened, (2) action taken, (3) analysis of why it happened. This is gross neglect. Why? Due to lack of information, I can only speculate. My speculations are: (1) that the administration hush-hushed the matter to prevent further damage to the reputation of the school, (2) that the newspaper does not know what happened, (3) that an investigation is being conducted and that the findings will be made "public" later, (4) that this type of thing does not belong in the paper.

In answer to these speculations, I propose: (1) If the administration hushed the affair, it has too much power. The reporting of the news is the responsibility of the paper, not the reputation of the school. (2) If the paper does not know what happened and cannot find out there should be a shake-up in the staff. The job of the paper is to find out what happened. (3) An investigation finds out the details and the people responsible. Some sort of statement, based on the information available at the time, should have been made. If this type of thing does not happen long in the paper, what does? That was an incident started and finished by students to students on the campus. What the hell does a "student" paper concern itself with anyhow?

I personally challenge the paper and all its staff, faculty members, friends and mascots to attempt and justify all and each of the points covered.

—R. W. Gollub

Editor's note:

We thank Mr. Gollub for his interest and his letter, which is as best we can determine, the only thing he has done in his several years here. If he is so interested in campus news and getting it to the students, perhaps he would volunteer as a reporter. But we doubt it.

Behavior

Dear Mr. President:

As a member of the student body at the University of Florida, I had the opportunity to meet the members of the swimming team representing your school. I have rarely seen such sportsmanship and friendliness as was exhibited by Coach Martinez and his team. In their trip to Florida, they have certainly done the State of North Carolina and East Carolina College proud.

Heartbreaking though their defeat was, the team took it in a manner in which should be an example for all athletic teams to follow.

Congratulations on a fine swimming team which I am sure represents an equally fine school.

Very truly yours,
Richard Fleming

Editor's note:

Again there is an indication that the EC campus is not a pen for rowdies. President Jenkins sent us this letter which he received shortly after the swimming team visited Florida.

YDC Meets

The Y.D.C. concluded its last meeting of this quarter last Tuesday night with Dr. James Batten of the Educational Department speaking on the space program. Dr. Batten is one of the few men east of the Mississippi who has trained the astronauts.

Dr. Violetta Fisher, a Cuban native, and member of the Foreign Language Department, spoke February 19 to the Y.D.C. Dr. Fisher spoke on Cuba and the problems it is facing with Castro and communism. She told of the changes that have taken place since Castro took control. Dr. Fisher said that the Cubans do not want the type of government they are now experiencing and are waiting for the Americans to restore a democratic government in Cuba.

On February 5th, Dr. Kathleen Stokes, advisor to the club, spoke on the functions of the Democratic Party, its origin, purpose, and meaning.

Plans are for this club to attend a Monday evening session of the General Assembly in Raleigh sometime in April. Several members of the Y.D.C. are planning to attend the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner to be held in Raleigh on March 30. Vice-President Lyndon B. Johnson will speak.

Buckley Barks Back

Dear Mr. Foster:

You are very kind to send me the editorial in the East Carolinian, and you are quite correct in saying it is libelous. Its author is presumably a neurotic, of which there are a dismaying number in our well-farized society—and the question is what to do about it. Legal action is out of the question vis-a-vis someone the public would consider as merely a schoolboy. Some people need to have their mouths washed out in legal soap and water; others to be spanked. The editorial writer falls into the latter category. I shall turn the matter over in my mind. For your own information, the passage wherein I am proved to be a liar & distorter & arch fiend—the catalogue of pejoratives I quoted Rovers as having used in his book on McCarthy—I quoted, intact, to Rovers on the Dave Garroway Show in 1959; and Rovers did not object that I had mischaracterized him. Mailer was off on a wild goose chase. Tell me, has not anyone on the campus risen to object?

Yours faithfully,
Wm. F. Buckley, Jr.

Editor's note:

If Mr. Buckley only knew how many people would concur in his opinions concerning the editor! The letter was written to a student here who sent Mr. Buckley an editorial from the "East Carolinian" calling Mr. Buckley specious and, in the case in question an apparent liar. The very interesting thing about the entire affair is an answer to Mr. Buckley's last question. As a matter of record, no one on the campus has risen to object. We were disappointed, but perhaps it indicates that the right-wing revolution on our college campuses is not quite as strong as Mr. Buckley would have us believe. Certainly it is inconceivable that all the brilliant young right-wingers here do not know that Buckley is the Messiah of the young right-wing. Or is it? Incidentally, the truth is not libelous.

ROLE OF A PRIVATE COLLEGE

NEW YORK, N. Y. (I. P.)—The new dean of Columbia College recently described the role of the private liberal arts college in the transmission of culture to a new generation as "an enterprise surpassing in importance any other in the educational world."

"This country, consciously but with little concern for implications," declared Dean David B. Truman, "has in effect committed itself to school attendance for everyone for from two to four years beyond high school. I deliberately do not refer to this commitment as 'a college for everyone' because the crucial question is whether such attendance achieves education, whether such institutions are colleges in anything but name."

Dean Truman explained the first major function of the private liberal arts college in the current rush toward mass enrollments: "That is to assert firmly and without apology that transmitting to at least a fraction of the next generation a genuine understanding of the culture that constitutes their principal heritage is an enterprise surpassing in importance any other in the educational world."

Free of the compulsion to be all things to men, the privately supported liberal arts college, if it is strong can insist on this function, he stated. If the insistence is equaled in practice, he added, it will invite, if not compel, institutions functioning in a politically influenced setting to follow the lead at least in part.

"The causes of the non-educational norms of many American student communities are complex, and few of them are subject to college control. In a student population where active engagement is deliberately encouraged by the design of the curriculum, the likelihood that undergraduate norms will subvert the institution's educational goals will go greatly reduced if not wholly eliminated."

Michigan Univ. Offers Foreign Language Program In Europe

Students at colleges and universities across the nation are eligible to participate in a unique foreign language program in Europe, offered this Fall by Michigan State University in cooperation with the Foundation for European Language and Educational Centres of Zurich, Switzerland.

Twelve-week intensive language programs will be offered, beginning Sept. 30, in French at Paris, France and Lausanne, Switzerland; German at Cologne, Germany; Italian at Florence, Italy; and Spanish at Barcelona and Madrid, Spain.

Deadline for applications for the fall program is March 27.

As an integral part of each program, students will make frequent trips and participate in semistructured discussions devoted to the cultural, political, social, and economic institutions—past and present—of the country in which they are residing.

Cost of the program varies between $750 and $850, depending upon location, and includes round-trip air transportation, room, board, and tuition. Participants will leave New York for Europe Sept. 23, and return Dec. 23.

Persons interested in the Fall program or similar programs scheduled for Winter, Spring and Summer, 1964, may obtain applications or additional information by contacting F. J. Mortimore, Kellogg Center, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan.

Angel Flight Pledges Eight; Elects Harrington Leader

East Carolina College's Angel Flight, co-educational auxiliary group to Arnold Air Society, Air Force ROTC, has elected a new slate of officers to serve during the remainder of the 1962-63 school year.

Margie Rae Harrington has been elected as commander of the college Angel Flight. A transfer student from Wingate Jr. College, Miss Harrington is a senior at East Carolina specializing in mathematics and science. Among campus organizations she is a member of the Mathematics Club, which endeavors to further an interest in mathematics and to acquaint members with various aspects of the field. She has also served as vice president of Angel Flight.

The Angel Flight and Arnold Air Society had a joint rush party recently in the Cadet Lounge in Austin building.

Eight women students who have received bids to become Angel Flight pledges and who are now working during a pledge period are Alice Kay Pantton, Janet Whichard, Linda Gay Wright, Brenda Walters, Blannie Bridgers, Sandy Howard, Sandra Wilkins, and Barbara Rogerson.

Sandra Bass, Tempie Williford, Linda Warren, Nancy Jo Tedder, Kathryn Sawyer, Sarah Peterson, Nancy Garner, Beth Phelps, Carol Combs, Billi Kathryn Stewart, Terri Fritts, and Eleanor Hart.

Sigma Sigma Sigma
Linda Elizabeth Killian has been elected president of the Gamma Beta Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma. Miss Killian has received official recognition from EC for her scholastic record and her name has appeared on the Honor Roll of Superior Students.

Other officers elected are: Polly Linda Bunting vice president; Janice Taylor Bentley, recording secretary; Gwen Ellen Rouse, corresponding secretary; Barbara Alice Jenkins, treasurer; Jo Ann Midgett, Sr. Panhellenic delegate; Margaret H. Avera, Jr. Panhellenic delegate; Laura U. Gartman, keeper of grades; and Carol Louise Johnson, house manager.

Geog. Seminar Debates 'Purpose Of Geography'

BY HERB WILLIAMS

It was stimulating on Wednesday afternoon to attend an informal gathering of students and faculty of the Geography Department. The gathering was held in Wright Social Room for the purpose of informal discussion of the subject, "The Spirit and Purpose of Geography."

According to the students attending, the meeting was a Geography Seminar which meets on the first and third Wednesday of each month. The Geography Seminar had its origin in the Spring Quarter of 1962 when Gamma Theta Upsilon, National Geography Professional Fraternity, held three meetings for informal discussion. The seminar was begun again recently and promises to be a really worthwhile activity. Through guest speakers, varied programs, and a chance to express and receive opinion, the seminar hopes to attract more participants and to improve the quality of the program.

Characterized by intelligent discussion, the seminar proceeded to examine several problems pertinent to the subject. The question of the real value of Geography 15 as a required course was tackled first and was discussed pro and con. Discussion then went to the methods of teaching geography; Systematic Method versus Regional Method. Finally, the merits of the quarter system as opposed to the semester system in relation to the effects on learning were analyzed by various members of the group.

As a genuine aid to student understanding, and as a stimulant for exchange of ideas between student and faculty, the seminar has virtually unlimited possibilities.

Some of the other departments might profitably make use of this idea and start seminars of their own. Personally, I feel that an informal discussion every other week would be well received in any department and would go a long way toward informing the individual student about items of interest in his major.

SPORTS REVIEW

By RON DOWDY

With the spring sports about ready to begin their season, we must bid farewell to those winter sports. Let's briefly review a few of them.

The Wrestling team had a losing Frosh campaign, but next year's team will be built around this year's complete team with the exception of Senior Bill Cunniff. It will be built on the experience of returning lettermen Bob Lane, Keith Douglas, Bernie Colardo, Guy Hagerty, and varsity player Neel Linker.

The Swimming team will lose three of their major point-getters in Captain Ed Zschau, Doug Sutton, and Bob Kingrey. Although they had a slightly impressive season this year (7-6), keeping everything LEGAL, they should be looking forward to a better season next year with 17 returning lettermen.

* * * * *

Saturday's Purple-Gold clash was really quite impressive. If you didn't see it, you missed a lot. Coach Stas was vantageous. He found a few of the rough spots, but he was also surprised to see some of the newcomers come through so well. I'm sure the student body is looking forward to the dedication of our new stadium on September 21, 1963, as much as the football players themselves are.

* * * * *

Coach Smith, head baseball mentor, believes his diamond men are progressing at a rapid rate. The team will be boosted by the bat of returning lettermen C. B. Barnes, Merrill Bynum, Junior Green, and Tommy Kidd. Barnes led the team in batting. The stocky 5' 9" shortstop is one of the best up-and-coming players on the squad. Only a Sophomore, Barnes is from near-by Wilson. Bynum and Greene are both effective at the plate and will be counted on to come through often with those timely hits. Bynum, an outfielder, led the team in home runs last year. Greene is a third baseman. Kidd, a Virginian, is the long-ball hitter on the team. Kidd, a husky 6' 1" first baseman, will be looking forward to bringing up his batting average and cutting down on those strike-outs this season. Lacy West, EC Basketball star, will be looked to to do most of the hurling when he isn't playing in the outfield. Also to be counted on for some pitching for the Pirates will be Sophomores Pete Barnes and Tom Norman. With the season not opening until March 22, the Pirates are practicing 6 days a week.

* * * * *

Having not been publicly announced yet, the local Eta Beta Chapter of the Sigma Nu social fraternity is setting another milestone here at EC. They have begun a drive to collect over $2,700 to furnish our football team with new uniforms, so that when the new stadium is dedicated the football team will stand out even more, especially after that victory (???). I'm sure any help (financially) will be appreciated.

Frogmen End Season With Miami Victory

"Finest team we've had by far..." was the way coach Ray Martinez described the 1963 Pirates swimming team in an earlier edition of the East Carolinian this year. That is the very thing the team set out to prove. The team's record may not show it, (7 wins and 6 losses), but when you look at the teams they swam and the final score—it shows up well.

The Pirate frogmen hold victories over Georgia, VPI, Davidson, Washington-Lee, and Old Dominion. The swimmers have just returned from their annual southern tour where they suffered two setbacks and one victory. The setbacks were at the hands of powerful Florida State and the University of Florida; the meet with Florida was not decided until after the last event in which Florida nosed out our tankmen. Their victory was over nationally-ranked University of Miami.

Earlier this season the tankmen had impressive meets with N. C. State and UNC, even though they lost all four meets—they were close. The State team includes five All-American swimmers.

There are only 3 graduating seniors on this year's team, which include captain Ed Zschau, Bob Kingrey and Doug Sutton. Next year's team will be even more powerful with approximately 17 lettermen returning. They will con-

From this year's showing it appears that the Pirates should come up with an even finer team next year.

Notice

"All persons interested in forming a team to participate in the Men's Intramural Softball League should be present at an organizational meeting to be held on Wednesday, March 13, in the gym, room 105, at 6:30 p.m.," it was recently announced by Gordon Patrick, Student Intramural Director.

Last Play Decides Outcome Of Purple, Gold Clash

Tailback Vince Eiduke and end Johnny Anderson teamed up on the last play of the game and made the only score of the Purple-Gold game, played Saturday in EC's War Memorial Stadium. It was nip-and-tuck all the way until the waning seconds of the game when Eiduke lofted a 30-yard crossfield pass to teammate Anderson who scattered 15 yards before being tackled and landing in the end zone. It was just another case of the purportedly underdogs coming through to gain their prestige.

From the opening kick-off to the very last play of the game neither team had a great advantage. The Purple team, graced with all the first team players, threatened twice, but were held by the Gold's strong defensive unit. The Gold team also threatened only twice before fumbling.

Never before has there been a Purple-Gold game played here in which there was so much desire and determination — components necessary for any team to win.

A look at the final game statistics shows that the Gold team gained 135 yards in the air to only 54 yards by the Purple team. The Purple team out-gained the Gold team on the ground 60-54 yards. Some of the other statistics, as released by publicity director Earl Aiken are:

If the game last Saturday was any example of the kind of game we have in store for us next fall, then we will each have a treat to store.

In the case of Saturday's game, the Purple stars seemed to be tailback Bill Cline, blocking back Maurice Allen and fullback Tom Michel. Michel, famous for his through-the-middle, to-the-side long-distance runs, showed the spectators Saturday that he can still do them. If any one individual stood out for the Gold team, it was tailback Vince Eiduke. If Eiduke wasn't running the ball, he was passing it, as he did in the last seconds of the game. Bill Cline blocked the extra point attempt by running up the backs of the linemen. Final score, 6-0.
