Annual Alumni Giving Program Launches Fifth Fund Drive

Dollars for Development, program of annual giving by alumni of EC, moved into its fifth stage last week with a "roll call" by mail of former students in District 10 of the college Alumni Association. Janice G. Hardison, Director of Foundations and son has announced.

With a dollar or more per graduate suggested as a response, letters requesting contributions are now being sent to alumni in Carteret, Craven, Greene, Jones, Lenoir, Pamlico, and Wayne counties. Personal solicitations will be made in June.

Four previous "roll calls" have been made in 21 North Carolina counties and in other states. Since the beginning of the fund-raising campaign last January, Miss Hardison states, contributions have been received daily at the Alumni Office on the campus. Goal of the drive is $13,000 for 1963.

The campaign has the purpose of enlisting support by alumni for the East Carolina College Development Fund, which was organized this year to secure finances for meeting urgent educational needs on the campus.

Art Center To Offer Four Separate Exhibits

The Greenville Art Center will offer four separate exhibitions, May 19-June 6. The opening preview and reception for members will be held on Sunday, May 19, 3:00-5:00 P.M.

Several paintings by Hobson Pittman will be featured in the exhibit. Three of the paintings will be on loan from The North Carolina Museum of Art. Others are to be selected from the collections of Mr. Pittman's sister, Mrs. G. Earl Weeks, and her family, of Tarboro, N. C. Pittman, a native of Tarboro, is one of North Carolina's most celebrated artists.

The Art Fraternity at EC, Delta Phi Delta, will exhibit the work of faculty and student members. The exhibition was prepared by President John Goodheart, graduate assistant in the School of Art.

Two EC School of Art Seniors will exhibit their work. Miss Maggie Tamura will exhibit prints and Miss Joanne Ballance will exhibit paintings. Miss Tamura was recently chosen as one of the two Outstanding Students of the Year. She exhibited a print in the N. C. 1962 Annual at Raleigh which was selected for purchase by The North Carolina Museum of Art.

New Library System Speeds Rate Of Checking Out Books

The new system installed in EC's library at the beginning of the Spring Quarter is cutting the time required to check out books in half. On each floor there is a station with pneumatic tubes running from the main desk. The call-slips are placed in these tubes at the main desk and sent to the correct floor. An assistant finds the book and sends it to the main desk.

There are three drawbacks that keep this system from being the ultimate in fast checkout service. First, the elevators that carry the books from the stacks to the main desk are very slow. Second, during the class breaks there may be no assistants at the stations. Third, there is not enough student help to maintain assistants on each floor for the fourteen hours the library remains open each day.

Though the service may be made even faster, it is a great improvement to students who have checked out books under the old system.

College Union To Sponsor Combo Dance, Contest

The College Union Record and Dance Committee is sponsoring a combo dance and dance contest on Saturday evening, May 25, at 8:30 p.m., in the College Union lounge area.

Competition in the dance contest will be in four categories—bop, slow dance, cha cha, and twist.

Beautiful trophies will be given to each of the winners and the runners up.

Contest participants must be of college age and one person in each couple must be a student at EC. To be a winner, the couple must have participated in all four categories. The judges will choose a winning couple and runner up couples from the over-all four category competition.

Students wishing to learn more of the contest are asked to see George Whitehurst, chairman of the Record and Dance Committee, or to inquire at the College Union office.

Blover Conducts Chess Lessons

Mr. Joseph Blover, graduate of Duke University and presently a graduate student in the Math Department here, will conduct chess lessons under the auspices of the recently formed Chess Club. All persons interested in learning the basic fundamentals or the more advanced steps are invited to attend the meeting of the club tonight in Wright Social Room. One week from tonight, on May 2, Mr. Blover, who founded the Wilmington College Chess Club and presently gives lessons in Williamston, will conduct, blindfolded, simultaneous games against all interested in playing him.

Thursday night, May 16, in Wright Social Room, the Chess Club will meet for recreational competition. With continued cooperation, chess tournaments will be installed to further heighten enjoyment of a stimulating game.

Education Assn. Elects Middleton

Dr. David J. Middleton, Director of Extension at EC, was elected as vice president of the Association for Field Services in Teacher Education at the annual conference of the national organization May 5-8 at Montclair State College in New Jersey.

Dr. Middleton appeared on the conference program in a discussion of new aspects of the EC extension program.

Before joining the EC administrative staff in September 1962, he served as a faculty member 1958-1961 and assistant director of extension 1961-1962 at Appalachian State Teachers College at Boone.

Pi Omega Pi Ranks 2nd In '62-'63 National Rating

Word has been received from the national president of Pi Omega Pi, national honorary business fraternity, that EC's Beta Kappa chapter ranks second in the nation among 118 chapters located in fifty states. In recognition of this honor, the Beta Kappa chapter will receive a certificate for this national merit award.

The chapter was judged for their comprehensive report of selected activities for the year 1962-63 and received this recognition for their excellent program.

Since 1952 the national award has been presented each year to the chapter judged most outstanding in its activities. The Beta Kappa chapter at EC was chosen, as the first recipient and in 1954-55 was again selected as top organization among 96 chapters in this country. It was the only chapter at that time cited twice for the national merit award.

Again in 1956-57 the Beta Kappa chapter won for the third time the national Pi Omega Pi award. Because of this honor, the EC organization, ineligible to receive the award in two consecutive years, chose the winning chapter for 1957-58.

Dr. Audrey V. Dempsey, professor in the School of Business, is past national president of Pi Omega Pi. Frances Daniels, assistant professor in the School of Business is national editor of "Here and There," nationally circulated news magazine of Pi Omega Pi. Dr. Dempsey and Miss Daniels serve as advisers and sponsors of the chapter.

Pi Kappa Phi

Recently initiated into the brotherhood of Pi Kappa Phi were Phil Nance, Tommy Ricks, Bobby Childress, Walt Jacob, and Ken Martin.

New IFC QUEEN

Karen White, Delta Zeta candidate, was crowned Interfraternity Council Queen at the IFC dance held last Saturday night. The runner-up was Gwen Rouse, the Tri-Sigma candidate.

CONCERT BEHAVIOR

Last Saturday afternoon at the New Independent Warehouse, we observed what we hoped was an exaggeration of East Carolina concert behavior. We realize that behavior at concerts on campus is usually poor, but Saturday's behavior was embarrassingly so.

We can perhaps excuse (although we do not know on what grounds) the lack of response typical of audiences at East Carolina, but we cannot excuse the lack of courtesy that is frequently displayed. Must we assume that our students are not informed of the little niceties that constitute normal concert manners—from arriving at the proper time through leaving at the proper time—or must we assume that our students are informed of these, but are not aware of the appearance that a complete dearth of them gives? If the latter assumption is to be considered accurate, we would like to elaborate a bit on this appearance and its implications.

The overall appearance was one of mass ignorance. Several factors contributed to this effect. In citing these, we will be content to merely mention the rudeness of those who drifted in throughout the performance and those who staged small performances of their own. It is with those who left that we are most concerned. They arose from the floor in the midst of the performance, folded their blankets, and, with blankets over shoulders, left first in pairs and then in droves. Perhaps there is really no logical reasoning behind the idea that this is not "the thing to do." It is just not polite. We don't know why, but we do know that it is not. Behavior such as was shown on Saturday afternoon is embodied neither in common courtesy nor in Southern hospitality.

We pride ourselves as college students on being or becoming mature adults fitted for life in our society. Mature adults are considerate of others and are aware of the common courtesies necessary to live successfully in this society. We showed neither of these qualities to the performers on campus last Saturday.

When our students are able to sit through a concert (to the end) with some semblance of respect, East Carolina may be on its way to acquiring some of that "finesse" that sets it apart from Yale. —F. White

LIVING LOGIC

The SGA Senate, that amazing body of so-called "student representatives" pulled it off again last night. Completely ignoring the established rules of procedure, they managed to appoint their own SGA Treasurer without even bothering to first refuse approval to the individual appointed by the SGA President.

According to precedent, as we understand it, when an official of the SGA becomes ineligible to hold his office, for whatever reason, the President of the SGA is to appoint someone to fill that office. This appointment, according to the constitution, must be approved by the Senate. If the Senate does not wish to approve the appointment, the President makes another appointment, and so on until he finds someone whom the Senate will approve.

This is almost precisely the same procedure which would be followed in the federal government under the US Constitution. The people of the country would have great justification in considering something amiss if the US Senate refused approval of the presidential appointment on grounds completely unrelated to the appointee's qualifications. It's a shame the students here haven't got the gumption or the interest to consider something amiss in the procedural mangling in which the senate seems to enjoy indulging.

Incidentally, analogies employing the US government and the ECC Student Government are considered utterly absurd by members of the "In Group" in the SGA. They say there is no similarity between the two. Apparently they think that some former students devolved the system all by themselves, naturally without first examining the US Constitution. They simply read John Locke, et al, studied English Common Law, and did it, by golly.

The Society of Maintenance announced that the six hundred reserve maintenance men would not be called to active duty unless in case of extreme emergency. He said that the present total of 2,329 now on active duty could adequately handle almost any situation that would arise.

The announcement came after the recent speculation on whether or not the reserves would be called out to pick up pieces of automobiles that have accumulated near the humps.

The Student Government Association Senate last Wednesday voted to make the humps honorary students.

Ferry service from Rawl to the Gym will resume today.

Ramon and I audited a class of Remedial Reading the other night. We tape-recorded some of the students reading aloud from their textbooks.

"Oh look. See Spot run. Run, run, run."

Ramon said, "Oh damn! Damn, damn, damn."

The body of Jeff Moore has been found in the swamp behind Rawl Building. Police say Moore was murdered with a blunt instrument, probably a cafeteria biscuit. The body was partially eaten by the alligators and snapping turtles that inhabit this area. Mr. Moore, owner of the Wheel and Chassis Alignment Shop, donated the ever-popular humps to the college. There is no apparent motive for the slaying. The entire student body is being held as suspect.

The President of the Day Students announced today that two of the swimming holes in the Day Students' parking lot would be closed for repairs. The President emphasized that the holes are not yet deep enough for diving purposes, but, he stated if the maintenance department will not interfere for one more year, they should be deep enough. The maintenance department has promised "no direct intervention."

The biology department reports that they have discovered an unknown species of reptile in the swamp behind Rawl Building. The newly discovered reptile has been named Deepmudicus Abundantum. The biology department has made several trips to the swamp during the year. They have named it Politician Swamp because the swamp was the chief source of mud in the recent elections.

Roses are red, violets are blue, Wright fountain is chartreuse. All future students planning to inject some local color into the situation should remember that the school colors are Passionate Purple and Bookstore Gold.

Quote-of-the-week: "The only thing that East Carolina has and that Yale lacks is 6,000 red-necks."

A college meteorologist from the Atomis Physics Engineering department said that the newly put up humps are not causing the recent bad weather in this area. There is of yet no real danger of damage to future generations.

The motto of the New York Herald Tribune is "A good newspaper does not have to be dull." The motto of the East Carolinian is "A dull newspaper does not have to be good."

The bookstore said it has no intention at present of changing its name to Wachovia Bookstore and Trust Co. They also said that they do not plan to merge with the Chase-Manhattan Bank of New York.

Ramon and I urge peaceful co-existence with the humps.

Next Tuesday, we feature the cafeteria.

LETTERS MORE ON CARS

Dear Mr. Angelo:

We should like to point out some of the many fallacies in your letter to the Editor of the EAST CAROLINIAN printed on Tuesday, May 7, 1963.

It is not entirely the student's business as to whether or not he flunks out of college. His failure to graduate successfully injures people, including the taxpayer (even if he is an out-of-state student), other potential students who were denied admission, and all those who are helping to support him.

It might be well to point out that East Carolina does have a high academic rating and one that is improving each year. We are in attendance at East Carolina because we feel that the education we are receiving here is of a very high caliber. If we did not feel this deeply, we should be in attendance elsewhere and are forced to wonder why you, Mr. Angelo, are pursuing your education at East Carolina if you do not feel the school has a high academic standing.

Inasmuch as the primary purpose of a college is to offer an education, we see many more vitally needed educational facilities than parking lots. A few examples will serve to illustrate our purpose: a new College Union, a new classroom building to replace Austin, an addition to the library, a new field house, and additional dormitories.

Perhaps no one person can dictate when a student may go home, but the administration does justifiably limit the number of times a freshman girl shall go home during her first quarter in attendance at East Carolina.

Twenty-two percent of the freshman enrolled in next year's freshman class are out-of-state students. We doubt seriously that any mature student would refuse to attend an institution as fine as East Carolina solely because he could not have a car while in attendance his first two years. One of the authors of this epistle, a senior who has not had an automobile during the four years of undergraduate training, does feel that neither his education nor his social life has been seriously impaired.

As two out-of-state seniors, we feel that loyalty to East Carolina College cannot be forced upon anyone, but neither can returning to the apronstrings each weekend help develop a mature attitude towards East Carolina.

If an extension of the restriction on automobiles were to be made to the Sophomore Class, it should be considered only as an aid to the students and to our institution and not as a restriction on either.

William T. Joseph
Robert L. Parsons

QUALITY

To the editor:

East Carolina, as all of us know, is growing in both magnitude and quality. We have almost reached our maximum in magnitude, but we are far from reaching our maximum in quality.

The quality of our graduates depends largely upon the quality of those who teach them, and this brings me to my point. The most distressing educational experience that I have had at East Carolina is the taking of courses in which the instructors teach on a high school level (and in some cases they teach on a junior high level). This, of course, is the exception and not the rule, but still it is punishment for those who have to take courses under such instructors.

Home Ec Students To Serve As Power Company Trainees

Linda Berta Flowers and Geraldine Kennedy, home economics students at EC, were elected among four home economics students from North Carolina, Virginia, and West Virginia as trainees this summer of the Virginia Electric and Power Co. in Charlottesville, Va. They will begin their duties June 17.

Miss Kennedy's name has appeared on both the Honor Roll and the Dean's List of Superior Students at EC in recognition of her academic excellence. She is a member of the Home Economics chapter of the American Home Economics Association; Phi Omicron, honorary society for students of home economics; Alpha Xi Delta, social sorority; and the College Union Student Board. She has served as College Marshal during the year 1962-1963, a high honor at the college, and is past treasurer of Ragsdale Hall, dormitory for women.

Moore Attends Annual Family Life Meeting

Dr. Miriam Moore, Director of the Home Economics Department, attended the Merrill-Palmer Institute Second Annual Conference on the Teaching of Family Life at Detroit, Michigan, Monday through Wednesday, May 6-8.

Dr. Moore attended meetings concerning problems and questions confronting teachers of family living; changes in society affecting families; variations in American family values, goals, and practices; family life curriculum content in light of research; and ways of communicating substantive material about the family to teachers of family life.

Professional people in the United States who are teaching family life courses in colleges and universities, as well as those who are involved directly or indirectly in preparing teachers for family life teaching at the secondary level, attended the conference.

Home Economics Association Elects Aldridge President, Installs Officers

The new officers for the 1963-1964 school term of the Home Economics chapter of the American Home Economics Association at EC were elected by secret ballot in Planagan Building.

Installation of the new officers will take place during the monthly meeting of the chapter on Tuesday, May 14. Mrs. Callie Hardwick, second vice president of the N. C. Home Economics Association, will attend the initiation ceremony.

Miss Carol Elaine Aldridge, outstanding rising senior, was elected president of the chapter.

She has served this year as vice president of the college chapter and is past treasurer of the Young Women's Christian Association. She has held memberships in the Student National Education Association and on the staff of the BUCCANEER, college yearbook. She has also served as a "big sister" in Cotten Hall.

In December 1962, Miss Aldridge was qualified to compete with students in colleges and universities across the nation for the 25th Annual MADEMOISELLE'S College Board Competition.

Other officers elected are Shelby Jane McIntyre, vice president; Sandra Lorraine Cobb, secretary; and Alice Faye Smith, treasurer.

Carolyn Elaine Joyner was elected as the chapter's reporter on the EAST CAROLINIAN, and Delores Ann Tudor as reporter on the BUCCANEER.

Pi Kappa Alpha

Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity recently elected officers for the coming year, 1963-1964. They are: Sandy Dallas, president; Tom Scott, vice president; Lester Brown, treasurer; Truman Miller, assistant treasurer; Jack Barnhill, sergeant-at-arms; Jerry Moore, historian; and Carlos Murray and Ray Williford, members-at-large.

Nursing Student Gets Scholarship For Study Here

Ina Merle Sugg, rising senior student, has been awarded the Lee Parker Nursing Scholarship award for the year 1963-1964 to further her education in the School of Nursing at EC.

Miss Sugg was selected from applicants in schools of nursing in this state to receive the $150 award which is granted annually by the Board of Directors of the North Carolina State Nurses' Association. Mr. Parker administers the Group Insurance Plan for members of the NCNSA.

Because of her excellent record in scholarship, extra-curricula activities at EC, and general personal qualifications, Miss Sugg was selected to receive the award.

Chi Beta Phi Initiates Seven Into Chapter

Initiation of seven students at EC into the campus chapter of the national honorary science and mathematics fraternity Chi Beta Phi was the chief event of the May meeting, James R. Wheatley, president, has announced.

The Alpha Gamma Chapter was organized on the campus during the 1952-1953 term. The fraternity has as its objective the promotion of greater individual interest and higher scholarship in science, mathematics, and related fields.

Chosen because of their excellent scholastic records, students initiated into the fraternity chapter are Linda Kaye Heath, Stephen Thomas Jones, Jeanette Runquist, Robby Julian Ward, Charles William Holland, Clayton B. Mayo, and Frank John Sadlack.

SPORTS REVIEW

By RON DOWDY

The new athletic administration has taken over with Coach Stas at the helm.

Having recently been appointed to succeed Dr. Jorgensen, who will remain as chairman of the Health and Physical Education Department, Coach Stas does not plan any changes in the functioning of his new job as "Athletic Director."

Coach Stas should have a stronger athletic program since he will be in charge of it. The school is quite fortunate to have such a dedicated man at the position of Athletic Director. Stas is superbly qualified, as he served in a similar capacity at LR for 16 years. Look at the athletic program that was in existence when he left LR to some here!

In losing Dr. Jorgensen as the athletic director, we are losing a person who has put us, the school, where we are now. Under his direction we have made plans for a new quarter million dollar football stadium, a new baseball stadium, and a track for the EC thinclads. For all this we owe our deepest "thank you" to Dr. Jorgensen. Maybe "losing" is the wrong word to use, as Dr. Jorgensen is remaining here to strengthen our department of physical education, a post he's had for the past 16 years.

* * * * *

There should be a sell-out crowd on hand for the Wake Forest-EC football game in the fall. Although Wake is not too excited or riled up over the September 21 game, it should prove to be a real experience—a big name school versus a small name school.

* * * * *

The EC diamondmen are off and winning again, only this time the stakes are higher than ever before. After being invited to play in the preliminaries for the NAIA Championship, the Pirates handed their first opponent, Pembroke College, two successive defeats, on played here last Thursday and the other played at Pembroke on Friday. The Pirates won Thursday's game, 7-6, behind the pitching of ace hurler Lacy West and Friday's game, 6-3, behind the pitching of sophomore Pete Barnes.

Playing their toughest defensive opponents, the Pirates were never assured of their victories until the last out of each game. The defensive Pembroke team proved to be just as strong offensively whenever their chips (runs) were down. In both games the Pembroke chargers used a late inning of runs to scare the tougher Pirate ninemen.

* * * * *

To straighten out a lot of rumors about the NAIA baseball tournament, chances for our Pirates are as follows:

1. After winning the semi-finals over Pembroke, they will play the Carolinas Conference champion some time this week.

2. After playing the CC champions at the best of a 3 game series—and winning—they will go to Georgia as the District 26 representative to play in that regional tournament.

3. Upon successful completion of play in Georgia, the Pirates will go to the finals which are to be held in St. Josephs, Missouri.

2. After successful completion of play in St. Josephs, the Pirates will again be crowned "NAIA Champions."

The Pirate baseballers have a talented team and could very easily go straight to St. Joe without too much trouble. Let's wish them all the best of luck whenever we see them.

* * * * *

The track team has completed another season. Without a track to practice on, the Pirate thinclads made quite a successful showing during the season. As soon as the statistics are released, we will try to publish them.

The pirate linksmen are closing out their season by playing in the NAIA tournament in Boone yesterday and today.

Linksmen Play In Tournament

While the EC Pirates baseball team is preparing to participate in the finals of the District 26 playoffs for the NAIA Championship, the EC golfers are playing in the 26th NAIA 36-hole golf tournament.

The Pirate linksmen are led by Captain Billy Brogden. Brogden, a 5'10" sophomore from Raleigh doubles as a basketball player in the winter season. Other players on the six-man squad include senior Mike Romaniw, sophomores Chappy Bradner, Vince Eiduke and Charles Rose, and freshman Gary Mull.

Coach Ray Pennington feels as though the team will make a fine showing in the tournament, as the squad is so well-rounded that at one time or another during the season each member of the six-man squad has come in first in a meet.

West Hurls EC Over Pembroke; Bovender Homers

The Pirates squeaked by the Pembroke College ninemen as they combined three singles in the bottom of the ninth inning to win the first of a three game series, 7-6.

The winner of the best-of-three game series will gain the right to meet the Carolinas Conference Champion for the NAIA District 26 championship.

The mainstay of the pitching staff, Lacy West, went all the way as he picked up the victory by allowing nine hits, striking out eight and walking four. West won his own ball game by driving in the winning run in the bottom of the ninth on a run-producing single.

Highlights of the game included second baseman Buddy Bovender's two-run homer in the fifth and a solo home run by catcher Red Robinson—his first home run of the season.

The Pirates' winning run came on singles by Carlton Barnes, Junior Green and the game-winning single by pitcher Lacy West.

The Pirates now hold a one game lead over the Pembroke team as they travel to Pembroke to play the second of the best of three series.

Pirate secondbaseman Buddy Bovender slides in safely after a single by ace hurler Lacy West in the third inning. The Pirates host Pfeiffer tomorrow afternoon at Guy Smith Stadium in the finals of the District 26 NAIA Tournament.

Pirate Diamondmen Win Again; Host Pfeiffer Wednesday At Three

The Pirates had to travel to Pembroke College in order to win their second game over Pembroke. In outlasting Pembroke, the Pirates gained the right to meet the Carolinas Conference champion for the District 26 NAIA championship.

Sophomore Pete Barnes pitched all nine innings for the Pirates as he picked up his first tournament victory. He allowed eight hits while striking out eleven and walking just one.

Two walks, a single, and a sacrifice fly produced three Pirate runs in the second frame as they took over the lead to relinquish no more throughout the game.

The Pirates are now idle until a definite date is set for the finals of the District 26 NAIA playoffs.

Billy Brogden putts in.
