Chad Mitchell Trio Appears On Campus Tomorrow Night

A Knowing Smile

Peggy Garrett, like many other ECC students, eagerly awaits Friday night's concert with the Chad Mitchell Trio. The Trio is scheduled to appear here tomorrow night at 8:15 in an SGA sponsored portion of the Entertainment Series. Admission is free for this, the final such program of the Summer.

Other Work Now Underway

Construction Of Austin Replacement Begins Here Within Next Month

Construction of a new three-story classroom building to replace East Carolina College's oldest is expected to begin within a month, the College announced this week.

Vice President and Business Manager F. D. Duncan said contracts for the structure, to replace Austin Building, will probably be awarded within a week. Work should begin, he said, by mid-September.

Duncan said low base bids, received last week, totaled $688,330. Alternates now under study may raise the total contract figure, he pointed out.

The 1963 General Assembly appropriated $910,000 to replace Austin, ECC's first classroom building which has been in use since 1909.

Plans for the new building call for 37 classrooms, two seminar rooms, about 60 faculty offices, storage and maintenance facilities and air-conditioning throughout.

It will be erected on ECC's old baseball field, just east of Rawl Building and directly behind the college's gymnasium. Its design is similar to that of Rawl Building, three-story unit completed in 1959.

Upon completion of the new concrete, brick and steel building, expected by December, 1964, ECC's departments of instruction now located in Austin will be relocated in the new building.

Designed by Goldsboro architect A. J. Maxwell Jr., the new building's plans call for nearly 65,000 square feet of interior floor space.

The construction project scheduled for September is the first of 10 jobs in ECC's $8.3 million capital improvements budget for 1963-65. Others on the list are two dormitories, a gymnasium, a building for the School of Music and a classroom building for the School of Education and the psychology department.

Most recent construction projects here are Ficklen Stadium, now awaiting inauguration next month, and a seven-story women's residence hall set for completion next March.

Drainage and grading work in East Carolina athletic park area on the new South Campus is expected to be under way soon.

The current project calls for installation of about 850 linear feet of drainage tile and grading of two new athletic practice fields.

The tiling work will allow subterranean channeling of an open canal which skirts the south side of ECC's new Ficklen Stadium.

Two practice fields will be located just north of the college's new baseball field, bordering NC Highway 43 south.

Director Announces Schedules For ECC Extension Courses

Class schedules for the second straight full year of freshman-level college work offered by the College in Kinston, New Bern and Washington were announced today by Director of Extension David J. Middleton. Dr. Middleton said registration in Kinston for the fall term is scheduled September 5th, 6th, 9th and 10th from 5 to 8:30 p.m. Kinston classes begin September 9 and 10 at 6:30 p.m. In New Bern and Washington, registration is set for September 2nd and 4 to 8 p.m. for classes with first meetings scheduled September 4th and 5th, also at 6:30 p.m.

Indicated by the schedule announced today are five eight-week terms at each of the three centers. They begin in September, November, January, April and June, and students may begin their college work at the start of any one of the terms.

Students may take one or two courses each term, depending on past performances and on employment status. Middleton said the center recommends only one course for students who hold full-time jobs or who have not received satisfactory grades in previous terms. The schedule lists five courses each in Kinston and Washington and four in New Bern. Courses which offer five quarter-hours' credit meet twice weekly or the eight-week term. Three quarter-hour courses meet bi-weekly for five weeks. Cost is $45 for each five-hour course and $27 for classes offering three hours' credit. Credit gained through the ECC extension program, according to Middleton, is "fully transferable to the College at face value." Students who complete 35 quarter-hours in the local centers with a C average—including grades of C or better on English, math and history—may transfer to the East Carolina campus here.

'Hootenanny Fad' Takes Hold With Performance Of Group

Currently pacing the "Hootenanny Fad" the Chad Mitchell Trio will appear in concert tomorrow night in Wright Auditorium at 8:15. The concert is sponsored by the Student Government Association and is open to the general public. Admission is free.

A highly musical group, the Chad Mitchell Trio combines the finest folk songs of the past with pungent musical comments on the world of today. Their famous musical director, Milt Okun, arranges their material in a fresh, distinctive sound that has made them a vital part of the folk music world in just a few short years. "Look" magazine calls them "self-made citybillies." Their increasing popularity with the college set has brought about their many appearances in top Chicago and New York night clubs.

The three young men, Mike

Kabluk, Joe Frazier, and Chad Mitchell, all from the western section of the country, collect their material from every possible source—other folksingers, the Library of Congress, field recordings, and the many "chic" satiric night club revues they appear in. Urban and often satirical, they aim their material at the big-time folk audience and away from the seekers of ethnic authenticity. The group turns away from the more popular side of singing and sticks to the serious folk-song singing. Their satire includes controversial spoofs on such subjects as the John Birch Society, Billie Sol Estes, and many others.

Friday Commends Ficklen Stadium

East Carolina College's new Ficklen Stadium got an admiring look Thursday from the president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina. William C. Friday and East Carolina President Leo W. Jenkins interrupted conferences on mutual college problems long enough to tour the new stadium on the college's South Campus.

Friday called the stadium "very handsome . . . and a fine asset" to the college and Eastern North Carolina. He congratulated Dr. Jenkins and the college for its addition to campus facilities here. After inspecting the stadium, Friday told Jenkins: "You've done it right. It is very handsome."

The UNC president said he plans to attend the stadium's dedication ceremonies scheduled for September 21 when East Carolina opens its 1963 home football season in a game with Wake Forest. Friday also praised a new portable stage, an aluminum shell for outdoor stage productions in Ficklen Stadium. He said the portable facility will be useful in carrying out one of the responsibilities of colleges and universities: that of providing performances by professional artists for area audiences.

East Carolina is currently exploring the possibility of bringing to Greenville various Broadway-type and other professional stage productions. The aluminum shell would fit into those plans as an outdoor stage in Ficklen Stadium to provide at moderate per-ticket costs professional stage productions for large audiences. Dr. Jenkins recently returned from a trip through four Northeastern states where he investigated the possibilities of bringing top-flight professional shows here.

Frosh Registration

To date, 1500 freshman have been pre-registered for the Fall Quarter. This system of pre-registration, will aid in alleviating the numerous long lines usually found during frosh orientation. In addition to this one day orientation program, freshman and transfer students will be required to attend a three-day program beginning September 9.

Notice

Barring any unforeseen reason for a special edition, this issue of the EAST CAROLINIAN is the final newspaper to be printed this term. Publication will resume September 10, on a twice weekly basis, with a special orientation issue.

Communique

WASHINGTON: The military chiefs of the Air Force, Army, Navy, and Marines united Monday, August 19th, in support of the limited nuclear test ban treaty providing minimum security safeguards. Their support of the treaty, before a joint public hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations, Armed Services, and Atomic Energy Committees, is conditioned on comprehensive, aggressive, and continuing underground weapons testing permitted under the treaty.

OXFORD: James Meredith, a slight man of 30, became the first Negro to graduate from the University of Mississippi in its 115-year history. Without incident, he received what some are calling "the 5-million dollar diploma," that being the estimated cost of the soldiers and US Marshals necessary to get and keep Meredith at "Ole Miss." Meredith marched out to "Pomp and Circumstance" with 379 other graduates while a crowd of 2,500 whites and 40 of his family and friends looked on quietly.

GREENVILLE: Carolina's Border Belt tobacco growers remain concerned over low prices. They are saying that the new "S" grade symbol, denoting a click or immature leaf, is one reason that season averages are running almost nine dollars per hundred pounds lower than at the same time last year. The opening of the Eastern North Carolina Belt was postponed from Wednesday until Thursday of this week because of feared low prices and because buyers are still needed on the Georgia-Florida Belt.

finesse

Supposing that East Carolina lacks that certain finesse claimed by many of the larger schools, we maintain that definite strides are being made and, as a result, the College will be a possessor of just that. In educational and extra-curricular advantages, we note that additions are constantly being made.

President Leo W. Jenkins returned last week from a trip North in search of a theatrical company to perform Summer stock on the campus next year. Such performances would be given in the recently-acquired portable outdoor stage, the only one of its kind. And, naturally, the new 16,000 capacity stadium would be in use and capable of seating all the student body and a large portion of the community for any one performance. The trip, needless-to-say, was successful. Now, we understand, interested parties will be visiting the campus to see first-hand the many advantages East Carolina has to offer such an undertaking. We trust they will see the College as we see it . . . with that something extra we call it finesse.

A young lady we happen to know applied to East Carolina and the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina for enrollment in the Fall as a freshman. The student in question was accepted without restriction at W C, but rejected by East Carolina unless she attended Summer School and proved herself capable of doing college work. Her College Board scores were not high enough for automatic scholastic acceptance at East Carolina. An investigation informs us that the required Scholastic Aptitude Test scores for East Carolina are now equal to the requirements for entrance at the Consolidated University. Naturally, with selectivity of applicants increased, the productive requirements of students already in school has been raised. Such growth qualitatively adds finesse to any institution. The young lady, by the way, selected ECC and is now attempting to prove her capabilities as a student.

East Carolina steps into a new system of campus justice when Fall Quarter opens. The College is "a city within a city and rules and regulations on our campus are made by the students." Students are adults and treated like such. Students make the rules and try the offenders. This is the honor system. It will operate with honor councils, house councils, and judiciary councils. All will be student-controlled. Appeals may be made to an Appeals Board. An attorney general will be working for the student through investigations and representation. For what more could one ask?

The Department of Geography ranks third in size of the undergraduate departments of geography in the nation. Two of the past three years have found East Carolina in the finals of the National Association of Inter-Collegiate Athletics baseball playoffs. In 1961, the championship went to ECC. Just this Summer, the College had eleven of its students participating in the Miss North Carolina Pageant. Such notables in their fields as Ovid Williams Pierce, Francis Speight, and Martin Mailman, to mention but three, are on the faculty of East Carolina.

All adds to but one thing. One, other than those of us who really know the College, may not really ascertain that the institution now possesses such finesse as does Yale, Harvard, and Vanderbilt, among others, but we feel that East Carolina is so developing, that it is at a stage where it has much to offer its students, and, as a result, could not possibly be considered lacking in this type of finesse.

Former Student Reflects

by jim stingley jr.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jim Stingley, Jr., was a student at East Carolina College during 1960-61. A former Campus Editor of the EAST CAROLINIAN, he has, for the past two years, served as wire editor, reporter, and feature writer for "The Daily News," Jacksonville. On August 23 he will take the position of news editor at "The Canton Enterprise," Canton.

Before attempting to attend my 275 pounds of steel-like muscle up that long and torturous ramp of stairs in Wright Building, I paused to remember how the building and circle had first appeared . . . my freshman day.

As I strode into the bacterialess lobby, I recalled the day of registration . . . surely a measure of pain so severe that only a group of collegiate administrative minds could devise it.

The past flashed back, and once again I could see the cesspool, located in the circle's naval. Ah, yes . . . there I had necked with my first coed. The memories of the moss-covered, snake-invested undergrowth (then referred to as shrubbery) caused a small, delightful smirk to appear on my dimpled cheeks.

But those days have died, I reminded myself, and the campus has been vented with smaller shrubs and less-concealing would-be spots of pleasure. It belongs to the new breed now, I muttered . . . the teased hairs and sockless Weejuns.

The empty lobby echoed with the past. Ignoring the calls of now dead or married friends, I turned and made my way down the smaller, older steps to the student union.

Entering the union reminded me of how an inlaw must feel at his wife's first family reunion. The feeling of relationship was crushed by strange faces and unfamiliar eyes.

Expanding my chest to its maximum 60 inches, I twisted through the populous and clutched at the snack counter. As my hand touched the structure, my eyes fastened themselves on the water fountain . . . there she was.

She was one of the past. A living token that proved I was not dreaming . . . that I had been a student here.

"Hello," she whispered, handing me a Dr. Pepper that was ordered for someone behind me.

"Hi," I breathed, as my fingers tightened around the cup, crushing it and sending its contents into the coffee pot and sugar dish.

"Still the same co-ordinated champion," she smiled as she wiped the ice from her hair.

"Yeah . . ." I murmured, dropping my cigarette into a cup of milk which was in the hands of a rather hefty-type specimen.

My mind shot back once again to the fall of 1960 and the side-walk on a dark night, behind the Graham Building. There I had first seen her. There I asked her one of the most important questions a freshman can ask a college girl . . . "Pardon me, mam, but could you tell me where Jones Dorm is located?"

But she was still the same shy and unassuming, but charming, person I knew then. Caught in the tide of old acquaintance, we began to converse or talk on what we had done since.

"You know," she said, "I haven't had but one drink since coming here four years ago! Isn't that utterly impossible!"

Now I had been, for the past two days, in heavy thought concerning a subject for this column. This revelation, once disclosed to me, struck like the 12 o'clock bong of Big Ben.

Quickly, after telling her that I had to leave but would return, I galloped through the union, around Wright Building, and up the two and three-tenths of a mile of stairs.

As I gently fondled Ron Gollon's typewriter, I exclaimed to myself . . . "Think of that, a coed at East Carolina that has had but one drink in her four years here. This is Huntley, Brinkley material. Maybe the wire services will buy the story."

Yes, I was frantic with joy. After all, I had heard the stories circulating around the state concerning ECC. The lucid tales left almost nothing to my very vivid imagination. Why, according to many, ECC has walked away with the alcoholic consumption record for the entire state . . . which includes State, Wake Forest, Duke, Carolina, Catawba, Western Carolina, Lenoir Rhyne, Atlantic Christian, Woman's College, High Point, Greensboro, and several others.

This girl grew more and more an imagine in my mind. I thought of the terrific publicity, excellent publicity, that her feat would bring.

Another Joan of Arc, I muttered. A saint in a place of sin. Now they can change the college's name to Temperance U, the Home for Anti-Alcoholics, instead of its present title of ECC . . . the School of Bonded Education.

The idea grew within me. Sleep was impossible. Held together by vodka and metracal, I gathered my information for the first attack.

Nighttime fell with a sober thud across the hallowed campus mall. Bottle in hand, I aimed toward the Rat . . . to seek courage for the task before me. As I stumbled into the dimly lit alley, I was thrown from my course by a pair of female . . . outstretched arms.

"Hi baby," she whispered, her crimson lips soft and pliant against my starched physical education department tee shirt. "Where-forth doth thou goest," she giggled, moving against me.

As I stared in horror at the dark, dialted pupils that were moving towards me, I realized it was her . . . my ideal . . . my dream . . . my plan of salvation for the good name of East Carolina.

She smiled and saliva dribbled from her full, most lips onto my newly shined tennis shoes.

My mind whirled and I ran screaming from the alleyway, too terrified of what I had seen.

"Fink," she giggled, as she rolled up her sleeve and pressed the long, chrome needle into her soft, pliant skin.

The Word

By Joe Brannon

The word is that a fire broke out Tuesday night. Seems that was coming from a light fixture. Firemen quickly discovered the fuse in one of the fluorescent tubes had burned out . . . We have the word, from those that know the reason for the interruption during a movie in Austin. It is to the old equipment that has been in the building since 1945. We know that a projection engineer will on campus later this month will the projection booth in A-1. We discovered that the public relations department of the school has been selecting the fine words that we have seen at Austin. Also, by talking to those who know, we learned that next movies will be selected by a committee. As soon as we have a list of planned movies, we intend to print it in this column for your later reference. Then, you'll know what to stay on campus. From Joyner Library is that there are now over 320,000 volumes in the stacks. This reporter is working on a photo-feature of the and other library operations. The reason for this is to show parts of the library that they not otherwise see during stay here at ECC. The material for the majorette uniforms has arrived. The patterns have been sewn. The material is black cotton. The uniforms are said to be black with gold sequins. Official look will have to wait until the ECC-Wake Forest football game.

Scoop: There is a list of those that are going and those that are coming in the administration building. This list includes all the names of faculty members that will longer be here when the quarter starts. This list gives reasons for the departing. As to why they are going, the column printed the reasons. No doubt, there would be those who would label this column as "gossip sheet," which we deny . . . Word is that Rick Mitchell is the one that put up all the Mitchell Trio signs on campus. Seems like everywhere one goes "Rick has struck again!" The mentioned group will appear on campus later this month at a SGA sponsored concert. The ECC official, that told EAST CAROLINIAN reporters to investigate. So far, we have heard from those that have had dealings with that office, that the attitude of that office lacks the quality one would expect on the East Carolina College campus. The writer is planning an interview, an effort to find out what is on and why. If the interview does not appear in this column, the friend, you'll know that the office would not allow this paper to interview . . . Word is that the ECC delegation to the NSA convention, held in Indiana, went by bus. We inquired at the best of the question about how long it would take the students to get there on a bus. The answer we got was 36 hours that's right thirty-six hours. The reporter likes to travel as fast as the next person, but this is a reporter that would stay home before riding a bus for a day and a half.

Word is that the Chad Mitchell Trio is great. Also, the word that the concert tomorrow will turn out to be the best received of any SGA concert.

The last of the free movies the Summer will be "Rear Window". It was directed by the and only, Alfred Hitchcock. Stewart stars in this movie. deals with a man doing away with his "better-half". In fact, the man cuts his wife in half. The is in color . . .

Word is that in a certain place on campus, there are two people with the same last name. The not unusual until its discovery that the people are actually father and son . . .

That's it for this week and summer. We would like to thank for reading the column. no time have we cut anyone anything, but it's time for us to "cut out" for this summer. Until September, remember, matter where you go or what do, one good turn will get most of the blanket.

Virginia Gentlemen Blast Has Been, Capture Softball Tourney Crown

Virginia Gentlemen 6, Has Beens 2
Following withdrawal of the Pika's in intramural competition, the Virginia Gentlemen and the Has Beens were left to battle it out for top position. The two teams met in a playoff Tuesday afternoon. The Virginia Gents won over the Has Beens, 6-2.

Pitcher Bobby Joyce of the Gents, backed by good fielding, put the first six men to face him out. In the top of the third, one run was made by the Has Beens on a walk, sacrifice, and a single. In the fourth inning, Charley Henderson of the Has Beens drove in his team's only other run of the game with a long fly hit to right field. The Virginia Gentlemen started the afternoon off with a bang as Manager Bob Menefee homered in the first inning. Then, Bob Joyce, trying to earn his win, drove in the second run with a stand-up triple. Again in the third, the Gentlemen scored two runs with a homer by one man on base.

Joyce, once more helping his own cause, drove in another run in the fourth. In the fifth inning, the Gentlemen earned another run leaving the final score at 6-2. The winning pitcher was Bobby Joyce of the undefeated new softball champs, the Virginia Gents. Scotty Scott pitched for the losing Has Beens.

Buck Coker, Men's Intramural Director said, as he presented trophies to the team captains, "I want to thank all who have been participants in the Intramural program this Summer. The sportsmanship displayed and the interest and spirit of those in the competition has made this one of the best seasons."

Theta Chi's 3, Has Beens 4
The Theta Chi's, led by their manager-pitcher Bill Hunt, held the Has Beens for four innings of a no-run ball game. In the fifth inning, the Has Beens broke loose, scoring three runs and tying up the ball game 3-3. The Theta Chi's had scored their three runs in the fourth inning. Again, the ball game went into a no run slump until the seventh inning when the Has Beens scored a man from second base, winning 4-3.

Lambda Chi's 19, Country Gents 8
Dave Bumgardner's Country Gents could not hold the Lambda Chi's in their game Tuesday. The Lambda Chi's were ahead in every inning up to the fifth when the Gents got back into action with seven runs. With the score 8-10 in their favor the Lambda Chi's opened up, raining hits all over the field. The Lambda Chi's scored 9 runs that inning, ending the ball game 19-8 over the Gents.

Has Beens 11, Lambda Chi's 0
Scotty Scott pitched the Has Beens to a 11-0 win over the Lambda Chi's Wednesday afternoon. It should be noted that in the Men's Intramural Softball competition if one team scores ten runs and the other team can not catch up in the next inning the game is automatically called. The Has Beens scored 7 runs in the first inning and took over in the third by scoring four more runs. The Lambda Chi team could not score in the next half of the inning so the game was called after the third inning with the Has Beens victorious 11-0.

Virginia Gentlemen 10, Theta Chi 3
Bob Menefee's Virginia Gentlemen once again proved that they are not gentlemen on the softball field as they defeated the Theta Chi's 10-3. The Gentlemen, scoring in every inning except the third, held the fraternity men to one run until the Theta Chi's made a last ditch effort in the fifth for two runs.

Country Gents 16, Theta Chi's 7
Bill Hunt and the Theta Chi's seemed to be an even match for Dave Bumgardner's Country Gents for the first few innings of their softball game in the Men's Intramural competition last Thursday. Both teams scored two to three runs in each inning until the fifth when the Gents from the country went on a wild scoring spree. When they took their turn at the plate, the Country Gents scored seven runs to make the final score 16-7.

Virginia Gentlemen 19, Country Gents 9
The Virginia Gentlemen proved again to be too much for the Country Gents in Monday's softball competition. Even with the lead-hitting of Nick Dry and the seventy-five-foot home run by Jerry McGee, the Country Gents could not catch the Gentlemen after the fifth inning of the game. The game was called after the last half of the fifth because the Gents could not match power with the Gentlemen from Virginia.

Baptists Sponsor Pre-School Retreat

"Workers Together for Christ" will be the theme of the Pre-School Retreat, sponsored by the Baptist Student Union at Hawkins Beach near Washington, North Carolina September 6-11. During the first night's program, members will tell of their summer experiences in religious work of which the highlight of the summer was the trip to Ridgecrest in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Included on the program for Saturday, will be a panel meeting of young people leaders with council members. A planning session will also be held by members of the B.S.U.

On Sunday, the morning devotion will be presented by Bobby Chappell and the message will be given by Rev. Dwight Ficklin, Chaplain of the B.S.U. The following day, members of the BSU will return to Greenville for a pizza party at the BSU Center and for "Open House" for freshmen.

Notice

Head Coach and Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich recently announced the proposed seating arrangement in Ficklen Memorial Stadium for students of East Carolina this fall. The students will enter at Gate 4, nearest the College, and will sit in sections 1, 2, and the top half of the third section. There will also be an entrance for students at the main gate. This seating arrangement facilitates nearly one-half of the entire stadium for the student cheering section.

Identification cards with the attached photos will be required for East Carolina students to attend the ECC-Wake Forest football game and all other games of the '63 season. Guest tickets will be placed on sale at 9:00 Monday, September 16th and students will be required to have their I D cards to purchase these tickets.

Director And Winners

Bud Coker, center, director of the Summer intramural program, presented trophies to Rick McDonough, winner of the Intramural Tennis Tournament and Fred Robinson, winner of the Intramural Golf Tournament.

Varsity Begins Grid Practice, Stas Expects Stronger Team

East Carolina's varsity football team begins practice August 30 with head coach Clarence Stasavich. Stasavich, in his second season as top football coach at the College, expects forty-six men to report August 28 for physical examinations and preparation for the first practice.

"One of East Carolina's main troubles last year was that the boys reported for the first practice out of shape," stated Stasavich. "but from all indications, so far, they will be in much better shape to begin this year."

Nine of last year's starting team will be returning this year. The complete backfield, both ends, both guards, and a tackle are all seasoned performers from last year's starting squad. "Skipper" Duke will move up from the second team to a first team tackle position. A transfer student Will Siler, will start at center.

Youth is one thing the Pirates will have this year. Four seniors, seventeen juniors, and twenty-four sophomores will comprise the three East Carolina squads. The second team will have four lettermen returning this fall and the remainder of the team will be sophomores.

Tennis Championship Features Split Game

The Men's Intramural Tennis Tournament, scheduled for last Tuesday, found Rick McDonough in action against Bobby Beasley. The championship game, played in the same manner as last term's competition, was a best 2 out of 3 sets match.

At the end of Tuesday's play, which was called after 2 sets because of a thunder storm, both boys had won a set. McDonough won the first, 6-2 and Beasley won the second, 7-5.

The last set played Sunday afternoon, under sunny skies, was won by McDonough, 6-2. McDonough received for his victory the championship trophy awarded by the Men's Intramural Association.

Robinson Wins Again

Thirty-seven golfers entered the Men's Intramural Golf competition last Thursday afternoon at the Ayden Golf Course. Under sunny skies, Fred Robinson, last session's champion, successfully defended his title on the par 70 course. Robinson beat Billy Brogden in a tight game with Robinson winning by one stroke.

The first five finalist in the popular competition were Robinson, 75; Billy Brogden, 76; Raybon Jenkins, 79; Bob Hughes, 88; and Scotty Scott with a 92.

Griffith Wins CU Tourney

Last Monday night the College Union played host to the Men's Singles Table Tennis Tournament. Players were paired for matches for the best two out of three games. The tournament, under the supervision of co-chairmen Don Kennedy and Jerry Bunting, ran from 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. Competition was stiff throughout the entire evening.

In the last game of the semi-finals, played between Malcom Griffith and Bradford Bulla and one of the best of the evening, Griffith beat Bulla to go on to the finals. Bernard Beloff beat Don Kennedy and therefore qualified for the final game to be played with Griffith.

Advancing to the finals Beloff and Griffith played for the best three out of five games. In the first two, Griffith won by a score of 21-19, but lost in the third game to Beloff by a score of 22-20. Griffith came back in the fourth game with a score of 21-15 to win the tournament.

Both Griffith and Beloff will receive trophies at the College Union Awards Dinner which will be held the 22nd of this month.

Notice

The Putt-Putt Golf tournament, originally scheduled for the 22nd of August has been postponed until the following night August 23rd. The tournament, which will be open to all ECC students and faculty, is to be held from 5:00 to 11:00 p.m. at the Putt-Putt Golf Course. It is interesting to note that this is the only official competition open to women students. Students and faculty who are interested do not have to sign up prior to entry as was necessary in all other intramural competition.

Superior Softballers

Trophies were presented this week to the captains of the Virginia Gentlemen and the Has Beens. ## Carter To Act As Judge In Julliard Contest Next May

An East Carolina piano teacher has been chosen as one of three judges for the 1964 auditions in the Johann Sebastian Bach International Competitions. Dr. Robert Carter, East Carolina professor since 1949, will join James Friskin of New York's Julliard School of Music and William Masselos, concert pianist, in judging the young contestants next May 3 in Washington, D. C.

Auditions are open to all American and foreign piano students between ages 17 and 22. Prizes of $500, $300, and $200 will be presented to first-, second- and third-place winners by Mr. and Mrs. David Lloyd Kreeger of Washington, D. C. Awards are for "excellence in performance of the Clavier works of Johann Sebastian Bach."

Carter, a native of Springfield, Tenn., has been recognized by renowned concert pianist and teacher Rudolph Ganz of the Chicago

Army Again Accepts ECC Student Nurse

Sandra Ray Bradley of Tarboro is the second East Carolina student to be accepted by the U. S. Army Student Nurse Program. A once self-help student at East Carolina, Sandra has worked in the hospital at Tarboro as a nurse's aide.

A junior student in the School of Nursing, she, like Patricia Weaver who just last July was accepted for this program, is now enlisted in the Woman's Army Corps, U. S. Army Reserve, and is on active duty while completing work for the B. S. degree. When she is within six months of graduation she will be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Army Nurse Corps.

After graduation and completion of the State Board examination, she will take an orientation course at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. She will then be on active duty in the Army Nurse Corps for a period of three years.

Musical College as one of the best piano instructors in the United States. Ganz wrote recently: "There are not many in our land who can compare with Robert Carter for integrity and for interest in giving a student the most minute guidance in technique and musical expression."

Carter is the only North Carolina piano teacher who has sent five student soloists to perform with the N. C. Symphony in open competition. One of his outstanding students, Tasker Polk of Warrenton, played twice at the Governor's Mansion in Raleigh last year. Polk also appeared twice at the N. C. Art Museum during 1962 before his selection by Governor Terry Sanford for a $5,000 state scholarship to study for a year with Dr. Paul Baumgartner in Switzerland.

Carter came to the College after teaching piano at Florida Southern College at Lakeland; George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.; and James Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va. He holds bachelor's degrees in music from George Peabody and the Chicago Musical College of Roosevelt University. George Peabody granted his Master of Arts diploma and the Chicago Musical College awarded Carter's Doctor of Fine Arts degree. Carter has been notified of his appointment as a judge for the Bach Competitions by Miss Raissa Tselentic of Washington, D. C., founder-president of the international auditions.

Steel Attends Meet

Mrs. Mary S. Steel, a member of the faculty of the School of Nursing, recently attended a workshop concerning problems of tuberculosis control held at Lake Junaluska, August 18 through 21. Prominent speakers on the workshop, Doctors Harry Heiman, Edward T. Blomquist, and Godfrey M. Hochbaum, spoke on "Air Pollution," "Case Detection," and "Communication."

Departments Announce Additions In College Faculties For '63-'64

Two changes in the faculty of the College's Department of Geography were announced today by Dr. Robert E. Cramer, director of the department.

Dr. Franz A. Nowotny, formerly of Saint Francis College in Biddeford, Maine, joins the East Carolina staff as associate professor. Nowotny is completing an eight-week seminar at Brown University in Providence, R. I., having been one of 10 selected members to participate in the Ford Foundation Regional Faculty Research Seminar in Economics.

John E. Christensen comes to East Carolina as assistant professor from a position as superintendent of schools in Marquette, Mich. His experience includes teaching positions at Arizona State University, the University of Nebraska, the University of Maryland's overseas program in Morocco, and Michigan College of Mining and Technology. He will teach courses at East Carolina in introductory geography, geographic education and conservation of natural resources.

Five new members will expand the faculty of the School of Music at East Carolina College to 29, Dean Earl E. Beach has announced.

The new faculty members, who will begin their respective duties September 3, are: Paul Q. Topper, Diploma in Violin, Julliard School of Music, New York; B.M., University of Missouri; M.M., University of Michigan, where he is working toward the D.M.A.; has also studied at Yale University School of Music; has performed as violinist for five years with Chattanooga Symphony and Opera, and with Indianapolis Symphony, Cincinnati Symphony; and Toledo Opera Orchestra, Ohio; comes from a teaching position at Colorado State College.

Ellis Eugene Narmour, trombonist; B.M., M.A., Eastman School of Music, where he has done additional work toward doctorate in theory; has taught at New Mexico State University; has toured Europe and Russia with the Rochester Philharmonic. Mr. Narmour's compositions for trombone have been performed by both professional and amateur groups. He comes from a teaching position at Deming, New Mexico.

Mrs. Ingeborg Larsen Jarratt, voice; A.B., St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn.; M.A., ECC; was graduate assistant in ECC's School of Music; has taught in public high schools in Iowa, Ohio, and Massachusetts; returns to ECC as assistant professor of music from Beaver County Day School, Brookline, Mass. Mrs. Jarratt is the sister of Dr. Tora Larsen of the School of Business at ECC.

George V. Cripps, voice; B.M., B.S.M., Baldwin Wallace College, Berea, Ohio; M.A., Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio; Doctoral Candidate, Michigan State University; played French horn with Jackson Symphony Orchestra; was chosen for two years by music colleagues in the State of Michigan for the Michigan All-State Honor Choir of 100 voices; comes from Livonia, Mich., where he was director of vocal music at the Franklin High School.

Jane Murray, mezzo-soprano, B.S., M.A., East Carolina College; graduate assistant in ECC's School of Music; formerly of Roxboro; will join the faculty as assistant instructor.

Five changes in the faculty of East Carolina College's Psychology Department have been announced by Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, director. Prewett said a total staff of 14 will now include three additions and two replacements. Added are one part-time and two full-time faculty members.

Dr. Ervin Rose and Mrs. Gertrude M. Neis are leaving ECC for positions elsewhere, Prewett said.

Replacing Rose is Dr. Benjamin Allen. Mrs. Hazel Farrior Stapleton replaces Mrs. Neis. Dr. Julia D. Marshall and Larry Byrd are full-time additions and Dr. Thomas Long, psychologist at the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic in Greenville, joins the staff as a part-time instructor.

Dr. Allen joins the Psychology staff as an associate professor. He comes here from Wilmington, N. C., where he was psychologist, consultant and director of the New Hanover County Mental Health Center. He has been psychological examiner for Cloverbottom Home in Donelson, Tenn.; psychological consultant for Kings Daughters Hospital School, Columbia, Tenn.; and school psychologist for the Nashville, Tenn., public schools. Allen is a graduate of Wofford College in Spartanburg, S. C. And he holds the master's and Ph.D. degrees from George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn.

Mrs. Stapleton becomes an assistant professor at East Carolina. Her experience includes posts as adjunct instructor at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson; director of guidance for Lenoir County Schools; elementary teacher, Pink Hill; ECC Extension Division instructor; and physical therapist at Hibbing (Minn.) General Hospital.

Dr. Long, the Pitt County psychologist, is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Indiana University. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Tennessee.

Dr. Marshall, faculty member here from 1957 to 1959, returns to East Carolina from Glassboro State College in Glassboro, N. J. She has also taught at Westminster College in New Wilmington Pa. She holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Kent State University in Kent, Ohio. Her doctorate in education was awarded by the University of Maryland at College Park.

Byrd, a psychology department graduate assistant here last year, joins the Psychology staff as a full-time instructor. An outstanding science and psychology student, he was granted his bachelor and master of arts degrees by East Carolina College. At the College, he has been a member of the Psychology Club and of Phi Sigma Pi, honorary fraternity.

Three faculty replacements in the School of Education have been announced by Dean Douglas R. Jones, director of the department.

Dr. Lewis H. Swindell, Jr., associate professor, is leaving the College for Atlantic Christian Col-

Director Lauds CU Committee Members

Ten East Carolina students, despite busy schedules, have served as the social committee for the College Union activities this summer. George Whitehurst, acting as vice president, was in charge, aided by secretary, Judy Hurdle, and reporter, Harlan McCaskill.

Bingo-ice cream parties were under the direction of co-chairmen Judy Irvin and Anne Riddick, while Donald Kennedy took charge of the table tennis tournaments committee. Cherry Garris, Jerry Bunting, Jim Cannon, and Bill Benfield also assisted in the committee activity work.

Activities have ranged from outdoor-combo dances to the familiar watermelon feasts on the mall this summer. Miss Cynthia Mendenhall, director of the College Union activities, compliments this group of students on a "job well-done."

lege, Wilson, where he will become the new Dean of Education.

The three faculty replacements are: Dr. Thomas A. Chastain, who began his duties July 1 as the new director of student activities. He received the B.S. degree from Troy State College, Alabama; M.Ed. and Ed.S. from University, Alabama. Chastain has taught in public schools in Alabama and Georgia and served in the Army from 1953-1956. He comes to ECC from Auburn.

Dr. Margaret Helen Ingram, native of Buncombe County, has these degrees: A.A., Mary College; B.A., Wake Forest; M.A. and Ed.D., University of North Carolina. She has taught in public schools in North Carolina, at the College of William and Mary, and at St. Andrew's Episcopalian College in Lenoir. She comes to ECC from St. Andrew's.

Dr. Frank Arwood, B.S., Tennessee State College, M.A., Ph.D., University of North Carolina—has taught in public schools in Tennessee and North Carolina and served in the Army. He comes to ECC from a secondary principalship in Burlington.

MHA Offers $500 Scholarship

A $500 scholarship in psychology at East Carolina has been announced by the Pitt County Mental Health Association. The association said its David W. Hardee Memorial Scholarship has been granted to the College for use by a "able and worthy" student who wishes to enter the field of clinical psychology.

Mrs. Ellen Carroll, president of the association, said the association hopes to continue the Hardee Scholarship annually. "We are pleased," she said, "to support increasing efforts at the college to train students for work in mental health fields, particularly clinical psychology." She noted that she has ready two students from the college's psychology department for internships at the Pitt County Mental Health Center. The association said, established the Hardee fund as a tribute to the late David W. Hardee of Pitt County "for his untiring efforts in the field of mental health in Pitt County." Her efforts helped the Pitt Association gain nation-wide attention, Mrs. Carroll said.

Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, director of the Psychology Department, expressed appreciation to the association for the grant. Prewett said "I feel that future recipients of the Hardee Scholarship will receive with honor and dignity the sentiments of the association in establishing the award." He said the first student to receive the award effective for the 1963-1964 school term, will be selected and announced soon.
