

Lowenstein To Address EC YDC Tonight In Library Auditorium

Al Lowenstein, called by some a "Controversial iconoclast, but considered by nearly all to be one of the greatest minds of our time," will address the EC YDC tonight at 7:30 in the Library Auditorium. Mr. Lowenstein will speak on the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party and his experiences in that state.

A hint as to why Mr. Lowenstein should be labeled "one of the greatest minds of our time" is given by his most impressive set of credentials. Mr. Lowenstein has received degrees from UNC-CH, Yale, and Georgetown University, has served as Legislative assistant to Senator Frank P. Graham, and is a part of The National Student Association. Lowenstein has worked in the Education Department for the United Nations and as Foreign Policy Assistant for Senator Hubert Humphrey. He has practiced law in New York City and was Assistant Dean of Men and Lecturer in political science at Stanford University. Mr. Lowenstein has also held the position of Assistant Professor in the Department of Social Studies at NC State. Lowenstein is personally responsible for bringing the message of the enslaved South African people to the United Nations and to the world in his book Brutal Mandate.

Al Lowenstein is currently working with the Democratic National Committee and is an active member of the Spanish underground movement.

Beginning at 7:30, Mr. Lowenstein will recount his experiences in Mississippi and with the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party. The talk will be followed by an informal question and answer session. There isn't a person on campus (faculty or student) who could not gain a great deal of knowledge and insight by attending.

The East Carolina Young Democrats Club will sponsor Lowenstein's appearance and invites students and faculty to attend. Certainly, this gathering will prove stimulating to students and faculty

EC Freshman Reign Over Bowl Game; Walker Cops Crown Of Tobaccoland Queen

By BRENDA BULLOCK

A new crown has been added to the East Carolina campus. Freshman Martha White Walker was crowned Queen of Tobaccoland this month during halftime ceremonies at the Tobacco Bowl game between Virginia Military Institute and the University of Virginia.

Blue-eyed Queen Martha succeeds Miss Robin Link of Danville, Virginia. The blonde-haired Miss stands 5 foot 6 inches and weighs a tiny 100 pounds. For the talent competition, she sang two songs "Call Me Up Some Rainy Afternoon" and "Hello Dolly."

Queen Martha is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Walker of La Crosse, Virginia. She entered the contest as Miss South Hill. Her sponsor was the South Hill Junior Women's Club.

At EC, Queen Martha is majoring in bassoon and minoring in piano. She has hopes of becoming a band director since she first began to play in her high school band. She has always had a "love for music." She plays the clarinet in the "Marching Pirate" band and is in the "woodwind chair."

"It was all so wonderful. Daddy didn't believe it. He just laughed and gave me a big hug. We all are still walking around in a daze," Queen Martha said.

When Queen Martha left the excitement in Richmond, she still didn't get away from the festivities. She was showered with roses and gifts. The Park View High School band—of which she formerly was a member—played "Hey Look Me Over" and led a parade through town. There were many welcoming signs and the mayor of South Hill, Mr. H. S. Montgomery, greeted her. She was also presented with a check from the town of La Crosse

Reverses Policy

From the Manchester Guardian, Manchester, England.

The "New York Herald Tribune" which advocated a Republican Party before one was founded and in all its 124 years has never endorsed a Democrat for President, today (October 4) came out for Lyndon Johnson. It did so with an air of a hungry man compelled to eat grass.

Then the paper confesses the halting stages of its deflection to LBJ. It began by opposing the nomination of Goldwater in the firm recognition of that his "simplistic" views on world affairs and his probably unwittingly "appeal to ugly racial passions... were enough to rule him out as the Republican standard bearer."

After San Francisco, the "Tribune" could only hope "that he might prove our fears unfounded." He did no such thing. On the contrary, he proved that "he does not have the personal talents necessary for the Presidency" and that his "course if pursued, would wreck not only the Republican Party but the two-party system."

What is painfully clear to the "Tribune" is that Goldwater "has no grasp of the infinite complexities of a dangerous, frustrating and volatile world," and his whole Southern strategy, his embrace of Senator Thurmond, his thinly veiled equations of Negro rights with violence in the streets, have been a mockery of the fundamental Republican dedication to equal rights."

Sorrowfully, therefore, the "Tribune" turned to its "inescapable choice." In swallowing LBJ the "Tribune" admits that it cannot digest "the Democratic doctrine of ever-enlarging Federal authority... a continued spending spree... buying votes by the block, with special interest legislation wrapped up in compassionate slogans," but its agony was relieved by the suspicion that "in Mr. Johnson we are offered a man of vast experience and manifest competence." More than that "Lyndon Johnson's greatest talent is the one needed now as seldom before in our history: that of reconciling the seemingly irreconcilable and pulling opposites into a consensus."

The 28 percentage points that now divide LBJ from Goldwater are 22 points more than divided Governor Dewey from Truman when Dewey's landslide seemed avoidable. It is a huge disparity but the mystical hunch in some quarters is that if once the Gallup Poll showed a sudden small gain for Goldwater it could signal a violent rebound. The other hope is that the people are disillusioned with the pollsters and that the "secret" millions for Goldwater will perform an historic hoax inside the voting booths on November 3.

Heart vs. Stomach

The 1964 Election campaign began with a grand potential. This was to be the time when two basic philosophies battled for the public's votes, when civil rights vied with property right, when federal rights encountered states rights. This was to be the time when everyone examined the role of government in our society.

But what has happened instead? We have the issue of law and order versus crime. Both candidates, it seems, are against crime and are for law and order.

Both parties, it seems, are against corrupt people in government. Corruptness is usually translated into such things as stereo sets, television stations and New York felt companies.

The Republicans have wasted hours attacking the Americans for Democratic Action. The Democrats play the game of pasting red, white and blue labels of "extremism" on the John Birch Society.

And there has been the continuous refinement of that old politicians' art know as mud slinging, which reached its height in Chicago a couple of weeks ago when some one asked William Miller if he was using dirty campaign tactics. "Of course not," Miller replied. "For example, I have not mentioned, and don't intend to mention anything about the fact that Hubert Humphrey wasn't in the war, at all."

The point is this: the politicians have refused to grasp the real issue and present it to the public: whether our society has become so complex and large that it takes a federal government to control, correct and lead it or whether our government has become so big that its is smothering our society.

Goldwater has become so concerned with his past statements and actions and his image of being "dangerous" that he is failing to concentrate on basic issues. He spends his time talking vaguely of conscience and the heart.

Johnson, looking at the polls and the widespread fear of Goldwater, has assumed the position of "peace and prosperity." His slogan is that he wants to be "president of all Americans." He refuses to take the liberal position which has become his by the stands he has made as president.

Four years ago the center of campaign controversy was the amount of pancake makeup on Richard Nixon's face. This year it is the traumas of the heart versus the fullness of the stomach.

The politicians have once again failed their country.

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

THE DONKEY SERENADE

Republicans put a balanced budget ahead of national security. Phooey! The Truman Administration spent more on peanut subsidies than on rocket development to our everlasting regret. The Navy's urgent need for a nuclear powered carrier was vetoed by Secretary McNamara. In the face of doubts by leading experts, President Johnson ordered a unilateral cutback in uranium production.

Every major weapons system in our present arsenal was conceived under the Eisenhower Administration, even though Democrat-controlled Congresses hacked 1,300,000,000 dollars from the budget requests.

Democrats are for the working man. How exciting! They always leave out a key word here—Democrats are for the working man's vote. They seek it with doles and make-work projects in the name of "compassion," oblivious that it was their own economic bungling which created high unemployment. They promote "labor" legislation which strengthens the labor bosses and tightens the political discipline of the unions. They sponsor federal giveaway programs which undermine local government.

Republicans are for ALL the people. Republicans preserve peace, encourage prosperity and maintain a stable dollar the mainstay of the retired and the pensioner.

Sincerely yours,

Charles M. Oldham Jr.

To The Editor:

The letter entitled "Donkey Time" and the article by Steve Thompson, "Democrats Lose Strom For Republican Gain," which appeared in the October 13th edition, are both prime examples of extremely poor journalistic practice. Material as obviously propagandistic and biased as this has no place being printed as news, and in a college newspaper its propriety could be seriously questioned even if it were to appear in the editorial column. It should be noted that the "letters" column should not be allowed to be used as a political forum anymore than a place to sell Brand "X" bras.

I hope we readers will no longer be subjected to material of this sort in the EAST CAROLINIAN. The paper this year has been the best I have seen since I have been at E.C.C. I hope it continues. Good luck.

Thank you,
Tom Doe

To the Editor:

Subject: Rebuttal to "Donkey Time" (October 13)

Since the beginning of time, the elephant has been regarded as an animal of great strength and fearlessness. We cannot help wondering why the Republicans ever chose him as their mascot. Would not the laughing hyena be more appropriate?

The Republicans have had their chance to prove their own. The question is, how have they used it? For example, there was William Howard Taft, who was elected to carry out Teddy Roosevelt's reform policies. He carried them out all right—on a stretcher! Then there were William G. Harding and the days of the split personality (split because he took a stand for both sides of each issue), Calvin Coolidge and the beginning of the end days, Herbert Hoover and the hunger days, and finally, there was Dwight Eisenhower and do-nothing days. What does all this prove? The Republicans have used the same old nothingness formula for some time now and have not solved a major problem yet.

One closing thought—if Barry Goldwater should be elected, what will we have? Picnic Days! This is the promise of the Republican party.

Sincerely

Rosemary Hooks

To the Editor:

Drew Pearson, noted or notorious columnist appeared last Monday night in the East Carolina Memorial Gymnasium. His appearance was sponsored by the East Carolina lecture series.

Mr. Pearson began the evening with bits of humor that reached the whole audience. He then began on the subject of his lecture, which was supposed to be "The Speaker Ban Law." If this was the subject of his speech then he failed miserably. If his plan was to give a political speech, supporting the 1964 Democratic Platform, he served his purpose.

Mr. Pearson, in an unimpressive display of unsupported statements, fumbled, stammered and hacked through an attempt to refute the claim that the present administration is "soft on communism."

When directly confronted with facts (from our own State Department releases) he told this writer: "I do not have any respect or interest in your position" and "I am not going to be bothered by this discussion any further."

It is my personal opinion that the students of East Carolina who do not profess a "far left wing view," are being cheated. If (??) is allowed to speak, when will the element of this student body opportunity for a student supported election on campus? I hope it's election!

Yours very truly,
Ross C. Barker

Foggy

This concerns those who allow the irrelevant in national politics to thinking. In every case one always gets around mud and boxing has no opponent's personal thing equally irrelevant charging President election fraud after for many years show cans have descended glander merely to ham this campaign. If they are interested in character have launched an attack. This issue is as irrelevant as possibly be. They have also charged that been involved in Senate. They are another investigation before the election. They cries must go unheeded of time so they cry.

On the other hand haven't any right to "trigger happy" just wants to solve the traffic problem. The 7th Fleet shell crabs are not uneasy Goldwater thinks that finest people I know are Birch Society) and type of people we use.

The Democrats are be confused by such or not Barry occasionally and whether a fit 1864 better than or not he's a 4-R man. publican. Reactionary (Right) or Radical Republican Reactionary because crabs know he. If ed Republican. Most knew what the Republic deteriorated into under ship of Goldwater & probably be forced on the situation, to read own sayings and on Franklin's as well.

At the convention Dr. Todd, the National Historian, was elected to the Vice Presidency of the National Organization, and Tau Chapter was named in 2nd place as the Chapter with the most active members. The theme of the convention was "Education, Progress, and Freedom." Rho Chapter of Washington, played host to the visiting delegations. Blended

Maryland PiKA's Visit EC Brothers, Southern Hospitality Reigns King

Sixteen University of Maryland PIKA pledges came Southward to East Carolina on Friday to spend "Hospitality Weekend" with our PIKA's.

While here at EC these young men had the opportunity to meet fellow "southern" brothers, visit all the sorority and fraternity houses, get acquainted with many people in the dorms and on campus by dorm tours and general excursions on our campus.

Brought about as a direct result from the national leadership conference, the goodwill project is a co-operative effort for the purpose of better relations not only for intra-fraternity relations but for greater inter-school relations.

Hunter Chadwick, president of the local PIKA chapter, states "The entire weekend has been a most rewarding experience for all persons involved. We've had a great exchange of ideas and this should prove beneficial for both schools. The University of Maryland boast more than 30 fraternities and many of these pledges have expressed hope for additional growth of Greek life here on our campus. We're certainly pleased to be selected hosts as a fraternity and as a school. Visits such as this help promote our school."

While conversing at length with them, such words as "impressed", "friendly", "warm", "everyone's so nice to us and we don't even know these people", "Now I know what is meant by Southern living... it's kindness and warmth." Never before have I met a more mannerly and congenial group. Although "yankees" they have exhibited genuine warmth in a true human vein.

Some sentiment has been expressed that perhaps East Carolina can sponsor a similar tour group in the future.

Phi Mu Alpha Accepts Two; Begins New Music Program

The professional music fraternity for men at East Carolina College, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, has enlisted two new pledges.

They are Harold Wayne Amick, a sophomore from Burlington, and Robert Edward (Bob) Delly, a graduate student from Euclid, Ohio.

The musicians are going through a six-week training program. Each will be required to maintain scholastic averages of B in music and C in all courses during this period. Presentation of a pledge recital is another requirement.

The purpose of Phi Mu Alpha is fourfold: to advance the cause of music in America; to foster the mutual welfare and brotherhood of students of music; to develop a true fraternal spirit among members; and to encourage loyalty to the Alpha Mater.

Donald C. Tracy of the music faculty is advisor to the group.

AMICK, president of the fraternity's pledge class, is a French horn specialist, a percussionist and pianist. ## Officials Revise Student Seating For Remaining Games

In order for ECC students to be seated in the student section of Ficklen Stadium for the two remaining football games, Richmond and Presbyterian, some changes have been made.

As the students enter the gate showing their ID card and having the Activity Card punched, they will be given a student section ticket which must be presented at the entrance to the South Side stands. Students may purchase guest tickets for the Richmond game for dates, parents, or friends from the Athletic Office in the gymnasium. The guest should enter the student gate with the student and receive a student section ticket.

No one will be allowed in the student section unless he presents this ticket. As a matter of fact, no one will be allowed in the new concrete stands unless he has a student section ticket, a faculty section ticket, or a reserved seat stub.

Everyone should come early in order to avoid the last minute rush and get the seat he desires. The first arrivals will get their choice of seats in the student section.

The student section is now outlined with a narrow stripe of red paint and a light chain. Sufficient ushers and policemen will be on duty to keep unauthorized persons out of the student section.

The Faculty Athletic Committee requests full cooperation of the student body in occupying only one seat so that there will be room for everyone. Sufficient seats are reserved for the student section to accommodate all students who desire to attend the next home game which will be the University of Richmond game, Saturday night, October 24.

Dr. Jenkins Supports Two Year Med School

east carolinian—tuesday, october 20, 1964—5

On October 14, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins spoke to the Pre-Med and Pre-Dental Society concerning the recent proposal that a two year medical school be located here at East Carolina.

Dr. Jenkins believes that Eastern N. C. needs a medical school to train our own kinds. He stated that only 115 North Carolinians entered N. C. medical school last year and that out of these there will be a few who will fail and some who will change their minds and leave the realm of medicine. Even if all of these 115 men and women survive four years of training, many will leave the state to practice.

Dr. Jenkins pointed out that there are many obstacles to be overcome before any further planning can proceed. Probably the most predominant obstacle is to eliminate false conception. There are many important backers who are ill informed as to prevailing economic and cultural conditions here in Eastern N. C. He said that many persons have in fact "lost their sense of history" by incorporating the image that this is a retrogressive area where the people are trading with Indians and hunting and trapping for their livelihood thus withstanding the needs of modern society. Someone must inform these influential persons that this is a progressive area and there could possibly be one million civilized people living east of highway 301. Yet there are numerous places where doctors don't exist. Dr. Jenkins exemplified Winterville as one of many towns which doesn't have a physician.

Dr. Jenkins boasted that the emphatic aim of such a medical school if located here would be to recruit for doctors who would want to work where their services could best benefit the people of Eastern N. C.

The Pitt County Medical Society stands behind the proposal one-hundred per cent. Duke University is also in favor of a medical school being located here at East Carolina. But Dr. Jenkins stated that even though we have these backers, we still lack the support of the press. It seems that for some unknown reason such newspapers as the Raleigh Times have opposed the idea from the start and don't want the area of medicine planted on the campus of East Carolina College.

Dr. Jenkins related that reliable figures put the cost of such an institution at four million dollars. There is not much concern as to where the money would come from since the state would only have to pay about one-third of the total cost and the balance would be handled by the federal government. The main job is to sell the idea to various influential persons and the press. It is of the utmost importance that these people realize the need for a medical school in this region and act accordingly.

We can succeed only if we have your participation.

Delta Sig Exec Visits EC Chapter

Charles L. Farrar, executive director of Delta Sigma Pi, professional business fraternity, was the guest speaker Monday night before members of the East Carolina College Chapter.

Farrar described plans for national operations of the fraternity in the coming year. He also told the group that North Carolina has more chapters of the fraternity than any other state in the Southeastern Region.

"If you're always busted, friend, start doing your banking at Wachovia, the bank with two convenient uptown locations. By Zeus, Wachovia has everything a busy student needs!"

"For example, I used to save my money in a vase. But no more is my spare cash owed to a Grecian urn. Now it's in a Wachovia Savings Account, earning Daily Interest every day on every drachma. Makes it easy to save for clothes, books and dates."

"And Wachovia has a special service that's custom tailored for us academics. My Wachovia Pay-As-You-Go Checking Account helps me keep track of my money—formerly a Herculean task. I get a statement every month... and the protection of Federal Deposit Insurance. No minimum balance required, either. Wachovia even prints your name and address free on checks and deposit tickets."

Foolin' Around With Fris Merry Go Around

By FRISBY HENDRICKS

This week-end our happy little group went to our capital city and we enjoyed ourselves immensely in more ways than one. One of our brightest moments of the week-end was meeting the "Outside" and listening to the comments they had of East Carolina. We are usually brightened by these remarks, but this week-end we received more comments than ever. At the North Carolina State Fair, we found several people who were impressed with the growth of the college. When we arrived at the campus of N. C. State, we were confronted with the news that a segment of the student body were glad and proud that East Carolina was growing academically. We stopped off at the "Technician," N. C. State's newspaper, and we learned more about our reputation. Thus, be proud of East Carolina, students, and keep up the work.

This Saturday, is THE day of the week. The University of Richmond will play the undefeated Pirates at Picklen Stadium. The SGA and other interested groups have attempted to begin a strong rivalry between ECC and Richmond. Saturday night will also mark the first time a Southern Conference team faces the Pirates in Picklen Stadium. We guarantee our readers that this game will be the most exciting game of the year.

Another feature of this week is Friday, October 23. At 7:45 p.m., Hale Boggs, Democratic Congressman from Louisiana will speak. He is minority whip, a member of the House Agriculture Committee and a leader in the field of agriculture.

With Congressman Boggs will be Herbert Bonner, First District Congressman and J. Melvin Broughton, state Democratic Chairman. It will be held in Wright Auditorium and the public is cordially invited. For three straight weeks, East Carolina has been host for some brilliant men in politics and some not-so-brilliant men in politics. Hale Boggs will certainly not be the last, but the speech of this great speaker should not be missed.

Beginning October 26 through 31, the East Carolina Playhouse will present "My Fair Lady." Many remember this great Broadway musical comedy from last summer, and they will all agree that it was the most enjoyable play of the season. It will be held at McGinnis Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. nightly.

Have an enjoyable week, we know you will.

Eastern NC Democrats To Meet Here Oct. 23

Democrats of Eastern North Carolina will gather here next week to whip up enthusiasm for the stretch drive to the Nov. 3 general election. The program — scheduled Friday, Oct. 23 — includes a 7:45 p.m. rally in Wright Auditorium on the campus of East Carolina College with Rep. Hale Boggs, veteran Louisiana Democrat, as featured speaker.

Preceding the rally will be a reception for Boggs and other Democratic dignitaries and a $5-a-plate barbecue dinner. The reception is scheduled at 5:30 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Temple; the fund-raising dinner will begin at 7 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

Joining Boggs for brief addresses will be host congressman, Rep. Herbert C. Bonner of North Carolina's first district; State Democratic Chairman Mel Broughton of Raleigh; and various members of the Council of State.

Arrangements for the Oct. 23 affair were announced today by J. Henry Harrell of Greenville, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee which is sponsoring the program. A special committee headed by Charles L. McLawhorn of Winterville, president of Pitt County Young Democrats, is handling arrangements.

In announcing plans for the rally, Harrell issued a blanket invitation to all Democrats. Noting the 2,000-plus seating capacity of Wright Auditorium, he said the addresses by Boggs and other party leaders will be open to all, regardless of whether they attend the dinner.

Of the featured speaker, Harrell said: "We are indeed honored to have a ranking Democrat of Congressman Boggs' stature and distinction to be with us for this occasion. Certainly we would like to share his visit with as many as possible."

Boggs, Democratic majority whip of the House, was first elected in 1940 and thus became the youngest member of the 77th Congress. After a four-year interruption for service in the Naval Reserve, his congressional career resumed in 1946 and he has represented Louisiana's second district in the House since.

Dr. Irons New Director Of Evaluation Clinic For Retarded

Dr. Malene Grant Irons, Greenville pediatrician for 18 years, is the first director of the developmental evaluation clinic for mentally retarded children established at East Carolina College last week.

The appointment of Dr. Irons, wife of Greenville physician Dr. C. Fred Irons, was announced today by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECC president. She will begin her duties immediately.

Among her first tasks will be the organization of a clinic staff to include a clinical psychologist, a speech pathologist, a nurse, a social worker and clerical personnel.

In announcing Dr. Irons' appointment, Dr. Jenkins said: "We are very fortunate to obtain the services of Dr. Malene Irons for this clinic. Certainly the leadership abilities she has demonstrated time and again will be very valuable as this program takes its place in Eastern North Carolina."

The clinic, formally established last week by joint agreement of the college and the State Board of Health, will provide diagnostic, counseling and home guidance services in the eastern region of the state. It will offer aid to private physicians, families, schools and other community agencies and will be used as a clinical training facility for ECC students in psychology, speech therapy, nursing and education of the mentally retarded.

As clinic director, Dr. Irons will serve as medical director and as administrator-in-chief for the program. Working with her will be a medical advisory board of five Eastern North Carolina physicians yet to be appointed. The clinic will open to be appointed. The clinic will open to be appointed.

Twenty-Eight Seniors In AFROTC Begin Last Program For Commission

Twenty-eight East Carolina College seniors have begun the final leg in a four-year training program that leads to commission as a second lieutenant in the Air Force.

For all who complete the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps program and the regular four-year academic program here the commissions will be waiting upon graduation.

The senior cadets are responsible in their final AFROTC year for organization and leadership in training first-, second- and third-year cadets in military drill, courtesy, custom and tradition.

In the classroom they study professionalism, leadership and management. Given emphasis are studies of the military justice system and the theory of leadership.

The third year of campus military training under the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program has begun in earnest for 30 juniors at East Carolina College.

During the junior year the cadets study the nature of war, the development of air power in the United States, the mission and organization of the U.S. Defense Department and the concept, doctrine and employment of the Air Force. They also assume leadership positions in training first- and second-year cadet in military drill, custom, courtesy and tradition.

Seven cadets in the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps (AFROTC) detachment at East Carolina College comprise the current pledge class of the campus' General Chennault Squadron of the Arnold Air Society, national honorary fraternity for Air Force Reserve officers.

The cadets are engaged in a six-week period of pledgeship, the usual procedure before new society members are formally accepted. Full membership awaits them if they maintain satisfactory grades and continue their active service in the AFROTC program.
