Playhouse Holds First Auditions For 'Finstermaker'

Tryouts will be held for the next production by the East Carolina Playhouse on November 2, 1964 from 7:30-10:00 P.M. in McGinnis Auditorium. This offering is a new play called "The Days and Nights of Beebe Fenstermaker" by William Snyder.

Under the direction of Edgar Loessin, the play has roles for 5 women and 3 men. Manuscripts of the comedy-drama are on reserve in the library and Loessin urges all people interested in reading for a role to look over the play before coming to auditions. "There are excellent parts available, especially for women." He further stated that participation in Playhouse productions is open to all students and faculty as well as people from Greenville and surrounding communities, and invited all persons interested in any phase of theatre production to come to the auditions.

The New York apartment set with flashback acting areas will be designed by John Sneden; and Georg Schreiber, newly appointed technical director and lighting designer, will design the lighting.

Student Teachers Must Apply By Dec. 7

Dr. Thomas A. Chambliss, Director of Student Teaching, makes the following announcement: "Applications for admission to student teaching, Spring Quarter, 1965, must be submitted no later than December 7, 1964. Applications will not be accepted after that date.

Secondary education majors should submit applications to their departmental supervisor of student teaching. Elementary education majors should submit applications to advisors."

'Fair Lady'

Carolyn Everett finishes up a return engagement as Eliza Doolittle in the EC Playhouse production of 'My Fair Lady' tomorrow night. The Central Ticket office announced a sellout for the majority of the performances. (See review, page 3.)

Fletcher Dorm Receives Formal Dedication Sun.

Formal dedication ceremonies for Inglis Fletcher Hall, new seven-story womens dormitory at East Carolina, will be held here on Sunday, Nov. 8, with Mrs. Fletcher as guest of honor.

Dedictory services will be held in the spacious first-floor parlor with officials of the college and Mrs. Fletcher's granddaughter, Carolista Fletcher of Chapel Hill, as participants.

The granddaughter, a recent graduate of East Carolina, will unveil a portrait of her grandmother by Fayetteville artist Bill Fields. The portrait has been presented to the college by the novelist and it will hang in Fletcher Hall.

Members of Mrs. Fletcher's family invited to attend the Nov. 8 ceremonies include her sister, Mrs. L. A. Chenoweth of Belvidere near Edenton; her son, Cmdr. J. S. Fletcher (ret.) of Charleston, S.C.; the granddaughter; and her three grandsons, J. S. Fletcher of Greenville, David Fletcher of Manteo and James Fletcher, a freshman at East Carolina.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president of the college, will open the 3:30 p.m. ceremonies with brief remarks of welcome. After the unveiling of the portrait, Sen. Robert B. Morgan of Lillington, chairman of the ECC trustees, is scheduled for brief remarks and James Whitfield of Raleigh, vice chairman of the trustees, will formally accept the portrait for the college.

A special dedicatory address by EC author-in-residence Ovid W. Pierce will precede special music by the Women's Glee Club directed by Beatrice Chauncey and the prayer of dedication by D. D. Gross, director of religious activities at the college.

Announcement that the new dormitory would bear Mrs. Fletcher's name was made at East Carolina's commencement exercises last June. Governor Terry Sanford was one of the commencement speakers and joined in paying tribute to the novelist.

Mrs. Fletcher, Illinois-born author who came to Eastern North Carolina some 20 years ago, has immortalized much of the state's early history in her famed "Carolina Series" of novels that grew to 12 in number last February with publication of "Rogue's Harbor!" The first in the series, "Raleigh's Eden," was published in 1940.

Mrs. Fletcher was born in Alton, Ill., Oct. 20, 1888. Educated at Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., she holds the Litt. D. degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Her husband, the late John George Fletcher, was a mining engineer and with him she lived in various parts of the world. Her first books were based on her experiences in Africa, and for a time she was on a lecture tour discussing those experiences.

For a number of years Mrs. Fletcher lived at Bandon Plantation near Edenton until it was destroyed by fire about a year ago. She presently makes her home in Greenville with her grandson, John S. Fletcher, an attorney. Among her latest books is her autobiography, "Play, Pack, and Follow," published in 1959.

SGA Passes On Motion By Deal, Elects Three To Court Of Appeals

By BRENDA REISIG

Bill Deal, Sophomore Class President, proposed the following motions at the Student Government Association meeting held Monday evening, October 25.

1. "I move the Student Govt. Assn. send the following letter of recommendation and request to the administration. We the S.G.A. feel that there is an immediate need for a thorough inspection and evaluation of the library staff and conditions at E.C.C. We further request that this be done by a group of qualified medical inspectors, along with members of the administration. We would like some conformation on this matter."

This motion was passed by the S.G.A. members.

2. "I move that the Student Govt. Assn. recommend to the administration to construct a cement walkway or sidewalk eight feet in length, connecting the present sidewalk to the street directly across from the gym, to enable men dorm students and others using the parking lot, to cross without having a muddy inconvenience. We would like conformation on this matter."

This motion was also passed by the S.G.A.

3. "I move that the Student Govt. Assn. send the following letter of recommendation to the administration and also to the I.D.C., to investigate the possibility in the men's dorms of installing some type of laundry facilities consisting of washers, dryers, and ironing apparatus. We would like some conformation on this matter."

The motion was tabled for further investigation.

4. "I move that the Student Govt. Assn. send the following letter of recommendation and request to the administration, we feel that there is a definite need for some alternation in the curfew hours of the women students at E.C.C. We feel that later hours are in order and we suggest, as we did last year, the following times.

Mon.-Thurs., 10:30 P.M., Fri.-Sat., 12:30 A.M., Sun., 11:30 P.M.

We further suggest that each girl be allowed six 1:00 A.M. permissions not including special events, to be used at the discrepancy of the girl, per year.

We further suggest that Freshmen women not be allowed these hours until after one quarter residence at E.C.C., and then only after attaining a "C" average. During their first quarter they will have hours as they now stand. We would like conformation on this matter."

This motion was defeated by the S.G.A.

The following students were elected to the E.C.C. Court of Appeals: Bryan Bennett, Bill Deal, and Celia Orr.

Railway Historical Society Charters Redskin Special

Last Sunday, a group of seventeen travelled with members of the East Carolina chapter of the National Railway Historical Society on an Atlantic Coast Line special train from Rocky Mount to Washington, D.C.

The train was one of three specials carrying more than 2000 passengers to the Redskins-Bears game. Most of the NRHS party, however, got off the train at Alexandria to visit the George Washington Memorial and the private railroad car owned by Mr. Walter L. Loftin, Jr., an employee of Alexandria Union Station. Upon reaching Washington, the group separated into several parties for sightseeing.

Officers of the local chapter, Dr. R. R. Morrison and William H. Morris, Jr., a junior from Elizabeth City, expressed gratitude for the Coast Line's assignment of reserved seats in a modern car with carpeted floors, venetian blinds, and a spacious lounge. The rail buffs in the group considered it a bonus that this car was located directly behind the three-unit diesel pulling the train, and reported satisfaction with the four-hour run from Rocky Mount to Alexandria, a distance of 233 miles. The sunshine and the bright fall foliage added to every one's enjoyment.

College persons among the group were, in addition to those named above, Dr. Rachel Kilpatrick, Prof. and Mrs. H. F. Dade, and the following students: Peggy Carraway, Roger Hollingsworth, Jr., Alan Gregory, Charles Creech, Mrs. Robert Morrison, Emmett Jones, and Dale Roberts. The last two are members of the local NRHS chapter.

Presidential Letter

On the third day of November next, nearly ten million of our citizens will be eligible to cast their first votes in a Presidential election.

For these young persons, the forthcoming Presidential election will be a significant milestone. For the rest of us, this occasion will be no less important as we welcome a new group of young, vigorous, and forward-looking Americans to a full share in the privileges and responsibilities of free men.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, LYNDON B. JOHNSON, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate the period October 25 through October 31, 1964, as National First Voters Week.

I urge local election officials, private citizens, and citizen organizations to make a special effort during that week to assist in every possible way the millions of persons who are about to cast their first vote in a Presidential election.

I also urged our first voters to consider seriously during that week the solemn nature of the obligation they are about to assume.

In particular, I urge that our first voters

—Go to the polls proudly, knowing that the duty they perform is the price of the privilege they hold.

—Exercise their franchise gratefully, realizing that it is essential to their future as free men and women.

—Make their choice carefully, understanding its importance to themselves and their fellow Americans.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this nineteenth day of October in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighty-ninth.

Geometrical Evolution

Back in Mark Twain's day, one of the finest words in our language was "Square." You gave a man a square deal if you were honest. And you give him a square meal when he was hungry. You stood foursquare for the right, as you saw it, and square against everything else. When you got out of debt, you were square with the world. And that was when you could look your fellow man square in the eye.

Then a lot of strange characters got hold of this honest, wholesome word, bent it all out of shape and gave it back to our children. Convicts gave it the first twist. To them a square was an inmate who would not conform to the convict code. From the prisons it was flashed across the country on the marijuana circuit of the bopsters and hipsters. Now everyone knows what a square is. He is the man who never learned to get away with wrongdoing. A Joe who volunteers when he doesn't have to. A guy who gets his kicks from trying to do something better than anyone else can. A boob who gets so lost in his work that he has to be reminded to go home. A fellow who laughs with his belly instead of his upperlip. A slob who still gets chocked up when the band plays "America the Beautiful."

His tribe isn't thriving too well in the current climate. He doesn't fit too neatly into the current group of angle players, corner cutters, sharpshooters and goof-offs. He doesn't believe opening all the packages before Christmas. He doesn't want to fly now and pay later. He's burdened down with old-fashioned ideas of honesty, loyalty, courage and thrift. And he may already be on his way to extinction.

Letters To The Editor

American Ideals

To the editor:

As a student at East Carolina I should like to ask, are we training two societies, one Republican and the other Democrat, or one society of Americans? It seems to me that the American no longer exists except secondarily to his political party. That is, an individual in our American Society considers himself a Republican or a Democrat first and an American second.

Has the American ideal become so obscure and obliterated that it practically doesn't exist, or are we ashamed of it? I feel it is time that all of us reconsider what it is to be American. Our values seemed to have become somewhat distorted and therefore I feel that we all should stop and reconsider our allegiance. Is it to a political party or to the United States?

I also would like to bring out that the article entitled "Donkey Serenade" (EAST CAROLINIAN, October 20) was purely Republican Propaganda. Does the EAST CAROLINIAN exist to serve all the students, or does it exist to serve the Republicans and/or Democratic Party?

I agree fully with the student who wrote the letter expressing his sentiments that he was opposed to the EAST CAROLINIAN being used as a propaganda organ as well as a name-calling and mud-slinging outlet. Also the last paragraph of Mr. Oldham's letter sounds like something the Soviet people would read in "Pravda."

I say let's eliminate the use of the "Letters to the Editor" column to spread Republican and Democratic propaganda. If people want to state opinions all right, but there is a difference in presenting opinion and in writing unclouded propaganda.

Sincerely yours,
L. Edward Justice

Dan K. Day

To The Editor:

Saturday, October 31, will be "Dan K. Day" in Eastern North Carolina, honoring the next governor of our State, Judge Dan K. Moore. The event will get under way at 5:30 PM in the Granger Football Stadium at Kinston. Food and entertainment will be provided and Judge Moore will deliver the final major address of the campaign.

Everyone is invited to attend and we are asking that you make a real effort to bring a large delegation from your college. Let's make it a fitting climax to the campaign. Weather will not be a deterrent since the stadium is covered.

Audience Applaudes 'My Fair Lady'; Cast, Accents, Music Outstanding

By FRANK ADAMS

The rain in Spain remains mainly on the plains, hurricanes continue to be infrequent in Heatherford, Hertford, and Hampshire, and everything is lovely at Covent Garden and fine at 27-A Wimpole Street. Bernard Shaw's story of the phonetics teacher who makes a lady of a flower girl only ironically to have his product make a man of him remains all of its old double Cinderella magic. And the music of Lerner and Loewe still adds to the enchantment.

No Eliza could be more beautiful, sing more bewitchingly, or act more convincingly than Carolyn Everett. Nor can we imagine a more thoroughly satisfying Professor Higgins than Peter Bromilow, perfectly suited in face and figure, in addition to being gifted in his ability to project the tortured masculinity which the part demands. Graham Pollock, though he slights the serious, admirable side of Colonel Pickering, looks the part to perfection and never misses a trick on the humorous side of the characterization.

Douglas Ray never slips for a moment from being the ideal, beamish Freddie, even when he sings the temptingly lovely "On the Street Where You Live."

Bea Chauncey looks and acts Mrs. Higgins unexceptionably, though the professor might have preferred that his mother speak "more trippingly on the tongue."

One other flawless job is Karen Meussner's Mrs. Pearce, convincing as to age as well as to motherly tolerance and concern.

Bernard Beloff seems somewhat too busy with the dual problems of the accent and the characterization of Mr. Doolittle, but he is always clearly audible, seeing to it that no word of his rich part, not even a word of a song, is missed.

John Sneden's sets, as usual, are both a treat to the eye and an assist to the mood and plot. Sneden even successfully ignores the ancient taboo against mirrors on stage.

Georg Schreiber's lighting is apt and lovely with the regrettable exception of the Ascot scene, which with its sharp blacks and whites should be dazzling but is staged on the apron beyond the reach of the overhead lights and hence is partly in shadow, losing both the brilliance of the costumes and the effect of being outdoors.

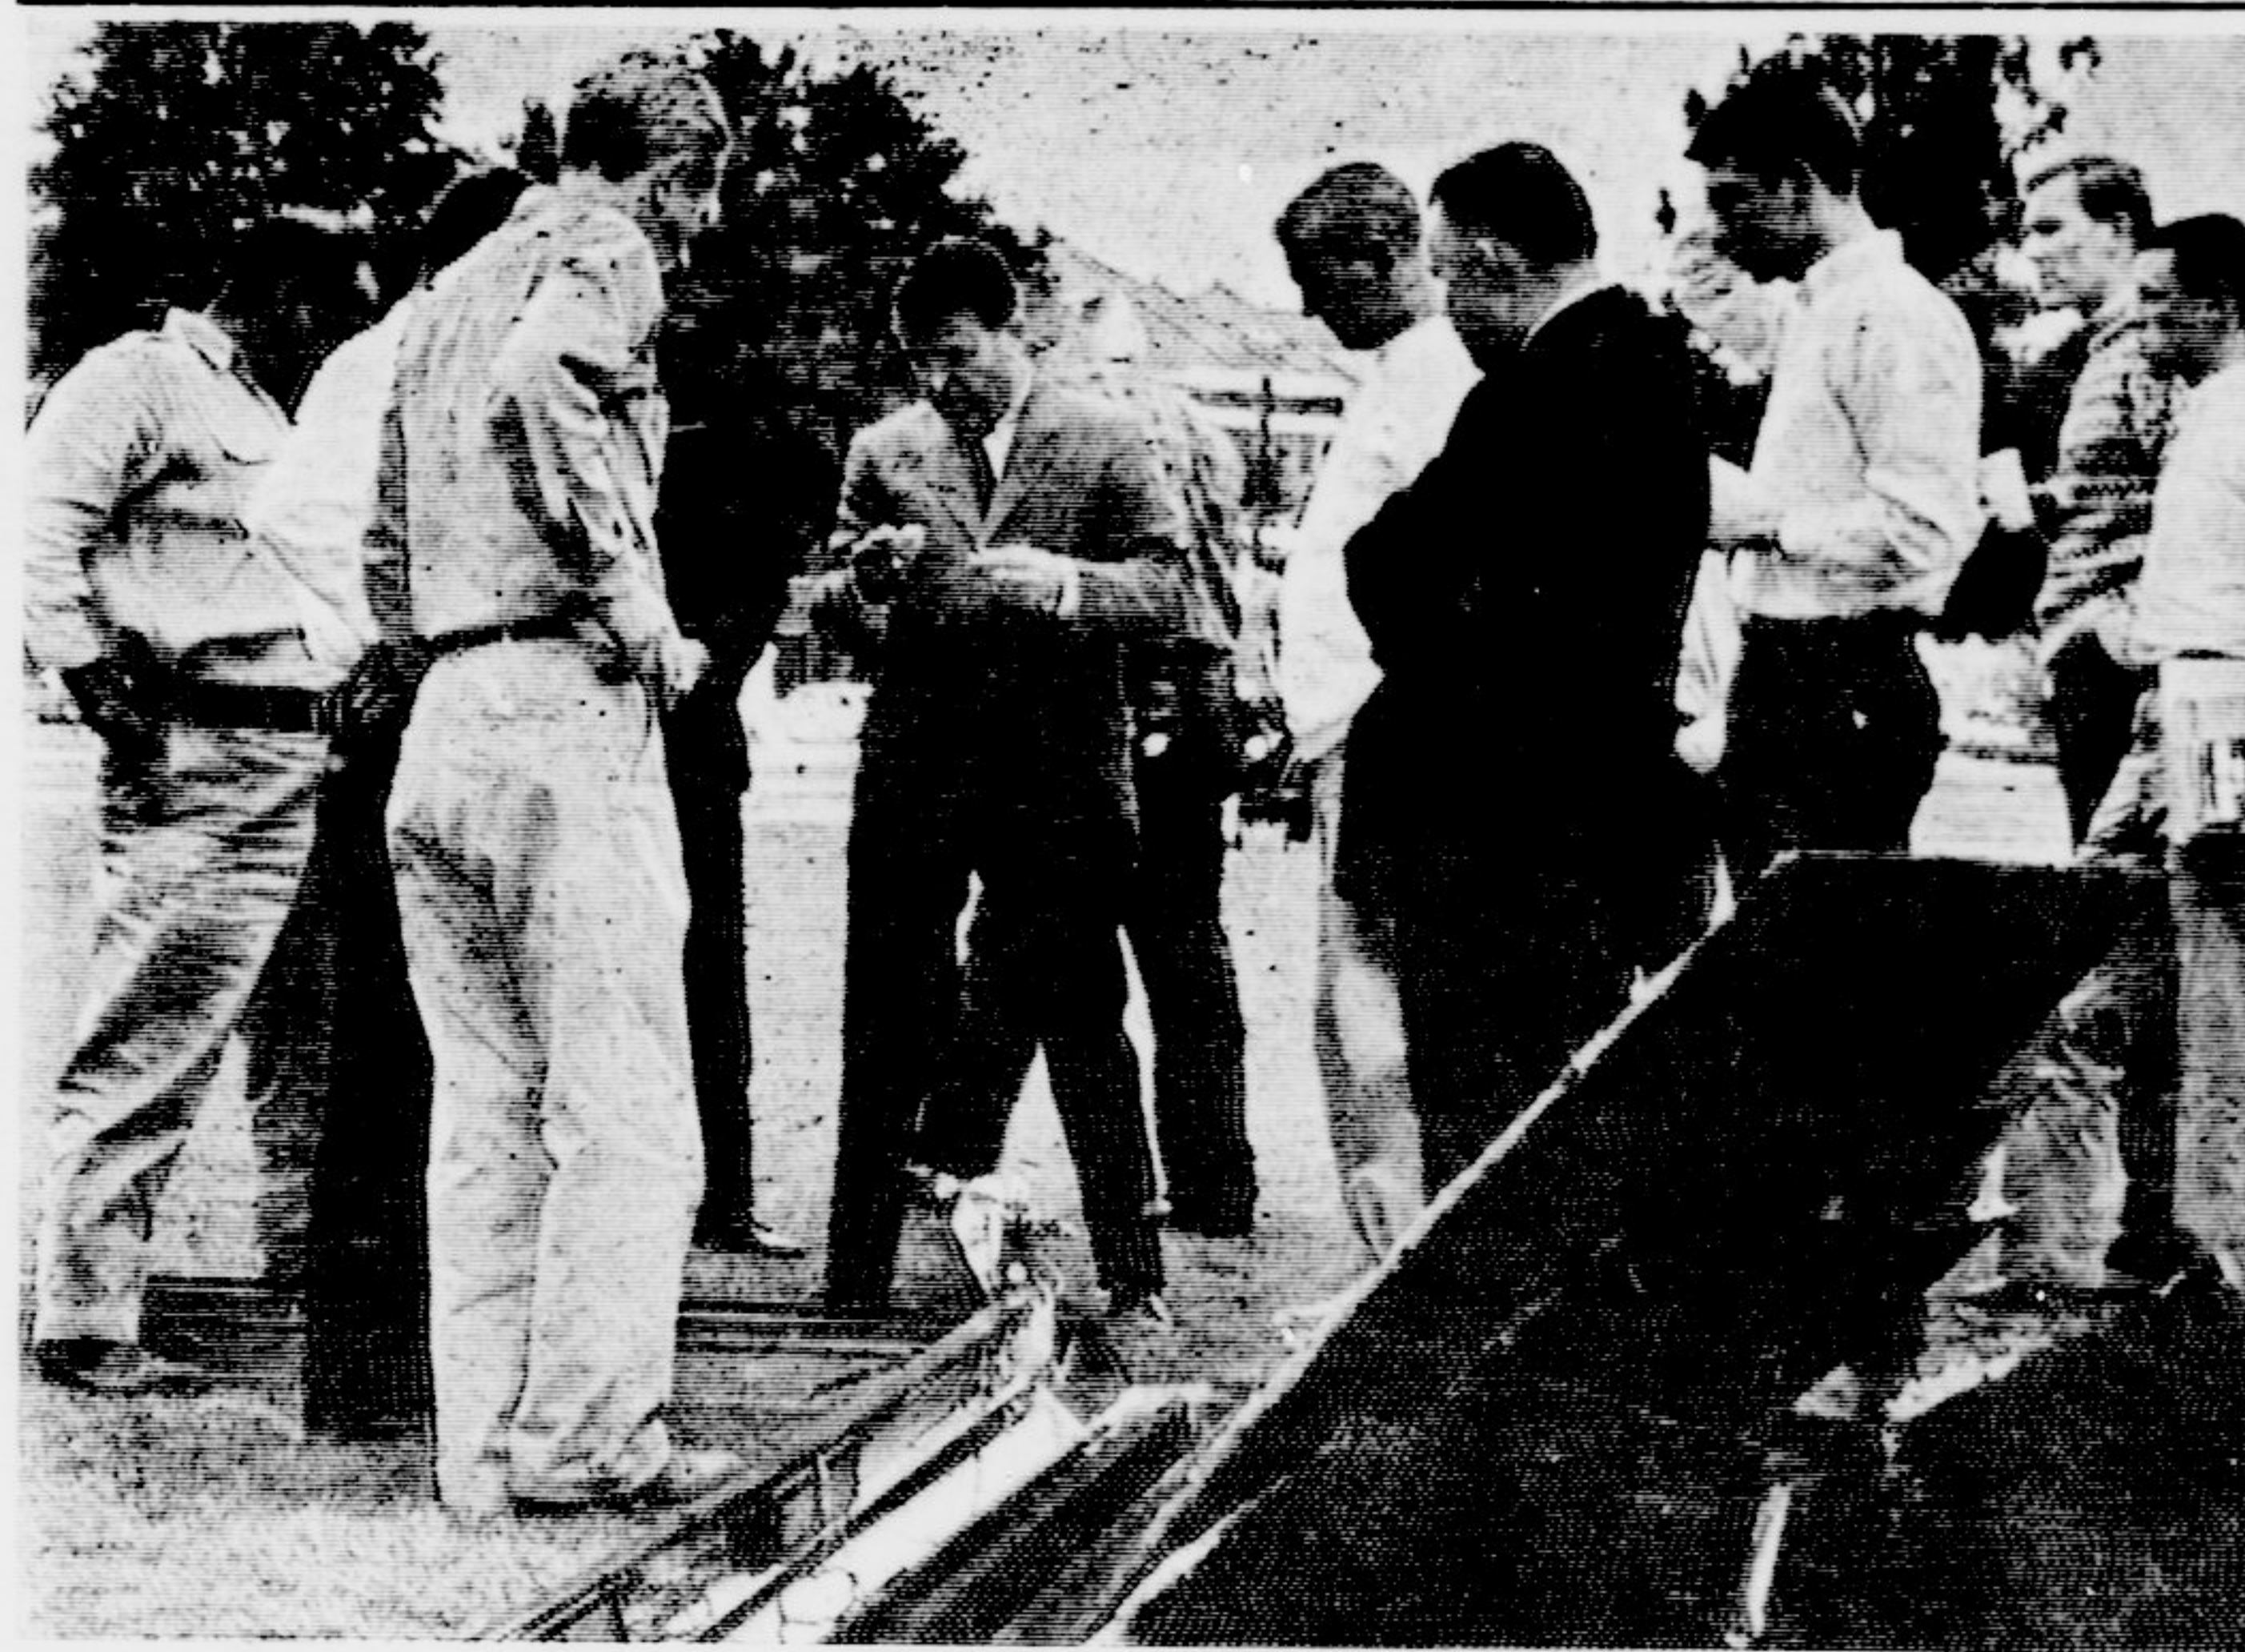

Gene Strassler directs the 26-piece orchestra, complete with harp and tuba, with great sensitivity and effect, providing just the right support not only for the songs of the principals but also for the excellent chorus work.

Accents, under the direction of Helen Steer, are, so far as we can judge, just right. Surely they are fascinating.

And Mavis Ray's choreography is imaginative and high spirited. Particularly rousing is the "Get Me to the Church on Time" ballet, as energetic a dance as we've seen on any stage.

The audience the night we saw "My Fair Lady" was young and, perhaps as a result of nurturing only on television and movies, was feeble in its applause. We hope that subsequent performances of this many-splendored production will get the hand that everyone connected with it richly deserves.

Spectators look over the debris from the fire that occurred in Flanagan this week. The cause was determined to have been overheating of a light fixture which can be seen on the ground (above).

Music World Of Jerry Williams

This week we of East Carolina college are honored with performances of "My Fair Lady" on campus. Carolyn Everett and Peter Bromilow along with Graham Pollock have returned to star in this most entertaining musical. There are still two performances to run. Those of you who haven't seen "Fair Lady", please do. Few Colleges in the US have such a privilege as we do in that their casts are far inferior to ours. We should all beam with pride. We were fortunate to be able to see it this summer and are even more fortunate to be able to see it again with three of the summer season stars. "My Fair Lady" is a musical theatre lovers never tire of seeing.

The Broadway version was around for a long time, a record 2,717 performances stretching across more than six years and winding up its run on September 29, 1962. It's interesting to note that the original Broadway version grossed well over $20,000,000.

It started in 1956 on March 15, with two men, Alan Jay Lerner and Frederic Loewe. They became known for "Brigadoon" and "Paint Your Wagon". However, "My Fair Lady" topped them all. Many in the theatre world doubt if any other show will surpass its records for a long time to come.

Columbia Records original cast version has sold over 5,000,000 copies since it was first released. Three years later in 1959 Columbia recorded the show all over again in London, in stereo. Later that year it was cut again—this time in Spanish. Included in the firm's fall release schedule are versions in Italian and Hebrew. Also, three dozen labels have issued versions of the "My Fair Lady" music since the show first opened in 1956. The styles run from mood approaches, to classical, to jazz, to Latin, polka, rock and roll, and dancing.

As many of you know Audrey Hepburn is the latest "Fair Lady" but we in Eastern Carolina much prefer lovely Carolyn Everett!

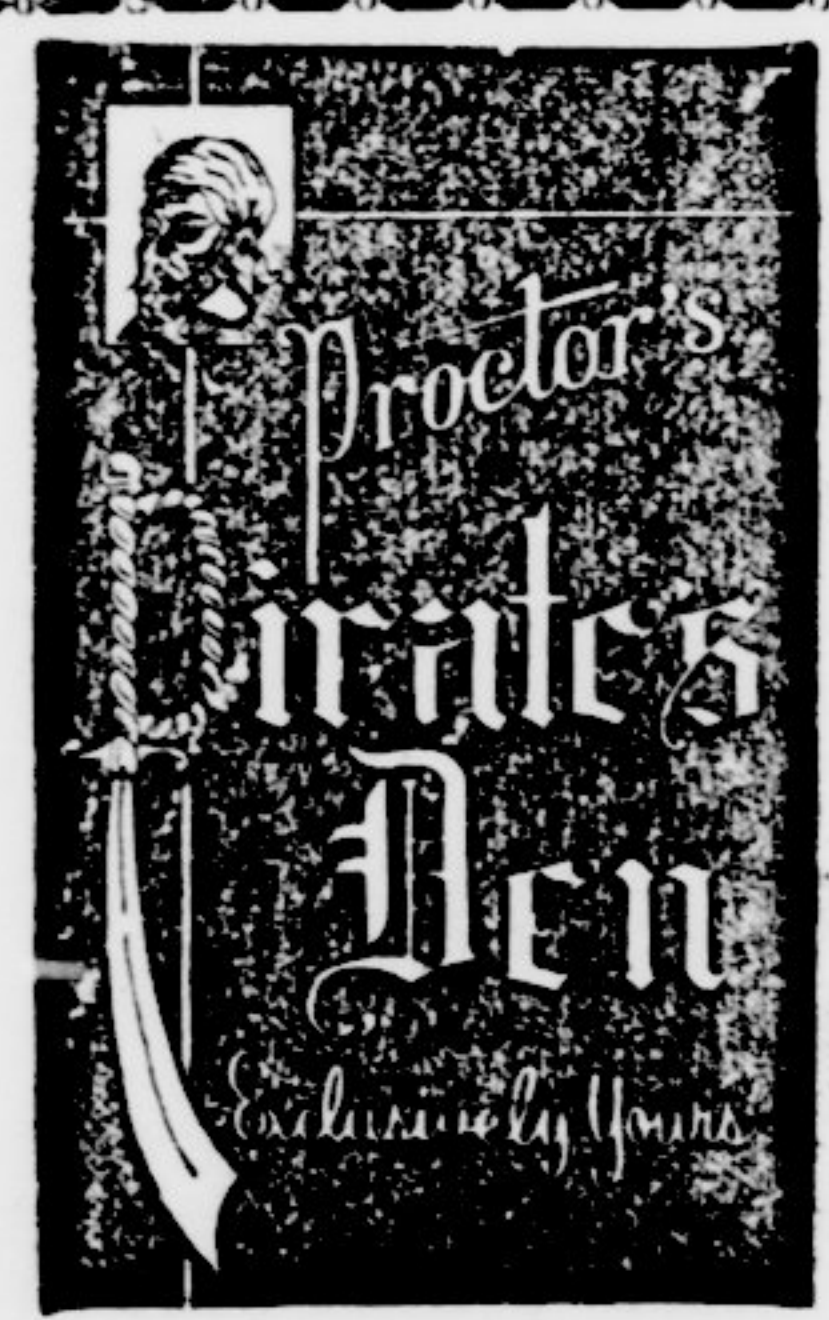

Bobby Darin is a happy fellow! The 27 year old lad says he feels "great". He has told the music world that he is a happy family man that goes to his office five days a week. Bob Darin has moved from the West Coast office in the Capitol Tower in Hollywood and set up his own publishing empire, known as T. M. Music and he also has moved into a TV production and development operation known as the David Company. When Bob left Capitol he said he decided to put all the Darin talents in one hat under one roof.

He is mighty proud that T. M.'s copyright value has increased 300 percent in a year. Also the company has offices in New York and Nashville. Working for the company are Artie Resnick and Kenny Young who wrote the Drifter's big hit "Under the Boardwalk" and the follow-up, "Sand in My Shoes."

Bob Darin is a man to watch. He and his wife Sandy (actress Sandra Dee) now live in a Spanish type home on Toluca Lake and its only eight minutes from his office. There's fishing in the back yard for bass, blue-gill, and a few cat. His son Dodd Mitchell Darin, now two years and 11 months is learning how to fish with his Dad. Bob Darin says, "I feel mighty good at the ripe old age of 27."

Sigma Tau Sigma Reorganizes To Provide Free Tutoring At EC

Sigma Tau Sigma, East Carolina's student tutoring society, is designed to give special individual help free to charge to students having difficulty with any subject. The only requirement for a student to receive aid is for him to be willing to work.

At present there are 20 members in the society, many of which belong to honorary fraternities on campus. Holding a B average in the subject he wishes to tutor is the only qualification required of a student in order to become a member.

The society is currently reorganizing and additional members are needed in order to better serve students desiring help. Anyone interested in joining the society is requested and urged to attend a meeting Monday night, November 2, in Dr. George Wiegand's office at 7:00 p.m. on second floor Wright Building.

Sigma Tau Sigma was organized last winter at the suggestion of the SGA under the supervision of Dr. Wiegand. Faculty cooperation has been especially helpful and appreciated in making the society successful. It is estimated that between two and four hundred students have received help from about forty student tutors during the life of the society.

EC Campus Chatter Includes UNICEF Activities, Goals

THE PLACE: The Campus — outside the library
THE TIME: 3:00 am Friday morning — October 30
THE CAST: Two campus characters, wandering home to the dorm after a long, long, long session of study?

Harry: Hey Joe, where is all of that music coming from?
 Joe: Campus Radio . . . look-up there on the 2nd floor. See the lights?
 Harry: At three o'clock in the morning?
 Joe: Sure . . . They're sponsoring a 50-hour radio-marathon for the benefit of UNICEF.
 Harry: What's UNICEF?
 Joe: You know—the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. It helps children all over the world — kids who are hungry and sick.
 Harry: Hey, that sounds like a good deal. Now — what's this and when did it start?
 Joe: They started yesterday at 10:00 am and they'll go on till Saturday noon.
 Harry: Listen — how long has this been going on?
 Joe: This is the 3rd year!
 Harry: Who are those two kooks up there in the window spinning the records?
 Joe: The one with the droopy eyes is Jay Bird Barber. The one with the "3:00 am shadow" is Mad Daddy Rick Nitoli.
 Harry: They sure do look pooped.
 Joe: You would too if you were going without sleep for 50 hours.
 Harry: Hey, did I hear something about a dance?
 Joe: Yea, there is going to be one over at the College Union tonight from 8:30 to 11:30 pm.
 Harry: How much will it cost?
 Joe: Nothing.

Harry: Will there be any refreshments?
 Joe: Yea, the CU will be providing them free.
 Harry: I love refreshments, especially free ones!
 Joe: That figures.
 Harry: Are they going to have anything else?
 Joe: A donation makes you eligible for door prizes too.
 Harry: How much loot do you think they will rake in for UNICEF?
 Joe: Their goal is $350.00. Of course they'll take any more they can get!
 Harry: You could help a lot of children with $350.
 Joe: You sure could.
 Harry: Where can I put my donation?
 Joe: Someone will be outside the library to collect donations all day. Hey, Harry, you might even get interviewed over the radio.
 Harry: Me on the radio! Ye gads,

I had better start practicing my voice and diction.
 Joe: Go ahead — but I don't think Arthur Godfrey is going to have to worry any!
 Harry: You know Joe, I feel kind of funny making a donation.
 Joe: Why?
 Harry: All I have is a quarter and that doesn't seem like very much.
 Joe: Don't be a jerk — if everyone on this campus gave a quarter — or even a dime — the drive would go way over the goal.
 Harry: Listen — this is a great idea! What else do you think I can do for UNICEF?
 Joe: The best thing is to get everybody to contribute to UNICEF.
 Harry: We better get on back to the dorm now. Our dorm Dad will be waiting up for us. Say, I wonder if he would like to contribute to UNICEF?
 Joe: Let's nick him for a buck! Come on!

The officers decided to boost enthusiasm and social interest by sponsoring two dances. Also, the freshman class will enter a float in the Homecoming festivities. These suggestions were only a few of the many ideas discussed in the meeting, and many other projects were planned.

Athletic Publicity

The newly-formed Athletic Publicity Committee does exactly what the name implies—it publicizes all athletic contests, working closely with the cheerleaders, and assuming a majority of the publicity which in the past was done completely by the cheerleaders. This committee will organize groups to go to out of town games, and hopes to take a train to some of the more distant schools.

College Day For Prospective Artists Becomes Regular Fall EC Feature

Response to East Carolina College's first "College Day" for prospective artists has earned it a listing on the regular fall calendar of the ECC School of Art.

The first such program, held here last weekend, attracted 37 high school juniors and seniors from several North Carolina areas. Saturday's turnout came despite an apparently sharp cutback in attendance by Eastern North Carolina students because of widespread flooding in the region.

Dr. Wellington B. Gray, dean of the school, said the response was "very encouraging." He added that plans for next year's program will probably be expanded to include some Virginia students.

Dr. Gray said the 37 students on hand for Saturday's inaugural "College Day" represented Charlotte, Durham, Greensboro, Greenville, Raleigh, Rocky Mount and Snow Hill. Accompanying some of the students were parents or teachers.

The program was designed, the dean said, to present to the students a clear picture of the present and potential opportunities in various art fields as professions. Various tours and demonstrations were used to augment a point-by-point description of the educational program available in the ECC School of Art.

The program, organized under the chairmanship of Donald Sexauer of the art faculty, included a formal welcome from Dr. Gray, lunch in the campus cafeteria and an address by faculty ceramist Paul R. Minnis.

The pledges participating in this event were Phil Sheppard, Joannie Dilley, Jim Lester, Woody Johnson, Rody Harrington, Ed Hudgins, Gwen Stewart, Ann Renegar, Pat Beamon, Sammie Milazzo, Kathy Hoffman, Ann Pryer, Linda Stallings. The brothers and sisters who were present were Tommy Roberson, Kay Panton, Sara Frances Newman, and Missie Lane.

Your SGA Appropriations

There is a standard procedure for obtaining appropriations from the Student Government. First each organization must compile a budget and present this before the Budget Committee composed of three faculty members, seven students and the Treasurer of the SGA. Budgets are approved and revised then sent on to the Legislature of the SGA. Here it is either approved or rejected—very seldom is any budget rejected. The money is dispersed through the SGA Treasurer and an audit taken at the end of each fiscal year.

Tidbits From Fashion

By LYNDA HUNNING

One of the best antidotes that was ever invented for gloom is beautifully colored underwear. It always makes you feel good to know that you are wearing a fresh, bright color inside. Have yours in bonfire, or candleglow. Or perhaps you'll prefer heaven blue, or ice green.

On top of the fashion list this year is printed underwear. "Vanity Fair" has designed the fine feathers print in browns-to-golds. This is the witty solution of what to wear under black, brown, camel or gray.

Besides our feathers, we have flora: an elegant blossoming of pinks and golds on blacks called "moonflowers". Brody's still has the print which continues to make sales history, "leopardess".

Be sure to open a convenient charge account too. We'll be seeing you soon.

Today's Thought

"The thinking youth of today believe that talk about 'my salvation' and 'Are you saved?' is irrelevant in a world that could be knocked out any day by nuclear weapons."

"The stories of Noah's Ark, and David's Sling, of Ezekiel's wheel and Daniel's den are interesting. But they seem juvenile in our present context. They have nothing to say about the mushroom cloud or the population explosion, the space rage or the loss of values. Yet these problems are in the minds of every young person who is aware of our times."

Dept. Schedules Conference For Teachers Of Geography

Plans are complete for the third annual Geography Teachers Conference scheduled Saturday at East Carolina as another installment in the college geography department's effort to keep area geography teachers abreast of latest materials and techniques.

The program begins at 9:30 a.m. in Joyner Library on the EC campus. It is designed for public school teachers of geography at all grade levels, according to Dr. Robert E. Cramer, director of the ECC geography department.

The meeting will be opened by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president of East Carolina, who will welcome the geography teachers. Representing the State Department of Public Instruction will be Dr. Joseph M. Johnston, supervisor of curriculum development. He will speak on geography in the public schools of North Carolina.

Dr. Dale E. Case, former geographic consultant for Denoyer-Gepfert Co. of Chicago, and now a member of the EC geography faculty, will demonstrate geographic concepts using third-sixth and 11th-grade classes. Opportunity will then be provided for questions.

Dr. Makoto Hara, professor of geography at Tokyo Education University, will talk on Japan and he will show slides which he brought to this country especially for the conference. Dr. Hara is a visiting professor in the East Carolina geography department.

A report on the geography of the Soviet Union will be given by Dr. Andrew Perejda of the East Carolina faculty, an authority on Soviet and Asian geography. Dr. Cramer will discuss inexpensive government maps available to the public and suggest ways they can be used in the classroom.

A display of current geographic materials will permit the teacher to examine and note items of interest. Those registering for the conference will be provided with literature for classroom teaching.

Teachers wishing to attend the conference who have not already registered may do so between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Saturday in the library on the second floor. The conference will end at 3 p.m. after a dutch luncheon in the college cafeteria and a closing afternoon session.
