Stratas Seekers Disappointed

Teresa Stratas will not appear tonight due to illness. Her performance has been postponed and will be rescheduled at a later date, Dean Rudolph Alexander, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs has announced. Details are being worked out through the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Illness Prevents Singer Stratas From Giving Performance Tonight

Sudden illness has forced postponement of a concert by Metropolitan Opera soprano Teresa Stratas originally scheduled tonight in McGinnis Auditorium.

College officials learned Monday from Miss Stratas' managers that she had suddenly become ill and had been forced to postpone until further notice all appearances on her current North American tour.

Miss Stratas, one of the most celebrated sopranos at the Met, was to make her only North Carolina appearance in this year's tour at EC tonight.

CU Committee On Fine Arts Sponsors Contest

The College Union Fine Arts Committee Chairman, Noe Tisdale, announces the annual College Union Christmas Card Contest. This contest is three fold in purpose: to encourage artistic creations on the part of the students, to provide an incentive for artistic students to participate in the College Union Program, to supply the College Union with an official Christmas Card to send to sister Unions in the Region IV of the Association of College Unions.

All East Carolina students are eligible and invited to enter the College Union Christmas Card Contest. The winner of the contest will receive a prize of $10. Since the deadline for entries is Friday, December 4 1964 the Chairman of the College Union Fine Arts Committee urges all participants to come by the college union office immediately to obtain a guide sheet telling particulars before beginning work on the design.

Students May Cast Ballots For Entertainment Choice

The Entertainment Committee and Lecture Committee are interested in scheduling programs wanted by the students. Both committees have students comprising the majority of their members, and in the past, programs have been scheduled that were felt to be of interest to the students by leaning on the advice of the student members. Now that the time is near to plan the entertainment series and lecture series for 1965-1966, the views of all the students are sought for guidance for the committees. As a means of having the desires of the students available to the committee, the ballot is provided. Of course, the opinions of the faculty and staff are welcomed also.

Ballots from students, faculty and staff must be in the ballot box in the Student Government Office by November 13. Preference shown by the ballots will be used to guide the committees in booking programs for next year. Every effort will be made to follow the wishes expressed in the ballots; although, it may be pointed out that prices, scheduling conflicts, unavailability or other difficulties may prevent the booking of some or all programs suggested. A balance between classical and popular entertainment, as previously, will be sought by presenting an equal number of shows in each field.

The East Carolina Veterans Club will meet in 130 Rawl Thursday night at 6:30. All interested members are encouraged to attend this meeting.

Former Students Receive Letters Asking For Development Dollars

Letters to 321 former East Carolina students in a 13-county area of Piedmont North Carolina will be mailed today as the ECC Alumni Association launches its 1964 "Dollars for Development" campaign in District Two.

The letters are seeking 1964 installments on annual gifts for over all development at East Carolina from alumni in these 13 counties: Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Caldwell, Catawba, Davie, Forsyth, Iredell, Stokes, Surry, Watauga, Wilkes and Yadkin.

Chairman of the drive in District Two is Mrs. Leslie H. Chadwick of 619 Motor Road, Winston-Salem. Mrs. Chadwick is the former Sylvia Greene of Roduco, she received her AB degree in math and history at East Carolina in 1945 and her MA in 1949.

Gifts through the association's two-year-old program of annual giving go into a division of the East Carolina Educational Foundation, a corporation to which contributions are deductible for tax purposes.

According to Janice G. Hardison, director of alumni affairs and foundations at East Carolina, the development dollars are earmarked for these purposes:

To help endow research, to employ visiting lecturers, to award scholarships, to aid in the EC program of student employment, to acquire grants on a matching basis, to improve Alumni Association publications and to develop other services to alumni of the college.

Long-range plans for the annual giving program include annual mail and personal contacts with alumni in each of the 13 districts. North Carolina's 100 counties are divided into 12 districts; District 13 includes all out-of-state alumni.

In District Two, the 321 EC alumni are distributed by counties as follows: Alexander, 6; Alleghany, 1; Ashe, 1; Caldwell, 16; Catawba, 32; Davie, 10; Forsyth, 151; Iredell, 36; Stokes, 6; Surry, 21; Watauga, 11; Wilkes, 8; Yadkin, 22.

Durlands Of EC Exhibits Work At Art Center Sunday

The chairman of the commercial design department in the School of Art at East Carolina and wife were guests of honor at a reception in the Greenville Art Center Sunday which opened the couple's first joint show.

The man-and-wife exhibitors are Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Durland. Their show — including more than 100 paintings, prints, drawings and works in welded sculpture — formally opened during the Sunday open house, scheduled between 3 and 5 p.m., and will remain on view through Nov. 28.

The husband, a native of suburban Chicago, has studied at Miami University and Bradley University, where he received his BFA and MA degrees.

Before coming to Greenville, Durland was on the art staff at Richmond Professional Institute, Richmond, Va.

In addition to representation in numerous regional and state exhibits, Durland has had one-man shows at Chicago, Huntsville, Ala., Peoria, Ill., and Union College, Ky.

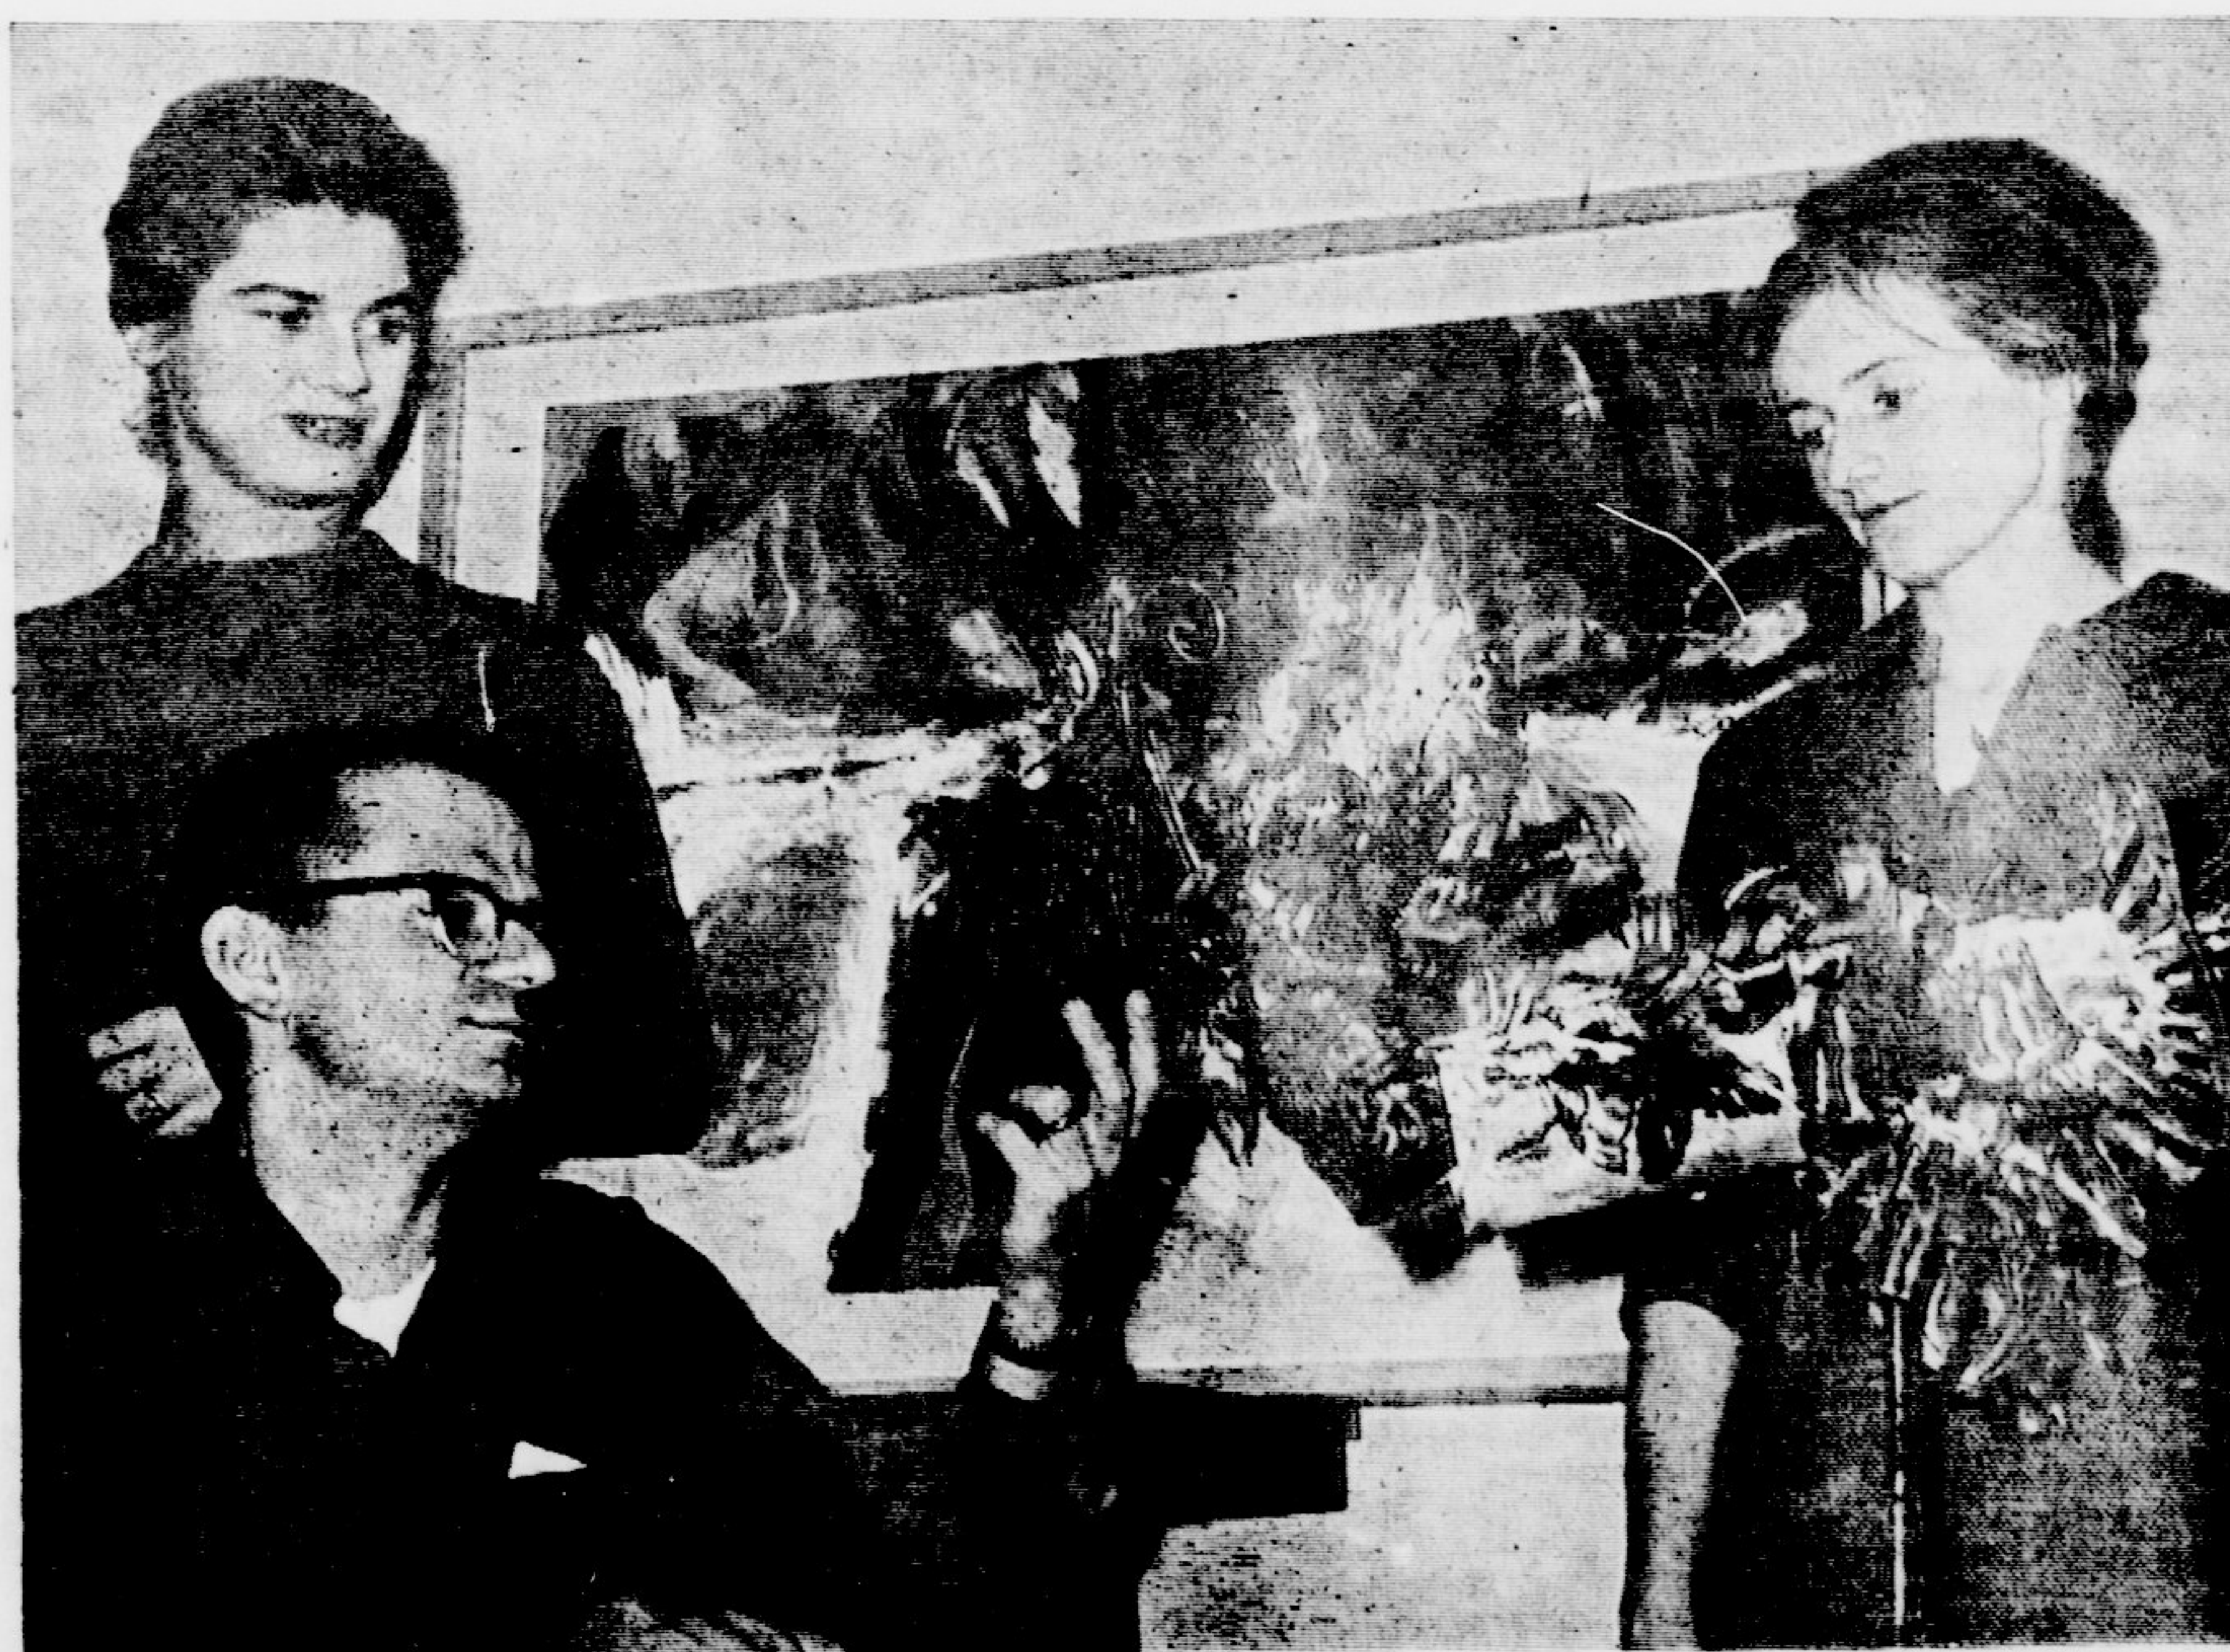

His wife, Suzanne, a native of Oneida, N. Y., attended Green Mountain College in Vermont, the University of Michigan and Richmond Professional Institute, where she received her BFA degree.

Her work has been exhibited in the Virginia Museum, the Valentine Museum and Thalmers Invitational, all in Richmond, Va. She has also shown her work in the Virginia Printmakers exhibition at the University of Virginia.

Durland's paintings are primarily structured with organic forms. The compositions create unusual juxtapositions of shapes and colors. Though his paintings are mainly abstract in appearance, subject matter remains important to the artist and on occasion rises to the surface of his work.

Mrs. Durland's work is unique and personal in style. The figures and images created in both her welded sculpture and her drawings display a world of whimsical reality, a world full of humor.

The Durlands have one daughter, Karann Beth. The family resides in their studio-home at 105 N. Elm St., Greenville.

Cheerless Leaders

It has come to our attention that the varsity cheerleaders have lost the use of the public address system at football games due to an unfortunate incident involving the irritation of influential spectators and the inappropriate positioning of loud speakers. The system was removed after no consultation with the cheerleaders and when removed no notification was given to them.

How can any cheerleading group serve the student section when they can be heard only in the third row? Student participation at athletic functions is one of the greatest morale factors of college life. It draws the students together for a common goal and builds up school spirit.

We are not saying that the spirit of East Carolina is dependent on a single PA System, but we do think it is a necessary link in the chain.

We feel that the removal was most detrimental to the good of the student body and that the effectiveness of the squad has been greatly minimized. By placing the speakers over the heads of the spectators and directing them at the student section, the noise could be less offensive to the more sensitive members of the non-student element.

We hear from another source that the system was removed because of complaints from spectators. We are inclined to believe that the complaint did not come from the students. If it did, we are sure it was a minority. If it did not, we would like to know what say they have in our activities. Athletics are carried on for the benefit of the student body. We realize that many of the people in the surrounding area like to exercise authority in our affairs because they kick in their money when the drives come around. We would like to point out that the sums donated to the college are a small part of the sums put into the town by college students. Without this college, there would be no town. They need us more than we need them. The fact they help us in our fund-raising drives gives them no say in our activities.

Partly Politics

The end of another election campaign is upon us and we are glad of it. Now we can resume speaking to our old friends who were led astray into backing the wrong candidate.

Actually, we wonder if it was good that our student body took sides so vehemently in the past races of president and governor. We have seen rifts develop between classmates and even roommates. It is fine that these people can take such an interest and give such staunch backing to a Party, and, now that it is over, forget their differences for another four years.

There is talk on campus that a party system in the Student Government would be a good idea. It would build up issues and platforms that would cause the students to take sides and get them behind their government.

We agree that they would pick sides, maybe not because of the issues as much as the party leaders, but they would choose sides. They would work for their side and against the others. They would belong to a party and back anything the party told them to. They would think in terms of party side and not of issues. The campus would split into groups: Those who backed parties into two groups, those who do not into another. The student body would be dismembered. We would have a body with one arm fighting the other, and another part of the body against the first two.

This is one campaign that would not be over in a period of time, but last all year every year.

We may not fall if divided, but we will not progress either.

Students Vote LBJ

President Johnson by a 12 per cent margin over Sen. Barry Goldwater is the presidential choice of East Carolina students, as reflected in a campus poll whose results were announced Wednesday.

The same straw vote gave Republican Robert Gavin a 4.5 per cent advantage over Dan Moore in mock gubernatorial balloting.

Johnson drew 522 votes to Goldwater's 409; Gavin outpointed his Democratic opponent 347 to 339.

Results of the campus poll, which attracted nearly 1,000 student voters, were announced by the student pollster, Ernest Willie (Biff) Jones of McLean, Va., who organized the mock election, manned the polls himself and tabulated the returns.

His figures showed that eight of 939 presidential voters were undecided and that Johnson got 522 votes or 55.6 per cent while Goldwater had 409 votes or 43.6 per cent. A further breakdown showed that North Carolina students favored Johnson 394 to 311 for Goldwater.

A further characteristic Jones reported: girls went for LBJ by 126 votes (68.1 per cent) to 59 votes or 31.9 per cent for the Arizona senator; with the boys it was much closer - 396 votes or 53.1 per cent for Johnson to 350 votes or 46.9 per cent for Goldwater.

In the straw contest between Moore and Gavin, 4.9 per cent of the 711 students divided their votes among I. Beverly Lake, Dr. Frank Graham, Richardson Preyer and indecision.

Jones observed that almost 40 per cent of the students voted a "split ticket" by crossing party lines from their presidential to their gubernatorial choices.

He noted that percentages for Virginia residents and others "ran very close" to patterns established by total figures and the breakdown totals for North Carolina residents.

The same general pattern was reflected in a vote breakdown by classes except for the junior or third-year class. For example, in the presidential balloting, the juniors gave LBJ 124 votes (52.5 per cent, and Goldwater 112 (47.5 per cent). In the other three classes, Johnson's total vote ranged between 57 and 59 per cent.

Jones said he spent the long hours required to plan and carry out his campus-wide straw vote as an answer to what he felt were wildly exaggerated boasts by other students concerning the outcome of the general election this week.

A senior in the School of Business at ECC, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Jones of 105 Cedar Ave., McLean, Va.

Letters

PRAISE, PRIDE

To the Editor:

There are times when East Carolina shows its potential of greatness. There are also times when one is proud to be a part of ECC. Just now I saw MY FAIR LADY. It was excellent, and I am proud. This summer I saw the "professional" Charlotte Summer Theatre version of the same play. The Playhouse acting was comparable. The scenery was so very superior in the East Carolina version that there was no comparison. The orchestra was undoubtedly better.

When someone vomits in the bathroom on Saturday night, when 25% of our students vote, when one talks to some of our pseudo cools, when the campus is a ghost town on weekends, one wonders about EC and, perhaps, envies other schools. But, when one hears the Symphonic Band, or sees Pirate-brand football, or reads THE REBEL, or sees the Playhouse do a play, then one cannot help but feel pride. And one realizes that all the new buildings alongside Austin and Wright signify something deeper than bricks and mortar.

Sincerely yours,

John Coon

Foolin' Around With Fris EC Anticipates Election Re

By FRISBY HENDRICKS

Today the citizens of our great nation enter the voting booths to choose the leader of our nation for a duration of four years. And tonight the faculty and student body will gather around television sets and radios to hear the results. Both the Democratic and Republican clubs on campus will have election night parties, with the Democrats fully enjoying the night. We have no idea how the Republicans will entertain themselves, but we sincerely hope they will continue standing for what they believe is right even when the opposition has such an overwhelming position, as they do today.

TOBACCO BOWL?

We are constantly complaining about the spirit of the student body, and although the turnout for the Citadel game was poor, we were immensely pleased at the spirit the 100 people from East Carolina showed at Charleston. They deserve a pat on the back along with the team which did a superb job. If we are fortunate to be chosen for the Tobacco Bowl or an equivalent, we hope that more than one bus will be chartered and that more publicity will be given.

FoMoCo Presents Driver Training Data To EC, NCS

Ford Motor Company has presented driver training material to two eastern North Carolina colleges in recognition of their outstanding driver education programs.

The institutions which received driver training filmstrip packages are East Carolina College in Greenville and North Carolina State College in Raleigh.

The packets utilize a training technique that analyzes driving maneuvers by lapsed-time photography. Using this technique, the key steps in a driving sequence are projected on a screen in exactly the same length of time as in an actual driving situation.

The materials included several lapsed-time filmstrips, a recorded narration, and teacher and student manuals to aid in the training of high school teachers responsible for driver education.

The two eastern North Carolina schools were among 144 colleges and universities selected by Ford Motor Company's Educational Affairs Department to receive the materials in a nation-wide program.

EC Presbyterian Center Receives First Full-Time Ordained Minister

The Presbyterian Center at East Carolina has its first full-time ordained campus minister to Presbyterian students here with the appointment of Bronson Matney Jr. by the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina.

The new minister, a native of Waynesville, comes to Greenville from the First Presbyterian Church of Quincy, Fla., which he had served as minister since 1957.

A 1945 graduate of High Point High School and a member of the class of '52 at East Tennessee State College, he completed his formal ministerial training at Columbia Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Ga. His undergraduate education included attendance at High Point College and Western Carolina College.

Ordained in mid-1956 by the Cherokee Presbytery in Rome, Ga., Matney held four church-related positions before assuming his ministry in Quincy.

He has served as soloist and youth worker at the North Avenue Presbyterian Church in Atlanta, student minister for a summer at Mount Zion Presbyterian Church of Sandy Springs, S. C., student assistant at Central Presbyterian Church of Anderson, S. C., and assistant minister at the First Presbyterian Church of Rome, Ga.

Other past experiences for Matney include his services as moderator of the Florida Presbytery in 1963 and several manifestations of his pre-ministerial interest in music. Before his decision to enter the ministry, he traveled extensively as a singer on local and national radio and with dance bands. He had planned a career as a concert soloist.

The new campus minister is married to the former Esther Rogers of Anderson, S. C., a graduate of Anderson College, who also attended ship is not restricted to physics majors.

PHYSICS

There will be an organizational meeting to form a Student Section of the American Institute of Physics, Tuesday, at 7:00 pm in Flanagan 319. Any student interested in physics is invited to come and learn more about the organization. Member-

Blaxton House Offers Training In Management

EC Home Economics Majors Plan For Future Vacations

The home management residence course is a part of the college curriculum for home economics majors at East Carolina. Home management residence is a state and federal requirement for the training of all vocational home economics teachers. This residence course which follows a theory and problems course in home management, provides an opportunity for students to learn and apply managerial skills in a home-like atmosphere.

Home management houses of today are a distinct contrast of the "practice houses" of the past where students learned and practiced house-keeping skills. Today, main emphasis centers on decision-making aimed at developing individual judgment and on human relationships. The residence course provides continuous opportunities for conscious decision-making for the development of abilities important in living and working with people, and for general integration of knowledge and skills. Other important advantages offered by the home management course are experiences in areas which students have not had previously. These consist of marketing for food and supplies, planning and carrying through on hospitality for different types of guests, and sharing the handling of money.

The home management residence building at East Carolina consists of two units, the "house side" and the "apartment side." The apartment is small, modestly furnished, and has a minimum of equipment. It consists of a combination living and dining room, a small kitchen and bathroom, one large bedroom for three girls, and one small bedroom for two girls. In contrast the house-side is spacious, furnished in the colonial Williamsburg tradition, and has an abundance of electrical appliances and equipment. The house has an elaborate living room, with plush carpeting and the old-fashioned open fireplace giving a distinctive atmosphere to the room. There is also a formal dining room, a large kitchen, a utility area, and a main entrance hall with carpeted steps leading to the three upstairs bedrooms and the advisor's suite of rooms.

Ten senior women and Miss Pat

Benson, home economics staff member and advisor live in the residence house. For one quarter, five students live in the house-side and five in the apartment side. At mid-term the two groups change sides, thereby providing experience in management at two different resource levels. The students are responsible for setting up group goals, organizing and executing household activities and managing their money. The budgets are in keeping with the two different levels of living expressed in the house and the apartment. "Plan, control, and evaluate," the steps of the management process, are part of everyday living for home management residents. In addition to the five hours credit they receive for the home management course, these students also carry regular academic course hours.

The first home management residence course at East Carolina was listed in the 1926-27 college catalogue as "Home Management and Practice House." At that time he

Pirates Make Comeback With Win Over Citadel

EC Pulls Ahead 19-10 As Citadel Succumbs

Weston — The powerful East Carolina single wing shattered the Citadel defense for two quarter touchdowns and a victory. The Pirates, rebounding from last week's loss, seemed to have at will during the fourth quarter to capture their first South-conference victory this year.

The Bucs took the lead on a 16 play drive the first time they had possession of the ball. Taking the ball on their 32 yard line, the Pirates used an assortment of runs and passes to march downfield to the 14 where Bill Cline passed to Jerry Tolley, who had cut across the middle into the end zone, for the score. Peter Kriz kicked the PAT and East Carolina led 7-0.

The stubborn Pirate defense held the Bulldogs in Citadel territory until midway the second quarter when the Bulldogs sustained a long drive from their own 19 yard line resulting in a 23 yard TD pass from Quarterback John Breedlove to wingback Jim Parker. Pat Greene kicked the extra point to tie up the game for halftime.

The Bulldogs kicked a field goal early in the third quarter when Frank Grant returned Cline's punt 40 yards to the East Carolina 26. They moved to the 15 but the Pirate defense suddenly put on the brakes and held the Bulldogs on three consecutive plays for no gain. Green kicked the field goal for a 10-7 lead.

The Bucs exploded in the fourth quarter scoring the first two times they had the ball. Cline passed to Swindell from the 12 to grab the lead that they never relinquished. The drive began on the East Carolina 43 yard line with Cline and Alexander moving the Bucs with large gains on the ground. The attempted run after touchdown failed. On the next series of downs the Pirates scored in 8 plays. Bill Cline set up the score on a 51 yard sweep around the right end to the Citadel 29. George Richardson took over at tailback for Cline and engineered the score. Richardson and Alexander drove on the ground to the 1 yard line where Richardson followed Alexander through the middle for the final score. The PAT failed.

The Bucs showed the offensive flash that they lacked last week and demonstrated excellent defense. They had confidence as they went on a fourth down play four times and made a first down on three of them. Their old nemesis the fumble, struck again as the Pirates fumbled five times but lost the ball only once. They topped the Bulldogs in rushing yardage 238 to 70 and in total yardage 363 to 200. The Bucs scored more points than any of the Citadel's last five opponents had been able to score.

LISTON-CLAY

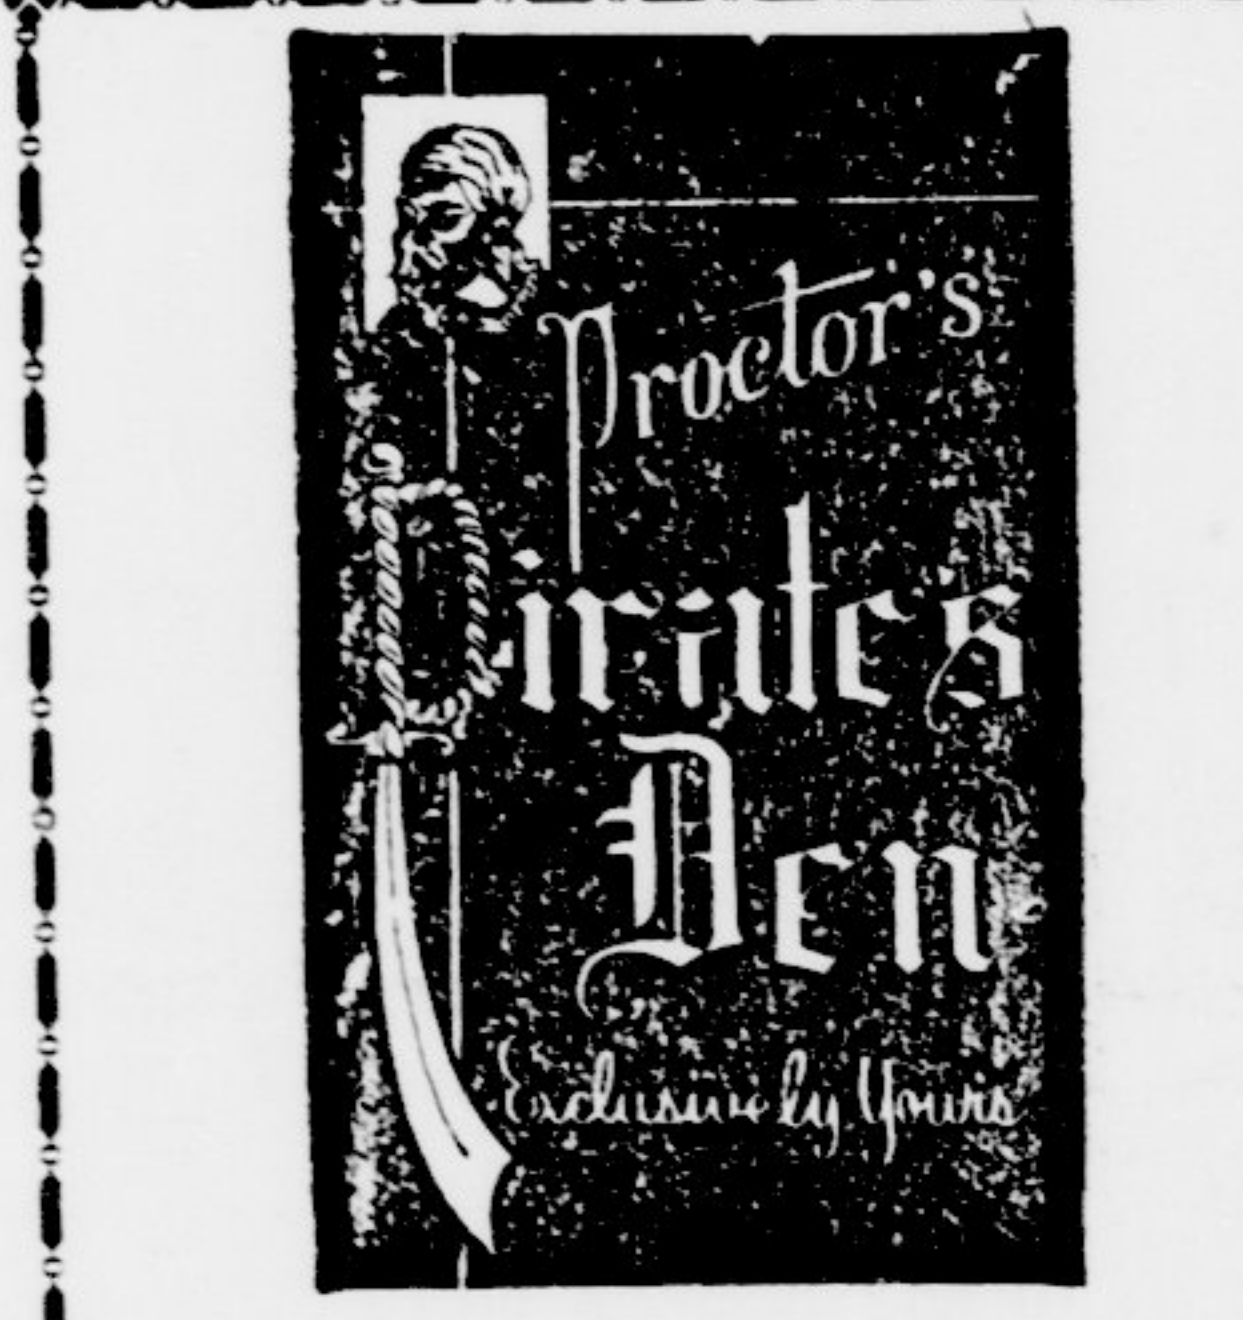

The long-awaited return match for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world, between Cassius Clay and challenger Sonny Liston has finally come. The bout will be held on November 16.

It was in Miami last February 26 that Liston, the 7-2 favorite to retain his heavyweight crown for many years, met the upstart Cassius Clay and went down in defeat in a controversial knockout. Clay, the "Louisville Lip" had been underestimated by most of the boxing experts, and his battle with the slugging champion was a smart one.

The Liston-Clay rematch which has been banned by several boxing associations is being held in the Boston Gardens. The question still remains: was Clay's victory in Miami a fluke or is he really the heavyweight champion of the world? It will be answered on November 16.

Ten Million Young Americans Register For Voter Rights

Washington, D. C. — Voter registration books throughout the country are being scrutinized this week for the names of young Americans who are eligible to vote in their first Presidential election today.

President Johnson has proclaimed this week "National First Voter Week" and Young Citizens for Johnson-Humphrey are seeking the names to help recognize the nearly ten million first voters.

First voter certificates, signed by the President, are being presented to outstanding new voters on the President's behalf. Certificates are also being sent to a broad segment of the nation's new voters of both political parties.

President Johnson noted "for these young persons, the forthcoming Presidential election will be a significant milestone... for the rest of us, this occasion will be no less important as we welcome a new group of young, vigorous and forward-looking Americans to a full share in the privileges and responsibilities of free men."

Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.) National Chairman of Young Citizens for Johnson-Humphrey, said the young people of the nation will have a vital part in this election.

The President has urged local election officials, private citizens and citizen organizations to make a special effort this week to assist in every way possible the millions of persons who are about to cast their first vote in a Presidential election.

He urged first voters to consider seriously the solemn nature of the obligation they are about to assume.

In his proclamation, President Johnson called on new voters to "go to the polls proudly, knowing that the duty they perform is the price of the privilege they hold." He counseled them to "exercise their franchise gratefully, realizing that it is essential to their future as free men and women."

The first voter certificates contain a personal message from the President which concludes, "May your participation in this, your first Presidential election, lead you to many further accomplishments in fulfilling the highest ideals of citizenship for your country, your state and your community."

EC Artists Display Work In Four States, On Campus

Intaglio prints by Donald Sexauer of the East Carolina art faculty have been selected for current or near-future exhibitions in this state, Florida, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

Sixteen works of art and a model illustration by an East Carolina student from Feasterville, Pa., are on display this week in the Kate Lewis Gallery of Rawl Building on the campus.

The exhibitor, Louanne E. Traub, a graduate of Nashaminy High School in Langhorne, Pa., and Breward (N. C.) College, is the fourth exhibiting student artist this year. She was selected by a faculty committee.

On display as part of the Fourth National Exhibition of Prints and Drawings in the art gallery of Mercyhurst College in Erie, Pa., is a Sexauer print entitled, "Of, By, and For." The showing will continue through Nov. 13.

Three Sexauer prints — "Ride Thru November," "Pan" and "Prize" — were among works chosen for the invitational Festival Arts Show in Jacksonville, Fla., now in progress.

A copy of "Pan" and another Sexauer work, "Once Upon A Time," are on view with the 16th annual exhibition of Contemporary Realistic Works of Art in the Museum of Fine Arts in Springfield, Mass. That show remains open through Nov. 15. "Ride Thru November" was also chosen for the Southeastern Print and Drawing Exhibition scheduled to open Nov. 8 in the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte, thus a copy has been added to that month-long show's collection.

Sexauer, chairman of the graphics department in the ECC School of Art, is a native of Pennsylvania and studied art at Edinboro State College in his home state. He earned his MA degree at Kent State University in Ohio and taught for three years in the Madison, Ohio, schools before joining the EC faculty in 1960.

Miss Traub's exhibition features abstract and realistic work. Scheduled to continue through Saturday, the show is open to the public in the third-floor gallery.

Five abstract oil paintings are on display. Drawings in charcoal crayon feature human figures in the show. Other works include three wood block prints and two interior drawings.

The senior artist's show is under the supervision of Dr. Emily Farnham, associate professor of art.

Miss Traub is a member of the Kappa Delta social sorority and is currently serving as sorority historian. She is a candidate for the BS degree here next spring.

EC Home Economic Chapter Increases In Membership

The Home Economic Chapter held its first meeting on Tuesday, October 13, 1964 at which approximately 50 new members were installed into the chapter. Several items of new business and committee reports were brought before the members of the chapter for approval.

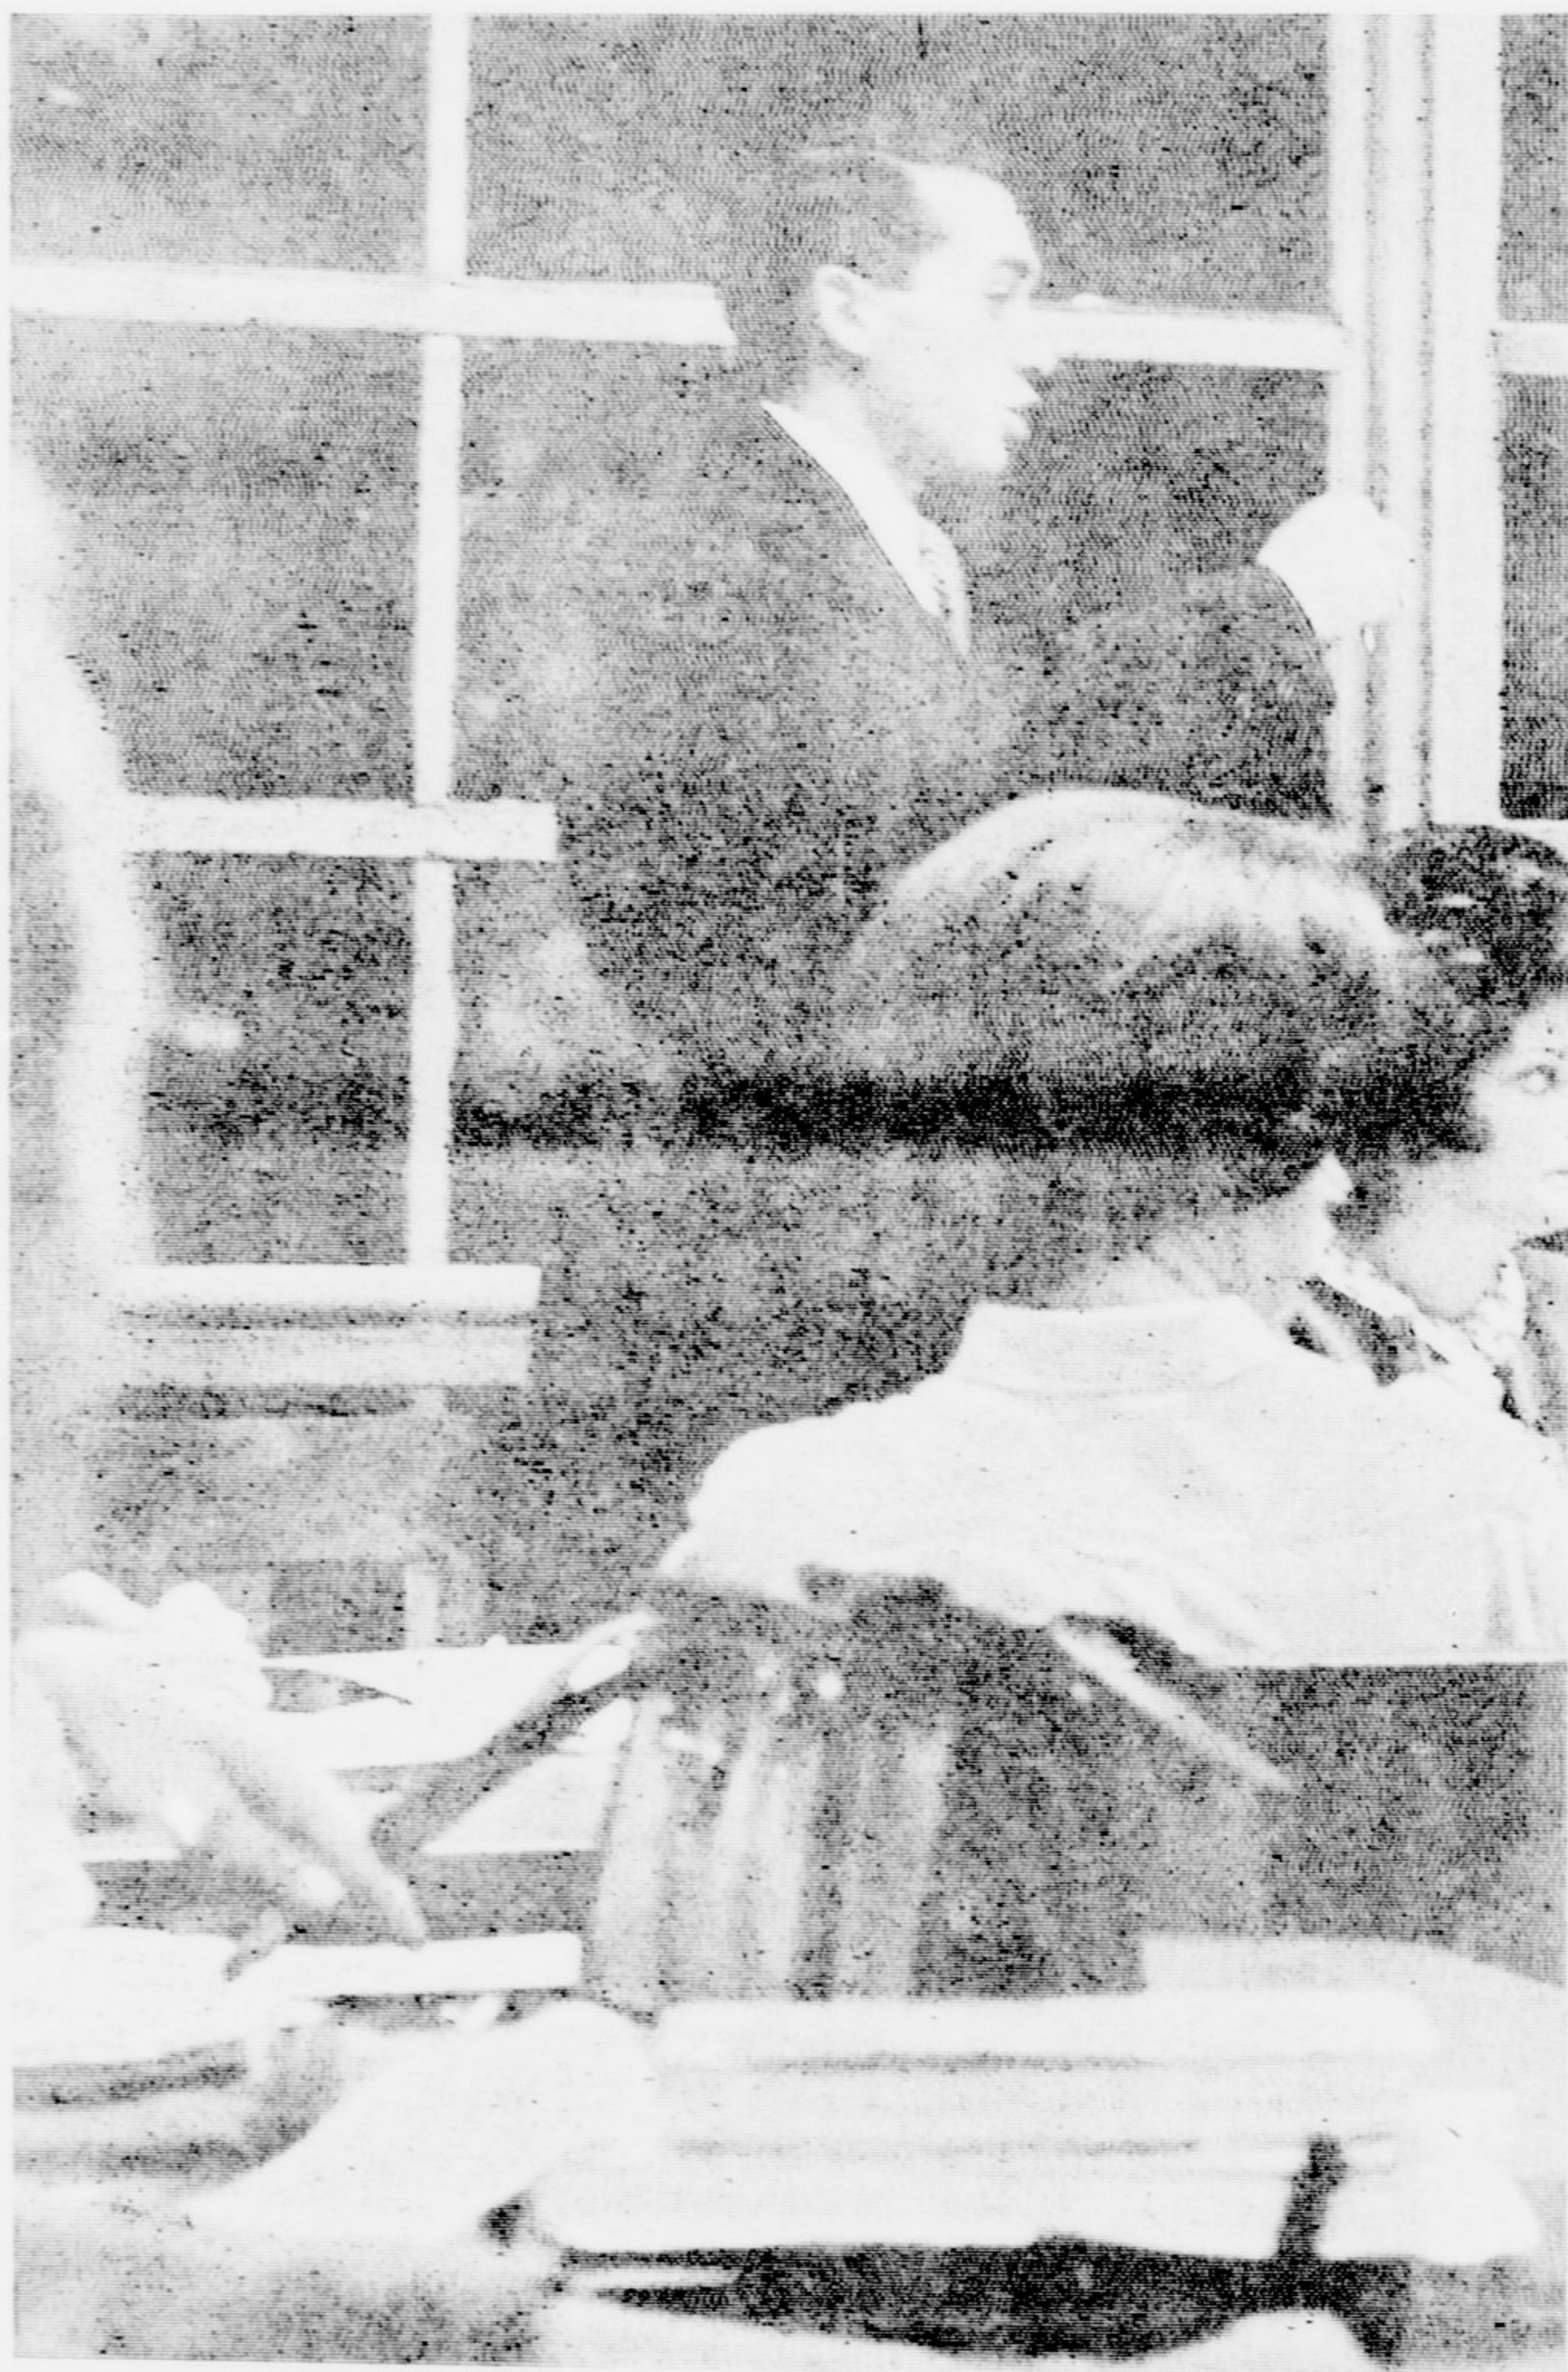

The NCHEA Convention will be held in Raleigh, N. C. on November the sixth and seventh. The EC Chapter will be sending Becky Hobbs as a candidate for state reporter and Brenda Fairless as a candidate for state secretary of the NCHEA. Ann Moore and Shelby Kilpatrick will be representing the chapter as voting delegates. Also attending this convention will be Mary Ruth Woodley, NCHEA Treasurer, along with fifteen other chapter members.

The chapter's ways and means committee, with Brenda Fairless as chairman, gave a favorable report concerning money making projects for the chapter. The first spaghetti supper was very successful, with approximately 124 people being served. Another supper is planned for a later date. This committee has also set up a hemming service for the dormitories. More information concerning who to contact and what to pay for this service will be posted on the bulletin boards in the dormitories. All interested chapter members are urged to help with this service.

With homecoming at EC coming up soon, the chapter made plans concerning a float and elected Elizabeth Ann Stroud, a freshman, as the Homecoming Queen representative for the chapter.

The Membership Committee, with Carol Scott as chairman, reported that there are now 132 members in the chapter. There is hopes that these members will be 132 active bodies and not just names to be recorded in a book.

'And Furthermore ...'

Bryan Bennett, senior class president, makes a point at Monday night's SGA meeting. The business of most local concern was a motion by President Jim Mahan to enforce the non-drinking regulation at football games.
