

Ray Charles and the Raelets will be the featured artists for the Homecoming program which will take place in the Memorial Gymnasium 8:15 Friday night. Tickets are available in the Central Ticket Office until 4:00 today.

Charles Moves From Bottom And Works His Way To Top

The most amazing story in show business concerns a young man who has, despite almost unbelievable odds, become tops in his field.

The Ray Charles story began simply enough twenty-eight years ago in Albany, Georgia. Six years later the Charles family was living in Greensfield, Florida and the first tragedy struck — young Ray was blinded, completely and without hope for recovery.

The six-year-old youngster was sent to St. Augustine, Florida where there was a school for blind children and there he grew up. When Ray Charles was at the age of fifteen, fate struck again. That year, both his parents died. Ray was blind and orphaned without a relative in the world at fifteen.

It was at this point that the fantastic development of the Ray Charles career began. He left school and went out on his own. He had acquired some musical knowledge and right away he got jobs playing around Florida with a variety of bands. Within two years he had an enviable reputation as a sideman. Then at seventeen the intrepid youngster decided the time had come to do something on his own and he organized his first trio with a bass and guitar to blend with his piano and his sax.

That trio got as far away from its Florida beginnings as Seattle, Washington where Ray had what he describes today as his biggest thrill in the business. The radio show that the trio had was a regular one, and they were the very first negro act to have a sponsored television show in the northwest.

Ray Charles says that the first trio sounded more or less like Nat "King" Cole's. Cole was the first great influence musically on the Charles talents. "But," says Ray, "I knew I had to change if I was to get anywhere. I knew I had to develop a style of my own." The bass for what he did develop was his firm conviction that music should express people's true feelings. Sincerity is his watchword.

According to Ray, with every bit of music he writes or performs, "I try to bring out my soul." His great success is evidence enough that he had accomplished just that.

Although Ray Charles is dedicated to his music and is seldom far from it in his thoughts, he had a variety of other interests. Like everything he does, even his hobbies seem like amazing feats in view of his handicap. He is an expert domino player and almost unbeatable at cards — particularly Whist and Dirty Hearts. His sense of humor is completely infectious and wherever he is, he's likely to be the life of the party.

Another important sidelight to the Ray Charles career is his devotion to spirituals. He listens to Gospel songs incessantly on record. (He always travels with a supply) on tape. (He collects them on the spot in churches, etc.) and while touring from date-to-date on his car radio, says Ray Charles, "I attract my soul from this music."

Someday this talented pianist, saxophonist, singer, composer, arranger hopes to write for a chorus and large orchestra with strings. You won't find any people who doubt that he will do just that.

Meanwhile, Ray Charles is a happy man because he's doing what he wants to do, says Ray. "I guess I'm an example of the fact that there's something for everybody to do if they just want to."

Ninety-Two Units Take Part In Annual Saturday Parade

East Carolina's annual Homecoming parade will be held Saturday morning with ninety-two units participating. Last year the parade only consisted of fifty units.

The parade line up begins on Ninth Street at 9:15 a.m. and the parade begins at 10:14 a.m. by pulling onto Dickinson Ave. The parade will continue on Dickinson Ave. onto Evans Street at Five-points, and then turn off Evans by the Post Office at Third Street. Continuing on Third Street to Cotanche Street, the parade will then turn right onto Cotanche and continue to Fifth Street. It will turn left on Fifth Street and continue up by the campus to the Playhouse parking lot where the parade will terminate.

A group of three judges will select the best floats on the basis of appropriateness, originality, and appeal. Appropriateness includes how the theme of the float corresponds to the theme of the parade. Originality is judged on how well the group put their idea into the finished product and how well executed the idea was. Appeal is judged on the attractiveness and eye catching ability of the float. This also includes the spectator's impression of the float after seeing it only a short time.

The ninety-two units include three bands, fifty-three Homecoming Queen contestants, and 7 floats sponsored by various fraternities, sororities, and campus organizations. The Air Force ROTC Color Guard will lead the parade, followed by the Marching Pirates. Dignitaries riding in the parade include Eddie Greene, parade marshal, Senator Robert Morgan, Chairman of the Board of Trustees; President Jenkins; Dr. Holt and Mr. Duncan; Deans White and Mallory; Deans Tucker and Alexander; Miss Hardison and Mr. Willard, Alumni Association; Butler, Stewart, and Barefoot, Homecoming Chairmen; S.G.A. president Jim Mahan; and Weaver and Anderson, College Union Host and Hostess. The Drill team, the 1963 Homecoming Queen, and the cheerleaders make up the rest of the parade.

Weekend Includes Ball Game, Singer, And Crowning Of Queen

Plans for three days of activities for students, returning alumni and other campus guests stand ready for East Carolina annual homecoming weekend, scheduled Nov. 13-15.

The agenda calls for a concert, annual coronation of the homecoming queen, the annual homecoming parade.

The traditional homecoming football game, the annual meeting of the Society of Buccaneers, special honorary activities for the John Christenbury Memorial football team of the early 1940s and various luncheons, receptions and other social functions for campus organizations and their guests.

Beginning on Friday evening, Nov. 13, with a program by Ray Charles and his orchestra and introduction of contestants for the title of "1964 Homecoming Queen," the homecoming weekend concludes with worship services in the Greenville churches on Sunday morning, Nov. 15.

The new homecoming queen will be crowned during halftime ceremonies of the EC-Presbyterian football game in Ficklen Memorial Stadium Saturday afternoon, Nov. 14. Also to be introduced are returning members of the Christenbury Memorial football team; a special band program is to be presented by the EC Marching Pirates and the men's glee club.

Saturday's other events: the morning parade from the college campus through Greenville downtown business district; a noon luncheon for the Christenbury football team in the Buccaneer Room of the college cafeteria; a luncheon honoring the Homecoming queen contestants, college officials and the homecoming committee; open house in the College Union following the game and in various fraternity and sorority houses; the annual dinner of the Society of Buccaneers at 6 p.m. in North Cafeteria; the homecoming dance at 8 o'clock in Wright Building.

Returning alumni will be welcomed in Greenville churches on Sunday morning worship services and during the weekend the campus religious organizations also share in the annual event.

James W. Butler is overall chairman of the EC homecoming committee. Members include Mrs. Gay Hogan Blocker; Miss Janice Hardison, director of alumni affairs and foundations; Henry Howard, director of public relations and the news bureau; Allan Nelms, director of placement; Maj. Donald G. Simpson, staff member in the campus Air Force ROTC detachment.

Student committeemen are Bill Stewart of Statesville and James Barefoot of Raleigh, Student Government Association co-chairmen; and Eddie Greene of Biscoe, parade chairman.

ECs' Rebel Magazine Attains Second All-American Rating

The Rebel, East Carolina's youthful literary magazine, has its second All-American rating, the top honor awarded by the critical service of the Associated Collegiate Press (ACP).

The top rating, bestowed for the three issues in The Rebel's 1963-64 volume, is the second All-American honor for the magazine in its seven years of publication.

Last year's issues were edited by June graduate J. Alfred Willis of Gloucester in Carteret County. The first All-American rating was awarded the 1961-62 volume whose three issues were edited by Junius D. Grimes III of Washington, presently entertainment editor of the Raleigh News & Observer.

The judge of last year's issues gave The Rebel 1,850 points of a possible 1,900 to qualify the magazine for the highest of six designations the critical service assigns to participating publications. ACP's critical service for student magazines is operated in conjunction with the School of Journalism at the University of Minnesota. It judges participating magazines according to accomplishment of pre-stated objectives and compliance with general standards of quality recognized by ACP.

The Rebel, established at East Carolina in 1957 by the Student Government Association, has consistently won praise from many critics in North Carolina and other states. It has been generally regarded in literary circles as among the elite of Southern campus literary magazines and one of the outstanding student magazines of the nation.

Its faculty advisor is Ovid W. Pierce, author-in-residence at East Carolina. Editing the 1964-65 issues is Thomas Blakeslee Speight of Greenville, a sophomore.

Mr. James Parnell (left) was conductor of the Brass Choir which presented its first concert last Thursday in Austin Auditorium. The program presented music ranging from Wagner to Sullivan.

Fair Play

One nice thing about being in a college that requires an activities fee is being able to attend all college functions simply by the presentation of two ID Cards.

One bad thing about it though is the fact that some students lend their ID Cards to nonstudents. This practice defeats the purpose of student identification cards.

Entertainment scheduled by the school is provided for the enjoyment of students; it is paid for by the students. Anyone else not connected with the college who comes to our entertainment series without a ticket is guilty of theft. He is stealing the seat of a paying customer.

A few students feel that they have paid for the ticket so why not let a friend use it. The sole purpose of issuing tickets is to regulate the amount of spectators attending an event. This rationing is necessitated by the limited space available at most of our programs. Every student is not expected to attend each performance, but even then there are often more people wanting tickets than can be accommodated.

When you lend your ID Cards to nonstudents, you are cheating your fellow students of their share of the entertainment series.

Misuse of ID Cards is a violation of regulations resulting in appearance before the Judiciary Committee and punishable by loss of ID Card privileges. This means that a student must purchase a full price ticket at the gate before he can attend a school function. He is, in effect, forfeiting his activity fees.

Homecoming is this weekend. There are many events scheduled for your enjoyment and all you need to attend is your ID Card. Do not take a chance on losing your privileges by letting an unauthorized person use your ID Cards.

Bubble Bursting

There are certain recurring incidents on this campus that have been written about many times to no avail. One of these is the lack of voters in class elections. Each time we hope that we will reach a new group of people who just need a little push in the right direction.

Another, the one we want to rehash today, is the dumping of soap suds into Wright Fountain. Glancing through our files, we notice that this problem has been with us for many years.

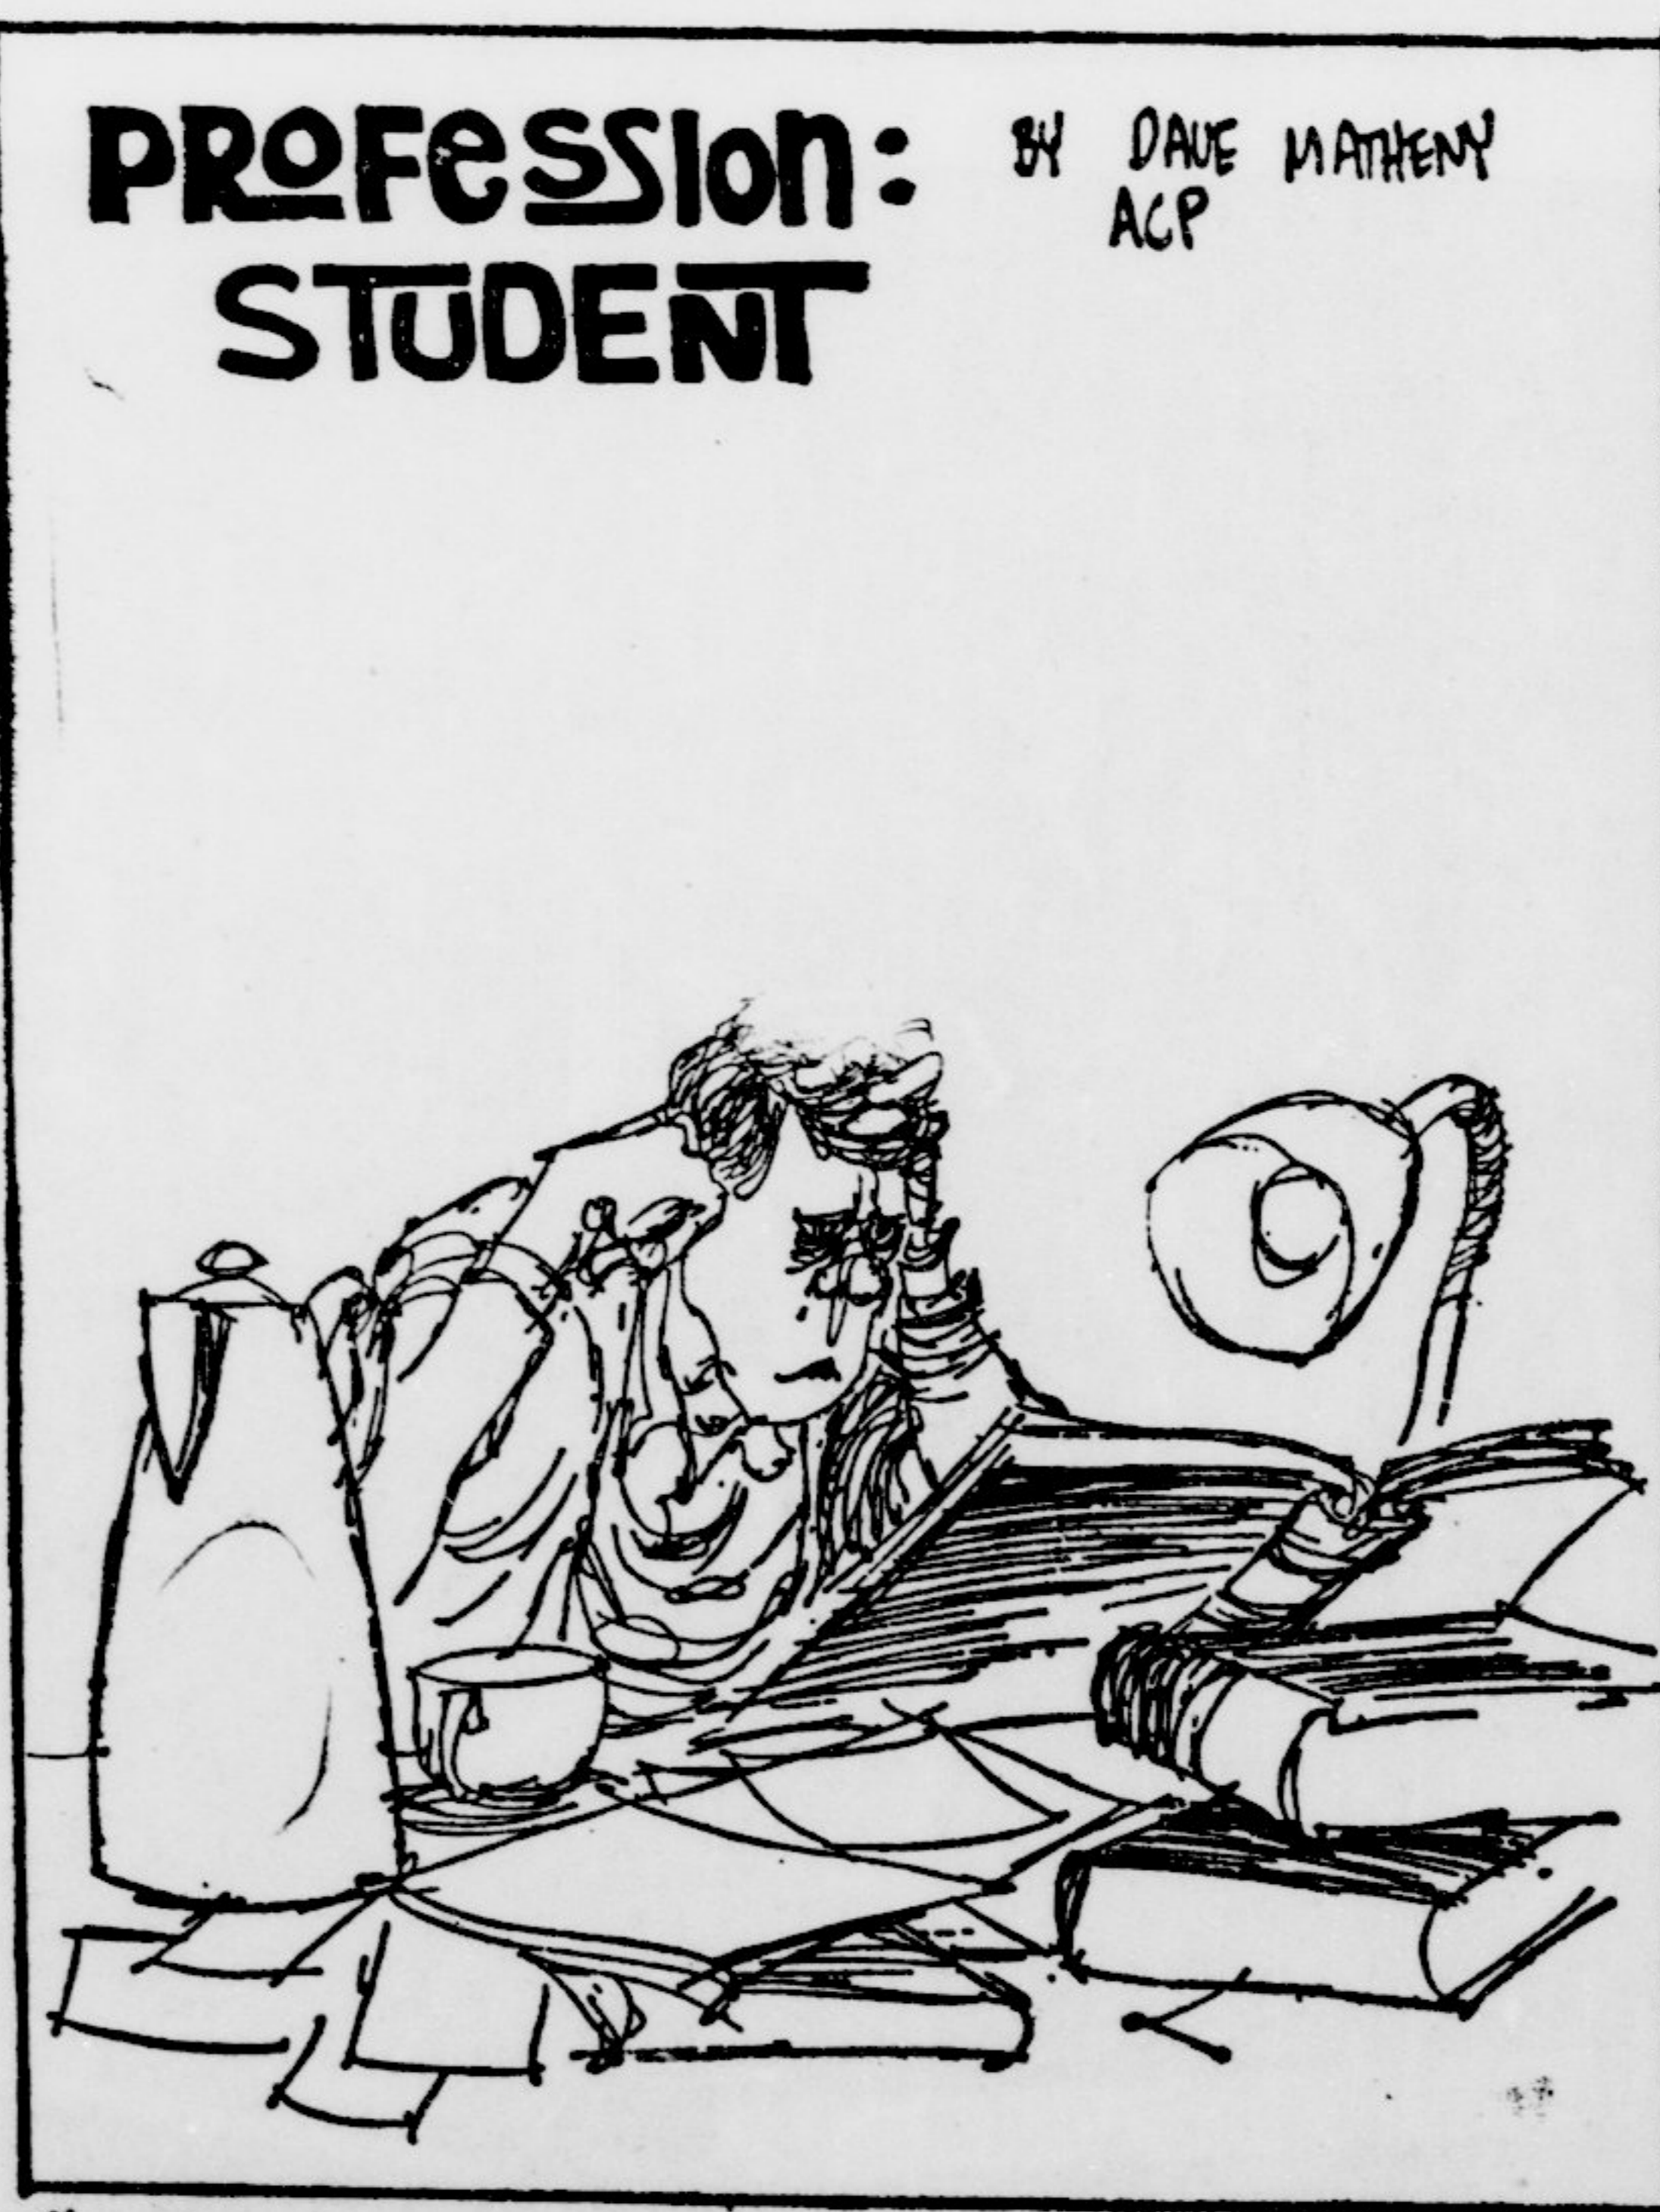

First of all we would like to ask those of you who are responsible for the inconsiderate acts, what pleasure do you get from it? And once you have done it, what possesses you to do it again once the pool has been cleaned? If it happened once or twice a year, we could write it off as a prank, but recently it has been a common occurrence. It has ceased to be a not-very-practical joke and is just plain vandalism.

Have you no sense of beauty? Do you not get a special feeling looking into sparkling clear water?

Have you no sense of school spirit? The only scene representative of this campus to be selected for inclusion in the Official Highway Map was Wright Fountain.

Have you no sense of responsibility? Do you not realize that it is your money that goes toward cleaning the pool after your malicious deed?

Psychologists tell us that people like you are looking for a way to make your self feel important by doing something that everyone will notice. We will admit this is one way for everyone to see your handiwork, but so is constructive work done on CU committees and projects of clubs and organizations. True, committee work is harder and more time consuming, but the results benefit more people and your efforts are longer remembered.

Inter-Religious Film

The film "The Good Soldier Schweik" will be shown Tuesday, November 10, at 7:00 p.m. in the Y Hut.

While the film is a satire on war it is not biting satire. Novelist Jaroslav Hasek of Czechoslovakia used war as a background in his novel The Adventures of the Good Soldier Schweik to comment humorously on the ironies of life.

The leading role in the film is played by actor Heinz Ruhmann who was introduced to American audiences in the recent remake of "Captain From Kopenick." He is described as "perfect for the role" of "Good Soldier."

The fireside showing in the Y Hut is sponsored by the Inter-Religious Council, and will be followed by an informal discussion. Faculty and students are invited.

Foolin' Around With Fris Pep Rally, Bon Fire Wed.

By FRISBY HENDRICKS This week will prove to be the paramount of Fall Quarter. It is publicly acknowledged that Homecoming Week at East Carolina is the most exciting week of the quarter. The invigorating week begins on Wednesday, with a bonfire at the Northwest side of Ficklen Stadium. The traditional observation of the giant fire with cheers and songs is a heart warming sight when there is a large crowd present. Immediately afterwards, a Pep Rally will be held at Ficklen Stadium. At 8:15 p.m. on Friday, the unforgettable Ray Charles will perform at the Memorial Gymnasium. The blind pianist is rated by both students and the general public as one of the most popular artists in the top five, as reported in various entertainment magazines. The next morning at 10:00 a.m., the Homecoming Parade will begin. This is the second of many times when the student will be moved by the splendor of the week. When the student sees the sun filtering through the oaks on Fifth Street, while the units march past the beautiful homes of Greenville and the play, intertwined with the floats, glamorous beauty comes in sleek new cars, and the flying in the brisk wind, he will feel a sense of well being in a happy family. That afternoon, at 1:45 p.m. introduction of five finalist Queen from the contestant field will begin. At 2:30 p.m. game between EC and Pres will start. To celebrate the game, there will be a house at the College Union Schools and departments, Greeks. At 8:00 p.m., the Homecoming Dance will be held in Wrightorium. The "Dynamic" from Virginia Beach will perform quite a lot at the permit Lounge at Virginia Beach. Bright and early Sunday the Greenville churches will be joined with girls wearing their worshipping with their date, will end the exciting and interesting Homecoming Week of East Carolina.

Letters To The Editor

To The Editor: Thank you for writing and printing the letter, appearing in an August issue, to which my name was signed. I was surprised to find no phone call thus developed. If anyone is still interested, I think I should clarify my points by putting them in context and organizing them a bit.

The call was prompted by your (July or August) editorial attacking (I think the word is not too strong) the faculty for keeping library books too long. I thought that you did not know of the resolution of the Faculty Library Committee, with which you started my letter and which you transcribed accurately. I thought this resolution showed that our objectives and yours precisely coincide after all.

Also, I thought that you did not know that any student has the right to recall a book held by a faculty member, when the usual borrowing period has passed. Possibly you, like men on two occasions, have been told by a desk attendant that a faculty book cannot be recalled. There are good reasons why this kind of mistake is made - you might be interested in studying the problems that we face in the library.

So let me end, as before: when someone says you, a student, can't get a faculty member's book, it's wrong. Yours truly, Carroll Webber

To The Students, On October 26, 1964, I presented the following motion at the Student Legislature Meeting:

I move that the S.G.A. send the following letter of recommendation to the Administration: We the S.G.A. feel that there is an immediate need for a thorough inspection of infirmary facilities and staff at East Carolina College. We further suggest that this be done by a group of qualified medical inspectors along with the administration.

I presented this due to a majority of the students complaints. I am one of those students who feel that we do not get proper treatment and consideration at the time. I am now calling on you, students, to support this belief, your comments and examples.

I would like for any student who has ever had any treatment, any examples of mistakes that have been made to please write name and the story on a paper and bring it to me. S.G.A. office in Wrightorium. This information will be confidential and will be used only to be given to the administration. Only you and your examples insure an evaluation of the faculty.

Sincerely, Bill Deal, President Sophomore Class

The defensive unit of football teams are quite often overlooked in the summation of a game. It was the hard hitting members of the Baby Bucs who kept the Spiders of Richmond from scoring over one touchdown in this weeks game. The offensive team was able to overpower the opposition to net 27 points for an EC win.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

The spring pledge class of Lambda Chi Alpha visited the Lambda Chi at the University of Maryland this past week end. The pledges learned much about the National Fraternity from this experience.

Last Monday a traveling secretary, David Neset, visited the Iota-Upsilon Zeta of Lambda Chi Alpha here at EC. He had a meeting with each of the officers, and pointed out their strengths and weaknesses. This helps the officers to strengthen any weaknesses the Fraternity may have. David also sat in on a regular Fraternity meeting, offering suggestions and corrections. His visit will no doubt make Iota-Upsilon a stronger Zeta within the National Fraternity.

KAPPA DELTA PI

The Eta Chi Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi national honorary education fraternity at East Carolina has announced the installation of 10 new members.

Membership qualifications into the fraternity include classification as a junior, a minimum academic average of B-plus, an interest in the education profession and manifestation of outstanding leadership abilities.

Founded in 1953, the EC chapter is one of about 300 U.S. chapters recognizing outstanding campus achievements in education. Its purpose is to encourage high professional, intellectual and personal standards and to recognize contributions to education.

New members of the local chapter, recently honored at a banquet, include:

Jean Bell, a senior home economics major, Hilda Russell Pate, a junior English major, Janice Marie Barnes, a senior English major, Leverna Elizabeth Lamm, a junior English major, Mrs. Shelby Jean McIntyre Kilpatrick, a senior home economics major, Beverley Meade Powell, a senior English major, Mrs. Emily B. Nelson Riley, a senior English major, Faye Marie Creegan, a senior social studies major.

Carol Ann Combs, a senior primary education major, M. Eilleen (Leni) Carman, a senior physical education major.

Stadium's Student Section Holds 4,000

The Athletic Committee and Student Government Association announced today that the student seating section in Ficklen Memorial Stadium is adequate for the members of the student body attending the game.

The Athletic committee expressed the view that if more than 4,000 students attend the Presbyterian vs. EC game, arrangements will be made to seat them. No students will be turned away.

They also announced that a special section will be set aside for the IFC. This section will be located on the 30 yd. line behind the EC band. The IFC sent a request to the SGA to have this section set aside. The request was passed and the section was set up.

The Athletic Committee also expressed their appreciation for the cooperation of the students at the Richmond vs. EC game.

Club Donates Funds

The Kinston Touchdown Club this week added its support to the continuing fund for expansion and development of James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium on the East Carolina campus.

Jack Poole, president of the club, presented a check to EC President Leo W. Jenkins after Dr. Jenkins had addressed the club at its weekly meeting Monday evening. Dr. Jenkins in turn deposited the contribution in the Stadium Fund.

East Carolina plans to expand the stadium from its present capacity of 16,000 to an eventual seating capacity of 30,000 to 40,000 as resources become available.

Students line up outside the 7-story Fletcher Dormitory as dedication ceremonies are about to begin. A highlight of the occasion was the unveiling of a portrait of Mrs. Fletcher which will hang in the dormitory.

EC Honors NC Novelist Fletcher In Dedication Of New Dormitory

East Carolina honored novelist Inglis Fletcher here Sunday in formal dedication ceremonies for Fletcher Hall, new seven-story women's dormitory.

Scheduled in the lobby of the dormitory at 3:30 p.m., the ceremonies included a dedicatory address by Ovid W. Pierce, author-in-residence at East Carolina and close friend of Mrs. Fletcher.

Carolista Fletcher of Chapel Hill, the novelist's granddaughter, unveiled a portrait of Mrs. Fletcher by a Fayetteville artist, Bill Fields. The painting will hang in the dorm.

Formal acceptance of the portrait came in an address by James L. Whitfield of Raleigh, vice chairman of the EC trustees, after remarks by State Sen. Robert B. Morgan of Livingston, chairman of the board, and by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, college president.

Special music for the occasion was presented by the Women's Club of the college under the direction of Beatrice Chauncey of the music faculty. D. D. Gross, director of religious activities at the college, offered the prayer of dedication to close the services.

A reception for guests followed the ceremonies.

Mrs. Fletcher and several members of her family attended the Sunday program. She was a guest of the college last June when Dr. Jenkins announced during commencement exercises that the new dorm, East Carolina's first building to exceed four floors, would bear her name.

A native of Illinois, she came to North Carolina to live about 20 years ago and began her new-famous "Carolina Series" of novels based on the early history of the state. The 12th book in the series, "Rogue's Harbor," was published last February. Her autobiography "Pay, Pack, and Follow" was published in 1959.

Ward, Senior Biology Major, Wins Scholarship For Use During Year

Bobby Julian Ward of Gates County, a senior biology major at East Carolina, has been awarded one of three scholarships provided this year by the North Carolina Water Pollution Control Association (NCWPCA) and the North Carolina Section of the American Water Works Association (AWWA).

Presentation of the award, a $500 scholarship grant for Ward's use during the current school year, was made by Leonard P. Bloxam, director of the Greenville Utilities Commission and an official representative of the two associations for the scholarship program.

Ward was chosen as recipient for the award by officials of the college after East Carolina and two other institutions in the state—Wake Forest College and Davidson College—were selected for the 1964-65 awards. The associations rotate the awards each year among colleges and universities of the state which offer accredited programs in chemistry, biology or engineering.

A condition of the scholarship requires Ward to prepare a 2,000 word essay on the relationship of biology to water supply and pollution control. In addition to the cash grant, the award carries one year's membership in both associations.

The EC award recipient has been a consistently outstanding student at East Carolina. He has been president of the Science Club and the campus chapter of Chi Beta Phi, honorary science fraternity.

This year he is serving as a district vice president of Chi Beta Phi. In 1963 he was chosen to participate in an undergraduate research program sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

A 1961 graduate of Sunbury High School, Ward is a native of Suffolk and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Ward of Route 1, Hobbsville.

Newberry Gives Vocal Recital For Music Degree

William Alexander Newberry of Rockingham, senior in the School of Music at East Carolina, appeared in a song recital Monday at 8:15 p.m. in the Austin Auditorium.

A tenor, Newberry opened his recital with Benjamin Britten's "Dawn by the Sallee Gardens," "The Bonnie Earl of Marry," and "Oliver Cromwell."

Other numbers for the recital, a requirement for the Bachelor of Music degree, were selections by Brahms, Bizet and Quilter.

Piano accompanist was Mrs. Eleanor Toll, faculty member in the School of Music.

Newberry is a student of Gene Strassler, director of ECC's Opera Theater and orchestra and associate professor of music.

The tenor has sung in many college musical productions. His performances have ranged from roles as soloist in Gounod's "Faust," to leading roles in the 1964 season of the professional ECC Summer Theater and in the world premiere of Carlisle Floyd's "The Sojourner and Mollie Sinclair" last year.

In 1962 he was a member of the EC "Pirates" who entertained U. S. servicemen in Labrador, Iceland, Greenland and Newfoundland during a four-week tour.

A 1960 graduate of Rockingham High School, Newberry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Newberry of 515 North Randolph St., Rockingham.
