Homecoming Queen 1964 -- Linda Daniels

Good-Bye

Homecoming marks the end of the fall quarter. All that is left now is the preparation for and the taking of examinations.

For many of us, this is just the end of one more quarter; it means little more to us than that. It has a special significance to the incoming freshmen, however, since it is the end of their first quarter of college life. We hope they enjoyed it and benefitted from it. The ties between high school and college have been broken and they realize what it means to be in here and know what it will take to stay. The adjustment that must be made and the attitudes that are formed at the very beginning of college life make this the most important quarter in their academic lives.

Some of them were not able to make the necessary adjustment for one reason or another. We hope that they will not leave college with an attitude that will ruin their future educational opportunities. Everyone who leaves high school is not ready for college. It will do these people more good to stay out for a few quarters and work. When they have settled down, they should return to college.

On the other end of the academic yardstick, there are students who close their college careers this quarter through graduation. Four or more years ago they faced the challenge posed by higher education. Now their efforts bring them to the end of a period in their life, but a new life is just about to begin. Sixteen years of preparation have gone into getting these graduates ready to meet the next and most important challenge. They leave friends and many memories in their wake as they go.

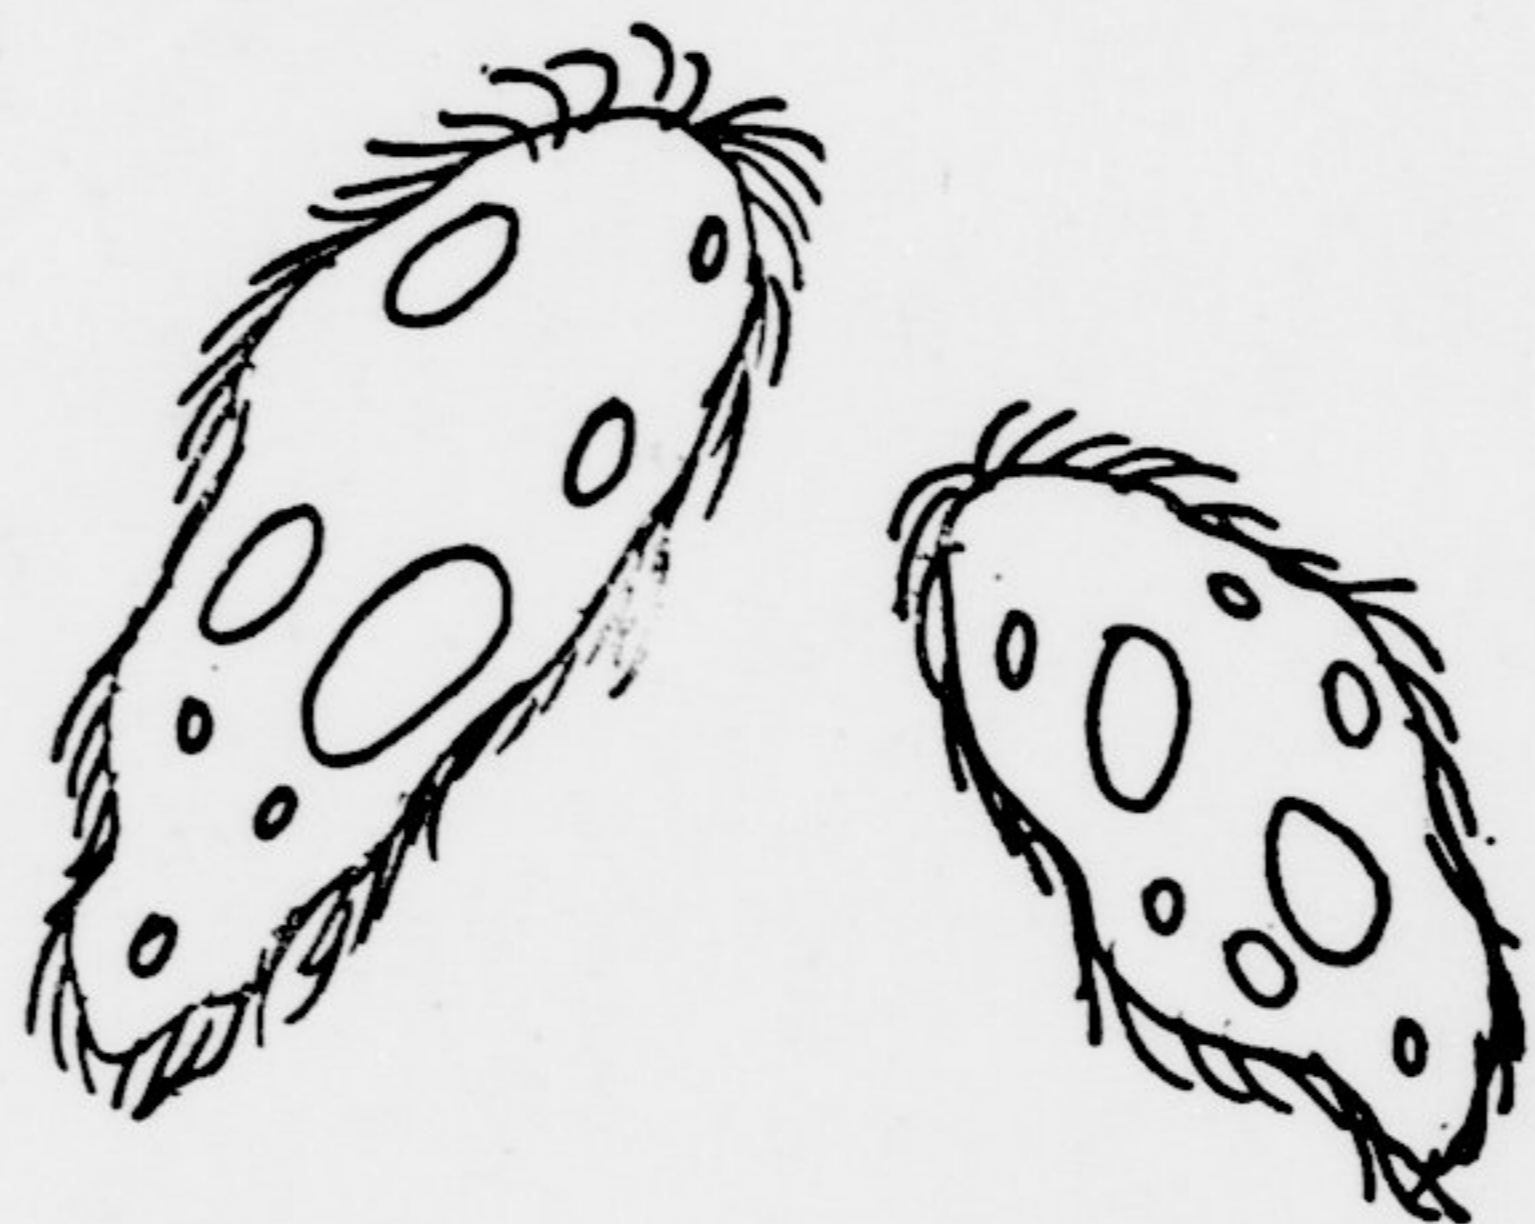

At this moment it seems that the activities and people you leave are the most important things in the world and so they may be—now. Afterwards you make new friends and join other groups. These new-found acquaintances take first place in your life and will stay there until you are forced to leave them also.

In a way, we are sorry to see the destruction of certain bonds, but we know it will be for the better. The future will never arrive if you hold on to the past.

PROFESSION: BY DAVE MATHENY A.C.P. STUDENT

...In conjugation two cells of different mating type pair. The macronucleus in each individual degenerates and the micronucleus undergoes meiosis. Three of the haploid nuclei so formed degenerate; the fourth undergoes a mitotic division. A cytoplasmic bridge forms between the conjugants, and one haploid gamete nucleus from each migrates through the bridge to the conjugant. The exchanged gamete nuclei next fuse with the stationary gamete nuclei to form a new diploid micronucleus in each conjugant. At this time the two individuals break apart...

Music World of Jerry Williams

Several weeks ago the smash hit Bread and Butter was No. 1 all over the country. The Newbeats were on the scene with their screaming record bounding to the top of every record chart available. Now they are back with a new hit recording, "Everything's Alright." This group is composed of two brothers from Georgia and a "long-tall Texan." Mark and Delan were joined by Larry Henley and together they formed this sensational new group. Both of the recordings they made together became hits across the nation. Their next recording should do the same. One group that is really making headlines in the music world is Jay and the Americans. Their hit is different but it's still a hit and that is what counts. England's newest singing sensations are supposed to be The Hulla-balloos. Honestly, one fellow in the group has shoulder-length "locks."

(Can anyone recommend a good barber for the poor kid). Bob Dylan has been doing pretty well and Johnny Cash is trying to cash in a few chips on one of Dylan's numbers. Cash is trying to "cash in" on "It Ain't Me, Babe." For Johnny's sake let's hope the register works. I haven't heard Marianne Faithfull's recording of "As Tears Go By" but if it's half as good as Marianne is attractive that it will be a hit. If the company features a photo of Marianne on the cover then many fellows might buy the record instead of next month's Playboy. She is one of England's great discoveries of the year. Don't forget to watch and listen for Marianne Faithfull. That's it from the music world this week. Address any comments to: The Music World of Jerry Williams, WPXY Radio, Greenville, N. C.

Foolin' Around With Fris Au Revoir, Chers Amis

By FRISBY HENDRICKS

The week-end is over. Homecoming, 1964 is finished for the students who resumed their studies yesterday. All that is left are a few scraps of crepe paper. And yet, last week's festivities are undoubtedly going down in the history book of East Carolina as the greatest homecoming in the history of the college. From the first note of "Georgia," sung by the unforgettable and magnificent Ray Charles on Friday night to the last farewell in front of the church on Sunday morning, there was constant excitement. No mar on the week-end was seen. It was a beautiful week, and many a homecoming will have to pass before this one is surpassed. May we thank everyone who had a part in making this week-end a success. We can honestly say that it was one of the most enjoyable events of our college career, if not the most enjoyable.

The one big event that winds up the quarter, besides the anxiously awaited final exams, is the Lecture-Film of Robert Cohen. "Inside Castro's Cuba" is the first and only full-length all color documentary since Fidel Castro came to power. The film is presented personally by the distinguished American film producer and lecturer, Robert Cohen received his M.A. from UCLA in 1954 and obtained his doctorate at the Sorbonne. He has been commissioned by the National Broadcasting Company to be the first U.S. citizen to film Red China. He has also completed assignments for the Associated Press and CBS-TV, and his photo-stories have appeared in many publications in the United States and Europe. "Inside Castro's Cuba" follows Cohen's "Inside East Germany." The lecture-film will be presented in Austin Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. on November 19.

The only other event is an unusual occasion which doesn't happen until next quarter. The students have had their curiosity aroused, and they are gradually finding more about it. This event is the "Bob Steele Day," during Saturday's game a plane hovered over the stadium pulling a "Bob Steele" sign. Presently, a 25-foot sign is hanging from the porch of Wright Auditorium. Who is Bob Steele? For those who don't know, contact the local fan club on campus and hear about the upcoming "Bob Steele Day." We would now like to pause and recognize the resignation of a student who has sacrificed a great amount to be editor-in-chief of this paper. This will be his last issue and in it we would like to thank him for all the work he has performed. Unfortunately, Mr. Duncan has devoted so much time to the paper that the student body has not been able to meet this capable leader. So, best of luck, Robert, and may you continue in contributing to East Carolina.

Along with the Editor-In-Chief, our department loses its editor. Working on a college newspaper is an unforgettable experience. We have grown in every aspect of college life, while making new friendships in the student body and faculty circles. Our main objective was, and still is, to contribute something of value to the college. Looking back, we think we have. It has not been an earth shaking contribution, but we feel that it has both been enjoyable and worthwhile. Through the controversies we have started, along with the news, the student body has grown. May we thank all the students that have contributed to this growth. Good-bye and good luck to the new Editor-In-Chief and Current Affairs Editor.

Letters

To The Editor:

Who wrote that silly article Tuesday's paper about being the rest of the students by having our ID cards and entering cards to friends?

Since the students do pay for entertainment on campus, why do we enjoy it by being allowed to enter? Everyone knows what is referring to—the Ray Charles Concert. How can an article be published such a time? Everyone who has with me in this argument, if they don't agree with me because they like to have entertainment narrowed down to a point where only a major concert or other series of entertainment.

As for whoever has been soap in the fountain at Wright, maybe they want to get their money's worth by something. The promoters get their only entertainment watching the fountain get cleaned. They pay money for it, why not see it at work? Answers now—this is a serious item.

Freshman Reviews First Quarter

By CARLA KATSIAS

The quarter will soon be closing, and for many first quarter freshmen some might retrospect for just a moment on some of their impressions of college.

Remember the loneliness, the unsure feeling, self-consciousness, and general "homesickness" you felt the first few weeks? Maybe you were baffled by the startling influx of students who attended the football game if you were used to seeing only 200 people show up in the stadium at your high school. Maybe you were let down on the spirit of the school, or perhaps you felt that it was you who didn't have any spirit for your new school.

The mores of the college student, as most freshmen will agree, can be quite different from the one they led at home. The freshman student, especially the girls, at first feel this great sense of independence. For many this is their first time away from home, but soon they are enlightened about their independence by the house mothers and, for some the Women's Judiciary. The social adjustment can be hard to make if you make it that way. The key word to this social problem is "moderation."

If your studies have been tiring you, at least you can be assured that you're not alone. One has a particular subject that might be bothersome if it is or four. The main thing to do is panic if you haven't already done that by now. With every hazard arises to overcome previous ones. "Life is full of ups and downs if you will pardon the old adage." It's very easy to get in contact with the outside world. College is really a little world of its own. Somebody could be on the campus, and you'd think it was those ROTC boys doing a lot of noise again—play war or something.

There is always something on and something to do. Do not enough days on the calendar, do everything you would like to do. Matter what anyone says, do not feel completely adjusted yet.

With the coming of exam, freshmen students find themselves unprepared, but whatever it has been a most memorable packed full of experiences, hopes of greater expectations come.

Tolley Eludes Tackler

Cline To Anderson For 6 Points

East Carolina crushed Presbyterian 49-8 in their season final before a highly partisan homecoming crowd to end their season with an 8-1 record for the second year in a row.

Dave Alexander, the Southern Conference scoring leader, led the Pirates with three touchdowns to bring his season total to 16. Alexander began the 20 point eruption in the second quarter with two touchdowns and finished the Buc's scoring with his third TD late in the fourth quarter. Bill Cline scored a touchdown while passing for two more.

Cline made the initial score late in the first quarter when he rolled around his right end for 6 yards and the TD. Jerry Tolley swept the right end for two points on the fake kick for the point after touchdown and the Bucs led 8-0. Alexander scored on a 3 yard run up the middle early in the second quarter and three minutes later he crashed over his left tackle and went 8 yards for another TD. Bob Ellis intercepted a Presbyterian pass as it popped from the hands of the Blue Horse end at the 4. Two plays later Cline passed 33 yards to Dave Burnmaster for the final score of the first half.

Presbyterian made its lone score in the third quarter on a drive of 57 yards in six plays. Garnet Welch recovered an East Carolina fumble on his 47 yard drive of the ball scored on the 33 yard drive. Welch recovered the fumble and converted for the 6-0 lead. The Pirates' defense held the Blue Hoses to 100 yards in the first half.

The attendance of 12,000 at the second homecoming game of the Pirates, The War, was the highest in school history.

The Buc's 49 point victory set total this year and set a new record for points scored in a season. The final score was 49-8.

Willis Becomes Director Of Regional Research

Thomas Warren Willis, veteran economic development engineer, will become the first director of Eastern North Carolina's new regional research and development institute. President Jenkins announced today.

Dr. Jenkins said Willis, 41-year-old Pitt County native who has headed a highly-successful economic development organization for nearly a decade since 1956, will take over the institute reins on Dec. 1.

As director, Willis will have the task of engineering a program with the fundamental aim of bolstering efforts to deal effectively with a wide range of socio-economic problems in Eastern North Carolina.

The institute, approved for establishment at EC last April 17 by the State Board of Higher Education, is intended to collect and analyze data in a search for answers to fundamental problems in the Coastal Plain region.

Its planned operational method calls for using a combination of EC faculty and other experts to fashion a continuing program of research which will blend with other programs with similar goals in the state.

Though the institute will operate for the immediate future within existing campus facilities, plans call for construction of a regional development center as a base of institute operations when resources become available.

To accept the institute's directorship, Willis leaves an organization which he has guided to an enviable record in industry hunting. Under Willis' direction and employing a strict policy of requiring prospects to pay their own way, the Farmville Economic Council has brought such firms as Formica Flakeboard (American Cyanamid), Farmers Cooperative Exchange (FCX) and Collins & Aikman into its predominantly agricultural community.

The Council under Willis' directorship was in the vanguard of organized economic development in Eastern North Carolina.

Prior to returning to his native county to head the Farmville organization, Willis was a member of the professional industry-hunting team of the State of North Carolina (1955-56). He served as city manager of Newton in Piedmont North Carolina from 1950 to 1955 after two years as assistant city manager in Raleigh (1948-50).

A graduate of Wake Forest College (BS, '50), Willis is an active church and civic leader in his community. He serves the Farmville Methodist Church as Sunday School Superintendent and as a member of the Board of Stewards.

He is a member of the advisory group to the Governor's Committee on Industrial Financing, the Pitt County Planning Commission and the Farmville Planning Commission. Vice president and budget committee chairman of the Pitt County United Fund, Willis also serves on the board of the Farmville Community Chest and as director of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

FBLA Appoints Jones As Advisor

Dr. Ray L. Jones of the East Carolina School of Business, has been appointed acting state advisor to the Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA).

Dr. Jones will fill an interim term in the advisory capacity for Dr. James L. White, professor of business, who is on a year's leave of absence to head North Carolina's Economic Opportunity Program.

Dr. Jones will act as co-ordinator for state-wide activities and will take part in promotional efforts of new chapters. He will also serve as a liaison with the national organization level.

Dr. Jones, who joined the East Carolina faculty in 1961, is a native of Johnson City, Tenn.

He earned his BS degree from East Tennessee State College (1950), his master's degree at the University of Tennessee (1952) and his EdD at the University of Florida (1960).

He has taught business at East Tennessee State and at the University of Florida and has served as business education consultant for the Johnson City Public Schools while studying at East Tennessee State.

FBLA is an organization for high school students who are studying for careers in business. The college counterpart is Phi Beta Lambda. Both organizations are sponsored by the National Business Education Association, a department of the National Education Association.

Home Ec Faculty, Students Attend Convention In Raleigh

Eight faculty members and 20 students in East Carolina's department of home economics attended the 47th annual convention of the North Carolina Home Economics Association (NCHEA) in Raleigh Thursday through Saturday.

Two of the students were candidates for NCHEA offices in a state-wide election among college chapters Friday evening.

Three of the faculty — Dr. Miriam Moore, department director, Alice Strawn and Mrs. Ernestine Reeder—appeared on the program. Also in the faculty delegation were Ruth Lambie, Mrs. Jannis Shea, Mrs. June Henton, Mrs. Elsie Colvin and Mrs. Mabel Hall.

Mrs. Moore led the invocation at the Saturday fellowship breakfast. Miss Strawn, chairman of the Constitution and By-Laws Committee, presented the revised constitution at the business meeting of the association on Saturday morning; Mrs. Reeder, chairman of the Membership, Promotion and Recruitment Committee, presented the progress report at the executive council meeting.

Brenda Rhea Fairless, a sophomore from Colerain was a NCHEA candidate for secretary; Joycelyn Rebecca Hobbs of Hertford, also a sophomore, was running for state reporter.

Peace Corps Gives Placement Test

In response to requests from interested students, arrangements have been made for a special on-campus administration of the Peace Corps Placement Test. The non-competitive test, used only in assisting in the placement of potential Volunteers, will be given tonight at 7:00 in Graham 301. In addition to the more than 8,000 Americans who will go into training in 1965, 1,000 Juniors will enter Summer 1965 training to begin preparing for overseas assignments in 1966 after completion of their senior year. For further information on the test, and how you can apply, contact Dr. R. E. Cramer, Department of Geography.

Pi Omega Pi Initiates Two New Members

Beta Kappa Chapter of Pi Omega Pi, National Honorary Business Education Fraternity, held its initiation service last Tuesday in the E. R. Browning Room of Rawl Building.

New members are Mrs. Ruth B. Jones, honorary faculty member, and Bruce Jackson of Vass. Mrs. Jones is on the staff of the School of Business.

Following the initiation service, a business meeting was held with refreshments being served afterwards.

Miller Exhibits Art On EC Campus

Sculpture and interior designs by an East Carolina student from Rockingham are on display this week in the Kate Lewis Gallery of Rawl Building on the campus.

The exhibitor, Marilyn Ross Miller, a graduate of the Rockingham High School, is the art major currently featured in the EC School of Art's series of senior art shows.

Miss Miller's exhibition features her creations in sculpture and interior design. Scheduled to continue through Saturday, the show is open to the public in the third-floor gallery of Rawl Building.

Her display includes furniture designs, four works in sculpture and three water-color plates.

At East Carolina, Miss Miller is a member of the National Society of Interior Designers and Alpha Delta Pi social sorority.

EC Faculty Members Contribute To Publication

History Dept. Issues Essays; Psychology's Griffith Writes

The history department of East Carolina has launched a pioneer publications project with issuance of the first in a projected series of volumes of historical essays by its faculty and graduate students.

Articles by six faculty members—Dr. Hubert A. Coleman, Dr. John C. Ellen, Dr. Alvin A. Fahrner, Dr. Charles L. Price, Dr. Joseph F. Steelman and his wife, Dr. Lala Carr Steelman—and a preface by Dr. Herbert R. Paschal, department director, comprise the introductory issue.

Entitled "Essays in American History," it becomes Volume I in the projected yearly series, "East Carolina College Publications in History." A paperbound book of 180 pages, the first volume is available from the history department at $1.50 per copy.

Its royal blue cover is marked in white with chosen symbols of the series, twin colophons identical to those used in the first book published in North Carolina in 1749.

Though it was released only late last month, the new series' first volume has already drawn many compliments. Evidence of its enthusiastic reception includes more than 100 letters of congratulations, praise and encouragement already received by the department and by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins.

Dr. Paschal notes the idea for the series was developed with a general goal of establishing "an interesting and useful new series of historical publications." To approach that goal, he says, the series will be directed toward encouragement of research by faculty and graduate students and will be used to reflect their diverse historical interests.

Noting that first volume includes essays in the general field of American history only, the department director points out that later volumes "may well delve into other fields and more highly specialized areas."

The editorial board of the series, according to Dr. Paschal, intends in future volumes "to give a significant place to the publication of source material and bibliographical studies of importance."

Leading off the introductory volume is a study by Dr. Fahrner, "Commodore James Barron, United States Navy (1769-1851, Scapgoat of the Chesapeake-Leopard Affair." Others are Dr. Price's "The Railroad Schemes of George W. Swepson," "Georgia's Reaction to Reconstruction: The Constitutional Convention of 1877" by Dr. Lala Steelman; Dr. Joseph Steelman's "Progressivism and Agitation for Legal Reform in North Carolina, 1897-1917"; "Establishment of a Separate Air Force Medical Service after World War II" by Dr. Coleman; and Dr. Ellen's bibliographical "Piedmont and Mountain Political Newspapers of North Carolina, 1850-1859: A Compendium."

Drs. Paschal, Coleman, Ellen, Joseph Steelman and George Pasti Jr. comprise the editorial board for the publications series.

Following are brief sketches of each of the six contributors to the first volume.

Two articles co-authored by Dr. Albert V. Griffith, associate professor of psychology at East Carolina, are scheduled for publication next year in books surveying recent significant research in clinical psychology.

Dr. Griffith has been notified that one of the articles, first published in 1958 in the Journal of Clinical Psychology, will be included in a 1965 release by Harper & Row, "Research in Clinical Assessment" edited by Dr. E. I. Megargee. The article is entitled: "The Psychas-thetic and Hypomanic Scales of the MMPI and Uncertainty in Judgments."

The second article will be used in "Basic Readings in the Projective Techniques," edited by Dr. B. I. Murstein and scheduled for publication in 1966 by Basic Books. First published in the Journal of Consulting Psychology in 1959, the article is entitled: "Eye-Ear Emphasis in the DAP as Indicating Ideas of Reference."

Co-authors of the former article were Dr. Harry S. Upshaw of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and Dr. Raymond D. Fowler of the University of Alabama. Sharing in preparation of the latter study was Dr. D. A. R. Peyman of Alabama State Hospital, Tuscaloosa.

Dr. Griffith, a member of the EC faculty since September of 1961, is a native of Birmingham, Ala. He had extensive experience in psychology in his native state before joining the staff here.

From 1951 to 1955 he was involved with employment testing for United States Steel in Birmingham. He then served as a clinical assistant at the psychological clinic at the University of Alabama, taught psychology at that university and served as a staff psychologist at Bryce Hospital in Tuscaloosa before completing his PhD at the University in 1961.

In addition to his doctorate, he holds an AB degree from Birmingham-Southern College; a BD degree from Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.; a ThM degree from Emory University of Atlanta, Ga.; and an MA degree from the University of Alabama.
