Dr. White Addresses Education Specialists At Florida Convention

Miami Beach, Fla. — Dr. James L. White of East Carolina was one of three key speakers to business and office education specialists in the Wednesday morning session of the American Vocational Association convention here.

Dr. White, coordinator of special projects at East Carolina, spoke on the effects of federal legislation on the business and education fields.

For his address Dr. White drew from his experiences as the first state-wide coordinator of the federal Economic Opportunity Program in North Carolina.

Speaking alongside him were two officials of the U.S. Office of Education, Bruce Blackstone and Dwight R. Crum.

COLLEGE BLAZERS DELIVERY

Joseph O. Clark, manager of the Student Supply Store, announced that College Blazer orders were delivered to students at the store in Wright Building on Wednesday, December 16, between the hours of 1 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Dr. Owen Speaks To Poetry Forum

Novelist-poet Guy Owen, editor of the new Southern Poetry Review, was featured reader for the East Carolina Poetry Forum's Christmas Reading here Monday night.

Dr. Owen, on the English faculty of N. C. State University, joined several forum members as readers on the program.

The reading was held at 8 p.m. in Joyner Library Auditorium.

The featured reader is the author of two novels, "Season of Fear" (1960) and "The Ballad of the Flim Flam Man" (1965). A collection of his poems was published in 1958 under the title, "Cape Fear Country and Other Poems."

He was born and educated in North Carolina and taught at Elon College, Davidson College and Stetson University in Florida before joining the faculty of NC State.

Arrangements for Monday night's special Christmas Reading were handled by the director of the forum, Dr. Walter Blackstock, poet on the ECC English faculty.

Christmas Tree Brightens Campus

For the last few days, the Christmas tree atop the new women's dormitory has excited several comments.

Visible all over campus and over a considerable portion of Greenville, the ten-foot-tall tree was erected by the foreman of the dormitory building project, Barry Thomas.

Thomas and Carl Knotts each paid half toward the cost of the tree.

The idea for the Christmas tree originated when Thomas observed, while driving down Route 64 By-pass, that the top of the new building could be seen from quite a distance.

Thomas said that he thought the tree was a good way to help promote the Christmas spirit among the students and townspeople.

Our College Union brings a touch of home to campus with its beautifully decorated Christmas tree. Adding extra warmth is a fireplace adorned with stockings.

FORUM SPECIAL—Poet Guy Owens from N. C. State University, joined members of the East Carolina Poetry Forum in their Special Christmas Reading here Monday night.

SGA Appoints 2 To Honor Council

By FRANCEINE PERRY

At its Monday afternoon session, the Student Government Association approved the names of Barry Brodsky (Senior) and Charles Pulley (Junior) to fill the vacant seats in the Men's Honor Council.

SGA Vice-President Steve Snite-man presented these two names and the name of Johnny Grubbs (Junior) to the Legislature which chose two from the three choices available.

Sophomore President Martin Lassiter presented in the form of a motion a resolution passed at the Winter Quarter meeting of the Sophomore Class. Lassiter's motion read thusly:

"When a vacancy occurs on the Student Legislature, the Speaker of the Legislature and the President of the respective class should together appoint a person to fill the said vacancy until an election is held."

The motion was carried over some negative discussion from Junior Representative Bill Moore.

The minutes of the Associated Arts Board were read aloud by Speaker Bill Deal and approved by the Legislature. One of the most important facts in them was the announcement that $3,295.80 worth of tickets were sold last year.

$7,363.50 worth have been sold thus far this year.

Freshman President Earle Beasley moved that Sophomore President Martin Lassiter replace Linda Giles as Chairman of the SGA Foreign Films Committee. The motion carried unanimously.

The Speaker announced that, due to having failed to attain a "C" average last quarter, four representatives will have to be replaced — one Sophomore and three Freshmen.

Beauty Pageant To Poetry Forum

A formal "BEAUTY PAGEANT" presented by the Biology Graduate Students, was the surprise entertainment for the faculty, their wives and escorts, of the Science Division, on December 8 at the Candlewick Inn at their annual Christmas Banquet.

The secretaries of the four departments changed the tempo of the usual "masters of science" program and offered only "laughter and applause" that seemed to be well received.

The evening was well-planned with refreshments being served in the John Rolfe room, followed with a turkey dinner in the main dining hall.

The entertainment program began with the Departmental Four-some (the Beatles). Four graduate students, impersonating the four chairmen of the division, as "Beatles," blasted their guitars to the inimitable record music.

The pageant followed with the biology graduate students dressed as "belles" in their long flowing evening gowns and wigs, each impersonating a particular professor; each was individually ushered to the floor by the two girl graduate students, dressed as men professors.

The program, directed by Myrtle Roberson, introduced the "MC" of the evening — Terry Humphries — as the "Pied Piper of the Rat Pack." He, in turn, introduced each candidate of the pageant and interviewed them personally. Each interview was based on some particular phase of "classwork" or "research" in which the particular professor he was imitating was working with at the current time.

The winner was chosen by the applause and laughter of the audience, after which he (she) "The 48-Hr. Chick" was clothed in a white fur cape and presented with a 3-foot "sugar daddy" candy bar. She (he) was then ushered through the audience and then applauded as the winner.

The secretaries were also surprised during the evening when Dr. E. Ryan who recently joined the biology staff and coming here from Hawaii, presented each of the secretaries with a fresh orchid lei flown in from Hawaii, after which all joined in with "Silent Night" with T. C. Rutherford on the harmonica and Dan Nicholson at the piano.

Happy New Year!

Makes It Coffee . . .

Yuletide carols, Santa Claus, mistletoe, a festive feast, and 16 days of vacation. . . this is Christmas. It is enough time for almost everyone to travel home for the holidays.

With the growing amount of traffic on the nation's highways, driving is becoming increasingly hazardous. Most accidents are preventable if a little precaution is used. If you are driving home during the holidays, be sure to take extra care and drive safely.

Speed may be extremely important if you haven't been home recently. But remember the old saying, "Take your time, not your life," is still a valid one. If you drive too fast, you might miss going home for Christmas completely.

Don't drive until you are too tired to think. Switch drivers or stop for a rest before exhaustion sets in.

Being overly conscious of the other driver is important to you. In keeping with the traditional Christmas spirit, you might also remember to be a courteous driver.

Prudent and thoughtful driving prevents accidents. So have a joyous Christmas, go home safely, and come back to begin a successful new year at East Carolina.

If you must take one for the road. . . make it coffee.

Professor Evaluation . . . ?

The Winston-Salem Journal surveyed 11 North Carolina campuses this week and found that eight undergraduate bodies plan, or now operate, programs for grading their professors. It is a natural offspring of the human impulse to turn the tables, but hardly a new idea. At Harvard, the Crimson has long issued an impish catalogue of candid comment on teachers and courses. At Chapel Hill last year, 7000 copies of such a directory were published.

Since students alone consume the offerings of the classroom, we suppose they are entitled to have their say, especially about the kind of teacher, increasingly pushed up by the mad premium on "research," who is a whiz in the library stacks and a drone in the classroom.

But college instruction hardly lends itself to a popularity contest, and obviously the most pleasing and conscientious teachers are not always the best.

In fact, it has always seemed to us that the best instruction runs to two rather different extremes; there are, that is to say, two kinds of reputations that get around. The types can be suitably captured only in hyperbole, but that hyperbole may jolt one's memory.

There is the natural teacher whose zest for opening a closed mind or imparting a truth is all-consuming. He is kindly and deferent; he listens without cracking a smile to the most absurd proposition. He has a reputation for making Napoleon (who he?) come alive, or for shedding tears when he reads the closing lines of Paradise Lost. He is perhaps a bit of a ham; most good teachers are.

The other type is known because his name strikes terror into the heart. His course is known (in less polite words) as an illegitimate and perhaps he is also. In the classroom he is Simon Legree with a whiplash, invariably a master of sarcasm and threat. The timid students write their mothers about him. The dull students hate him. The bright ones tremble and survive.

Who is better? The Gallup-Poll consensus inevitably shows Mr. Chips (No. 1) to be wonderful, and the holy terror (No. 2) as a dictatorial monster who ought to be running a banana republic. But time has a cruel way of playing tricks. Sometimes, in retrospect, the kindly and elegant teachings of Chips go cloudy. One remembers how he put color in to the farewell of the Old Guard; but as for Napoleon's imperial policy, it has gone cold. But the brute's trenchant sarcasms, printed in iron, are unforgettable.

Let us hope that both approaches will have their due.

Silence I hear where so recently
Havoc reigned; Lost is the adherence
To introspective catechisms.
Oblivious the Masses to the Beyond recompense, searches the Crystalline palpitations of Self

Christmas--A Frame Of Mind

Dickie Daves

Christmas, as it now exists, is a frame of mind. In fact it has always been such. Christmas is only as meaningful or meaningless as the human wishes it to be. And this is bad, or is it? You see, I believe the human being to be a hypocrite, and most of the time, quite a shallow individual. He is able to rejoice and feel within his inner self the joys and warmth associated with Christmas. But most of the time this only brushes against him. He will be glad when "the rush" is over with. But "the rush" is never quite over, that is never over, never final till the grave.

Many people try to cultivate a taste for the right or sophisticated things in life: Scotch, friends, clothes, the right type of language and dialect, and other things. They have come to accept Christmas as one of the things which they must cultivate a taste for, or rather as something they must face and accept. After all, one might say, "it only comes but once a year" and therefore they might as well tolerate it.

Christmas does not have to be tolerated or accepted. Christ did not mean for his birth to be tolerated; he meant for his coming to be a joy, since it was actually a rebirth for man. So we, the human "animal" go about with a false smile and a false greeting for others. We pretend that we enjoy singing the tidings of Christ, that we enjoy buying gifts for our so-called friends and sending Christmas cards and eating Christmas Dinner. But after it is over we have to wash the dishes; and this is not a joy, is it?

Another aspect may be brought into focus and the question asked: Is Christmas getting too commercial? Of course Christmas is commercial, just like the human mind and the individual. The fast buck and the 4-hour work week. The National Savior: Easy Money. The ends to a good mean. And, so at Christmas we thank God for our blessings, our Commerciality, our ability to cheat each other.

I sometimes wonder what people believe heaven to be like, probably great big gold plated neon signs advertising leisurely living, your reward for getting up here.

But this all is a farce, just as is man and his shakiness, commerciality, his hypocrisy, and his feelings, if he has any. So, Christmas is a frame of mind. For some the frame is square, and for others it has no shape, just the glorious feelings, just the warmth and good feeling and the love of God, and the love God has for man. Thank goodness for the no shape! Christmas is a frame of mind.

Letter To The Editor

If you print this letter, I will commit suicide. This probably sounds like a cheap trick to get my letter printed, but I assure you that I would not stoop to such tactics to get recognition in your informative, intellectual, witty, brilliant, charming, and delightful newspaper. All I hope is that I can save your soul, and the souls of other ECC students from the eternal damnation of the "Cut System". Before I jump off the top of Old Austin, let me tell you the tragic story of How The Cuts Can Cut, or I Was Gunned When I Cut.

Our story begins as young Percy B. Shelley walks into his first 200 class at ECC. Percy has been persecuted for two years by a strange "cut-complex", and he thinks that he will now be free from his childish terrors. Little does he know that his dapers are about to be drenched again.

As our boy-hero sits down, he notices that the professor is quietly sniggering at him. Not understanding what is happening, Percy decides to leave the class and take the first of his "unlimited cuts". The professor emits a dry cackle from behind the podium and waggles a bony finger as Percy rises from his seat. "Hold it, sonny!" he belches. Percy drops his crib notes and freezes in the posture of the "Discus Thrower".

"What is it, sir?"

"Where do you think you're going, you young cretin?"

"I, sir, am preparing to leave your class, as is my right."

"Didn't anybody tell you that Dr. S— doesn't believe in 'rights'?" Now sit back down while I read the entire Aeneid to you. You're such an idiot that you can't read it by yourself."

"But sir, the administration says that all classes over 200—"

"Be quiet, you young fop! Are you implying that I don't know the rules?"

"No sir, but —"

"Well let me tell you how I ran the class then. I allow all the unlimited cuts in the world. I just give 'pop quizzes' whenever anyone is absent, and I don't see why I should give a passing grade to anyone who fails one of these tests. The administration doesn't say anything about (ACP)—Should cheaters be exposed and expelled?

An education professor at North Texas State University, Denton recently accused one of his students of cheating, reports the CAMPUS CHAT.

John M. Jones told his class he had evidence that one of them had cheated on a test. "I have had quite a bit of experience with this sort of thing and after several years have come to the conclusion that it is best for all concerned if the teacher expose the cheater before his classmates," he said.

"It's a terrible thing to do," he continued, "but it makes the person involved think twice before doing such a thing again and should illustrate to the rest of the class the futility of trying to get away with cheating."

Looking directly at a coed in the front row, he accused her and asked, "Well, what do you have to say for yourself?"

"Mr. Jones . . . I didn't do it," the coed replied excitedly. "How can you accuse me of such a thing?"

The professor insisted that she leave the room, report to the registrar's office, and drop the course. He opened the door and said "good-bye" to her as she hurried out.

Returning to the class, he asked if he had done the wrong thing. Every hand was raised. Then he went outside and brought the accused student in.

He told the students they had just witnessed an incident prepared to illustrate how a class can be made to feel shock, surprise, embarrassment, and astonishment.

The students were asked to write a paragraph on their reactions. In the paragraphs they wrote, most students said they felt the method was cruel and rude. They also agreed that open exposure would eliminate or reduce cheating.

Sigma Tau Delta Reads 'Dickens'

By CINDY BRADHAM

The Omicron Theta Chapter of Sigma Tau Delta presented a dramatic reading of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," Monday night, December 13, in Flanagan Auditorium.

Under the direction of Dr. Ralph Hardee Raves, and with the assistance of Dr. Hermine Caraway, the fraternity gave a flawless presentation.

Mood was set by four standing candelabra (a total of twenty-eight candles) which were the sole source of light, and by the full length purple and gold robes worn by the readers. Pam McKittrick helped to set a solemn tone with a prelude on the piano.

Fifteen readers portrayed twenty-two characters and a narrator, Ritchie Steele narrator; Earle Beasley read the parts of Fred, Marley, and Fezziwig; Ben Terrell read Bob Cratchit and A Boy; Jane Davis, the First Lady and Fan; Suzanne Whitson, the Second Lady; Luray Mitchell, the First Ghost; Linda Wright, Belle; Jean Allen, the Second Ghost; Peggy Caraway, Mrs. Cratchit; Barbara Ferguson, Dot Grantham; Linda Wright, Janet Davis, Luray Mitchell were Gossipping Women.

Dr. Albert Diket gave a superb interpretation of Scrooge.

The technical staff included Joan Harmon, Michele Carter, Donna Cherry, Kim Los, Anne Wheeler, Joyce Gray, and Mary Ann Potts.

In order to draw the audience into the presentation and the Christmas spirit, we were asked to join in singing "Joy to the World" at the conclusion of the reading.

Donned in gold and purple robes, members of Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity, presented an impressive reading of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

Christmas is an important time of the year for every East Carolina student, for the student as an individual, is quite concerned with this season. The fraternities and sororities show a great spirit for Christmas by giving parties for underprivileged children.

Last Thursday, Delta Sigma Pi, the honorary business fraternity, and Chi Omega, a social sorority, jointly held their annual party for underprivileged children in Delta Sigma Pi's Chapter Room at 4:30 p.m. This is the traditional get-together held every year.

Naturally entertainment, the playing of games, was one of the first events. All took part in this by singing carols and playing musical chairs. One of the children, James Mitchell, won the event.

Next, Santa Claus appeared, played by one of the fraternity members, Charles Dodd. All gathered around the tree and presents were distributed to each girl and boy. Later, all the children talked with Santa Claus.

Chi Omega furnished the gifts for the party and Delta Sigma Pi gave stockings and fruit to the boys and girls.

Thus, one of the many activities of Christmas at East Carolina ended, bringing much joy and gladness to the children, and a lot of personal pride and enjoyment to the givers.

Helping deck the halls of the CU are Linda Dodds, Gale Pierce, and Tom King. The CU Christmas decorating party is an annual Yuletide occasion.

CU Decorations Attract Attention

The end result of Co-chairmen Tom King's and Harold Chamber's efforts on the College Union Christmas decorations are very pleasant to the visitor as he enters the C.U.

The traditional College Union Christmas Decorating Party was held last Thursday evening with C.U. members and other students joining the fun of carrying out the "old-fashioned Christmas" theme planned and executed by King and Chambers with a large fireplace with a real Yule Log and stockings, awaiting Santa's descent.

The live cedar Christmas tree with popcorn strings adds a warm home-like atmosphere to the settings.

Featured in the C.U. gallery is the "three-d" scene of the three kings approaching Bethlehem and a simple stained-glass window of the Madonna and child on the bulletin board.

While the decorators were busy helping with the above-mentioned features, as well as making sprays of cedar, pine, and holly and a kissing ball of mistletoe—Rose Tart, social committee chairman, served hot chocolate, ginger bread, and Christmas candy.

Other C.U. members assisting King and Chambers included Cynthia Heath, Kay Young, Fleming Causey, Linda Dodds, Betty Lou Baker, Jan Smith, Bell Benfield, Betty Lou Barber, Jim Barefoot, and Dong Health.

Carol-singing, led by accompanist Larry Jones, capped the fun after the decorating was done.

Inter-Greek World

By LINDA EVANS
Greek Editor

The so-called "fraternity amendment" passed by both houses during the 89th Congress debate over the Higher Education Act of 1965 undoubtedly reinforces the Greek System that many have referred to as "gradually losing ground."

The amendment states that "Nothing contained in this Act or any other act shall be construed to authorize any department, agency, officer, or employee of the United States to exercise any direction, supervision, or control over the membership practices or internal operation of any fraternal organization, fraternity, sorority, private club, or religious organization at an institution of higher learning, which is financed exclusively by funds derived from private sources and whose facilities are not owned by such institutions."

During the debate, Senator Sam Ervin of North Carolina stated: "One of the greatest rights of the people is the right to select their own associates. . . . When the day comes when we no longer have the freedom to choose our associates in purely private organizations, we have reached the day when we have no freedom at all."

Greek Of The Week

CELIA ORR

Celia Orr, by virtue of a long list of campus activities, beauty titles, and a strong appreciation for the fraternal system is this week's number one greek.

Celia is a Chi Omega from Falls Church, Virginia, where she attended Falls Church High School. At East Carolina, her name and face are well known in the Greek Society as well as the Student Government Association, and the many beauty contests which have been held on the campus.

What are her feelings about sorority life?

"I think Greek life benefits an individual through the friendship and unity of harmonious living," comments Celia. "In it, one finds a special kind of encouragement, both academically and socially."

"My main concern with the sorority system is that we just don't have enough girls going through rush," she added. "Girls should take a good look at what the Greek System can offer."

The popular blond psychology major went on to explain that she feels very strongly about the unity in Greek existence.

"I believe that sororities should work together. The Panhellenic Council is our source of unity."

Among Celia's activities on the campus are: SGA Secretary, Appeals Board, Womans Honor Council, and Chairman of the Orientation Committee. Beauty Titles include Azeala Princess, Buccaneer Queen, Kappa Alpha Rose Queen, and First-Runner-up in the Homecoming competition and IDC Queen competition.

In Chi Omega, Celia has served as pledge trainer and is now president of her sorority.

"My plans after graduation are to go on to graduate school in clinical psychology," says Celia.

Professional Fraternities Hold Meeting

A pledge service was held on Sunday, October 10, for Ida Andrews, Hampton, Va.; Mary Brown Moore, Wallace, N.C.; Connie McGhee, Newport News, Va.; Joan Painter, Graham, N.C.; Margaret Raynor, Fayetteville, N.C.; Jeanne Smothers, Charlotte, N.C.; and Drina Walters, Lumberton, N.C.

SAI also won first place in the professional fraternity division of the Alpha Xi Delta All-Sing.

GAMMA THETA UPSILON

Gamma Theta Upsilon, professional geography fraternity, recently inducted eight new members: Lyman Dickerson, Frank Doty, Dennis Dudley, Rufus Keel, Peter Kriz, Emmett Jones, Henry Pryce and Ken Wilkerson.

Dr. Stillwell and Mr. Larson of the faculty will serve as advisors for the coming year.

The fraternity held its quarterly dinner meeting November 17. Dr. Adler of the Physics Department lectured on Panama.

Rush for Winter Quarter is being planned, and those interested are urged to sign with the fraternity. Membership is open to geography majors and minors with a minimum of fifteen hours and a B average in geography courses.

Noted Greeks Die

Several of the Greek Society's great names are being mourned this month. Among them are W. Massey Foley, Phi Kappa Tau, who was national president of the fraternity from 1930 to 1934. He died June 1, in Cincinnati at the age of sixty-six.

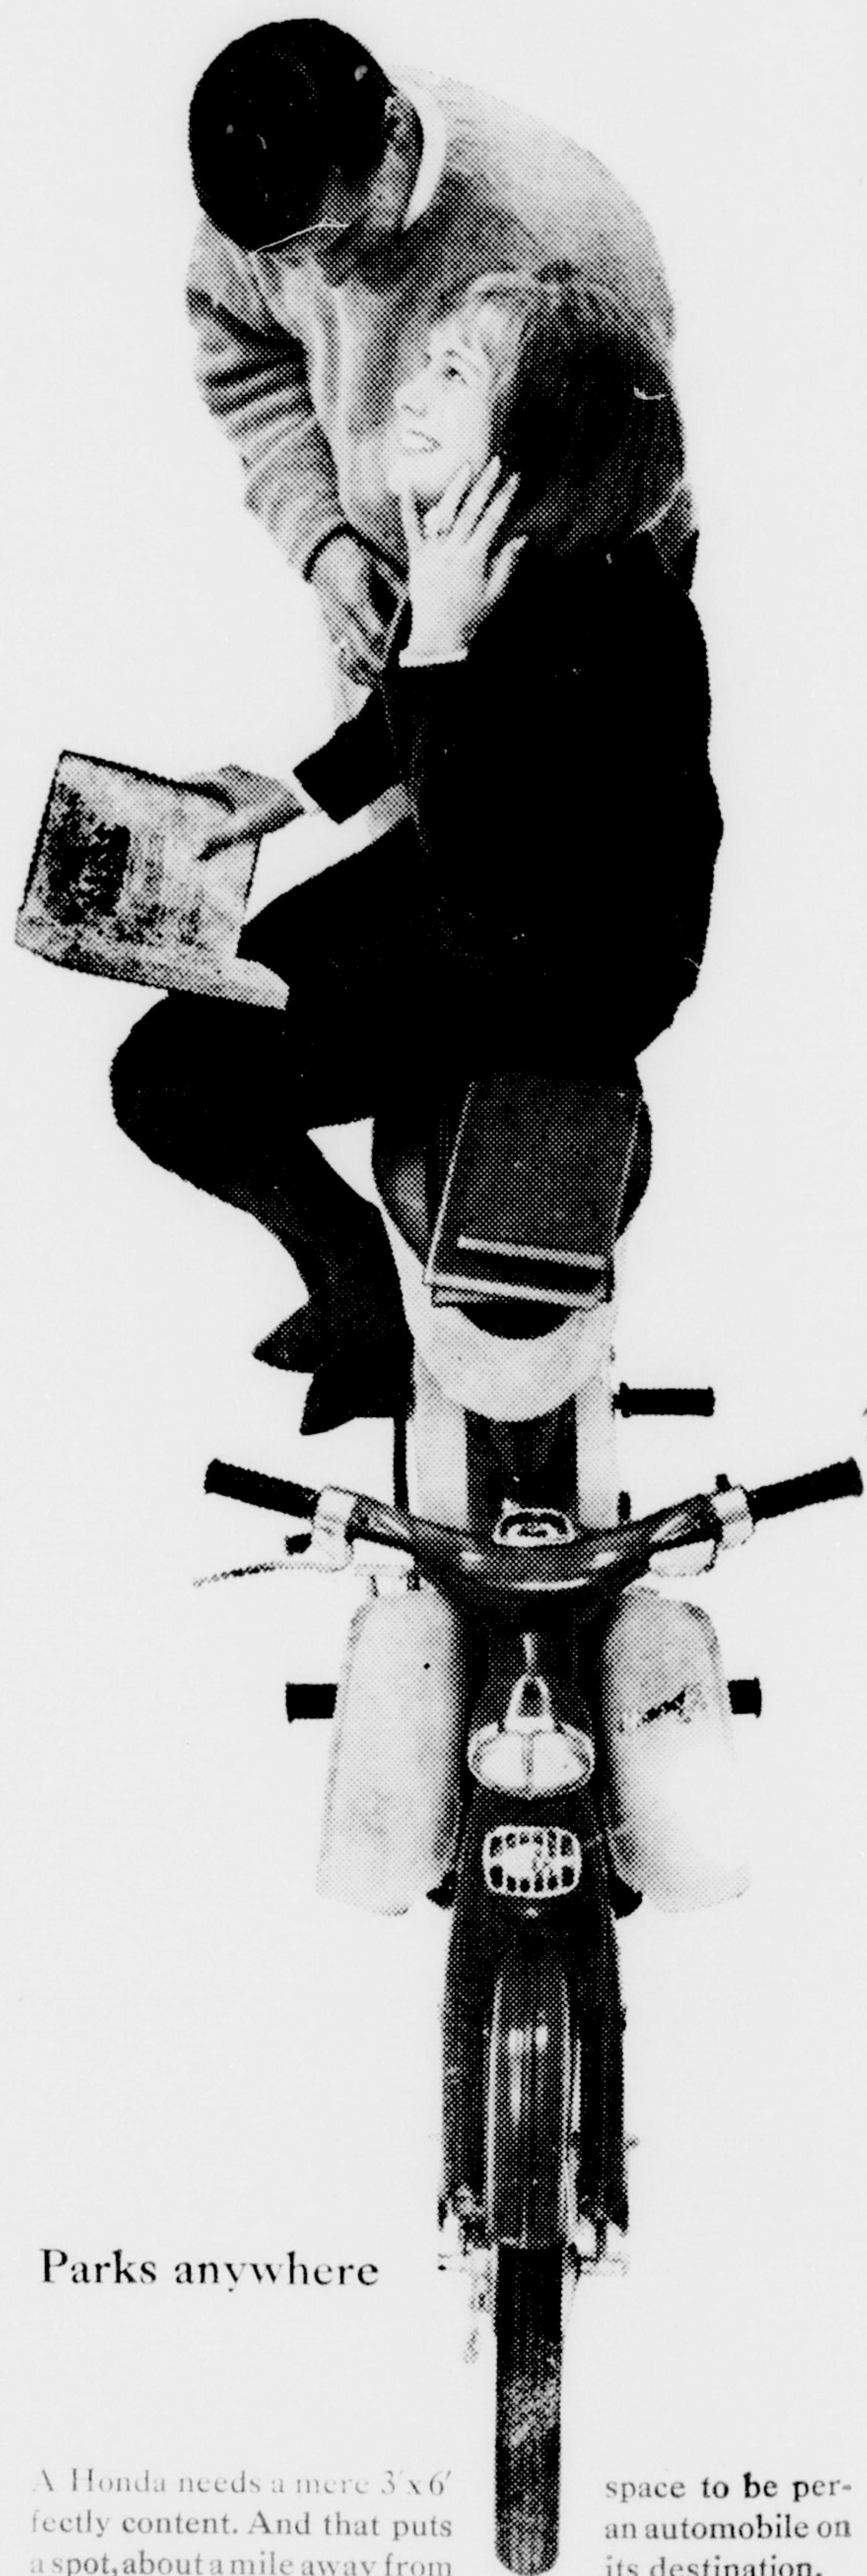

Elizabeth Watkins Houston, Tri-Sigma and one of the founders of the sorority at Longwood College in Virginia died recently in Hampton, Virginia.

Marylea Benware, a Kappa Kappa Gamma undergraduate from the University of Illinois, recently wrote an article for Bantas Greek Exchange entitled "It's Great To Be A Greek."

In it she so rightly stated: "Occasionally the opinion is voiced that the Greeks are 'cold,' and that they are calculating politicians. In my opinion, they are people who have had a taste of the game of getting ahead and can use resourceful and timely policies."

Parks anywhere

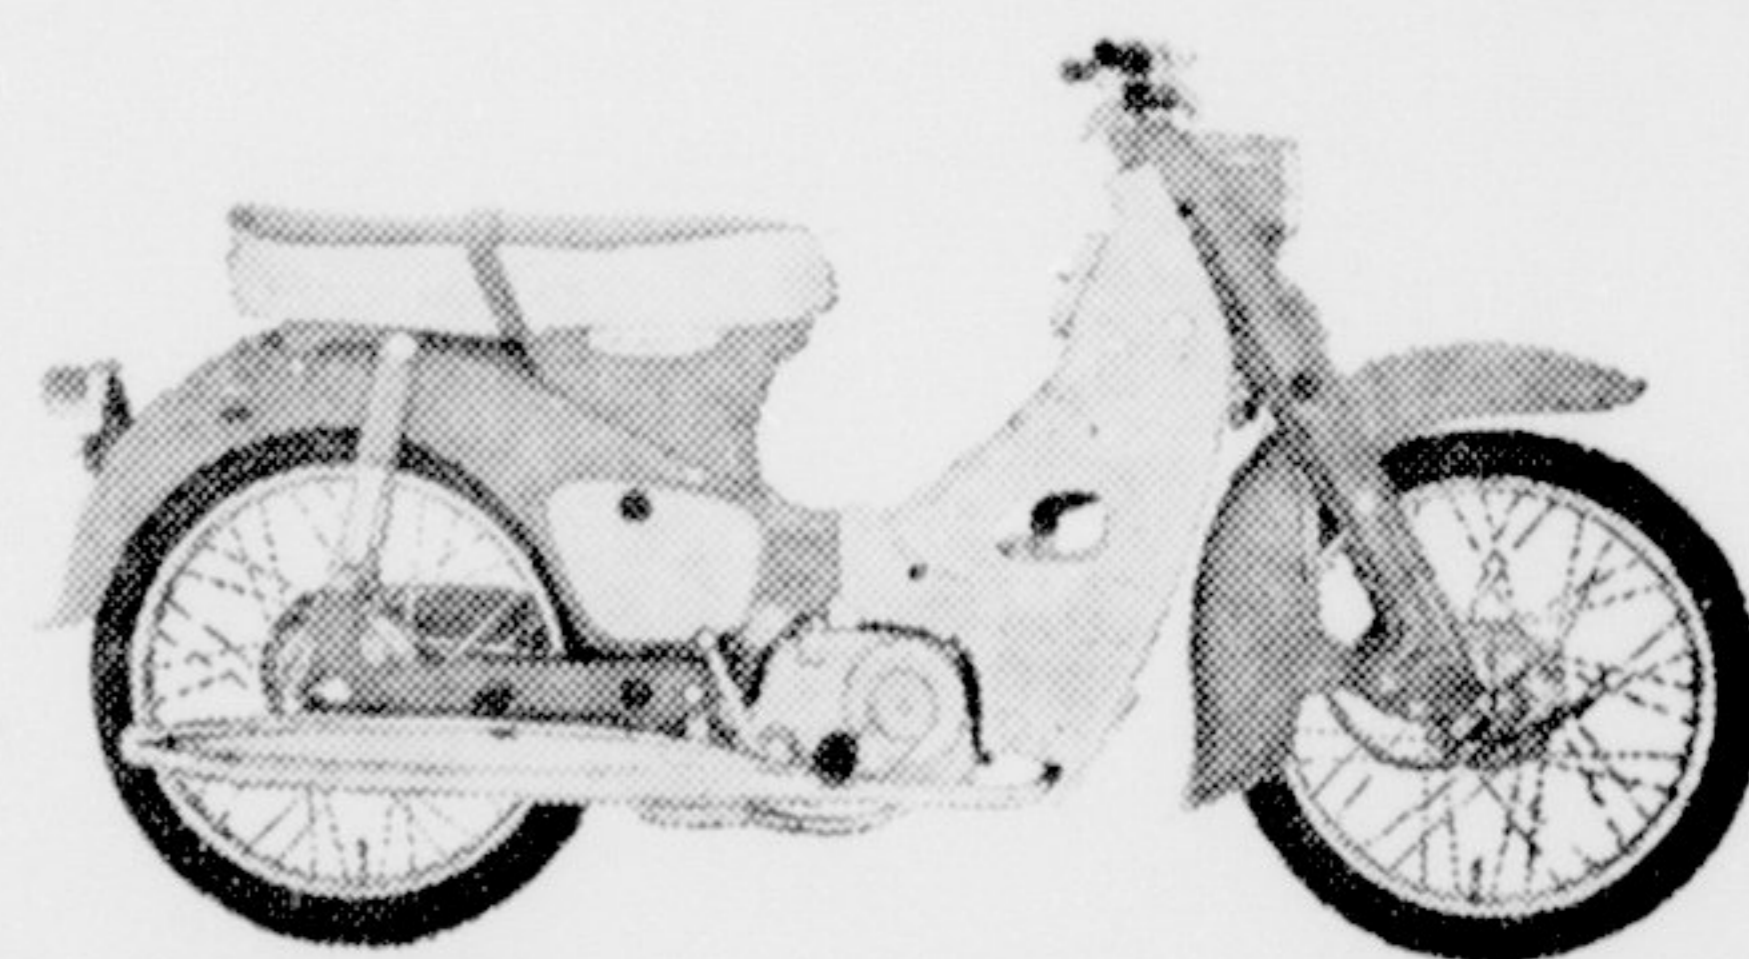

A Honda needs a mere 3' x 6' space to be perfectly content. And that puts a spot, about a mile away from its destination.

There are other sides to Honda, too. Hondas are fiendishly frugal. A gallon of gas will carry you up to 200 mpg, depending on which of the 15 Honda models you're driving. And insurance bills shrink to practically nothing. As for upkeep, a Honda needs little.

The shining example above is the remarkable Honda 50. It sells for about $215*. And there are 14 more models to choose from. Look them over.

Frat. Sponsors Party For Needy Children

The Tau Chapter of Phi Sigma Pi Honorary Men's Scholastic Fraternity of East Carolina College will sponsor a Christmas party for local needy children on Thursday, December 16. In attendance will be about thirty-five or forty Negro and white children, ages five to twelve, who will be treated to a fun-filled afternoon with Pepsis, cookies, candy, and small presents. The party will be held at the Salvation Army hall in town. Fraternity members and their dates will provide entertainment, which includes music, party games, a "visit" from Santa Claus, and Christmas carols.

The fraternity is giving the Christmas party as part of its program of service projects for the college and local community. Others are being planned for next year.

Phi Sigma Pi is essentially an honorary fraternity with the majority of its membership planning future careers in education. Being the oldest fraternity on the ECC campus, it embodies the highest ideals in scholarship, leadership, and fellowship. Phi Sigma Pi, on the college level, corresponds to Phi Beta Kappa on the university level.

The officers of the Tau Chapter of the fraternity for 1965-66 are as follows: President, Jim Scarlett; Vice-President, Garland Askew; Secretary, Henry Townsend; Treasurer, Dennis Eagen; Historian, Roland Tolley; Sergeant-at-arms, Dickie Elmore.

One of the busiest men on the East Carolina Campus is Bill Deal. A junior from Statesville, Deal has a double major of history and political science. He is pledging Theta Chi Social fraternity. Because he likes dorm life and, with his political aspirations, he resides in Scott Dormitory. He feels that it has and will continue to increase his knowledge of people and their problems.

Deal's college activities have included Freshman senator, Sophomore class president, the Appeals Board, the Men's Honor Council, the Budget Committee, the Spirit Committee, and the Social Standards Committee. He is presently engrossed in his job as Speaker of the Student Legislature, was created to take over much of the work of the President of the Student Government Association.

Being the controversial figure that he is, Deal stated that when issues come up to which he is strongly opposed or strongly favors, he takes "a firm stand on my beliefs and convictions, even to the point of criticism by the Administration and various students."

Commenting on the SGA, Deal said, "I think the SGA is functioning better than ever this year because of better organization and leadership."

He also stated that under the new system of legislature, he felt the SGA was "getting more assistance and consideration from the Administration on student complaints and problems than in the past."

Concerning his personal experiences in the SGA, Deal said, "I feel that my work with student government has been a primary factor in rounding out my college career by enabling me to meet and gain a knowledge of students."

Deal was recently chairman of the Tangerine Bowl Committee. He worked with the cheerleaders and the band, selling tangerines to raise money for the trip.

Although Deal's hobbies are hunting, horses, and water skiing, he spends his summers auctioneering. During the past few summers, he has sold everything from back-scratchers to diamond necklaces.

Last summer, in his spare time, Deal did a good bit of research on getting a bill introduced in the next General Assembly.

East-West Grants Open To Students

HONOLULU — Particularly crucial in Vietnam today, the shortage of Americans who speak Asian languages has long hampered U.S. diplomatic efforts in Asia.

Seeking to remedy this weakness, the East-West Center in Honolulu offers 100 full-expense scholarships annually to Americans interested in studying one of the languages of Asia.

EWC students study at the University of Hawaii with which the Center is affiliated. The Center has its own dormitories and American students are paired off with Asians to encourage East-West cultural interchange. Nineteen countries of Asia are represented in the student body.

EWC scholarships enable graduate students to complete their Master's degree in any field relating to Asia such as Asian art, religion, tropical agriculture, philosophy, history, political science and many other fields. All study an Asian language.

Qualified students may complete research and polish their language during a semester in Asia. Normally this field study occurs during the third semester of the grant.

For complete scholarship information, consult the Dean of your college or write to the Director of Student Selection, East-West Center, Honolulu, Hawaii 96822.

Can Bucs Spark Ailing SC?

By Randy Ryan

Now that we are in the Southern Conference, perhaps we should take a long look at the competition, past and present that has played in its ranks. No one can dispute that the conference has lost much of her past glory in football, although she still is producing some good clubs.

In the days of yesteryear, the Southern spanned ten states and stood as a giant on the grid iron, a frequent visitor to the Rose Bowl, the greatest and, by the way, the only post-season classic in the land. Any team that was considered a major football school in the South was seen in the Conference standings each week. First founded in 1921, the Southern survived two upheavals only to finally survive as a mere shadow of its former self, and like a grandmother in her fading years, watched her children grow in strength and prestige in football circles. Over expansion caused her fall as the ranks swelled until they became too cumbersome, giving rise to the first split in 1932. The 13 southern most colleges agreed to make the separation and form the Southeastern Conference. Thus the loss of Alabama, Louisiana State, Georgia Tech, Ole Miss, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, Auburn, Florida, Vanderbilt, Mississippi State, Tulane, and a lesser loss, Sewanee. The Southeastern of course now towers over its former parent, producing national champions and bowl teams each season.

The Southern set to work replenishing its ranks only to bring about the same situation 21 years later. Once again the conference was divided into those who won and those who didn't. This time the split gave birth to the Atlantic Coast Conference.

That was the final blow which left the Conference in the sad state into which it has fallen. Actually West Virginia is the only Southern Conference college that plays a truly big time college schedule in football and W.V. and Davidson were the only schools in basketball that amounted to anything on the national scene in the last decade. None of the teams have produced outstanding players with the exception of the two schools named and none of the schools appear to be headed in an upwards direction.

Take for example Furman, the only school to beat E.C. this season. How could the boys take that team too seriously when they played a schedule packed with such obvious powerhouses as Frederick, Wofford, Lehigh, Presbyterian, and Newberry? With a schedule like that it was a great feat for the Paladins to finish the season at 5-5. Or how about the great Richmond team with its perfect season, 9-0 and Citadel with a 2-3 slate, its only wins coming over Richmond and Furman. These schools are the lower quarters of the conference but just the same they should get beat by some decent schools, instead of Cow Crossing College.

I have great hopes that East Carolina will not be affected by this stagnated environment. President Jenkins has indicated that he supports athletics fully and hopes to see East Carolina match its academic growth with athletic growth. I won't say that we are the class of the conference but we may eventually be. Aside from the few serious competitors, the conference is sick. West Virginia plays as few conference games as possible, Virginia Tech pulled out because she wanted to play major ball. It will take time because EC is still growing and still has to measure up to the standards in sports besides football. But eventually we may triumph and then perhaps help bring the old Southern Conference into the spotlight once again.

Southern Conference Records Fall Before EC Swimming Team

A powerful UNC swimming team took a 66-23 victory over East Carolina here Saturday. The Pirates however are proving to be a strong Southern Conference squad early in the season. In the UNC meet they bettered their second S.C. mark as the 400 yard medley relay team of Tomberlin, Houghton, Hamilton, and Hewes swam the distance in 3:54.4. Individual times were 59.5; 63.3; 54.2; and 51.4. The old Southern Conference record was 3:54.5. Owen Paris also again bettered the listed S.C. time in the 200 yard individual medley, as he finished first in 2:12.6. Other firsts for EC were Fogle in the 200 fly and Tobin in the diving.

The results of the meet are:
400 medley relay: UNC (Houghton, Forum, Lipp, and Sleeper), 3:52.8;
200 freestyle: Worthen, UNC, 1:55.8; Sheldon, UNC; Cygan, ECC;
50 freestyle: Scattergood, UNC, 22.8; Norfleet, UNC; Jorgensen, ECC;
200 individual medley: Paris, ECC,

2:12.6; Domina, UNC; Hayden, UNC;

Victorious Frosh Swimmers Roll Over Grimsley High

By MIKE CONLEY

Coach Joel Shanabrough's freshman swimming demonstrated Friday night that they are the best first year team ever at EC, as they rolled over Grimsley High School, last year's state champs, 55-40. At the end of the 100 yard backstroke, EC led 49-21 and coasted into victory. Coach Shanabrough has done a great job of preparing this talented team which has strength in every event. In 1964 Coach Shanabrough brought a lot of prestige to East Carolina by placing first in the NCAA college division 400 yard individual medley. Besides his coaching, he is doing graduate work in geography at East Carolina.

The 200 yard medley relay team of Orders, Parker, Murphy, and Moody took first place with a time of 1:48.6. Orrell captured the 200 free style in 1:57.5 and Moody took the 50 in 24.2. Woodcock and Harman placed 1-2 in the diving for the Bucs. The butterfly was won by Laferty in 57.3 and Orrell tied Lindly of Grimsley in the 100 freestyle with 51.9. Grimsley came on strong at the end as Bernard won the 400 freestyle in 4:26.5. Acree the 100 breaststroke in 1:09.9 and the 400 freestyle relay team of Finn, Hudson, North, and Lindly won in 3:36.5.

The freshmen put in their best times and by the end of the year will probably break all past freshmen records with the possible exception of the 100 and 200 yard breaststroke.

East Carolina wrestlers practice for their match against Duke University tonight. The Pirates hope to better their winning season of last year during which they lost only three of their matches.

EC Matmen Take On Duke

East Carolina meets Duke tonight at 7:30 at the gym and it should be a fine contest. Last year the Pirates finished with a 6-3 slate. The Bucs opened last night against St. Andrews but the results were not available before we went to press.

There are four returning lettermen, two of which are the captains, Neel Linker and Guy Hagerty, Ray Perry and Jerry Williamson also return for the Bucs. Neel Linker won't be in action due to an injury he received in football, which may keep him out of action until February.

Last year Neel had a perfect record in regular season competition but was beaten in a tournament last March. He has lost only two matches in varsity competition, one in his sophomore year and one last year. Guy Hagerty had a 6-3 record for last season.
