EC Request Over 27 Million For Capital Improvement

Monday East Carolina College issued a request of $27,496,000 for capital improvements to the State Advisory Budget Commission.

Dr. Jenkins presented a list of 26 items showing classrooms and dormitories the most immediate needs.

This is the largest budget the commission has received during its current tour. It was based on a predicted enrollment of 9,000 this fall compared to 7,740 last year. Two months ago the school froze its enrollment for practical purposes.

Number one on the lists was a $45,000 request to supplement the 1965 appropriations for the ECC School of Nursing. Vice President and Business Manager F. D. Duncan explained that although bids had been let and construction is under way for the building, essential elements of the building were left out so that bids could be let.

Appropriations last year totaled $825,000 and the exclusions were made after bid proposals exceeded the money available.

The colleges administration is also requesting an additional $1,780,000 to double the size of the Biology and Physics building and $230,000 for the Home Economics building. Both structures are now in the planning stage.

Biology and Physics received a $2,070,000 allocation during the last biennium. Bids for the Home Economics building, which will be constructed adjacent to the School of Nursing, will be received in late summer or early fall and with present trends in construction costs, the additional funds will be needed.

The budget also requests $28,500 for an addition to the maintenance shop and $196,000 for alterations to the Whitchard Music Building, which will be converted into an annex to the administration building when the new music building is occupied.

The request asks for $1,135,000 for construction of a new laboratory school for the college. Wahl-Coates, which is located at the center of the campus, if the request is approved, will be vacated and converted into a college classroom building, with the new school to be located near ECC's south campus.

The request emphasizes the need for additional classroom space. Two buildings will more than double the size of any building now on campus for classrooms. Two were located high on the priority list, with two others listed lower.

There were three requests in the area of student housing. Two dormitories for 800 women and valued at $2,400,000 were requested along with one dormitory for 500 men, valued at $1,500,000. The third request was for 36 apartments for married students. These units, similar to those available at N.C. State University, will have one bedroom, a living room, bath and kitchenette.

The budget presented to the commission also includes requests for the renovation of Flanagan Building, $930,000; renovation of the college's electrical distribution system, $325,000; six all-weather tennis courts, $40,000; additions and alterations to the main cafeteria, $795,000; purchase of new land, $275,000; air conditioning for Graham Building, $77,500; additions to Jones Cafeteria on the Men's Campus, $235,000; equipment for the new music building, $210,000; campus drainage and development, $37,500; improvement of campus streets and walks, $24,500; a new auditorium, $1,090,000; and a new laundry building, $370,000.

1966 Summer Music Camp Convenes For Two Weeks

By CAROL ANN HONEYCUTT

The confused kids you've seen running around with badges the last couple of days are not really lost — well, not completely. They are the student body of the 1966 Summer Music Camp, an annual event sponsored by the School of Music of East Carolina College. The camp, in its twelfth year, is scheduled from July 17-30.

The youngsters, ages ranging from twelve through seventeen, are given the chance to perform in ensembles, choir, or band, as well as creative dance.

Evening activities for the campers include movies, dances, and special events, including concerts. Stunt Night, a semi-formal dance, and a chance to see a production of "The Sound of Music".

Dean of Girls, Mrs. Louise Winstead, is almost a tradition in the summer camp. Better known as "Ma", she has a heart of gold, but can get "mad as a hornet" if the occasion calls for it. The girls are accustomed to such remarks as "Get out of here, and don't let me catch you hanging around my girls again!" followed by, "Bless their hearts, they don't have anything better to do." Concerning this year's camp, Mrs. Winstead says the youngsters are off to a good start, and seem more mature than in past years. Her assistant is Mrs. Iris Leary, from Belhaven, North Carolina.

Mr. Robert Gaskins, Dean of Boys, is also a familiar face around the camp. Like Ma, he too can be stern or lenient, depending on the situation. He agrees that this year's camp promises to be one of the best yet. He is assisted by Mr. Ralph Shumaker.

Camp director is Mr. Herbert Carter, director of bands in the School of Music. Guest instructors come from high schools in North Carolina and surrounding states, as well as from our own faculty.

The camp also employs student assistants. This year's assistants for the boys are Joe Taylor, Marvin Piland, Paul Schrum, and Perry Norris. Girls' counselors are Marsha Beaman, Katie Howe, Mary Jeanne Carpenter, Gale Landis, Jeanne Smothers, and Carol Ann Honeycutt. Assistant for the choir is Julia O'Steen. All student assistants are selected from the School of Music.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, President of East Carolina College, presented a budget of $24,496,000 to the State Advisory Budget Commission.

Norwegian Scientist Lectures This Week

A prominent scientist and educator from Norway is guest lecturer this week for the Institute for Junior High School Teachers of Earth Sciences at East Carolina College.

Dr. Eigil Hestvedt, professor of meteorology at the University of Oslo, is giving one lecture a day, Monday through Friday, to the 40 participants.

The teachers represent the two Carolinas and Canada and the states of Alabama, California, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma, Virginia and Washington.

Dr. Hestvedt's lecture on "Clouds and Precipitation," "Physics of the Upper Atmosphere" and "Heating and Cooling of the Atmosphere" are scheduled from 8 to 10 a.m. each day in Room 209 of Flanagan Building.

Dr. Hestvedt helped to revise the study of meteorology at the University of Oslo, where he was awarded the PhD degree in 1961. Before he joined the faculty there, he was an associate professor at the University of Stockholm from 1961 to 1962.

His visit here is sponsored by the American Association for the Advancement of Science of Washington, D. C.

The institute, designed to provide basic instruction in earth science for those who are now teaching or soon will be teaching the subject, is an annual summer project of the ECC division of natural sciences. It is sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

Now in its fifth year, the institute is directed by Dr. Frank Eller, professor of science at ECC, who has been involved with NSF-supported programs each year for the past nine.

SGA Report

Approval of the Summer School Constitution was the main order of business at the July 18 meeting of the S.G.A. held in Third Floor Wright at 4:00 p.m.

The first order of business was a talk given by Donna Whitley, from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She explained about the Y.E.S. (Youth Educational Service) program and her efforts to organize one on the East Carolina College Campus. She felt that such a program could be very successful at East Carolina.

Jim Kimsey, S.G.A. President announced the candidates for the vacancies on the Men's Honor Council and the Student Legislature. For the Honor Council, Phillip Privett and John Byrum were nominated. Phillip Privett won the election. The people nominated for the legislature were Janice Richardson, Margaret Cates, Nancy Thompson, Frank Rice, John Meares, and Charles Vincent. Nancy Thompson and John Meares were elected to the legislature.

Then the discussion and debate over the constitution began with Kimsey reading the constitution to the legislature and the body voting on it article by article. The first debate was over the separation of powers part of the constitution. Ted Hooks, Nancy Thompson, Betty Caviness viced the disapproval of the section, while Donna Deans and Anna Bassford and Marion Morgan made remarks in the affirmative to the measure. Kimsey explained that if this part of the constitution was adopted that a member of one branch of the S.G.A. could not hold office in another branch of the Association. The section was called to a vote and it was defeated.

Kimsey then proceeded to read the rest of the constitution to the legislators. After much debate the constitution was finished and tabled to next week. (The Constitution is printed in its entirety in this issue of the East Carolinian).

Kimsey then called for announcements and Randy Ryan, regular term Sports Editor of the "East Carolinian", suggested that the invocation said at the beginning of the meeting be discontinued because it was unconstitutional. Kimsey asked if there was any objection to the invocation from the body but there was none. Kimsey further stated that since there was no objection from the body, the invocation would continue to be said, but that no one was required to participate in it. The meeting was then adjourned at 6:00 p.m.

Asian Studies Program Presents Dr. Wells

On Friday, July 22 at 10 o'clock A.M. in room 132 of New Austin building the Asian Studies Program of East Carolina will present guest lecturer Dr. Samuel F. Wells, assistant professor of history at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Dr. Wells will speak on United States diplomacy and strategy for East Asia, 1901-1909.

Professor Wells, a native of Reidsville, N.C., was graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1957, received his M.A. from Harvard in 1961, and will receive his Ph. D. in June of this year. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the Order of the Golden Fleece.

The Asian Studies Program, now in progress, provides the student with the opportunity to concentrate on the field of Asian Studies. Under the direction of Dr. Jung-Gun Kim of the Department of Political Science, the Program offers courses in Political Science, English, history and geography. Two more guest lecturers and two films will be part of the Program at a later date. The public is cordially invited to attend.

In an interview Dr. Jung-Gun Kim stated that the Asian Studies Program was a "mark of distinction for East Carolina and — an extremely timely and desirable program in view of the present world situation."

Undergraduate Night School Lays Plans For Third Year

The Undergraduate Evening College (UEC), freshman night school operated by the Extension Division of East Carolina College, has announced plans for its third year of operation.

The UEC will not follow the regular quarter terms on the campus. Instead, four eight-week terms will be offered from September through May.

Courses available and details of registration procedures are listed in a brochure available from the Extension Division offices on the ECC campus.

The course line-up includes classes in English, history, math, political science, psychology, geography and music. Each class will meet twice weekly during an eight-week term on either Monday and Wednesday or Tuesday and Thursday.

Class sessions will run from 7-9:50 p.m. The fall term, first of four eight-week terms scheduled in the 1966-67 school year, opens on Sept. 8.

Dr. David J. Middleton, director of the Extension Division, says the night school program, which uses regular campus classrooms, has proved successful during its first two years of operation.

"Many of our students," he points out, "completed their freshman work in our night classes last year and some of them are going ahead as students in the regular college this year."

The UEC program, established in 1964 by the Extension Division, is designed to offer a beginning college education to eligible persons who cannot attend the regular day program of the college.

In addition to the first term, the succeeding three terms are scheduled for Nov. 2-Jan. 18, Jan. 24-March 17, and March 23-May 19.

Any high school graduate is eligible to apply for UEC admission, according to Dr. Middleton. The program offers its students a basic college freshman course of study. Dr. Middleton points out that the program's class schedule is arranged so that students who hold down full-time jobs do not overload themselves with school work.

A full-time student can earn 10 quarter hours of credit each term. Thus in one UEC year he can accumulate 40 credit hours, roughly equal to what he could expect to complete in a regular college freshman year.

The parent campus, like most other colleges, will accept up to 47 hours of UEC credit to be applied toward a college diploma. That is about one-fourth of the requirement for a typical bachelor's degree.

Detailed information about the UEC program is available by telephoning or visiting the offices of the Extension Division in Rawl Annex on the ECC campus.

A Strong Foundation . . .

It is necessary for any government to have a set of rules or procedure to follow. These are usually combined into a constitution.

The summer school legislatures of the past have been more or less following the regular session constitution. A summer constitution does exist but it is outdated and designed for a small college, not a growing university.

The executive council and legislature of the SGA for this summer have taken it upon themselves to construct a new up-to-date constitution, hereby laying the foundation for an effective and progressive student government which looks toward the future instead of leaning on the past.

A copy of this constitution can be found on page 4 of this issue of the EAST CAROLINIAN. Many hours of research, planning, and deliberation have gone into the writing of this constitution. It is to the advantage of each student to read and consider this constitution. A well informed student body is the foundation for a stable student government working for your needs and wishes.

Many of the articles of the new constitution were debated vehemently by the legislature. This is an opportune time for you as a student to see your legislature and what your representatives are doing.

Next Thursday an election will be held in order for the students to voice their opinion about the constitution.

Just because this constitution is being presented to you for a vote does not mean it has to be accepted. It is your obligation to carefully consider the constitution, article by article, and through your vote express your approval or disapproval of each section.

This constitution was written to govern your life as a summer school student at East Carolina. Remember it's YOUR vote which will determine the governmental procedures of this as well as future summer school SGAs.

The constitution will appear again in next Thursday's paper.

Love On The Wing

By TED HOOKS

Remember that certain person whom you were just meant for and you finally won the game but, now it's all different.

Well, warm weather's here, the sap's rising, and fancies are turning one way or another while Cupid goes about his usual flair in the balmy nights of July.

Even our secret love, the girl who set the French language up for close study on college campuses went to the altar for the third time Thursday. Ah, BB.

And even Frank Sinatra (your mother's old flame) has hooked Mia Farrow and made shambles of the dreams of when she would wake up and realize that you are the only person who really cares.

And this is the way it goes even with your own certain someone.

You fell for her because she was so fragile and petite.
Now, she's weak and helpless.

He was gay and romantic.
Now, he's shiftless and fun loving.

Oh, but she was steady and sensible.
Today, she's boring and dull.

He was sweet and attentive.
Somehow, he turned spineless and indecisive.

He was so intelligent and witty.
Look now, he's so critical and wise-cracking.

She was such a beauty, a super sharp girl.
All she thinks about now is her looks.

He swept you off your feet.
Now, he knocks you off your feet.

What a tangled web we weave in the good ole summertime.

Yes Virginia, There Is Hope

By Frisby Hendricks

Last week, a fresh breeze of air came through the state of Virginia. This breeze had not passed through the state for 45 years and every Virginian was affected by it. However, Virginians were not the only ones to be affected by this change. A new Virginia is rising and thus it will affect the South, the nation and the world.

This change was the first real blow to the now crumbling Byrd Machine. For our North Carolina readers who have been fortunate enough not to have lived under a political machine, we would like to say a few words about it. The Byrd Machine is the last of two remaining political machines in the United States.

One of the humorous notes of the 1964 North Carolina gubernatorial Democratic Primary was the accusation that the "Sanford Machine" was supporting L. Richardson Preyer. We are not history majors, but we can easily say that there has not been a real machine in North Carolina in the past decade.

Virginia is known for its clean politics. The state has not had any scandals as some states have had. But this is where the advantages of the Byrd Machine stop. In all other categories, it has hindered the state in every area. Senator Harry F. Byrd, Sr. has held back a state that could have been the leading state in the South in economical and racial areas. Virginia is steeped in tradition and thus she has a difficulty when facing the future. Had the Byrd Machine taken progressive steps, the state could have overcome this problem.

The citizens of Virginia have now given their support to Mr. Spong, Mr. Rawlings, and other progressive leaders in order for the state to join the nation again in facing current problems. In a few years, the remaining wheel of the machine, Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr., will stop turning.

THE POWER OF VOTING

The Rise and Fall of the Byrd Machine has a personal note for us. For ten years, we have been supporting the opponents of Byrd, Robertson, and Smith. Although we were able to meet these men, assist them in their campaign headquarters, and give them moral support, we were never able to vote for them. Two days before the Virginia Democratic Primary, we turned twenty-one. This entitled us the privilege of voting and it is indeed a privilege we treasure. When we walked into the precinct headquarters with our parents, heard our names called, and marked our ballots in the voting booth, we felt a warm pride in being an American. It was a proud moment for us. When the results came in and we saw that Sen. William B. Spong won the election by a 147 vote margin, we realized the strength of our ONE VOTE.

From The Right

An Old-Fashioned Belief

By John Meares

Raymond Hilliard died last week in Chicago of a heart attack. Raymond Hilliard was a welfare administrator who held the old-fashioned belief that the able-bodied should work for their relief checks, and went as far to find employment for the people on relief.

I bring up this belief of Mr. Hilliard's because today a lot of people believe that the Federal Government owes them a living. It is this concept that I think needs to be corrected. First of all, this Nation was founded on individual initiative with a free-enterprise, capitalistic system. This nation WAS NOT FORMED on a doctrine of Collectivism and Socialism such as the Soviet Union.

Secondly, there are those who will not work if they know that the Federal Government is going to subsidize them. Here is the rub; while those non-workers sit back and watch their "dollar-down-dollar-a-week" television sets, it is the majority of the people who work hard all their lives, and pay the taxes that make possible these television payments. The only time that these people do any work happens to be when they go to pick up their welfare checks.

When Lewis Carroll wrote the delightful children's book, THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS, he sought to emphasize the absurdity of paying attention to those who say one thing and mean another. So he had the ridiculous Humpty Dumpty orate to the effect that when he (Humpty Dumpty) used a word, it meant precisely what he chose it to mean, nothing more and nothing less.

We have been overrun by Humpty Dumpties. Click off the catchphrases, and the picture becomes clear. "Non-violence" has come to mean the use of switch-blade knives, the hurling of brickbats, the looting and destruction of stores and shops. "Peace" is now a matter of fighting and dying in an undeclared war on foreign soil. "Equal-ty, is the process of denying another man his property rights by Supreme Court. "Freedom" is what those 8,000 students at the University of California were enjoying when they participated in a riot. "Morality" is what a preacher at Goucher College was talking about when he told the girl students that sex relations before marriage were just fine — if entered into "responsibly". And "responsibility" is merely a matter of doing anything you want to do — just as long as you persuade yourself that it's all right.

Humpty Dumpty was born too soon. In 1956 he would have been in the running for the Nobel Peace Prize. He might even have been elected to a high public office.

In anybody's book, even THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS, these are daffy definitions. And apparently hardly anybody in this daffy nation bothers to challenge them. Who besides Humpty Dumpty, do you suppose, is heading for a great fall?

International Prospective

Islands Of Trouble

By Mike Conley

An island of turmoil and trouble lies in the Caribbean between Cuba and Puerto Rico. Hispaniola contains two nations, Haiti and the Dominican Republic, which present serious problems to America's Latin American policy. Haiti was the first American nation to follow the lead of the United States and win its independence from European colonialism, becoming the first Negro republic in the world. When the U.S. practiced "dollar diplomacy" in the first part of this century, American troops occupied both of these countries. The period of U.S. occupation of the Dominican Republic was followed by three decades of dictatorship and the return of U.S. Marines in 1965.

The poorest country in the Western Hemisphere with a per capita income of less than seventy dollars a year, Haiti is a dictatorship under the control of Francois Duvalier. Many foreign observers believe that Papa Doc, as he is known by his people, is aided in his rule by the practice of "voodoo" which is still powerful in this chiefly rural land. President Duvalier denies this. But whether or not he takes advantage of "black magic," he maintains complete power in his country through a police state.

Since the assassination of dictator Trujillo in 1961, the Dominican Republic has been torn by political strife. Rightist elements supported by the wealthy landowners who oppose change and the military which fears communism has battled the leftist whose main support is in the cities, especially Santo Domingo the capital and largest city. Fighting broke out in the spring of 1965, when the military ousted the government of President Reid Cabral. U.S. Marines were sent into the country by President Johnson because he believed they were necessary to protect American lives and to prevent a communist take-over.

Latin American reaction to America's unilateral action was immediate and angry and was only partially modified after the Organization of American States agreed to assume responsibility for the peace-keeping operation.

The officials who formulated the U.S. policy of intervention are claiming that it was successful. Vice President Humphrey's appearance at the inauguration of the new president is a clear indication of the Johnson administration's happiness over the outcome of the recent election. Other U.S. Latin American observers are disturbed, however, because of President Balaguer's past close association with Trujillo and because they doubt that the new president has both the courage and the ability to press for badly needed reforms in the face of strong opposition from the land owners and the military. They were cheered though by President Balaguer's call for reform in his inaugural message while the landowners and military sat with glum faces.

Both Haiti and the Dominican Republic are going to require substantial U.S. aid and responsible governments willing and able to carry out reforms. If both of these conditions are not met, the historical pattern of violence will undoubtedly continue.

Two Maintenance Workers Still Remember Back-When

By TED HOOKS
Managing Editor

Mr. Namon Little pushed his straw hat back, wiped the sweat from his brow, and chuckled, "Business has been picking up."

Mr. Little is one of the maintenance men who keeps East Carolina clean. His friendly face has been familiar to EC students for 18 years.

For these past years he has noticed the dynamic growth of the campus and his legs have felt it, no doubt, because he covers every foot of the campus in his daily litter pick-ups.

Notice

For Rent: Bedroom with bath, close to campus. Call 752-4006 after 5:00 p.m.

For Rent: Nicely Furnished Apartment available to couple near college and downtown. Call Mrs. D. M. Clark, 409 Holly Street at 7523447.

For sale or rent: Windsor 2 bedroom trailer, air condition glass sliding front door, T.V. built in radio, can be seen at Hill Crest Trailer Park. Carpet in living room. Washing Machine included. 1400 East 10 Street, Greenville N. C.

Another maintenance man who has kept the EC campus spotless is John Henry Corey, who came here in 1934.

John Henry and Namon rested on the concrete steps and ruminated of the bygone years.

"That storage building over there behind the laundry was where we kept our 6 mules for farming the land near the gym. We had hogs and pigs, too. The produce was sent over to the cafeteria, along with the ham and barbeque for the students to eat," they said.

"When I first came here in 34, there were only girls here and not many of them. After the war, the boys started coming and they first stayed in the bottom of Ragsdale. From there they moved to Wilson Hall and Umstead."

"Everything but Wright building was farm land on this side," they pointed out.

"But that fountain has been here longer than anybody," laughed John Henry.

Do these men and their co-workers notice the efforts of students who take pride in their clean campus?

Yes, they do.

"We like the East Carolina students because they do try to use the litter baskets placed on campus," they remarked.

"Man, this campus has really grown, especially in the last few years. It hasn't been long since the boys played their football games over beside New Austin."

John Henry pulled at his overall straps and said, "I remember when the infirmary was in the present Alumni Building over in front of Old Austin and that's way before your time."

Considering the shape of our infirmary today, I'd say that was before the college was founded.

With the spread of new buildings and student population swelling by the thousands one would think that the maintenance would be the last to say they like to watch it grow.

Not so.

These men take pride in their jobs just as the students take pride in their free campus.

John Henry and Namon had finished another day.

"Thinking about the old campus makes me feel older than my time," said the men as they closed up shop.

EC Students Draw Plans For Hometown Peace Corps

"Right now, the program for East Carolina is on the drawing boards, but we see a tremendous potential on campus to organize a tutoring society for the culturally deprived children in Greenville," explained Miss Donna Whitley who spearheads a similar program in Greensboro.

In addressing the student legislature, Donna Whitley was speaking of Tutorial projects run by college students in the war on poverty.

"Our plans are first to find interested students to volunteer their time in helping others to help themselves."

"Other programs throughout the state have shown phenomenal success and the college students are having fun working with the kids."

Donna mused the fact that the word Tutorial has a connotation of "just brains" and emphasized that the only requirements are interest and an ability to communicate with someone else. The leaders in these programs are young college graduates. All necessary materials, which are few in number come from the Youth Educational Service operating out of Durham.

The objective of starting a Tutorial Society on campus is to help the kids get interested in education. "All they need is a little encouragement from someone they can look up to," she said.

Donna who is enrolled in summer school at EC said, "We have found that the best method is picture stories in magazines and newspapers, and even baseball cards and small plays to spur the interests of these culturally deprived children."

"These things mean something to the children. A tutor just has to play it by ear."

"Most of these kids have a negative attitude about themselves and their ability to do anything. They need to express themselves and be rewarded by praise, which comes rarely."

The student government agreed with Donna that this is a tremendous opportunity for East Carolina to further improve the college's role in the Greenville communities.

All students who have the interest to do something about getting a Tutorial Society started on campus should come by and talk with President Jim Kimsey in the SGA offices.

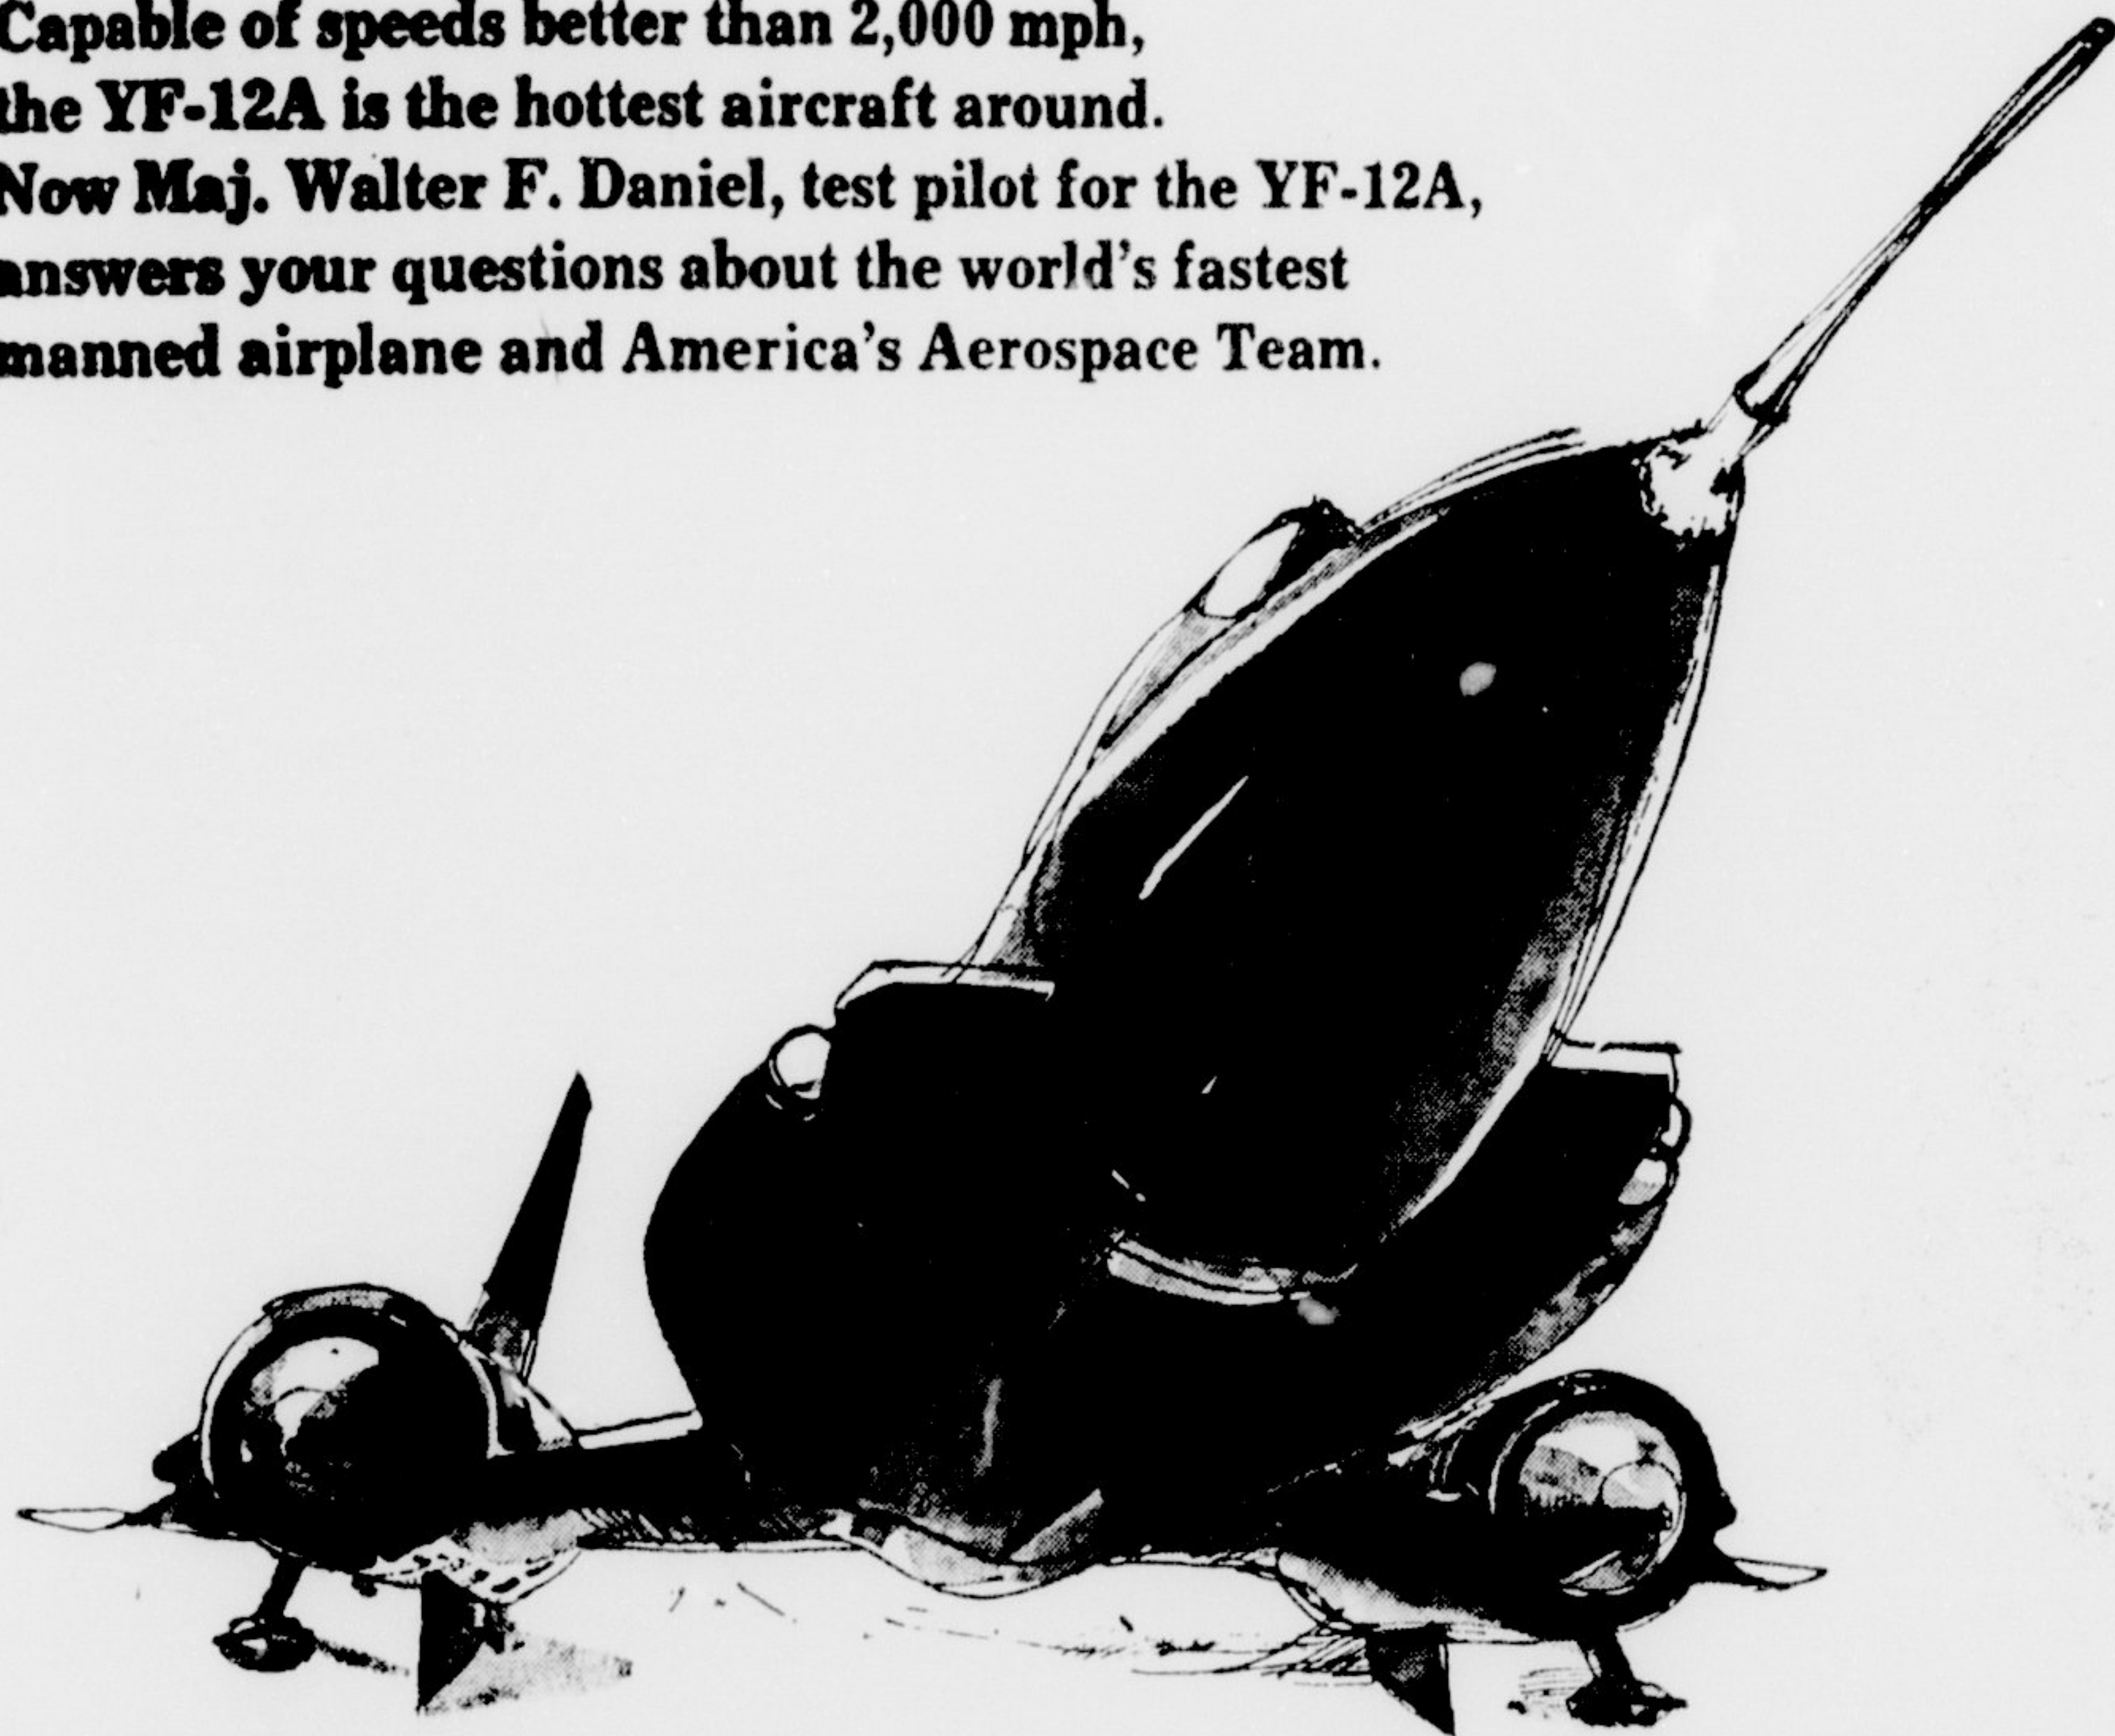

The time to start is now.

Capable of speeds better than 2,000 mph, the YF-12A is the hottest aircraft around. Now Maj. Walter F. Daniel, test pilot for the YF-12A, answers your questions about the world's fastest manned airplane and America's Aerospace Team.

(Maj. Daniel, a test pilot since 1954, is a member of the Society of Experimental Test Pilots. He received a B.S. degree in Aeronautical Engineering from the University of Oklahoma. In February 1962, he set world class time-to-climb records in a T-38 jet trainer.)

Is the YF-12A the world's fastest manned aircraft? It certainly is. On May 1 of this year the YF-12A (formerly known as the A-11) reclaimed the world absolute speed record from the USSR. It was clocked at 2,062 mph over Edwards Air Force Base.

How big is the YF-12A?

The exact dimensions of the YF-12A have not been released yet. But it's approximately 100 feet long, with about a 50-foot wingspan. That's half again as big as our present interceptors!

Is the Air Force training many men as pilots these days?

Yes, very definitely. In spite of all you hear about unmanned vehicles, the human pilot is still very much in the picture. As a matter of fact, the Air Force pilot quota is on the increase.

What other kinds of jobs does the Air Force offer? Since it's one of the world's foremost technological organizations, the Air Force has plenty of openings for scientists and engineers. There are also many challenging and varied administrative-managerial positions.

What do I have to do to become an Air Force officer?

Air Force ROTC is the best way to get started as an Air Force officer. The new two-year Air Force ROTC program makes this method available to men who have already completed a year or two of their college education. For college graduates, if you did not take advantage of ROTC, you can still get started through Air Force Officer Training School (OTS), a three-month course open to both men and women.

Can I keep up my studies while I'm in the Air Force?

The Air Force encourages its men and women to continue their educations. For instance, you may qualify to study for a graduate degree during off-duty hours, with the Air Force paying a substantial part of the tuition.

What kind of future do I have in the Air Force? A bright one. As we move further into the Aerospace Age, the Air Force is going to grow even more important. And you can grow with it!

United States Air Force.

Summer School Constitution

SUMMER SCHOOL STUDENT GOVERNMENT CONSTITUTION PREAMBLE

With resolute determination to preserve the best in our tradition of responsible student self-government, we assert our goals are to preserve order, make personal freedom secure, establish justice, and win a lasting opportunity for responsible individual and collective action; and to these ends we ordain and establish this constitution for the student body of East Carolina College.

ARTICLE I: LEGISLATIVE

Section 1. Supreme Legislative Power. Supreme legislative power in the student body shall be vested in a Student Legislature.

Section 2. Representation in the Student Legislature shall be based on the following scheme:

A. Eleven students at large from the student body.

B. One representative from each political division of every occupied dormitory.

C. The four (4) executive officers.

D. The term of office will be both sessions of summer school in which one is elected.

E. The installation of all representatives and executive officers shall be not more than two weeks after the first class day of the first session of summer school.

F. All representatives at the time of their election and during their term of office:

1. Shall have and maintain a "C" average.

2. Shall be a full-time student at East Carolina College.

3. Shall be a student in good standing at East Carolina College (any student not on disciplinary probation).

Section 3. Speaker. The Speaker of the Summer School Student Legislature shall be the President of the Student Government Association of summer school. The Speaker shall have the power to fill any vacancies which may occur on the Legislature until an election shall be held to fill such vacancies. The Legislature shall approve said appointments by the Speaker.

Section 4. Powers. The Student Legislature shall have these powers:

A. To appropriate funds for the following purposes:

1. Student publications.

2. All agencies of student government.

3. Such extra-curricular activities as it shall deem compatible with the general welfare of the student body.

4. Payment of all salaried positions sponsored by the student government.

All funds appropriated for use, but not expended during a given fiscal year, shall revert to the general surplus.

B. To approve or reject by a majority vote all appointments made by the president of the Student Government Association.

C. To override a presidential veto.

D. To establish procedures for the execution of its business.

E. To approve laws governing student government elections.

F. To impeach and remove from office any elected student official.

G. To require reports from the standing committees and from all organizations receiving appropriations from the Legislature.

H. To make all laws necessary and proper to promote the general welfare of the student body.

I. To elect members of the Men's and Women's Judicial Councils.

Section 5. The By-Laws of all organizations receiving funds from the Student Legislature shall be subject yearly to review and approval by the Student Legislature.

Section 6. The President of East Carolina College shall have the final veto power over the legislative action.

Section 7. The Dean of Student Affairs and the Assistant Dean of Student Affairs shall act as legislative advisors.

ARTICLE II: JUDICIARY

Section 1. Judiciary Bodies Established. The judicial power shall be vested in a Women's Judicial Council, a Men's Judicial Council, a Joint Judicial Council, and a Review Board.

Section 2. Student Responsibility and the Responsibility of the Attorney General. It shall be the responsibility of every student at East Carolina College to obey the Honor Code prohibiting lying, cheating, or stealing. It shall be the further responsibility of every student to abide by the campus code by conducting herself or himself as a lady or gentleman at all times, and insofar as it may be appropriate, by seeing that his fellow students do likewise. The attorney generals shall be appointed by the respective deans to investigate and prosecute for the Men's Judicial Council, the Women's Judicial Council, the Joint Judicial Council, and the Review Board.

Section 3. Jurisdiction, Power, Duties.

A. Women's House Councils. All infractions of dormitory rules and regulations shall be disposed of by the respective Dormitory House Councils. Any verdict of the councils may be appealed at the Women's Judicial Council.

B. Men's Residence Council Court. All infractions of the dormitory rules and regulations for men students shall be disposed of by the Men's Council Court. Any verdict of this council may be appealed to the Men's Judicial Council.

C. Men's Judicial Council. The Men's Judicial Council shall have original jurisdiction in matters concerning discipline of men students and honor code offenses. The Men's Judicial Council shall have appellate jurisdiction in all appeals from the Men's Residence Council Court. It shall be the duty of the Men's Judicial Council to act within its jurisdiction on cases referred to it by any member of the student body, faculty, staff, or administration.

The Men's Judicial Council shall act only when there are two-thirds of its total membership present for the meeting, discussion, and decision. Any student who feels that his sentence is unfair may appeal his case to the Review Board.

D. Women's Judicial Council. The Women's Judicial Council shall have original jurisdiction in matters concerning discipline of women students and honor code offenses. The Women's Judicial Council shall have appellate jurisdiction in all appeals from the Women's House Council. It shall be the duty of the Women's Judicial Council to act within its jurisdiction on cases referred to it by any member of the student body, faculty, staff, or administration. The Women's Judicial Council shall act only when there are two-thirds of its total membership present for the meeting, discussion, and decision. Any student who feels that her sentence is unfair may appeal her case to the Review Board.

E. Joint Judicial Council. The Joint Judicial Council shall have original jurisdiction in all cases involving infractions of the Honor Code, classroom decorum, or falsification of records, and in cases involving suspension or expulsion of both men and women students. The Joint Judicial Council shall act on cases within its jurisdiction referred to it by any member of the student body, faculty, staff, or administration. All members of the Joint Judicial Council must be present for the Joint Judicial Council to be considered in session. Any student who feels that his sentence is unfair may appeal his case to the Review Board.

F. The Review Board. The Review Board shall have appellate jurisdiction from the Men's Judicial Council, the Women's Judicial Council, and the Joint Judicial Council. The Review Board shall act on appeals from said councils. All appeals of this board will be made directly to the President of East Carolina College.

Section 4. Student Rights.

A. Presumption of innocence until proven guilty.

B. The right to due notice, which shall be defined in 72 hours, and a fair trial.

C. The right to face the accuser.

D. The privilege of presenting witnesses in his behalf.

E. The right to active or passive counsel for his defense.

F. The right to be judged by a council of students.

G. The right of appeal.

H. Protection against self-incrimination.

ARTICLE III: EXECUTIVE

Section 1. Officers. The executive officers shall consist of a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, and a Treasurer.

A. Qualifications for Officers. 1. The president shall have been in attendance as a student at East Carolina College for at least three (3) consecutive quarters preceding his election, shall have completed ninety-six (96) quarter hours by the end of the quarter in which he is elected, and shall have and maintain a "C" average.

2. The vice-president shall meet the same requirements as the president.

3. The secretary shall be a member of any classification and shall have and maintain a "C" average.

4. The treasurer shall have been in attendance as a student at East Carolina College for at least three (3) consecutive quarters preceding his election, shall have completed forty-three (43) quarter hours by the end of the quarter in which he is elected, and shall have and maintain a "C" average.

B. Powers of the president. 1. To make recommendations to the Student Legislature. 2. To administer and enforce laws enacted by the Student Legislature. 3. To veto acts of the Student Legislature provided that the president shall exercise such power of veto within seven (7) school days after the bill is received by him. 4. To call and preside at meetings of the student body. 5. To serve as an ex-officio member of all standing executive committees. 6. To call emergency sessions of the Legislature, provided that he notify the Legislature twenty-four (24) hours in advance of the proposed session. 7. To issue orders to standing executive committees and to require reports from them. 8. To represent the student body of East Carolina College in dealing with the students of other schools, with the faculty, and with the administration. 9. To appoint chairmen of all standing executive committees, submitting initial appointments to the Student Legislature within four (4) days after taking office. 10. To establish such bodies subsidiary to him as he shall deem necessary and proper to aid him in the performance of his duties. 11. To do whatever is necessary and proper to carry out the provisions of this constitution.

C. Duties of Officers. 1. President. a. To be in his office at least two (2) specified hours of every school day. b. To perform all other duties incident to such office. 2. Vice President. a. To perform the duties and execute the powers of the president in the event of his absence or incapacity. b. To succeed to the office of president should that office become vacant, in which event the office of vice-president shall remain vacant pending an election. c. To serve as chairman of a committee to promote the sale of college rings. d. To be in his office at least one (1) specified hour of every school day. e. To perform all other duties incident to such office. 3. Secretary. a. To take minutes of all legislative sessions and to keep same in permanent form. b. To handle all legislative correspondence. c. To have available for legislators and executive officers copies of minutes of all legislative meetings and to insure that copies of all minutes are sent to the following persons no later than three (3) days following the meeting: Dean of Student Affairs, Dean of Men, Dean of Women, President of East Carolina College, Editor of the East Carolinian, All dormitory counselors, President of the Student Government Association. d. To perform all other duties incident to such office. 4. Treasurer. a. To be directly responsible to the Legislature for all financial transactions that may be in question. b. To affix his official signature on all checks issued by the Student Fund Accounting Office. c. To confer with the Student Fund Accounting Office accountant each school day to transact necessary business. d. To insure that budgets are sent to the Legislature for approval. e. To sign all requisitions for organizations sponsored by the Student Government Association. f. To check the inventory of any organization sponsored by the Student Government Association after a change in its executive staff and at the end of the school year. g. To insure that copies of all budgets are available to the executive officers of the Student Government Association. h. To keep up-to-date records of all transactions of the Student Government Association. i. To keep all organizations informed of their financial standing. j. To be in his office at least one specified hour each day. k. To perform all other duties incident to such office.

Section 2. Executive Council. A. The Executive Council shall consist of the executive officers of the Student Government Association and one member at large from the Student Legislature.

B. Duties of the Executive Council. 1. To coordinate the actions of its members. 2. To be responsible for employing and discharging all full-time employees of the Student Government Association. 3. To recommend to the Legislature for approval the constitutions of all standing committees and SGA organizations.

ARTICLE IV: ELECTIONS, RECALL, INITIATIVE, AND REVIEW

Section 1. Elections. All elections of student government officers, judicial members, and legislative members shall come under the jurisdiction of the Elections Committee Constitution which shall be approved by two-thirds (2-3) of the Student Legislature.

Section 2. Oath of Office. All student government officers, judicial members, and legislative members shall take the following oath: "I hereby pledge myself to promote in East Carolina College the highest ideals of honor, both by my personal conduct and by fulfilling to the best of my ability the duties of my office."

Section 3. Recall. The student body shall have the power to recall any officer elected by that body under this constitution. The petition to recall shall be handed to the president of the student body and shall not be valid unless it contains the signatures of at least fifteen (15) percent of the student body. The president shall, if he determines the petition to be in good order within the limitations of this constitution, direct the Elections Committee to conduct an election for the officer in question, in which election the officer in question shall have the right to be a candidate. The incumbent shall continue in office until the election returns shall be officially announced.

Section 4. Initiative. The student body shall have the power to initiate any act within the power of the Student Legislature, provided that ten (10) percent of the student body shall sign a petition calling for consideration of a bill which they shall submit in writing with the petition to the president of the student body. The president shall, if he determines the petition to be in good order within the limitations of this constitution, direct the Elections Committee to conduct an election on the bill in not less than six nor more than fourteen days after he received the petition on the bill. Public notice of such election shall be given not less than four days before it shall take place. A majority of the votes cast at the election shall be sufficient to pass the bill.

Section 5. Review. The student body shall have the power to call for a ballot on any act of the Student Legislature, provided that a petition calling for the ballot and specifying in writing the action which the referendum is to take shall be signed by ten (10) percent of the student body and transmitted in writing to the president of the student body. The president shall, if he determines the petition to be in good order within the limitations of this constitution, direct the Elections Committee to conduct an election on the act in not less than six nor more than fourteen days after he received the petition. Public notice of such election shall be given not less than four days before it shall take place. A majority of the votes cast at the election shall be sufficient to pass the bill.

ARTICLE V: AMENDMENT PROCEDURE

Section 1. All amendments to this constitution must be proposed by one of the following methods: A. By a vote of two-thirds (2-3) of the membership of the Legislature after being tabled for at least one week.

B. By a petition presented in writing to the President of the Student Government Association carrying the signature of ten (10) percent of the membership of the student body.

Section 2. Proposed amendments to this constitution must be published in the official student newspaper in all issues one week prior to the date on which a vote is taken by the student body.

Section 3. Proposed amendments to this constitution shall be adopted by a two-thirds (2-3) majority of the students voting in a student body election.

Section 4. All amendments to this constitution shall be incorporated by the method of deletion and/or substitution, and those amendments which are additive shall be placed in additional sections or paragraphs in the article to which pertain.

Section 5. After complying with Sections 1 through 4, all amendments shall become effective immediately unless otherwise specified.

ARTICLE VI: BRANCH AUTHORIZATION

All branches of the Student Government Association shall submit to the Legislature for majority approval a set of appropriate rules to govern the respective branches and their committees.

ARTICLE VII: BY-LAWS

By-Laws to this constitution shall become valid when passed by a two-thirds (2-3) majority of the Student Legislature, providing the motion has been tabled for two weeks.

ARTICLE VIII: SUPREME STUDENT LAW

Section 1. Constitution and Laws Supreme. This constitution and all laws enacted thereto shall be the supreme student law.

Section 2. Present Laws and Rules. All laws enacted by the Student Legislature and all rules passed by the various constitutionally established agencies of student government shall continue in full force unless in direct conflict with this constitution.

ARTICLE IX: RATIFICATION AND APPROVAL

This constitution shall be ratified by two-thirds (2-3) majority vote of the Student Legislature.

BY-LAWS

I. The financial responsibility of the Student Government Association toward maintenance of the student bank shall be one-fourth (1-4) of one-half (1-2) of the teller's salary during the summer session.

II. The surplus funds remaining in the bank at the end of spring quarter will be available in an equal amount in the fall; that is, Summer School SGA may not appropriate funds left by the Regular Term SGA.

III. The member at large of the executive council shall be elected in the following manner.

A. The Executive Council shall select three people from the Student Legislature.

B. Their three names will be presented to the Legislature for vote by secret ballot.

C. The person receiving 59 percent plus one (1) of the total votes cast shall be elected. If, on the first ballot, no one receives the required number of votes, the person with the lowest number of votes will be dropped from the second ballot and the election shall proceed in the usual manner.

Theatre Presents 'Sound Of Music'

Critic Calls Production Splendid, Exultant, Glorious

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Adams is a member of the East Carolina College English faculty and a regular reviewer of theater for the college news bureau.)

By FRANK ADAMS

The East Carolina College Summer Theatre brings to McGinnis Auditorium "The Sound of Music" and the love of life.

First among Director Ed Loessin's collaborators is Richard Rodgers, whose magical music, symphonically conducted by Gene Narmour, is the star of the show. But Oscar Hammerstein's inspiring lyrics and Lindsay and Crouse's well constructed book make a large contribution too.

For the huge and crucial role of Maria, Anne Gilliam, whose singing voice seemed strained Monday evening, looks winsome and acts enchantingly. It is easy to believe that the Abbess and the children and their father love her; so does the audience. Opposite her Scott Williams is an heroically handsome Captain von Trapp, whose rich baritone is a joy to hear.

Another fine voice, used to conclude both acts, is that of Jane Halderman, who makes an impressive and warmly human Abbess. Martha Bradner is a beautiful Elsa Schraeder, who keeps her characterization from being either too sweet or too sour and sings expertly songs not perfectly suited to her lovely voice. Graham Pollock is a fine convincing impresario and, in the all too brief interlude, a truly remarkable Spanish dancer.

The Von Trapp children are pure perfection in every way, individually characterized but all showing the effects of careful upbringing in a sheltered environment. As the eldest and most extensively delineated, the beautiful Jane Barrett sings, dances, and acts flawlessly.

On opening night there was a little difficulty with John Sneden's elaborate, atmosphere-laden sets (some sounds were certainly not those of music) and occasional slips in the generally excellent lighting (Georg Schreiber will surely correct these).

But no opening-night flaw was nearly serious enough to detract from the splendid performances, the exultant story, and the glorious music. When the members of the audience file out after the final curtain, it's in their hearts that they carry the sound of music.

Father Kelleher Holds Mass

By MICHAEL OWEN POSEY

A special Catholic Mass will be celebrated Thursday evening at five o'clock in the "Y" Hut behind the infirmary. Father Joseph Kelleher has been invited to offer this Mass for the intentions of the Catholic students and Faculty members on campus. Catholics are invited to assist at this Mass and to invite interested friends.

The first Mass offered on the E.C.C. campus was celebrated last Thursday, with Fr. Kelleher, Michael Posey (minister of the Mass) and William Magri (commentator of the Mass) offering the Mass. Hymns were sung in English, and the people stood to receive communion. The Epistle and Gospel were read directly from the Bible, since there was no missal available.

Catholics hope eventually to obtain a Sunday Mass on the Campus. The message of Christ remains old, but Catholics are finding that message clearer because of changes which make the Mass more understandable.

Summertime Cage Action!

By Mike Yorke

A MIDSUMMER NIGHTS DREAM, OR POSSIBLY A NIGHTMARE?

Recently a group of relatively relaxed young men received what must have been at least a minor jolt to their summer routine by way of the mails. These young men, better known as the Buc basketball team, had just opened their summer conditioning instructions from their new boss Tom Quinn. Each and every player was notified of the rigorous expectations that would greet him when he returned to Greenville in the fall. Mediocre condition will not be acceptable as the schedule next winter is anything but mediocre. Coach Quinn added that obviously the summer work can't be supervised, but there is little difficulty in determining if an individual has worked faithfully or not when the first drills roll around late in the fall.

Ken Sabo, who stretches to nearly seven feet in height, has received personalized directives aimed at putting all that height to good use in the very near future. Sabo was plagued by coordination troubles all last year. These problems are directly attributed to an enormous growth spurt that saw him add three inches in height and about twenty pounds in weight in a period of three months. The sharp growth left Ken with a temporary case of fleshy bone ends and hence the coordination lack. Big men frequently "arrive" slow but often the wait is worth it, especially when the big man is in the seven foot category.

Basketball bits: Tex Everett is definitely back on the squad this season after becoming ineligible in mid-season last year. Charlie Alford is now numbered among the matrimonial set. Coach Quinn informs us that several top flight prospects are very near to the signing stage but advanced publicity might scare them away. A positive air is becoming more and more apparent among our basketball people. This is good.

WHATCHAMACALLIT FOR LUNCH BUNCH!

"How do they keep so slim you ask yourself?" is one question that was not on Coach Jim Carlen's mind when he first viewed his troops at West Virginia last winter as he assumed command of the Mountaineer gridders. Indeed, it apparently looked like Metracal in reverse! Nevertheless the Coach as he laid down his plans for a "slimmer, trimmer you!" The Mountaineers responded by shedding 700 pounds by the time spring drills had rolled around with 1,020 as the goal before the 1966 season begins. In addition to his new ideas regarding waistlines Coach Carlen has added several other "suggestions": attendance at church for all gridders, no smoking in public, no drinking at all, and last but not least compulsory class attendance.

The releases out of Carlen's Morgantown office are generally very subdued. Spirit, enthusiasm, and Garrett Ford make up all the strong points according to Carlen. Carlen spent several seasons under the tutelage of Bobby Dodd at Georgia Tech, a master of the poker face, and somehow you get the feeling that things can't be nearly as bad in Morgantown as he would have you believe.

VALLEY LEAGUE TIDBITS

I was pleased this week to receive a progress report from Lynn Smith. Lynn, Pirate shortstop this past year, is currently laboring for the New Market Virginia Valley League team. In his semi-pro capacity several changes have been made: "I'm playing third base here instead of shortstop which pleases me." (Note: Lynn started the college season at third but moved over to short when Coach Smith juggled his line-up to find the winning combination. He was successful in his juggling.)

Lynn is not to be impressed with his current output at the plate, .230, but he adds "I feel like I will start hitting the ball soon." The Buc shortstop batted in the leadoff spot all year for Coach Smith and that honor doesn't go to weak hitters. Our bet is he will come around in a big way.

Lynn finished up by adding that the New Market club was in third place currently, seven games off the pace. This is partially attributed to the late arrival of several key players such as Gary Sprague, Florida State, George McCrac, UNC; and recently named first team All-American first-baseman Danny Talbott also of UNC. Such performers as these could radically alter the Valley standing in a hurry.

FORMER PIRATE SUPERHORSE COMES UP LAME

From Carlisle, Pennsylvania comes the disheartening news that former EC great Tom Michel has reinjured his knee in the first week of practice with the Washington Redskins. Michel who played with Detroit and Minnesota before joining the 'Skins underwent surgery for his game joint during the winter.

EC Single Wing Offense Provides Big Scoring Punch

Sports Editors Note: This feature on the single-wing type offense is aimed primarily at that select group of fans who leave Ficklen Stadium frequently in high spirits knowing the Pirates have chalked up another win but having no earthly idea how it was accomplished. This probably could be expanded to include all the incoming frosh who will probably be scratching their heads after the first quarter wondering just what is going on!

Mike Conley, long-time staff writer, has done an outstanding job of collecting the why's and wherefore's of the Stasavich - Wing and relaying them in a most readable and informative fashion. Mike, in addition to his writing duties, is a member of our GE College Bowl superbrain squad, a multi-sport athlete in track and soccer, and is currently learning the manly and profitable art of the side foot kick under the tutelage of Pete Kriz.

This feature begins a series of articles regarding the various phases of East Carolina football. Next week — the 6-1 defense.

By MIKE CONLEY

Coach Clarence Stasavich has guided the Pirate gridders to three straight bowl victories and has focused the attention of the football world upon East Carolina. The offense he has used is the single wing which has provided a tremendous scoring punch. Last week the East Carolina coaching staff conducted a single wing clinic for interested coaches from across the land.

When asked about the single wing, Coach Stasavich's first comment was: "We use it because we like to score". And score the Pirates have, in the four years since Coach Stasavich has been at ECC. The scoring averages have been: 1962 — 23.9; 1963 — 23; 1964 — 27.9; and 1965 — 29.9. Maine learned of the Pirate scoring punch as ECC rolled up thirty-five points in the 1965 Tangerine Bowl.

All four backs in the single wing backfield are scoring threats. The blockingback, wingback, fullback, and tailback have all thrown as well as received for the Pirates. Coach Stasavich has modified the single wing in making the fullback a greater aerial threat. While many coaches would be content to leave passing to the tailback giving opponents a good idea of the passer, the Pirate attack has been flexible for last year fullback Dave Alexander gained more than 500 yards in the air.

Most of the Pirate single wing backfield stars had to switch from a high school T-formation background. Bill Cline and George Richardson were quarterbacks. Maurice Allen was a fullback and Jerry Tolly, Dinky Mills, Dave Alexander, Tod Hicks, and Robert Ellis were halfbacks, all under the T-formation. Tom Michel was a guard when he came to East Carolina. Because of his speed plus size he was moved to half back and Coach Stasavich made him a single wing fullback. One Pirate who did have single wing experience was Norman Swindell, the outstanding blocker in the Southern Conference, whose position was blocking back.

Among the advantages of the single wing as pointed out by the coach is the fact that the blockingback, unlike the quarterback in the T, can block effectively. Also the tailback is already deep and is in a good position for either end run or a pass since he already has a good view of his receivers. Cited as disadvantages are the necessity for the center to make a long snap, thus reducing his blocking effectiveness; and the elimination of fakes into the line by the backs.

Many coaches have moved from the single wing because it is harder to teach and it is possible to prepare a T-formation offense quicker.

Other coaches experience difficulty in obtaining information about the single wing, a situation which the East Carolina clinic is trying to help remedy. Those teams which have stuck with the single wing, however, have enjoyed great success. Using the single wing Princeton was 9-1 and Wabash was 7-2 in 1965, while of course East Carolina was also 9-1.

When I questioned Coach Stasavich about the problems East Carolina's opponents might have in adjusting their defense to meet one single wing team during the year, he agreed that they might have some difficulty; but he pointed out that East Carolina also has a disadvantage in that it cannot scout the opponents' defense against the single wing. He also explained that the Pirates have been meeting about one single wing opponent per season and have not made any substantial changes in their defense.

The East Carolina staff and team have a keen knowledge of the application of the single wing. It is especially important for the blockingback to have the ability to adjust the plays to particular defenses since he, and not the coach, calls the plays. Against an eight man line, for example, he will generally call a pass or against a five man line, a running play.

Coach Stasavich emphasized the flexibility of offense. He has a wide variety of plays which he will use if they match the abilities of a particular player. Plays may even be used two or three years apart. For example, the statue of liberty play, though seldom used, worked well for the Pirates a couple of times several years ago. But regardless of the play, the coach believes that good blocking and the ability to keep the defense guessing are most important.

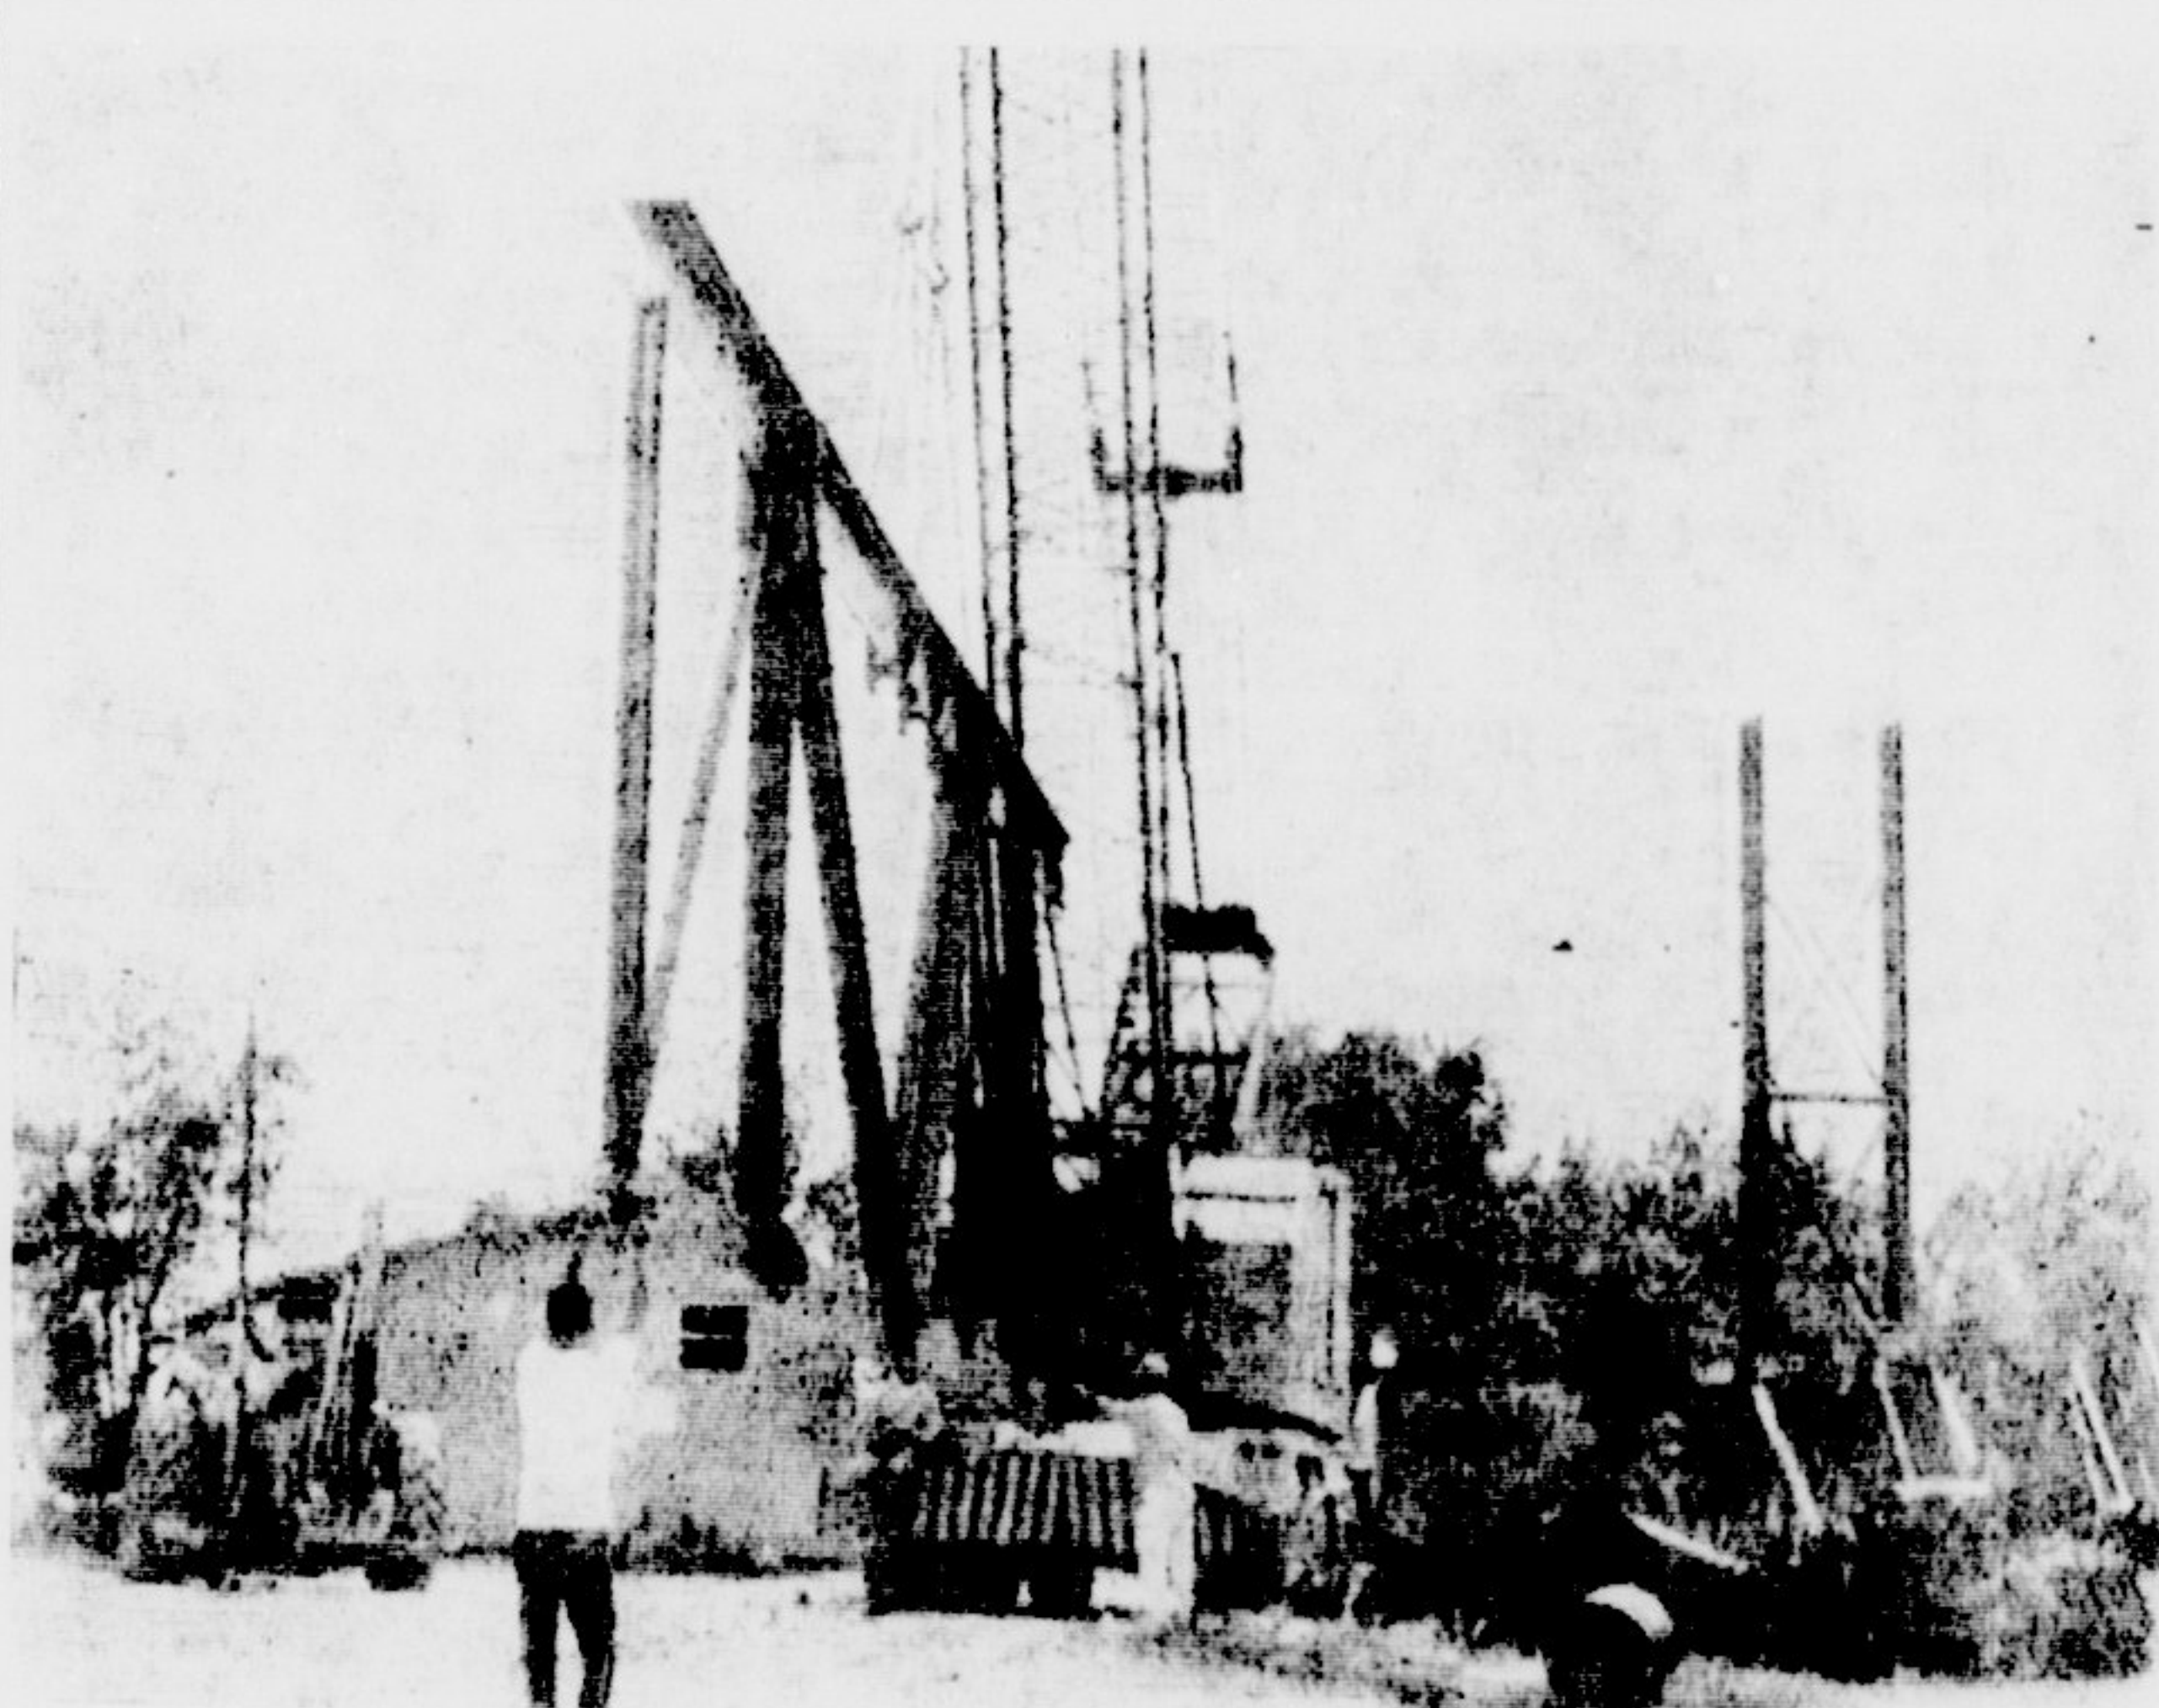

Tri-State Grid Camp Commences Next Week

Close on the heels of their highly successful Single Wing Clinic the forces of Coach Clarence Stasavich are remaining active by launching their annual Tri-State Football Camp next week. The camp is broken down into two week long sessions beginning July 25th and winding up on August 5th.

Those eligible for the personalized instruction that the camp offers include only young men in junior and senior high. No student who has begun his senior year is eligible to attend. A further limitation is that no more than three boys from any one varsity team of last year will be admitted. The Tri-State Football Camp will offer an opportunity for young men interested in football to develop football skills. Emphasis is placed on fundamentals, such as stance, charge, and form blocking and tackling. Instruction will be given in ball handling, passing, pass receiving, punting, and extra point kicking.

All those attending as dorm students are served a "training table diet" just as the college varsity receives in the early fall. Adequate and trained counselors supervise all phases of the camp.

Construction on the new $2.8 million gymnasium is well underway.
