Thirty-two East Carolina College seniors have been selected to appear in the 1966-1967 edition of "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Offering his congratulations to the thirty-two outstanding seniors, Dr. Tucker stated: "It's a special honor to be selected for 'Who's Who'... not only were students chosen by their peers but also by representatives of the student body. It's a great honor... something each student will want to remember."

In commenting on the selection of this year's group, Dr. Tucker explained that the selecting committee is composed of students, faculty, and administrative personnel. Though scholarship is important in the selection of candidates, Dr. Tucker stressed leadership and service to the college as being one of the strongest determining factors.

John Churchill Speaks On His Famous Uncle

John Spencer Churchill, author, painter and nephew of the great British war-time Prime Minister, will speak here on Thursday, December 1, at 8:15 P.M. in old Austin Auditorium. His subject will be "Churchill The Man."

A distinguished writer and painter in his own right, John Spencer Churchill was in unique and intimate touch with Sir Winston throughout the great leader's most active years. It was Sir Winston who first encouraged his nephew to paint and inspired him to write. In his younger years, the two Churchill families were frequent visitors together at Blenheim (the famed Marlborough Palace); more recently he has spent much time at Chartwell, Sir Winston's own home for which Lady Churchill commissioned John Spencer to paint a mural for his uncle's 75th birthday. The uncle and nephew often painted together.

John Spencer Churchill is a great raconteur with a lively sense of humor and a flair for colorful anecdote. Many have described his eloquence and resonant voice as typically Churchillian. He deals with the living stuff of historical event and shares his uncle's dual ability to describe events in the sonorous phrase — and to expose pretense and humbug with a mordant quip. Born in 1909, the son of Sir Winston's younger brother, he is a grandson of Lord Randolph Churchill and his American wife, Jennie Jerome. His mother was Lady Gwendoline Churchill, the daughter of the 7th Earl of Abingdon. His sister is the wife of Lord Avon (Anthony Eden). He was educated at Harrow and Oxford and studied painting, sculpture, and architecture in art centers throughout Europe. During World War II he served as a major in British Counter-Intelligence and took part in the evacuation of Dunkirk. He now makes his home in the South of France.

John Spencer Churchill's two books are "The Churchill Canvas" which was published by Little Brown and Co., and "Behind the Churchill Canvas," soon to be issued by the same house.

Tickets will be offered at the Central Ticket Office beginning on registration day for winter quarter.

SGA Sets EC Academic Pace; International Seminar Proposed

By MARY L. AMBROSE

SGA President Steve Sniteman recently proposed that a conference on international affairs be held at East Carolina. This is a major departure from the SGA's previous policy of exclusive concentration on such domestic issues as the Economic Relations Board and faculty evaluation. The president asserted, however, that East Carolina has come of age as an academic institution and needs to branch out in this field.

Sniteman also announced that a student-faculty seminar would be held in the spring to strengthen the cooperation between students and faculty.

The choice of East Carolina as the location of this year's Model United Nations is the first step on the way to solid academic achievement. The SGA intends to follow through by beginning a campaign to develop more campus activities for the growing number of students who are primarily interested in academics. The proposed conferences would give these students an opportunity to participate in an important student effort. This project would also improve the scholastic atmosphere of the college as a whole.

The SGA is now laying the groundwork for the conferences, but full preparation will probably take a year. A chairman to head up the project is now being selected. The delegates to the recent Seminar on International Affairs at Montreal gained valuable experience in international relations and obtained helpful information on promoting a similar conference here.

Because the Canadian seminar is northern in its orientation, many foreign students indicated an interest in visiting a southern regional college such as East Carolina.

Dr. Ralph E. Napp, the faculty member of EC's delegation, believes that East Carolina has reached the level of sophistication necessary to host an international conference. Dr. Napp regards our delegates' performance in Canada as an indication of our competency in dealing with foreign influences.

Sniteman emphasized that, due to the long-range nature of the project, the full support of the student body is necessary for success. The proposed conference is a significant innovation and would undoubtedly improve EC's academic status.

The president also announced that an open forum will be held Wednesday night at 7:00 in Rawl Auditorium. The four delegates to the Canadian seminar will discuss their individual roles at the conference and answer questions.

Faculty Evaluation Review

Last week's faculty evaluation seems to have been a great success. The main purpose of the evaluation was to provide students with opinions about the instructors from other students for use during pre-registration and registration. Jay Barber, chairman of the faculty evaluation committee, said the following concerning the evaluation:

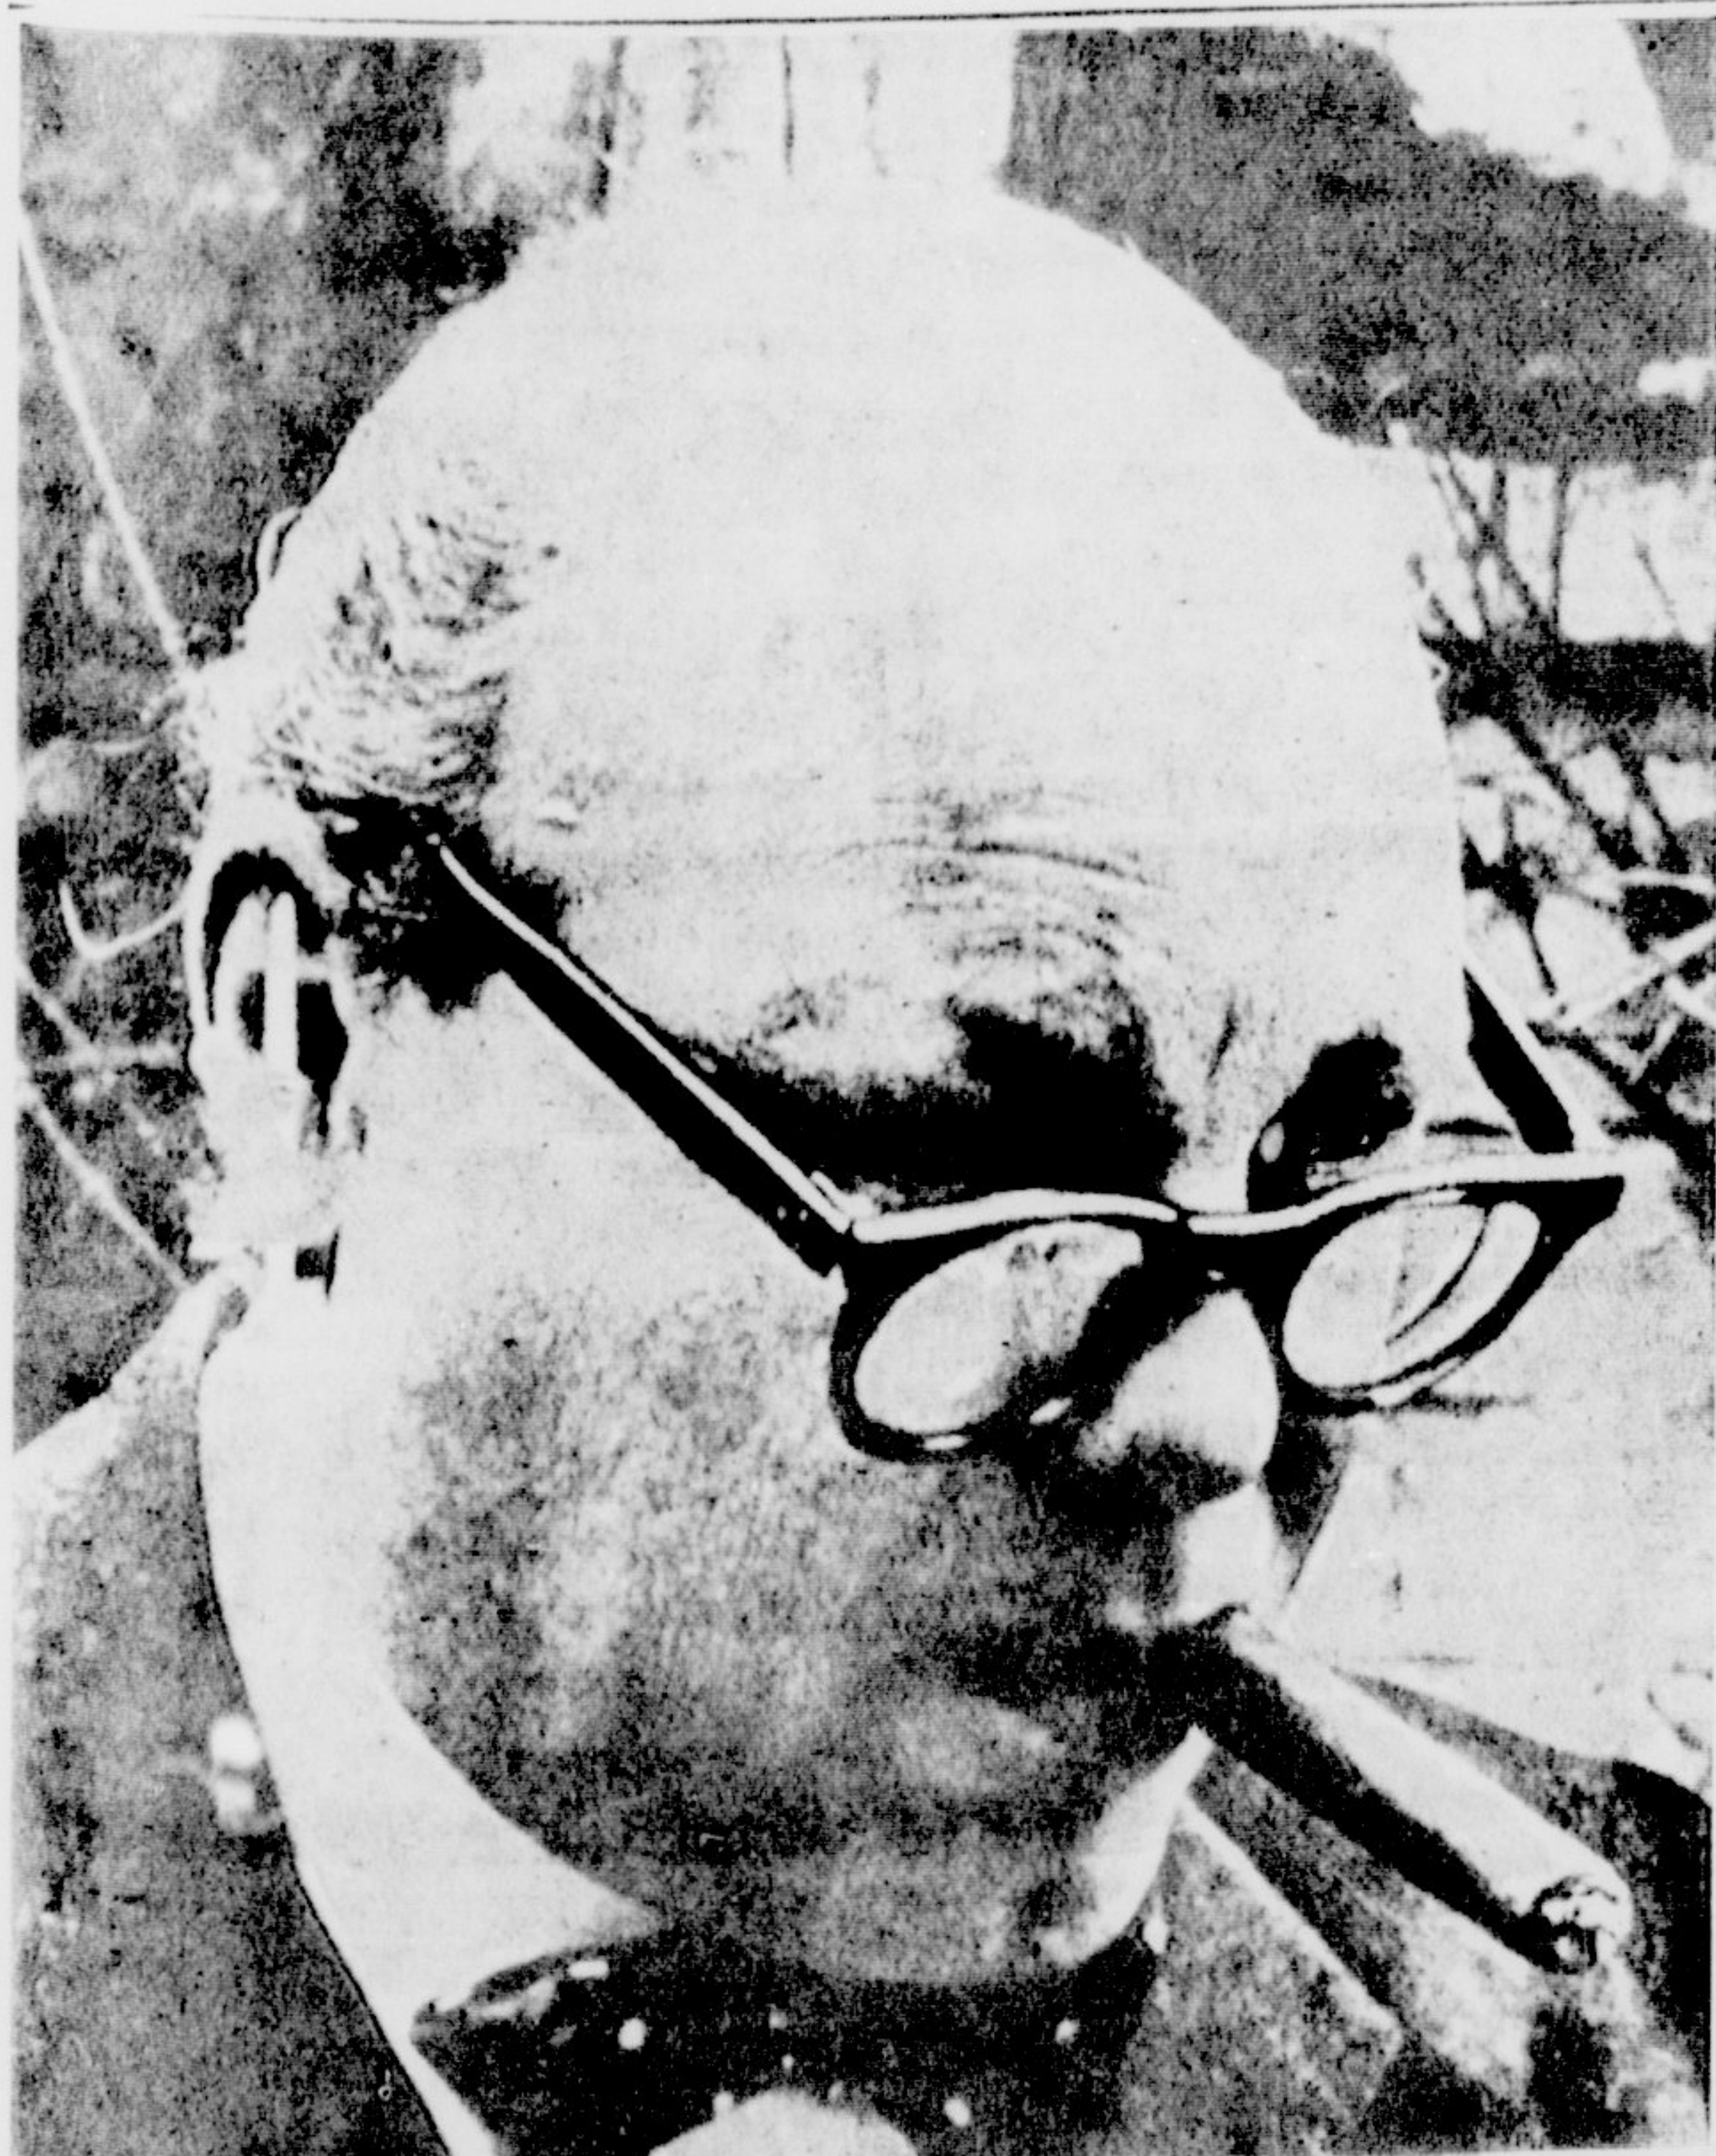

"Faculty evaluation was a big success. This success would not have been possible without the cooperation of the faculty and the students in the effort. I personally would like to thank them. We have learned a lot from this evaluation. We have seen ways in which the mistakes we made this time could be corrected next time. I realize that the forms were not in the best possible shape. This will be eliminated next time. We also know that everyone did not evaluate their professor but this had to be in order that we would not have such a tremendous amount of paper work to handle. Only one section of each course was evaluated and so not all students could evaluate their professor.

"Some courses were not evaluated at all. This was partly due to our mistake and partly due to lack of cooperation among some faculty members. This was more the exception than the rule.

"I would personally like to thank the EAST CAROLINIAN for the coverage that was given this evaluation and especially those students and organizations who helped so very much in delivering the forms to the classrooms and buildings. Without their help the evaluation could not have taken place.

"We hope to have the booklet out sometime during the winter quarter or early spring quarter. Again thanks to everyone concerned for helping us take this giant step forward here at ECC."

JOHN SPENCER CHURCHILL

Progressive Proposal . . .

East Carolina's SGA has come forth this week with the realization that its obligations to the student body extend beyond the boundaries of our campus.

With President Sniteman's proposal that a conference on international affairs be held at East Carolina comes the realization that East Carolina students must become involved in world issues and matters that concern our nation as a whole.

This proposal should spur a revolution of intellectual thought on campus. It should bring students and faculty into closer communication than has ever been experienced at East Carolina.

Sniteman's move for a student-faculty seminar in the spring of the year should be the beginning of an entirely new way of life for EC students . . . an environment where free thought, free speech and open communication will find its place in the academic aims of East Carolina.

The Student Government Association has put into prospective the ultimate goals of an academic-oriented institution. We challenge the students of East Carolina to follow and support the SGA's action toward broadening its concepts of student needs.

Display your support by attending tomorrow night's open forum at 7:00 p.m. in Rawl Auditorium. Don't miss your first chance to show that you support this new idea that has been the unifying force of communication on so many campuses across the country. Four delegates who attended the recent Canadian seminar will discuss their individual roles at the conference and answer any questions that you may wish to ask.

'Who's Who?' . . .

Congratulations to each of you who made "Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities."

East Carolina is proud of its 32 seniors who have distinguished themselves by receiving one of the highest honors that can come to students in any college or university.

Your qualities of leadership, scholarship and service to East Carolina have been vital to the growth of our college during your stay here. You represent the ambitions of all students and East Carolina is proud to recognize your achievements.

In certain cases, there are students who perhaps merited the honor of "Who's Who" and were not elected. In a college as large as East Carolina, it is possible that some names were overlooked.

To those of you who feel that you may have been forgotten, please remember that the contributions you have made to East Carolina are just as essential as those that have been recognized.

Often the greatest gifts in the world are given unselfishly and are received without one word of "thanks" or praise. But the individuals who give these gifts are rewarded through a personal satisfaction that can never be repaid by recognition of deeds or materialistic honors.

People always say that we should find true meanings in things like gifts and sacrifices. Telling however, is no good. Only giving, showing means anything. And the realization when it comes is our very own and not what someone said we should get. You just can't legislate or talk to get things that don't ever come that way. . . if they ever come at all.

Staffers Going -- Gone . . .

Today's edition of the EAST CAROLINIAN is the final publication of news for fall quarter.

As staff members rushed to meet final deadlines in between term papers and final weekly tests, many of us were startled to find that the quarter is gone. What most of us couldn't comprehend is the fact that it passed so unobtrusively . . . leaving only final exams to shock us into the reality that the quarter is ending along with most of our idealistic ambitions.

After wrestling with student and national elections, slight cuts in our budget, and problems of an over abundance of news for the amount of space we have to print it, most of us are relieved to face even the reality of final examinations.

Returning to normalcy. . . being a student like every one else for the next three days . . . will probably find us a little confused and worried as to exactly what the outcome of the quarter will bring.

So if there are any students on campus who didn't quite make the high grade averages you started out with, stand with the EAST CAROLINIAN and make the best use you can of the next few days. By all means don't feel alone in your final efforts to salvage grades and a feeling of accomplishment out of what remains of the situation.

Some of our staff members, just like you, won't be back next quarter. Reasons range from Vietnam to most anything you can imagine. But one thing is certain — there's a great deal of satisfaction if nothing else in knowing that you gave your best in the final fight for academic life.

Dig in and pass those exams. . . it's a great deal harder to subdue a fighting spirit than it is one that has already given up. So if it means anything to you — "Don't give up the ship."

One final word before the staff departs for those long awaited study hours: The first publication of the EAST CAROLINIAN for winter quarter will be Thursday, December 1. Deadline for this issue will be Tuesday, November 29, at 5:00 p.m.

Good luck on exams and best wishes for a happy holiday.

Conservatives, Rejoice!

By Frisby Hendricks

Exactly one week ago, the nation went to the polls to elect their respective governors, representatives, and senators. With a few bright exceptions the results were dismal. The consensus from political observers is that the average American is dissatisfied with the Viet Nam war, the Negro surge for equal rights, the President's personality and program, and a general desire to slow down.

As for the Viet Nam war, we disagree with the experts. With the exception of Governor Mark Hatfield's re-election, none of the outstanding doves or hawks were swept into office.

As for the white backlash issue, we must disagree again with the experts. Granted, there were a few exceptions where the white backlash issue was used effectively as in Lester Maddox's near victory, but even as we go to press the "victory" is still in doubt. The race in the First Congressional District of North Carolina can be cited as an example of the failure of a candidate using the backlash as an issue. We were happy to see the voters of this district reject the racist campaign used by the campaign manager of the Republican candidate and we were even happier to hear of the candidate himself disapproving of his manager's crude attempts.

However, we must agree with the last statement — the voters desire for a slowing down period. The Republicans did a good job in scaring the public into voting against our country's quest for progress.

As one of the letters on this page states, the 90th Congress will not be the same as the 89th. While the writer of this letter rejoices over this fact, we lament.

Had the President followed the trail toward peace in Viet Nam, rather than one of aggression, he would have been equal to Franklin Delano Roosevelt in accomplishing progressive programs on the domestic front. Lyndon Johnson has chosen to take the road of aggression in Viet Nam and beginning next January he will also have to cope with the conservative Republicans. How President Johnson hopes to continue the policies of our time is beyond our comprehension with these two problems on his hands. At this moment, the conservatives have a chance to rejoice. . . we hope for only a while.

Letters To The Editor

Faltering Democrats

To the Editor:

The results of the election clearly show that President Johnson and the Democratic party are faltering. The increase of forty-eight representatives and three Senators in Congress indicate that there is dissatisfaction with Democratic leadership. Johnson's inability to solve domestic and foreign problems has contributed greatly to Republican gains.

The high cost of living and civil rights are two problems that the administration has not been able to solve. Also dissension about government spending, the draft, social security, open housing, and poverty contributed to Republican gains.

Viet Nam, of course, is the central foreign issue. Johnson has not been successful in the situation there either. Republicans such as Hatfield of Oregon have suggested new approaches to the war. New suggestions were welcomed by many, giving support to the Republicans. Until Johnson realizes that a war cannot be won effectively by political means, we will remain in Viet Nam.

The 90th Congress will be quite different from the 89th. With more Republicans and the southern Democrats, President Johnson will find the going much tougher for his "Great Society." The word FREEDOM, and not FORE e.g. open housing, medicare, and social security, may again appear as Johnson's "Great Socialism" deteriorates, and America's first and only friend Capitalism begins its return.

The Republicans have gained crucial offices in local, state, and federal levels. Hopefully with the Republicans, new ideas and Action will solve the Viet Nam, crisis, the high cost of living, civil rights, and the other problems facing America.

Women's Dorm Hours

Dear Editor,

I think it was a step forward when the women's hours were changed at ECC. But, now, I'm not so sure it was good as the girls can't always depend on the rules. It seems the housemothers have the real say-so regardless of the rules. If the girls can't depend on the rules of the College, what can they depend on? Should they follow the college rules and risk getting demerits.

It is bad when a girl arrives at the door at 1 minute to eleven and has to ring the bell or knock until 2 or 3 minutes after eleven before the housemother will let her in. What is even worse is when the housemother and office assistant are standing in the office which is approximately 10 steps from the door. It is very unlikely that they don't hear the girl — especially when they watch her approach the door.

Now, a couple of demerits isn't the end of the world or anything like that but there is a certain principle involved. It is also worth noting that the housemother comes outside the door at 5 or 10 til closing time and tells the boys "goodnight" and then stands there with the door open until all of the girls are in.

Well, thanks for the later hours. It shows someone thought we were mature enough to have them. I only wish I could afford to take advantage of them without worrying about demerits and over-protective housemothers.

Thank You,

One 'Til

Apologia

Dear Editor:

My first letter was written for the express purpose of bringing attention to Mr. Hooks' November 1st column, "Straight From Philie," and to provoke a response from him that would bring still more attention to his article. I felt that by first bringing this attention to his article, I could then make my point with more emphasis in this my second letter.

As a columnist, Mr. Hooks has the means to influence his readers' opinions and impressions. As one who is quite familiar with Philadelphia, I feel his opinions do not create the impression of Philadelphia that's correct or that it is due — that of being a truly great city and one of which to be proud.

I would also like to take this opportunity to apologize for any unjustified doubt my first letter may have raised as to Mr. Hooks' talent as a columnist.

Sincerely yours,

William R. Baum

Last Night

The Love Of A Woman

By Duncan Stout

The bomb has fallen gentlemen. According to the ladies, the majority sex that responded to last week's Dating Survey, the average East Carolina male student appears to be on the verge of falling into a life obsessed with wild, pornographic women, and gobs and gobs of filthy booze. There were many varied answers to all seventeen questions, some clever, others very constructive, and a few bitter. Out of puppy kindness several girls found it in themselves to toss in one or two pleasant thoughts calling us such things as "friendly," "fun-loving," or "cute," but in general it tended to get nasty.

It was difficult to pick the better replies, but we will try and print the best answers below:

1) What do you like most about East Carolina boys?

"Hmmm . . . Well, most of them are pretty sharp dressers. (After much thought and consideration, this was the best answer I could muster.)"

2) What do you like least about East Carolina boys?

"They go home to mother every weekend." "It seems so many boys are losing their masculinity. To look at many of the boys on campus, would make one wonder if they could even change a flat tire."

3) Do you feel that men at East Carolina are intellectually void? "No." "No." "No." and one "Definitely. The extent of conversation of the majority of the boys with whom I have been in contact consists of their drunks, their conquests, and the draft."

4) (GIRL) How should a boy go about meeting you on campus?

"Boys should realize that THEY HAVE TO MAKE THE FIRST MOVE!" "Come up and say 'hello.'" "Be confident. Even if he has never dated in his life, is skinny, pigeon-toed, and shy, wears glasses, bites his fingernails, and sleeps with his teddy bear, he must APPEAR confident." "Be original."

5) What is your idea of a good place to go on a date?

"I love to go to a place where there is a chance for a combination of action and conversation. A dance which isn't too loud with places to sit and talk is ideal for me." "My ideal date would be a candlelight dinner at a cozy, out-of-the-way Italian restaurant where they serve fabulous food; then a good movie, concert, or play; and finally champagne cocktails at an oozing-with-atmosphere nightclub. But here in Greenville. . ."

6) Why do you have trouble meeting boys on campus?

"The unattached boys do not approach unattached girls." "In the CU, the boys are always engrossed in conversation with other boys and there is no chance for meeting them." "Because I'm shy. Besides that I'm a shy FRESHMAN. And to top it all off, I'm a shy, YANKEE freshman."

7) When a group of unattached boys sees a group of unattached girls, why can't they get together?

The individual, "pretends to ignore the other group while all the other members of both groups are doing the same thing." "No one (the boys) will make the first move." "Groups don't DATE."

8) Are East Carolina boys too interested in getting serious?

"Are you kidding? East Carolina boys are too interested in NOT getting serious." "I feel too many people just can't except dating for the sake of having a good time." "I feel one misses a lot by not dating different types of people."

9) Are East Carolina men too aggressive?

"In some departments." "The majority of ECC males are either too aggressive or too scared to make a move."

10) Must the boy or girl be in a sorority?

"Many frat men are too impressed with themselves to be an interesting date who is enjoyable." ". . . they are too super cool in their own minds to even be appealing to many girls." "No." "No." "No."

11) At East Carolina do you drink to have a good time?

"Though I can have great times without liquor, I find liquor the 'icing for the cake' of good times." "At East Carolina you drink survive."

12) Upperclass girls, would you consider dating underclassmen?

"Yes!" ". . . I would rather not." ". . . those poor freshman boys get pretty horny."

13) Are there undue restrictions on dating on the East Carolina campus?

"Yes-sign out cards." Yes. . . "A college student should be responsible enough to decide when and how to date." "Housemothers are hateful!"

14) Do you mind walking on dates?

"If the boy is worth dating I don't see why the girl should mind walking." "No." "It depends on my date. If he is an exceptionally good date, I wouldn't walk on him at all. If he is really bad news, I wouldn't mind putting on my cleats and walking at all."

15) What is your opinion of blind dates?

"Great! Even if you get stuck, it is fun to meet someone new." "99 and 44/100 per cent bad." ". . . you should arrange to go someplace where no one will see you."

16) How would you compare East Carolina men to men at other North Carolina schools?

"Carolina is the biggest drunk school, but ECC has the higher pregnancy rate." "No school spirit." again, "No school spirit."

17) Finally, what would you suggest to improve the social life at East Carolina?

"More good combos-mixers." "More dances." "More social activities on campus." "The problem lies in. . . a lack of originality."

And what did the men have to say about all of this in the survey? The following tid bits tend to handle the situation sufficiently.

". . . too many girls come to school to get married." "Too many are either married, engaged, going steady, or working on someone." "Too many get drunk and think about their old boy friends. They listen to old records and cry in their beer. They are constantly worried about, 'will you still love me tomorrow?'" "They smoke too much." But here was one we couldn't toss out. "I think ECC girls are the sweetest things on Earth. I think they make ECC one of the prettiest campuses in the U.S. I love everything about them!"

All-Sing Winners Presented Plaques

Plaques were presented to winners in three divisions of a competitive variety show for East Carolina College fraternities and sororities last Wednesday night.

Sigma Sigma Sigma won top honors in the sorority division; Theta Chi took first place in the fraternity division; and Sigma Alpha Iota won the professional fraternity bracket for the third straight year.

Presentation of plaques followed competition among 16 Greek-letter organizations in the All-Sing Concert, an annual program sponsored by Alpha Xi Delta sorority. This year's theme was "Sounds of Success."

Music ranging from old war songs and the blues of the '20's to the more recent hits filled the auditorium. Several groups even tried their hand at composing original songs, all which seemed to center around the East Carolina University (ECU) issue.

The Tri Sigmas won for their melody of patriotic and war songs. Theta Chi presented an ensemble of four brothers who sang selections of folk songs accompanied by guitars. Sigma Alpha Iota won its plaque for a melody of songs which gave an ECU touch to "The Sound of Music" songs.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was James Alton Hogsett of Henderson, a senior in the School of Business and part-time radio announcer at Greenville's WPXY.

Committee Screens Education Majors

By Dave Culley Staff Writer

Last spring the School of Education adopted a new policy which involves the screening of elementary education majors who are approaching Junior standing. A special committee, headed by Dr. Joseph W. Congleton, was formed, which is responsible for reviewing all records of elementary education majors.

The committee receives a list from the Administration each quarter of elementary education majors approaching Junior standing. Each student is reviewed on the basis of three things: quality point average, the completion of two courses, Introduction in Education (101) and Voice and Diction (119), and other factors important to success and teacher preparation.

Those students who are doing well academically and are making good progress are generally approved by the committee. A letter of approval is mailed to each student approved by the committee. If records do not show a C average or meet the other requirements or if there are other problems the student is called in for a special interview.

Approximately 20% are called in for an interview. The purpose of the interview is to help the student solve whatever problem has arisen. Until the student receives a letter of approval he will not be allowed to register for the following courses: Teaching, Learning and Testing in the Lower Elementary Grades (304) and Language Arts and Directed Observation in the Upper Elementary Grades (311.) The letter of approval entitles the student to admission to the Upper Division of Teacher Education, in which the student begins taking courses for his particular professional preparation. The following students have been approved for admission to the Upper Division of Teacher Education this quarter:

Belks Honored At Sunday Buffet

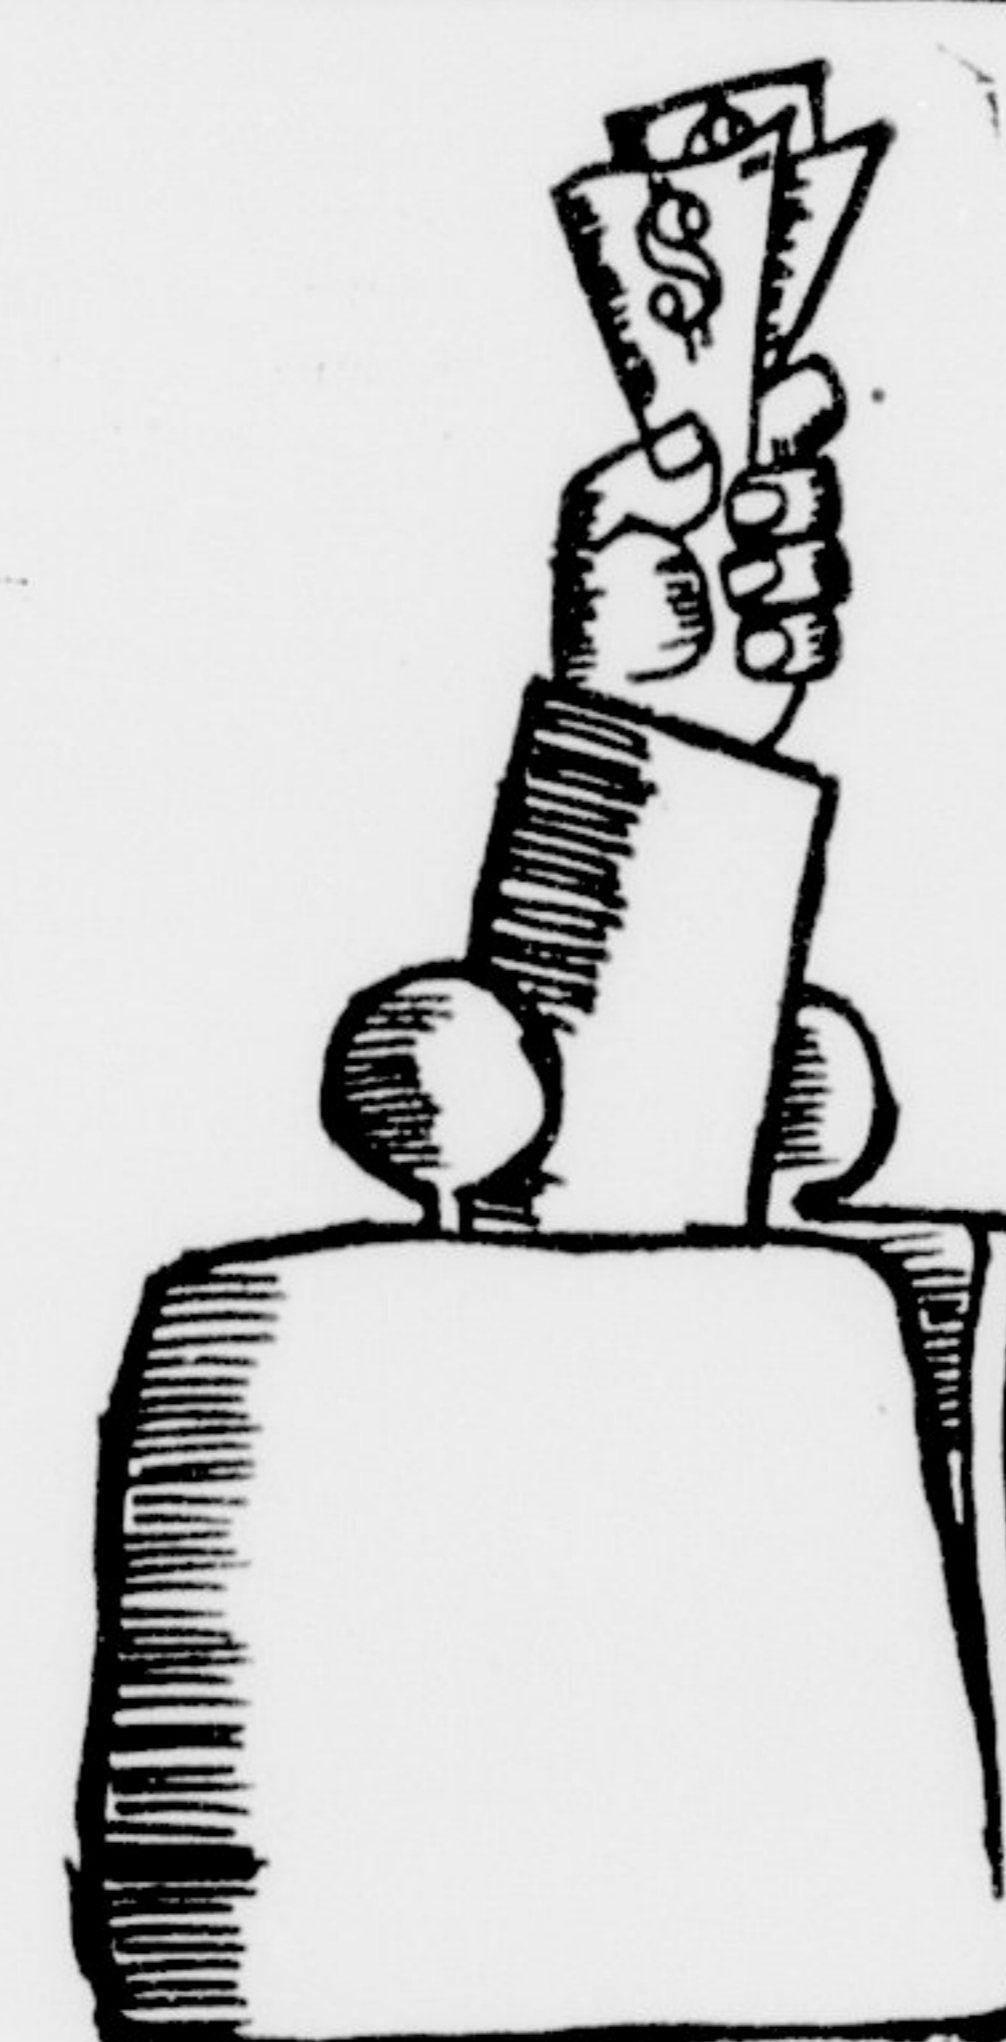

Goldsboro News Argus editor Henry Belk and Mrs. Belk whose name East Carolina College's new dormitory bears were honored guests at a Sunday buffet dinner following the formal dedication of ECC's Henry Belk Dormitory.

Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins were hosts to the honored couple in the presidential home on Fifth Street. More than 65 guests of the Belks attended the 5 o'clock occasion.

A two-course buffet dinner was served in the dining room from an appointed table graced with two five-branch silver candelabra holding yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, Gozza pompons and other fall flowers.

Mrs. Agnes Barrett, Mrs. F. D. Duncan, Mrs. Robert L. Holt and Mrs. David J. Whichard II assisted the host couple in receiving.

East Carolina College dedicated Sunday the new men's dormitory for Belk during the 3:30 p.m. ceremonies in the dormitory. The program included unveiling of a portrait of Belk and the dedicatory address by Sam Ragan, executive editor of the Raleigh News and Observer and The Raleigh Times.

Aerospace Department Sponsors AFROTC Week

Dear Friends,

The Department of Aerospace Studies is extremely pleased to invite the East Carolina College community to Air Force ROTC Week, 14-19 November 1966.

Air Force ROTC Week is the most spectacular event of our many campus activities. The purpose of the special week is to acquaint the campus with the Air Force ROTC two-year program, to provide our cadets with practical leadership training and to inform the public about the United States Air Force. This year's program is especially noteworthy.

Of particular interest will be the two full scale exhibits in the New Austin Parking Lot. The TITAN Intercontinental Missile and the X-15 Experimental Rocket Plane will be on display to the public 16-19 November 1966. The 200 foot length missile can be entered and inside will be seen many interesting displays and mock-ups of the national space and missile programs. The X-15, which holds unofficial speed and altitude records, is part of a current test program for upper altitude rocket flight.

Air Force ROTC Week was conceived, organized and implemented by our Cadet Corps. We are very proud of their professional work and feel that you will be also.

The cadets will act as hosts at the exhibit. In addition, they will be much in evidence this week with their additional displays in the Book Store and the College Union.

We hope you can join us during Air Force ROTC Week.

Sincerely,
Douglas F. Carty
Lt. Colonel, USAF
Professor of Aerospace Studies

An Air Force Titan II missile the same type which lifts our Gemini Astronauts into space, will be on display at New Austin parking lot, 16-18 November. The mobile exhibit will be open to the public so that you may see the story of Air Force missiles in space while standing inside an actual Intercontinental Ballistic Missile. The Rocket contains many special displays. Exhibits include a complete Gemini space suit and a gold-plated Titan II guidance system.

The new two-year program of Air Force ROTC at East Carolina College shifts to high gear. Want you get on the bandwagon and join the other cadets in these travels, training and education en route to their final destination — a commission in the United States Air Force.

If you qualify to become a lieutenant in the Air Force, you will have an interesting, challenging job and you will be able to complete your military obligation as well. As an officer, you will be utilizing your college background and you will receive training that will benefit you in any career. Perhaps you will qualify to fly, perhaps you will learn to be a leader, perhaps you will travel to far away places.

If you are interested in learning about Air Force ROTC, the Air Force ROTC Detachment and the Cadets are interested in you. In fact, Air Force ROTC Week was organized with you in mind.

They invite you, they want you, to walk into the huge 200 foot intercontinental missile which along with the full scale X-15 Experimental Rocket Plane, which is located in the New Austin Parking Lot. They promise not to spirit you away during the critical pre-exam period.

If you will have two years remaining on campus next fall or if you are a sophomore, perhaps you can qualify for the two-year program. To qualify, you must pass a mental test, a physical test, and a review board. If you are successful, this summer you will attend training, and next fall the academic and financial assistance will begin.

The first testing session is currently in progress. Visit the Professor of Aerospace Studies in Room 127, New Austin for the particulars. See you there.

Dr. Clair Collins Speaks To ACS

Dr. Clair J. Collins of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory will speak to Eastern North Carolina chemists at a meeting here Thursday night, Nov. 17.

The meeting of the Eastern N. C. Section of the American Chemical Society (ACS) is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. at Parkers Barbecue restaurant on U.S. Highway 301. A 6:30 dinner will precede the meeting.

Dr. Collins will discuss isotopic studies of molecular rearrangements.

A group leader at Oak Ridge Laboratory and professor of chemistry at the University of Tennessee, Collins has B and MS degrees from the University of Minnesota and a PhD from Northwestern University.

During his professional career he has published more than 80 papers in the field of organic reaction mechanisms. He has made extensive use of the combined techniques of radiochemistry and stereochemistry in these studies.

He served as chairman of the ACS East Tennessee Section in 1962.

AAUP Gives Support To University Status

The East Carolina College chapter of the American Association of University Professors' is on record in favor and support of independent university status for the college.

Dr. Ralph Brimley, chapter president, said last Thursday the chapter at a recent meeting adopted this resolution:

"Be it resolved that the ECC chapter of AAUP endorses the college administration proposal for independent university status and offers its cooperation in attaining this goal."

The AAUP is the primary professional organization for professors at East Carolina, and most other colleges and universities across the nation.

The East Carolina chapter speaks out on matters of current public interest fairly often.

Pirates Clench Tie For Title

By Clem Williams

Pirates Clinch Tie
East Carolina's fighting Pirates defeated an old enemy, Richmond, and grabbed a tie for the Southern Conference Championship. William and Mary plays Richmond next week. Coming into the game the Indians boast the same record as EC.

Bailey Passes, Flowe Scores
Jim Flowe, Pirate fullback scored two Pirate touchdowns in their championship bid. George Gay, alternate fullback, led all rushers as he rushed for 74 yards in 26 tries.

Bill Bailey picked up on his passing game as he completed four passes for 100 yards. Two of the aerials put 12 points on the boards for EC. The first went to Nelson Gravatt and a "Stasovich Special." The touchdown covered 22 yards. The second TD throw was to wingback Tom Grant which covered 57 yards.

The Bucs remaining games are with Southern Miss. and Louisville.

Southern Miss. Tops N. C. State
Southern Mississippi lived up to its name as the top defensive team in the nation as they held a hapless Wolfpack squad to a total of 31 yards. Southern Miss. won 7-6. The Southerners stayed in poor field position for most of the game but refused to let the Wolfpack cross into paydirt.

Duke Dunked
Duke University suffered one of the worst defeats in a number of years. The Blue Devils fought hard but at every turn there was too much Notre Dame. When Coach Harp was asked about any weaknesses at Notre Dame he lamented, "They are a little weak at 5th team tackle."

Howard Celebrates 150th
Frank Howard, Clemson football coach, celebrated his 150th birthday since he became coach in 1940. The Tigers tightened their grip on the Atlantic Coast Conference title as they downed Maryland 14-10. It was Clemson's 5th straight win in the A.C.C.

Politics In Football

Run For The State Line

By BRUCE SUMMERFIELD

(Editor's Note: With all the recent discussion on football and politics this winter, this writer dreamed of a combination of the two.)

In 1964, Bud Wilkinson ran for the U. S. Senate from Oklahoma. This is not surprising until you consider Mr. Wilkinson was the winningest active football coach at the time. With people from all fields (actors, contractors, and wives) running for public office, I ask why not more from the football "field?"

Often mentioned as a gubernatorial candidate is Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama. Besides promising a national championship every year, "Bear" could guarantee two All-Americans in each game. He would not be bad for race relations either, everybody is scared of "Th Bear."

In Texas, they call Darryl Royal "the Barry Goldwater of Football." Royal could run on a platform of "Ban the Pass Law." Royal has said in the past when the football is put into the air, three things could happen and two of them are bad.

Purdue could run Jack Molenkemp on a national defense ticket. Jack says, "God is on the side of the team with the biggest tackles." A dove on war issues, he would propose a good defense is the best offense. Down in Georgia, Bobby Dodd's lieutenant, Kim King, could beat Lester Maddox and Bo Callaway. He could do this despite being a left-handed winger.

Glenn Dobbs of Tulso is known as a gambler. "Hell, the football weighs the same in both end zones, throw it." Dobbs would be a favorite of the Air Force Big-bomber men in the Pentagon.

For those who believe in public prayer, Ara Parseghian is a logical candidate. It is rumored that Ara has somebody "big" on his side.

Paul Dietzel could win as a recorder of deeds and contracts in either Baton Rouge, La., or West Point, New York.

Well the combinations are innumerable. You may have noticed that no one from the "big four" has been mentioned. Before the season is over, their coaches could be running for the state line.

Bucs Topple Spiders For Southern Conference Tie

By RALPH SMITH

East Carolina brought its overall record to 4-3-1 Saturday afternoon by defeating the University of Richmond Spiders 28-16. The victory assured the Pirates of a tie for the Southern Conference Championship in their first year of eligibility.

The Spiders jumped into a 3-0 lead on a 42 yard field goal by Mike Bragg with 3:18 remaining in the first period. The Pirates gained control of the ball game on a touchdown by Jim Flowe in the second quarter and never gave up the lead scoring once more in the first half and twice in the fourth quarter.

Starting on the ECC 39 yard line, the Bucs increased their margin in eight plays. The touchdown drive was highlighted by a 22 yard pass from tailback Bill Bailey to Nelson Gravatt who scored. Bob Faris kicked the extra point to move the Buccaneers ahead 14-3.

With 1:09 left on the scoreboard clock after East Carolina's second touchdown, it appeared that the scoring for the first half was over. Richmond had other ideas, however. The kickoff was taken on the 6 by Barry Jones who went to the 14. Jones lateraled to Exerett who was in the clear and sprinted the remaining 86 yards for the Richmond score. Bragg's extra point attempt was unsuccessful to make it 14-9 at intermission.

Both teams remained scoreless in the third period as the defense for both teams tightened up.

East Carolina started the scoring again in the fourth quarter. A snap from the center on the fourth down to kicker Mike Bragg was off and Bragg was hauled down by the Pirate defenders deep in Richmond territory. On the second down Bailey accurately passed to end Paul Schnurr on the 1 yard line. Flowe again carried for the touchdown from the 1 and Faris booted the extra point.

Richmond retaliated gaining possession on the Pirate 40 yard line after the East Carolina offense elected to go for a first down and failed. Quarterback Buster O'Brien moved the ball to the 5 on a 44 yard bomb to Larry Zurich. The Spiders scored on another pass from O'Brien to Don Everett from the 5 and Bragg's kick was good.

With the game still very much within their grasp, the Richmond offense continued to threaten in the final period. A pass from second string quarterback Barry Jones was intercepted in the East Carolina end zone by Neal Hughes to stop the Spider advance. Hughes dropped the ball but the official ruled he had held it long enough to gain possession.

Bill Bailey iced the victory with 2:05 remaining in the game on a 57 yard pass to Tom Grant who scored. Faris ended the scoring with his point after touchdown.

Sophomore fullback George Gay did most of the ground work for the Bucs gaining 74 yards in 26 carries to take game honors. Bailey had 18 for the Pirates and Jim Flowe 17.

For the Spiders, heralded Larry Zurich went for 511 yards while O'Brien ran for 24. O'Brien was the top man in overall offense with 205 yards, 161 of them in the air. East Carolina's Bill Bailey had a total of 118 yards with an even 100 of them coming from passing.

The Pirates have two games left on their schedule with the toughest one of the season coming next Saturday against Southern Mississippi.

Baby Bucs Try For New Record; Host Chowan For Final Game Fri.

East Carolina's Baby Bucs will take on the Chowan Braves this Friday. The Bucs will be trying for an undefeated season. The freshmen will also be shooting for a new scoring record. They have scored 100 points in four games. The old record is 121 points.

One of the strong points of the freshman team is its defense. George Wheeler a native of Buena Vista, Virginia has been outstanding at defensive tackle. Roger Bost, a native of Statesville, N. C. is another strong point in the Pirate defensive line. Roger plays defensive end.

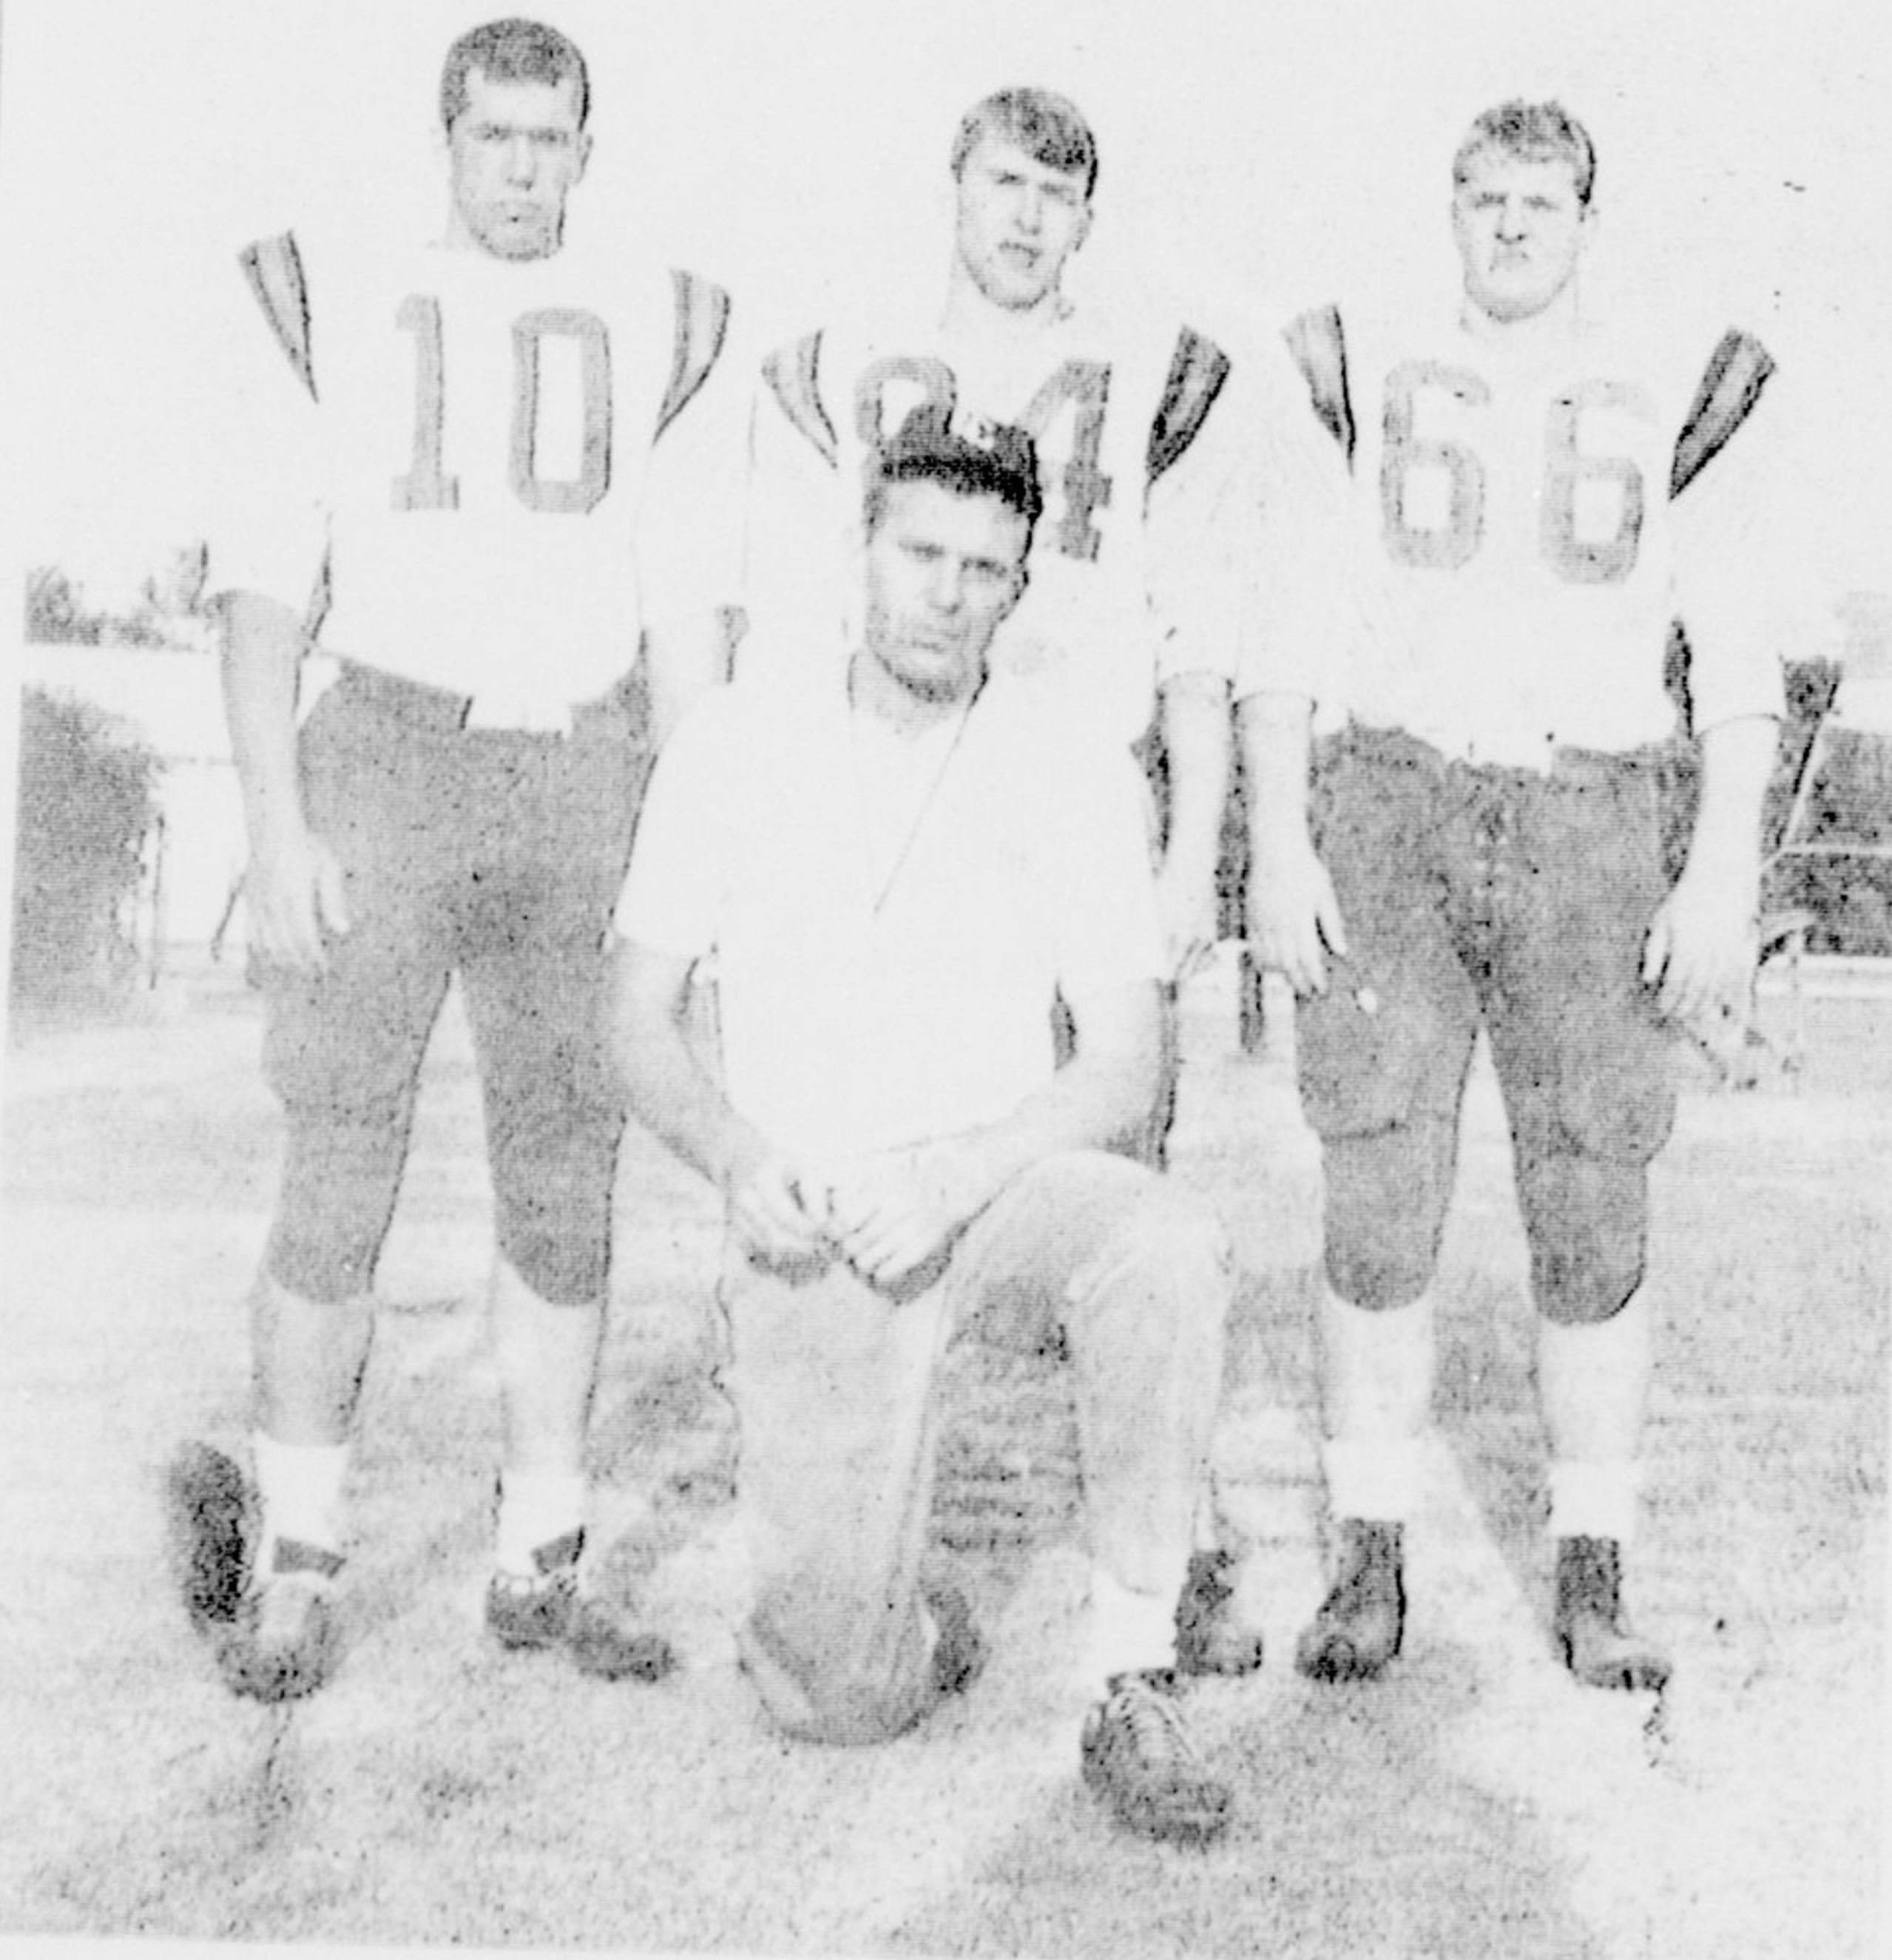

As one great mentor said, "A good defense is only as good as its offense." The Buc offensive team has made quite a showing this year, too. Mike Garrett and Bryan McClure have played great football thus far this season. McClure, a native Charlottean has thrown a number of touchdown passes. McClure's favorite target is wingback Mike McGuirk, who is one of the team's leading scorers. Vaughn Bozeman is another of McClure's prime targets.

Butch Colson, fullback from Elizabeth City, has played fine football all year long. With a little experience Butch could be a contender for the fullback slot next year.

Tom Bullock, has been the most exciting player by far. Bullock has run back a number of kick off and punt returns. As a matter of fact the first time Bullock touched the pigskin, he hauled it for 70 yards right into the turf that pays. Even more astounding is that the first three times he ran the football—he ran for a TD each time. Coach Vansant replied, "We made a mistake by letting him run it the fourth time, he only went six yards." Bullock is a wingback.

Jim Gudger, the tie specialist has displayed his wares numerous times with as many successes.

The "Baby Bucs" should be commended on their fine season. With added experience these boys will bring East Carolina another Southern Conference Championship. Hats off to Coach Henry Vansant and his staff.

Natatorium Opens Next Fall

With the opening of school in the fall of 1967 East Carolina will have one of the finest indoor swimming pools in the country. According to Coach Martinez, the natatorium will be the most sophisticated swimming area in the world.

The pool will have many special features. For instance it will have a separate diving tank located adjacent to the pool. Yale University is the only school on the Eastern Seaboard with such a set up as this.

The possibility of a tie in competition will practically be eliminated by a new timing device which measures to .0001 of a second.

However, the electronic scoreboard will record the times to .01 of a second.

The pool itself will have eight lanes which is a vast improvement over the usual six lane pool. There will be room for six hundred spectators.

Facilities will also be available for television, radio, and press coverage of championship events.

Dr. Martinez says that Indiana University has the only swimming area which comes nearest to EC in terms of size and sophistication. However, EC's natatorium has the edge in its diving facilities and its larger number of swimming lanes.
