

Lloyd Resigns SP Chairmanship; Accepts UP's VP Nomination

At a meeting of the Student Party in Joyner Library auditorium, at 7:30 p.m. March 7, David Lloyd, recently elected chairman of the Student Party, resigned as party chairman and announced he planned to run for vice-president.

In a ten-minute speech before his resignation Lloyd made the following remarks: "I truly feel that my aims for the student body and the aims of the Student Party do not correspond."

He made the point that the "place of the SGA executive is not only behind the desk . . . (that) if you want something done you've got to go to the people."

Lloyd referred to the SP as a "little 'in' group that does everything at ECC." "We need 600, 700, 800 people working in SGA with our budget," he said.

Lloyd continued, "We need to encourage individual participation — this party can be 100, 200 300 members — but not until we encourage individuals to come out." He concluded his speech with, "At this time I would like to announce my resignation as party whip, head of Model UN delegation and I would also like to resign as chairman of the party."

Sniteman spoke to Lloyd as he was leaving the meeting. He said, "I am appealing to you (Lloyd) as a SP member . . . we hoped with your ideas you would change some of the things that you have pointed out." He asked, "Are you resigning the party?" Lloyd replied that he was and that he was planning to run for vice-president of the SGA.

Barry Blick was nominated party chairman to fill the vacancy. In talking with Blick after the meeting about Lloyd's resignation he said, "Judging from David's speech, he must feel that he can make a better contribution running as vice-president than he could serving as party chairman."

Lloyd Accepts UP Nomination

Later in the evening, March 7, at the University Party meeting in New Austin, Lloyd was elected as vice-presidential candidate on the UP ticket.

In accepting the nomination, Lloyd said the "Student Party", in my opinion, is not working for the good of the student body. I like the way the party (UP) thinks and I like the way they act."

"We've got to make a change. I want to work on the people's level and for the people's good. For a change I believe we have a party that's working for the student's good. I am tired of a lax SGA. We have got to have some progressive legislators."

University Party Announces Slate For Spring Elections

At the University Party meeting Monday night, in New Austin building at 7:30 members met to nominate candidates and discuss the platform for Spring Elections.

The slate was nominated by the parties executive committee and approved by acclamation.

JIM YOUNG

Jim Young, a history major, and editor of the Buccaneer, heads the UP ticket as the candidate for president. Young has had much experience in the affairs of the SGA. He has also served as editor of the East Carolinian, assistant editor of The Key and business manager of the Buccaneer.

Young has also served as chairman of the SGA Elections Committee. He is a member of the Model UN Advisory Board, the SGA Publications Board, The Dean's Advisory Council and the SGA Budget Committee. He is a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity and a representative to the MRC and vice-chairman of the UP.

DAVID LLOYD

The vice-presidential nominee, David Lloyd, is an active member of the student legislature. Among his legislative activities are chairman of the Legislative Traffic Committee, chairman of the Car-Wash Facilities Committee and Majority Leader of the SGA legislature. He is also a member of the Rules Committee.

Lloyd also went to the State Student Legislature as a senator where he won outstanding Debator in the Senate Award for 1967. In the upcoming Model UN, Lloyd will chair one of the four top committees — the Social-Economic Committee, and is a member of the Model UN Advisory Board.

PATTY LARSON

Candidate for secretary on the UP ticket is Patty Larson. Miss Larson is a former Military Ball Queen and a Buccaneer Queen Finalist. She is presently commander of the Angel Flight Sorority, a member of The Key staff and a member of the Women's Judiciary and Freshman Honor Council. She has served as recording and corresponding secretary of the Delta Zeta sorority.

LAYTON GETSINGER

Candidate for treasurer is Layton Getsinger, who list as his chief qualification for the post his chairmanship of the Model UN finance board. He is a business major, member of the Men's Judiciary, member of the Buccaneer staff, served on the Homecoming Committee, the Entertainment Committee, the Model UN Advisory Board, and is a member of Theta Chi Fraternity. He was a delegate to the North Carolina Student Council Congress.

SHERRY ROBERTSON

Sherry Robertson was selected as UP candidate for Historian. She was chosen as Miss Cheerleader USA. She is a member of the Sigma Sigma Sorority. At press time the East Carolinian was unable to contact Miss Robertson for further qualifications.

UP Election Platform

The University Party platform is made up of ten points: 1) Installation of Inter-Campus Telephone System — Two additional telephones would be installed on each floor of every dorm to be used solely for inter-campus calls.

2) Formation of President's Advisory Board — An advisory group to the president on all important issues would be made up of various student representatives. It would be composed of the Vice-Presidents of the Men's Residence Council, Inter-Fraternity Council, Panhellenic Council and Women's Residence Council, and two designated student legislators.

3) Holding of Bi-Quarterly Open News Conferences — These conferences would be held by the president of the SGA and would be open to all students, faculty members, administrators, and press media for the purpose of informing the public of what the Student Government Association is doing for the student.

4) Removal of traffic barricades at night and on weekends — This would ensure the removal of the barricades between 6:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. on weekdays and from 6:00 p.m. Friday to 7:00 a.m. Monday.

5) Lifting of closed study restrictions between 10:00 and 11:00 p.m. — At the present when freshman girls finish closed study at 10:00 they may not receive callers or leave the dorm between 10:00 and the 11:00 p.m. dorm closing time. This proposal would allow the girls to leave the dormitory at the end of closed study.

6) Organization of North Carolina Student Government Association — This organization, composed of state Student Government leaders, would meet quarterly to compare ideas and problems in their respective schools. Membership of the various schools would be voluntary.

7) Issuing of Student Co-op Discount Cards — These cards would be issued by the SGA in co-operation with Greenville merchants, and would enable the student to obtain a discount on all goods and services offered by the participating merchants.

8) Installation of a Short Order Grill on the Men's Campus — This would be similar to the Pamlico Room and would be open at night for the benefit of the men on the hill.

9) Installation of Coin-Operated Laundry Facilities on the Men's Campus — Coin-operated washers and dryers would be installed on the men's campus for the convenience of the male residents.

10) Evaluative Infirmiry Study — The Student Government Association would evaluate the facilities of the college infirmiry and would aid in supplying much needed equipment to promote better medical facilities to the student body.

Out-Of-Staters Hold 'U' Meeting

All out-of-state students wishing to further the cause of university status for East Carolina are urged to attend the Out-of-State Students Meeting in Old Austin Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. on Tuesday, March 14.

President Leo Jenkins and SGA President Steve Sniteman will be on hand to discuss the possibilities of what out-of-state students can do to promote university status. Students are urged to ask questions and participate in the Out-of-State Students meeting.

Student Filing Ends Friday

With the University Party and the Student Party preparing party platforms and announcing their party candidates for spring elections, the EAST CAROLINIAN would like to remind all independent students that it is not too late to file for Spring Elections.

Any student wishing to run for an SGA office may file for office through March 13 in the SGA office, third floor of Wright Annex.

On Monday, March 13, there will be a Compulsory meeting of all candidates.

Campaigning will take place March 14-20. Independent candidates wishing publicity in the EAST CAROLINIAN are asked to contact SANDY MIMS or John Reynolds by Monday, March 13, at 5:00 p.m. A special election issue announcing individual candidates and their platforms along with a cover story on the University Party and the Student Party will be published on Thursday, March 16.

Expense sheets of candidates are due at 5:00 p.m., March 17 in the SGA office. The elections will be held on Tuesday, March 21. Any runoff elections are scheduled to take place on March 28.

Rules Pass In Legislature

By JOHN REYNOLDS
Co-News Editor

The SGA legislature met Monday, March 6. Articles 1-8 and Article 9, section 1-5 of the General Election Rules passed without debate. Major changes contained in those articles concern expenditures. Under the new articles a presidential candidate can now spend $50 on campaign expenses. The old expenditure limit was $35.

Other executives can spend $35 for election expenses. All other SGA officials and campus officers can spend $25 on their elections. In the past the limit was $15.

Article 9, section 6 received a great amount of attention from the legislators. Section 6 was amended to read, paraphrasing political parties may spend $20 for their programs, policies, and candidates. (Allowing expenditures for political parties was a primary reason the Election Rules were vetoed by SGA president Steve Sniteman last month). The amendment barely passed by a vote of 12 to 9.

Section 7 requiring political parties and candidates to file an expense account with the election chairman passed without debate.

Sniteman Comments On Rules
Sniteman said that he was not going to re-veto the election rules because he feels the student legislature is more representative of the student body. Also he felt to veto the rules a second time would be injecting too much personal opinion into the issue. He made the point however, that he was still in strong disagreement with the general election rules.

Sniteman made the point that he wanted the political parties to win and to be strong but that he also felt the independent should be given equal opportunity.

Sniteman went on to say that Bill Deal, parliamentarian of the Legislature and chairman of the University Party, could perhaps be defeating his on purpose by pushing the expenditure for political parties, i.e., that it would now enable the independent — the "little man" — to say 'look at me, the party has all the money.'

Continuing Sniteman said that Bill Deal wanted to run the election on the big party system concept but that the party system at ECC was not developed enough for that at this time.

Other Business
The constitution of the Women's Judiciary Committee in the revised edition was voted on and passed, each article separately.

The constitution of the Semper Fidelis Society, which is a society for students in Marine Corps training at ECC, was accepted by the legislature.

Before the meeting adjourned Jim Kimsey rose with a motion to send a letter of condolence to Senator Morgan and family on the death of their two-year old daughter. The meeting then adjourned after a moment of silence in honor of the Morgan family.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

It can never be stated that any constructive action has come out of the Presidential War in Viet Nam. However, many issues have confronted the public which would not have been presented to them had the Viet Nam conflict not become a war.

The inequities of the draft laws have been one of these issues. Before Monday's Presidential action, any Wealthy or educated male could avoid the draft. In turn, the poor and uneducated had to bear the blunt of our President's wishes to continue the war.

The lottery system will erase some of the inequalities of the draft laws. In essence, here is how it will work. Each year there will be a lottery pool containing the names of all eligible 19-year-olds plus older men whose deferments expired in that particular year. The names will be ranked under the "Fair and Impartial Random System of Selection" and will be inducted in order, as needed. Many youths classified I-A can expect to maintain their civilian status throughout their one year in the prime pool due to the small percentage called from such a large number.

However, the plan to draft younger men and the proposal to eliminate all deferments for graduate students simply replaces inequalities with other inequalities. The ideal situation would be to eliminate compulsory conscription and thus end the war.

Thus, President Johnson and General Hershey have made a step forward toward erasing inequalities of the present draft laws; the problem is that the step forward is in the wrong direction.

Elections In The Balance . . .

Suddenly Spring Elections are in the balance and getting a little complicated at the onset.

Tuesday night's Student Party and University Party meetings confirmed the seemingly invalid rumor that the newly elected chairman of the Student Party would leave the ranks of his party to run as the University Party's vice presidential candidate.

While the East Carolinian is left a little baffled at the turn of party events, it has given us a little prospective on the election situation and we feel that there are certain factors which everyone should consider at this time.

The events of the next week and-a-half will be of paramount importance in determining the effectiveness of next year's Student Government Association and the life of campus political parties.

On March 21, the student body will vote on SGA officers. This election should be taken seriously, for without a strong group of SGA leaders nothing will be accomplished next year. Political parties may be appealing, but one must remember that an SP or UP tag by a candidate's name does not necessarily qualify him for the office he seeks.

Before deciding whether or not to vote SP, UP or for the Independent, each student should consider several points before casting a vote. A candidate does not deserve a vote just because he has the reputation for being a "good guy" or because he gives the explosive or humorous speech that sometimes is more appealing than his qualifications.

Qualifications and responsibility can only be determined by the individual voter. A candidate's past record is usually a good indication of what he might be qualified to do. However, previous experience can sometimes be misleading particularly if a candidate comes on strong and then does not follow through.

In the next few issues of the East Carolinian, the staff will do everything possible to expose qualified candidates. As to whether or not the East Carolinian will support and endorse a Presidential or Party candidates we are not at liberty to say at this time. In reviewing the qualifications of both SP and UP Presidential candidates, we cannot easily determine which is better qualified.

We've seen only one party platform and we'd like to see both before making further comment.

The Other Side

Peace For Vietnam?

By John Sultan

The last few months of peace efforts by the United States and others towards the Viet Nam war unfortunately have produced nothing. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have increased their military interference, and there is no indication that the Communists will change from their present tactics. A question now arises as to the war situation. How should the United States conduct the war? I will present three possibilities of action by the United States in Viet Nam.

The first course of action that the United States can take is the "dove" policy. In essence, this policy advocates ceasing of bombing in North Viet Nam, and ending of offensive military ground action by the United States in the South. The "doves" are comprised of many national and international leaders. Robert and Edward Kennedy, U Thant, and Charles DeGaulle are a few. With the ceasing of bombing and offensive ground action, the Communists, they feel, will come to the conference table. They say that the war cannot be won by either side, and it is time to end the conflict. They feel that the peace initiative must come from the United States.

The second course of action is the "hawk" policy. This policy advocates increasing bombing in the North, mining Haiphong harbor, and increasing offensive military ground action in the South. There are many advocates of this policy in the Senate and in military circles. Senator Fulbright is quite outspoken in this area. The "hawks" state that increased military action will force the Communists to the conference table. They also indicate that the Communists have not made any overtures towards peace, and American boys are dying in a stagnant war. They state the only way to gain peace is through total military victory.

The final course of action is the "middle" policy. This is the course of action that the United States is now following. This policy is exemplified by limited bombing of military targets, and by limited offensive ground action. The advocates of this policy, including President Johnson, McNamara, and Rusk, hope that the Communists realize that their effort is useless, and that the United States will not stop supporting the South Vietnamese people against aggression from the North. A tapering of the war would be made by the United States for an eventual peace, if the Communists would make a reciprocal move.

These three courses of action are all feasible in dealing with the Viet Nam situation. Which course of action will solve the problem is difficult to say. The "middle" policy has not been successful, as even the let-up in the bombing has failed to bring peaceful gestures from the Communists. The "dove" policy might bring peace, or this policy may allow the Communists time to gain strength to enlarge the war. The "hawk" policy might also end the war, or it might destroy Viet Nam and the rest of the world by bringing in the wrath of China and Russia.

The answer to the correct course of action is not clear. One thing is clear however, American men are dying in Viet Nam. This gory fact must be remedied. It is the responsibility of this administration to define its policies, and then proceed from there on a course of political future depend on the execution. This decision rests in the hands of President Johnson, and the fate of many men and his own political future depend on the course he chooses.

WHO'S GOT THE BUTTON?

I'm sure it has not escaped your notice that underlying the adorable whimsy which has made this column such a popular favorite among my wife and my little dog Spot, there is a serious attempt to stay abreast of the problems that beset the American college student.

Many a trip have I made to many a campus—talking to undergraduates, listening to their troubles, hearing their grievances, reading their buttons. (Incidentally, the second and third most popular buttons I saw on my last trip were: "WALLACE BEERY LIVES" and "FLUORIDATE MUSCATEL." The first most popular button was, as we all know, "SCRAP THE SCRAPE" which is worn, as we all know, by Personna Super Stainless Steel Blade users who, as we all know, are proud to proclaim to the world that they have found a blade which gives them luxury shave after luxury shave, which comes both in double-edge style and Injector style, which does indeed scrap the scrape, negate the nick, peel the pull, and oust the ouch, which shaves so closely and quickly and truly and beautifully that my heart leaps to tell of it. (If perhaps you think me too effusive about Personna, I ask you to remember that to me Personna is more than just a razor blade; it is also an employer.)

But I digress. I make frequent trips, as I say, to learn what is currently vexing the American undergraduate. Last week, for example, while visiting a prominent Eastern university (Idaho State) I talked to a number of engineering seniors who posed a serious question. Like all students, they had come to college burning to fill themselves with culture, but, alas, because of all their science requirements, they simply had had no time to take the liberal arts courses their young souls lusted after. "Are we doomed," they asked piteously, "to go through life uncultured?"

I answered with a resounding "No!" I told them the culture they had missed in college, they would pick up after graduation. I explained that today's enlightened corporations are setting up on-the-job liberal arts programs for the newly employed engineering graduate—courses designed to fill his culture gap—for the truly enlightened corporation realizes that the truly cultured employee is the truly valuable employee.

To illustrate, I cited the well-known case of Champert Sigafos of Purdue.

When Champert, having completed his degree in wing nuts and flanges, reported to the enlightened corporation where he had accepted employment, he was not rushed forthwith to a drawing board. He was first installed in the enlightened corporation's training campus. Here he was given a beanie, a room-mate, and a copy of the company rouser, and the enlightened corporation proceeded to fill the gap in his culture.

First he was taught to read, then to print capital letters, then capital and small letters. (There was also an attempt to teach him script, but it was ultimately abandoned.)

From these fundamentals, Champert progressed slowly but steadily through the more complex disciplines. He was diligent, and the corporation was patient, and in the end they were well rewarded, for when Champert finished, he could play a clavier, parse a sentence, and name all the Electors of Bavaria.

Poised and cultured, Champert was promptly placed in an important executive position. I am pleased to report that he served with immense distinction—not, however, for long because three days later he reached retirement age.

Today, still spry, he lives in St. Petersburg, Florida, where he supplements his pension by parsing sentences for tourists.

Here's a sentence that's easy to parse: Subject—"you." Verb—"double." Object—"your shaving comfort when you use Burma-Shave, regular or menthol, along with your Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades."

Stout Views College Fantasies, Farces, And Fears

Editor's note: The following letter is submitted by Duncan Stout, former News Editor of the East Carolinian and a once hopeful candidate for the editorship of the paper this spring. As Duncan Stout has decided to leave East Carolina, he expressed the wish that this be his last article for the East Carolinian. The ideas and observations made in this article do not necessarily represent the paper or the student body of East Carolina. This column is rendered as one student's opinion. We regret that Duncan must leave us at this time. (NJL)

After eight quarters of chasing my shadow I finally withdrew from East Carolina College today. Surprisingly, I felt no shame or empty longing as I passed up the beckoning registration lines. Instead leaving East Carolina was more like being cured of a fungus affectionately called Charlie. Yes, in spite of the problems of transferring and growing menace of newly-ordered conscription laws, it was a totally refreshing experience.

Although I was never really a constructive student at East Carolina, I formed a great many impressions over the past two and a half years and in this final eulogy would like to pass them on as some kind of ornate, but useless gift.

Critics are not nice people, and because they are not nice people, they are often faced with cold-hearted accusations that they never have anything nice to say for anyone. As a freshman I distinctly remember saying a few good things but ever since then I must admit I have been nothing but a true Sour Man.

University Status

University status is becoming the center of mysticism at East Carolina and while it is admirable, I believe there are some false notions surrounding it.

Independent University status is not going to be a wonderful cure-all for East Carolina. Its indicated benefits appear to be more money for a sort of academic laissez-faire where students grow faster than tobacco in Pitt County, and a citadel for the Eastern half of North Carolina.

From every indication offered by the administration, more money will mean more buildings, more students, more faculty members, more academics, and probably more football. Rarely, is there a promise of "better." In a state such as North Carolina, quantity against quality will always be a problem.

University status will not mean greater Federal funds and any increased endowments will essentially be mere drops in the bucket.

In the nation's great educational regions (Boston, Washington, the California coast, and the Big Ten Chicago area) schools are heeding to the theory of Ideopolis, that is that, "the isolated mountain can no longer dominate the landscape." Everywhere colleges and universities are pooling their resources and knowledge.

Rebellious Regionalism is not going to help spur on any such consolidation or cooperation in North Carolina.

If not now, the administration will soon be faced with the problems of faculty - student ratios, faculty research time, fuller utilization of the calendar, mechanization of undergraduate programs, the problems of accommodation, problems related to public service, cultural programs, urban extension, advice and relations to state and federal legislators, research centers, development of the biological science and humanities, problem of funds (will federal support be spent according to merits or politics. Will the state find new sources of revenue or will expenditure be held under a led of no new taxes?) the problem of improving the plight of the undergraduate, the problems of greater intellectualism, the problems of relating more directly to individual faculty and student members.

The Student Government

A lot can be said for the people who comprise the student government. Like any other extra-curricular activity the duties require "many dedicated hours of service that go unthanked." However, East Carolina's student government can be called little more than a hum-drum sort of affair. It is basically bureaucratic in structure and purpose. It sponsors some twenty or more organizations from entertainment to academics and makes great use of executives, secretaries, and hordes of coordinating committees.

At the pinnacle of its corporate structure, the SGA has what I call its Good Scout Code of Honor — a uniform of merit badges, good deeds, and good images designed to elect each other into office. And yet behind its fearless seal of vibrant politics and extra tickets for the Righteous Brothers' Concert very little takes place.

By its very definition student government should provide student leadership. Yet, the student government at East Carolina has failed the majority of the student body by not providing the leadership necessary to remove inadequacies that exist. In adequacies? Perhaps I should clarify that word.

Fear of the Abstract

There is today, in the greater academic communities, the challenge of liberalizing higher education.

Included are the challenge of greater academic freedom (abolishing required class attendance, gradual loosening of strict curriculum requirements, reading programs, open faculty - student seminars, non - credit experimental seminars, and greater faculty research time) and the challenge of student freedom (the right to demonstrate, active student parties, strong publications, and greater social freedom).

And yet, East Carolina has not made any great steps towards such movements because of a distinct fear of the abstract.

Limitations of a budget, adhera-ance to time - tested methods of efficient operation, and poor communication have created a large apathy on campus.

And perhaps the greatest apathy lies in the student body. For there is room for reform - room for both greater academic freedom and greater student freedom.

The administration is limited by a budget and the faculty, in general, by time. Organized, it is the inquiring student who has room to experiment and challenge. For both the administration and the faculty have a common duty to serve the student.

At East Carolina one would hope that the student government, or newspaper, or a campus freedom party would serve that purpose, but the apathy I spoke of has prevented any organization to make any real progress.

Change does not have to be starting. As Clark Kerr said, "Out of the pride of the old and the vacuum of the new, may come the means to make life more exciting, intellectual discourse more meaningful, administration more human."

It does not have to be distilled from the air. All that is required for change is one strong voice. East Carolina has yet to find that voice.

I regret that I did not do more to pursue what I have written. Perhaps I am the most apathetic of all. I wish I could count the hours that I have stood on my desk in the East Carolinian office preaching my dislike for everything, (the culmination of melodramatic nights swearing allegiance to romantic individualism, wallowing in worry over the draft, French I, and old age, writing enough one-sentence declarations of truth to fill a Chevy Repair Guide, and trying my best to forget the ways of the past and make the romance of the present).

Yes, as a critic I failed to meet my own standards and now that I have temporarily turned in my registration card and cast the entire structure of academics to the wind, may this column be a testament to the glory of youth and innocence.

Auditions Begin Soon For Park Productions

Talent scouts from the theme entertainment parks of Six Flags Over Texas and Six Flags Over Georgia will be in Raleigh on Friday, March 10, to conduct the collegiate talent auditions for East Carolina College and other colleges in the North Carolina Area.

The auditions will take place, beginning at 7 p.m., in the studios of WRAL-TV located at 2619 Western Boulevard. Registration is 30 minutes before audition time.

The purpose of the auditions is to find outstanding collegiate performers for the show department productions of both theme parks this summer.

Print Group Exhibition Shown In CU Lobby

By JOSEY LACKEY
Staff Writer

An exhibition of thirty-six prints, representative of the work of the East Carolina Print Group, is now being shown in the College Union Lobby.

Members of the group are students, faculty and alumni of the Department of Printmaking at ECC.

The alumni represented in the showing are Alvin Dunkle, head of the Art Department at Theil College, Greenville, Pennsylvania. His work is represented by two intaglios, etchings on zinc and copper slate, landscapes.

Lawrence Blizard, instructor of printmaking at the Pratt Institute, New York City, is represented by two intaglios. Michael Miller, head of the printmaking department at Middle Tennessee State University is also represented by two intaglios in the show in the College Union lobby.

The remaining prints are the work of graduate students, undergraduates and three members of the teaching faculty at ECC — Mr. Donald Sexauer, Mrs. Sara Edmiston, and Donald Ducland.

The organization hopes in the future to send a traveling exhibition throughout North Carolina, Virginia, and South Carolina.

The East Carolina Print Group organized in the past year has evolved from and is contributing to a renaissance movement in print making.

Since the early 1904's there has been an enormous expansion of interest and activity in the field of printmaking. No longer is the fine print a delicate art object to be hidden in the bureau drawer and no longer does the knowledgeable man relegate printmaking to "the minor arts." Experimentation in form and aesthetic concept is manifest in the unusual size and extravagant color often found in the contemporary print, in such labels as lucite print, collograph, thermoprint and in the great variety of mixed media techniques.

Nineteen-Year-Olds, Beware! Uncle Sam Wants You!

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — A presidential commission urged March 4 changes in the draft to embark on a limited lottery, end most future student deferments and alter the order of call to take younger men first.

The 20 members agreed unanimously that a Selective Service system should be retained but with monumental changes in mechanism and policies.

Nineteen-year-olds would undergo maximum vulnerability to the draft in the first year or less, the commission said. And the administration official said that after the first year, the chances of being drafted were almost zero.

Dissatisfaction and criticism have swirled around the Selective Service system for years. It also has had its defenders. So last July, Johnson created a 20-member national advisory commission to dig into the whole question and come up with recommendations.

Drafting Message

The President has been studying its report and is drafting now a message on the draft that will go to Congress next week. If it departs in major respects from the proposals of the commission, it will be a major surprise.

A study by a civilian panel came up March 3 with a proposal along the lines of the commission's recommendations to draft younger men first. But it opposed emphatically a halt to new student deferments and adoption of a national lottery system of picking men for military service.

Impartial Selection

The presidential commission recommended an "impartial random selective system." As the commission saw it, its big problem was to determine "who serves when not all serve." Complete equity never can exist, it said, when only some men out of many must be inducted involuntarily — perhaps 100,000 to 300,000 of the two million men reaching draft age each year.

First of all, the report said, non-volunteers should be inducted in the "youngest first" order, starting at 19 and going up, rather than on the present basis of going from 26 down. This would mean less uncertainty, less interruption to a man's life and family relations and more fairness and the prospects of getting better soldiers.

Processing Procedure

The commission outlined the processing this way:

All men would register at age 18, then go through physical, educational and moral checkups, and those classified as available for service would go into a draft-eligible pool.

"A randomizing system would determine the order of call for each man," the report said.

The report said the only substantial difference of opinion was on student deferments. On that, a minority described as in the range of one-third of the members dissented.

But in this area, the report said: "on one basic conclusion the commission was in full agreement — deferments should never be allowed to become, in effect, exemption. All commission members agreed that one of the gravest inequities in the present system of deferments is that what starts out as a temporary deferment for college enrollment is easily extended into a de facto exemption — by graduate school, by occupation, by fatherhood, and ultimately by the passage of time and advanced age."

Beyond that, a majority said that with some exceptions "no new student deferments should be granted in the future."

Students already in school, or men in recognized apprentice training, would be permitted to get their degrees or finish training, and then they would enter the draft pool.

Men in officer training programs in college, the report said, should be deferred if they commit themselves to serve in the armed forces as enlisted men if they do not complete these programs.

Hardship deferments would be continued on an individual merit basis.

In setting up the draft pool, men reaching 19 before some designated date would go in, while those reaching 19 after the date would enter a later pool. When the period of maximum vulnerability was up, and order of call for a new group of men would be determined, and men in the previous pool would not be called unless the manpower in the new group was exhausted.

Some support developed in the commission for recognizing as conscientious objectors persons who oppose particular wars instead of war in any form. A majority was against this.

Soprano, Baritone Present Recital

Two East Carolina College seniors, William Kelley Alexander and Lucy Williams McIntyre gave a joint music recital at the college Monday night.

Miss McIntyre, soprano, and Alexander, baritone, presented a program of music by seven composers, including Handel, Mozart and Schubert. A highlight of the performance was two duets from Mozart operas.

Both recitalists are candidates for the Bachelor of Music degree and expect to graduate in May. They are students of Mrs. Gladys White of the ECC School of Music faculty.

Mrs. Ruth Clark West accompanied Alexander at the piano. Gregory Bell accompanied Miss McIntyre at the piano.

Also on the evening program was a four-member string ensemble including Mary Byrd Daniels, violin; Walter Fink, violin; Lucie Womack, viola; and Carol Ann Pearce, violoncello.

Benz Directs Campus Broadcasting Program In Television & Radio

By ELLEN ROGERSON
Staff Writer

Last year Carolton R. Benz became director of the broadcasting facilities at ECC replacing Dr. Corrine Sawyer. Mr. Benz came to ECC from Wayne State College in Nebraska where he was a member of the Speech Department.

Benz is presently teaching courses here on campus that may be applied towards a broadcasting minor. Many of the students working towards this minor take part in the daily programs broadcasted over the WECC radio station. These students receive no pay for their work, but do gain practical experience.

Several persons working with the WECC station are also employed by Greenville radio stations.

Students working with the closed circuit television station at ECC are paid for their work. At present courses in political science, geography, health, and music appreciation are being offered by television. In this manner more students can be taught by fewer teachers. Broadcasting students also get experience in television broadcasting by participating in the broadcast of the ECC program on Channel WNCT each Sunday.

When asked if ECC has any chance of having an educational television channel similar to the Chapel Hill educational station, Mr. Benz said that he could not say for sure. He stated that such a program would be very expensive. At present both ECC's radio and TV stations are restricted to campus. He suggested that perhaps with university status ECC might gain the funds and facilities to broadcast to the public.

SC Trackmeet

By Clem Williams

William and Mary Wins Title
 William and Mary's fleetfooted thinclads dominated the Southern Conference track meet. The Indians failed to place anyone in the 330 yard run. However, this did not hurt their feelings any because they made up for it in several other events.
 In the event four records were broken and one tied. John Dechar set a long jump record of 23' 4 and one-quarter inches. Ed Whyth of East Carolina placed second to give the top place they would receive in the meet. Whyth broke the indoor record which had been set by Clem Williams only two weeks ago. Williams effort was 22' 6 and three-quarter inches while Whyth stretched out for a fine jump of 22' 9 and three-quarter inches. Gordon Van Hoose of V.M.I. set a triple jump record of 47' 3 and one-quarter inches to eclipse the old record by 1 and one-half feet. Terry Donnelly of William and Mary won over a strong field of half milers with a record time of 1:55.2 followed by Pairs Luzins of William and Mary.

Metzar Wins Southern Conference Title
 Small, but dynamic Howie Metzar of East Carolina won the individual crown of the 123 pound class in the Southern Conference Championship.
 Howie, only 5'8" and 123 pounds, completely dominated his weight class as he went into the finals. Coach Bob Gantt was pleased with Metzar's effort though he was not particularly pleased with the results of the match. Incidentally, Metzar has lost only one match since he has been at East Carolina and that at last years Southern Conference Championship. Metzar was runner up in last years Championship. This is truly a feat within itself. Metzar, only a junior, will be back again next year so you other Southern Conference schools better watch out.
 Harry Harris placed third in his weight division to gain the Pirates extra points. The big reason for East Carolina's low score was that only four wrestlers were entered. The Citadel took the individual championship and West Virginia was runner up.
 Congratulations on a job well done, Howie!

EC Swimmers Seek Second Championship

East Carolina's excellent swimming team will defend its Southern Conference title today, Friday and Saturday at Memorial Pool. The trials for each day start at 1:00 p.m., and the finals each day start at 8:00 p.m. There will be five other schools besides East Carolina including Davidson, William and Mary, Citadel, Virginia Military, and West Virginia.
 Senior Captain Mike Hamilton is expected to lead East Carolina to its second consecutive championship. Hamilton, who won four events last year, is expected to equal or better records in the butterfly and freestyle events. Owen Davis, most valuable swimmer in last year's meet, is also expected to obtain records in the individual medley and breaststroke events.
 Last year's National Backstroke Champion, Mike Tomberlin will provide flavor to the meet in the backstroke events. Les Gerber and Dick Tobin provide excellent diving, and they should prove to be the best in the conference. Rick Conway, and Don Synder will provide added depth in the individual medley and breaststroke.
 Eric Orrell, Layne Jorgensen, and Ed Mills will give East Carolina excellent sprint freestyle. Jim Manchester will provide excellent swimming in the distance events as he is expected to break the mile record. Bob Moghian and John Sultan will provide excellent depth in the freestyle and backstroke events. Barry Littleton and Doug Murphy in the butterfly, and Bill King in the backstroke will also gain valuable points.

 East Carolina is the pre-meet favorite, but there are some excellent swimmers from the other teams. After the conference meet, East Carolina travels to Commerce, California for the National Collegiate Championships. The latest word on the National Championships is that East Carolina is in a good position to win. Support the meet this weekend here at school, and give them encouragement to win a National Championship for East Carolina.
EVENTS: Trials 1:00 p.m. Finals 8:00 p.m.

Vietnamese Observe Happenings In USA

By ALEXANDER JACK
Oberlin SE Asia Program c. 1967
PRAGUE — In an interview at the National Liberation Front's (N.L.F.) chief European diplomatic mission here, Pham Van Chuong, correspondent of the NFL Liberation Press Agency, described the impact of American student demonstrations on the course of the war in Vietnam.
 Pham told how the Vietnamese follow closely the draft resistance movement, teach-ins, and associated events, particularly at the University of California at Berkeley and the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.
 NLF claims that since 1961, America has napalmed approximately one thousand villages in the South. According to their health service, 700,000 hectares of land were affected by noxious chemicals in 1965 and 146,274 persons were poisoned, 13 times as many as in 1964 and 800 times the 1961 figure.
 Pham continued maintaining that America could not admit this openly without facing contradiction in its official claim that the war resulted from North Vietnamese aggression.

Sport Tidbit

SOUTH BEND — Coach Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame might be planning to use two top-flight quarterbacks in the same backfield, according to an article in the current issue of Sport Magazine.
 "Parseghian might move last year's first string quarterback, Terry Hanratty, to halfback to make room for Coley O'Brien," says Francis Wallace, Notre Dame's leading football authority and historian.
 O'Brien, the untested sophomore quarterback who picked up for Hanratty after an injury in the Michigan State game and who performed so admirably in the last game of the season against Southern Cal, earned great respect as a passer and field general with his late-season heroics.
 Wallace concludes that Notre Dame's potentially high-powered offense, complemented a defense that could be better than it was in '66, could make this the finest squad in the school's history.

EC's Howie Metzar pins his opponent in an illustration of the wrestling skills which won for him the individual crown in the 123 pound class.

NASA Psychologist, Saucer, Speaks On Campus Tonight

A psychologist from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) is scheduled to lecture at East Carolina tonight.
 Dr. Rayford T. Saucer, research psychologist at NASA's Langley Research Center at Langley Air Force Base, Va., will address psychology majors and others at 7 p.m. in the Joyner Library Auditorium.
 Because of limited seating in the auditorium, psychology majors, Psi Chi honorary society members and Psychology Club members will be given priority. But others will be seated as space permits.

 Dr. Saucer's lecture topic is "The Social Structure of Interplanetary Space Crews." His appearance here is sponsored jointly by the local Psi Chi chapter and the Psychology Club.
 He has been associated with NASA since 1960 when he joined the Space Task Group for Project Mercury and aided in training the astronauts for their first orbital flights.
 He has been assigned to Langley Research Center since 1963.
 Dr. Saucer, a native of Alabama, has AB, MA and PhD degrees from the University of Florida and has taught at Georgia Tech.
