

Senate Committee Passes ECU

Separate University status for East Carolina College was approved Tuesday by the Senate Higher Education Committee and sent to the Senate floor for debate.

After 8-7 vote came after the Charlotte branch of the Consolidated University was branded as being "conceived in politics, born in politics, and a political creature if ever there was one" by Sen. Jyles Coggins, D-Wake. According to Coggins, the question was never raised as to whether the former Charlotte College should be made a university.

Coggins also told the committee, "The people from the Piedmont should be leading the fight to give university status to East Carolina College. I think we should look out for what is the good of the state in this matter."

Speaking against the bill, Sen. L. P. McLendon, D-Guilford, warned that its enactment would "utterly and completely destroy the University of North Carolina as we have known it."

In an emotion-filled talk, Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, said that the state is "gradually building an uncontrollable force" in the consolidated university. Citing the fact that there are now nearly 31,000 students in the four branches of the Consolidated University, Allsbrook continued, "I would never vote to let the university system grow to the size of the University of California at Berkeley." Continuing, Allsbrook said the "ECU" bill "is not an attack upon the University of North Carolina. But we don't want a 40,000 student university. Let us have our university at East Carolina. We have 9,000 students who are begging you to give them university status."

Arguing against the bill, McLendon stated that the bill "is not simply changing a name. It is a change in function. It means literally the appropriation of millions of dollars. It would involve the cost of a medical school."

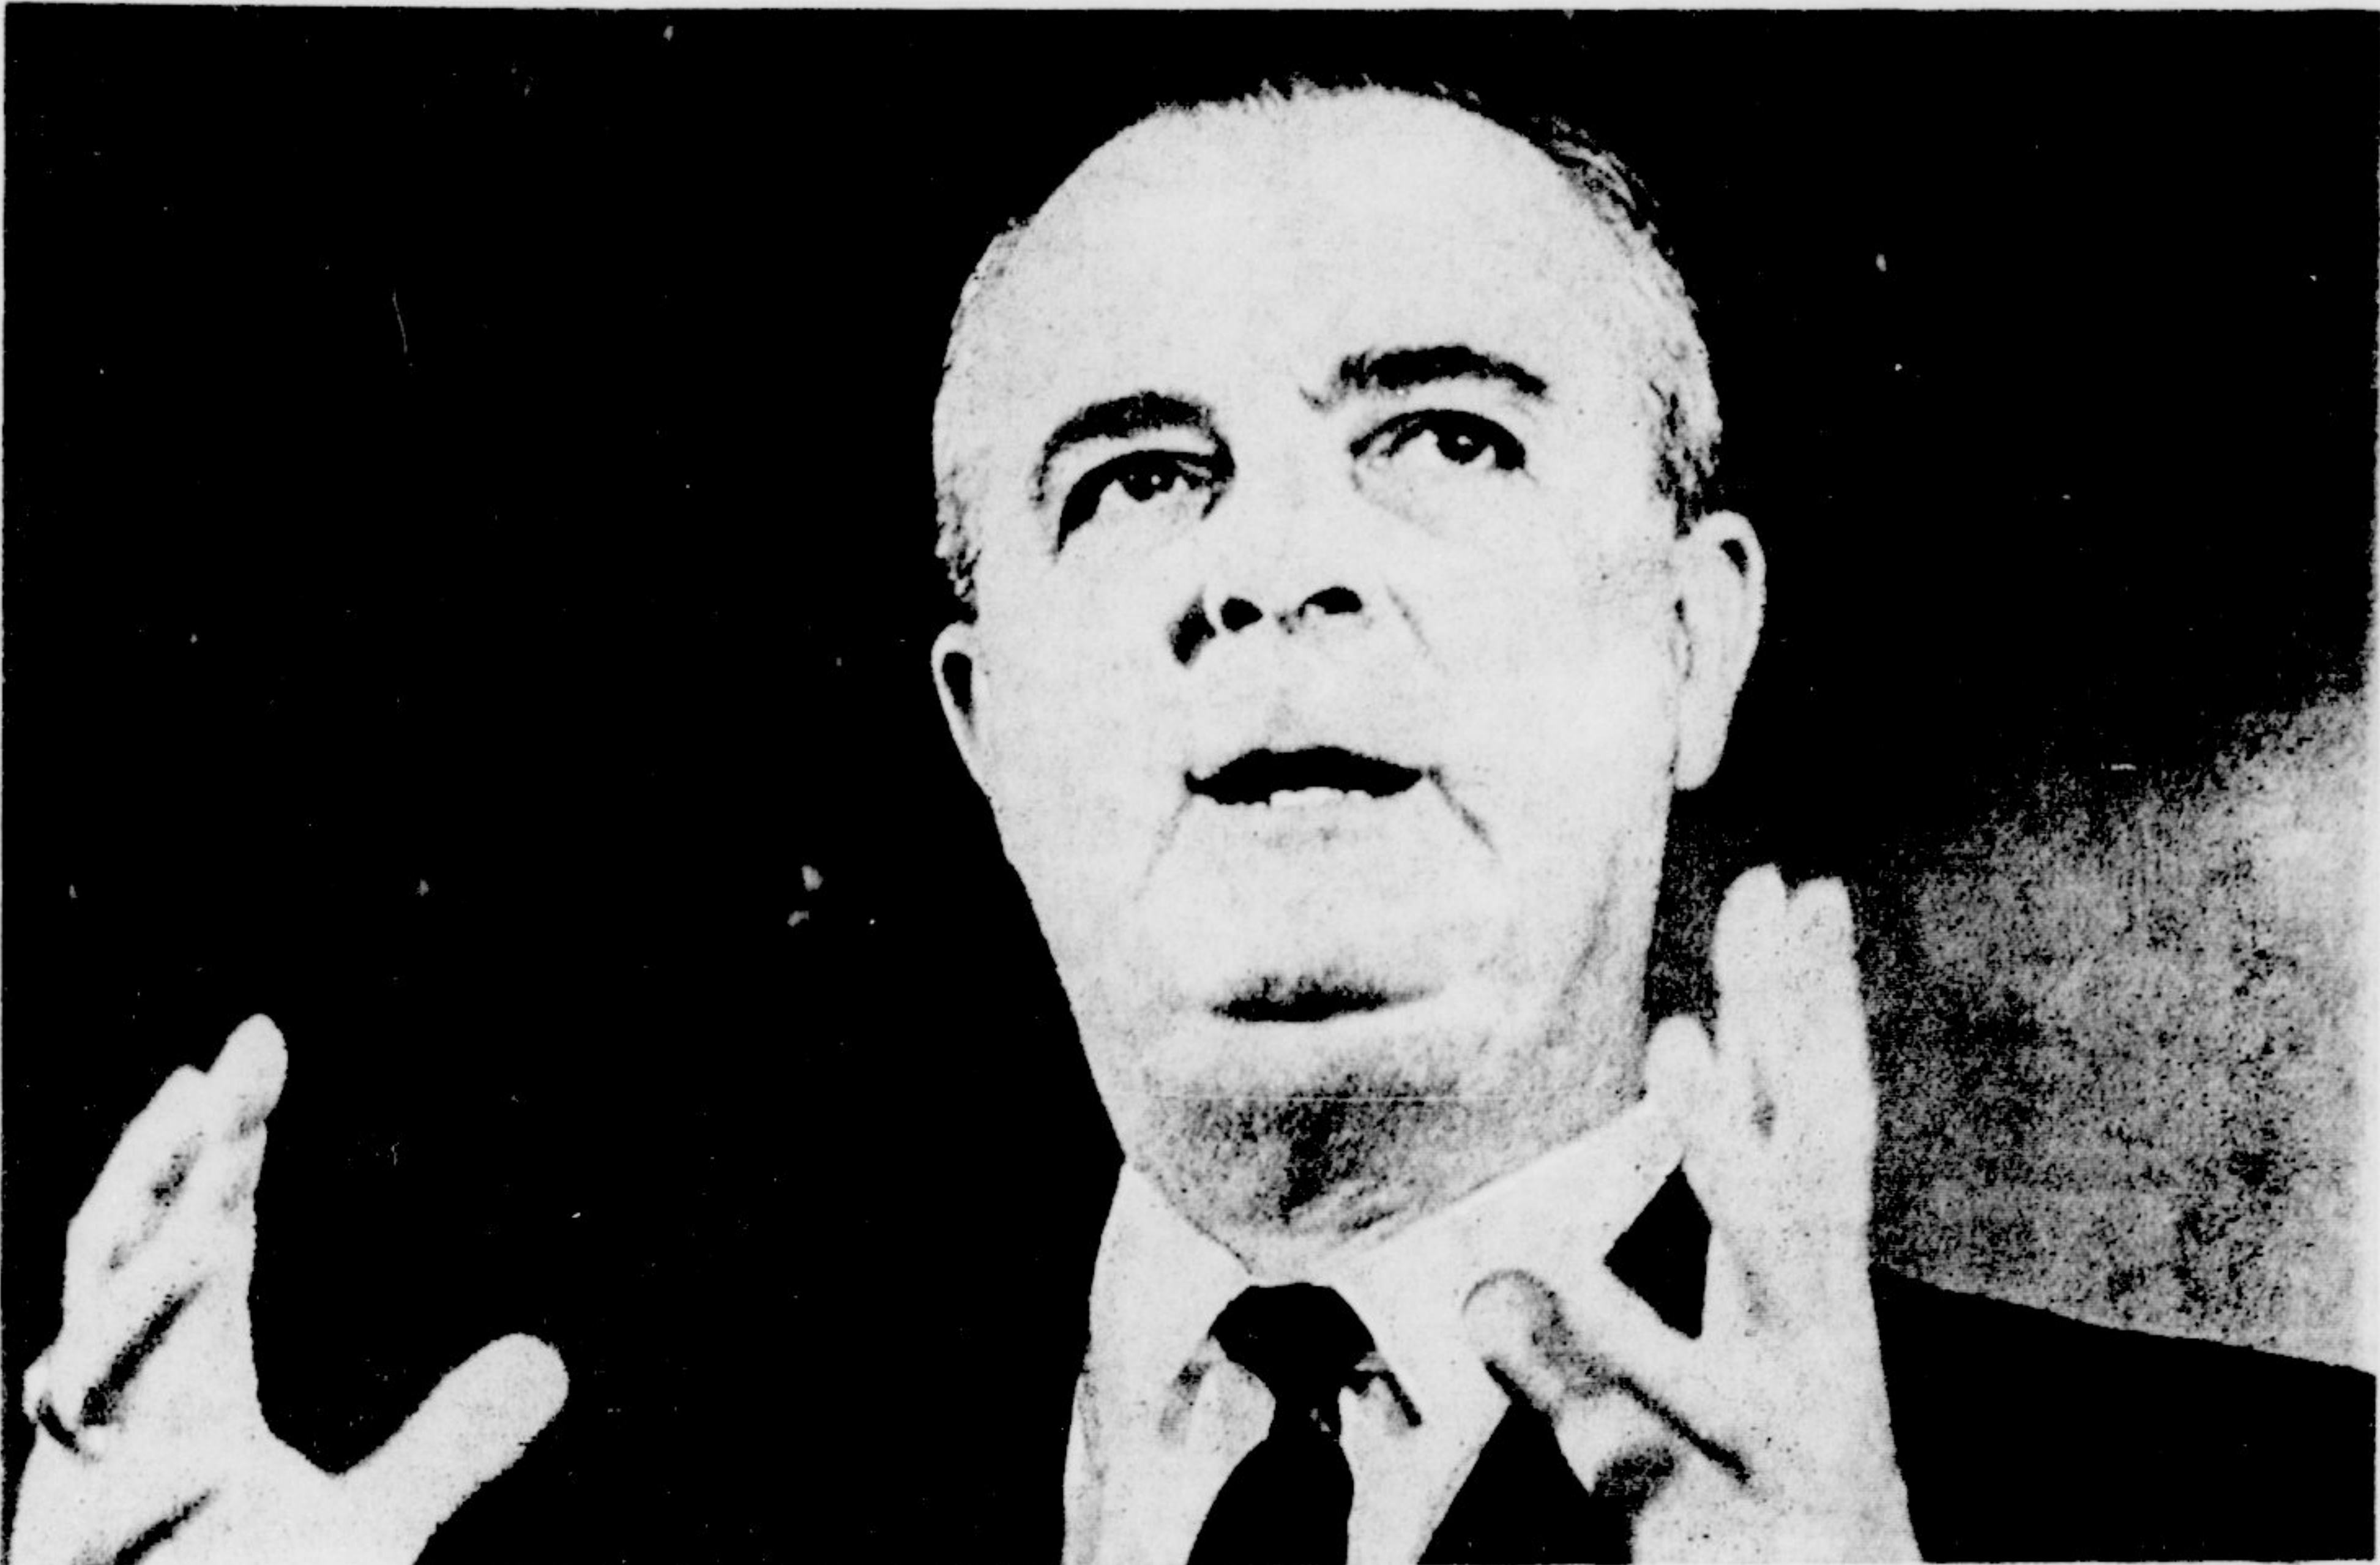

Sen. Robert Morgan termed the move by the Senate Higher Education Committee to grant ECC separate university status a "significant victory," but he added that "the Governor is leaving no holds barred to defeat the ECU bill. He is calling everybody in. It will be a real fight . . . but, the people in this state will hear it."

Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECC President, commented from Raleigh where he was meeting with presidents of denominational colleges in North Carolina. "I think that the committee is reflecting the true wishes of the people of this state. I have received best wishes for success in our bid for independent university status from the college presidents with whom I am meeting."

Voting by Members of the Senate Higher Education Committee was as follows:

FOR independent university status: Sens. Robert Morgan, D-Harrett; Dallas Alford, D-Nash; Vinson Bridgers, D-Edgecombe; Mary Faye Brumby, D-Cherokee; J. J. Coggins, D-Wake; Albert Ellis, D-Onslow; Geraldine Nielson, R-Forsythe; George Wood, D-Camden.

"OUR PLACE IN THE SUN"

Dr. Leo Jenkins stated that the Senate Higher Education Committee was "reflecting the true wishes of the people in this state" in approving legislation to grant East Carolina College separate university status. The ECU bill went to the floor of the Senate for open debate today . . .

1st Pirates Jamboree Features Weekend Of Entertainment

The Pezo Seco Singers, the Association, and Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs are all shifting in for the Pirates Jamboree. If all goes well The Pezo Seco Singers will open in concert at 8:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium tomorrow night.

On Saturday afternoon the Association will begin the first mall concert in EC's history. Hopefully, if it doesn't rain, students will flock to the center of campus, bring their blankets and enjoy a spring afternoon of "Blow Your Mind" music. If the weather doesn't permit the concert on the mall, everyone will move to Wright Auditorium.

Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs are featured for the Pirates Jamboree Dance at 8:00 Saturday night in Wright Auditorium. With a few upbeat tunes and East Carolina's swingers, the evening should be a fine wind-up for Jamboree.

Specially featured for Pirates Jamboree are The Association

Singers who have come along and saved audiences from further listening to the labored folk-rock, IBM music which has been sitting doggedly on the shoulders of a tired music market.

With The Association comes the unmitigated, the untrod and the newborn. This young group of six talented musician-performers has renewed the musical interests of the entire country with their single recording of "Cherish" which held the Number One spot on the national music charts week after week.

Their single recording of "Cherish" does not stand alone. Before "Cherish" there was the multi-lyriced, fast tempoed "And Along Comes Mary" which immediately hit the national charts and introduced The Association to the listening public. And the public after listening wanted more. Quickly

College Queen Contest

State Finalist Includes Fleming

From thousands of young women who entered the National College Queen Contest this year, the judges have selected the final few candidates. Four students in North Carolina have been chosen as state finalists, and one of them will go to New York City to participate in the National College Queen Pageant in June. East Carolina College has produced one of the state finalists.

Miss Ruth Fleming, a junior majoring in Political Science and Spanish is East Carolina's entry in the contest. Candidates were judged on their record of scholastic achievement, their leadership in campus activities, their community service work, and based on essays which they wrote.

If Ruth Fleming reaches the National Finals, she will be seen on a coast-to-coast television spectacular. The entire National College Queen Pageant will be televised in color, on the NBC network on Friday, June 16.

For ten days preceding the telecast, the 50 state winners will participate in a series of forums and seminars. They will be tested and graded in ten competitive events. The candidates will discuss Education, Campus Life, Current Events, Literature, Fashion, Career Goals, and numerous other projects. Panels of national judges will award points for the best opinions and comments.

During these events our state finalist will be able to demonstrate the training and educational background which she has acquired while being a student at East Carolina. Ruth Fleming will be in competition with some of the finest scholars from colleges and universities in the other 49 states.

It is up to us — the students and faculty members of East Carolina College — to help decide which of the four young women now being voted on in the College Union Lobby shall represent our state in the National Finals. For the first time in the history of any major pageant, the selection of the state finalist will be determined by the ballot boxes.

Ballot Boxes and ballots have been placed in the College Union Lobby along with posters exhibiting the four finalists from North Carolina along with their qualifications. Students and faculty members are encouraged to vote any time prior to Wednesday, May 3. On May 4, the ballots will be mailed to the National College Queen headquarters in New York City.

Other finalists seeking the Miss North Carolina College Queen title from schools across the state include Miss Katherine Alexander, an English major from Gaston College in Gastonia. Miss Carolyn Rudolph Hopper, a sociology major from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and Miss Lynda Kathleen Weant, a home economics major from Catawba College.

Miss Ruth Fleming, East Carolina's outstanding finalist, is majoring in both Political Science and Spanish. She has earned a scholarship and was named to the Honor Roll for her first quarter at East

University Party Holds Elections; Francis Receives Chairmanship

By MARCY JORDAN

East Carolina's University Party is busily making plans for the coming year following the election of officers for 1967-68 last Tuesday.

Chairman of the new slate of UP officers is George Francis, chosen by acclamation. Reid Overcash is the new vice chairman, and Patty Larson takes over the position of secretary-treasurer. Committee chairman appointed by the new party chairman include: Barbara Atkins, next year's publicity chairman, and Steve Beaman, minority leader for the remainder of this session.

George Francis, a rising junior political science major, recently returned to East Carolina after serving four years with the Marines. He has served as former chairman of the Young Republicans Club and the Sempre Fidelis Society, a college organization for former Marines. He and Reid Overcash attended the past State Student Legislature in Raleigh. They also represented EC at the recent Middle South Model UN General Assembly in the China Delegation.

After completing considerable research, George plans to travel to Knoxville, Tennessee, in the near future to study first-hand the Student Co-op Discount Card Program at the University of Tennessee. The University Party hopes to carry out a similar program here next year, providing students with cards that would enable them to receive a 5 to 10 percent discount from participating merchants. Other plans for next year include installing lights on the tennis courts on the Hill, building a coin-operated laundry and a cafeteria similar to the Pamlico Room on the Hill, examining the possibility of an inter-campus telephone system for dorm-to-dorm calls, and creating more day student, motorcycle, and bicycle parking facilities. The University Party has succeeded in removing most of the campus traffic barricades on weekends. Their next goal will be to have the barricades removed nightly from 6:00 p.m. to 6:00 a.m.

Francis said that most students are not familiar with the functions and activities of the SGA. Because of this he hopes to initiate bi-quarterly open news conferences to be held by the SGA president and to be open to all students.

"The two-party system is here at East Carolina," Francis stated, "because students have faith in the parties. I am a firm believer in the functionalism of the two-party system because competition encourages harder work by both parties. Because of a feasible platform and qualified candidates, the students gave us their support in the last election, and we hope for their support in the fall election. We will be running a full slate of qualified candidates, and the success of the University Party will depend on its outcome."

Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs will entertain at the Pirates Jamboree Dance Saturday night.

Be-In Happening? . . .

It happened last Thursday at UNC-CH and it's supposed to happen at NCSU next weekend. And it happened at a Be-In . . . a psychedelic revolution but without the use of LSD.

Carolina's Be-In featured hundreds of hippies and mods who gathered to exchange bananas, jelly beans, flowers, a "this is it" world, and understanding.

What would it be like to have a Be-In at EC? We wouldn't have to call it exactly that. What if we just had a Happening . . . a spur of the moment Be-In?

All you need is a colorful costume (doesn't matter if it's sloppy), and an "all encompassing love for mankind." From there a Be-In just sort of happens.

"What's a Be-In?"

"Well, you . . . you, just sort of Be, that's all. Like you sort of tune in and drop out when you feel like it. And you have to turn on in order to tune in."

"Do ya want a banana?"

"At a happening you can climb trees or play chess games with human pieces (real live people) or just blow your mind in green bag clothes or aluminum foil dresses decorated with pink and purple balloons.

What do you think of a Blow Your Mind Happening and just a Be-In for exams? —N.J.L.

Significant Victory . . .

Tuesday was a victory day for East Carolina as the report came from the North Carolina State House that the Senate's Higher Education Committee had approved legislation to grant East Carolina College separate university status. With an 8-7 vote to send the bill to the floor of the Senate, a significant hurdle had been crossed by ECU supporters.

Though it is reported that Governor Dan K. Moore is doing everything possible to defeat the ECU bill, it appears that he didn't quite get his way in the Senate Committee. Perhaps the voices of the people still counts for something even in political circles.

Though the battle is by no means over, East Carolina's chances at gaining separate university status look far brighter than they did a month ago. Passing the ECU bill will entail a tremendous fight on the part of all legislators and outsiders involved. At least the bill is now out of committee and on the Senate floor where anyone who wishes to hear the ECU story will be able to do so.

It's just about time the people of North Carolina had a chance to decide the ECU question for themselves. Hopefully debate on the Senate floor will be a worthwhile endeavor for both supporters and opponents. —N.J.L.

Freedom . . .

Editor's note: The following editorial is an exchange from THE GAMECOCK, student newspaper for the University of South Carolina.

The Michigan State legislature is treading the sacred ground of education again, comments the Wayne State University DAILY COLLEGIAN—

"A year ago, when the legislature tried to interfere with the academic process by passing a resolution barring communists from speaking on the campuses of Michigan's state-supported schools, University President William R. Keast answered with these words:

"A University has no higher duty than to encourage and protect the free and open discussion of ideas, however controversial they may be.

"The principles of freedom are especially precious when they are needed most. They are needed most when the temptation to abandon them is strongest in those who would substitute passion for reason and conformity for controversy.

"This appears to be such a time."

The latest example of possible interference is the proposal to investigate alleged 'antics' on the campuses of Michigan's three large institutions—Wayne, Michigan State and Michigan. Presumably, this action was spurred by the alleged preponderance of narcotics and so-called obscene movies on the University of Michigan campus and the narcotics raid in the area surrounding Wayne.

The legislature is treading on dangerous ground. The recent firing of the University of California's President Clark Kerr shows what results when politics and education are mixed. Any right of investigating that the legislature might have should be tempered by the fact that institutions of higher learning should be free from political involvement.

And just as institutions should be free from political interference in their operation, so should the individual be free from the institution in regard to his personal or moral activities, and the school should not be accountable for those activities.

"If the legislature decides to go ahead with its investigation, we hope President Keast again takes the stand that the university is an autonomous institution and as such should be free from political pressures."

Letters To The Editor

Communist Speaker

Dear Mr. Baum,

Would I had known that my letter would cause war, and decay civilization, I would not have expressed by opinion. I believe that reasonable minds can differ, but I don't think that there will be much differences of opinion on the ultimate goal of communism.

With this thought in mind, Mr. Baum, just where do we have a conflict of thoughts. You mention the need for more information about our enemy, I will agree with you on this point, but where I differ with you is on the timing of such an event. I do not believe, as I said in my letter, that this is the

Twain's Prayer

(Editor's Note: Last week we heard a minister of the Christian church pray for the men in Viet Nam who are presently waging a war. We were reminded of Mark Twain's Prayer, and although the prayer is well-known to some, we offer it to our readers who are not familiar with it.)

O Lord, our father, our young patriots, idols of our hearts, go forth to battle — be thou near them and with them in spirit. We also go forth from the sweet peace of our beloved firesides to smite the foe. O, Lord our God, help us to tear their soldiers to bloody shreds with our shells; help us to cover their smiling fields with the pale forms of the patriot dead; help us to drown the thunder of the gun with the shrieks of their wounded, writhing with pain; help us to turn them out roofless with their little children to wander unfriended the wastes of their desolated land in rags and hunger and thirst . . . we ask it, in the spirit of love, of him who is the spirit of love, of him who is the source of love and who is ever-faithful refuge and friend of all that are sore beset, and seek his aid with humble and contrite hearts.

AMEN

time to give a place for our enemy to speak from. A few questions would be in order at this time:

Mr. Baum, did you learn why the communist had exploited chaos and strife into Viet Nam, Africa, Latin America?

Mr. Baum, did you learn why there is a Berlin Wall?

Mr. Baum, are you now more enlightened on the doctrine of World domination by the communist?

As one of my friends said in a letter written from Viet Nam, "the best way to learn about communism is to be over here, and see the communist theory in practice." I agree with you Mr. Baum that we should learn more about communist theory, and it is good that you and I can sit here in Greenville and discuss this issue. But, let us wait for a more appropriate time to invite a speaker to talk about communism. The appropriate time? Is when the communist quit killing our men in Viet Nam.

Mr. Baum, I will be more than happy to discuss this issue at any time. My address is No. 5 Ragsdale Basement; Tele. 759-5890.

Sincerely,

John K. Meares

EC Strives For 'U'

Dear Editor:

The visit of the Second Secretary of the Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics was one of the most forward looking events which has occurred on this campus. I think that his visit will show that East Carolina College is striving to become a true university, a forum for all opinions, cultures, religions, and governments. An "unforgiveable sin" to provide a forum for a communist speaker? Know your enemy, Mr. Meares. Don't bury your head in the sand.

Sincerely,

Fred Hoffman

To The Editor:

I would like to extend congratulations to the students of East Carolina College whose picture appeared in the News & Observer April 21.

It does my heart good to see our young men and women have the nice and neat appearance that this group has. The good clean American look is upmost in this picture. From you students alone I am greatly impressed by East Carolina College, whether it is a college or university.

Very truly yours,

G. Hale Coble

Deferments For CO's Requested By MS News

(ACP) — While the government is examining, and perhaps overhauling, the Selective Service System, it should give closer consideration to the question of the conscientious objector, comments Faye Unger in the Michigan State News.

The present system makes little provision for a person outside a pacifist sect or church to gain CO status. It makes no provision for conscientious objection to a particular war.

We have been told, and rightly so, the News continued, that a system with more flexible provisions would make it easy for men who merely want to dodge the draft. And with the difficulty of drawing up and enforcing such a system, it's easy to see why any government would want to drop the whole issue. Yet both Christians and democratic governments hold that a person cannot surrender his conscience to the state

There are Christians who don't belong to pacifist churches who are confirmed pacifists on the basis of scripture. And there are humanists, atheistic and agnostic, who are pacifists by conviction. Persons in both groups face difficulty in getting classified as COs. Yet a member of a pacifistic sect can get classified as a CO whether or not he is confirmed in his group's views.

Some persons believe some wars are more just than others. Certainly we should be responsible for questioning the morality of specific wars and acts of war.

The struggle between individual conscience and the demands of society will never end, but we can reach a more equitable adjustment for the conscientious objector. Drawing up more flexible laws will be difficult, but difficulty should be no excuse for a government which prides itself on guaranteeing freedom of conscience

Morgan Quarterbacks ECU Team Second Half Coming Up

White Brings Wit And Song In Final Appearance Tonight

By PAT BERRY

The Final College Union Coffee House Entertainment Series of the year will end this evening when Josh White, Jr., presents his fourth and last show this week in CU 201.

The past three shows began each evening at 3:00 p.m. and lasted until shortly before 10:00, with a ten-minute intermission at 9:00. During intermission, members of the College Union served free refreshments to all present.

Josh, Jr., a truly versatile performer who has charmed close to 100 people an evening for the past three evenings, combines wit, talent, and a remarkable voice to present a show that is sure to be long remembered by all who attend. He presents a variety of serious songs, humorous songs, and comedy routines, including take-offs on several current television commercials, in a manner that keeps the audience at his command throughout the entire show.

When interviewed after the show Monday evening, Josh, Jr. talked on a variety of subjects. For example, it was learned that among his favorite female vocalists are Judy Collins, Odetta, and Miriam Makeba. Also, the Highwaymen, The Kingston Trio, Peter, Paul & Mary, The Loving Spoonful, The Mamas & Papas, and The Association are some of his favorite singing groups.

Regarding his impressions of ECC audiences, Josh Jr. stated that "I am awfully glad that I came back to East Carolina College." He appeared here several years ago with his famous father, Josh, Sr., and again by himself last summer. Both previous appearances were sponsored by the SGA.

When probed for some type of direct quote, Josh, Jr., his sharp wit clearly evident, stated simply, "No matter where you go, there you are."

Josh, Jr.'s future plans include an appearance at the Southern Universities Student Government Association meeting in Mobile, Alabama, tomorrow evening; The University of South Carolina, Columbia, South Carolina on Saturday evening; back to New York on Sunday; and "out of my mind" on Monday. He will be back in South Carolina on May 13, playing at the Citadel in Charleston.

Love And Political Life Characterize 'Zhivago'

Dr. Zhivago is a movie of singular beauty. It is a moving portrayal of a wandering poet's life, a man that loved living and the beauty of nature.

Dr. Zhivago, played by Omar Sharif, witnessed the injustices and atrocities of the decaying Romanov Dynasty at the turn of the century. Zhivago, himself, a product of Bourgeois Russia, saw the need for a change in the old Russian way of life, but he detested the way Lenin and his cohorts went about it.

The film, itself, contrasts mass events and individual experiences. The author of the story never forgets this, even when some characters do and Zhivago and his friend Laura, played by Julie Christie, never seem to, passionately aware as they are of all experiences, their own, that of those they love, their countries, the people, and even the Czars. When the announcement comes from St. Petersburg that a Soviet of People's Commissars has been formed, Zhivago senses the split between the personal "revolution" and the general revolution, once so interwoven in his consciousness. Months later still, he sees what is to him, "a profound symbol" a boy with a bad head wound, wearing a school cap! — "It slithered continually from his bandaged head, and instead of taking it off and carrying it in his head he rammed it back each time, disturbing the bandage and the wound and in this his two guards assisted him readily." This seems absurdity to Zhivago as well as a symbol. He longed to shout to him and to the people in the railway coach that salvation lay not in loyalty to forms but in throwing them out.

Zhivago's philosophy of life could be summed up as, "Man is born to live not to prepare for life. Life itself, the phenomenon of life is the gift of life, is breathtakingly serious."

Earle Beasley (standing) converses with Jack Hari and Vivian Isley in a recent rehearsal of the dramatic reading of Thornton Wilders' "Our Town," to be presented by Sigma Tau Delta May 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the CU Auditorium. Other cast members are in the foreground.

Do College Psychiatrists Misrepresent Their Roles?

A leading critic of American psychiatry has charged college psychiatrists with misrepresenting their roles to both students and administrators.

Dr. Thomas S. Szasz, professor of psychiatry at the Upstate Medical Center of the State University of New York (Syracuse, N. Y.), said the college psychiatrist "governs himself by the principle of therapeutic discretion, according to which he may do virtually anything to the student under the guise of acting in his 'best interests.'"

Addressing the 44th convention of the American Orthopsychiatric Association (AOA), Szasz claimed that the psychiatrist implies "that he is the agent, simultaneously, of the student-patient whose personal confidences he respects, and of the school administration, whose needs for social control he fulfills."

In fact, the author of the controversial LAW, LIBERTY, AND PSYCHIATRY stated, the school psychiatrist is "a double agent, or mediator, serving both parties in a conflict by owing real loyalty to neither."

Szasz said the college psychiatrist presents to students a vision of "a compassionate counselor and therapist who promises to be a faithful conspirator with the student in his struggle for liberation from parents and educational authorities."

To the institution and the outside world, Szasz claimed, the psychiatrist "shows the other side of his face: He is a wise physician who will select and control students and inform about them, as the needs of the school and the community require."

In his actual relation to students as a group, Szasz stated, "the college psychiatrist assumes the role of an inscrutable benefactor." According to Szasz, the school psychiatrist "demands blind trust from clients who are often involuntary, and obedient submission to his vast power over them."

In his relation to the student as an individual, Szasz said, the college psychiatrist "refuses to make contracts which would make his behavior predictable."

Festival Planned May 4-6

Reprinted from THE DAILY REFLECTOR, April 25, 1967

One of the "biggest three-day promotions" in the history of Greenville has been announced by the Promotion Sub-committee of the Downtown Improvement and Promotion Committee.

The three-day period, named the "Downtown Spring Festival," will be held May 4-6. Stores will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. on May 4 and 5, and from 9:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. on Saturday.

According to Bill B. Laughinghouse, Chairman of the Promotion Sub-committee, featured attractions will be performances at the corner of Evans and Fourth Streets by a trained dolphin. Thousands of dollars worth of trade certificates will be dropped from an airplane over downtown Greenville.

It is planned that at least twenty or more portable television sets will be given away through registrations in stores. Fireworks and other interesting entertainment will be shown at night.

According to plans published by the committee, the 300 and 400 blocks of Evans and the 100 block of Fourth Street (East and West) will be blocked to traffic during the promotion. This idea will be decorated with flags and bunting.

Exhibits comprised of new, vintage, and experimental automobiles will be displayed in the four blocks involved. Interesting acts and attractions will be scheduled for the area at the intersection of Fourth and Evans Streets.

Tentative plans are for fireworks at 9 p.m. concluding each of the three days activity.

Pirates Jamboree...

there appeared their first album "And Along Comes The Association" — and along came a thunderous applause and deserved success for today's most in demand recording group in the country.

When The Association steps on a stage, gone are the hip trends of men's permanent waves, flowered pants, vinyl vests, eyelids at half-mast, unintelligible lyrics popularized by many other pop recording groups. It has been noted that compared to the other groups, they look very healthy . . . Grey suits, vests, shirts, ties, closely cropped hair, visible faces — This is the look of The Association. And their music — a perfect combination of detailed harmonies, intelligent meaningful lyrics and intricate pacing blended together to produce that indefinable something that makes The Association a carbon copy of no one.

In 1964, The Association was but an idea or concept in music nurtured by six individual young performers — Jim Yester, Brian Cole, Terry Kirkman, Russ Giguere, Ted Bluechel and Gary Alexander — who were determined to make something happen with their music. They wanted their music to be totally original and the feeling behind it a reflection of their own lives . . . the things they do every day, the things they see and the people they know.

Knowing only too well that music is a way of life, not just a profession, they pooled resources six months before their first professional appearance and rented a large old house capable of absorbing plenty of sound. Their objective? To give The Association a definitive form and to polish their new creation.

The Association's self-imposed hibernation ended when they appeared in a local night club which featured a good sound system — a must for these young experimentalists. Overwhelming their audience and the club owner with their unique sound and performance, they were hired for the owner's other night club — The Pasadena Ice House. Shortly thereafter, The Association signed with Valiant Records and the rest is recording history.

Carolina. She has been on the All A's Dean's List every quarter since. For her academic accomplishments, Ruth has received two scholarship awards from Kappa Delta Sorority. She is a member of Sigma Tau Sigma and has participated in the Sophomore Honors Seminar. She played the female lead in a Spanish-language drama which was produced by Spanish majors. Ruth enjoys a variety of hobbies and has been quite active in local community projects.

In June, it is possible that one of these four candidates will be guest of the National College Queen Pageant in New York City. We want the next Miss North Carolina College Queen to be from East Carolina. Miss Carleen Hjortsvang, a student here at EC, was Miss North Carolina College Queen for 1966.

So cast your vote today and insure that East Carolina will again be the top College in North Carolina. The ballot box has been placed in the CU Lobby for your convenience. Don't forget — Vote for Ruth Fleming today.

One of the top entertainment groups around today. The Associations, will be the special feature for 'Pirates Jamboree' this weekend. They will perform on the mall Saturday afternoon.

Two EC Runners Participate In Snowy Boston Marathon

By DAVE McCONNELL
Associate Sports Editor

Last Wednesday, April 19th, it was snowing in Boston, Massachusetts. The temperature hovered at 21 degrees. There were 601 thinly clad runners of all ages, sexes, and races waiting for the starter's gun to send them on their way in the 71st running of the Boston Marathon.

Terry Taylor and John Osborne were two of those 601 runners. They were cold, wet, and used to the 70 and 80 degree weather of Greenville, N. C. Terry finished 106 with a time of 2 hrs. 51 min. and 37 seconds. John finished 208 with a time of 3 hrs 15 min. The amazing thing about these two men is that they both had enough guts to finish the 26 mile run.

Terry and John put in anywhere from 10 to 17 miles a day in preparing for this race. John holds the school record for the marathon with a time of 2hrs. 49min. 1 second. Terry, the speedier of the two, holds the school records in both the two and three mile runs. He has a 9:54 clocking for two miles and a 15:27 clocking for the three mile run.

John and Terry financed their own way to and from Boston, and represented East Carolina College in the race. It may be noted that many thousands of spectators saw those EC jerseys all along the way. Both men love running and say that you must be, "a little crazy to keep on running". But they go on.

This school should be proud to have two fine men in their midst. The student body, faculty, and administration tips their hats to John Osborne and Terry Taylor, two fine representatives of EC.

Murray Seeks Vault Title

By DAVE McCONNELL
Associate Sports Editor

John Murray, a member of the record smashing East Carolina track team, hasn't broke the pole vault record yet, but is well on the way. John is a sophomore from Charlottesville, Virginia.

At the beginning of the season, John could not clear 11' in the pole vault. Last week he cleared 14' against the University of Richmond. The record is 15'3" held by Allan Price. With seven meets left to go, John is rapidly closing in on the record.

John has been plagued this season with illnesses, and injuries.

Two weeks ago against Davidson he fell from a height of 13' and hit his leg on a brick wall surrounding the pole vault pit. But this did not stop him, he went on to win the event with a 13' jump, and the very next day won the pole vault against the best N.C. State had to offer with a leap of 13'6". That takes courage!

Let's wish John the best of luck in the Carolina Relays this weekend at Chapel Hill. He is certainly a top contender to take the pole vault title in that meet. While we're at it, let's wish the whole team luck.

Clem's Clipboard Pirates Seek Revenge

By Clem Williams

Pirates Vs. UNC

East Carolina's conference leading baseball team will meet old rival UNC at Chapel Hill tomorrow.

Coach Earl Smith's Pirates will be aiming for revenge of last years loss to Carolina in the NCAA Regional play offs. Carolina is having a somewhat dismal season in comparison with East Carolina's 18-2 record. However the Tarheels do have an ace in the bag and the Pirates may get a chance to see it. Garry Hill is the Carolina pace maker and could pose quite a problem should he get the starting nod. Jim Snyder and Richard Narron are still set to pace in the Southern Conference batting race. Narron is around the .500 mark. After Saturday's game, Jim Snyder is probably around that average too. Not to many people hit four home runs in succession.

Currently the Pirates are two games ahead of second place William and Mary.

Cindermen to Chapel Hill

The Pirate Cindermen will also be hosted by Carolina this weekend for the Carolina relays. The Pirates will be well represented there. Why not come on up and make a weekend of it?
