Negro Committee Maps Plans To Stop Race Discrimination

By PATTI NELSON
Assist. News Editor

A group of Negro students on campus has formed a six-member Negro Students' Grievance Committee.

According to Charles Davis, Chairman of the committee, "Our purpose at the present time is to eliminate all forms of racial discrimination to the extent that we are students at East Carolina University and not Negro students."

The group began discussions of the discrimination problem about a month ago, Davis said, and subsequently elected the committee.

Other members of the committee are Phyllis Simpson, Secretary; Corrietta Hill, Bernadine Smallwood, Janice McNeil, and Johnny Williams.

Davis explained that the group evolved because "The Negro students on this campus reached the point where they decided it was time to stand up for themselves and make known to the student body problems of discrimination that exist on our campus."

The committee represented the group in talks with President Jenkins to whom they submitted a list of general grievances. "He said he would cooperate with us as much as possible in dealing with our problems," Davis said.

Problems were also presented to SGA President Steve Moore.

As to how the committee intends to pursue its aims, Davis stated that "We plan to work as much as possible through the Administration, faculty, SGA, and the student body as a whole."

"We are appealing to all campus organizations and the student body in general to support us in our efforts to eliminate problems of racial discrimination on our campus."

He also noted that "We anticipate having some demonstrations which will be non-violent by intent," adding that they plan to ask the Administration for permits to demonstrate.

SGA Approves Student Race Relations Board

A Race Relations Committee is in the planning stages for EC. The SGA approved a bill allowing its president to set up such a board in its meeting Monday night.

"We have an increasing problem in race relations on campus," quoted SGA president, Steve Moore, in his address to the legislature. "At present there is no place for these students to go to air their problems."

The purpose of the committee is to create a channel whereby racial groups can present their problems, requests, and suggestions. "It is not being set up to search out problems, but to exist as a way for the newly organized Negro Grievances Committee and other organizations representing the interests of minority groups on campus to communicate their problems constructively and seek solutions," emphasized Moore.

The issues, their factual basis, and any attempts to correct the problems will be recorded so that the group can clearly see its progress.

The composition of the Race Relations Committee is indefinite at this time. The appointment of members will be left to the discretion of the SGA president. "Understanding is the main issue," said Moore. "We want members with as few biases as possible."

Later it will be joined by a similar faculty committee, appointed by the Faculty Senate.

The vote for the bill was not unanimous; however it held a clear majority. Bob Robinson, a legislature member who voted in favor of the motion stated, "It seems rather absurd not to appoint a new committee when a Student Complaint Board has already been set up to handle such problems, however, the problem may be large enough to merit a separate investigative body."

Barbara Adkins, another legislator, commented on the committee by saying, "I did not know about the need for a Race Relations Committee until Monday night, but I feel that if there is a need something should be done immediately. Discrimination in housing and food service and among faculty members should be eliminated. More minority groups should be represented in SGA so that their voice can be heard. If the need is so great we definitely need such a committee."

Fred Waring and the Herald Trio, three of the famous Pennsylvanians ensemble will appear January 18 at 8:15 p.m.

Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians Boast Wide Range Of Talent

Fred Waring and his entourage will perform Thursday night, January 18, at 8:15 in Wright Auditorium with their show, "The Next Fifty Years".

The Pennsylvanians, Waring's orchestra, and the Glee Club have each had training in music. The group has won awards for their musical abilities.

Fred's son, Fred Waring, Jr., is a member of the Pennsylvanians. Fred, Jr.'s musical background includes being a member of the Navy Band and Orchestra and studying music at the University of Indiana. While at the University, he formed his own band which made many television appearances.

As a trombonist Fred, Jr., has played with the bands of Woody Herman, Les Elgart, Buddy Morrow, and Henry Mancini.

Another Pennsylvanian, Debbie Truxal, is a soprano who was a three-time winner on Ted Mack's Amateur Hour.

Cleo Conklin, a former contestant in the Miss Michigan Pageant, is a contralto with the Pennsylvanians.

The Klinger Twins, Kay and Karen, of the Pennsylvanians have been interested in music since they were children. They attended the University of Colorado's Music Workshop where they were designated "outstanding musicians" by the music faculty.

A student of music for seven years is Carol Ann Paul, soprano with the Pennsylvanians. She toured as soloist with the Orange Coast Chorale and sang at Disneyland for a year.

Pennsylvanian Pamela Wagoner is a native of Green Bay, Wisconsin. She won national honors as soprano soloist at the Catholic Scholarship awards in Washington, D. C. Miss Wagoner was educated at St. Joseph's Academy and St. Norbert's College where she majored in voice and music theory.

The Heralds — Richard Carpenter, John Logan, and Dennis Ray — organized while attending the University of Tennessee. Their program consists of folk songs, bluegrass, and contemporary music with their own accompaniment.

Before embarking on their current tour with the Pennsylvanians, The Heralds made their third tour of the Canal Zone and Panama, where they entertained the members of our Armed Forces.

Jody Sechler is following in her parents' footsteps. Her mother was a Pennsylvanian for four years. Her father was a member of the group for ten years.

The Gentry Trio, George Bowers, Tim Noble, and John Schmutz, met while they were students at Ball State University in Indiana. They were members of the glee club and combined to sing and play specialties as a trio.

Tickets for the Fred Waring show may be picked up in the Central Ticket Office.

Workshop Theatre Presents One-Acts By Carlino, Saroyan

By DENNIS McGAHA

The workshop theatre will present its third bill of one-act plays Tuesday and Wednesday, January 16 and 17 at 8:15 p.m. in the University Union Auditorium. The two plays being presented are SNOW-ANGEL by Lewis Carlino and COMING THROUGH THE RYE by William Saroyan. The public is invited to attend without charge.

SNOWANGEL is a perceptible, arresting, and deeply revealing study of a prostitute and her unsettling customer. The play probes beneath the apparent tawdriness of their encounter to illuminate the inner reaches of their almost desperate and touching humanity. After seeing the recent off-Broadway production of this play, Taubman of the NEW YORK TIMES wrote: "Fire a salute! Lewis John Carlino is a writer of intensity and power!"

COMING THROUGH THE RYE takes place in the womb. The characters are waiting to be born and are discussing their futures on earth. The cast includes Greg Zittel as the voice, Bob Tompkins as Butch, Taylor Green as Carroll, Jack Scarey as Steve, Evelyn Marshall as Miss Quigley, Ken Heist and Gail Appenzeller as the kids, Bob Gurganus as Hastings, and Alice Massengill as Peggy. Ken Heist is in charge of props, and Mike Byrum will manage the lighting. The play is directed by Carlton Edwards.

Duncan Recalls Educator, First EC President Wright

WRIGHT AUDITORIUM—Memorial to Robert Herring Wright, first president of ECTTS.

By JOHN DUNCAN

Fifty-eight years ago on November 12, 1909, a tall thin man advanced to the rostrum on Austin stage. Looking out over the assembly of students, faculty, and townspeople, Robert Herring Wright began his inaugural address: "Standing here as I do upon the threshold of a new institution, established by our state to meet a growing need of our civilization, it is not strange if I see visions and dream dreams . . ."

Born May 21, 1870, on his father's farm between the Big and Little Coharie rivers in what is now Sampson County, young Wright spent his early years "planting, tending and harvesting crops on the farm."

The schools he attended were operated only three months out of a year and were paid for out of subscription funds. At the age of 18, having completed all the courses offered by these schools, Wright applied for a teacher's certificate and a job, and in 1888 he began his career as a teacher in a small schoolhouse at Hungry Branch. For 2 years he taught at this school, and, realizing he needed much more education to continue his career, he entered Oak Ridge Institute.

Chapel Hill Graduate

He entered the University of North Carolina and was graduated in 1897 with the B. A. degree.

While at Carolina, Wright put to good use his sturdy six-foot-three-inch frame. He was a star linesman, captain of the Tar Heels, and captain of the track team.

But never neglecting his studies, Wright was president of the Historical Society, a member of the Shakespeare Club, and president of the Philosophical Society.

After graduating from Carolina, Wright served as principal for one year at Stanhope High School in Nash County. He then moved to Oak Ridge Academy and taught mathematics and coached the football team until 1901.

Leaving Oak Ridge, he went to Baltimore to take advanced courses at John Hopkins University. He accepted the position as teacher of history at Baltimore City College. Two years later he was made head of the department of History and Civics.

Wright continued his studies at John Hopkins until 1903, when he devoted all his time to his duties at the City College.

In 1906, he became principal of Eastern High School in Baltimore. During his stay here he won recognition as one of the coming figures in the field of education, and in 1909, he was one of the highest officials in the Baltimore school system.

E.C.T.T.S.

Wright was offered the presidency of the newly constructed school for teachers in Greenville in 1909. Maryland friends urged him to stay in Baltimore, but the pull of North Carolina won out as he took the Greenville job for the princely sum of $2,500 per year.

The birth of the Greenville school would have never taken place if efforts to establish it were left to the state officials. A niggardly appropriation of $15,000 was given from state funds for construction of the school and an additional sum of $5,000 annually for the purpose of maintaining the school. The school came into being due to the efforts of Pitt County citizens.

Wright would have to contend with the money granters during his entire stay at East Carolina. He would, in addition to his $2,500 salary, have the privilege of having living quarters in what is now Jarvis Hall.

'Born Teacher'

East Carolina was indeed fortunate in getting Wright as its president. He was dedicated to his purpose of educational matters. He was a "born teacher."

Knowing that the school would be only as strong as its faculty, Wright, with assistance of others, obtained the best talent possible.

Students began arriving at the school before construction was completed. They were at the very doors, waiting to be admitted, crowding the carpenters, coming in when the shavings were being swept out.

Many honors came to the farm boy from Coharie. In 1915 he was vice-president of North Carolina Teachers Assembly and one year later became president of the same assembly. He was chairman of the state Educational Commission, and in 1925-26 he was president of the American Association of Teachers Colleges. In 1928 he was conferred the degree as Doctor of Education by Wake Forest College.

The story of Robert Herring Wright can never be told in the short space of a newspaper article. His works would fill a volume.

The people of this state should be forever grateful that he passed this way. For the small training school, nourished by his ability, his dedication and love of people, has grown into a great university. Foundations of its growth and promise were laid down in great part by the thin, tall man, who on November of long ago, gave to those assembled and to those who would follow these words:

"This school is an expression of determination, it was built by the people for the people, and may it ever remain with the people, as a servant of the people."

April 25, 1934

Robert Herring Wright died April 25, 1934. For 25 of his 64 years, he gave his talents to the Greenville institution. He had seen it grow from a small training school for teachers to a teachers college, and had seen 22,327 students pass through the school during his term as president.

The life of the farm boy from the Coharie can be summed up with an educational dictum: "He made his mark."

Voice Of East Carolina Swings

By WALT WHITEMORE

Prior to Christmas vacation, several of the women's dorms experienced the ultimate disaster: the transmission of WECU were not being received. However, with the addition of new transmitters the new year was welcomed as the campus readied to enjoy another year of Top 40 sounds.

WECU serves the dual role as training ground for its broadcasters and as a source of entertainment and news information for its listeners.

The business offices and broadcast rooms are located on the second floor of Joyner Library, space which was donated by the administration. Equipment like the tape casters and turn tables have been donated by organizations such as the Voice of America and the Student Government. Other necessities are afforded by the income received from advertising.

Currently, the station broadcasts from 2 p.m. until 1 a.m. throughout the week, and "Until . . ." on Saturdays. Opening each broadcast day is Paul Boylin with his "Fun and Frolic Show." Paul is a 23-year-old history major from Wadesboro, N. C., who brings six years of radio and television experience to the campus. Included in his background is his time spent as an announcer for WNCT-TV.

Then from 6-7 p.m., Susie McConnell, better known to her listeners as Susie Creamcheese, takes to the air. She is a 20-year-old sophomore from Illinois whose interests lie in the theatre, radio, and television. This motorcycle enthusiast has been active in the EC Playhouse and with CCTV. In addition to her show, Susie is a member of the radio executive staff, serving as continuity director.

On Saturday night "Happy Jack" Fisher airs his requests-only show, broadcasting from mid-night "Until . . ." Jack, an 18-year-old freshman from Fayetteville, also serves on the executive staff as chief announcer.

Other broadcasters are "Jumpin' Jim" Hicks, 3:00-4:00; John Carros, 4:00-5:00; Van Stock, 5:00-6:00; Jim H. Davis, 7:00-8:00; Harold Sellers, 8:00-10:00; Jim Buchanan, 10:00-11:00; "Wild Bill" Hicks, 11:00-12:00; Mike Handley, 12:00-1:00; and Steve "Ace" Adkins, who broadcasts on Sunday from 6:00-10:00.

Outstanding Book Store Workers Receive $150 Scholarship Awards

Two East Carolina students have been honored with eighth annual "Student - Employee - of - the - Year" awards from the ECU Students Supply Stores.

Engraved plaques and $150 scholarships were presented to Carolyn Ann Tucker and Russell E. Nolan. The co-winners were picked by a Students Supply Stores committee. Nominees were drawn from the 60 students who help pay their college bills by working part-time in the student stores.

Joseph O. Clark, manager of the stores, noted in presenting the awards that the annual honor recognizes "students who get along well with fellow workers, who have a favorable attitude toward duties and who make a habit of outstanding performance of assignments." He said Miss Tucker and Nolan have been "outstanding members of our student staff."

On hand to watch the awards ceremony and to make brief speeches were Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president of the university, and Mrs. Jenkins; and F. D. Duncan, vice president and business manager, and Mrs. Duncan.

About 75 guests attended the awards presentation which followed a banquet in the Buccaneer Room on the campus.

Five scholarships of $1,000 each are available to qualified students applying to the Institute for American Universities for an academic year at Aix-en-Provence, in Southern France. Work Study Opens Student Positions

Opportunities for participation in a wide range of unique development projects are available now and during the next quarter to East Carolina students who qualify under the Work Study Program.

The East Carolina University Regional Development Institute announced today that it has openings for a number of work study students. Opportunities range from assisting members of the Institute's technical staff to researching selected statistical data vital to completion of development studies and reports.

T. W. Willis, Director of the Institute, today said the student openings afford an exceptional opportunity for young men and women on the campus to relate their higher education to the practical aspects of private industry and the business world in general.

Students who are available now or who will be available during Spring quarter should contact the Institute at 505 East 8th Street. Hours of interview are between 9 o'clock a.m. and 4 o'clock p.m., Monday through Friday, lucky to Louisiana and from Florida to Virginia.

Geographers Meet On Campus In '68

The Southeastern Division of the Association of American Geographers (AAG) will hold its annual conference in 1968 on the ECU campus.

Dr. Robert E. Cramer, chairman of the Department of Geography, said the geographers' association, meeting in Gainesville, Fla., decided on ECU as the site for the next conference and set the date for Nov. 18-19. It will be the first official AAG session to be held at East Carolina. An attendance of approximately 250 is expected.

Dr. Cramer, accompanied by five of his staff members, presented East Carolina's invitation at the Gainesville meeting. The division selected East Carolina from five schools submitting bids.

According to Dr. Cramer, "It is a distinct honor for us to be host for this organization because it is composed of distinguished geography professors from colleges and universities throughout the Southern states." The Southeastern Division has members from Ken-

New Field House Dedication Honors Distinguished Supporter

Publications photographer Walter Quade has captured the only warmth left during the cold winter days on campus.

East Carolina paid formal tribute Sunday afternoon, January 7, to one of its most enthusiastic supporters with dedication ceremonies for the Waightstill Morehead Scales Field House.

The 4 p.m. ceremony took place at the Scales Field House near the center of the athletic complex.

University Trustee David J. Whichard II of Greenville, long a close personal friend of Scales, unveiled a new portrait of his father which will hang in the field house.

The portrait, painted by Marilyn Gordley of the ECU art faculty, was presented in memory of Waightstill Morehead Scales by his family.

President Jenkins welcomed those attending the ceremonies after which a trombone quartet from the School of Music presented music.

Following the portrait unveiling and Whichard's address, the honoree's pastor, Rev. William J. Hadden of Eighth Street Christian Church, offered the prayer of dedication.

Scales Field House, an 8,000-square-foot building between Ficklen Stadium and Minges Coliseum, provides locker rooms and related facilities for ECU's outdoor sports program.

With Scales leading the way, funds for the field house were raised through contributions of some 150 friends and supporters of the university.

Before that, Scales was chairman of a highly successful fund-raising effort for Ficklen Stadium and co-chairman of the funds campaign for the Century Club building at the stadium. He served as the first president of the Century Club and is a former Pirates Club president.

As a civic leader, he is the only person who holds both of Greenville's highest civic affairs honors: the Distinguished Service Award of the Jaycees (1957) and the Book of Golden Deeds Award of the Exchange Club (1961). In 1958 he was honored by the Jaycees as Community Man of the Year for the entire state.

Student Legislature Forms Race Relations Committee

The formation of a Race-Relations Committee was urged Monday by Steve Moore, president of the Student Government Association. Moore, speaking at the weekly meeting of the Legislature, said that the committee would handle campus race relations and function as a permanent board. (Note story on page 1.)

In other action by the Legislature, $200 was appropriated for the REBEL and the Central Ticket Office for expenses, three Legislature members were appointed to the Publications Board and Bill Mosier was appointed to the Men's Honor Council.

The legislative body approved a $50 appropriation for the REBEL for the Poetry and Copy Editor's salaries. The $50 will bring the REBEL budget to $23,910.

An additional appropriation of $150 was awarded to the Central Ticket Office to cover the expenses of postage, film rental and projectionist salary. The money will also cover the cost of a new stage light which will be purchased from the Drama Department. The light will replace the one now being used in Wright Auditorium. The old light will be placed permanently in Minges Coliseum for use at concerts.

Barbara Atkins, Barry Blick and Mitchel King were appointed to the Publications Board. The board advises and oversees the four SGA publications: the BUCCANEER, the EAST CAROLINIAN, the KEY and the REBEL.

The legislative body, by unanimous vote, approved the appointment of Bill Mosier to the Men's Honor Council. Mosier is a native of Greenville, a member of Kappa Alpha Order and the Inter-Fraternity Council.

In other action by the Legislature, Steve Morrisette, speaker of the legislature, appointed a committee to study the problem of Activity Cards for Graduate-Fellows. Previously, persons who attended classes and carried a teaching load have been denied Activity Cards since they are neither full-time students nor full-time instructors. Bob Richardson was appointed to head the committee.

Speaker Morrisette announced that the next Legislature meeting will be on January 16 at 5 p.m. in the Legislature Room.

New Departments Established

Dr. Douglas R. Jones, dean of the School of Education, has announced the establishment of five departments and the appointment of department heads within his school.

The creation of the departments, Dr. Jones said, is in keeping with the overall purpose of the university and the plan of development for the School of Education.

"This will enable us to offer a more effective and a more efficient program of teacher education both now and in the years to come," said the dean.

SP Discusses Spring Elections

The Student Party met Monday evening at 6:30 in the legislature room to act on constitutional amendments and to discuss Spring SGA elections.

Five proposed amendments, tabled at the last meeting in accordance with a constitutional provision, were brought to the floor by chairman Bill Diuguid. All amendments were adopted by the party and are to be submitted to the SGA legislature for approval next week.

Cornell 'Big Red' Joins East Carolina Tourney

Cornell University, one of the basketball powers in the East over the past ten years, has joined the field for the 1968 East Carolina University invitational basketball tournament.

Cornell becomes the sixth team in the field of eight that will compete in a three-day tournament beginning December 26.

The Big Red, carrying an 8-1 record this season, has not had a losing season since 1958 under Coach Sam McNeil. McNeil guided the club to a 19-5 record last season that included a rare win over the University of Kentucky at Lexington and a victory over Princeton, the Ivy League's championship contender.

"Cornell's acceptance is just another indication to me that we are going to have one of the finest basketball tournaments in the country," Dr. Leo Jenkins commented. Cornell has long had a tradition of good athletic programs and is a school with high academic standards."

Cornell will bring a veteran team to the ECU tournament. This year's club has only one senior in the first seven players, and among the returnees next year will be one of the biggest backcourt men in the country. He is 6'5" Walter Esdalle, a 250-pound junior who is one of the fastest men on the team and is regarded as one of the premier guards in the East. The announcement that Cornell is to compete in the East Carolina tournament comes on the heels of the team's first tournament victory in history. Last week the Big Red won the Kodak Classic, beating Holy Cross for the championship.

Coach Tom Quinn, who heads up the selection committee for the tournament was elated with the acceptance by Cornell.

"This means we will be represented by every section of the country except the Far West and Midwest," Quinn said.

The Big Red joins Virginia, Baylor, Delaware, William and Mary, and East Carolina in the field.

Fouls Cost Bucs Four

By John Lowe

By JOHN LOWE

A lot has been said and written about the Pirates tendency to foul. This year, the team is fouling at the rate of 22 fouls a game, and the opposition is cashing in on 71 percent of those chances. However, the Bucs opponents are fouling at a rate of 2 fouls a game. The Bucs are converting 69 percent of their chances.

Troubles Last Year, Too!

Last year's edition of the Pirates also had their troubles with too many fouls. But that team, when it lost, generally got clobbered. There were three losses by 29 points (the Bucs lost one this year by 44) as 12 out of the 17 losses were in double figures.

Not Mentioned as Major Factor

Fouls and foul shooting were not mentioned as frequently last year because they did not play as big a factor in the games as they do this year. In their first nine games, the Pirates have outshot their opponents from the floor six times. Of those six games, the Pirates have won only two. The Pirates already have lost four games to the free throw lane. Put that over a 26 game slate, and it spells approximately 12 losses due to fouls. In the four games lost to date, two rates shot well from the free throw could have been won had the Pilane.

Can be Cured

The Pirates have shown on occasion that both fouling and foul shooting can be cured. Against Geo-orge Washington, the team committed only 11 team fouls! Only one foul was called on the Pirates in the 20 minutes of overtime played. In a game at Richmond, the whistle was called on the Pirates 15 times.

Two Outstanding High School Stars Sign Football Grants-In-Aid With East Carolina

Two Tarheels, Sam Cernugel and Grover Truslow, have signed football grants-in-aid with East Carolina University.

Cernugel, a 17-year-old, 6', 202 pounder, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Albert Cernugel of 102 Country Club Acres in Jacksonville. He has played the last two seasons with New York Military Academy in Newberry, New York.

A fullback on offense and tackle on defense, Cernugel averaged more than five yards per carry his senior season. He has won three letters in football, three in track, and two in wrestling.

"He is the kind of boy you can play anywhere," said Coach Henry Vansant, who recruited Cernugel.

The youngster's high school coach was Bob Paroli, who formerly was at Jacksonville High. His assistants included Dave Thomas, a former outstanding end at East Carolina.

Truslow, a 6'4", 195-pound tackle from Lumberton, was all 3-A Conference on offense and made the second team defensive unit. A member of the Key Club, Beta Club, and Latin Club, he carried a B average at Lumberton High.

"I'm real pleased to have an opportunity to go to East Carolina," Truslow said. "I would like to express my appreciation to Coach Linley Read, our line coach at Lumberton, who worked with me and helped me to improve my play."

Odell Welborn, line coach at East Carolina who signed Truslow, said of the youngster, "He has tremendous potential, and we are looking forward to his being an outstanding player."

NO DOZ ANNOUNCES THE EXAM PILL

(If you flunk, at least you'll be awake.)

Sure you've used NoDoz to help you stay awake the night before an exam.

But have you ever thought of taking NoDoz to make yourself a little sharper during the exam itself?

Well, maybe you should.

Let's say you're one of those guys who doesn't have to cram like mad the night before. (Even so, you're probably not getting your usual amount of sleep.)

And let's say the morning of the big exam, you find yourself heading for class, kind of drowsy and unwound and wondering if The Great Brain has deserted you in the night.

What do you do?

You panic, that's what you do.

Or, if you happened to read this ad, you walk coolly over to the water cooler and wash down a couple of NoDoz, the Exam Pill. And before long you're feeling more alert and with it again.

You see, NoDoz helps bring you up to your usual level of alertness, so you don't just sit there in a fog; it's got what it takes to help restore your perception, your recall, and even your ability to solve problems.

In fact, NoDoz contains the strongest stimulant for your mind that you can take without a prescription. Yet it's not habit forming.

Okay, but what about the guy who goofs off all term and has to jam everything in the night before.

Are we saying NoDoz will keep him from flaming out?

Nope.

We're just saying he'll be alert and awake.

As he flunks.
